THE DAILY WORKER

ROLL 10

FEB 1 1927

TO

APR 26 1927

GRAPHIC MICROFILM SERVICE INC
7 DEY ST NEW YORK N Y

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 16. NEW YORK, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1927 Price 5 Cents

DEMAND "HANDS OFF CHINA!"

Smash Lewis Plan To Strangle Locals

Even Slugging Another Progressive Does Not Stop Mass Uprising by Delegates; Lewis Leaves Chair

By JACK KENNEDY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 31.—Rallying to the slogan, "democracy in the union," rank and file delegates decisively defeated Emperor Lewis' machine this morning when it attempted to take away from local unions the right to hold annual elections. Van Bittner's constitutional committee proposed elections every two years.

The vote, both by voice and hands, was so overwhelming that even Chairman Fishwich, Lewis lieutenant, was obliged to admit defeat.

Only Bittner's packed and docile West Virginia delegation voted for the amendment. Lewis deserted the chair to Fishwich when he saw the rank and file rebellion.

Hindmarsh Squelches Van Bittner

John Hindmarsh of Illinois, fighting mad when Bittner sneeringly refused to explain why the committee had proposed the amendment although not one local union in the entire country had expressed dissatisfaction with the existing annual elections, flattened out Van Bittner in a speech which swung the convention to the side of democracy. "This proposal means not stability but stagnation in the miners' locals," he explained. "It will kill interest and vitality in our affairs and alienate our members."

"Bureaucracy rules our international and districts," declared Vincent Kemsevich, western Pennsylvania progressive. "Now the machine insists that a bureaucracy be built up in the local unions. When that is accomplished, democracy will be dead in the miners' ranks."

Illinois and central Pennsylvania had joined the revolt with the convention apparently out of machine control when Chairman C. J. Golden, president of Anthracite District 9, arose to defend the report. His first words were an attack on "those who

(Continued on page 2)

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE tabloid sheets are devoting pages of type and square feet of pictures to the most insane story of sexual irregularities that ever besmirched American journalism. These rags are catering to a public appetite that is whetted to the point of insatiability for such mental fare. They are coining money. Circulation is mounting rapidly and nothing would please their owners better than to have a "Daddy" Browning case weekly until the people grew tired of it and demanded something different and more thrilling.

* * *

THE older and more respectable journals are obviously envious of the windfall that came the way of the tabloids. The citizens that those minds of moral smoopers are trying to save from the clutches of Satan are seeking to fill the gap in their thrilless lives by transporting them, selves mentally into the immediate vicinity of "Daddy" Browning or "Peaches" depending upon the sex of the 100 per cent American.

* * *

READERS turn their faces from headlines telling of a new wrinkle in the Chinese situation or the landing of another boatload of marines in Nicaragua. The "president's spokesman" might be snapped in conference with the president and the phenomenon would not cause a thrill. Invited to bat an eye. Why worry about a war with China, Mexico or the rape of Nicaragua? Here is something that touches the cannon-fodder more intimately. So they run the risk of polluting their souls by reading of a pervert's escapades and the young female's quest for the Golden Fleece.

* * *

THE circulation managers of the "regular" newspapers are tearing their hair if they have any left to pull out. The owners are making life miserable for them. But the managing editors cannot compete with the tabloids in producing pictures, and pictures are easily seen by they pot on their moral high hats and point the accusing finger at the tabloids. Some even go so far as to suggest censorship. If they cannot make money they can console themselves by appearing before the public in all their virtuous nakedness.

* * *

HEARST'S tabloid sheet, The Mirror, devotes practically half of each edition to the Browning case. It

(Continued on page 2)

Gladstone's Son

Viscount Gladstone, above, attempts to remedy the publication of Capt. Peter E. Wright's book, Portraits and Criticism, by forcing the captain into a libel suit. In the book Wright told of cases in which the course of Empire was swayed by Gladstone's fondness for pretty women.

HAPGOOD'S LOCAL DEMANDS SEATING OF ITS DELEGATE

Proves Progressive Is Real Union Miner

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 31.—Powers Hapgood, progressive coal miner of District No. 2, and active in the Brophy campaign, has received immediate aid from his local union at Cresson, Pa., in his attempts to take his place on the floor of the International Convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

Hapgood was trapped alone by agents of the John L. Lewis machine a few days ago and slugged in an effort to prevent his appearing as a delegate. He is also barred by the Lewis controlled credentials committee on the faked charge that he is not a member of the union.

Local Refutes Charge.

His local union in a statement to the Delegates of the Thirtieth U. M. W. A. convention states that:

"The charge that Brother Hapgood never joined the U. M. of A. either by card or initiation is a slanderous lie of the meanest sort. Merely because Brother Hapgood has a mind of his own and, while he was an organizer for the U. M. W. of A. in the 1922 Somerset County strike for union recognition, because he criticized the International officials for allowing the very companies that they were striking against in Somerset County to be signed up in other fields and put back to work, and because he was an active supporter of John Brophy for International President, the International Officials determined to eliminate him. Not being able

(Continued on page 5)

Sell "Daily Worker" At Miners' Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Natalie Gomez in The DAILY WORKER "newsboy" at the Indianapolis Convention of the United Mine Workers of America. Delegates coming in or going out of the hall will find her near the door. She will also take subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER and other publications of the DAILY WORKER Publishing Co.

The DAILY WORKER is sold at all union conventions.

Communists of Great Britain Fight War

Organize "Hands Off China" Committees

LONDON, Jan. 31.—An active campaign to prevent a war with China is being conducted by the Communist Party of Great Britain, thru the distribution of leaflets, the organization of mass demonstrations and "Hands off China" committees.

The dockworkers are appealed to to prevent the dispatch of troops, arms and munitions to China. Leaflets are distributed among the soldiers awaiting embarkation for the Orient.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners Federation of Great Britain called on all organized labor to unite in a conference to fight the government's policy of war against China.

Thomas For War.

On the other hand J. H. Thomas, political secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, and colonial minister in Ramsay MacDonald's government, came out openly in favor of the tory government and the war on China. So did Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the MacDonald government, who accompanied his proffer of support to Sir Austen Chamberlain with a vicious attack on Soviet Russia for its sympathy for the Chinese nationalist movement. Snowden charged the Soviet government with seeking to injure the interests of the empire in China and all over the Orient.

Blames Soviet Union.

He attributed the Chinese revolution to Soviet intrigue and holds the capitalists of Great Britain blameless for the campaign of terror which has evoked the present hatred of the British in every section of China.

In harmony with the British government's machinations against the Soviet union the right wing labor leaders are renewing their attacks on the Communists and on the Minority Movement, the left wing organization of the British trade union movement.

Cable Is Confirmed.

My recent cable to The DAILY WORKER regarding the conference held between right wing labor leaders and Winston Churchill in Lord Winborne's mansion has been eloquently borne out by the action of the Thomas-MacDonald reactionaries in supporting the government policy on China.

There is no doubt in the mind of every left winger that a secret agreement was reached between the government and the labor leaders for a united front against the Soviet union and the growing anti-imperialist movement which threatens the existence of the empire.

* * *

Twice From Same Place.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The British government was rocked today by two staggering blows from China when the consular body refused permission to the British army of occupation to be quartered in the international set-

(Continued on Page 2)

Hudson Coal Co. Hits Employees With a Lay-Off; Anti-Union Outfit

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 31.—More than 25,000 mine workers of Lackawanna und Luzerne counties were thrown out of work today when thirteen collieries of the Hudson Coal Company and several workings of the Glen Alden Coal Company were shut down because of the lack of demand for anthracite coal.

Notices posted at the various mines throughout the valley explained that the mines would be idle "indefinitely." The action of the companies is taken to mean that a half time operating policy will be enforced because of the dull condition of the hard coal market.

The Hudson Coal Co. is one of the largest in this district, and is a most vigorous agitator for non-union conditions. It has a contract with the union, but forbids union organizers to set foot on its property. It also conducts dinners, at which it seeks to form its employes into a more or less organised opposition to the union.

BOTH HOUSE AND SENATE GET INTO JAM, WORK ENDS

Questions of Graft In Elections Foremost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — Congress began its ninth week today facing a legislative jam which, leaders admit, foredooms most of the important bills now pending.

Farm relief, Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam loomed today as the most important controversial issues yet to be decided. Backers of a dozen other measures are clamoring for recognition.

Leaders Careless.

The situation apparently does not alarm congressional leaders. The chief purpose of the short session, they point out, is to make appropriations. The country, too, they say is clamoring for fewer laws rather than more.

Swerved from its legislative course by the international situation and the fight over the seats of Senator Gould (R.) of Maine, Senator-Designate Frank L. Smith of Illinois and Cyrus Woods nomination, the senate has not touched the program laid down by its steering committee.

Things They Could Do.

This program is the Gooding long and short haul bill, the Capper Truth-in-Fabric bill, Boulder Dam, the French spoliation claims, two prohibition reorganization bills, and reorganization of foreign commerce bureau.

House leaders have given right of way to the agricultural surplus bill.

The senate now has before it the Olson property, McFadden branch banking and radio control measure, which have been approved by the house.

* * *

Denies Cut of Oil Price.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, denied today a report that the company had been holding meetings with executives of buyers of mid-continent crude oil for the purpose of making a cut in the posted price of oil.

Britain Challenges World Proletariat

Communist International Declares Victory Over China Would Be Followed by New Capitalist Onslaught

(Special Cable to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—That the British government is openly challenging the international proletariat in arrogantly declaring its intention to dispatch an army of occupation to Shanghai, is the opening declaration in a manifesto issued by the executive committee of the Communist International calling on the workers of the world to organize for the defense of the Chinese revolution, under the slogan: "Hands off China."

The British bourgeoisie, declares the manifesto, are eager to profit by their victory over the miners by strangling the Chinese revolution.

Aim at Disarming China.

The tactics of the reformist leaders aim at disarming the Chinese revolution and leaving it at the mercy of the interventionists, who are armed to the teeth. Those tactics fit in with the general strategical plan of international imperialism.

A victory for the military interventionists in China, the manifesto goes on to say, would mean a victory of international fascism and render a new onslaught against the workers of all lands by the capitalists a certainty.

The attack on China is a preparation and rehearsal for war against Soviet Russia, which is the stronghold of the workers and peasants' revolution.

Organize to Defend China.

The manifesto calls on world labor to organize without loss of time for the defense and support of the Chinese revolution, to organize a united front struggle of all labor organizations, to mobilize all organizations with a view to preventing transportation of armed forces against Chinese.

The workers of all countries are urged to demand the immediate recognition of the Nationalist government of China and the withdrawal of armed imperialist forces from China.

ENLIGHTENED LABOR LAW IN RISING CHINA

One Reason for Support Of Laboring Masses

HANKOW, (FP).—Reason for the enthusiasm of the Chinese workers for the Nationalist government, and basis for the tremendous expansion of labor unions in territory held by the revolutionary armies, is found in the new code of industrial relations drawn up by the political department of Hupeh province, in which Hankow is located.

Children under 12 years of age cannot be employed; nor can women, or children under 16 years, be employed after 9 p. m. in any factory, or at any dangerous work.

Workers cannot be dismissed without previous consent of the labor union.

The work-week is to be six days, with pay for seven. Ten hours is to be the maximum day's work period.

Right of the workers to organize and make collective contracts is to be recognized by all employers.

Workmen's compensation, with six years pension for widows of workers

(Continued on page 2)

BANK OF ENGLAND LOSES ITS RUSSIAN GOLD DEPOSITS AS TRADE BALANCE FAVORS U. S. S. R.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—A significant sign of the improved state of industry in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is the quiet withdrawal of four and a half million dollars worth of Russian gold from the Bank of England. This money was not sent for subversive purposes, but was demanded by the British as a guarantee that goods purchased in England by the government trade monopoly of the U. S. S. R. would not be obtained partially free through a decline in the value of the ruble caused by excess of imports over exports in the trade of the Soviet Union.

The shoe is on the other foot now. Russian exports exceed imports during the last quarter of 1926 by 76,000,000 rubles. There is considerably more chance of the pound depreciating than of the ruble falling. And the Russian government takes back its gold. Not only that, it is buying more, where it can get it. The internal trade of the Soviet Union is growing faster than the medium of circulation, as a direct result of the rapidly increasing productivity of all sorts of industry. The Moscow state bank shows for the second half of 1926 an increase of 28,000,000 rubles in its gold and gold exchange reserve. The paper ruble is adequately backed by gold reserves.

Lewis Dresses the U. M. W. of A. for a Wedding and a Funeral

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

THE United Mine Workers of America, so far as the Lewis machine with the aid of a packed convention can do it, at its thirtieth convention, is being stripped of every political and constitutional sanction for a policy of class struggle.

The heritage of militancy and belief in the ultimate supremacy of the working class, providing it kept faith and held to the line of solidarity with all of its oppressed kindred, the expression of belief in the right of the working class to free itself from economic and political servitude, have been rejected and repudiated in Indianapolis.

THE United Mine Workers, in its political policy, has been brought [illegible] line with the prevailing reaction [illegible] upper stratum of the labor [illegible] which the pioneers of the American labor movement welded together with their blood, has been prepared for burial in the muck-heap of worker-employer co-operation and efficiency unionism.

The war on the Communists and the left wing in the union, the starving of thousands of the best fighting elements out of the union with the approval of officialdom since the Jacksonville agreement was signed, the steady barrage directed against members who have dared to insist on the preservation of the most elementary principles of trade union democracy, the expulsion of men like Howat, Corbisily, Myerscough, Duncan MacDonald, Frances Thomas son and Hapgood—all have been part of a consistent plan and the scope of the union that is taking place here is proof of it.

[illegible] constitution [illegible] which [illegible] the constitution most thoroly. Their report recommends that every word, clause or sentence which is reminiscent of the former militancy of the United Mine Workers be eliminated.

In addition to castrating the constitution the machine-ridden convention has repudiated a number of former progressive measures.

The major preparations to turn the back of the union on its glorious past can be enumerated as follows:

1. The preamble to the constitution has been fundamentally changed. In its old form the second paragraph said:

Believing that those whose lot is to toil within the earth's recesses surrounded by peculiar dangers and deprived of sunlight and pure air, producing the commodity which makes possible the world's progress, are entitled to protection and to A FULL SOCIAL VALUE OF THEIR PRODUCT, etc.

The last five words have been changed to read: EQUITABLE FRUITS OF THEIR LABOR.

This change is of the greatest significance. It means that the officialdom of the U. M. W. of A. accepts both the viewpoint of the American ruling class on the question of the reward to which workers are entitled and the phraseology in which its views are formulated. "Equitable fruits of their labor" is the formula of the Civic Federation.

2. In Article 8, Section 1 of the section dealing with qualifications for holding office in the union, there has been inserted a clause BARRING ANYONE WHO IS NOT AN AMERICAN CITIZEN FROM HOLDING FOR OFFICE IN THE UNION.

This clause, in a union like the U. M. W. of A., in which the majority of the membership is foreign-born, in the hands of prosperity [illegible] American elements which have accepted the worker-co-operation theory.

It sets up a privileged group, a group which is vested with the power of carrying on all negotiations with the bosses and determining the policies of the union.

THIS division between the foreign-born and the American-born, between those foreign-born workers fortunate enough to be allowed to share the few privileges accorded workers who exercise allegiance to American capitalist government and those who have been denied that privilege, cannot but weaken the union and drive it further along the road of unadulterated plutocracy unionism.

Other unions have adopted similar provisions, but no union officialdom has ever gone to such a length in [illegible] the foreign-born workers who make up the strength of the U. M. W. of A. have been made into robots who are allowed, in the affairs of the union, only to pay dues and vote for his betters—the American citizen.

3. The policy which the Lewis machine has been following for the last five years and a half, i. e., expelling all members who protest against turning the union into an instrument of the coal operators, has now been incorporated in the constitution.

This provision, with the deprival of the right of Non-citizens to hold office, makes the UMWA officialdom an open ally of the oppressive agencies of the government and vice versa.

4. The necessity for securing the endorsement of the membership for assessments over [illegible] a two-thirds [illegible] has been [illegible] of the [illegible] demands [illegible]

"The board shall have power to levy and collect assessments when necessary, but no assessment levied by the international executive board shall be collected for more than two months unless authorized by a referendum vote of the members."

As amended by the constitution committee this section now reads:

"The board shall have power to levy and collect assessments when necessary."

The Lewis machine now has the power which the rising opposition there fought for for four centuries: to take away from royalty—the power to tax without consent of the taxed. By the use of that power it can secure funds with which to support its army of "organizers" and maintain it upon the rank and file.

5. One of the ways in which the power is to be used is to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SCALE REPORT ABOUT READY

Committee Made Up of Lewis Supporters

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 31.—The scale committee appointed at the beginning of the United Mine Workers' international convention here has held several meetings, and is expected to report in a day or two. This committee was appointed from among the higher officers of the various districts, with Harry M. Fishwick, president of District 12 (Illinois) and a staunch Lewis partisan in this convention, at its head. John Brophy, president of District 2, progressive candidate for international president against John L. Lewis, the incumbent, was not put on the committee. Nearly all other district presidents are members of it.

To Cut or Not.

There is much speculation as to the committee's proposed report. The progressives are determined on no reduction of the wages now prevailing in the central competitive district, which are higher than those in the non-union districts. Lewis has frequently announced that the union would submit to "no backward steps." Chairman Fishwick in speeches made in his district before the convention but after his elevation to the district presidency, has used similar languages.

Harry in Bad Company.

Frank Farrington, president of District 12 until he was exposed last year as a briefing of the Peabody Coal Co., created the district union political machine by which Fishwick maintains his power, and Farrington has openly advocated a wage reduction for the union fields, both before and after his sudden ousting from office.

The South Must Strike.

Neither Fishwick nor Lewis has proposed any practical plan by which a successful strike could be accomplished, in case the operators stick to their agreement made in Toledo to insist on wage reductions. A successful strike in the union fields depends largely on the sympathetic striking of the non-union miners, and Lewis has kept his hundreds of international organizers playing politics in the union fields instead of penetrating the non-union fields with union propaganda.

Jamestown Workers in Opposition to Policy Of Bullying Nicaragua

JAMESTOWN, Jan. 31.—The local Central Labor Council in its last meeting adopted a resolution, protesting against the imperialist policies of the American government, and demanded the recall of the marines, bluejackets and battleships from Mexico, Nicaragua and China.

A resolution for the A. F. L. to formulate plans to stop invasion of other countries by the U. S. was introduced at the meeting of the Barbers Local 178, and passed unanimously.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Smash Lewis Plan to Strangle Locals

(Continued from page 1)

to make any direct charges against him, they sent International Organizer ... to address every local union in District Two where he had ever had his card in search of some one howling for democracy in the union" and a savage attack against Demchak, his leading progressive opponent in his district on unproved charges that he had worked in a non-union district.

Slug Demchak.

Demchak jumped to his feet on a point of special privilege, striding up the aisle to brand Golden's charge a lie.

Lewis' gangsters, who surround every progressive in the convention, threw Demchak violently into his chair while other administration henchmen closed in on him, slugging and cursing. The convention was in pandemonium, Fishwick vainly pounding his gavel for five minutes before police had pulled off Demchak's assailants.

"Is it safe for a rank and filer to attend this convention?" was the first question shot at Fishwick when order had been restored, whereupon there was another wild demonstration. Further debate being impossible, Fishwick called for the vote as progressive forces, made the rafters ring with a thunderous "No." A show of hands completely demonstrated that the Lewis outfit had lost its grip and even Fishwick admitted defeat. Cheers and applause rang again through the hall as rank and filers realized that at last they had broken the iron hand of Lewis' control over local delegations and a stuffed convention.

Before adjournment, delegates approved a memorial to congress asking admission of the interstate commerce commission for the discrimination [illegible]

... FOR A WORKER ... A FUNERAL ... AT WASHINGTON TALKS PLAINLY

Revolution in Orient Can't Wait on Cal

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, (FP.)—China's revolution, backed by an awakened working class of 300,000,000 out of her 400,000,000 people, will not wait for Secretary Kellogg or any other foreign cabinet minister to tell it what it may do.

That's the substance of a diplomatic statement made to the American press by Soo-Ke Aitrod Sao, Chinese minister in Washington, after he had studied the Kellogg statement of sympathy toward China, and after Sao had read a resolution adopted by a mass meeting of Chinese in New York. This resolution was the voice of the revolution, spoken by men who have been aiding the Canton government by their weekly contributions from all around the world.

It Belongs to Them.

What business is it of Kellogg, says Sao in effect, to talk of granting things to the Chinese in their own country. The Chinese are taking back what belongs to them. They ask permission from nobody. The time has come when foreign governments, if they want the thing done politely, must stop sending gunboats and armies to China and must heed notice that they have absolutely surrendered their claims of special privilege, extra-territorial rights and concessions there.

Sao is in a position which the Washington administration tolerates only because it fears that any change would be worse. He is minister from a government at Peking that died a year ago, and he speaks for the Canton government of the revolution which Coolidge and Kellogg regard as too working-class in its program to be recognized.

Tired of Pious Wishes.

"I can convey any message to Hankow or Peking that the American government is ready to send," says Sao, "but we are tired of pious wishes. We want foreign governments to name their delegates to conferences for negotiation of new treaties that will be based on recognition of equality of rights and treatment between Chinese and foreigners. We will negotiate with each power separately, not collectively. And we do not want to waste time repeating old and futile talk. That is why we ask that the foreign powers each name their delegates; China is as much interested to know the composition of these foreign delegations as they seem to be anxious to know ours."

He explained that the proposed Boulder dam on the Colorado River would prevent floods, reclaim land and furnish electric power for eight states.

Power Company Lobby Hinders Project For Boulder Canyon Dam

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—One of the greatest lobbies in the history of congress is seeking to throttle Boulder canyon dam legislation, Rep. Swing (R) of California, charged in the house today.

Swing was questioned by several members who expressed amazement at the methods he said were being employed.

"I charge that the power companies of the country are in a pool for the purpose of talking the United States government and congress in enacting this legislation which is virtually necessary to protect lives and property from flood," Swing said.

He explained that the proposed Boulder dam on the Colorado River would prevent floods, reclaim land and furnish electric power for eight states.

Communists of Great Britain War on War

(Continued from Page 1)

tinent at Shanghai and Wellington Koo, representing the Pekin government, or Chang-Tso-Lin, called at the British embassy and peremptorily demanded that the British troops now in Shanghai evacuate immediately.

"The British government will give any protest from foreign minister Koo the attention it deserves" was the icy comment of the foreign office.

Koo characterized the dispatch of British troops as "a most extraordinary action" and in contravention of existing agreements. Koo cited the Washington conference resolution for the withdrawal of all troops not in China in conformity with existing treaties and article X of the league of nations covenant.

Forced To Evacuate.

Two battalions of recently arrived British troops have been forced to evacuate from their quarters in the Shanghai racecourse.

The action of the council was taken, it is understood after it had been decided that the situation does not call for the presence of troops. If the decision is maintained the thousands of British troops now enroute to Shanghai may not be permitted to land, for quartering them in the Chinese sections would undoubtedly arouse immediate protests from the Chinese since it would be an act of intervention.

No Rest For Bull's Troops.

The British in Shanghai propose to quarter the troops at the waterworks which they claim to be British property. Here again the consular body steps in and declares that even the the waterworks is British property it is located in the international settlement and is under the jurisdiction of the consular body. So the British troops are here but have no place to sit.

The British government decided to delay publication of its proposals to China. The Morning Post assures its tory readers that the proposals would not become effective until a "suitable" government is formed in China. This means a puppet government suitable to the tories.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Combine of Congressmen On Tax and Farm Help?

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—Representative Martin L. Davy, (D) has written to Representatives John N. Garner (D) and Gilbert N. Haugen (R) proposing a bloc in congress to pass over Coolidge's veto bills for lower taxes and farm relief.

"In spite of the opposition of the administration," said he, "these two groups combined have sufficient votes to pass both bills by substantial majorities. What I propose is a straight bi-partisan union of forces to pass bills in good faith." Davy said he had voted twice against the McNary-Haugen farm bill, but would do so again. He is for the Garner bill to reduce taxes on corporations.

Aski Aid of State Department.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 31.—Felmer Davis, executive secretary of Yale-in-China, today urged the state department at Washington asking that immediate steps be taken to effect the release of Dickson H. Leavens, treasurer of Yale-in-China, who is reported as having been imprisoned in Hunanfoo, China.

Revolution in China Causes in an Effort to Abolish Class Struggle

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

THERE are former radicals and reputed radicals who find no reason for their desertion of the class struggle in the declaration that the "dividing lines of the social conflict are being swept away."

This conception is part of the backing of Evans Clark's review of this tendency in the New York Times. Clark helps the cause of retrogression along a little himself, first injecting his own ideas in this direction, and then tells what his finds inside of books written by the liberal, Scott Nearing, ex-socialist, William English Walling, as well as a symposium edited by the socialists, Harry W. Laidler and Norman Thomas, under the title of "New Tactics in the Social Conflict."

* * *

Clark's statement of the same comfort with which "the new liberalism" seeks to surround itself finds voice in these two sentences:

"In the pre-war days the radical and labor groups were massed on the one side in a frontal attack on capital . . .

"Except for a little band of Communists, who now keep up a ragged show of opposition on the left, the battle lines have been obscured, if not lost altogether, in this general breaking of ranks."

Anyone at all familiar with facts, and not wishing to distort them, can easily take issue with both of these statements. The class struggle lines are clearer than ever today. Capital is faced with a more determined "frontal attack" by labor today than at any time in all its history in this country.

One of the big differences is that in the pre-war days, words were sufficient, especially lots of them, while today deeds are demanded in the class struggle.

* * *

It is only necessary, for instance, to consider the present convention of the United Mine Workers of America at Indianapolis. The class lines have never been drawn more clearly in any gathering of American labor.

In the pre-war days even Tom L. Lewis, international president, who sold out to the West Virginia coal barons, could parade as a "radical," because it was merely a matter of how to pass a resolution denouncing the National Civic Federation. Lewis bore a bitter enmity toward John Mitchell, one of the big labor lieutenants of Mark Hanna Gompers, of this class blurring organization, and so he raised the issue himself in the miners' convention, not waiting for the socialists to do it. In those days latter industrial war was carried on, to be sure, in every section of the land, in the coal mines of Colorado; in the copper mines of Michigan; in the steel mills of the Pittsburgh district. But these struggles were, for hours, wages and conditions, in which the "specter of Communism" was never seen, because the Russian Bolshevik revolution had not yet taken place. But "Passaic" ranks well with "Ludlow," with "Calumet," with "Cabin Creek" and "Homestead," with the additional asset that in the New Jersey textile center the strikers also stood firm under the repeated attack, instigated by the employers, that workers were bent on wrecking the capitalist government and setting power, and the "Passaic" was but a preliminary rehearsal. To be sure, "Passaic" typifies the struggle for wages and hours today, but it also typifies the fear of the great employer of his own extermination at the hands of the workers on some tomorrow.

* * *

Socialist delegates, in the pre-war days, in the miners' conventions, were listened to good-naturedly, whether it was Duncan MacDonald, Adolph Germer, Alex Howat, Jim Lord or Frank J. Hayes. Many of the measures they espoused were adopted, and then forgotten. Miners' conventions were comparatively peaceful affairs.

No one can be blind to the conditions existing today. MacDonald has been ousted from the miners' union in Illinois because he fought the officialdom, both the state machine ruthlessly headed by Frank Farrington and the international regime of John L. Lewis, who arrogantly announces that Alex Howat is "no longer a member of the union." But the vicious capitalist attack, developed within the union by Lewis and his lieutenants against the real spokesmen of labor, is also directed against those who raise even an opposition program, like John Brophy, William Stevenson and William Brennan. Let the renegade liberals and socialists, who now write for the New York Times, try to point out in this employers' sheet, if they can, where the blur is to be found in Indianapolis today. Incidentally, they might take off the smoked glasses they wear to shut out the glare of the class struggle, as it rages today even within the labor unions themselves.

* * *

Capitalism knows that the class lines are clearer. It fears the militant program of the opposition in the miners' union. It buys off the Farringtons with soft, high-priced jobs. It coddles those ambitious like John Lewis, with promises of high political places, like secretary of labor, or even the vice-presidency of the nation. This only shows that the labor lackeys of capitalism, like Lewis and Farrington, stand more clearly revealed than ever on the side of the exploiters. This does not blur, it clarifies the class struggle, in the eyes of the labor lieutenants of capitalism, it is a worse crime today to champion the cause of the Labor Party in the trade unions, in this post war period, than it was to urge the cause of the Socialist Party in the trade unions before the war. This is true today—the Labor Party signifies a concrete effort to build a class party of labor. In the pre-war days multitudes joined the socialist party who not only were passive in the class struggle, but actually denied, like Charles Edward Russell, who nearly became the party's candidate for president in 1916, that there are classes struggling against each other within capitalist society.

* * *

"Company unions" do not blur the class issue. Look at Passaic, best example of how the employers merely invoke this subterfuge to head off real unionism. Of course, if writers like Clark, Lauck, Lauder, Thomas and the rest want to put on blinders and merely look at the class collaboration apparent in every union-management co-operation scheme, without taking into consideration the developing class resentment of workers against such nefarious schemes, then it is easy to discover a blur in the class relationship. Yet such are merely gazing at the capitalist class, including its lackeys, whether Green, Woll, Walling, Hillman or Sigman, and all they see is the capitalist class, of which they are themselves a part. They close their eyes entirely to the presence of class conscious elements among the workers inspiring the rest to greater efforts, thus coming to the false conclusion that there is no class struggle.

* * *

But the class struggle cannot be winked at, or shut out of existence with the closing of an eye, even by socialists, either in or out of the unions. Every trade union convention, every labor struggle proves that. The fact that socialists and liberals have joined the capitalists in their struggle against the left wing and the Communists indicates that the class struggle is becoming clearer, not that it is blurred.

Austrian Fascists Use Hungary as Base For Raid in Austria

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 31.—Four persons were killed and thirty more injured as a result of fighting between the Socialists and Austrian fascists late yesterday afternoon and continuing through the night. The center of conflict were at Lofberg-bach and Neustadt. The Socialists won the battle, and the fascists fled by hundreds across the Hungarian frontier. It is charged that they chose Hungary to make their attack with the tacit connivance of the Horthy government.

Fascisti lying in wait the enemy before, fired on them as they came back into Austria. The fighting proceeded [illegible]

Communists Wage Campaign Against It

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—All is not well with the Labor Sweatmonger cabinet. The Communists have succeeded in getting out enormous crowds at their demonstrations against it, and the Red Front Fighters have been eminently successful in their stupendous efforts to break up all such meetings.

Grad Disgruntled.

The extreme right wing, anti-semitic, branch of the Nationalist party threatens to secede from the party, withdraw support from the Marx cabinet, and line up with the National Socialist or fascist groups in opposition to the government. The reason is that its leader, Judge Walter Graef did not get the portfolio of Minister of Justice.

The Catholic center deputies are many of them following the example of Joseph Wirth and forming against the cabinet.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from page 1)

appears that the Mirror was instrumental in framing up the whole business and when one of Browning's lawyers intimated this. The Mirror opened up on the lawyer in an effort to show that the kinks in his marital life and Browning's hectic connubial career showed a striking similarity. In fact, the paper suggested that the lawyer might have contributed to Browning's delinquency.

* * *

In order to bring the reading public of Lenox to The Mirror—the public that feeds on the offal provided by the Hearst press—a contest is started and readers are offered prizes for the smallest pet name for Browning. Some suggest that he be called the "Honking Gander" and other fancy names. When the Browning case is played out the tabloids will comb the social sewers for more filth and as long as the cash from increased advertising rates keeps the cash register striking, our moral, Christian publishers will care for the public and denounce Communism as a menace to the sanctity of the home [illegible]

* * *

OUR position that Great Britain gesture on [illegible] co-towards China was correct, a stall to enable the British [illegible] to get to Shanghai before the inevitable capture of the city is [illegible] by the Cantonese army of liberation. There are so many conflicting stories emanating from London and Washington that it is almost impossible to get the truth thru the mass of contradictory reports. But it is becoming clearer with each passing day that the imperialists are determined to hold on to Shanghai and that England and the United States have more than mere commercial reasons for this determination.

* * *

CHAMBERLAIN'S policy has been endorsed by both Ramsay MacDonald and Lloyd George. This means that the empire is in a crisis and that all the tools of the empire in all parties are rallying to her support. Here is the way a London correspondent puts the British position: "... Britain intends to stand to the limit her concession at Shanghai, upon which hangs the fate of the new naval station—the key point to the control of Oriental sea warfare." Strategic consideration as well as commercial reasons explain the grim determination of England not to United States to maintain a [illegible] in China.

* * *

BRITAIN refuses to recognize the Centenese but offers a working agreement with "the north and south China factions." The same old policy of dividing and conquering with this bribed policy we find the hypocritical fraud, Ramsay MacDonald, in agreement. The gentleman who is against Soviet Russia and the dictatorship of the workers and peasants has nothing but the silkiest terms of criticism for the brutal bloodand iron policy of the tory government in China. Even his former mild criticism seems to be now conspicuous by its absence.

* * *

THERE is serious danger of a world war developing out of the Chinese crisis. The United States cannot forget the interview of Chang-Kai-shek, the Cantonese general, in which he declared that China extended a friendly hand to the oppressed slaves of American imperialism in the Philippines. Neither can England forget his reference to the uncovered of millions of Hindoos who would be encouraged to rise against Britain by a victory of the Chinese nationalists. And both England and Japan look with a jaundiced eye in the direction of Japan and the dreaded alliance of all Eastern peoples against western imperialism. You [illegible]

Enlightened Laws For Workers In China

(Continued from Page 1)

killed while employed, shall be paid.

Compulsory arbitration is established in all disputes not directly adjusted between employer and union.

Employers must pay unemployment benefits in time of stoppage, and where unable to do so such apply to the local government.

Workers must not interfere in factory administration, but may protest against harmful rules and be answered within 48 hours.

Ditto For Detroit.

DETROIT, Jan. 31.—Agitation for and against the return of capital punishment continued to rage today as [illegible]

LLOYD GEORGE IS REPORTED READY FOR MOSCOW TRIP

To Seek New Deal With The Soviet Union

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Former Premier Lloyd George of Britain will start for Moscow in a few weeks with the objective of removing from the political stage of the world the Anglo-Russian antagonism that is daily increasing in intensity.

This is the statement of Sir H. Patterson Key, English industrialist, in an interview in the Neue Wiener Journal. Lloyd George, according to Key, is going to Moscow with the intention of trying to bring an end to the conflict between the British Lion and the Russian Red Bear, which is raring from the Baltic to the Pacific.

Five years ago George Tchitcherin declared:

"Czaristic Russia was ever at war with Asia, and exploited it for the benefit of European Russia. Soviet Russia will reverse this policy and concentrate its energies upon awakening Asia, and will cultivate its friendship intensively."

Key said:

"Lloyd George is of the opinion that a European alliance with a seapoint against Russia, as the present British government apparently desires, is not attainable. It is unattainable because it is impossible for France and still more so for Germany."

REACTIONARIES OF FUR WORKERS SUE IN NEWARK

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 31.—The latest move on the part of the right wing group in the Furriers' union to take over control of local 35, is an appeal to the local courts to oust the regularly elected left wing officials and install themselves in their place.

In petitioning the Chancery Court in this city the Schachtman-Sorkin clique state that the left wingers desire to overthrow the American government, the dreaded Communists being in control of the local.

Langer Singled Out.

Twenty officials of the local are named defendants in the complaint, which cites the progressive manager of the local, Morris Langer, as a "terrible exemple."

An affidavit signed by Samuel Adelman, a flunkey of Shachtman, attached to the complaint, states that Langer offered him $2,900 "to help spread Communistic ideas among workers." The affidavit is ridiculous in the face of it but is being used.

Vice Chancellor Church directed the officials of the local to show cause tomorrow why they should not be removed as officers of the union.

"Three Times And Out?"

This is the third attempt within one week by the right wing to oust the regularly elected officers of the local. Last Thursday a committee headed by Sorkin, and including local police tried to remove the progressives by a display of force. Unsuccessful, on Friday they adopted a new method of attack. They demanded that the association refuse to recognize Langer as business agent, and transact business with their puppet. At first the bosses were in favor of, doing so, but, when they saw that the overwhelming majority of the unionists supported the left wing, they hanged their mind.

Wants Public Opinion To Favor Labor Laws

Industry takes better care of its machines than of the children who toil at them, Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee declared yesterday at an address of the Women's Civic Organization at the Commodore Hotel.

"It is our duty to see that labor conditions among children are brought to the same degree of perfection that exists in machines. It is easier to pay [illegible]

Ready To Attack Russia.

The Communist International declares that the attack on China is a dress rehearsal for an attack on the Soviet Union.

"Transport, dock workers and sailors are urged to refuse to transport soldiers, arms and munitions for the imperialist war.

"Do not transport a single soldier, not one cannon, shell or airplane" is the demand.

Noted European radicals and intellectuals have issued a statement declaring that the world is trembling under new clamor and announces that evitable unless there is the quickest war between Britain and China is in action by workers thruout the world.

Hatred of Cantonese.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Bitter hostility to the Cantonese revolutionaries is breathed thru every line of state department and by the "presidential" the official statements issued by the dent's spokesman" alias Calvin Coolidge.

Coolidge will not recognize the Cantonese government in the near future. That is made clear. Coolidge will ignore mass opinion and the wish of both houses of congress expressed thru resolutions.

Insists on "Open Door"

The hitherto silent Coolidge is rather vocal nowadays. He insists on the continuance of the "open door" policy in China as one condition of revamping the old "unequal treaties." He insists on protection for American property in China, something that the United States government cannot guarantee to American citizens in the United States.

The United States will not withdraw its armed forces from China or draft new treaties until the Chinese can agree among themselves. This policy, it is pointed out, is quite different to that adopted by Coolidge in Nicaragua where he recognized Diaz who did not have twenty per cent of the population on his side.

Mobilizing For War.

The opinion is growing here that both Britain and the United States are mobilizing their naval flotillas in Chinese waters for a war against the Cantonese. It is said that Japan considers the presence of a joint U. S. British fleet as a threat to its own safety. It is becoming clearer every day that the imperialist powers believe they are striking at the Soviet Union in fighting the Cantonese. It is not outside the bounds of probability, in the opinion of competent political observers that the imperialist powers think the time is now ripe to attempt to smash the trap on the Soviet Union.

Generous Uncle Sam!

The United States has adopted the same attitude towards China that it has adopted towards the Filipinos. As soon as China is able to exercise the rights held by the United States in that country Uncle Sam is willing to surrender them says the little bill collector from New England.

In the meantime American warships are being stationed in strategic positions in the Pacific and Edward L. Doheny's Teapot Dome oil tanks in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, are coming in handy.

The danger of a new world war is considered more imminent than most people imagine. The crisis in China may set fire to the military powder barrels in the assassination of an Austrian grand duke did in 1914.

Read English Statement.

State department officials read with the keenest interest the new British policy announced by Sir Austen Chamberlain. It was said to offer little that is concrete. It was pointed out that the British agree to have their citizens amenable to Chinese laws when these laws become acceptable to the British and to turn over to the Chinese a measure of control of the British concessions.

Gets Another Start.

PANAMA, Jan. 31.—The army plane St. Louis, which was yesterday forced to turn back on the flight of the five Pan-American planes to Colombia, took off from France field today at 12:30.

Fag Ties up Shipping.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Shipping along the Atlantic seaboard was tied up today by a dense fog, said by port authorities to be the worst of the season, causing a collision between the White Star liner, Celtic, and the American Diamond freighter, Anaconda.

Sell in the Subscription Drive for The DAILY WORKER!

WHEELER POINTS OUT HYPOCRISY OF IMPERIALISM

New Yorkers Pass Four Resolutions

President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg were severely criticized here yesterday in a speech delivered by Burton K. Wheeler, democratic senator from Montana, and other well known speakers, at the Lyric Theatre, Broadway and 42 St. Wheeler stated, that unless we compel the responsible statesmen of this country to cease their Chinese policy in China as one condition of revamping the old "unequal treaties." He insists on protection for American property in China, something that the United States government cannot guarantee to American citizens in the United States.

The United States will not withdraw its armed forces from China or draft new treaties until the Chinese can agree among themselves. This policy, it is pointed out, is quite different to that adopted by Coolidge in Nicaragua where he recognized Diaz who did not have twenty per cent of the population on his side.

Mobilizing For War.

The opinion is growing here that both Britain and the United States are mobilizing their naval flotillas in Chinese waters for a war against the Cantonese. It is said that Japan considers the presence of a joint U. S. British fleet as a threat to its own safety. It is becoming clearer every day that the imperialist powers believe they are striking at the Soviet Union in fighting the Cantonese. It is not outside the bounds of probability, in the opinion of competent political observers that the imperialist powers think the time is now ripe to attempt to smash the trap on the Soviet Union.

Generous Uncle Sam!

The United States has adopted the same attitude towards China that it has adopted towards the Filipinos. As soon as China is able to exercise the rights held by the United States in that country Uncle Sam is willing to surrender them says the little bill collector from New England.

In the meantime American warships are being stationed in strategic positions in the Pacific and Edward L. Doheny's Teapot Dome oil tanks in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, are coming in handy.

The danger of a new world war is considered more imminent than most people imagine. The crisis in China may set fire to the military powder barrels in the assassination of an Austrian grand duke did in 1914.

Read English Statement.

State department officials read with the keenest interest the new British policy announced by Sir Austen Chamberlain. It was said to offer little that is concrete. It was pointed out that the British agree to have their citizens amenable to Chinese laws when these laws become acceptable to the British and to turn over to the Chinese a measure of control of the British concessions.

Gets Another Start.

PANAMA, Jan. 31.—The army plane St. Louis, which was yesterday forced to turn back on the flight of the five Pan-American planes to Colombia, took off from France field today at 12:30.

Fag Ties up Shipping.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Shipping along the Atlantic seaboard was tied up today by a dense fog, said by port authorities to be the worst of the season, causing a collision between the White Star liner, Celtic, and the American Diamond freighter, Anaconda.

Sell in the Subscription Drive for The DAILY WORKER!

Concessions to Conservatives Temporarily Ease Tariff.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary announced last night during the course of a speech delivered in Birmingham that the British government had conceded all the principal demands of the Cantonese but refused to recognize the Nationalist government as the government as the whole of China.

The British secretary declared that the demand for treaty revision had become so insistent that there was nothing left for the government to do but surrender to it.

The "concessions" made by the British government are substantially as follows:

1. Abolition of the extra-territorial position thru which foreigners could not be tried in Chinese courts for violations of Chinese laws.

2. The Chinese to be allowed raise tariff on foreign goods.

3. Semi-independence in the concession areas.

Not Equal To Demands.

It will be seen from the foregoing that the much-touted "generosity" of the British government falls far short of the demands of the Cantonese. The Nationalist government insists that the foreign imperialists take their institutions, courts and marines out of China. This the British government has not agreed to by any means. Refusal to recognize the Cantonese government on the ground that it is only a faction indicates the dishonesty of Chamberlain's policy. Outside of the bandit Chang-Tso-Lin and the peace-mad Sun-Chuan-Fang, all impartial observers admit that 90 per cent of the Chinese masses are behind the Nationalist government.

While Chamberlain tailed gaily of Britain's pacific intentions in China, warships continued to speed towards Chinese waters and the Coldstream Guards marched thru the streets of London with "drums beating and colors flying" on the first lap of the journey to Shanghai. Foreign office attaches explained this contradiction with the statement that the movement of troops was the best guarantee of the pacific intentions of the government since their presence in Shanghai would only be precautionary.

British Policy Failed.

Some political observers profess to see in Britain's gesture towards China a diplomatic triumph for Washington. It is true that the British foreign office tried to organize an imperialist united front against China but failed. It is also believed to be a fact that Coolidge and Kellogg entered into a secret deal with the British foreign office (as already published in The DAILY WORKER) thru which Washington agreed to co-operate with England in China in return for the benevolent neutrality of Great Britain in Latin America.

It appears however that the "Co-operation" given by the United States to England was tha kind a loan shark would give a hard-pressed borrower. Uncle Sam got the best of the deal.

England Losing Trade.

The die-hard section of the British cabinet led by Churchill and Birkenhead insisted on a policy of steel in China but the Baldwin-Chamberlain group pointed out that England had already lost millions of dollars worth of trade because of this policy of force and unless steps were taken immediately to get out from under Chinese hatred an English chairman would not be able to sell a shoestring in a Chinese port inside of six months.

The hostile attitude of Japan towards the British policy in China is believed to be one of the decisive causes of the change of front. The Japanese press has strongly condemned Britain's war demonstration against China and the Mikado's government in offering to ditch the old unequal treaties met with almost unanimous approval.

"Y" Leader Gets Notion He Can Rush Weddings

Assuming the role of the matrimonial agent, the Y. M. C. A. announced yesterday that no members may live in a "Y" dormitory for more than a year. When a young man knows that he can stay at the "Y" for a year only, he thinks of the luxury of comfortable home, according to Fg. Charles O. Wright of the West Side Branch. "Therefore he looks for a mate to help him make such a home. Indirectly, then, the policy of the "Y" has forced the mind into channels of thought that finally lead to the fulfillment of his greatest happiness."

HUNGARIAN PARLIAMENT OPENS.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 31.—Dressed in gaudy medieval finery, produced by the toil of workers and peasants, the

HILLQUIT ADMITS SIGMAN CAN NOT DISSOLVE BOARD

Hyman Gives Facts to Impartial Chairman

The International Ladies Garment Workers union, international officials admit that expulsion of four local and the Joint Board of the cloak and dressmakers was illegal! They even go further and declare that they have made concessions at all!

This fact was pointed out by Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board, in his formal answer to the arguments of Morris Hillquit, counsel for the International, to Impartial Chairman Raymond V. Ingersoll, in which Hillquit attempted to show that the Industrial Council should be forced to adjust complaints with Sigman's fake Joint Board instead of with the regular body.

Not Dissolved.

Declaring that the frequent assertions of the international that the Joint Board has been suspended and only propaganda intended to befog the public mind, Hyman pointed out in his answer, the admission of Hillquit at the hearing, that "The General Executive Board is without power to expel members or suspend locals without proper procedure. There is no doubt about that at all. Up to the time there has been no expulsion or attempted expulsion, nor removal from office, no suspension or expulsion of local or subordinate bodies." Since it appears that the Joint Board is not dissolved, even according to the International, Hyman proceeds to show that the Joint Board has always been responsible for the handling of complaints, but that the International had attempted "to set up a Joint Board in the back room of 3 West 16th street." "The attempt failed, and the so-called rival Joint Board collapsed like a house of cards, so much so that Mr. Hillquit denies that there ever was such a thing, for clearly there could not be a new Joint Board if the old Joint Board has not been suspended or expelled." Hyman argues. He declared that "the vast majority of the members of the I. L. G. W. U. had considered the new Joint Board a reality," and that Sigman's actions as "temporary general manager" are all illegal under the constitution.

Challenged to Invoke Law.

Declaring that Sigman and Hillquit are trying "to make the impartial chairman a pawn in their game," and that this unprecedented case "has never before been brought before the impartial chairman if it were not for the fact of having failed in everything else," Hyman directly challenged the International to take the issues in the struggle to court of law.

"If Hillquit says that he has no doubt that the courts would sustain the orders of the general executive board," says Hyman, "We challenge Mr. Hillquit to take this question before the courts of competent jurisdiction. And I need not tell you that if Mr. Hillquit believed his statement as to what a court would do in the premises, this matter would long ago have been in the courts and if those orders are valid, the Joint Board of which I am general manager would have been out of business long ago."

Powers of International.

The argument makes an able comparison of the construction and powers of the union to the construction of the United States, likening the International to the federal government, which latter, however, has more power since it can tax directly and judge citizens in its own courts—powers which have not been given the International.

The limits imposed upon the powers of the General Executive Board are also discussed in the argument, making it plain that Sigman's action in "taking over the affair" of the Joint Board, as he now terms it, was nothing short of usurpation.

Hillquit Backs Down.

The charges which the G. E. B. made against the Joint Board officers were cited in the record before the Impartial Chairman, but withdrawn as evidence by Mr. Hillquit when Hyman began to answer them. "I regret that Mr. Hillquit has seen such a hasty retreat, for I would welcome such a discussion, as I would have no difficulty in proving that these charges are not only baseless but made in utter bad faith. The very men who have made them do not believe any part of them. And they have never dared to bring them forward wherever the other side has had a chance to answer. These charges are always trotted out when ever there is nobody around to refute them and immediately withdrawn when a hearing before an impartial tribunal is imminent."

The decision of the Impartial Chairman will be made early in the week, it is expected.

Join the Ranks of the

Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the message of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual subs (or $30.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $4.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $300.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following well known artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Groper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bales, F. Jerger, F. G. Vose, O. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly, Communist, Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between all comrades working for the Foreign Language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever other prizes are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language papers should push The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all conditional upon We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 Celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions.

Short term subscriptions are costly to us and not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

QUOTAS

District 1.	Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island, $3,000 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or combination.
District 2	New Jersey, [illegible] part of New Jersey, 10,000 subscriptions.
District 3.	Philadelphia, Pottsville, Allentown, North New Jersey, Harrisburg, Delaware, [illegible] worth of subscriptions or 1,000 annual subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 4	Buffalo, Rochester, [illegible] for Western part of New York, [illegible] worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 5.	Pittsburgh, Wheeling, [illegible] $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 6.	Cleveland, [illegible] worth of subscriptions or [illegible] annual subscriptions.
District 7.	Detroit, [illegible] worth of subscriptions or [illegible] annual subscriptions.
District 8.	$1,800 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions. Chicago, and [illegible] Illinois, Missouri and Lake County, [illegible] worth of subscriptions or 500 annual subscriptions.
District 9	Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan Upper peninsula, Minnesota. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 10.	South Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, $600 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 11.	Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming. $750 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 12	Oregon and Washington. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 13.	California. $1,800 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 14.	New Mexico, Arizona, Texas. $150 worth of subscriptions or 25 annual subscriptions.
District 15.	Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. $400 worth of subscriptions or 50 annual subscriptions.

District organizers will be awarded prizes on the basis of the number of Daily Worker subscribers secured by them.

DAILY WORKER

Workers' Communist Party

Los Angeles Comrades Organize Finnish Club Celebration Saturday

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—The Los Angeles Finnish comrades will celebrate the laying of the cornerstone of the Finnish Worker's Association of Los Angeles, Saturday evening, February 5th, 1927 at Lomax's Hall, 2000 East Vernon Avenue (Central and Vernon). Elaborate musical program with Finnish and English speakers has been arranged. Comrade W. Schneiderman will represent the Young Worker's League.

The representative of the Worker's party and the Pioneers will also be there. The Lithuanian society will be represented by their chorus, numbering fifty. This is the first attempt to organize the Finnish workers in this city and all signs point towards success. The admission is fifty cents including refreshments and dancing afterwards. Comrade, you will be sorry if you miss this opportunity.

Daily Worker Banquet In Boston Will Have Music and Speech

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—A wonderful concert has been arranged for the "Greet The DAILY WORKER" banquet, arranged by the New England Daily Worker Agency. The best mandolin and balalaika players in the city, the Lithuanian Orchestra, will participate. The orchestra consists of ten accomplished musicians. A comrade who played at the Workers Forum and who is one of the most accomplished piano players in the city will render a few selections. Then some musical dancers by a well known dancer. Many other numbers have been arranged. The main speaker will be J. Louis Engdahl, the Editor of The DAILY WORKER.

The banquet will take place on February 19th, at 8 p. m. at the New International Hall, 42 Wenonah street, Roxbury.

Tickets at $1.25 a plate may be obtained at The DAILY WORKER office, 36 Causeway street, Boston.

Daily Worker and Il Lavoratore to Have Ball March 5

Under the auspices of The Il Lavoratore and The DAILY WORKER a grand ball and concert will be held at the Lyceum, 86th Street and Third Avenue, on Saturday, March 5.

The Italian workers on this occasion will greet the coming of The DAILY WORKER in New York.

A very selected musical program is being arranged and the committee in charge expects to make this the greatest Italian event of the year.

Further announcements will appear in this paper and you are asked not to miss them.

Anybody can easily afford the price of the ticket, which is only 50c, in order to make the admission accessible to everyone. Tickets are on sale at The DAILY WORKER and Il Lavoratore offices and if you haven't any as yet ask for them. Katterfeld or any Italian comrade will be glad to satisfy the request for tickets for yourself and for your friends.

READ

Imperialism—The Last Stage of Capitalism

By N. Lenin

Price, 60c in paper, $1.00 Cloth-bound.

An indispensable book for the understanding of the most recent events in Latin-America, China, and the colonial countries now in the throes of revolt against international imperialism. This excellent work treats the following topics: Concentration of Production and Monopoly; The Banks and Their New Role; Finance Capital and Financial Oligarchy; The Export of Capital; The Division of the World Among Capitalist Unions; The Division of the World Among the Great Powers; Imperialism as a Special Stage of Capitalism; Parasitism and the Decay of Capitalism; The Critiques of Imperialism; The Place of Imperialism in History.

152 pages published by the Communist Party of Great Britain.

For Your Lenin Library:

LENIN AS A MARXIST

By N. Bukharin

The Present Chairman of the Communist International.

This splendid analysis of Lenin and his place in the field of Marxism is written by N. Bukharin, who is considered one of the leading living Marxists of the present day. The book is not a mere personal tribute to Lenin but is rather an attempt to analyze Lenin's construction to the principles of Marxism. The book treats the following phases of the subject: The Method of Lenin; Lenin's Theory and Practice of Imperialism, Lenin and the Peasantry; The Theoretical Legacy of Lenin.

Order at once as only a few copies are left for resale in this country.

DAILY WORKER
New York, N. Y.

SECTION ORGANIZATION MEETINGS TO DISCUSS THE RUSSIAN PARTY OPPOSITION

Sec. 1—Mon., Jan. 31, at 8 P. M.—17 E. 3rd St.—Speaker, Wolfe.
Sec. 1—Mon., Jan. 31, at 8 P. M.—100 W. 39th St.—Speaker, Weinstone.
Sec. 1—Tue., Feb. 1, at 8 P. M.—100 W. 39th St.—Speaker, Wolfe.
Sec. 4—Fri., Feb. 4, at 8 P. M.—61 E. 116th St.—Speaker, Weinstone.
Sec. 1—Tues., Feb. 7, at 8 P. M.—1347 Boston Road—Speaker, Olgin.
Sec. 5—(Brooklyn)—2 meetings—
(a) Wed., Feb. 1, at 6 P. M.—29 Graham Ave.—Weinstone.
(b) Thurs.—Wed., Feb. 2, at 6 P. M.—43 Liberty St.—Markoff.
Sec. 7—Wed., Feb. 2, at 8 P. M.—1940 Benson Ave.—Speaker, John Ballam.

Admission by membership card only.

Comrades, who for any reason are debarred from the Party should come to these meetings. There will be someone who will see that they are properly assigned to a Party nucleus.

NEW JERSEY-LENIN MEMORIAL MEETINGS.

Friday, Feb. 4—8 P. M.—Paterson—8 P. M.—Carpenters' Hall.
Speakers, H. M. WICKS and BERT WOLFE.
Also
Yonkers—Sunday, Feb. 6th—8 P. M.—20 Warburton Avenue.

Los Angeles Comrades Have Monthly Paper, Workers' Library Center

By L. P. RINDAL
(Worker Correspondent.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—In connection with the Workers' bookshop and library, 322 West Second street, the Comrades are also issuing a monthly, type-written, paper, the Library Bulletin, with Comrade Rose Ruhin as editor. The American Worker correspondent started very much in the same manner as this newcomer, and every interested worker has a chance, of course, to help in the improvement.

According to the January issue of the Library Bulletin, the library staff comprises the following 12 members: Victor Cutler, general librarian; Paul C. Reiss, secretary; Edith Berkman, treasurer; Rose Dubin, editor; Anna Rosenfield, Esther Swed, Louise Libart, G. Libart, Albert Shanks, Helen Airoff, Abe Zimmerman, L. Schneiderman.

At a recent meeting it was decided: "That the staff shall meet once a month; that a class in library technique shall be conducted by Cutler to train librarians for more efficient work; that a publicity campaign be inaugurated without delay; that lectures on various subjects shall be held as often as possible; that the first lecture be held on Jan. 28th; that we plan to give an affair (concert, etc.) to raise money for the library."

The first lecture was held Friday evening, January 28th at 8 p. m., in the library hall, with Robert Whitaker as the speaker. His subject will be: "Workers Should Know." Know and Their Significance to the Class Struggle."

This will also be the first general membership meeting of the library members and library committee.

The Workers Library Bulletin has a humor column already. The staff is also planning, as a regular feature, a column devoted exclusively to reviews of current labor literature.

At the "Keep The DAILY WORKER" conference, January 24, a part of the order of business was:

1. The annual Lenin drive for subscriptions.
2. Th organising of Worker correspondent's class.
3. The reviving of DAILY WORKER builder's club.

Jews in Soviet Russia Form 10 Per Cent of The City Population

(By Mail).

MOSCOW, Dec. 31.—Out of the 145 million or so population of the USSR, 3 million are Jews, or ten per cent of the urban population of the USSR. In Ukraina there are 1,900,000 Jews; in White Russia and the SSFSR—about half a million in each republic, and the remaining 100,000 Jews live in the Transcaucasian and Central Asiatic Republics.

About 10 per cent of all the Jewish population of the USSR belong to the welfare class, while 60 per cent are workers, civil servants, peasants and petty merchants, while about 40 per cent are still living in a condition of semi-pauperism.

On January 1, 1925, there were: 120,000 Jawish workers and 180,000 Jewish civil servants in all the trade-unions of the Soviet Union, including the members of families. The Jewish labor population reaches 300,000 men and women, the civil servants with their families totalling more 500,000. Besides this, there are about 50,000 unemployed among the Jewish population. The total number of Jewish labor and civil servants' population thus reaches 350,000 men and women.

This Jewish toiling population is chiefly concentrated in Ukraine and White Russia. There are about 900,000 Jewish handicraft homeworkers, including owners of their families. They nearly all live in Ukraine and White Russia. As for Jewish peasants, there actually are about 150,000 of them in all the USSR. Experience has shown that Jews, as peasants, are gradually mastering their new business, and that after a year or two of farming their fields are tilled quite as well and yield quite as satisfactory harvests as those of their neighbors, the original peasants.

Lore Contradicted by Member Present at His Conference

Editor The DAILY WORKER:—I am sending you an account of the New York Volkszeitung conference in which I wish to contradict some of Lore's assertions, which he printed as an answer to your editorial of last Sunday. I am a member of the conference committee, and am interested to hall some of the lies of the right wing opposition of which Lore is th leader.

In an article in the Volkszeitung dated, January 25, about the Volkszeitung conference, Lore asserts that ten members of the conference were excluded because they had at previous meetings advanced political arguments, and thereby disturbed the work of the conference.

Lore There.

Lore was present at the meeting of Thursday January 20, the night when the expulsion took place. He is wrong when he says, that the ten members were expelled in a regular and ordinary fashion; they were not. They were lynched, since every form of written and unwritten law was ignored. No charges were preferred, nor any cause for any charges shown. The lynchers evidently based the reason for their expulsion policy on the charge of an anti-Lore propaganda article, which, it seems, was sponsored by Lore himself.

Didn't know Victims.

That the railroading was carried on by a conspiracy is proven by th fact that some of the right wingers who voted for the expulsion, were unknown to those present, and did no know, whom they were expelling. How artificial is the statement of Lore can be seen by the fact that one of the expelled delegates had only on one occasion taken the floor, since he is no speaker, and certainly did not cause any disturbance. Besides the right wingers were always in the majority, and mostly held the floor, tolerating nothing except such as was suitable to them.

Lore Laughed.

Lore's charge is therefore nothing but loose parrot talk, and evaporated in the air. The lynchers wanted their victims, and Lore sat back in the hall, enjoying himself. The spirit of these lynchers was the same as among those of the south, who, with the same tactics of lawlessness beat negroes to death.

It is up to the workers, and the progressive delegates to the conference, to deal with such despots and criminals in a most energetic manner, so that the march of progress shall not be hampered any longer.

With Greetings:
Ed. Mertins.

CHURCH ASKS CAL MEAN QUESTIONS

CHICAGO—(FP)—Half a dozen query questions are asked of Pres. Coolidge regarding his Nicaraguan policy by the Tabernacle Congregational church of Chicago. Of Secy. Kellogg's Mexican red plot the church asks whether the evidence would not be regarded as "humorous—if it were not pathetic."

FOR YOUR HEALTH.

Strictly Pure
FLORIDA

Honey

Guaranteed by the Bee-Farmer.

Delivered in New York City at following prices:

2 Lbs. 75c. 3 Lbs. $1.00
5 Lbs. $1.50

10% Goes to Daily Worker. Order by Mail.

J. A. FEURER
3436 Park Ave. N. Y. C.
Agents Wanted.

KELLOGG'S OFFER BRITISH FIASCO

Says Japan's Friendship for Soviet, Factor In Orient

MOSCOW, Jan. 31. — The United States statement of policy with regard to China is hailed in the Soviet press as the signal of "the fiasco of the English hopes to achieve a united front of the powers against the Canton government."

Pravda points out that American naval movements in China have not been so obviously aggressive as the English, although it remarks that American admirals have conferred with English admirals, which will be disquieting to those who are demanding American neutrality.

Isvestia gives great prominence to Tokio dispatches stating that Foreign Minister Shidera has reaffirmed Japan's friendship for the Soviet Union.

Hails Japanese Stand.

"This declaration is of extreme significance for the constellation of the powers fo the far east," said Isvestia.

The Soviet press approves of America's unwillingness to give up its extra territorial rights but points out that the "so-called" open door policy is clearly egotistic."

"I declare categorically that we are not interfering in Chinese affairs and won't interfere," declared Commissar of Transport Rudzutak, a member of the Political Bureau, in a speech in Leningrad.

Will Not Interfere.

Even Japanese foreign intervention takes place in China, we won't mix in, but we as a government won't be able, even if we wanted to, to prevent our citizens from fighting in the Cantonese army against the imperialists. But, to conclude from this that the Chinese question is in the hands of Moscow is stupid. "We will maintain towards Canton a friendly neutrality."

• • •

British Troops Arrive.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. — Another contingent of Punjabi troops, 210 strong, comprising the remainder of the eighty-seventh battalion, landed at Shanghai today from the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, from Hong Kong.

The first contingent of Punjabis, numbering 233, arrived yesterday.

Missionaries Arrive.

Fifteen adult American missionaries, accompanied by their families, arrived today from Chungking, Szechuen Province. They declared that the cities along the upper Yangtze River are tranquil, and said the United States Consul's order for the evacuation came "like a bolt from the clear sky."

Thousands of Chinese residents of Ningpo were arriving in Shanghai today. They believe the Cantonese will shortly control all of Chekiang Province.

• • •

Driving For Shanghai.

A powerful effort will be made by the Cantonese army to capture Hangchow, thus clearing the way for an advance upon Shanghai.

The main Cantonese army is 100 miles from Hangchow, but advance guards have reached Chuchow, where they opposing forces are only 20 miles apart on the left flank.

• • •

Takes Kellogg's Statement Coolly.

PEKIN, Jan. 31.—The Pekin government finds "little that is new or startling" in the statement of Secretary of State Kellogg relative to the American policy in China, it was stated today.

No hopes for any immediate change in Chino-American relations are held out here, as the Chinese feel that the powers no longer have a unified purpose and are nearly as badly split as to policy as are the Chinese themselves.

• • •

Deny Concessions Reports.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—British proposals for a settlement of the Chinese difficulties are being presented today to the Canton and Pekin governments and the representatives of the signatory powers in China.

The terms of the proposals are still closely guarded but the foreign office flatly denies reports circulated in the United States that the proposals include eventual abandonment tof the British concessions in China.

• • •

LONDON, Jan. 31.—British troops today continued to move toward China in a steady stream.

During the next 48 hours 8,400 men will sail from England for China, departures of various units now under orders continuing at intervals until Saturday evening.

• • •

Looking for Prince Carol.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Professor Jorga, Rumanian political leader, who is credited with being here to attempt to secure Prince Carol's return to Bucharest, stated this afternoon that reports that he had said that Prince Carol was reconciled with his wife, Princess Helen, were untrue.

William N. Coffey to Get Life

LARAMIE, Wis., Jan. 31.—Legal steps designed to send William N. Coffey, witnessed confessed slayer of his bigamous wife, Hatte Sheridan Hales, to the penitentiary for life probably by Friday, were taken today by two Wisconsin counties.

Shall We Be There? Not While the System Of Exploitation Lasts

PALM BEACH, Fla.—Readers of The DAILY WORKER will be delighted to hear that the Bath and Tennis Club has been informally opened.

The press agent's story says that more than a hundred bright orange and blue cabanas" are grouped on the beach in semi-circular tiers. In the center of the cabanas is a cafeteria, where the tired worker may regale himself with a Bronx cocktail, after a strenuous day of golf, swimming, or sitting. The dining hall, and lounge look out upon pellucid waters of the Atlantic on one side, and the patio" on the other. Orange lights and orange tables lend a touch of color to the logia" surrounding the patio.

All of the comforts of home grace the club. There are sun rooms for men and women, five tennis courts, and a swimming pool.

Readers of The DAILY WORKER will recognize the names of friends in the list of officers and governors, which includes: Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Edward T. Stotesbury, Howard F. Whitney and Harry Payne Bingham.

A plug of chewing tobacco will be offered to the reader who tells us what these words mean.

Pope Says He Wants Boys' Souls; Benito Wants Young Soldiers

ROME, Jan. 31.—The Vatican and Mussolini are at the parting of the ways. The pope tonight in Observatore Romano, in a letter addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, protests against the duce's order disbanding the Catholic Boy Scouts of Italy unless they swear an oath of loyalty to the fascisti balilla and place the fascist emblem on their flags, as an invasion on the pope's right as shepherd of souls.

The pope holds out the olive branch to the duce by intimating that if catholic bishops are entrusted with supervision of the moral and religious training of the national ballila, he will give full liberty to the catholic scouts to join juvenile fascisti organizations.

The general opinion is that if the government ignores the request of the pontiff for spiritual supervision of Italian youth by catholic chaplins, the breach between church and state will become wider than when Mussolini assumed power.

• • •

Pani Arrives in Texas

LAREDO, Tex., Jan 31.—Alberto J. Pani, who resigned from the Calles cabinet where he was secretary of treasury, arrived here today accompanied by his family and secretary.

Alien Property Bill Completed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Revision of the bill for settlement of alien property claims was virtually completed today by the senate finance committee.

PASSAIC STRIKE STILL ON!

WE'VE WON IN FOUR MILLS!

HELP US BEAT THE REST!

GIVE MONEY PLEASE! For Coal for the Strikers' Homes! For Bread for their families! They have made a hard fight! Now they are winning! Now you must help more than ever! Give all you can! MAKE VICTORY COMPLETE!

Make all contributions by check or money order to

GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE

799 BROADWAY Room 225 NEW YORK CITY

Get 10c Coupons and sell them TO HELP US FEED the Strikers' Children.

DRAMA

The Sea Woman's Cloak, A Realistic Sea Drama

By LEON BLUMENFELD.

In the combination bill presented by the Theatre Guild and the American Laboratory Theatre has been added an artistic asset appreciated by the average "art" theatre goer. Eugene O'Neill's one-act sea dramas, known collectively as Beyond the Horizon, Bound East for Cardiff, and Where the Cross is Made, which are now running at the Greenwich Village Theatre, and which will be transferred to Broadway, in the program states: "The four theatres (The Neighborhood Playhouse, The Theatre Guild, and Eva Le Gallienne's newly organized Civic Repertory Theatre) that are pledged to repertory will, in different ways, afford New York the most vital experiment of recent seasons. For years the need of repertory, its benefits to actors and its value in creation of a perfected ensemble have been persuasively stated by theorists and practitioners alike."

Mr. Brown stresses an element which is, incidentally of deciding circumstance in the position a theatre occupies in the community. Repertory, he makes emphatic,

"The Sea Woman's Cloak," which is one of the five plays in the repertory of this comparatively new organization, is a production with not a few intrinsic qualities. Amelia Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy) is its author, and she has penned a highly imaginative and far-reaching opus, seconded by sincere craftsmanship and snatches of sheer dramatic eloquence. It is a sea-tale of Ireland, richly adored with simplicity—the variety that only an organization like the American Laboratory Theatre can lend concentration. There are wild and grotesque sequences that will linger in your memory for days after.

The matter of setting has been handled adroitly and the views of a sea-cave on the coast of Ireland and the fisharman's cabin indicate the humbleness that typifies the Irish. Acting that defies reproach with the exception of an instance here and there, helps to enhance the color of "The Sea Woman's Cloak." Walter Duggan, as the intrepid fisherman, Walter Hecht, in the part of his younger brother, a coward at heart, Martha Johnson in the role of Ganore, a mysterious sea-woman, Celeste Pedrick, and Dora Schwartz were all capital in their respective characterizations. The village priest, portrayed by George Auerbach, was somewhat boisterous in his part, but fitted in his position neatly.

"The Sea Woman's Cloak" is a realistic drama, realistic in practically every sense of the term, marred by little and forceful and emphatic, in its interests. It has the stamp of approval of this critic.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

Two openings are scheduled for tonight: "The Wandering Jew," by E. Temple Thurston, which Matheson Lang will play the title role, at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, and Martin Brown's new play, "The Dark," at the Lyceum.

• • •

Another opening of importance will take place at the Grove Street Theatre, 122 Grove Street) where the Grand Guignol Players will present their second bill of one-act plays, headed by Oscar Wilde's "A Florentine Tragedy."

• • •

George Middleton has finished a dramatization of "Blood Money," a short story by H. H. Van Loan, whose "The Noose," dramatized by Willard Mack, is running at the Hudson.

• • •

With "Americana" on the eve of departure for the road after over 200 performances at the Belmont, I. P. McEvoy is completing work on the 1927 edition for spring showing.

• • •

"Flesh and the Devil" at the Capitol Theatre will go held over for a fourth week. The story is based on

KATHERINE WILSON
Plays the role of Roberta Alden in Theodore's Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," at the Longacre Theatre.

Sudermann's drama, "The Undying Past."

AMUSEMENTS

CHANIN'S MANSFIELD Evenings West 47 St. 8:30
Matinees Wed. and Sat., 2:30
For BETTER or WORSE
NEW COMEDY DRAMA

AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre West 48 St. 5TH MONTH Mats. Wed. and Sat.

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings and Ths. and Sat. Mats. WINTHROP AMES' Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. Thursday Evenings Only, "Iolanthe"

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WILBUR Evenings 8:30 Mats. of Tues., Wed. and Sat.

RITZ Thea. 48th St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Wed. and Sat. 2:30
L. Lawrence Weber's Musical Bon Bon
Bye Bye Bonnie

Civic Repertory Theatre (Inc.) 14th St. E. of 6th Ave. Tel. Watkins 7-8600
EVA LE GALLIENNE
TONIGHT "CRADLE SONG"
AFTERNOON THREE SISTERS"
TOMORROW NIGHT, "CRADLE SONG"

MUSIC

Doris Niles assisted by Cornelia Niles, and an orchestra under Louis Horst, will give her third recital of the season in Carnegie Hall this evening. Conspicuous among her offerings will be Russian and Spanish dances to music by Guazunow, Tschaikowsky, Ippolitov-Ivanow and Albeniz.

Alfred Blomen, pianist, at his second recital in Aeolian Hall tomorrow night, will play a program of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann and some moderns.

Feodor Chaliapin will open a three-day engagement at Mecca Auditorium in the "Barber of Seville" next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. It will be his first appearance in this role here in eighteen years. The coloratura part of Rosina will be sung by Elvira de Hidalgo, noted European soprano.

Myra Mortimer, contralto, will sing a group of five Schubert songs at her recital in Town Hall tomorrow night. Her opening numbers will be selected old English songs dating from the sixteenth to the eighteenth century.

Organized Labor — Trade Union Activities

Gurley Flynn Talks Patriotic to Capacity Crowd of Seattleites

(By A Worker Correspondent)

SEATTLE, Wash.—The big Moose Temple was filled to capacity with workers eager to hear Elizabeth Gurley Flynn speak Sunday night, Jan. 31, under auspices of I. L. D. In the most vivid language the lecturer thrilled the audience with the story of the Passaic strike, at the same time impressing upon the listeners the necessity of continuing the work of the I. L. D. (International Labor Defense). The meeting was a great success both financially and educationally.

Great Crowd.

The audience came prepared for a lecture, but soon discovered itself in a jolly celebration of the largest gathering of workers that I have ever witnessed in Seattle. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn came here as the first living messenger from the eastern front of labor's battlefield to tell the story of the victorious Passaic strike in a befitting manner she was introduced with a musical program of talented stagers. She then proceeded to sketch the history of the Passaic strike, explaining the whys and the hows and making plain what otherwise almost began to sound like a miracle of antiquity: "Workers win a strike." You begin to think that, maybe, it could still be done if properly conducted.

Be Prepared.

The lecturer forcibly brought home the folly of rapid demobilisation and the necessity of preserving and improving the machinery of the I. L. D. The more so now, since the masters enraged by their defeat will surely try to wreak vengeance upon the heads of the strike leaders, who are yet to be tried in the courts and who are held under bail amounting to $300,000. The response of the audience was very generous both in the collection box and in new members joining the I. L. D. organization.

We have learned much at this lecture. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn possesses the rare ability of imparting knowledge to a tired worker without giving him a bursting headache.

Her narrative was richly sprinkled with humorous incidents of the strike. As you followed her along you could almost see how a New Bedford reporter taps Weisbord on the shoulder imploring him to temper his radical ideas. Half an hour later the same reporter appears again to claim the remains of his $3,500 camera that has been smashed maliciously by the police. He is now a convinced Communist.

The Horse Guards.

In another scene you see a troop of mounted police riding on naga rescued from the horse pound, and we instead of inspiring fear into the strikers they provoke laughter among the youngsters, they hand a group of kids to the police station for the great crime of having laughed at the ridiculous. Somewhere else you see a confused chief of police calling in his forces when lo! a court's writ presents him with an injunction forbidding him to interfere with the strikers' meetings.

Loan Shark Illegally Collects 240 Per Cent Interest on Pay Check

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 31.—Pay check loan sharks are operating in Chicago to the tune of thousands of dollars in interest mulcted out of the bones of impoverished and underpaid workers who have to have immediate cash before the bi-monthly or monthly wage is due. A local investigation has revealed ten "loan offices" operating under various names in Chicago and it is estimated that several hundred more operate in other cities.

Predatory Organization.

They have been found to be members of a national group of sharks with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. The ten Chicago offices operate under different names, but in fact, they are all part of the same joint enterprise.

One instance was uncovered where a worker borrowed $120. For the $120 he borrowed on his pay check, he paid $1,800 in interest. He still has the $120 to pay. This is an exceptional case. Ordinarily the pay-check sharks count on 240 per cent interest on money loaned.

The irony of these cases of gauged usury here is that, under the law, they were not obliged to pay a cent in interest. The practice is illegal.

Office Workers Resolve Against Imperialism

MILWAUKEE, (FP). — Protests [illegible] American armed intervention in Nicaragua and Mexico are made [illegible] stenographers, Typists, Bookkeepers and Accountants' union 16546 in [illegible] forwarded to President [illegible] Arbitration is demanded as [illegible] policy.

Steel Trust Will Aid Tube Merger Tells Banker Friend How He Displaces Labor With Machinery; Wants American Wage Reduced

(By a Worker Correspondent)

In an address before a large party of bankers at a dinner given by the Canadian Trust Co. at the Hollenden Hotel in Cleveland the president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company announced that his company union steel mills would be mechanized at a cost of $10,000,000 and that cost-reducing machinery at a further cost of $4,000,000 would be installed.

To keep the company abreast of competition Campbell stated that during the past two years $25,000,000 has been expended for improving its facilities. The burden of foreign competition and freight rates were emphasized. High freight rates have virtually shut the Campbell, Ohio, plant from the vital markets of the west, making it doubtful whether the works would operate again heavier than 60 per cent of capacity.

Boosts Wage Reduction.

Wages paid to American workers are three times those paid in European steel mills and Campbell proposes that the European workers be given a raise and that the American workers suffer another reduction. Foreign competition is hitting American plants. Cost of transportation from Hamburg and Antwerp to the Pacific coast is one-half of the cost from Youngstown to the Pacific coast. This problem declared Campbell is one of the biggest problems facing the steel industry.

"I believe," said Campbell, "that the time will come when an adjustment will be made and it is my opinion that wages will be raised in Europe and dropped to some extent here. However, if steel wages are lowered in America it must be along all lines and that will lower the cost of living." Leaders of the American Federation of Labor who rally around the American standard of living will take notice of Campbell's warning.

Favors Capitalism.

Campbell further favored steel companies agreeing to a curtailment of production to about 75 per cent of capacity with the government fixing prices. The thousands of unemployed part time steel workers are fully aware that this agreement has been in force for some months.

The Challenge.

The banquet speech of Campbell is an idle warning that wage reductions and unemployment face the steel workers and that huge profits increasing yearly are for the bosses. Installation of labor eliminating machinery, mechanizing the mills, reducing wages, brings a question squarely to the unorganized steel and iron workers. What will the workers do?

Organize The Unorganized.

The program of the steel barons guzzled over the debris of a heavily laden banquet table, needs no elaboration. The unorganized, exploited and demoralized steel slaves face a very uncertain future under the militants in the A. A. and Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel & Tin Workers answer Campbell with organization.

House Judiciary Bunch Puts Longshoremen's Bill In the Breakers

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Failure of the accident compensation bill for longshoremen, harbor workers and ship repairers to pass the house and become law at this session of congress is indicated, due to a trick which originated in the house judiciary committee.

That committee, dominated by Graham of Philadelphia, has amended the bill, in spite of strong objections by organized labor, so that it will include sailors. The Seamen's union is opposed to inclusion of its membership since they are now protected by the law of employes' liability, which for seamen includes care and cure while they remain aboard the ship on which the injury takes place. The longshoremen, especially—the longshoremen especially—want the original bill restored so that the seamen will have no reason to oppose its passage. A motion will be made on the house floor to substitute the bill as passed last June by the senate.

Shipowners' associations have lobbied against the measure for years past, while the labor unions of harbor workers and the American association for labor legislation have fought for its enactment. At present neither federal nor state compensation laws cover this class of workers.

Mississippi Federation Of Labor Head Thinks Well of Labor Party

CHICAGO, (FP).—"The idea of a Farmer-Labor party strikes me very favorably," says President E. J. Ross, Mississippi State Federation of Labor, who is on a business trip in Chicago. Ross is a lawyer whose union affiliations spring from his membership in the International Association of Fire Fighters. He was formerly fire chief in Laurel, where the Mississippi Federation has its headquarters.

There are 197 locals in the Mississippi Federation, Ross says. The total membership is about 6,000. The development of the gulf coast of Mississippi by Chicago capital is expected to bring a growth of building trades unionism similar to the Florida boom. It appears that the recent cooling of U. S. Senator Pat Harrison's friendliness to labor is explainable by the sudden boost in value of his gulf real estate investments.

Governor of Colorado Repudiates Cossacks In Inaugural Message

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.,* (FP).—The Illinois State Federation of Labor requests widespread publicity for the following clipping from the news letter of the American Federation of Labor.

DENVER, Jan. 22.—Gov. Adams' inaugural address contained this terse opposition to the Colorado Cossacks:

"The State Ranger Law should be speedily repealed. It is useless, unnecessary and a source of irritation."

This 17-word indictment feeds the governor's recommendations for legislative action by Colorado lawmakers.

Working Class Women To Have Scott Nearing Address Annual Bazaar

For the first three years the Federation of Working Class Women of Detroit have participated in every phase of the working class movement, they send financial aid to strikers in Passaic, New York box makers, the cloak makers, and did picket duty for the bakery drivers in Detroit, of course this is a small part of their many sided activities which are well known to those who actively participats in the labor movement.

Now we are going to help us make our bazaar, which is an annual affair, a success. It is the third annual bazaar, and with the help of the active workers in Detroit we can make it the most successful one ever held. The members of our organization are already making articles and also gathering them from those who are sympathetic, which means that besides having a wonderful program and good eats at the bazaar, for a great Federation, we will also have some real bargains.

This bazaar takes place on March 6, 1927, at the New Workers Home, 1342 E. Ferry avenue, Detroit, Mich. The doors of the hall will open at 6.30 and the program will start 7 p. m. sharp. We call upon all friendly organizations not to arrange anything that might interfere with this bazaar. Tickets can be obtained from any member of the Federation or office of the International Labor Defense, 1967 Grand River. The proceeds of this bazaar will go for the International Labor Defense. Admission is 25 cents.

West Shore Railroad Takes Mean Revenge On Aged Ferry Pilot

Robbed by the West Shore Railroad of six-seventh of his pension because he had taken part in a strike, Captain Jeremiah Jenks, 70 years old, retired this morning after 48 years service as a ferry-boat pilot.

Captain Minner will receive a pension covering only the six years since 1920, when he went on strike with steel workers and which is the sum as many of his fellow-pilots. Thirty-seven years of service for the railroad will count for nothing when he receives the pension, which allows him one per cent of a pilot's salary for each year of service.

"I am not sorry that I walked out with the other members of the National Pilots' Association of which I was a member, I had to walk out or be disloyal to the Association," the veteran pilot declared.

Congressman Blanton Wants Anti-Union Fund

WASHINGTON, (FP). — Rep. Blanton of Texas, arch-enemy of labor unionism in the house, has again raised a point of order, and been sustained, in striking from the appropriation bill for the department of justice the clause forbidding the use of this appropriation to prosecute labor unions under the anti-trust laws.

The clause will be put back in the measure in the senate, presumably, as has been repeatedly done in past instances, Blanton's fight against the labor movement.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Paterson Bazaar for Passaic Relief Has Union Back of It

PATERSON, N. J.—In spite of the intense cold Tuesday night a large number of delegates of labor unions and workers' fraternal organizations attended the Paterson bazaar conference for Passaic relief at Carpenter's Hall, 84 Van Houten Street.

The whole delegation was very enthusiastic. The bazaar will be held at Carpenter's Hall, from Saturday, February 19 to 26, under the joint auspices of Trades and Labor Council of Paterson and the Building Trades Council, with the help of other labor workers and fraternal organizations.

John Richardson, president of the Paterson Trades and Labor Council, reported lining up for support. The Building Trades Council is also energetically pushing the work.

Many Unions To Have Booths.

The Hosiery Workers will have a booth and have a large number of tickets for distribution among their members. The New York Furriers, too, will come all the way from New York to operate a booth in furs. The Associated Silk Workers will be on the job, and will have at least one booth.

Carpenters Enthusiastic.

C. H. Tempie, business representative of District Council Carpenters, promises full support. While the meeting was in process a committee was visiting Carpenters Local 326 to apprise them of the plans for the bazaar. C. Sara Sherman addressed them and was wildly cheered when she asked continued support of the strike to push the fight on the five stubborn mills which are still refusing to recognize the union. Local 326 voted unanimously to back the strike to the limit and will support the bazaar.

Every effort will also be made to collect articles from friends and sympathizers for the booths.

The next meeting of the bazaar committee will be held next Wednesday at 84 Van Houten Street.

West Virginia Dog Law Joker Statute Against Strikers, Is Invalid

By ROMA

(Worker Correspondent)

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 31. —The law prohibiting foreigners the ownership of dogs in this state has been declared invalid by the state supreme court.

Its decision was to the effect that there should be no discrimination between the ownership of a foreigner should own, that since he is permitted to own real estate and live-stock, a dog should be no exception to the rule.

A Hidden Law.

It may be recalled that in the fall of 1925, while some of the foreign miners were out striking against a wage reduction, wholesale arrests were made of those owning dogs. The outstanding fact at all the trials was that none of these people knew that a law prohibiting them the ownership of dogs, was in existence; and in fact, very, very few people knew of it. It has not been made public. Even the capitalist press objected to the procedure.

What About Reparation?

Now, that the supreme court, has declared this law invalid, what is going to be done about the dogs that have been confiscated and the fines that were paid unjustly? Is the city or state going to make reparations, or is it going to profit at the expense of a law that has been declared invalid? So far, no readjustments have been made.

Small of Illinois Insists Frank Smith Is Still In Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 31.—"No vacancy occurs in the senate insofar as Illinois is concerned until Col. Frank L. Smith resigns or until the committee now considering his credentials refuses them," Gov. Len Small declared when queried concerning a rumor that Ed. Wright of Chicago, a large member of the Governors commission would be named as Smith's successor.

"No recommendation that Wright be appointed has reached me as yet though it may be in the mail," the Governor said.

Status of the Smith situation has been the basis for much speculation since the senate refused to permit him to take the oath of office. The Governor's office has not changed its position, that the appointment Smith filled the vacancy caused by the death of Senator William H. McKinley and that unless Smith's credentials are rejected finally by the senate there is nothing for the Governor's office to do.

The Governor gave no intimation as to a possible successor for Smith if the credentials are finally rejected by the senate.

Paterson Strike Leaders Denounce Labor Fakers

(Continued from Page 1)

Paterson, and Prosperity," The Passaic United Press Bulletin—Injunctions — Labor and Imperialism

Lewis Is Low DEMANDS SEATING OF ITS DELEGATE

Proves Progressive Is Real Union Miner

(Continued from Page 1)

financially on which to defend him from membership. In the last five local unions where he had been a member the books were complete and satisfactory as far as his record was concerned, but after hearing five weeks these International appointees found that the Secretary-Treasurership of Local Union 1386, Nanty-Glo, Pa., in March, 1921, had forgotten to record on his minute book that a transfer card had been deposited by Powers Hapgood, when he moved from District 27, Monstana, to Pennsylvania. This was their opportunity. The facts that the books of the financial secretary and treasurer showed that brother Hapgood was paying dues to the Nanty-Glo local union at that time and that he received a transfer card from that local on June 22, 1921, made no difference to these international appointees who had been sent to disqualify brother Hapgood.

Local Clears Him.

"A week later Powers Hapgood was placed on trial before a sub-committee of the Nanty-Glo Local Union, and a full stenographic record was taken of the proceedings. The committee concurred in International Organizer Fly's charges on the basis of the fact that there was no record of his transfer card in the recording secretary's book of Nanty-Glo, but the local union after hearing the evidence presented by International Organizer Fly and brother Hapgood's defense unanimously rejected the Committee's report and sustained reports and instead Brother Hapgood's membership without even the committee itself voting against him.

Cresson Local Elects.

"In the meantime Brother Hapgood left his job at Gallitzin and started work digging coal in the Cresson Shaft on heading stumps and transferred to our local union. We elected him as our delegate to the International Convention.

"The District Executive Board did not meet until January 18th, and then it was a foregone conclusion that Fly's charges had been paid Organizer Fly's appeal, for nine out of the twelve members of the Board are under the control of the International administration and do everything it says. They voted nine to three to sustain Fly's appeal, thereby declaring Brother Hapgood a "non-member" of the U. M. W. of A. for the next year, just a week before the convention, so that it was too late to get a decision from the International Executive Board. (The Credentials Committee bases its decision on this action.)

Ridiculous Charges.

"All fair minded mine workers can readily understand how flimsy and ridiculous are the charges used by the International officials through their servant International Organizer Fly to disqualify Brother Hapgood. Why would a man like Brother Hapgood refuse to pay initiation fee to the Nanty-Glo local union when he has always given more than he was required to the union and when as an organizer in 1922 he refused to accept his wages during the national strike for a month before they were finally cut-off all district officials by the Executive Board and did not again accept a salary as organizer until the month after the Cleveland settlement? The answer is that he entered Nanty-Glo on a transfer card and the fact it is not recorded on the minutes book is due to carelessness on the part of the recording secretary at that time who has since left the mines. Many secretaries of many local unions often fail to record motions to acept transfer cards and nothing is ever done about it.

"Why would Local Union 1386, Nanty-Glo, have received dues and given him a transfer card unless he was a bonafide member of that local union?

"Why was he allowed to be in good standing for nearly six years after that and be an organizer for a year and a half and no charges were made until he spoke his mind freely concerning the conduct of our International officials in allowing so much of our union to be lost and defeated the "larger program" of John Brophy?

"We therefore appeal to this convention to reverse the action of the Credential Committee and give our delegate a seat and an opportunity to defend himself in this convention. We also appeal to this convention, the highest and last court of appeal in our orgibization, to reverse the action of the Executive Board of District Two and give Powers Hapgood full rights as a member of the United Mine Workers of America.

Respectfully submitted,

Frank Yahner, President; S. S. Cuvold, Recording Secretary; J. W. Fitzpatrick, Financial Secretary; Frank Mazur, Financial Secretary; Peter [illegible]

A little later the Ford company announced that persons released from the Michigan state farm would be given a job when they left prison.

The Editor's Corner

CENSORSHIP—HIDDEN AND OPEN

The power to control the channels of information, the press, literature, the theatre, the motion pictures, the radio, the churches and the schools is the power of the ruling class. This control must, however, be established in such a way as not to affect the continuing power, the power to win confidence, of the machinery for moulding public opinion. If the ruling class exposes too plainly its control over this machinery, it exposes simultaneously its dictatorship over the masses and encourages revolution. The cleverest ruling class therefore pulls the strings voicelessly, and secretly, if possible, so that the scenery may be shifted with more appearance of naturalness, and without exposure. Circumstances, however, often make it necessary that an open and frank dictatorship of the channels of public opinion be maintained, if the exploiters are to safeguard the interests.

The newest effort to censor plays and books is a tendency toward an OPEN dictatorship over opinion-making matter. Apparently the development of plays and books is running ahead so fast that the forces of reaction cannot keep them in check with existing methods of control. Hence the desire to establish new barriers and new obstacles against insurgency in the field of the drama and literature.

In the newspaper field, conditions are different. Owing to the fact that there has not yet been established a daily newspaper powerful enough to effectively challenge and expose the character of the capitalist press, the ruling class has instituted a more hidden, but none the less insidious censorship. Because it possesses an almost undisputed control of the news channels, the ruling class can even assume an air of fairness and liberality on certain issues that are not fundamental. Many readers are thus misled into believing that papers like the New York World or even the Times are honest in dealing with the bigger issues. But a realistic view of the situation will disclose the fact that the ruling class of this country maintains a careful censorship of all the news which is distributed to the workers, because it controls indisputably the chief news channels, the powerful press associations which through their far-reaching and intricate machinery, have established a strangle-hold on all the, news which is disseminated. Only when the workers have established their own press and their own reliable channels of publicity, will this iron ring be broken.—BERT MILLER.

FORD TAX SUITS ONLY SHOW HOW WELL THE FORD WORKERS ARE EXPLOITED; WORKERS DON'T HAVE ENOUGH WAGES TO PAY TAXES

To-day anyone can read of the fortunes made in the automobile industry, for the press is carrying front page news of the government's attempt to collect a tax that for a time was overlooked. One individual invested ten dollars in 1903 and in 1919 that investment was worth twenty-six millions.

The court proceedings show the Ford company was organized in 1903 for one hundred thousand dollars, twenty-eight thousand dollars of which was cash. In ten years fifty-two thousand dollars had been paid for each one hundred dollars ivested. After the first cash investment every dollar that was invested in the company came from the earnings of the company.

Some Worked, Others Grew Rich.

Today we read of the few who made a fortune, but not a word about the workers who toiled in the shops. In fact most people think that Ford at the start of the company was the savior of the working man. On his ability to skin the worker he might have been elected president, had he ran for office.

Few people realize that many of Ford's benevolent stunts, were advertising stunts in disguise. When, thru this procedure, he managed to skin the workers a little more he was given credit for a noble deed.

The World Rejoiced.

First there was the five dollars a day for every man who worked in the shop, even the sweepers were to get this. They did, and the world rejoiced. As a matter of fact there was not many men who were working in the Ford plant who, if working at the same rate of speed in some other shop, would not have earned more. In fact men working in plants manufacturing Ford parts made twice that amount. And no one seemed to remember the fact that a man starting to work in the Ford plant was to work six months for two dollars and seventy cents a day before getting advanced to the five dollars.

But Workers Skimped.

Then the welfare work of the company was started. Investigators called at the homes of the workers to see that they lived within their means. Ford did not like to have anyone working for him who spent all of his five dollars as that might get the worker to thinking that he needed more than five dollars a day. Part of the welfare idea that was not given much publicity was the demerit system.

If a worker was caught talking to a fellow worker a certain number of times, or was late, or broke any of the other numerous rules and regulations, he was placed back on the two-dollar and seventy cents a day scale list for a certain period of time as a punishment. The boss was the judge, jury, and beneficiary of the punishment, reaping an additional profit from the worker while he was working at the lower rate.

Strikebreaker Ford.

During a strike in the Wadsworth plant that manufactured bodies for Ford it was said he supported that firm with cash, and it is a known fact that he took men out of his plant and placed them at work as scabs in the Wadsworth plant. Some men who refused to scab on other workers were immediately dismissed. Yes, Henry loves the working man, he was one himself.

A little later the Ford company announced that persons released from the Michigan state farm would be given a job when they left prison.

That was fine, but how many stopped to realize that Ford's shop was almost a prison and ex-convicts might make satisfied slaves for Henry.

Again Rejoiced.

Then came the five-day week, and again the press gave Henry plenty of free advertising. What made it good was the fact that the workers were to be paid for six days' work while only working five days. However, I have yet to meet the first Ford worker who had made the time starting the six days' pay for five days' work. It is common knowledge that a number of the higher paid men were laid off, some who had worked for Ford over ten years, and were offered their jobs back again at a lower wage.

But Workers Sweated.

The workers were told that when they produced as much in five days as they had in six days before they would receive the six days' pay. Well, anyone who has hit the ball in a Ford plant knows that it is impossible to be speeded up much more for they have about reached the limit of human endurance.

No doubt the real reason for reducing the work days to five days a week, was the fact that there was not sufficient business to keep them running to full capacity. The plant in St. Louis was working three or four days a week during the past year, and do not let anyone tell you those workers were getting full pay.

Uses Wayward Boys.

Last but not least we learn that Henry is going to employ ten thousand boys who are now inclined to be a little wayward. Perhaps their fathers work for Ford and make as much as thirty dollars a week and the boys do not live much over a dollar a day. Anyway it will be cheap help for Henry and he will receive a blessing from all the good people in the country.

I was once told by a man who claimed he had been a Ford investigator that he heard Ford once remark that he, Ford, had no use for unions as they were out for all they could get. It would seem that Ford must hate himself.

Let 'Em Bite!

Some day the Ford worker will revolt and then we will hear all about the terrible and ungrateful workers who bite the hand that feeds them. When that time comes he will be glad robin the old men who he has fired, on the scrap heap, and the press will announce that Ford has a new policy. He will only hire his old and trusted employes. The press will say "Hurrah," the good people, "Ah, that is good."

Five Day Week Alarms Contractors

WASHINGTON (FP.). — Officers of the Associated General Contractors of America, returning to headquarters in the capital from the eighth convention in Asheville, prepared to act on the convention resolution declaring against the five-day week scheme of Henry Ford. The resolution declared that any application of a five-day schedule to the building industry would be inopportune.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, except Sunday.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1000

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
$6.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.50 three months	$6.00 per year $3.50 six months $2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE, Editors
BERT MILLER, Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

$12,000 Per Year for Selling Miners.

The salary boost for officers of the United Mine Workers—$12,000 per year for John L. Lewis, $9,000 for Kennedy and Murray, secretary and vice president respectively—has been ratified as per schedule in Indianapolis—but not without what represents tremendous rank and file opposition when the fraudulent nature of the delegations is considered.

The machine counted 278 delegates voting against the raise in officers' salaries and in this convention this means that at least 50 per cent of the delegates were in opposition.

The monumental crust of the UMWA officialdom passes belief, but it is our sober opinion that for once in their lives they have gone too far. Coming on top of their steal of the power to levy unlimited assessments without sanction from the membership, the huge salary increase is a little too much for the miners to swallow.

Even the achievement for which the machine has been working—the criminal syndicalism law applied to the United Mine Workers—in spite of the intimidation and actual terrorism in full swing since the opening of the convention, was not put thru without a stubborn fight on the part of the miners.

The miners will not get a fifty per cent increase in wages when the Jacksonville agreement expires. John L. Lewis will not fight for a fifty per cent increase for the members who pay his salary of $1,000 per month on top of a fantastically large expense account.

Lewis' salary increase will not make him any more loyal to the interests of the rank and file. That he planned to put this across at this convention is sufficient proof of the fact that he regards the members of the union in the same way as the feudal lords regarded the peasants—a lower class whom it is his inalienable right to plunder.

But the membership, outside of that section of it which is on the payroll and shares in the plunder, will not accept the Lewis attitude towards the union.

The Lewis machine will find that forcing a 50 per cent raise for officials in a union whose members have just recently had steady employment and which faces a struggle this spring that will absorb all its financial resources, has greatly weakened their hold on the minds of the membership.

"The constructive policies" which many union members believe they have been supporting when they voted for the Lewis machine appear in a new light as the unrestrained greed of officialdom finds expression in measures to force the membership to pay tribute in unlimited quantities.

President Lewis and the other harpies may accuse the Communists of circulating "scurrilous propaganda" when we draw the attention of the miners to his princely income, but we assure him that we will continue to do so and that we will get new thousands of sympathetic listeners from the ranks of the UMWA membership.

The new rating of the miners' officialdom puts it high on the list of the well-paid agents of American imperialism whose grip on the labor movement must be broken before there can be a trade union movement in America whose first loyalty is to the working class.

Judge Rosalsky and the Garment Workers.

The sentences imposed by Judge Rosalsky on members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union for their activities during the strike last summer are unequalled for severity in the history of the labor movement, as Louis Hyman, general manager of the Joint Board, stated in The DAILY WORKER last Saturday.

When the notorious "Denny" Sullivan of Chicago, Landis Award judge, handed out lesser sentences to striking garment workers who defied their bosses' injunctions against picketing the labor movement of Chicago protested, the left wing vigorously and the right wing officialdom feebly. Reactionary as they are, however, the officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor made some show of trying to bring about the release of the jailed picketers.

Here in New York the reactionaries from the yellow socialists to the black bureaucrats of the Tammany—Green Central Trades and Labor Council have not opened their lips in protest against the brutal sentences imposed on those loyal union workers by a puppet judge. The workers will construe the silence of those labor leaders as unspoken agreement with the action of Judge Rosalsky.

While Judge Rosalsky vented his bourgeois wrath against good union men whose only offense was that they defended themselves when attacked by the sluggers of the employers, the gangsters and gunmen employed by the bosses walk the streets free men, ready to do more slugging for the employers.

The workers of this city must make an effective protest against the persecution of the militant needle trades workers. They must warn the reactionary labor leaders, socialist and non-socialist that the united front between the employers, the city and state governments and the right wing in the trade unions must cease. The workers must also serve notice on Judge Rosalsky and his ilk that a Labor Party will be the answer of labor on the political field to this open and brutal use of the capitalist courts against the workers.

Tammany Hall is reported to be beaming over the pickle William Gibbs McAdoo got himself into by launching his drive for the presidential nomination on a bone-dry platform. If Woodrow Wilson's crown prince drank poisoned hootch his "friends" in Tammany Hall would not feel a bit happier.

In and Around Miners' Meeting

Powers Hapgood, the miners' delegate from Quincy, Ill., who has been slugged twice by machine gangsters in three days—once in a hotel and once on the convention floor—has the most collection of bruises outside of the prize ring.

His facial adornments consist of abrasions, swellings, cuts and scratches. By some miracle he has avoided getting a black eye but the convention is still in its youth.

The progressive delegation seems to take on new life every time Hapgood gets slugged. Nothing this, Joe Angelo, the astute young Italo-Lithuanian from Springfield, was heard to remark:

"If we can get Powers Hapgood beat up at least once a day we may trim the Lewis machine yet."

* * *

The sizong-arm squad of the Lewis machine have been casting longing eyes on Pat Toohey. The Cornonian knobs which protrude from the visage of this young anthracite miner seem to have attracted their machinistic as spots which would look well if decorated with knuckle marks.

An Pat's friends are also curious to see how he would look with a black and blue color scheme superimposed on his coppery freckles, there is a good chance of his being able to symphatize with Hapgood in a much more understanding manner.

An individual bearing all the marks of a klansman was much excited the other day in a Greek cafeteria, where many rank and file delegates eat. He had been reading about China, Mexico and Nicarugua and how Coolidge was going to see that no American lives or property would be molested by backward peoples.

The klansman was highly in favor of all this providing some other patriots were going to take care of the molesters. But he intended to see that the rear of the armies of democracy were safe from the alien menace. So he glared at the swarthy servitor behind the cafeteria counter and inquired sternly:

"Are you a citizen?"

With a slow Levantine smile the harried one replied in a mild tone: "No, I'm Greek."

"I mean," the member of the invisible empire said, "have you got your papers?"

The Greek looked puzzled for a moment and then answered hesitatingly.

"Oh, you inspector?"

He hurried over to the bar, and was soon busy with the mortgaged Hearst.

"Sure we got papers," he said as he held it up for the gaping klansman to gaze upon.

A baffled look began to spread over the sharp features of the veteran of a hundred nightgown parades.

"No, I mean have you got citizen papers?"

"We don't sell papers, boy sell papers. He get all kinds—News, Times, Star—you want paper?"

The klansman shoved the counter railing and drew a long breath. The crowd of customers stopped eating to listen.

"Are you an American citizen? Have you got citizen papers? Uncle Sam protects you if you are an american citizen."

"Where? Here?"

"No, if you go back to Greece, Uncle Sam protects you."

"Go back to Greece, no need protection. Cops here eat all the time, no pay."

"If you go to China or Mexico Uncle Sam protects you if you are a citizen."

"Not going to China, going to stay here. This is good country."

"That's what I say. This is a good country and you ought to be an american."

"Can I be American, I'm Greek."

The crowd waited for the klansman's reply, but he was thru. He swallowed audibly a couple of times and then went out.

He tried to slam the door but it had one of those slow-closing devices. Even inanimate objects were against the government and its loyal defenders in this alien haunt.

The Greek smiled another slow smile as he poured some gravy on the roast beef hash that was beginning to develop a dry crust.

The customers resumed eating.

* * *

Natalie Gomez, DAILY WORKER agent, was informed by a six-foot sergeant-at-arms, on the first day of the convention, that she could not sell her wares inside the convention hall.

She questioned the authority of her informant, much to his embarrassment.

"Why not?" asked Natalie, "you allow non-citizens papers in here."

"That's different," said the chief, "they don't attack our officers."

"But," said Natalie, "you can't stop the selling outside and the same articles will be in the papers if I sell them outside as would be in them if I sold them inside and they will not have any worse effect on your members if I sell them inside."

The chief sergeant-at-arms opened his mouth and gazed into the vast reaches of Tomlinson hall. It was evident he was trying to isolate the poisonous germs of Communist propaganda that was undoubtedly concealed somewhere in this remark. He remembered that someone had told him that young girls were often the most dangerous type of Communist.

He moved back from the desk which had made a four-inch dent in his abdomen, and said:

"You get out of here."

The DAILY WORKER agent sells papers four times a day in front of the convention hall—morning, noon, afternoon and evening. But every time the chief sergeant-at-arms passes the small figure headed up against the cold, damp Indianapolis atmosphere, he throws back his shoulders and steps past proudly.

Singie-handed he has foiled another Communist plot.

* * *

Is there some occult tie between cafeterias and chiropractors?

It may be difficult to prove its existence, but it is a fact that cafeterias and chiropractors abound in Indianapolis. So do officers of international and national unions.

The possible connection between the three is a worthy subject for investigation by The New Leader, altho the inclusion of union officials may make it smack too much of unbridled radicalism for the official organ of the socialist party to handle.—B. D.

The New Bolcoms

A REBEL'S MUSE
My Muse is CRUDE, uncouth
and HARSH
My Muse is NOT the Muse of BOURGEOIS poets—
She CANNOT sing of lunar nights and azure skies—
Her cause is DOWNWARD cast upon the RABBLE—
the humble
MISERABLE mobs
Their WOES she feels;
their MISERY she suffers.
With them she SIGHS and CURSES
in verses
HARSH and unrefined . . .
My Muse is CRUDE
as LIFE itself.

ARTISTS AND MUDDLES

In our quest for talent, we bunked into Morris Bortnick, on Second avenue and Tenth street. Brother Bortnick, if you recall, is the young proletarian artist whose portrait of Lenin created quite a furore at the Madison Square Garden memorial meeting. (Parenthetically, we might add that his other great artistic achievement is the futuro-imagisto-dadaistic heading design over this column). As usual, he had a story to tell us.

It happens that one of his Greenwich Village colleagues was hired to repair certain paintings in a convent. When his work was completed, the holy father, a distrustful fundamentalist, demanded an itemized bill. Following is the artist's statement:

Corrected and renewed the Ten Commandments	1.15
Put a new tail on the rooster of St. Peter	2.75
Put a new nose on St. John the Baptist, and straightened his eye	3.35
Washed the servant of the High Priest and put carmine on his cheeks?	7.11
Revived the Flames of Hell, put a new tail on the devil and did several odd jobs for the damned	11.07
Cleaned the ears of Balaam's ass	37.01
Mended the shirt of the Prodigal Son and cleaned the pigs.	.27
Total	$313.13

THE MODERN NOVEL
(A clever bit of Sovhumor clipped from a Moscow journal)
In the Soviet Union—The hero and the heroine torment and psycho-analyze each other for 351 pages. On page 255 the heroine yields to the hero.

In France—The heroine yields to the hero on the very first page and for 354 pages, they, both torment and psycho-analyze each other.

In England—For 354 pages the hero and heroine torment and psycho-analyze each other and on page 355 she yields to him—then they part, respectfully and virtuously.

In America—The heroine yields on the first page and since time is money, there are no further analyses nor tormentations. The novel ends there and then.

* * *

It is a sorry publication nowadays that does not treat its readers to some sort of contest. To be different—we'll have one, too.

We find that in spite of its traditional significance, the new "New Bolcoms" does not quite satisfy our aesthetic taste. The Board of Management and the Editorial Staff of the Colyum have therefore decided to inaugurate with this issue a national title contest. Ten dollars' worth of books will be awarded for the best title submitted before April 15th. The names of the judges will be announced in a subsequent issue.

The NEW BOLCOMS will appear only once or twice a week until we get enough cooperation from our proletarian to make it a daily feature. Two prizes will be awarded each month for the best contribs. The February awards are: first prize, for "Expression in Literature," by V. F. Calverton; second prize, "Flying Oesip," the stories of New Russia. The authors of the first ten accepted contributions will receive, free, a copy of "The Life and Work of Lenin," by E. Yaroslavsky. We would like to hear from some of the "by-gone" bards of the old Bolcoms. Nuff sed—get busy!

REVOLUTIONARY MISDEMEANOR
(Dedicated to E. B.)

She asked me would I be so kind
Exclusive to her the dialectics
Of Engels, Marx, Lenin, La Salle;
And all our latest left wing tactics.
I truly to be so nice —
(I hope the C. E. C. ain't mad)
But when I looked into her eyes
I taught her how to love instead. . .

"Say, Eva, how shall I wind up this colyum?"
"Oh, that's a cinch, my boy! All you have to do is write, write, write and all of a sudden stop."
—I. D. W. TALMADGE.
"Thanks."

Big Interests Seek Control Over Power Plants in Northwest

(By A Worker Correspondent.)

STILLWATER, Minn.—All the water power rights available in the northwest are being taken over by the large power and light trusts and companies.

H. F. Peck, vice-president and general manager of the Northern States Power Co., quite frankly predicts still more mergers during the present year in the following statement sent stockholders:

"Continued extensions and mergers of public utility systems, thru the further clustering together of small towns, large cities, states and sections of the United States into vast 'super' power systems, is a notable picture in the uses of electricity all over the country, and great gains to American prosperity in consequence of all this, appear to R. F. Pack, vice-president and general manager of your company, as an irresistible trend of 1927 and the year to follow.

"So great have been the public benefits from the mergers that began to attract special attention in 1925," Mr. Peck said recently, "as well as the advantages from the standpoints of capital invested, that there now is every reason to presume that the movement of gathering up small units into groups, and these into still larger groups and systems, and these coming into unified control through great holding companies, is impelled by an economic force that can never stop until the United States becomes one vast network of inter-connected power plants and distributing stations of companies either consolidated, affiliated or held together by common ownership."

While these mammoth power and light trusts continually seek larger profits they never consider plans to give poor people cheaper rates. When people use their power and light plants, lower rates for the whole people is one of the first questions considered.

In Stillwater the Northern States Power Co. charges 11 cents k. w. hrs. used for househghting. Homer T. Bone of Tacoma, Wash., however, reports a rate of 4 1-2 cents k.-w. hrs. used, made by the city-owned plant. Tacoma also gives a rate of 1-2 cent k. w. hr. for home heating. More than 2,700 homes are using this heat.

Trusts run their plants for profit while the people operate them for service. The question asked by many is "Why not run all plants in all branches of production for service?"

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 31.—[illegible] army medwill Stors, forced to land here Saturday on route from Dansville to Rochester, will leave this afternoon to complete their return flight to Detroit.

A NEW NOVEL
By Upton Sinclair

VIII

Dad didn't get well as quickly as they had hoped. Apparently the cold damp darkness of London was not good for him, so Bunny took him to Paris. Bertie relented, and met them at the station; even her husband risked his diplomatic career, and everything was polite and friendly for a few hours. But then the brother and sister got to arguing; Bertie wanted Bunny not to investigate the Socialist movement of France, at least, and Bunny said he had already promised Rachel an article about it. There was a "youth" paper here that was on their exchange list, and there was to be a Socialist meeting that very week which Bunny was going to attend. Bertie said that settled it, he would never meet the Prince de This and the Duchesse de That, and Bunny was so ignorant, he didn't know what he was missing.

Paris was wet and cold also, and Dad had a cough, and sat around in a hotel lobby and was so forlorn it made your heart ache. He would let you drive him around, and would look at public buildings—yes, it was very fine, a beautiful city; people had been working on it a long while, we hadn't had time to get anything so good at home. But all the while you could see that Dad didn't really care about it; he didn't like this strange people with their jabber, the men looked like popinjays and the women immoral, and people were always trying to pass off lead money on you, and the food had fancy fixings so you couldn't tell what it tasted like, and why in the world Americans wanted to come chasing over here was beyond Dad's power to imagine.

It was decided to take him to the Riviera til spring. And there he was, were settled in a villa looking over the Mediterranean, and there was sunshine at last, a pale copy of California. Bertie came for a visit, and then Aunt Emma to keep house for them, and it was a sort of home. Aunt Emma and Bertie got along beautifully, because the lady never failed to admire the right things—oh, how perfect, lovely, how refined and elegant, the most magnificent buildings, the most life-like paintings, the most fashionable costumes! Aunt Emma would meet the Prince de This and the Duchesse de That, and never injure the diplomatic career of her nephew-in-law.

Bunny got himself a tutor, and rapidly unlearned the French he had acquired at Southern Pacific. Of course he had to pick out a Socialist tutor, a weird-looking, moth-eaten young man who did not seem to have had a square meal in many years—a poet, he was reported to be. Other Socialists came to the villa, and a few Communists and Anarchists and Syndicalists and hybrids of these; they wore loose ties, or none at all, and hair hanging into their eyes, and looked to Dad and Aunt Emma as if they were spying out the premises with intentions of burglary. Even here there were radical meetings, on this Coast of Gold, where the rich of Europe gambled and played, and poor devils dangling always on the verge of starvation roused the pity of a young American millionaire, who lived in luxury and had a guilty conscience. When it was ascertained that he would lend money, there were some to ask, and most of them were frauds—but how was a young American millionaire to know?

IX

The weather grew hot, and they went back to Paris. Dad liked it better now, he could stroll on the boulevards, and sit in those outdoor cafes, where you sipped things to drink; there was always a waiter who understood English, and maybe he had been in God's country and would chat about it. There were numbers of Americans to meet; and found the express company office where they got their mail, and he even ran into people from Angel City there! The newspapers from home came twice a week, and lasted a long time.

Also, friends turned up—Annabelle Amess, for example, to attend the League premiere of "A Mother's Heart," and to visit Roumania with Verne, and also Constantinople. It appeared that Verne was backing the Turkish government by means of squeezing a few shares of the Mosul oil out of Mr. Birtlah. A fanney think—Excuse Pete, Verne's bitterest rival at home, had offered to take him in on these concessions. Yes, they were getting something when they bought the leading cabinet members of the United States government. Excelsior Pete's action showed how much real importance they attributed to the oil scandals, and to the new President's public attitude.

Annabelle was a business woman, and understood these matters, which made her a comfort to Dad. She pleaded with Bunny, in her gentle, loving way—it was all right for him to set up new standards in business, but was it fair to judge his father by them? Certainly the big business men followed those standards. And surely America was netitled to its share of the world's oil; but there was no reason to take it from these greedy foreign rivals, except to mass the power of the government against them.

Annabelle had lots of news from home. Not gossip, she didn't call mean things; but there was one story she couldn't help telling, it was so funny, and it caused Dad many a chuckle. A sudden fit of modesty and struck the O'Reilly family; they had taken down all their bronze and brass things that had announced their progress about the world! No name on their front gates, none on the "Conqueress," their yacht; none on the private car with its Circassian walnut and blue plush upholstery? No longer was it all from him to be an oil magnate's wife—rome fatatie might be a bomb at you!

Congress had adjourned for the summer, and Verne was going back, but he wanted Dad to stay a little while, because that Canadian corporation was the most vulnerable of all the oil men's actions; it had never done anything except to distribute that two million dollars of bribes. It was more than ever important to keep the story down, because the government was proceeding to bring suit for the return of all the naval reserves. That would tie up the profits in the courts—all good money, by Jess, it was right!

Dad would stay, of course and Annabelle would have to stay with him, as the matters of the estate were getting close along, fresh from a job of having most of the great ...ng-over picture ma... another step in the process of taking over the industry. Annabelle revealed to him, and he was a good sport, he said yes, it was a dandy scheme the way old Jim had been created, and it was fine of the kid to stick by him—the Jews are strong for the family amity; and Schmolsky would arrange several promoterers for "The Golden Couch" in Europe, and Vee might spend a long holiday with her Bunny-rabbit. Lest Schmolsky should forget about the matter, Annabelle made him dictate a cablegram right then; so Bunny saw a demonstration of what it means to have influential friends! It was good business as well as good nature, of course; because, when the world's darlings have these glory-progresses, a publicity man precedes them from one great capital to the next, and the news of the crowds and the clamor is cabled back to the United States, and takes the front page every time.

Bunny could salve his conscience, because nobody needed him at home. The magazine was getting along all right. Fifty-two issues had been published, more than half of them of Rachel's own editing; it was something to count upon, the way the news it was a torment to have a twenty year jail sentence hanging over you, but they were getting used to it. Ruth was going on with her annie's work, and everything else fine. Paul had gone on a long journey—she was not at liberty to say where.

(To Be Continued.)

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

FINAL CITY EDITION

...IV., No. 17. NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, [illegible] Price 2 Cents

U. S. PREPARES FOR "EMERGENCY" IN CHINA

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE non-partisan anti-war meeting held in the Lyric Theatre last Sunday would be non-partisan provided its socialist organizers did not wish to exclude all those who failed give the audience the "low down" on war and not merely indulge in a lot of platitudes about the "honor of America" as well as if the United States was more honorable when it stole Texas from Mexico, filched the little republic of Panama and gobbled up the Philippines than it has today. The respectable liberals who held forth at the anti-war meeting will keep on talking but will do nothing to prevent war.

• • •

IN England the right wing socialists are now cheek by jowl with the tory government in the threatened war on China. Only the Communists are doing things. The Communists are appealing to the working class to stop the war by refusing to transport troops. J. H. Thomas is in favor of sending a large army to China. MacDonald is not so frank. Snowden hurls abuse at Russia for sympathizing with the Chinese revolution and injuring British interests in the Orient. The right wing socialists, and reactionary labor leaders are part and parcel of the capitalist machine. They are the bulwarks of capitalism against the militant labor movement. That is their role all over the world, including the United States.

• • •

JOHN L. LEWIS will now have a little foreign colony of his own to rule over, since no member of the United Mine Workers Union who is not a citizen of the United States can run for union office. John may apply to the League of Nations for a...

(Continued on page 2)

MUSSOLINI AGAIN SHOUTS FOR WAR TO GET COLONIES

ROME, Feb. 1.—Italy "must expand or explode," declared Premier Mussolini today in an interview on the subject of imperialism.

"We must struggle to extract from our soil every ounce of nutritive energy," said Premier Mussolini.

"Despite the efforts of science Italy is unable to nourish her people.

"We must expand or explode.

"I do not feel authorized to believe in pacifist idealism, though recognizing that it contains the most poetical and the most choice theories imagined by the human brain.

"There exists a reality in the international situation which is not poetical."

Ready to Argue Miners' Wage Scale

Convention Marks Time As Lewis Repairs Machine

Special To Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 1.—The Thirtieth Constitutional Convention of the United Mine Workers of America is doing very little work, officially these days. Today, again, the machine leaders supporting President John L. Lewis, tinkered around, making an effort to get the thing back into shape, after it ran wild yesterday and smashed Lewis' proposition to hold local union elections only once every two years.

The convention adjourned early until nine o'clock tomorrow, and Lewis announced that at that time the report of the wage scale committee "will be the sole order of business."

The report of the committee, which is drawing up the terms to be asked by the union at the conferences with operators of the central competitive field, at Miami, Feb. 14, may be the last matter to be taken up by the convention.

Reactionaries To Europe.

Delegates Rinaldo Cappellini, of Scranton, Pa., and Van A. Bittner of Fairmont, West Virginia, two pure and simple machine supporters, were selected at this morning's session to represent the union at the April meeting of the International Mining Congress at Prague.

Cappellini was given the appointment after a hot battle with John Brophy of Clearfield, Pa., leader of the militant insurgents, and recently candidate for International president of the mine workers.

Indianapolis was selected as the

(Continued on page two)

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE DECLARES RIGHT TO PICKET AT STAKE IN ROSALSKY'S COURT; MANY RESOLUTIONS TO REMOVE HIM

The International Labor Defense, New York section, has issued the following statement on the sentencing of nineteen garment workers by Judge Rosalsky of New York:

The brutal sentences upon the nineteen garment workers by the "Cossack" Judge Rosalsky has left many workers thunderstruck. Nothing more brutal has ever been known in the history of New York.

Condemnations of Rosalsky, the open and unashamed representative of wage-cutting employers are coming into the local I. L. D. office every day. Undoubtedly this persecution of ordinary workers is going to react with overwhelming force against the enemies of the workers.

Demand New Trial.

Many of the resolutions demand the withdrawal of Rosalsky and a new trial for the victims of his brutality.

This is a fight around which every section of the working class can rally. The International Labor Defense calls upon all workers who previously thought the employing class was reasonable and just to rally to the struggle and strengthen the defense arm of the labor movement.

What is at stake? Nothing more

(Continued on page 2)

Jersey Federation of Labor in Another Plea For Passaic Strikers

PASSAIC, N. J., (FP).—Another appeal for relief funds has been sent out by the New Jersey state federation of labor in behalf of the Passaic textile strikers. Hugh Reilly, federation secretary, told a mass meeting of the workers organized in 1926, United Textile Workers, that the state labor body's executive council had endorsed the fight and would urge full support from affiliated locals.

WILL THE SENATE JAIL SAM INSULL AND BOB CROWE?

Can Imprison Them for Not Answering Reed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The senate has the power to impose jail sentences upon persons held to be in contempt, the Reed campaign fund committee was told today by senators Goff (R) of West Virginia, and King (D) of Utah, after a lengthy investigation of precedents.

The views of Goff and King were secured by the committee as a preliminary to the citing of Samuel Insull, Chicago multi-millionaire, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook County (Chicago), and Thomas F. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, to the senate for alleged contempt in refusing to answer questions at the Chicago hearings.

A decision as to whether the committee will recommend that the senate impose jail sentences on the alleged offenders, or cite them to the federal courts of the District for contempt prosecutions will be reached at another session next Monday.

Furriers' Local in Refusal to Oust Langer

Hoot Out Fakers When Their Injunction Comes In

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 1.—The International officers of the Fur Workers' union were utterly flouted by the members of Local 35 last night, at a stormy meeting at Montgomery Hall, when the subject of the International's injunction against the local came up for discussion by the members.

Workers Unanimous.

As far as the 600 fur workers present were concerned there was no difference of opinion. They were unanimous in rejecting, by a hundred per cent vote and some vigorous language, the order of the International officers to suspend their regularly elected business agent, Morris Langer, and turn over the affairs of the local to a committee appointed by the International's Sub-committee.

The members were also unanimous in condemning the action of the International officers in applying for an injunction against the local officers, who insisted in obeying the wishes of the local members instead of the International officers.

Their Majesties Arrive.

The meeting had gotten under way at 7 o'clock with M. Greenberg in the chair, when the royal family of the union appeared — President Osier Schachtman, and P. Lucchi, an organizer, Vice-presidents Sorkin and Winnik, Max Harris, Secretary-treasurer Wohl, and Henry Hilfers, New Jersey state organizer of the A. F. of L.

Lucchi Ousted.

The members immediately objected to admitting Lucchi, and again by an unanimous vote, he was barred from the hall. The others were allowed to proceed to the platform, and Morris Langer then took the floor to explain to the members the difficulties between the local officers and the International's sub-committee, and to denounce the sub-committee's action in trying to impose its will by means of an injunction

Asked To Surrender.

When President Schachtman rose to speak he made an attempt to pour oil on the troubled waters and prove that all was going to be harmonious between the Long Island City office and the local. All that had to be done was for the local to turn over its affairs as ordered.

Unfortunately for Mr. Schachtman, this suggestion instead of bringing peace brought such a howl of protest from the meeting that he finally had to sit down before finishing his speech. Then Hilfers tried to be the peace-maker, begging the members to listen to Schachtman, saying he came as an impartial observer. But that word impartial brought a cry from the house, "Then why did you condemn us at the Essex Trades and

(Continued on page 2)

Final News Bulletins

Would Abolish Capital Punishment.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 1.—Under a bill introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Hackenburg, New York, Democrat, the voters of the state would decide at the next election whether capital punishment should be abolished. A similar measure, sponsored by Hackenburg at the 1926 session, was killed in committee.

Urge Four-Year Terms.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The republican four-year term resolution, doubling the elective terms for governor, senators and assemblymen, started on its final leap thru the legislature today when it was reported favorably by the senate judiciary committee.

La Guardia Knows of Brewery.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (INS).—A brewery manufacturing high powered beer is running full force within fifteen miles of Times Square, Representative La Guardia, republican of New York, declared in the House today.

Patrolman Kills Boy.

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 1.—During a fierce struggle in the darkness of early morning in the Otis-Allen and Sons' lace factory here, Patrolman Anthony D. Christo shot and killed seventy-year-old John Grandmaison, his alleged burglar.

Acts for British

Admiral E. S. A. Sinclair, above, commands the British naval contingent sent to China. His business is to defend exploitation and empire

MAYOR'S MEETING FAILS TO SETTLE BOXMAKER STRIKE

Bosses Absent Again Another Call Sent

The meeting yesterday between acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, substituting for Mayor Walker, now on a vacation, and the striking paper box workers' delegation was indecisive. The employers again failed to appear, other than to send a letter saying that they did not believe there was any strike.

Inasmuch as Mayor McKee, as at least the nominal head of the police department could not but have heard of the great parade of paper box strikers the day before, clubbed by a cordon of police, and charged into by a mounted policeman, this argument sounded rather flat.

Hrrried Hearing.

The Mayor hrrried the interview through, merely promising that he would "do justice," and setting Friday as the date of another conference, at which the employers are to be more urgently requested to attend. A resolution prepared by Arthur Garfield Hayes was carried, instructing the manufacturers to respect the call of the Mayor and appear, and the police to be neutral.

The Troops Present.

Immediately after the interview, Mayor McKee tripped down the steps to inspect a detachment of marines, drawn up for that purpose. The military display was for the purpose of

(Continued on page 3).

12,000 Marines Are Ordered to Orient

Coolidge Declares Government Now Has Fifty Warships In Front of Shanghai

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The American government is preparing for "an emergency" in China.

This announcement was made today at the White House after a cabinet meeting and after orders had been issued for the dispatch of 1,200 U. S. marines to Asiatic stations.

This is taken to mean that Coolidge is determined on intervention against the Cantonese government in co-operation with the British government. Fifty warships are before Shanghai.

Coolidge admitted today that there were held a hundred United States warships in Chinese waters. The total available forces of the Wall Street government, now stationed in strategic positions for a descent on China is in the vicinity of 7,500.

• • •

Geneva Reports Britain Building Steel Wall Around the Soviet Union

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 1.—The Cantonese government today broke off negotiations with the British government and refused to consider the British peace proposals as long as British troops remained on Chinese soil.

The action of the Nationalist government was attributed to the conviction that the Cantonese felt themselves sufficiently strong to challenge the power of the British empire.

Despite the pacifistic protestations of Coolidge and Kellogg United States warships continue to concentrate in Chinese waters. The Chinese masses do not believe that the presence of imperialist warships in Chinese waters bear out the Kellogg statement that Washington encourages the Chinese nationalist revolution.

Trying To Isolate Soviet Union.

GENEVA, Feb. 1.—That the British government is striving to build a steel wall around the Soviet Union was admitted today by attaches of the League of Nations secretariat, which is dominated by Great Britain. Sir Eric Drummond being the secretary of the league.

The suspicions that the Polish coup d'etat led by Pilandski had British backing and that the recent Lithuanian coup was supported by the same government are now confirmed.

It was whispered around league headquarters that the arrival of ample British forces in China would be the signal for a Polish advance on Russia.

War is in the air here and the League of Nations, the creature of imperialism is not even twiddling its thumbs. It is sitting still in obedience to the commands of its masters.

British Troops Continue To Sail.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Feb. 1.—Despite the protest of the Peking government, the dispatch of British naval and military forces to China continue. The aircraft carrier Argus sailed for China today. Ramsay MacDonald and other labor leaders continue to support the tory government. The Communist Party and the left wing of the trade union move-

(Continued on page 2)

SENATORS SCORN ECONOMIES; VOTE MORE WARSHIPS

Appropriate Over a Million for Cruisers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1.—With cynical disregard for political requirements, and with a single eye towards assuring the right of the United States to foreign markets and spheres of influence, the Senate today overrode a plaintive objection from the White House, smashed the authorized appropriation of $1,200,000 presidential "economy policy," and voted for the immediate construction of three new cruisers for the navy.

Big Majority For It.

The vote was 49 to 27.

The House has already refused to pass a similar bill, but a conference will now take place, and influence will be brought to jam it through in some slightly modified form.

It is not believed here that Coolidge will dare to veto this bill, even if he wishes to do so, because it is a part of the appropriations act asking for $14,950,000 for the navy, and because the Coolidge policies of foreign aggrandisement demand a big navy.

Those favoring the cruisers included 24 republicans and 25 democrats, while the opposition found 18 republicans, 3 democrats and 1 farmer-laborite standing by the president. The insurgents supported the president.

The senate late today passed the naval appropriation bill carrying $320,000,000.

Searles Sobs For Gompers and Raps Mexico

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

ELLIS SEARLES, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, does not confine his glorification of reaction to the columns of that stupid official organ of "efficiency unionism."

Searles carries his campaign into the columns of the capitalist press in a style originated by ex-Attorney-General Palmer and later adopted by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. It is a simple style, completely suited to the mentality of the individuals who use it. It consists of calling "red" everyone and everything of whom one disapproves.

Mexico is the most recent object of Searles' hatred. Writing to the Indianapolis News, Searles seeks to defend the late Gompers from any suspicion of sympathy with the present Mexican government. He says: "... if Gompers were alive today he would not, I am sure, support Calles in his present policies. The fact is, President Calles doubtless used the memory of Samuel Gompers. Calles is a pronounced Red. His government is a Red government .... Gompers was not aware that Calles was as Red as he is. Calles is not giving Mexico the kind of governament that Gompers believed he would give .... He never suspected a Red for anything if he knew it ....

"There is much more of this kind of stuff that the censor is sufficient for most people to form a judgment of the whole and to demonstrate that Searles can write the word "red" not into an article more frequently than any other living coryphee of Wall Street's state department. He is of course correct when he infers that Gompers would have chosen to support Wall Street and not Calles. Gompers, like Searles and Lewis, was an imperialist.

What Searles would say if Calles actually was a Communist defies imagination. But the fact that he believes that "red" is the uttermost in abuse is proof that the resistance of the Mexican masses and the Calles government to Wall Street aggression has driven this little hireling to frenzy.

For whom does Searles speak? If he was speaking for himself he could not get space for his drivel in the smallest paper in the smallest town in the United States. It is because he is editor of the mine workers' official organ, by grace of John L. Lewis and in spite of the opposition of the membership, because he voices the opinion of the UMWA officialdom, that what he says is of importance.

Every informed newspaperman in the United States knows now that the state department inspired the story about Calles being a "red" and encouraging a "bolshevist plot" against the Panama canal was a gigantic fraud for which even the duly vicious and credulous Kellogg dared not take responsibility.

The most cynical newspaperman knows the Calles government is on the outs with Wall Street and the government intends so far it has not ...ned the Mexican natural resources—oil in particular—and the Mexican people over to American capitalists.

Calles, like his masters, wants nothing but unconditional surrender.

His doing his best, as his letter to the Indianapolis News shows, to fan prejudices of as many Americans as possible against Mexico in order that Wall Street may have an excuse for plundering that nation.

The connection between the hatred of Mexico, its government and people, by the Lewis machine and its hangers-on, is this:

The greater the plunder from Mexico and other Latin American countries, the greater the share of the spoils of imperialism in the labor movement.

The agents and pro-consuls of ancient Rome hired freemen and plebians to cry out their praises and denounce their enemies when they walked thru the imperial city returning to subjugated regions. American imperialism is less crude and there has been a great advance in public methods. The general method, however, remains unaltered and so would Editor Searles crying out in the market-place that the house of Calles should be put down and the like of Morgan made to rule in its stead.

We have mixed classical and scriptural analogy in the above paragraph but it would require the additional pathological metaphor to accurately describe the role played by Rome and by Judah.

WALL STREET BULLIES IN SHANGHAI

Here we see the so-called American volunteer defense corps on the Shanghai docket, China, guarding Chinese citizens who dared to speak their minds in favor of their country. Many of the volunteers have been sent off and landed on the Chinese mainland, where they are guarding the lives of the foreigners who make the Chinese toil for starvation wages.

...SE COMMITTEE ENDORSES POLICY OF IMPERIALISM

Minority Protests; Not Even Informed

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1— With the Coolidge majority riding over all opposition, and rushing even the request of Representative Moore of Virginia that a little information be given it first, the House of Representatives Committee on Foreign Affairs endorsed the administration's policy in Nicaragua and Mexico, today, by adopting the Fairchild resolution.

Was Party Vote.

It was a strict party vote of ten to five, and the democrats immediately moved for a reconsideration. Last week the minority stopped an attempt to endorse the gunboat policy in Latin America by walking out of the committee. Minority members also claim they are "gagged" in the committee, and that everything is railroaded through.

The Role of Infamy.

The vote was ordered by Representative Porter (R), of Pennsylvania, chairman, over the protests of democrats, and was:

For the resolution — Burton of Ohio, Fairchild of New York, Fish of New York, Cole of Iowa, Vaile of Colorado, Ellis of Missouri, Morton Hull of Illinois, Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, Eaton of New Jersey, and Connally (D) of Texas, who voted "aye" for the purpose of making a motion to consider.

Against—Linthicum of Maryland, Moore of Virginia, O'Connell of New York, McReynolds of Tennessee, Edwards of Georgia.

Absent—Temple (R) of Pennsylvania, Begg (R) of Ohio, Cooper (R) of Wisconsin, Stedman (D) of North Carolina, Davey (D) of Ohio. Chairman Porter did vote.

The committee voted down Connally's motion to reconsider the question.

Won't Tell Why.

Moore demanded action on his resolution requesting specific information on the Nicaraguan and Mexican situations. He was supported by Fish.

"I want to say that I'll not sit in any more meetings of this committee on Nicaraguan or Mexico affairs unless we call Secretary of State Kellogg or the chief of the division of Americ...n affairs," said Fish.

Don't Want to Know.

It was announced that he would not call further meetings unless "we decide to act like a kindergarten."

We were given complete information in the president's message," said Fairchild.

The committee then, 8 to 7, voted down the Moore resolution requesting Secretary Kellogg to appear.

Ready to Argue the Miners' Wage Scale

(Continued from Page 1)

next meeting, place of the International convention.

* * *

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 1.—In the quietest session of the miners' convention, delegates slept peacefully after a morning of excitement while former President John P. White recounted his exploits.

The Lewis machine stalled for time to make repairs to parts badly damaged at the morning session. To the tune of the capital letter I, White recited how he saved the union in years gone by and then left it to save America for democracy during the world war. White advised delegates to be patriotic to Lewis and the stars and stripes.

International board member James Johnson of Washington state was denied an appeal for $5,000 for back pay during factional fights in District 10 several years ago. Lewis had refused him a seat on the international board for a year.

Insist on Withdrawal Of Armed Forces

Continued from Page 1

ment are trying to mobilize the masses against war.

News of the dismissal of Sir Francis Aglen, Inspector General of Customs by the Peking government is received here with amazement.

Sir Francis is said to have refused to carry out the instructions of the Peking government.

* * *

Here Is More Deception.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — If the American consul at Shanghai objected to quartering British troops in the international settlement by old so on his own authority and without express orders from Washington, it was said at the state department today.

While the government continues to stress the pacific aims of its policy, United States warships continue to sail to China and thousands of marines are ready for the voyage to Shanghai.

Coolidge is completely ignoring the tremendous anti-war sentiment in the country, and seems to be insistent on involving the country in a war against China.

...Lady Astor Proves Coolidge Chooses A Simple Silver Johnnie

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—William E. Gladstone, England's great Victorian prime minister, conveyed the soul of Lady Astor, the notorious "Nancy" Langhorne, the actress, at a Friday matinee, London, the Chicago Evening American declared today.

The breaks in partially undecipherable quotations, many of them written by the Jersey Lily herself, were pieced out today by A. L. Langtry, of Chicago, a grand-nephew of the actress and the then leading statesman of the British Empire.

* * *

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The case of Captain Wright who is involved in a libel suit with Viscount Gladstone because of his book charging the deceased statesman Gladstone, the viscount's father, with permitting female prostitutes to distress him from his duties, is drawing to a close. Pictures are being submitted to prove, on the one side that a certain Miss. Novikoff was a "most seductive person," and on the other, that she wasn't much to look at, and therefore would not have been, as Wright said, sent by the Czar to vamp Gladstone. Wright's account had it that Mme. Novikoff succeeded rather easily, and that European history was changed thereby.

COOLIDGE GETS MARINES READY FOR CHINA WAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—President Coolidge, thru the navy department, has issued orders to 1,200 marines to sail from San Diego to Guam with China as the next step.

It appears that despite the Kellogg statement of friendliness to China and the demand of Borah that Americans evacuate China lest some accident to them might involve the country in war, Coolidge has definitely decided to support the British in utter defiance of Congress and mass opinion.

Pres. Coolidge told Americans to stay where they are in China thus publicly flouting the position of Senator Borah, chairman of the once powerful foreign relations committee but now a futile committee of babblers in face of the Kellogg-Coolidge policy of ignoring all advice except that coming directly from Wall Street.

The president made it clear that he would co-operate with the British in the suppression of the Chinese in China. This means nothing else but co-operating with the British in making war on China. The president pointed as his own "spokesman" said that there was nothing antagonistic in his attitude towards China. Nothing except a willingness to slaughter them in the interests of the imperialists.

There is a growing belief here that the hard-bolled Coolidge policy towards China is determined to a considerable extent by the growing elimination of Japan to treat China on terms of equality by the Soviet Union. It is said that Coolidge believes the United States would be striking a blow at the Soviet Union by striking a blow at the Cantonese. It is also hinted that the British ambassador talked to the president of an attack on Russia from the west thru Poland, Lithuania and Roumania while the powers were attacking China in the east.

The president's floating of Senator Borah is expected to bring a few roars from the Idaho senator but Coolidge seems to have gauged the opposition accurately as a collection of wind-bags and proceed serenely on his way in China and Latin-America, taking no more notice of Congress than if the representatives and senators were in crowd of school boys.

Right to Picket At Strike In Rosalsky Attack, I.L.D. Shows

(Continued from page 1)

or less than the right of workers to picket scab shops . . . the right to demand better conditions for themselves and their children.

Are we going to calmly stand aside and see our best fighters being banished from our midst or thrust into the unspeakable horrors of capitalist penitentiaries?

These valiant garment workers are bearing the burden of the whole working class. They are not criminals; rather are they martyrs whose spirit and example must spur us on to fresh activities. We must demand their release.

The International Labor Defense pledges full hearted support and fellowship to the victimized garment workers. We further pledge to rally our organization behind any move that may be made for their deliverance. Capitalist oppression cannot be allowed to steal the best of our fighters with impunity.

Comrades, have courage! Do not despair! Your hour of trial is acting as a beacon light to all disillusioned workers.

We are with you and will agitate and organize for your release.

International Labor Defense
New York Section
799 Broadway, room 402.

...L MAN SCARES BOSSES, THEN SELLS DOPE

Tells Employers Moscow Made Passaic Strike

NEW YORK (FP.)—North Jersey employers listened to typical professional patriotic misinformation from Fred R. Marvin, former editor New York Commercial, at their last meeting. Marvin told the Jersey employers' association that the Passaic strike was planned in every detail "months in advance in Moscow." He asserted that each move was plotted from the moment Justine Wise of the League for Industrial Democracy, went into Passaic mills with several friends to work until strike leader Albert Weisbord turned the situation over to the American Federation of Labor.

So They Attack Mexico.

So impressed with Marvin's marvels were the Jersey employers that they passed resolutions to stand by Coolidge and Kellogg in the Nicaraguan and Mexican muddles which these officials have tried to hide with a red cloud.

Marvin counts among his associates some of the most violently anti-labor forces in the country. On his Key Men of America advisory council are such nationally known figures as Andrew J. Allen, secretary of the Associated Employers of Indianapolis, who is unanimously credited by open shop papers with fathering the American Plan; William H. Barr, president National Founders Association; S. Pemberton Hutchinson, president Westmoreland Coal Co. (big nonunion operators); E. H. Davidson, manager open shop Citizens Alliance of St. Paul; Lewis Atherton, Employers Association of Jackson, Mich.; Joseph Joplin, Better American Federation of Los Angeles; H. A. Jung, commissioner National Clay Products Industries Association.

Polson Gas Advocate.

Military men like Major-General Amos A. Fried, chief of Chemical Warfare Service, who has been fighting for poison gas; Major-General Lucia Ramsay Maxwell, chairman Americanization committee, League of American Penwomen, who was formerly librarian of the Chemical Warfare Service; and Albert G. Bourgard, Robinson, president Massachusetts Public Interest League, which fights child labor legislation, is a member. Mrs. William Cummings Storey of the Woman Builders, which brought the federal mail ban on an issue of the New Masses, is another. Representative Loring Black, notorious for his anti-alien bills denounced by the American Federation of Labor, belongs.

Get Rich Quick Scheme.

Since Marvin lost his Searchlight column by the merging of the Commercial with the Journal of Commerce, he has undertaken to issue a Daily Data Sheet on Radicals and Subversive Movements and Individuals. Price $8 a year, with a subscription to the National Republican —since the organ of the national republican committee. The daily dope is sent in weekly batches to those who bite on Marvin's blurb. Marvin is now an associate editor of the National Republican.

Natl. Security League Speaker Suddenly Goes Back on Former Ideals

Surprising everyone, S. Stanwood Menken of the National Security League, became an advocate of free speech for teachers at the New York teachers' union luncheon. The discussion topic was "What Guarantee of Citizenship Can We Offer the Teacher?" Menken was invited because of his past public support of Lusk anti-sedition laws and restrictions on civil rights. His anticipated debate with Dr. William P. Montagu, Columbia University philosophy professor, failed to develop.

Menken promised to investigate the refusal of New York public school authorities to give three union teachers their earned promotions. He said he would consult with Security League educational advisors and attempt to have an official statement issued on teachers' freedom of thought and expression. As chairman of the league's executive committee he has signed many press statements denouncing radicals and those who express opinions contrary to the conservative organization.

War hysteria was Menken's excuse for his previous stand against teachers' civil rights, he told Abraham Lefkowitz, union secretary and one of the union members denied promotion although he heads the history ellgibility list. Menken told the teachers that they should take the loyalty oath as lawyers do but that it should not debar them from advocating governmental change. He declared that Lenin was not more dangerous than "100 Lenin meetings held simultaneously."

Montagu asserted that freedom of expression was a fundamental necessity of teaching. His view is that teachers should not be compelled to teach any particular code of thought.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

...Coolidge Is Bad Influence On Kellogg, Says Senator

...Coolidge's attitude toward Nicaragua has had a bad influence on Secretary of State Kellogg, Senator Borah declared today in a speech in the senate.

Borah said that Coolidge's statement that he would not call congress in session unless it was necessary to ratify a treaty or declare war, indicated that the president was willing to let the Philippines wait for freedom and other matters pending settlement of conditions in the Philippines for President Coolidge.

Officials No Good.

According to Wood's military cabinet, Col. Thompson said, "it is impossible to overlook the criticism that they are unfit for the task assigned to them and that, in some cases, they have caused needless friction by tactless methods. "The breach between Governor Wood and the Philippine Legislature has reached a point where 'constructive' legislature is impossible, Col. Thompson said:

The old story about the "impracticability" of immediate independence, the need for "preparing the Filipinos for self-government" was again fished up by Col. Thompson.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from page 1)

mandate over the South Slavs, Lithuanians, Italians, Hungarians, Poles and other "foreigners" who dig coal to keep the American industrials machinery moving. Life will now be easier for John's vassals. They will not have to worry about running for office. Their only duty will be to pay their dues so that King John may be sure of his pittance of $12,000 a year and the commuting expenses between Springfield and Indianapolis to do his daily stint.

* * *

LEWIS'S "male stenographer" purchases a copy of The DAILY WORKER every day and peruses it carefully. The DAILY WORKER is the wicked little conspirator, something like a germ, that cannot be isolated. For several years, the Lewis medicine men have been trying to develop somo culture that would lay their enemy low but the germ seems to be growing in virulence while the medicina men are growing flabbier, though wealthier. Our little newsagent, bearding an angry horde of payroll patriots reminds us of the biblical David who slew Goliath, and like Goliath she slings a wicked missile. In this case the word is mightier than the rock.

* * *

It seems that the Filipinos are in deadly fear lest they be robbed of the protection of the United States war department. At least so we are informed in a Washington dispatch by the editor of Universal Service, a Hearst news collecting agency; it should be kept in mind that Hearst is a staunch supporter of Calvin Coolidge and his imperialist policy and one of the true rule of General (Ivory soap) Wood in the Philippines. This editor accuses "special interests" of lobbying in Washington to have control of Philippine affairs transferred from the war department to either the department of the interior or a new department.

* * *

THE United States holds title to 63,000,000 acres of undeveloped public lands in the Philippines. The war department claims that Philippine affairs are safer in its hands than in those of the "politicians" as it the generals and other officers of Wall Street's military machine were not the tools of the most greedy section of the exploiting classes of the United States. The Filipinos will be no better off under the department of the interior than under the war department. It will be a case of jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

* * *

THE treaty of Versailles prohibits the use of flame-throwing on the ground that it is not a "civilized" war weapon. Neither is the bayonet for that matter. But France is starting a school to teach soldiers the art of flame-throwing. And Germany has discovered two deadly poison gases which the other powers are trying to learn the secret of, through their spies. Thus we are preparing for the next carnage.

* * *

THE pope is about to issue an encyclical condemning the manifestation of rampant nationalism in various parts of the world, according to a Paris dispatch. The vatican recently criticized the activities of the French fascist-royalist organization, which is represented in the newspaper world by "L'Action Francaise". This was no doubt the result of a hint from the French government, whereby the vatican was given some concessions in the French colonies, in return for a little bit of scavenger work in France.

* * *

IT is rumoured in Berlin that the kaiser is about to return from exile. The law banishing the ex-war lord expires on July 1st. The return of the kaiser would serve as a rallying point, for the fascists. The Communists are conducting a campaign among the workers to prevent Hohenzollern's return. As usual the socialists are sabotaging. The socialists are responsible for the kaiser's existence. They helped to restore to his family the royal property that was confiscated in the early days of the revolution. But for their treason there would be a Worker Republic in Germany today.

...ator and Labor Give ...of War Clouds Gathering Over World

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

A United States senator, and a Jewish rabbi joined in giving New York audiences last Sunday their views of the war clouds now hovering over the world. They didn't agree.

* * *

U. S. Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, declared:

"I predict that after congress adjourns a breach of relations with Mexico will follow the killing of an American citizen, or some other incident and that incident will be followed by war with Mexico."

* * *

Dr. Stephen S. Wise in the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall, states that:

"The American people had just done something that no nation had ever accomplished—held its government from war. Failure to go to Mexico was due largely to the American press. My gratitude to the American citizen, or some other incident and that incident will be followed by war with Mexico."

* * *

As for Rabbi Wise, it is pitiful to hear a man of his supposed intelligence, make the stupendous claim that war has been averted. This comes at the very moment when Dr. Juan Sacasa, head of the Nicaraguan liberal government, declares that the "military occupation of the United States will soon lead to actual bloodshed in that country. As he spoke new British and American armadas were on their way to Shanghai, blessed by the British socialist and labor official, J. H. Thomas, who said that a large British force in China would be able to handle trouble better than a small force. If Rabbi Wise holds to the same view, that great armies and navies, on the doorsteps of China, Mexico and Nicaragua, will avert war, then he at least lays a basis for his position, altho it be a wrong one. But the statement by Wise would lead to the opinion that a few hostile newspaper editorials, feeble utterances at liberal mass meetings, or cautious speeches in congress, would lead Wall Street aggression against those it desires to subjugate.

Rabbi Wise doesn't like the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, he exploits it except the Communist leadership in the Passaic textile strike, and his voice is now silent as numerous "left wing" workers in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union go to prison, but he does give the harlot press of the capitalists credit for having averted the war, as he claims. Rabbi Wise must have eaten of evil ways. There isn't a capitalist sheet in the land, once the word is given, that will not take the attitude that Senator Johnson, of California, has already taken toward the present war against Nicaragua that, "now we are in it, we must make the best of it." Rabbi Wise should know that from his experience in the last war, when not a single capitalist sheet was prosecuted under the espionage act.

* * *

If Rabbi Wise and Senator Wheeler wish to discover whether the war monger is abroad in the land, let them get a soap box and build their anti-war platform in front of some recruiting station. In New York some of them are open 24 hours every day. Or let them journey over to the Brooklyn Navy Yard and raise their voices against the production of war materials, the recruiting and the training of cannon fodder and its shipment in such great lots to the far-flung war zones. Let Wheeler and Wise attack the liberal, socialist and labor official forces that make war on labor's left wing, the only really anti-war force in the land today. This they will not do since they defend the social order that breeds war. They resist the social change that alone will end wars. Hence the injection of so much that's utterly foolish in their supposedly anti-war attitude, that is no stumbling block in the path of the war-mongers.

Sell 4,000 Tickets In Fifth Cleveland Passaic Film Showing

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1.—The story of the year old struggle of 16,000 textile strikers of Passaic, New Jersey and vicinity will be told in seven pictures. "The Passaic Textile Strike," at the Moose Auditorium, 1,000 Walnut avenue on Friday night, February 4th. This story will be amplified and brought up-to-date by a personal message from one of the strikers—a girl who has stood on the picket line, faced the gas bombs, clubs and aided in leading her fellow workers to victory.

An indication of the intense of organized labor in this great struggle, and the enthusiasm with which the picture is greeted is shown by the fact that more than four thousand tickets have already been sold for this, the fifth presentation of this picture in Cleveland.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Mexican Department Of Industry Blames Trouble on Oil Men

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1. — The Mexican department of industry today issued a statement denouncing the oil interests which are "trying to make an international problem out of a domestic one," and declared, most of the oil companies in Mexico have complied with the new oil laws and it is "only a small but powerful group" that has taken a rebellious stand.

If work is suspended and thousands are thrown out of employment, it will be due to a deliberate attempt on the part of the oil companies to create a critical situation, the government declared.

* * *

Home for Vet Loans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (Ins.)— The House ways and means committee today agreed to support a bill authorizing the federal government to make loans on veterans' adjusted compensation certificates.

SOCIAL PRO... LABOR'S CO... IN NICARAGUA

Reveal Hostility Shown By Sacasa to Labor

By FEDERATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON (FP.)—Too sympathy must not be expected ... American trade unionists ... troubles of the individual ... the liberal government in ... upon which the American ... partisanship has turned thus ... but all support should go to ... cal program to which Sacasa ... his friends have been pledged.

This is the warning voiced by ... oman de la Selva, secretary ... Nicaraguan Federation of Labor ... points out that it was the labor ... ment of his country that pressured ... Salorzano and Sacasa, Liberal ... dates in the election of 1924, ... series of demands for enactment ... of their republic from Wall Street, as well as the program of ... provement of the living conditions of ... Nicaraguan masses. Salorzano ... before he resigned, permitted the ... eated candidate Chamorro to enter ... the citadel commanding the capital, ... Managua, and then to seize command ... of the army.

Like Family Feud.

De la Selva confirms in general ... statement of the family feud element ... in Nicaraguan politics, the key sentences of which read: "The presidency of Nicaragua is virtually semi-hereditary, i. e. if the president is not a Sacasa from Leon, then he is sure to be a Chamorro from Granada. If he appears to be neither, then he will be a dummy put up by one or other of these families. The semblance of independent politics is carefully kept up, the Chamorro house being called conservative and the Sacasa liberal. Either is liable to mean a dictatorship, martial law and general misery for the inhabitants, and a strong dose of American intervention—puntical or capitalist or both."

According to this analysis of the situation, American help has usually gone to the Chamorros because that family have been ready assistants in securing American financial control of the republic. Gen. Emiliano Chamorro has been enabled to enrich himself and his associates while American bankers, backed by naval forces and marines, have "kept the peace."

Workers Show Awakening.

"During the course of the 20th century, says the statement, another force began to make itself felt in Nicaragua. The workers showed signs of readiness to assert themselves. Watchful politicians quickly took advantage of this movement, and at first successfully directed it to their own interest, resulting in the organization of rival liberal and conservative trade unions, whose members they pressed into service for their own ends. The Catholic church followed suit, and denominational unions were added. The representatives of the organized workers of Nicaragua at the Pan-American labor conference held in New York in 1921 presented credentials signed by a bishop. The clergy already controlled education.

"Influence in the direction of an independent labor movement came from Mexico, and it became possible in 1924 to form a Nicaraguan Federation of Labor, free of any connection with either of the parties."

Sacasa Betrays Workers.

De la Selva continues the further statement that Salorzano and Sacasa after they came to power with the help of the Federation of Labor in 1924, failed to keep faith.

"The national government's first act was to beseech the American government not to withdraw the marines", he declared. "Its second act was to threaten the Federation of Labor, accusing it of being Bolshevik and a menace to society. Its third was to accept a bill drafted by the American diplomatic representative, making the army, the rural police, the urban police and the judiciary police a single body called the National Guard, and officered by Americans appointed by Washington. This experience of attempting to bargain with party candidates has been taken to heart by the Nicaraguan Federation of Labor."

Nevertheless the labor movement in with Sacasa to the extent of protesting against American intervention and exploitation.

Correction

In the statement published yesterday of the financial backers of the United Council of Working Class Housewives, a mistake was made. The statement says only "few thousands of dollars in the bank" whereas it should read, "a few hundreds."

Fail in Penitentiary Break.

LANSING, Kan., Feb. 1.—One convict was killed and four others wounded when a guard frustrated a penitentiary break here. Five of a group of 100 prisoners attempted to escape at the shale pit outside the prison walls. Two of the wounded are in the prison hospital. Neither of the guard's nor prisoners' names were learned.

Armed Conflict Certain, Covers Customs Says Vaca

Nicaraguan Representative Says Conflict Is Certain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The danger of armed conflict between American marines and the Nicaraguan liberals, "grave and certain," Dr. T. C. Vaca, representative here of the Nicaraguan government, warned in a statement today.

The statement added:

"The constitutional (liberal) government of Nicaragua, grieved at the injustice of so unequal a struggle, desires once again to protest before the nations of this hemisphere and the world at large, against a situation not of its own seeking but forced upon it by relentless military power of an invader bent stubbornly upon imposing by forces of arms its selfish dictates upon the people of a small country that it persists in calling a sovereign sister nation."

Recent victories, Vaca said, have carried the liberals within 30 miles of Managua, capital of the Diaz government, where is stationed a strong U. S. U. S. marine guard.

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Feb. 1.—Dr. Juan Sacasa continues to hold office here, the real capital of the country, despite the fact that at Managua, behind the guns of American marines, is the president recognized by the United States government, Adolfo Diaz.

Sacasa has issued a statement that everything possible to avoid friction and the needless slaughter of Nicaraguans, but that he expects, nevertheless, "in due course the marines will have to open fire against the liberals and kill hundreds of Nicaraguan citizens to support Diaz, as in 1912.

Diaz A Puppet.

"Briefly, as to the situation with purposes of promoting peace. It is obvious that Diaz has nothing to offer. He has not a legal right to the Presidency. The only argument he can advance is the moral and material support of the American government. On the contrary, I am legally entitled to the Presidency, backed morally and materially by an overwhelming majority of Nicaraguans. The marines are only delaying our decisive triumph. I am, moreover, supported by the public opinion of the entire world and a majority of citizens of the United States who are lovers of justice and liberty.

"The preceding statements explain the impossibility of a peace based on Diaz in the Presidency. I defend the rights of the Nicaraguan people without the slightest animosity toward the American government, reiterating with great pleasure my similar previous statements that I have never obstructed the policy of the United States."

Mayor's Meeting Fails to Settle Box Makers Strike

(Continued from page 1)

couraging enlistments. The recruiting officers were present, and circulated among the crowd as soon as the marines were returned by the acting mayor to the command of their own officers.

The absolute contempt which the employers show for the invitation of the mayor is no surprise to the strikers. Eight times either the strikers, or some third party has asked for a conference, and each time the employers refuse, or ignore it.

Strike Goes On.

Ever since the beginning of the strike the bosses have enjoyed the protection of the police. Policemen have been seen every day sitting alongside of scabs, driving boats or scab-made paper boxes through the streets. Policemen, in default of scabs, have even been seen to load and unload scab-made goods. Union pickets are beaten mercilessly, union men and women are kept out of work.

But even so, the strike has now lasted already 16 weeks. According to testimony submitted by the manager of the union, Fred Caiola, the average strike support that the union has been able to pay is 60 cents per week.

Still, after 18 weeks of strike, the ranks are solid and desertion are very few. Over 2,000 men and women are determined to see the matter through.

FURNISHED ROOMS

A decent bachelor with fair education may share—Services to his elder apartment. All improvements, including phone. Sufficiently furnished. On a fifty-fifty basis. Phone weekdays after 6:30 p. m. Cumberland 5288.

Bronx Comrades, Attention

All who have registered and those who desire to register for the class in "Fundamentals of Communism" will call on Wednesday (Feb. 2nd), 2 P. M., at 243 Brook Ave. Comrade L. Gumber will be the instructor.

Trotsky to Discuss Unification On Thursday Night

Trotsky, leader of the Central Trades and Labor Council to be held at Manhattan Hall will discuss a bill to be introduced in Albany to establish a system of arbitration in labor disputes. Speakers will include John Sullivan, President of the New York State Federation of Labor; John O'Brien, Secretary of the State Federation and Assemblyman Frederick Hackenberg.

It is believed that action will also be taken on the move of Morris Sigman, President of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Unite, to oust his dummies in place of the bona fide representatives of Locals 9, 22 and 35, that was postponed from the last meeting.

PREPARATIONS GO ON FOR GARMENT WORKERS' VOTING

Locals Don't Recognize Sigman's Appointees

Preparations are continuing to hold the regular, tho delayed, election for officers and executive board members of Locals 2, 9 and 38, International Ladies' Garment Workers Unite, in New York. It was for the purpose of discussing this situation, and explaining the necessity of the elections that the great mass meetings were held Monday night in Cooper Union and Manhattan Lyceum.

Move Towards Democracy.

Elections in these locals, the rights which the International attempted to "reorganize," have been due since December, but in spite of the repeated protests of the members demanding the holding of the elections, the International has refused to allow them to be held.

Appointment of "temporary officers" from among elements long since discredited in the union, threw the locals into a chaotic condition, and the "fake" officers insisted in making claims as the representatives of the workers.

Members Nominate Officers.

Throwing the whole force of their great membership behind the men whom they had elected as their officers, the locals held nominating meetings,—the shop chairmen elected the Impartial Council of Shop Chairmen to arrange elections,—and when Sigman refused to allow them to be held, authorized the Council to hold them.

Repulse Guerillas.

Sixty pickets before the Rosenberg and Erskine shop at 349 West 35th street, were attacked by a gang of guerillas early Monday morning, but succeeded in maintaining their lines unbroken and repulsed the attack. There were no arrests.

Morris Novick, a cloakmaker of local 2, was acquitted of a charge of assault in Special Sessions, Part VI, on Monday and was discharged. He was charged with beating up a scab in the shop of Simon, Goodman and Lipshitz during the cloakmakers' strike, and the case was pushed by the firm.

Morris Novick, local 2, who was charged during the cloakmakers' strike with assault in the second degree, in connection with picket line activities, was found not guilty and was discharged Monday morning in special session court, part VI.

$40,000 Now Subscribed To Bond Issue of the New York Joint Board

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Over $40,000 has been subscribed to the Joint Board bond issue by workers and organizations outside New York, Abe Petrie, secretary of the "Save the Union" bond issue committee announced today. Of this amount $20,000 has been subscribed by locals, including $5,000 by Local 35, with Leo Arnowitz as chairman, and $3,000 by Local 22.

There are a hundred Workmen's Circles in New York that have contributed from their treasuries and are canvassing their memberships for the sale of the bonds, and a hundred other organizations engaged in raising money by selling the bonds," Mr. Petrov said in announcing the large sales out of town. "The sales are not limited to garment workers by any means. Painters, shoe workers, bakers, carpenters, laundry workers, leather goods workers—in fact every trade, are investing in the bond issue as well as many workers' clubs."

The total contributions from other cities than New York are listed up to date as follows: Chicago, $6,500; Los Angeles, $8,000; Philadelphia, $1,650; Detroit, $2,200; Boston, $2,500; St. Louis, $2,600; Minneapolis, $1,100; Washington, $1,300; Hartford, $500; Baltimore, $1,500; Cleveland, $1,200; Paterson, N. J., $1,700; Scranton, $500; Atlantic City, $550; Albany, $400; Buffalo, $500; San Francisco, $400; Kansas City, $400; Savannah, $100; San Diego, $450; San Antonio, $400; Milwaukee, $300; Pittsburg, $700; Youngstown, $300; Omaha, $175; Toledo, $175; Havana, $25; Scranton, $350; Sioux City, $750; Cincinnati, $100; Duluth, $250; Trenton, $700.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

CONFERENCE WITH ALL COMPLAINTS

Impartial Chairman's Decision Not Defeated

The decision of Impartial chairman Raymond V. Ingersoll that for the purposes of the impartial machinery the Industrial Council must transact business with the International will not affect the taking up of complaints by the Joint Board, of Cloak and Dressmakers union I. L. G. W. which is the regular agency for the handling of complaints.

Myman Explains.

In commenting upon the decision, Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board, points out that "the decision will not prevent the Joint Board from functioning as usual. We will proceed to take up complaints of workers and use all means to adjust them, the majority of the workers are with us, and they are the ones to decide whom they wish to represent them in complaints, as well as in other matters".

Mr. Hyman said further that "The impartial chairman has been careful to point out that he did not base his decision on the merits of the dispute, but merely acted for convenience in the operation of the impartial machinery."

Dodges Issues.

The impartial chairman, in making his decision, emphasizing the decision bases his action upon the character of the impartial machinery, which avoids with all factors in the industry. He declares that two of the factors, the workers and the American association, have made agreements with the international and that since this is so, arbitration would result in carrying on the business of the impartial machinery should the third factor, the international council, take up complaints with any other body.

Long arguments as to the "unity" of the trade and the difficulties involved in the functional dispute consumes with the statement that "unity is necessary for the protection of the workers rights, but fails to make any mention of the causes of the present disunity.

Ignores Question.

The whole question of the right of the International to summarily expel by resolution its entire Joint Board and the officers of locals without proper filing of charges, notice, or trial,—the entire unconstitutional procedure is entirely ignored. "It is not the function, habit, or desire of the chairman to interfere in the internal affairs and controversies of any organization," the statement says.

Ford Tax Suit Calls Out Lyric Qualities in Ford Sales Manager

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The remarkable efficiency with which Henry Ford has transmuted the sweat of workers into gold was described by Orvell A. Hawkins, former commercial manager of the Ford Motor Co., the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals.

"The romance of selling Ford cars", is the official text of Mr. Norvell's opinion, which described Ford's methods of production and distribution. "No one has yet to discover romance in nuts and bolts, assembling Ford parts into which have boosted a ten dollar investment in 1903 to an investment worth twenty-six millions in 1919.

30 Evicted by Fire; Blaze in Brooklyn Does $25,000 Damage

Three hundred persons were driven from their homes yesterday by a fire in the two-story brick building at Hart street, Brooklyn.

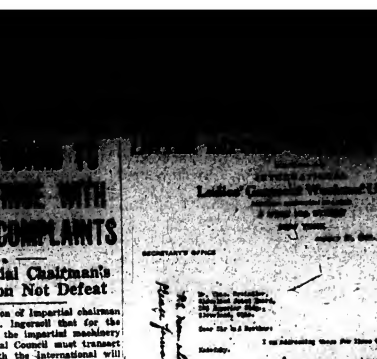
It is estimated that the damage amounted to $25,000. The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

Rein the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

FOR YOUR HEALTH.

Strictly Pure FLORIDA

Honey



Guaranteed by the Bee-Farmer.

Delivered in New York City at following prices:

1 lbs. 75c. 3 Lbs. $1.00
5 Lbs. $1.50

Goes to Daily Worker. Order by Mail.

J. A. FEURER
35 Park Ave. N. Y. C.
Agents Wanted.

A photographic reproduction of a letter appears on this page. It was sent by Abraham Bercoff, general secretary of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union to officials of the union in Cleveland, urging them to get busy and raise money by fair means or foul, with which to "exterminate the Communists from our midst." It complains that the person to whom it is addressed has not carried out the decisions against the left wing arrived at, not only at the General Executive Board meeting, but at various secret, unofficial meetings also held among right wingers, before the International "took over the affairs of the Joint Board."

Since one of Sigman's complaints is that the left wing holds "secret meetings," these signed revelations are very important.

The letter also proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that the right wing International officials are vastly more interested in raking in money for the war against the left wing than la winning strikes for the workers.

DEMAND GROWING FOR CONVENTION OF FUR WORKERS

Locals Recall Winnik, Sorkin, Dissen

The demand for a May convention of the International Fur Workers' union, and the recalling of three vice presidents which occurred at Monday night's local meetings, were the absorbing topics of conversation among fur workers every place yesterday.

The demand for the convention had been made last week by the Joint Board but the membership of Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15, meeting at Stuyvesant Casino, Manhattan Lyceum, Arlington Hall and Webster Hall Monday night added its approval by voting unanimously for the immediate issuing of the call for this convention "in view of the chaotic conditions which at present exist in the International because of the ruinous policies of the administration officials."

Vice-presidents Recalled.

Then after condemning the action of the International in expelling A. Gross from the vice-presidency, the members of the locals proceeded to recall each of the vice-presidents representing them and in their places elected new members who are known to have the workers' interests at heart.

What an ironic circumstance that, while Vice-president I. Winnik was being hooted down in Newark, his own Local No. 1, was voting to replace him by S. Liebowitz; and while Sorkin was being rolled a rat by Local 25, Local 10 disowned him and elected I. Cohen in his place. Local 5, after condemning Gross' expulsion elected I. Schiller as its fourth vice-president in his place; and Local 15, voted to recall I. Dissen and elect Mrs. Fanny Warshovsky in his place.

All the local meetings passed resolutions denouncing the International's conciliation policies; another condemning injunctions, and particularly the use of the injunction by the International officials against Local 25; and a resolution condemning Judge Rosalsky and his brutal sentences in the cloak strikers.

The fur workers pledged their whole-hearted support to the cloakmakers in their efforts to free the workers from prison and in their fight against the traitorous leaders of the I. L. G. W. U.

200,000 In Protest Strike in Austria, After Fascist Attack

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VIENNA, Feb. 1.—A strike of over 200,000 workers was called here today as a protest against the murder of two republican guards by members of the local fascisti. They paraded through the streets to the Karlsbaus, where a demonstration was held.

In Wiener Neustadt, a working class community, 10,000 workers organized and armed themselves, preparing to march into Burgenland to avenge their fallen comrades, but were held back by socialist leaders.

Fur Workers Relief Committee Helps Box and Passaic Strike

At the time when the New York fur workers were in their bitter fight against the bosses, our fellow workers across the river in New Jersey stood fighting for a union against long hours and a wage cut. The furriers, having trouble in their own fight against the bosses, also helped the Passaic textile strikers finanelally. After their victorious strike the furriers realised that only through combined efforts of the working class could the Passaic strike be won. The shop chairmen on August 14th, 1926, held a special meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to collecting money and also helping out a great deal on the Coney Island concert and the Passaic bazaar, and also by a tax of $1.00 that was assessed upon the fur workers.

Seeing that the paper box makers are also having a bitter fight against their stubborn bosses and that relief is needed; the Furriers Relief Committee as a class conscious body has decided to help them. The Furriers Relief Committee has sent out a few thousand tickets for the concert and ball to be held on February 11th, 1927, and has also sent out over a thousand contribution lists. So far a small number of workers have settled for same. By doing this the furriers show that they realize that any strike where the workers are fighting for their just demands is looked upon as if it were their own fight.

The General Relief Committee of the Passaic textile strikers in conjunction with the Furriers' Relief Committee is giving out 10 cent stamps for the purpose of aiding the Passaic strikers and their children. We must help the Passaic strikers; they have already won in four mills and they must win in the others as well. Never will the workers allow them to go back to work without a union after such a brilliant struggle and fight for over a year.

We must help them by giving them relief by buying 10 cent stamps and trying to sell as many as possible. "Do Your Duty."

Stamps can be obtained at the offices of the Furriers' Relief Committee, 22 East 22nd Street, or at the General Relief Committee of the Passaic Strikers at 799 Broadway, Room 225.

All receipts for the tickets for the Paper Box Makers Ball and the 10 cent stamps shall be sent in immediately to the Furriers' Relief Committee at their office at 22 East 22nd Street.

"Long live the solidarity of the workers."

Furriers' Relief Committee of Striking Workers, J. WEISSBERG, secretary.

Tell your friends to buy The DAILY WORKER at the newsstands.

Notice.

Every Daily Worker agent is requested to report immediately to Room 32, 108 East 14 St.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Address all mail for the DAILY WORKER to 33 First Street, New York.

Winnik to speak again, and the corruption of his speech by Sigmanites, a union member, who got up to the platform and said in a persuasive manner, "I have just been released from jail after serving months as the result of an injunction taken by a New Brunswick boss. I don't want to hear our smoking any more. And Winnik sat down.

The final scene was the exit. Schachtman and company in midst of jeers, cat-calls, shouts of derision and cries of 'Down with Sigman! Down with traitors'; 'Down with Sorkin'; and many less polite epithets.

Big And Good.

It was one of the largest membership meetings Local 25 ever had and by far the most exciting. The members will not forget it.

Neither will the International group. They must have felt the throne tottering, and foreseen the days of easy and luxury drawing to an end.

Hearing on the injunction of the International Fur Workers union against officers of Local 25, which was set for hearing this morning was postponed for ten days.

T. U. E. L. Calls Meet Of Furriers Section Friday, February 4

The present situation in the furriers' union is to be discussed at a special meeting of the Furriers' Section T. U. E. L. which will be held on Friday, February 4, 1927, in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th Street.

This meeting will also consider plans for the concert and ball of the Furriers' T. U. E. L. which is to be held on Friday, February 18, in Manhattan Lyceum. Comrades are requested to settle in advance for tickets for this affair.

$100 — 6% — $300

DAILY DIVIDENDS
Secured by a
SECOND MORTGAGE OF THIS

SQUARE BLOCK
of the
First Workers Cooperative Colony
Bronx Park East and Allerton Ave.

Consumers Finance Corporation
SUBSIDIARY OF THE UNITED WORKERS COOPERATIVE

$500 — 59 Fifth Avenue, Cor. 14th St. Telephone Stuyvesant 6900 — GOLD BONDS

"BREAKING CHAINS"
A Thrilling Film — Russia from 1917 to 1923
LOVE — HATE — REVOLUTION
2 P. M.; 4.15 P. M. — 4 Showings — 7 P. M.; 9 P. M.
SUN. FEB. 6, 1927
WALDORF THEATRE, 50th St., East of Broadway
Advance Sale of Tickets at the Box Office Waldorf Theatre, Jimmie Higgins Book Store, Daily Worker Office—Asso. Int. Workers Aid
Tickets in Advance 75c — At the Door 99c

SAVE THIS VALUABLE PRIZE COUPON
A Copy of Red Cartoons of 1927, Worth $1.00 for 50 Cents With 50 of These Coupons
CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT.
RED CARTOONS OF 1927 is even a finer collection of the most recent cartoons of the well-known inbor artists—Robert Minor, Fred Ellis, K. A. Suvanto, Art Young, Hay Bales, Jerger, Vose and others. Each picture is large enough to be framed and mounted. The book includes in all 64 of the finest cartoons of the past year. This wonderful volume is not for sale. It is offered only to those who help us to build the Daily Worker.
DAILY WORKER
33 First Street — New York, N. Y.

Workers' [Communist] Party

...ssboard Tells Crowd At Los Angeles Lenin Meeting of Nicaragua

By HARRY KOMER.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 31.—The Lenin Memorial meeting held in Los Angeles proved to be a huge success, when two halls were packed to capacity. More than eight hundred people attended the meeting. The speakers and numbers were given in both halls. Much enthusiasm was shown when Weisbord made his appearance, the audience giving him a large ovation.

The leader of the Passaic strike proved to be as popular here as in Passaic! He spoke on Leninism, illustrating the teaching of Lenin by citing the imperialistic tendency of American capital in Nicaragua and China.

Schneiderman spoke on the lives of Carl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg. Five pioneers graduated into the Young Workers' (Communist) League and were presented with membership cards by Comrade Weisbord.

Mexican Workers Flock To Gary Lenin Meet Against Imperialism

The Lenin memorial meeting held in Gary, Indiana, was very successful. Over 400 workers filled the hall.

The meeting was not merely to eulogize the memory of Lenin, the great leader, but was a call for unity, for organization of workers of all races to fight against the dangers of a new war, against American imperialism in Mexico, Nicaragua and China, to fight for equal rights of colored workers in this country, as well as the oppressed peoples of colonial possessions.

A great number of Negro and Mexican workers participated in this commemoration. They all expressed satisfaction with the meeting and asked when the next one would be held.

Comrade Max Bedacht addressed the workers, as the representative of the Workers Party. J. Ford spoke on behalf of the Negro movement, and Nat Kaplan spoke for the Young Workers' League.

The musical program by Minnie Jaff, the Pioneer violinist, and Lydia Boydell, pianist, was enthusiastically received by those present.

Rebecca Grecht Shows Lenin Solves Problems

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

MUSKEGON, Mich. (By mail)—The Workers (Communist) Party celebrated its first Lenin memorial meeting here on Jan. 21. Over 100 persons attended, and a great deal of pep was shown by all present.

The speaker was Rebecca Grecht of New York, who treated the subject matter of immediate political problems without fear or favor and made an unbreakable roanection of Lenin's leadership to world working-class problems. She finished with a strong appeal to organize the unorganized.

17 Injured in Wreck.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 1.—A trainman was killed and seventeen passengers were injured when the "Ocean Limited" was in collision with the "Maritime Express" on the Canadian National Lines at Oxford Junction, 150 miles north of Halifax.

READ

Imperialism—The Last Stage of Capitalism

By N. Lenin

Price, 60c in paper, $1.00 Cloth-bound.

An indispensable book for the understanding of the most recent events in Latin-America, China, and the colonial countries now in the throes of revolt against international imperialism. This excellent work treats the following topics: Concentration of Production and Monopoly; The Banks and Their New Role; Finance Capital and Financial Oligarchy; The Export of Capital; The Division of the World Among Capitalist Unions; The Division of the World Among the Great Powers; Imperialism as a Special Stage of Capitalism; Parasitism and the Decay of Capitalism; The Critique of Imperialism; The Place of Imperialism in History.

152 pages published by the Communist Party of Great Britain.

For Your Lenin Library:

LENIN AS A MARXIST

By N. Bukharin

The Present Chairman of the Communist International.

This splendid analysis of Lenin and his Place in the field of Marxism is written by N. Bukharin, who is considered one of the leading living Marxists of the present day. The book is not a mere personal tribute to Lenin, it is rather an attempt to analyze Lenin's contribution to the principles of Marxism. The book treats the following phases of the subject. The Marxism of Lenin; Lenin's Theory and Practice; Problems of Imperialism; Lenin and the Peasantry; The Theoretical Problems Awaiting Us.

On sale now at 40 cents a copy, attractively bound in paper.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street New York, N. Y.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT OF NEW YORK WORKERS SCHOOL EXPANDING; TEACHING CLASSES FOR SPRING TERM, ALSO TEACH PUBLIC SPEAKING

The New York Workers' School is offering 12 classes in English for the coming spring term beginning in February. The English department of the Workers' School has expanded so rapidly that courses are now being given in literature, interpretation and writing English with power and higher emotion, for each grade. Such well known teachers as Eli B. Jacobson, Alfi Korinow, Hannah Scherer, Mary Hartlieb, Paulina Rogers, Sonia Bauer, Sophie Mandl, Mary Adams, Barbara Bell, Dorothy Zeisler, Florence Lebin and Masha Gold will have charge of the different classes.

These classes involve reading, spelling, dictation, composition, grammar, conversation and oral expression. Much opportunity is given the students for questions and self-expression. Special lessons have been prepared and elaborated to meet the special needs of the students attending the Workers' School. These lesson plans will soon be organized into a unified whole and put out as a text book in English for workers and foreigners.

Public classes have been arranged on different nights at different hours so as to accommodate all workers, all classes, except one, having two sessions a week. In addition, there is a special English class during the daytime for those who work at night.

For those who wish to get special training in public speaking, a course in that subject is offered on Thursday nights from 8 to 9:15. beginning on February 24. Carl Brodsky, who has given this course for many years at the Workers' School, will have charge of the course. Those who are called on to speak for their unions or other working class organizations, or who wish to take part in discussions on the union floor, at working class forums, etc., should register for this course.

For further information in regard to courses, write to Bertram D. Wolfe, director of the Workers' School, 108 East 14 St., New York City.

SECTION MEMBERSHIP MEETINGS TO DISCUSS THE RUSSIAN PARTY OPPOSITION

Sec. 3.—Thurs., Feb. 3, at 6 P. M.—106 W. 28th St.—Speaker, Wolfe.
Sec. 4.—Fri., Feb. 4, at 8 P. M.—81 E. 110th St.—Speaker, Weinstone.
Sec. 6.—(Brooklyn)—2 meetings—
(a) W'mab'g—Tues., Feb. 1, at 6 P. M.—29 Graham Ave.—Weinstone.
(b) B'ville—Wed., Feb. 2, at 8 P. M.—143 Liberty St.—Markoff.
Sec. 7.—Wed., Feb. 2, at 8 P. M.—1940 Benson Ave.—Speaker, John Ballam.

Admission by membership card only.

Comrades, who for some reason are disconnected from the Party should come to these meetings. There will be someone who will see that they are properly assigned to a Party nucleus.

NEW JERSEY LENIN MEMORIAL MEETINGS.

Friday, Feb. 4.—8 P. M.—Paterson—8 P. M.—Carpenters' Hall.
Speakers, H. M. WICKS and BERT WOLFE.
Also
Yonkers—Sunday, Feb. 6th—8 P. M.—20 Warbarton Avenue.

How Communists Work Among Foreign Born

By JACK STACHEL.

THERE were those who believed that the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei and international branches would put an end to all work among the foreign born. In fact, many of those who were opposed to the reorganization of the party were opposed on this ground.

Vain Years.

Now when the party is fairly well reorganized, that is, now that the old language branches are abolished and the factory organization and the international branches has been formed and begins to function, we can see that all those fears were not founded on facts. On the contrary, the reorganization of the party and the organization of fractions in the different non-party workers' organizations that came with the reorganization of the party apparatus, the work among the foreign-born workers has increased tremendously and has, furthermore, assumed a more systematic and proletarian character.

Fractions Do Better.

Where before the work was done in sporadic fashion, we have today well-functioning fractions carrying on systematic activities. Furthermore our comrades are at the present time working in many organizations that they have heretofore entirely neglected and some of whom were even unknown to them.

Immense Field for Work.

That the field of work among the foreign-born workers is immense can be seen from the following figures giving the percentage of foreign-born in the American industries:

Iron and steel	58%
Meat packing	61½
Bituminous coal	62½
Textile	62%
Clothing	69%
Leather	67%
Furniture	59%
Petroleum	67%

Of course this does not mean that all of these workers must be reached in the foreign language. It is true that many or than speak English and are fairly well "Americanized." But the great bulk of them must still be reached thru the propaganda in their own language, and since there is lacking trade union organization in most of these industries they are to be found in the different fraternal organizations.

These fraternal bodies are organized locally and nationally and include millions of workers. Most of these national organizations consist of every wing of the population from the nationalists down to the Communists, and it is very important for the Communists to carry on work in them, and to be able to reach the great mass.s of the foreign-born with the Communist press in their language.

Classical Leaders.

In many of the language groups the church also has a strong influence among the working masses, the best example being the Polish. Here also we need the language Communist press to counteract the poisonous propaganda of the church.

Furthermore the labor bureaucracy in many of the unions maintain a press of its own in particular languages, thereby dominating the masses speaking their language and bargaining with them as a bloc, selling to the different factions of the bureaucracy from time to time. Here again it is very important that the Communists be able to speak to the masses in their own language.

Press Is Strategic Road.

To conclude, while it is true that due to the restriction of immigration, many workers can read and write English, the field of work in the foreign language is still very great and will remain so for a long time to come.

We must, therefore, have our fractions to run the language organizations of the workers, maintain our press, so that we can carry on our work among the foreign-born masses and counteract the propaganda of the nationalists, the church, the bosses and the bureaucrats. Our fractions in the different organizations must build around themselves all the progressive elements, and they must see to it that the fraternal organization becomes the source of support for the Communist language press.

"American" Foreign Language Work.

Our party fractions, national and local, as well as the fractions in all non-party organizations, must pay more attention to America. They must do what one of the comrades advised the Italian fraction, "to re-discover America."

Our fractions are following the bourgeois organizations too much, keeping the minds of the workers occupied with problems of the home country only. Of course when a problem of the country as an issue, we must utilize the issue, but always we must bring out the concrete problems of the foreign-born in America. We must do more basic work, more work in the factories, in the unions, to reach the foreign-born.

Get In the Fight.

We must participate in all the struggles of the American working class. Our language press must carry news and articles on all the American problems of the workers. We must have more workers' correspondence in our language press.

The Fight Is Here.

In the fraternal organizations we must raise the issues of the American workers, thus creating the dividing line between the bourgeois and the proletarian elements. We must at the same time follow the policy of the United Front in these organizations on concrete issues. We must attempt to win the petty bourgeois elements to our side and we can certainly win many of them and neutralize another considerable section.

Protect Foreign-Born.

Our fractions must bring the party campaigns into the fraternal organizations. The keen of the proletarian section of the foreign-born is, of course, at the present time the principal campaign that must be brought before the foreign-born organization, but other issues like the organization of the unorganized, against the injunction, for a labor party must be brought into these organizations, but always in connection with the concrete needs facing the workers in these organizations.

Work Among Youth.

The language fractions must not only themselves, but also thru the organizations in which they work educate the foreigners to the necessity of tying and unifying the struggle of the entire working class. To this end our foreign press must participate in THE DAILY WORKER campaign with the same zeal and intensity as they do in the campaign to raise funds for the language press. Our comrades in the shops must regularly sell The DAILY WORKER. They must collect subs for The DAILY WORKER.

Must Speak English.

In most cases there are only a few in their shop who speak the same language that they do, while the great bulk speak either English or many other languages. But all of the workers understand a little English and where we cannot reach them with their particular paper, we can appeal to them in the English language.

Our language fractions and language papers must pay more attention to the work among the young workers and children, all of whom speak English. To this end every party organ in the foreign languages must have at least once a week an English section. I would suggest for the daily papers at least once a week a column for the young worker, and at least once a week a column for the children in the English language. Our language fractions must aid in the building up of the Young Workers' League and the Young Pioneers.

Towards Better Organization.

Our main task at the present time in the foreign language work are the following:

1. Bring back to the party those who did not register or those who are not attending meetings regularly, or who are otherwise inactive. This will strengthen our fractions in the outside organizations and provide the necessary apparatus to carry on the work while it is at the same time strengthening the general party apparatus.

2. Organize fractions in all outside organizations where we have two or more members.

3. Build the left wing in all these organizations—United Front.

4. More basic work and on concrete issues facing the American workers.

5. More attention to the problems of the workers as a whole.

6. More attention to the young workers and the children.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Members of Workers Party in Cleveland Meet Next Saturday

CLEVELAND, Feb. 1. — The Workers Party at Cleveland, has arranged a very important membership meeting for Saturday evening Feb. 6th, at Gardina Hall, 6025 St. Clair avenue. At this meeting the following matters will be taken up: (1) Organization questions. (2) The party politics. (3) The general situation.

It is very important that all members of the party in Cleveland be present at this meeting, as it is the first one held for some time, and a very important one. New problems must be faced, new situations dealt with, and it is necessary that the party members should understand the party policy. Let's have a 100 per cent attendance.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

DETROIT, Mich.—Everything is ready for the Pioneer entertainment and dance to be held Saturday, Feb. 5th, 7:30 p. m. at Finnish Hall, 4164 Vernois and Trumbull, Detroit, Mich.

The Pioneers are all set to put on the play "School Days," which will show some real activity against the propaganda fed to them in the capitalist schools. They will also be seen in the "Children's Auction" a poem dramatized by the Pioneers and portraying the life in store for them under capitalism.

Folk Dances.

Besides the play there will be Russian folk dance by two Pioneers, who have this art down to a profession, and also some instrumental music numbers.

After the conclusion of the program the Pioneers have arranged for an orchestra for the dance. Plenty of eats and drinks will be there to keep the crowd merry. The entertainment is held for the benefit of the Lenin Camp Association.

Lay Down Program of Activity in Shops

A preliminary conference of working women's councils was held Sunday, Jan. 25, 1925, at Ukrainian Labor Lyceum, 15 East 3rd St., New York City, for the purpose of consolidating the existing working women's organizations into a Federation of Working Class Women's organizations in America. 18 delegates were present representing 15 women's organizations from different states.

General Program.

A resolution was passed to create a national women's centre to consolidate the working women's organizations who are sympathetic to the workers struggle and to draw the work along the following lines:

That the existing organizations don't neglect their present form of organization but in addition they shall endeavor to draw the working class women in support of the following general program:

To Shops And Factories.

To carry on work in the shops and factories among the women and agitate that women workers shall join the unions, to carry on educational work among those women on the class struggle, to have the members of the organization join the trade unions if they are employed or to join the auxiliaries of the trade unions and the women's Trade Union League wherever they are eligible, to create committees to help in organizing the unorganized women, to set up general study classes to educate the working class women on the lines of the class struggle, to mobilize the working class women for the support of strikes and class war prisoners, to draw the working class women's organizations and the working class women in general into the political struggle for the workers' interest, to wage campaigns for better conditions on issues of particular interest to women, such as housing, sanitation, better schools and against war, for laws limiting hours of work for women, for laws for maternity protection for working women, etc.

The conference named itself the Federation of Workingclass Women's Organizations. A preliminary national committee with one representative from each organization present was elected.

Leningrad Workers Learning English Ask to Read 'Dail'

LENINGRAD, Russia, Jan. —
To the Editor of The DAILY WORKER:
Greetings:

We, the workers of "The Government River Transportation" have organized a special evening school in order to read, write and express ourselves in the English tongue. At the present time, we can read, write and speak, and therefore the interest of knowing the latest news and events in America is growing daily.

Among the students of our class is also one of the exiles who was deported to Russia in 1921 as the second "Soviet Ark." He tells us very interesting stories about the workers' movement in America but this is not enough, we want to read the newspaper!

We beg you to send us a copy of your paper, The DAILY WORKER, regularly, free of charge.

From our part, we can promise to send some correspondence for The DAILY WORKER, informing our readers the latest news of the U. S. S. R.

Fraternally yours,
Secretary Pueov.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

DRAMA

Theatre Guild Presents With "Ruy Blas"

The new Mayfair Theatre at Sixth Ave. and 44th St., which opened on Monday night, is a very beautiful structure, intimate in a sense in the ideal planning and construction; it seems to house the highest forms of drama, musical comedies and revues. Every detail has been considered to make the playhouse a wholly harmonious background for the productions contemplated.

The Ziegfeld Theatre was designed by Joseph Urban, who has become famous in this country for his stage settings and productions for the Metropolitan Opera.

Considered from the outside, the playhouse clearly expresses the purpose of the building. The auditorium is indicated by the bow on the street side and the stage is represented by ornamentation of false proscenium, two large masques, the conventional dramatic symbols, are used at the foot of the proscenium opening.

Within the four walls the theatre offers many radical departures. The auditorium proper has been constructed in the form of a true ellipse. This procedure does away with all angles, adds to the acoustics and lends itself to a simplification in the matter of decorations. The mural was designed by Joseph Urban and executed by Lillian Gaetnar and the Urban Studios. The motif of the mural is the joy of life. It treats in a symbolic way the lovers of all ages and the festive occasions of living. The treatment is after the tapestries of the Moyen age, except that brilliant colors are used. The theatre seats 1632.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

Donald Duff and Dorothy Stapley are the authors of "Stigma," which will open soon at the Cherry Lane Theatre.

"Off Key," a play by Arthur Caesar, will be presented by Robert V. Newman at the Belmont on Tuesday, Feb. 8. In the cast are Florence Eldridge, McKay Morris, Lucilla Watson, Katherine Revner, Kenneth Hunter and Albert Hackett. "Americana," is now in its final week.

"Puppets and Passions," adapted from the Italian of Rosso di San Secondo by Ernest Boyd and Eduardo Clannelli, which is to be the opening attraction at the new Theatre Masque, will include the following players: Frank Morgan, Manart Kippen, Christine Norman, Rose Hobart, Frieda Inescort, Eduardo Clannelli and Craig Ward.

"LaCasa Dell' Ombra" ("The House of the Shadow"), by Gennaro Mario Cuttica, translated by Guidi-Curci, has been selected as the best play by an Italian author in a contest sponsored by the Societa Nationale Dante Aligheri. The play will be given at Hampdon's Theatre on Sunday, March 6.

"1928" is the title of a new revue which will open at the Intimate Playhouse, the Bronx, Sunday evening, February 15.

Peggy Wood will play the lead in "The Biter Bitten" for A. E. and R. R. Riskin. The new Dorrance Davis comedy is now in rehearsal.

"New York" is the new title for the "Crime," by Samuel Shipman and John B. Hymer, which A. H. Woods placed in rehearsal last week with James Rennie in the leading role. The play opens February 7 at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, two weeks prior to a New York opening. The supporting cast includes David Landau, Sylvia Sidney, Claude Cooper, Elwood Bostwick, Gladys Franin, Morris Freeman and Fleming Ward.

Instead of closing this Saturday night, Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon" will continue another week at the Bijou Theatre.

The Theatre Guild announces that it will shortly present Luigi Pirandello's comedy "Right You Are If You Think You Are" for special matinees at the Guild Theatre. Rehearsals begin Monday under the direction of Philip Moeller.

George Macfarlane has engaged H. Reeves Smith for his new comedy "Gossip," which goes into rehearsal this week.

Richard Herndon will open his new production a comedy by Thompson Buchanan entitled "Dancer," with Allen Dinehart and Claiborne Foster in the leading roles at the Klaw Theatre Monday night, February 9.

"The Student Prince" comes to the Bronx Opera House for one week, beginning Monday night. Ilsa Marvenga, creator of the role of "Katie", DeWolf Hopper and Halfred Young play the title part.

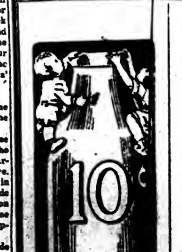
AMUSEMENTS

CHANIN'S 46th MANSFIELD Evenings 8:30
West of 8th Matinees Wed. and Sat. 2:30.
For BETTER or WORSE
NEW COMEDY DRAMA

AMERICAN TRAGEDY 5TH MONTH
Longacre Evs. 8:30 Mats. Wed and Sat.

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Mon., Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings and Thurs. and Sat. Mats. WINTHROP AMES' Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. H.M.S. PINAFORE PIRATES OF PENZANCE Thursday Evenings Only, "Iolanthe"

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF 49th St., East of B'way Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30



RITZ Thea. 48th St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8:30 Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30.
H. Lawrence Weber's Musical Bon Bon
Bye Bye Bonnie

Civic Repertory Thea. 14th St. E. of 6th Ave. Evs. 8:30. Mat. Wednesday & Sat. 2:30.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
Mat. and Evs. Tomorrow Eve.
TONIGHT "THREE SISTERS."
TOMORROW MATINEE "ALICE SIT-BY-THE-FIRE"
Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

RUTH THOMAS

In "The Pirates of Penzance," Gilbert and Sullivan's operatic satire at the Plymouth Theatre.

PASSAIC STRIKE STILL ON!
WE'VE WON IN FOUR MILLS!
HELP US BEAT THE REST!

GIVE MONEY PLEASE! For Coal for the Strikers' Homes! For Bread for their families! They have made a hard fight! Now they are winning! Now you must help more than ever! Give all you can! MAKE VICTORY COMPLETE!

Make all contributions by check or money order to

GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE

799 BROADWAY Room 225 NEW YORK CITY

Get 10c Coupons and sell them TO HELP US FEED the Strikers' Children.

Organized Labor—Trade Union Activities

Politics and Programs, The Trade Union Press, Strike Struggles, Labor and Imperialism

STEEL TRUST PROFITS RISEN THROUGH USE OF NEW MACHINES TO REPLACE LABOR; GAINS IN RATIO OF CAPACITY EVEN IN SLACK PERIOD

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press).

Substitution of machinery for labor is recognized as the basis for the huge profits of the U. S. Steel corporation in the last 3 months of 1926. Though operations and prices were declining during the quarter this Morgan trust showed the best peacetime quarter in its history with net earnings of $82,522,235.

These profits compare with $82,-081,858 in the preceding quarter and with $48,200,466 in the last quarter of 1925. The gain in profits came as a surprise to Wall street. "The report seems to demonstrate one thing," The Wall Street Journal says, "and that is that the hundreds of millions of dollars U. S. Steel has been spending for improvements and additions are beginning to be reflected in better earnings through decreased costs of production."

Higher Than Ever.

U. S. Steel-profits for the entire year 1926 were $199,004,741. This exceeds by nearly $20,000,000 the best previous peacetime year and is practically on a par with the war year 1918 when the steel trust made $199,350,680. The supreme years in the corporation's history were 1916 and 1917 when the war profits were $333,574,177 and $295,292,180.

In the last 12 years U. S. Steel has piled up $2,170,404,351 in profits, as follows:

	U. S. Steel Profits Amount
1915	$130,351,296
1916	333,574,177
1917	295,292,180
1918	199,350,680
1919	147,589,067
1920	176,686,898
1921	92,726,558
1922	191,529,310
1923	179,646,674
1924	153,114,811
1925	165,338,464
1926	199,004,741

The 1926 profit, after all deductions in the way of interest on bonds and preferred dividends, leaves $116,984,-088 for the common stockholders of $17.97 a share. This compared with $90,602,652 and $12,863 a share in 1925.

Coolidge's Gets A Little.

Pres. Coolidge with his shares of steel stock is entitled to about $900 out of the 1926 profit. An unskilled worker in the steel mills would have to work more than 2,100 years to earn as much for his family as Coolidge gets without a stroke of work. It may be argued that Cal's services to the steel trust as President of the United States are worth far more than $900 a year. In fact there are some business authorities, like The Wall Street Journal, who argue that the mammoth profits of 1926 were due in considerable measure to the present occupant of the white house and his mutimillionnaire secretary of the treasury.

George F. Baker, Morgan's right-hand man, with his 58,400 shares of steel common stock, shares in 1926 profits to the extent of more than $1,000,000.

"RADICAL" PLAN OF FORD DOESN'T FOOL FORD LABOR

Bondfield's Praise Only Gives Her Away

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

In a series of articles written for the Herald-Tribune recently, Henry Ford, in discussing problems concerning the community socially, maintained in a somewhat hazy manner that citizens, of course not excluding native-born workers, are entitled to certain prerogatives in relation to the "social product" created by the community. The tone in which these "revelations" were presented create a misguided impression that Henry Ford is "radically inclined."

Bondfield Likes It.

Not only are great masses of workers obsessed with this false notion, but even prominent labor leaders, both here and abroad tend to cling to this illusion. Margaret Bondfield, British laborite and conservative trade-union leader, speaking before a New York audience a short time ago stressed this "radical" plan on the part of Mr. Ford. The automobile king came in for a great deal of praise by Mrs. Bondfield and the Ford plan to her seemed a very "progressive" step in the automobile industry. Whether or not this plan is of material benefit to the thousands of workers employed by Ford was not brought out, but class-collaborationists have their own peculiar method of overlooking such a trifle!

Prenching—and Practice.

However, to get back to Mr. Ford's thesis on the "social product." In one article of the series he said:

"What is created by the community belongs to the community, for the purposes of the community. Every citizen as a joint partner in the community has a REAL and ASSERTIVE right in the social product as in his individual product and he may demand an accounting."

It's the Bank.

How far these brilliant sentiments operate in the automobile industry particularly in all of the Ford shops in Michigan, is a question that can find an unhesitating answer from any of his oppressed wage slaves. "Ev'Bunk," unquestionably would be the reply.

If Henry Ford flimly and unreservedly believes in the citizens' right to a share in the social product, does any substantial part of it go to the automobile worker? To begin with, this assertive right entitles the many slaves in Ford's plants to the privilege of unionization, which, of course, he does not recognize and vehemently opposes.

Won't Let Go.

Secondly, this guarantee if it means anything should be expressed in terms of more of the surplus wealth created by the Ford worker, to be returned to them in the form of higher wages. But of course they again Ford would strenuously object.

The intolerable working conditions prevailing in all of the Ford shops cry aloud for amelioration. Not only is the monotony of turning out machines in a manner that kills the soul in these men unbearable, but the ever increasing danger of being thrown out of work for reason, too numerous to mention increases the worst fears.

Only by Own Efforts.

All this merely proves that Ford is a liar and a hypocrite, and that if the Ford workers expect to acquire real and assertive rights, they must unionize the Ford industry. And it is up to the workers themselves to do this. Fellow workers in the Ford plants and shops, your own united strength solidified by your willingness to demand your rights is the only solution to your immediate needs.

International Steel Trust Leaves European Countries Enemies Yet

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—The recent crustification of Germany's industries have not brought a decrease in the unemployment situation. The reports show that the number of dependent workers has increased during the last month about 25%, making a total of about 2 million man and women, who are drawing unemployment aids.

The sudden rise of the franc has placed Germany in a favorable competitive position, so much so, that she overreached her production quota in the steel industry, as the result of which she will have to pay a fine to the steel cartel, which regulates the production of each member nation, amounting to $2,690,000.

The tendency of the newly formed cartel shows that it in no way excludes trade enmity, but that the competition for markets has been replaced by a struggle over the size of the production quota.

Dubinsky, Little King Of Local 10, I. L. G. W. Makes Promise to Gang

In Local No. 10 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers a meeting was held Monday night at which Dave Dubinsky conducted himself as usual. He delivered an acrobatic report to a small crowd—about a hundred and fifty members, including his hired gangsters.

Bonafide members who were suspected of being progressives were turned back at the door on one excuse or another, and not allowed in, even though the meeting was so small.

Slanders Everyone.

Dubinsky's report slandered everybody and everything of value to the union, or that did not follow him in his destructive policy towards the union.

Dubinsky during his speech dropped a few reassuring remarks to his followers about the expected report of the impartial chairman, to whom Sigman has appealed for recognition of himself and associates, including, of course, Dubinsky, as the real International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Dubinsky intimated that the impartial chairman was on their side and that "as soon as he gives his decision everything will be smooth sailing for us." Of course it won't, but Dubinsky's gang prevented adequate contradiction at his own meeting.

Gang Slugs Shafter.

Dubinsky's gang has recently again "exercised" upon the head of Brother Shafter, a member of Local 10, because the gang thought he might be a left. A conspicuous role in this attack was played by the already infamed Sam Greenberg.

Monday's meeting, and the activities of the gang under Dubinsky's orders, remind the progressives that he must be curbed.

Springfield Youth Conference Begins Relief of Strikers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 1 (FP).—Delegates from 11 Illinois locals of the United Mine Workers, from the men coal cutters and from the striking enamelware workers of Belleville held a 1-day youth conference at Springfield January 16 to stimulate organization and other work among young workers.

Local 2553, U. M. W. A. arranged the meeting, which was held in Carpenters' Hall. Sports and workers education were discussed and relief for the Belleville strikers was planned.

Argentine Secretary Orders Disregard of Social Legislation

The Argentinian Home Secretary has recently given orders to the Minister of Labor, who is his subordinate, to drop cases of the violation of legislation protecting labor wherever it seems impossible to ascertain the true facts of the case. More astonishing even than the ordinance is the reason given for it! It is actually declared that the complaints sent in are so numerous that the judges of the industrial courts cannot cope with their work. The Home Secretary's decree set the seal of its approval upon this administrative inadequacy, and also upon the very general anti-labor prejudice of the courts; for it is very seldom that the employers are pronounced guilty of these offenses against protective legislation, although the charges are made by state inspectors and therefore obviously justified. In little over a year, from December, 1923, to February, 1925, 2,255 cases were referred to the courts, but only 731 of these were actually dealt with, and only in 621 cases was any penalty imposed upon the employer.

Tammany Hall Friend Of Labor Would Dodge

In New York City campaigns one of the loudest "friends of labor" is one Carew, now chairman of the Tammany delegation in the House at Washington. The other day a quiet-spoken representative of some scores of thousands of organized workers, many of whom vote in New York City, sent his card to Carew. He waited 15 minutes. He sent in again. The messenger reported that Carew was engaged in talk with another congressman. After a further 15 minutes the Tammany statesman was still inside. The legislative agent of trade unions then sent in an inquiry as to whether Carew were coming out. Carew came, red-faced with resentment, but just a bit afraid to raise the issue as to whether a labor union may speak to a Tammany leader.

GARFINKEL SHOP CALLS STRIKERS BACK, IN VAIN

Even Scab Committee Fails to Move Them

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 1.—An attempt was made Monday to open the Garfinkel Ritter underwear shop here, on strike just two weeks. A general strike has been in progress since fifty girls walked out spontaneously, and held meetings, organized the rest, and called in the International Ladies Garment Workers Union to take charge.

Cards were sent to the girls urging them to go back to work, and the forelady showed up. But nobody else came.

Scab Committee.

A committee of girls was sent to the headquarters of the Associated Silk Workers at 201 Market street, Paterson, where the strike meetings are held daily and this committee tried to get the strikers back to work, using the arguments of the bosses that the pay was good, etc., but the workers refused to listen to them. The picket line this morning was very good and the meeting was well attended. The spirit of the girls was excellent and none of them will return without a union.

Union On Job.

Saturday night, Jan. 29, a dance was held by the strike committee for all the workers and their friends and parents. The affair was well attended and the organizer of the I. L. G. W. U. spoke to them urging them to stay out until a union was formed.

Relief is coming in steadily. The Associated Silk Workers gave $100 to the strikers on the second day of the strike, in addition to offering them the use of the hall and a victrola for their amusement, and the use of the office. A committee of the strikers went to the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council of Paterson asking for support and assistance. The Full Fashion Hosiery Workers gave $25, the Local Plumbers Local gave $50 and the Trades and Labor Council went on record endorsing the strike and urging all the affiliated locals to contribute to their assistance. Local No. 62 of the I. L. G. W. U. pledged $100 to the strikers with a promise of more money.

Paterson Conference Meets Tonight to Plan Relief for Passaic

PATERSON, N. J.—Representatives of the Central Trades and Labor and the Building Trades Council of Paterson, together with members of the Associated Silk Workers, General Relief Committee and others interested in the Paterson bazaar for Passaic, will meet Wednesday night, at 54 Van Houten Street, Paterson, for a special conference on plans for the seven-day fete.

A call has been issued to all trade unions, especially those of New Jersey, to begin the collection of articles for the booths which will be conducted by various workers' organizations.

The bazaar is to be held from February 19 to 26 at Carpenter's Hall, 54 Van Houten Street, Paterson.

Leather Workers Going On With Chicago Strike

CHICAGO, Ill.—Injunctions have crippled the strike of the mattress workers union against the yellowdog contracts of the Superior Felt & Bedding Co. in Chicago. The fancy leather goods workers, however, are going strong in their fight against the Ehrlich company's attempt to stretch the working week from 44 to 47 hours and to cut wages 25%. The general labor situation in Chicago remains quiet.

In and Around the Miners' Convention

Antonio Caffini knows something of the workings of the Lewis machine in District 5, Pittsburg.

In the recent elections he was nominated for one of the district offices on the "Save the Union" ticket. He received more than the required number of nominations but also received a letter from the International secretary telling him he was expelled from the union.

His name was removed from the ballot.

Investigations disclosed that Lewis' district officials had charged that he had worked in a non-union mine in 1921. No hearing of any sort was held. He was simply expelled.

But Caffini's local union elected him a delegate to the convention and the same here bearing a letter from the president of his union stating that he had gone into the non-union mine at the request of the men working there in order to form a local union.

He succeeded in doing this and the president of his union stated in his letter that instead of being expelled and removed from the ballot he should be commended.

Caffini was seated by the convention and the Lewis machine thereby acknowledged that it had framed up on Caffini in order to elect one of its benchmen to office in District 5.

The moral is that if you want to be free from persecution by the Lewish machine, follow its example and don't organize non-union mines.

* * *

The Indianapolis Star photographer took a group picture of John Brophy, Powers Hapgood and Pat Toohey after one of the early sessions of the convention.

The picture did not appear and a few days later the Star's convention reporter apologetically informed Hapgood that President Lewis had objected to its publication.

Would the Star have refrained from publishing a picture of John L. Lewis if Hapgood or Brophy had told them not to?

Don't laugh, this is a serious matter.

* * *

Out of 11 locals from District 2 which had resolutions recommending publishing a list of officials, 9 ARE REPRESENTED IN THIS CONVENTION BY INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZERS.

The 166 local unions of District 31, West Virginia, having a grand total of 377 members, were also very insistent that President Lewis get a substantial raise in salary, that the appointing power remain in the hands of the President and that no change in the official family be made at this time.

These worthy statements are put forward in a number of resolutions. A perusal of these resolutions gives the relentless conclusion that the loyal and hardy 377 are much more concerned over the dire poverty of President Lewis with his former paltry $8,000 per year—plus expenses—than they are over the uplight of the 60,000 unorganized miners in West Virginia.

If Lewis can continue to make the convention hall—the Lewish locals as he has in West Virginia, and just leave enough members to fill out convention delegates, there is nothing to prevent his salary being raised to $50,000 when the next convention rolls around.

"The smaller the membership the bigger the official salaries" is the motto of the machine in the thirtieth convention of the U. M. W. of A.

* * *

The overworked but durable "miners' union band" from District 31 was on hand at the station to welcome President William Green and escort him to the convention hall.

"Who is this guy Green?" one of the miners' musicians asked a by-stander as they waited the arrival of the special.—H. D.

FASCISM HERE

Pastor Scores Benito's Intrigue With Gov't

Charging Mussolini with maintaining in America, and especially in New York an extensive organization of propaganda and a lush spend of assassins, at a cost around a million dollars annually, Dr. Chas. Fama of Bedford Park Presbyterian Church called on his audience in the Labor Temple Monday evening to fight the influence of fascism.

Trying Spread.

"I am fighting fascism," said Fama, "because I fear its spread here. When an Italian teacher in a New York school teaches the fascist hymn to his students, and an Italian professor at Vassar goes so far out of his way to praise Mussolini, we have reason to fear.

Big Business Likes Benito.

"Industrialists of the type that would have plunged us into war with Mexico and Nicaragua a week ago would gladly see fascism here because then the autocracy, with the backing of the army and navy, would force it on us by force to the public."

Fama said that Mussolini had the support of a million paid black shirts, and the undying hatred of 4,000,000 temporarily subdued Italians. He prophesied a revolution at any time. He read a letter in which he protested to Coolidge against the deportation of Italians reported by Fascist agents to the Immigration authorities. These men are really political refugees, and if sent back, are shot.

American Officer Shot In Semi-Mutiny Among Philippine Soldiers

MISAMIS, Mindanao P. I., Feb. 1.—Resenting the appointment to the Philippine Constabulary of Lieutenant J. A. Young, a native constabulary sergeant, this morning shot and killed Young aboard the inter-island steamer San Antonio. During the fusillade which followed the lieutenant's death, five Filipino passengers were killed.

Young and several other former American army officers recently were appointed to the constabulary. Native papers strenuously objected to these appointments. Resentment was widespread among the Filipino constabulary members.

German Women Fill List Of Industrial Injuries

BERLIN, Germany.—Statistics recently issued by the National Insurance Office of Germany show that in the year 1925 80,920 persons suffered accidents entitling them to compensation, against 76,728 in the preceding year; the increase affecting both men and women workers. Most of the accidents to women workers take place in agriculture, where there were 10,800 cases, against 2,600 in industry. In industry, most accidents occur to women engaged in the metal industry; then come the chemical industry, the printing industry, the building industry, the textile trades, the food, drink and tobacco trades, commerce and communications, etc.

Bishop Brown Lectures For "Devil's Angels"

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—Bishop Brown, the noted Heretic, will speak in this city on Friday, March 4, under the auspices of the "Devils Angels". The local branch of the American Association for the advancement of Atheism. The hall is to be decided upon later.

The Manager's Corner

"ALL THE NEWS THAT'S FIT TO PRINT."

This is the slogan which is proclaimed at the top of the New York Times, which circulates over three hundred thousand copies in the country daily.

On January 28, 1927, the New York Times published an article by Alfred Holman, entitled "Long Strike Ended in San Francisco." The article contains the following significant statement: "UNIONIST RULE IS A REMORSELESS TYRANNY; THAT IT IS DESTRUCTIVE NOT ONLY TO COMMUNITY MORALS AND SELF-RESPECT."

Every time a workingman pays his two cents for such a paper he is giving aid to the circulation of just such dangerous propaganda against labor. Although it is true that these two cents do not nearly pay for the cost of the paper, still the fact that workingmen buy it increases its circulation and value as an advertising medium and therefore its income. Every worker who buys such a paper is therefore helping directly the capitalist press and striking a blow at the cause of labor.

There is only one English daily newspaper in the city of New York, there is but one national daily which will not publish the kind of stuff quoted above. There is only one paper which considers such material as "NOT FIT TO PRINT." That paper is The DAILY WORKER which is firmly pledged to the cause of labor, and firmly pledged not to use its columns for any material which is not in the interests of labor. Are you doing your share to help this paper? Are you buying it daily at the newsstand? Are you getting other workers to read it?—BERT MILLER.

WORKERS' INSURANCE BY EMPLOYERS GREAT FAVORITE WITH OPEN SHOP JOURNALS AND ESPECIALLY MISTRUSTED BY LIVE WORKERS

By ROBERT W. DUNN (Federated Press).

(In his second Federated Press article on corporation paternalism, Robert W. Dunn, the leading labor authority on this subject, tells of the growth of group insurance schemes.—Ed.)

"A well-rounded industrial relations program" for employes should include some form of group insurance, advises the National Industrial Conference Board, the big research bureau of the American employers' associations.

Group life insurance for industrial workers has been leaping forward in recent years. Seven great insurance companies do most of the underwriting. Hundreds of firms have induced their employes to accept the insurance free, and in some instances contribute to the premiums, often by means of a checkoff from the pay envelope. Nearly five billion dollars worth has now been written, representing a rise of about 3,500% in 13 years. Approximately 3,500,000 workers are now covered. In addition to life insurance at least a half million workers are covered by health insurance, and the number is increasing rapidly. Accident insurance is also growing.

The Bank in Quantity.

Corporations say they go in for group life insurance, largely to promote "good will" among employes, to reduce labor turnover, and for a variety of economic and "humanitarian" reasons. The Chase Metal Works, in a pamphlet issued to its workers, says: "Every year of continuous employment increases a man's insurance without any cost to him, and quite naturally the man will think twice before giving up this free insurance and leaving his job." (It might be added, "to strike."

Dr. Herman Frank, insurance expert, declares that "group life insurance, as it is practiced by the largescale employer, is in its very nature paternalistic, a mere contrivance to benefit the employer by reducing his labor turnover and tying the employe to his employment."

The Commonwealth Edison Co. finds that as a result of group insurance, "efficiency is improved. Loyalty to the company is increased. Impartial outlook of employes on industrial questions tends to become more healthy . . . a more dependable class of workers is attracted by these plans."

Spokesmen of organized labor are unqualifiedly against any sort of insurance instituted by employing corporations. It compromises the workers' independence and weakens the power of collective bargaining. To the conscious worker it looks like a sedative or a gyp pill. Unless like the full fashioned hosiery workers cite definite instances where it is used to break strikes. The "Motherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen's Journal looks at insurance as an "endeavor to wean railroad employes away from their allegiance to their legitimate labor organization" and the A. F. of L. officially points out that the workers are mislead into thinking they are getting "insurance at very low permanent cost, whereas, in fact, they have temporary one-year term insurance, written at premium rater, which are likely to be increased at any time.

Workers for the studebaker Corp. tell of group insurance policies forced on every member at the Detroit plant last summer. One worker who held out was brought into line by a threat of discharge.

Open Shop For It.

Open shop bodies are enthusiastic about the scheme. The National Metal Trades Association, most ruthless, anti-labor association in America, prints exhaustive reports and recommendations on the subject. The Industrial Association of San Francisco, which has just broken a strike of carpenters for collective bargaining, is offering group insurance to strike-breakers and "American Plan workmen." The Sherman Service, and other big espionage corporations, "sell" these plans to employers and install operatives to whip workers' opinion into shape to receive it. Among propaganda methods used in selling the plan are bulletin boards, letters to workers, mass meetings, addressed by company officials, and insurance company agents, conferences of foremen and "keymen," stories in house organs, wall posters, pay envelope inserts, pamphlets and slips attached to employment applications. The Metal Trades Association mixes these methods.

Some typical non-union companies using employe group insurance are General Motors, General Electric, U. S. Rubber, Cleveland Twist Drill, Worthington Pump & Machinery, Armour, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Atlantic & Pacific, Packard Cleveland Motor, Kellogg, Yale & Towne, and many railroad companies, such as Erie, Beck Island and Northern Pacific. Major insurance companies writing these policies are Travelers, Metropolitan, Aetna, Equitable, Connecticut, General, Prudential and Missouri State.

Like other welfare schemes, group insurance costs the company very little in proportion to the de-unionizing results obtained. The National Metal Trades Association estimates it as slightly in excess of 1% of the corporation's payroll.

Hearst's Imperialism Penman is Same Editor Who Roasted Unionism

"Jimmy" Williams, who used to roast labor unions from his desk as editor of the Hearst transcript, the oracle of copper munitions companies, is now running W. R. Hearst's campaign against Filipino independence. Hearst picked up Williams after an explosion in the Transcript premises following the death of Henry Cabot Lodge. He sent Williams to the Philippines with Carmi Thompson. Williams became the warm champion of Gen. Leonard Wood, and has indicated sharp peevishness when Thompson failed to find the military rule of the Islands all that perfect government should be. Now, with cartoon and big type, and in phrases worthy of his Bisbee days, Williams denounces the Filipinos for not living Wood. He urges congress, in God's name and Hearst's, to give back to Wood some of the powers that have slipped into Filipino hands.

Heretic Bishop Coming To "City of Angels"

LOS ANGELES [illegible] Bishop William Montgomery Brown, the "Heretic Bishop" recently [illegible] from his office in the [illegible] Episcopal Church for striking [illegible] communism and Christianity" will [illegible] under the auspices of The International Labor Defense at Trinity Auditorium, Saturday, March 5, at Pasadena Sunday evening, and at Long Beach Monday evening. These halls to be announced later.

Father of Seven Drowns.

EDGEWATER, N. J., Feb. [illegible] Louis Capozel, of Cliffside, N. J., fell off a barge here and was drowned. He leaves a wife and seven children.

Roll to the Sole For The DAILY WORKER.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
Phone, Orchard 1980

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months
By mail (outside of New York): $4.00 per year; $2.25 six months; $1.25 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

This Is No World for the Meek

Even though Jesus of Nazareth is alleged to have said that the meek would inherit the earth, that prediction still remains unfulfilled. Only those who have used their claws have been able to take or hold anything worth while in this dog-eat-dog world of ours.

When news of the extraordinarily severe sentences imposed by Judge Rosalsky on members of the International Ladies Garment Workers' union reached us, The DAILY WORKER solicited comment from various public characters on the judge's action. Among those received is the following from Lewis S. Gannett, associate editor of The Nation:

"Judge Rosalsky has shown an utterly unjudicial eagerness to convict strikers and a partisanship of an anti-working class character.

"Thuggery, however, has become a habit of both sides in the garment trades in New York and if these men were really guilty I have scant sympathy for them.

"My real regret is that the officials who used thugs do not get convicted instead of the thugs."

Here we have a well-known liberal branding union members as "thugs" because they defended themselves against the professional thugs employed by the bosses. Note that Mr. Gannet does not express a fervent desire to see the manufacturers who employed gangsters go to jail. How strange that the pacifistic sympathy of most liberals usually manages to become the handmaiden of the enemies of the working class!

If Mr. Gannett believed that the sentenced workers were guilty he would have scant sympathy for them. Then why blame Judge Rosalsky? Undoubtedly the judge believed they were guilty. What is the difference between the attitude of Rosalsky towards the militant garment workers and that of Mr. Gannett? We'll be hanged if we can see any.

Would Mr. Gannett have the striking garment workers flee from the picket lines and thus make defeat certain rather than stand their ground lest they might be tempted to sully their souls by defending themselves against the employers' gangsters? A strike is a miniature war. In war one side does not use cannon and the other side olive leaves. All other things being equal the heaviest artillery won battles in the days of Napoleon. The deadliest poison gases and the swiftest airplanes may win the next war.

Many good souls were shocked when Soviet Russia used violence against the imperialist powers. "They are doing the same things the capitalists are doing," they snickered. Quite true, but if they did not, there would no Workers' Republic today and the bawdy Russian nobility would now be whipping heavy taxes out of the peasants and exploiting the industrial workers as they were never exploited before.

We strongly disagree with Mr. Gannett in characterizing the defensive actions of the striking garment workers as "thuggery." This characterization is unfair as it would put the measures taken by the Red army to defend the revolution on a par with similar measures taken by the Czarist brigands to restore the Russian nobility to power.

Join The Workers (Communist) Party.

John L. Lewis objected to a roll call on the ground that it would cost too much money. Then he turned around and accepted a raise of several thousand dollars, bringing his salary up to the neat figure of $12,000. Supporters of Lewis in the U. M. W. of A.—those who work in the mines—should take note of this.

Every battalion of the French army will be equipped with flame-throwing squads. Which proves that the next war will be even more "civilizing" than the last. When we talk of a war, we don't mean one of those puny things where a hundred thousand or so human beings are slaughtered. We mean a real he-manized war, where at least twenty millions will be wiped out.

The right wing leaders of the British Labor Party are supporting the government in its preparations for war on China. J. H. Thomas and Ramsay MacDonald endorse Chamberlain's attitude. Philip Snowden comes out with a blast against Soviet Russia for its support of the Chinese nationalist movement. Good. Every little bit more helps to show the British workers that the right wing socialists are imperialists in disguise. When the empire is in a crisis they throw off the disguise.

Britain's generosity to China reminds one of the story of the thirsty but penniless citizen who wended his way to Henessey's bar for his morning encouragement. He had his drink and when the bartender said "a dime" the customer admitted that he had no money. The bartender shouted down the cellar to the boss: "Say, is Murphy good for a drink?" "Did he have it" asked the boss. "He had," replied the bartender. "He is," concluded the boss.

Just as we were about to send out a search party in an effort to locate the league of nations a story appeared in The World that the league discovered that there is trouble in China. But what can the poor league do to restore peace since it admits that ninety per cent of the country is consolidated under the Koumintang and that China does not care a tinker's damn for the league of nations?

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

Fascist Powers Form Imperialistic Conspiracy Against Union

By ANTON BIMBA.

ALL the assertions of the bloody fascist government of Lithuania that has no intention of breaking up the non-aggression treaty signed a few months ago between Lithuania and Soviet Russia cannot conceal the evil hand and plans of the Fascisti. There are some very important facts which contradict their public utterances. These facts prove beyond a shadow of doubt that the fascisti "revolution" in Lithuania was inspired and assisted by the imperialists of Poland, as well as those of England and France.

Let us take up a few of these facts very briefly.

1. Marshall Pilsudsky, the leader of the hangmen of Poland, protested very emphatically against the non-aggression treaty between Lithuania and Soviet Russia. He went to the League of Nations and demanded the league to take steps against this treaty. The statement of the Soviet government that it reaffirms the 1920 treaty between Lithuania and Russia in which Vilna province is recognized as a part of Lithuania aroused the ire of Pilsudsky and his gang. In his protest to the League of Nations, Pilsudsky stated that the non-aggression treaty is against the "best interests of Poland."

What did the Lithuanian clericals do at that time? Were they for or against the treaty? Of course, they were against it. In the Lithuanian parliament or Seimas they fought against the adoption of the treaty and voted against it as a bloc. They also pointed out that this treaty is "against the best interests of Lithuania."

It was a well known fact even at that time the Lithuanian clericals, who today are the backbone of the bloody fascisti, carried secret negotiations with the Polish government.

2. Smetona and Voldemaras are today the outstanding leaders of the fascisti. But they are also the leaders of the Nationalist Party, which is composed of the rich and powerful landowners, ninety-nine per cent of whom are of Polish nationality and have always fought for the annexation of Lithuania to Poland. And now these elements are in the forefront of the bloody fascisti.

Vatican Important Factor.

3. The Vatican is another very important factor in the situation. The Lithuanian and Polish clericals are taking orders from the pope. He is their boss and master. He tells them to get together in the name of the catholic church and they must not disobey his orders—if they want to have paradise on earth.

The Vatican always was for the imperialists of Poland. It exerted a very strong pressure on the Lithuanian catholic clergy that they must make up with Poland. The pope gave Vilna territory to Poland long ago.

Therefore, the present fascist government of Lithuania is an expression of approachment between Lithuania and Poland, on the basis of the former's subjection to the latter.

Ruling Class Shocked.

4. Then we come to the influence of world imperialism. The ruling class of England, France, Japan and America were simply shocked by the non-aggression treaty between Lithuania and Soviet Russia. For the last nine years they were building a wall against Soviet Russia. The unity of the Baltic states with Poland at the head of the procession was a necessary link in their cabin of reaction around Soviet Russia. But now they were set back in their conspiracy by the Lithuanian - Russian treaty. Lithuania suddenly became a threat to their aims. The coalition government of the Populists and Social democrats turned its face from the West toward the East. The Lithuanian masses were supporting this new orientation very enthusiastically.

Hence the imperialists of England, France, Japan and America sought and found faithful lackeye to their anti-soviet policy in the fascisti movement of Lithuania. Now the bloody fascisti are shooting down the revolutionary workers of Lithuania who are in favor of friendly relations with Soviet Russia while the agents of Pilsudsky are free and jubilant.

5. The fascisti slogan during their coup d'etat was: "The coalition government had sold Lithuania to the Bolsheviks." It was a hypocritical slogan but it showed the face of the fascisti.

Imperialists Encouraged.

6. As soon as the fascisti overthrew the coalition government and established bloody white terror all over the country, the imperialists of Poland breathed more easily and openly expressed their satisfaction with the change in Lithuania. They saw that their friends and colleagues are in power in Kovno. The chauvinist press of Warsaw exclaimed: "Moscow thought that it holds Lithuania in its hands, but now its hopes are gone!"

A special cable to the New York Times from Warsaw, the capital of Poland, dated January 8, among other things, says:

"As the situation rests now, Marshall Pilsudsky remains customarily silent, but there are ominous rumors that the Lithuanian coup was not in vain and that the new result of dictatorial institutions will bear full fruit, a part of which will be the revision of the Danzig situation, so long a source of friction and conflict between Poland and Germany. Already Polish agents coming into their own as joint administrators of Poland, Lithuania and other territory."

The cable of January 10 from Warsaw states: "In addition, Minister of Justice Motyskwicz, a personal friend of Marshall Pilsudsky, was charged with showing a map of the new Poland, including Lithuania but omitting the Corridor."

Lithuanian Emissary in Warsaw.

And the news from Warsaw dated January 21, appeared in the New York Times of January 22 under such headlines: "Warsaw and Kovno seek peace accord—Economic crisis in each country forces move to resume diplomatic relations.—Talk of joint Vilna rule.—Lithuania suggests a federated region." This cable goes on and states that secret emissary of the fascisti government of Lithuania is already in Warsaw seeking peace with Poland and that Lithuania "had developed a plan whereby a joint Polish-Lithuanian Government would be established for the Vilna region, creating a sort of federation embracing both nations."

This is exactly the plan of the world imperialists. They want Lithuania and Poland to form a federation under the dominance of the Polish imperialists. Now this plan is advanced by the bloody fascisti of Lithuania. It means an end to the independence of Lithuania as a nation. It means a united front of the Baltic states under the leadership of imperialist Poland against the Union of the Socialist Soviet Republics.

Scab Coal Company Takes Another Life.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (FP.)—Harry Sheldon, miner, died, and 200 coal diggers were endangered, by a fire that swept tunnels of a Paisley mine at Scott's Run. The Paisley interests repudiated the Jacksonville wage agreement last Spring and strikes followed.

Mayor, Police Chief on Trial

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Henry Wissel, the Mayor of Edgewater, N. J., went on trial with his chief of police, James A. Dinan, and seventeen other defendants before Federal Judge Isaac N. Meeking and a jury here today, on an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act.

Arkansas River on Rampage

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 1.—White River, swollen by continuous rain, was on its worst rampage today since the record flood of 1919.

THE CAPITALIST PRESS MAKES MUD PIES

THE capitalist press now frankly exploits the perse graphic aspects of such cases as that of Browning and Peaches, not even making the former thin disguise of an investigation int sociological problems. The daily labor newspaper can pay little attention to these side issues, needing most of its space for matters of vital concern to the working class.

Upton Sinclair's A NEW NOVEL

But the capitalist press was at liberty, and did so. From time to time you would read in the French papers items of news about Russia, made, of course, to sound as hateful as possible. Soon after getting Ruth's letter, the papers reported that there had been a dispute among the American Communists as to tactics, and the two factions had carried their case to the chiefs of the Third International. There were half a dozen leaders of the American party now in Moscow, and one of those named was Paul Watkins, under indictment at home for participation in an illegal convention.

X

Several interesting events came along, to keep them busy in their exile. First, Aunt Emma fell in love; yes, by golly, when it comes to such things, you just never can tell what will happen to either ladies or gentlemen! It was a respectable elderly hardware merchant from Nebraska, who was occupying his leisure collecting cameos. Maybe Aunt Emma reminded him of one; anyhow, after beauing her around for several months, he suddenly popped the question, and they had a quiet family wedding, and went off on a honeymoon—to Nebraska!

It left Dad quite lonesome; but presently he hunted up an adventure for himself, and that was stranger still—you couldn't have guessed it in a million years. SPOOKS! It happened that Bunny went off one evening to a meeting at which the Socialists and the Communists engaged in violent warfare, as appeared to be their custom in Paris; and when he got back, he found that Dad was not in his room. Next morning the old man told about it—hesitatingly, with not a little embarrassment. Just what did Bunny think about Spiritualism? Bunny said he didn't think at all, he didn't know; and Dad revealed that he had had an amazing experience—a long talk last night with grandma!

Holy smoke! said Bunny; and Dad said yes, he might well be surprised, but there was just no getting rid of it. She had told him all about his childhood, described the ranch where they had lived, and asked all about her paintings, what had be done with that one of the Germans drinking out of steins, and did he still have the one of the mansion with the fountain in front and the carriage with the two horses and the lady and gentleman sitting in it? She had called him "Little Jim," and it was all so real. It had made tears come into Dad's eyes.

Bunny wanted to know, where had this happened, and Dad told him, there was a lady living in this hotel, Mrs. Oliver—she was a lady from Boston who had been married to a Frenchman, and her husband had died a year or two ago Dad had got to talking with her, and she had told him about being a Spiritualist, and how she had a famous medium who gave seances in her rooms here in the hotel, and she had invited Dad to attend, and that was the way of it. Most amazing things had happened, there had been horns floating in the air, and voices coming out of them, and lights flickering about then the ghosts had appeared, and finally this old lady ghost, who had asked for "Little Jim," and started right off to tell these things that had taken Dad's breath away How could a medium possibly have known such things?

Well, here was Dad with something to occupy his time! Of course he went to the next seance, and the next; very soon he was learning all the patter of the Spiritualists, taking it as seriously as a religion. You could see how it was —he had got along without any religion, so long as he was well and busy, but now that he was old and tired and sick, he craved something to lean on. He was shame-faced about it, afraid his son would ridicule him. But after all, did Bunny know any reason why the soul might not survive after death? Bunny didn't, and thereupon Dad invited him to go to a seance. Obviously, this was something more important than Socialism. If it was really true that we lived forever, why then it would be easy to endure any temporary discomfort. It was hardly worth arguing about such things as money. This from J. Arnold Read!

Bunny, who always tried to oblige, went to a seance, and witnessed the strange phenomena. He knew that such things can be done by slight of hand, and that he had no way of telling the difference; no chance was given in this company, made up of believers in a state of emotional exaltation. So one session was enough, and he went back to the Socialists. But let Dad be a Spiritualist if it made him happy!

Not so Bertie, who found out about it, and went into a regular tantrum. What did Bunny mean by letting his father fall into such hands? It was the worst kind of swindling in the world! And that woman, Mrs. Oliver, it was perfectly obvious what her scheme was; she wanted to marry Dad! Were Bertie and Bunny had worked all their lives to help him accumulate a fortune and save it—and a designing adventuress would jump in and grab the money, and Bunny hadn't even sense enough to know what was happening! Never had he seen his sister so mad in her whole life—she called him a fool seven times running—when he said that the Spiritualist widow might have her share, if only she could help the poor old man to find happiness.

(To Be Continued.)

A PRINCESS FOR A PAWN

Princess Terhata Karam Of The Moros.

This young lady, educated at the University of Illinois, cutting classes to get marcels and manicures, keeping dates with dapper sheiks, went home, so the papers say, and became the fourth wife of a savage revolting Moro chief. The fact that American big business can use a Moro insurrection as part of its plan to separate the Southern Island from the Northern makes the sacrifice of a few Moros or even one or several educated princesses a matter of small moment.

Union Sausage Makers Strike

NEW YORK (FP.).—One hundred sausage makers of Local 174, Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butcher Workmen are waging a stiff strike for union recognition and conditions against George, Inc., an open shop firm Union rates call for $42 for 45 hours. Employers attempt to stop picketing with an injunction.

Company Pensions—For Scabs

NEW YORK (FP.).—Capt. Jeremiah Minner, aged 70, would not scab in the 1920 ferry boat strike. So he lost 37 years seniority with the West Shore R. R., and retires with a very tiny pension based on six years' service only. But Minner has no regrets; says he would strike again under the same circumstances.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE DAILY WORKER DAILY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 18. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1927 Price 3 Cents

Brophy Fights Hard For Six-Hour Day

Miners' Convention Ends; Adopts Weak Report Of Lewis' Wage Scale Committee

By WM. F. DUNNE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 2.—Adjournment of the UMWA convention came today with progressives on their feet and fighting.

John Brophy, in a half hour speech, to which the delegates paid close attention, urged that the union publicly assure miners in non-union fields that no contract would be signed that did not include all strikers.

Brophy attacked the policy of signing for one or more mines of a single company and allowing its other properties to run non-union. He ended with a demand for the six-hour day and five-day week.

Lewis followed with an attack on Brophy. Tony Minorich spoke for organization of the unorganized as the only means for winning the union demands.

Fagan, president of District 5, made a bitter personal attack on Minorich, and Fagan was booed by many delegates.

Hindmarsh rose to defend Minorich on a point of order and spoke until ruled off the floor. The wage scale committee has been empowered to negotiate an agreement on the basis of "no reduction in wages." This is accompanied by authorization of a policy committee of three from each district.

The recommendations of the scale committee will be submitted to a referendum. The convention, as predicted by The DAILY WORKER, has adjourned without enacting one single measure for the benefit of the rank and file and without the Lewis machine submitting any program for the main problem facing the union organization of the unorganized.

Convention's Last Day.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 2.—The convention had been adjourned yesterday to meet at nine o'clock this morning for the last most important act of discussing the report of the wage scale committee. Speculation among the progressives verged from a belief that John L. Lewis, International president, would, for grandstand purposes, have his committee strongly defend the Jacksonville scale, and rely on a losing strike to break down the miners' resistance of lower wages, to the theory that he would brazenly demand the right be given his committee to bargain away the future labor of union members at any rate he might see fit to agree upon with the companies.

For Present Scale.

The report itself was a compromise between the two possible plans Lewis might have adopted. It declares for the present scale of wages. But it also insists on the scale committee being given bargaining power to "trade demands" with the operators, thus opening the way to concessions. No mention was made of the six hour day or the five day week, though progressive resolutions were brought before the convention demanding these be included in the next contract as the only method by which widespread unemployment can be avoided.

Whereas the progressives had demanded in resolutions adopted by a large number of local unions one contract for the entire coal fields, the Wage Scale Committee brought in a recommendation for a contract for the soft coal fields, alone. Lewis, and Cappellini, president of District 1, of the anthracite, have already tied the eastern Pennsylvania miners up with a five year agreement to prevent their striking with the bituminous

(Continued on page 5).

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE toothless International Federation of Trade Unions sent out its press service the story that strong anti-Communist currents have been set in motion in the United States owing to the "striking failures of the cloakmakers and furriers' strikes under Communist leadership". This is the bunk. As a matter of fact the furriers' strike was one of the few victorious strikes in recent years conducted in the United States and the story of the treachery of the right wing leaders in the cloakmakers' strike does not need repitition. As for the anti-Communist currents now flowing in the trade union movement here, we admit of its presence.

* * *

THERE is an anti-Communist current running through the whole international labor movement as well as in America. It is not surprising. Labor leaders who demand and insist on getting a salary raise from $8,000 to $12,000 a year while the members of their union are facing a strike and unemployment have nothing in common with the revolutionary self-sacrificing spirit of Communism. Those fat boys are quite comfortable under capitalism. What social order would give them more in dollars and cents?

* * *

WE have seen the anti-Communists in action in England during the General Strike and afterwards. They called off the general strike thus making a defeat of the miners a certainty. They pulled the guts out of the growing effort of international labor to come to the aid of the miners. They joined with the blackest section of British reaction in attacking the militant leaders of the miners, particularly A. J. Cook. And they did all this for the sake of the robber empire. Those fellows have nothing in common with Communism which aims at the overthrow of the pirate empire and the freeing of all iron heel.

* * *

ON the continent of Europe the leaders of the Amsterdam International are boothlacks for the capitalists. Vandervelde, the socialist premier of Belgium is on tea-drinking terms with the king and queen of Belgium and takes an occasional trip to London to confer with Sir Austen Chamberlain on imperial matters. The labor fakers of Italy have been acting in close co-operation with Mussolini. In Germany they enabled the capitalists to partially recover from the effects of the war and the revolution. Of conrse they are anti-Communist and they are well paid for their anti-Communist rantings.

* * *

IN the I. F. T. U. press service we find a lively defense of the fascist coup in Lithuania. At first the Amsterdam secretariat was somewhat vague about what was taking place. Perhaps the fascists indiscriminately arrested right as well as left trade union leaders. But it now can be safely asserted that after the first few days the Lithuanian government recognized that its policy towards the "free" trade unions while stand aloof from politics, was a mistaken one, and that it is now permitting them to resume their normal activities." So there you are. The fascists are sure of the loyalty of the right wing labor leaders and allow them to resume their "normal activities". They are not so sure of the Communists so they execute them.

* * *

IT is quite in the natural order of things that the labor fakers should organize to preserve their positions. They have vested interests in the capitalist system. Selling the labor power of the union members and selling the union members for a considerable commission is lucrative employment.

(Continued on page 2)

Senate Committee Told No More "Baking King" But Trust Still Lives

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The consent decree entered in the bread merger cases last year killed the ambitions of William B. Ward, New York baking magnate, to become the "baking king of America," A. F. Myers, former special assistant attorney general, today told the Senate Judiciary Committee investigating the "bread trust."

The action also stopped the "combination mania which existed early last year," Myers said.

Senator Walsh (D) of Montana declared the government should have prosecuted the bread mergers in court.

The decision does not prevent the continued existence of the Ward Baking Co., itself a corporation of large proportions. It merely stops the further acquisition of subsidiary companies, in the way familiar under other anti-trust decisions.

'CAL' AND 'KELL' LOOK DUMB BUT THEY ARE LOYAL

Sticking to Secret Deal With the British Gov't

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—There are more different versions of the diplomatic gyrations of "Cal" and "Kell" in the Chinese question than there are interpretations of the bible.

Nevertheless the two Wall Street errand boys are doggedly sticking to their determination to keep the Cantonese out of Shanghai. The pirate powers want to maintain a foothold in China, the United States wants to have as many bases near the Philippines as possible and Great Britain cannot afford to be bounced out of a strategic position without a struggle.

In the meantime Cantonese troops said to be doing everything in their power to rob the imperialists of any excuse for intervention until they have cleaned up on Chang-Tso-Lin and his fellow militarists. With Shanghai in their hands and a united China behind them the nationalist government should be able within a comparatively short time to talk cold turkey to the foreign imperialists.

Observers here point out that hitherto the imperialist powers were able to put up a united front against China and thus block Chinese unity. Now the shoe is on the other foot. After many years of persistent propaganda and organization work the Kuomintang has united the Chinese people and it is only with the exception of the handit Chang-Tso-Lin, the defeated militarist Wu Pei Fu and a few other discredited brigands, have succeeded in convincing the numerous military leaders throughout the country that their interests lie with a strong unified China rather than as parasites sucking the lifeblood of the masses.

The government has refused to divulge information concerning the movements of its fleet in the Orient. The sending of 1,200 marines to China was not intended for publication and the information reached the public only as the result of a "leak."

Cal's Deal Exposed.

Owing to the exposure of Coolidge's secret deal with the British, published in The DAILY WORKER, the president's "spokesman" is trying to explain that only in the event of hostilities in Shanghai will the United States forces co-operate with the British. This is pure hokum designed to deceive the masses.

Nevertheless the powder keg on which both powers happen to be sitting just at this time is in Shanghai and this government's interests in that city are similar to those of Britain, according to state department admission.

SOVIET UNION WILL BUILD HUGE POWER PLANT ON DNIEPER RIVER; NO FOREIGN CONTRACTOR

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has decided to build its own power plant on the Dnieper. The question of contracting for this work to be done by German or American experts was thoroughly gone into, and finally the government decided that there was nothing either in the way of engineering or of workmanship that could not be done just as well directly by the workers' and peasants' government.

The Dnieper River project is a vast enterprise, including the building of an electrical generating plant of 600,000 horsepower, locks and canals to make the river navigable below Ekaterinoslav, railroads to connect the iron ore of Krivoy Rog, the manganese of Nikopol, and the Donetz coal basin all together, and a high power line to carry electricity all over the Ukraine. It will cost about $60,000,000. Col. Cooper, an American, may be engaged as a consulting engineer, but not as a contractor.

U. S. Backing British War on China

Receives England's Support In Latin America in Return

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, (FP).—Through the dust and fog of state department statements that say nothing, and White House utterances that obscure the facts, all the power of American finance and the American navy is emerging as an ally of British imperialism in its resistance to the Chinese working class revolution. That is the meaning of the shipment of 1,200 American marines across the Pacific.

Congress has given no sanction to this Anglo-Mellon alliance, which seems to have divided the world into two spheres for exploitation of subject peoples. But President Coolidge, directed by Secretary Mellon, has assisted Secretary Kellogg to make American policy in China subordinate to that of Britain, while Britain has made her policy in Latin America one of sympathy with any coercion which the Washington government may use against Mexico, Nicaragua or any other republic which may get out of hand.

Here are some points in the recent development of this pact of allotment of loot:

The New Alignment.

In December the state department aligned its forces to combat the enforcement of Mexico's oil land law, and discovered that the Agulla Oil Co., owned by Royal Dutch Shell, which in turn is 51 per cent owned by the British admiralty, was preparing to accept the Mexican law. The Doheny, Mellon and Sinclair interests had agreed with the department to resist the law. Their claims covered only $50,000 to 900,000 acres out of the 28,000,000 acres to which the law applied. On Dec. 27 the Agulla changed its mind and joined the Doheny-Mellon-Sinclair group, thereby making the resistants appear as speaking for the British as well as the United States government.

In December, also, the British consul in Managua, aided by the Italian consul (Britain and Mussolini are in close harmony now) gave aid to Secretary Kellogg's Nicaraguas intervention by asking the American minister for protection for their nationals in Nicaragua.

Hearst Changes Front.

At about that time W. R. Hearst, who for 30 years had been anti-British in his policy as a newspaper and magazine publisher, began a campaign to advertise the idea of a league of English-speaking nations or an Anglo-American imperial alliance. He began to attack the Mexican government, to support the Kellogg policy toward Nicaragua, and to emphasize the "bolshevist peril" in China. He began also the publication of a series of editorials and cartoons ridiculing the independence ideal of the Filipinos, and lauding General Leonard Wood.

Britain's Fishy Offer.

China's revolution endangered British commercial intarests and imperial prestige not merely in China but in India and the mohammedan world in Asia and Africa. Especially did it threaten to bring about, after the final triumph of the Cantonese in China, a revolt in India that would ruin British industries at home and British trade in the East. Britain issued a vague offer of compromise with China's demands. Secretary Kellogg waited a month and then made a similarly vague statement. Meanwhile the British were compelled to negotiate with Canton and to promise surrender of their concessions in China. Secretary Kellogg failed to negotiate with Canton, so far as the American people could learn. When the house committee on foreign affairs urged him to become more explicit in his friendly talk with the Chinese, Kellogg became irritated. The White House also intimated that the administration wanted no advice and no questioning.

So Washington trails Britain in the Orient, but it sends armed men toward China while the British are sending fat army chiefs. And the British assist in the resistance of Mellon to a Mexican examination of the titles of his oil lands.

Rio Has Traffic Problem.

RIO DE JANIERO, Feb. 2.—Mayor Antonio Prado Jr. has invited five prominent city engineers to visit Rio and make suggestions for relieving the traffic.

Editor of American Nationalist Paper Held By Chiang Fang General

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—Francis Zia, editor of an English language nationalist newspaper, issued under a South American registry, has been forcibly abducted by Sun-Chuan-Fang.

This move is believed to be in reprisal for the arrest of, Kent Wells, who is connected with another Chinese newspaper, which is understood to be American owned. Wells was arrested on a British warrant for refusing to pay taxes and failed to prove Chinese nationalization.

Zia is held at the headquarters of Sun-Chuan-Fang, defender of Shanghai, and is threatened with trial for sedition and possible execution.

Representations by the American consul have thus far failed to bring results.

COAL KINGS IN ROYAL BATTLE TO DETERMINE RATES

Both Sides Use Gov't to Serve Their Ends

WASHINGTON (FP.)—Rep. Temple of Pennsylvania has been urged upon President Coolidge for selection to the Interstate Commerce Commission to represent the Mellon-Rockefeller northern coal field in the fixing of coal freight rates. This is the place in the commission to which the Mellon group nominated Cyrus Woods, whose nomination was rejected by the senate after a bitter contest. Senators from West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, representing the non-union coal fields of the south, made the fight against Woods.

Non-Union Senator.

Sen. Neely of West Virginia, Democrat, announces that if Temple is named by the president for a place on the commission, the senators from the non-union coal territory will resist his confirmation on the same ground that they opposed Woods—that a Pennsylvanian put on that tribunal now would prejudice the existing freight rates. The senators from the northern field, in which unions exist, declare that the freight rates applied. On Dec. 27 the Agulla changed its mind and joined the Doheny-Mellon-Sinclair group, thereby making the resistants appear as speaking for the British as well as the United States government.

In December, also, the British consul in Managua, aided by the Italian consul (Britain and Mussolini are in close harmony now) gave aid to Secretary Kellogg's Nicaraguas intervention by asking the American minister for protection for their nationals in Nicaragua.

Hearst Changes Front.

At about that time W. R. Hearst, who for 30 years had been anti-British in his policy as a newspaper and magazine publisher, began a campaign to advertise the idea of a league of English-speaking nations or an Anglo-American imperial alliance. He began to attack the Mexican government, to support the Kellogg policy toward Nicaragua, and to emphasize the "bolshevist peril" in China. He began also the publication of a series of editorials and cartoons ridiculing the independence ideal of the Filipinos, and lauding General Leonard Wood.

Britain's Fishy Offer.

China's revolution endangered British commercial intarests and imperial prestige not merely in China but in India and the mohammedan world in Asia and Africa. Especially did it threaten to bring about, after the final triumph of the Cantonese in China, a revolt in India that would ruin British industries at home and British trade in the East. Britain issued a vague offer of compromise with China's demands. Secretary Kellogg waited a month and then made a similarly vague statement. Meanwhile the British were compelled to negotiate with Canton and to promise surrender of their concessions in China. Secretary Kellogg failed to negotiate with Canton, so far as the American people could learn. When the house committee on foreign affairs urged him to become more explicit in his friendly talk with the Chinese, Kellogg became irritated. The White House also intimated that the administration wanted no advice and no questioning.

So Washington trails Britain in the Orient, but it sends armed men toward China while the British are sending fat army chiefs. And the British assist in the resistance of Mellon to a Mexican examination of the titles of his oil lands.

Rio Has Traffic Problem.

RIO DE JANIERO, Feb. 2.—Mayor Antonio Prado Jr. has invited five prominent city engineers to visit Rio and make suggestions for relieving the traffic.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

MEXICO DECLARES CLERICAL REVOLT THOROLY CRUSHED

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—The Mexican government today considers the various rebellions against the Calles administration as completely smothered.

As a result the war department has issued a ten-day general amnesty extending to February 12, during which time all those in rebellions against the government are asked to surrender. All rebels who have not surrendered before that time will be declared outlaws, and will be executed upon capture.

Informal Committee Of Indianapolis Car Employes Ask Raise

INDIANAPOLIS, (FP).—Echoes of the bitter street car strike of 1926 are heard in the demand of three employes for a living wage and for reinstatement of victimized strikers. Instead of 42c the men ask 65c an hour. Traction officials are worried, as the three men are known to represent informally the street car men who are reorganizing the union. The company has taken the demands "under consideration."

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Cantonese Decisively Beat Fang's Armies

Nationalist Troops Now Closing In on Shanghai; City's Fall Expected Soon

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—Decisively defeated by the Cantonese in a major battle, the army of Sun Chuan-Fang is fleeing in disorder along their entire front in Chekiang province.

Sun's troops were charged with the defense of Shanghai. It is now believed that this prize city will fall to the Nationalist government troops before the arrival of a sufficient body of British troops to hold it for the imperialists.

The Cantonese were reinforced by Chekiang troops that deserted the imperialist cause.

The Cantonese forces are commandeering foreign vessels for the transportation of nationalist troops.

French, Swedish and Japanese steamers at various points have been taken over by the nationalists for carrying their troops to Hankow, where the nationalists are being concentrated for a counter-move against the southward advance of the Manchurian forces of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin.

A report from Mukden, Chang's headquarters, said Chang's officers have declared that if a single Chinese is killed at Shanhai as a result of the influx of foreign troops, his officers will force Chang Tso-Lin to join the Cantonese forces against the British.

It is said that Chang fears a revolt at his base in Manchuria at the first sign of defeat.

(Continued on page 2)

Outline of Britain's Proposals to Cantonese

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Great Britain's proposals to China are being published tonight.

The high lights of the proposals are as follows:

Great Britain agrees to "revision" of the present treaties.

Great Britain agrees to "share" with the Chinese the administration of areas where Great Britain has concessions.

Great Britain agrees to recognise "modern" Chinese law courts.

Great Britain agrees that its subjects shall pay all taxes levied which

(Continued on page 2)

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL ASSAILS INVASION OF NICARAGUA; CALLS ON WORKERS TO PROTEST

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—The naval blocade of Nicaragua and the military occupation of that country by United States forces are but episodes in the process of the consecutive colonization of Latin-America by North American imperialism, which having enriched itself on the world war by unslaving all peoples now throws off the democratic mask and treads the open road to the enslavement of the small countries of Central America, turning them into colonies of Central America.

This is the gist of the opening paragraph of a manifesto issued by the Communist International protesting against the invasion of Nicaragua by the United States imperialist government and calling on the workers of the United States to protest against this action.

Wall Street Colonies.

The manifesto declares that the United States is turning the Central American states into Wall Street colonies. American imperialism, it continues, is gradually judging England in the countries of South and Central America and has always supported reactionary and subservient governments in those countries, while the politicians of both parties, they have only served to strengthen these enemies and weaken labor and the result is more brutality against labor, savage sentences for those who struggle in the interests of the trade union movement of this country.

Treachery of The Forwards.

The part played by the New York Forwards, the Jewish socialist organ, has been one of a contemptible provocator. By its lies about the conduct of the cloakmakers, its insinuating appeals to the authorities, it has encouraged these sentences. The socialist party by the actions of its leading members, Hillquit, Beckerman and its press, likewise bears responsibility for these brutal sentences.

The workers of the needle trades must know these betrayers for what they are—agents of the employers against organised labor. A broad defense of all workers must be undertaken to free these workers. The workers in the shops must come speedily to their defense. The Workers Party will do everything in its power for their freedom.

DISTRICT EXECUTIVE COM.
William Weinstone, Secretary.

DISTRICT NUMBER TWO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE POINTS TO ROSALSKY'S SAVAGE SENTENCING AS PROOF THAT A LABOR PARTY IS NEEDED

The District Executive Committee of District No. 2 (New York), thru William Weinstone, general secretary, has issued the following statement:

The savage sentences imposed by Judge Rosalsky upon the striking cloakmakers is but another act of brutality which capitalist justice has committed against these workers during their strike against their employers. These sentences are unequalled for severity in the history of the labor movement. They should call forth the deepest protest by organized labor thruout the city.

These workers were "guilty" of defending themselves against the attacks of the hired sluggers of the employers, the gangsters and gunmen, whom the bosses employ in order to defeat strikes and beat the workers back to the shops. Judge Rosalsky in sentencing them has followed in the footsteps of those brutal judges who during the course of the strike gave their support to the police in their mass arrests, by issued injunctions against the strike and who made up part of the conspiracy to terrorize the workers in the interests of the employers.

Fights for Employers.

The acts of Judge Rosalsky are no more surprising than the acts of the Tammany and republican judges in their conduct during the strike. Rosalsky, who has sought to make a record in servility to the bonrgeois order and achieve the notoriety of a Judge Jeffries in brutality and savagery toward those appearing before him, is attempting to preserve the sanctity of bourgeois order and mercilessness toward offenders. He has carried over this savagery to union men guilty only of pursuing their hard-won right to strike and picket.

Reason for Labor Party.

The brutality of the courts, their reactionary class injunctions and to imprison workers, is due not only to the fact that they are servants of capitalism but also because labor has no weapon on the political field with which to give the answer to this open use of the courts and state against the workers. The lesson of this injunctionsant, as the lesson of the acts of our governor, of our courts, of our police, of the industrial squad, is the need for clashing out these old-time two-party politicians and establishing a Labor Party.

Recognize Sigman's Hand.

At the same time the workers must not overlook the part played in the imprisonment of these workers by the Sigman right-wing reactionary group. Their acts of splitting the union have encouraged all the enemies of the labor movement, who exploit every weakness of labor for their immediate advantages. By their acts of collaboration and servility to these politicians of both parties, they have only served to strengthen these enemies and weaken labor and the result is more brutality against labor, savage sentences for those who struggle in the interests of the trade union movement of this country.

Treachery of The Forwards.

The part played by the New York Forwards, the Jewish socialist organ, has been one of a contemptible provocator. By its lies about the conduct of the cloakmakers, its insinuating appeals to the authorities, it has encouraged these sentences. The socialist party by the actions of its leading members, Hillquit, Beckerman and its press, likewise bears responsibility for these brutal sentences.

The workers of the needle trades must know these betrayers for what they are—agents of the employers against organised labor. A broad defense of all workers must be undertaken to free these workers. The workers in the shops must come speedily to their defense. The Workers Party will do everything in its power for their freedom.

DISTRICT EXECUTIVE COM.
William Weinstone, Secretary.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

STILL PERSECUTED FOR OPPOSITION TO WORLD WAR

Objector Elected to Office Must Fight for It

WASHINGTON (FP). — Tyre Dawson, of Glen Rose, Tex., who was elected county attorney for Somervell county, that state, last November, has appealed to Rep. Victor L. Berger, Socialist, for information as to whether his war-time conviction under the espionage law will bar him from serving as a county officer.

Deacon was convicted as an opponent of the war policy of the Wilson administration, as were many other pacifists in the Southwest, and he was sentenced to serve 18 months in Leavenworth prison. At the end of 9½ months he was pardoned. Now his political enemies have brought qua warranto proceedings to prevent his acting as county prosecutor. They claim he cannot hold office because he was not pardoned.

Deacon inquires whether there was ever issued a general amnesty which restored citizenship rights to all political prisoners.

No Amnesty Granted.

No such amnesty was ever granted. Prisoners were paroled, not pardoned, although pardons were secured by some of them, afterward, on their formal application.

When a nation-wide appeal for a pardon to clear the record of Eugene V. Debs was sent to President Coolidge he referred it to the Department of Justice, which unofficially declared that his conviction and sentence had not deprived him of citizenship. It claimed that if he were deprived of the right to vote or hold office in his state, that would be due to state laws.

Deacon will be supplied with a blank on which he may apply for a pardon to clear his federal citizenship record. But the case against him in Texas will rest on state law, if there be any.

U. S. Waits British O. K.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. — The American government is ready to designate diplomatic representatives to the Irish Free State and to Canada whenever the British government signifies that such appointments are acceptable, it was said at the state department today concerning reports from London that Frederick A. Sterling, counsellor of the American embassy, would be selected as the American envoy to Ireland.

Goethe's Hair For Sale.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—A lock of hair that belonged to Goethe will be auctioned off at Leipzig February 8. It is valued at $125.

A PEEP AT THE LE... IN JOHN L. LEWIS'S HOME

By JACK KENNEDY
DISPATCH (FP) Press Correspondent

...ed Mine Workers' Journal, all also had deserted the Lewis banner on this issue or democracy in the U. S. would have no chance of success.

Lewis Mum on Proposal.

Instead of a solid body of angrily denouncing Brewster's table on the platform, they delivered their bloody attacks only against the latest outbreak by the insurgents.

Bittner Feeded Weakly.

Bittner himself, calls to measure up to the Lewis crowd either in tree-hunting or mining. He flooded washington the best women elected to office. Reading his proposed constitutional amendment, he moved adoption. Hindmarsh, the aggressive independent from Illinois, asked him very decently to state his reasons for the change.

"It's none of your damned business," Bittner retorted, in effect, again Hindmarsh pressed for a real answer. Bittner flew into a rage and appealed to the chair to "preserve order." That started the fireworks which led to the machine's derailment.

A dozen minor figures fought actively for recognition in Lewis' eyes as capable machine lieutenants. They tried to out-Lewis Lewis in attacks on the progressives, on union democracy and on the rank and file. Petty men, they seemed puny Mussolinis trying to catch the eye of Big Benito himself.

Outline of British Proposals to Canton

(Continued from page 1).

are not "confiscatory or discriminatory."

Since there is as yet no "recognized" government in Southern China, Great Britain proposes that these proposals be incorporated in local agreements until such a time as it is possible to draw up a treaty with a "recognized" government.

• • •

EDITORIAL NOTE.

The DAILY WORKER calls attention to the "catches" in the British proposals by putting the key words in quotes. The word "revision" can mean anything that superior military power can weave into it. The British are willing to "share" the administration of British concessions with the Cantonese. The latter simply say it is "their right" to do so. And they will run our own country." Great Britain is willing to trust the lives of her subjects to "modern" Chinese courts. This is an evasion. British subjects shall pay taxes provided they are not "confiscatory or discriminatory." Of course. And another pole is angling for a treaty. But the fundamental fact that Great Britain fails to recognize the Cantonese government.

Britain was sparring for time hoping that it would inveigle the Cantonese into an atmosphere of delusory peace while its armed forces were speeded to Shanghai. Britain knew that an engagement between the Cantonese and Sun Chuan-Fang's forces was impending and hoped for a Cantonese defeat. This hope is now dissipated. Perhaps the Cantonese will be too busy between now and their arrival in Shanghai to talk to the British, except with cannon.

There are persistent reports from Washington that Coolidge is prepared to cooperate with the British in keeping the Cantonese out of Shanghai.

So far France has not taken a position one way or the other and Japan is reported to be conducting independent negotiations with the Cantonese. From what we know at the present time the capitalist powers have not yet arrived at a common policy towards China. What they may do when the revolutionary armies reach Canton remains to be seen, tho all Washington reports indicate that Coolidge is determined to carry out the implications of his secret deal with the British.

• • •

CantonForeign Minister Cables British Workers

British Troop Concentrations.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—"A settlement can be reached at once if there is a cessation of the war atmosphere and the war memorials created by the menacing concentration of British troops at Shanghai", declared Eugene Chen, Chinese nationalist leader, in a cablegram to British labor published here today.

Guaranteed Protection.

"The object of these war-like measures", said Chen's cablegram "is said to be to guard against British lives and property being put in jeopardy by the forcible seizure of the international settlement at Shanghai. If this is the real aim and purpose of the British concentration there ought not to be any longer any anxiety or fear in view of categorical statements I have made today to the British representatives."

Chen appended to his cablegram

Two to One Grip on United States Senate

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

THE political year of 1927 promises two contests of more than usual importance in the election of the United States senate to start construction work immediately on their new senate quarters.

British imperialistic statements, ominous advocates of "an adequate navy," the "bigger navy" politicians of France, with the support even of Mussolini's militarist government developing an expansionist program, will all clamor a little louder, as a result, for more battleships of their own, just as the American jingo press has been publishing the pictures of the latest pattern war cruisers of Great Britain and Japan, as the war hysteria breeding press of London and Tokio will now reproduce the likeness of the new American battlers for "dollar diplomacy," thus whetting the native appetite for human slaughter. The armament struggle between Great Britain, France and Germany, in the days before 1914, is thus expanded to world proportions.

• • •

The senate vote is heralded as a "defeat" for Coolidge's economy program. While Coolidge holds his hands in Old New England fashion on the purse strings of the treasury, the bigger navy crowd, that contends the senate, feels that it can swill away as it sees fit the money exacted from the masses of the nation. Incidentally the vote is just another nail in the coffin of Coolidge's presidential aspirations for 1928, by which time the war preparations of American imperialism, with the rapidly developing situations in Mexico, Nicaragua and China, will have called for many more than the three insignificant scout cruisers now favored.

• • •

The president was defeated by an alliance of democrats and republicans. In fact the democrat cast the larger share of the votes against the White House. The measure was passed with 25 democrats and only 24 republicans voting for it, thus allowing the so-called anti-war opposition party (democrats) in congress to dictate the "greater preparedness" program of the Wall Street government. Pepper, the steel-coal-railroad senator from Pennsylvania, votes side-by-side with Tammany Hall's Senator Copeland from New York. Couzens, the Michigan progressive, with Wheeler Arizona, work with Coolidge's president.

In the new building program.

Perhaps this vote represents opinion militarism will learn that Senator McNary, of Oregon, who was selected to introduce the Mc-Nary farm relief bill in the senate, stood side by side with Senator Stock, the democrat, from bankrupt Iowa, in upholding more money for death-dealing floating fortresses.

• • •

Only 15 republicans, along with eight democrats, voted with the president. The latter included most of the farm bloc, with a scattering of democrats, from all sections of the country, and shipstead, the farmer-labor senator from Minnesota. This aggregation includes those who are the most vicious critics of the president on other issues, altho the teeth of their anti-White House attack have been almost completely drawn.

• • •

The vote indicates the weakness of any real anti-war sentiment in the United States senate. The war group has a majority, on this showing, of at least two to one. An increased number, including Borah, Capper, Deneen, Ernst, Gillett and Lenroot, among the republicans alone, who voted against the cruisers, can easily be beaten into line for the past declaration of actual war against Mexico, Nicaragua or China.

• • •

Workers and farmers, therefore, who harbor the illusion that congress will "stop the war," should awaken from their comfortable dreams and realize the actual situation confronting them. Congress is one of the least obstacles in the path toward the new slaughter abyss.

• • •

The biggest obstacle that can be offered to the mailed fist of U. S. imperialism is the might of the working class. The favorable vote for the eight new cruisers is a danger signal to all labor to organize for greater struggles against the approaching war. No cannon fodder for the imperialists. No more battleships for "dollar diplomacy." No shipment of munitions to the new battlefronts. Thus labor develops class strength to defeat the next imperialist slaughter.

CURRENT EVENTS

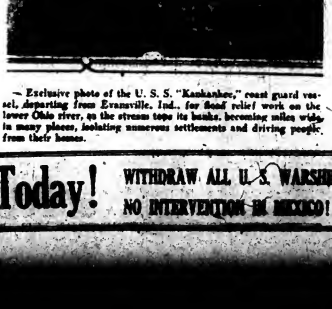
(Continued from page 1).

Indeed there are many business men who would swap places with our $10,000, $15,000 and $25,000 a year "bonafide" labor leaders. The road to Communism is not even always paved with nickels and dimes. But the workers will take this road because it is the only one out of the wilderness. And they will switch the anti-Communist currents into other channels.

• • •

HALF a dozen conflicting propaganda agencies are sending their subversions of what is taking place in China over the wires, not only from China but from London and Washington. The busiest of the lie foundries is the British agency. The American government uses the Associated Press which is quite willing to do any dirty work the state department may require of it. It should not be forgotten that it was the Associated Press that peddled Kellogg's yarn about a Communist "conspiracy" in South America as well, as if the Communists of all countries and the Communist International do not put their propaganda on the air whenever they get a chance rather than consign it to the cellar.

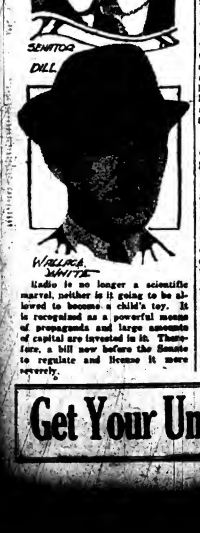
• • •



FOR a long time the British press agencies sought to make it appear that Japan was willing to join the wolf pack. For good and sufficient reasons of her own, it appears that Japan is not. This may not be palatable reading material to those who demand a monotonous howl of rage instead of facts. We cannot determine the fate of the Chinese revolution by saying that black is white, or Japan is out to grab her loot wherever she can find it and with the least loss. Neither is France willing to do much more than twist the Parisian mustache. A Japanese dispatch says that France will not insist on the retention of her Chinese concessions. Perhaps, and perhaps not.

• • •

IN critical times like this the newspapers will publish any yarn no matter how fantastic knowing that it will be at least read, if not believed. During the world war every allied government had hired men on the American capitalist press engaged in the manufacture of lies. George Creel was our own master liar. He was dishing submarines and destroying the German navy in the middle of the Atlantic, when the kaiser's warships were safe in Kiel. Should a war with China break, it will not end as such. The seeds of a world conflagration have been sown on Chinese soil by world imperialism. It will be a big season for liars and maybe their last.



Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

U. S. Sends Flood Relief Boat on Ohio

— Exclusive photo of the U. S. S. "Kankakee," coast guard vessel, departing from Evansville, Ind., for flood relief work on the lower Ohio river, as the stream tops its banks, becoming miles wide in many places, isolating numerous settlements and driving people from their homes.

Frame Radio Bill

Radio is no longer a scientific marvel, neither is it going to be allowed to become a child's toy. It is recognized as a powerful means of propaganda and large amounts of capital are invested in it. Therefore, a bill now before the Senate to regulate and license it more severely.

...WS IN BRIEF

...ed Wednesday, Feb. 2, 1927.

...ATTACK—Fred Ott, 27, of ... was found in the ... Central Theatre ... Police said he had ... and that he had ... analyzed it as "iron mineral water."

Cross With Auto Traffic.

Seeking to speed up the movement of pedestrians in a Ninth Avenue subway, the "L" trains were halted in the cross walks today in a crew with orders to make stops south of the Bedford Park station of the I. R. T.

Ghosts, Letters Come High.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The letters of George Bernard Shaw have a higher market price than those of any other living author, according to experts here, following a sale of some documents.

Two of his letters and a postcard were sold, with a copy of Henderson's critical biography, for $350 and are intended for resale in New York.

Has Cure for Rickets.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—After years of research, Professor A. Windaus of the University of Goettingen has succeeded in isolating and producing artificially abusive vitamins, absence of which causes under-nourishment and rickets, no matter how much the patient eats.

Correction—The Lenin memorial meeting previously reported as having been held in Frewsburg, N. Y., actually took place in the neighboring town of Jamestown.

Firebug Is Busy.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 2.—A "firebug" today was believed responsible for fires which destroyed the convalescent ward of the University General Hospital and damaged the Jennings House nearby, last night. The loss is $150,000.

Blast in Film Plant.

WEST FORT LEE, N. J., Feb. 2—Three men were seriously burned in a mysterious explosion today which wrecked the two-story film reduction plant of the Cello Film Company, here, showering the stucco and laboratory of the Universal Pictures Corporation with burning debris.

Ten Firemen Near Death.

Ten firemen, including Fire Chief Keulon, miraculously escaped death when the top floor collapsed at a blaze which did $1,000,000 damage to a building on Broadway, opposite the Hotel Astoria. The place was occupied by Milgrim, exclusive women's clothing store.

Leather Factories Burn.

WOBURN, Mass., Feb. 2.—This city was thrown into a furore of excitement today as two leather factories burned and sparks started fifty food fires. Fire officials estimated that the fire damage would be over $100,000.

Bill To Raise Bus Fare.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 2.—If a bill, introduced into the legislature by Assemblyman Dyckman, Republican of Kings, should be enacted into law, bus fares in greater New York might be increased from 5 cents. It was declared today at the capitol.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Sacasa Reported Ready To Accept Mediation Offer in Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Dr. T. C. Vara, representative of the Nicaragua liberal government, alleged at the state department late today and announced he would accept in the name of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, liberal president, the offer of Secretary Kellogg to mediate the present trouble in Nicaragua.

As a condition, Vara said both Sacasa and Adolfo Diaz, whom the United States recognizes as president, must retire from the scene and a new president selected.

• • •

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. — The American government will not recognize Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, claimant to the Presidency of Nicaragua, even should he be completely successful in his revolution against the Diaz government, Secretary of State Kellogg said today.

The state department, he said, would recognize any president of Nicaragua, however, who gained the position by "constitutional means." Sacasa is considered a revolutionist.

• • •

Adolfo Diaz, recognized by the state department as president of Nicaragua, is a personal friend and long time associate of the usurper, Chamorro, who seized power by revolutionary means. The United States refused to recognize him, first recognized his agent to whom he delivered the presidency. Sacasa is recognized as president by Mexico and other Latin American republics.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

ALL [illegible]

Imperial Chairman's Decision Not Partial

[illegible] Board of Arbitration [illegible] Joseph V. McKee [illegible] the Industrial Council [illegible] not affect the [illegible] of complaints by the Joint Board of Cloakmakers' Dressmakers' U. L. G. W. which is the register agency for the handling of complaints.

Hyman Explains.

In commenting upon the decision, Louis Hyman, member of the Joint Board, points out that "the decision will not prevent the Joint Board from functioning as usual. We will proceed to take up complaints of workers and use all means to adjust them. The majority of the workers are with us, and they are the ones to decide whom they wish to represent them in complaints, as well as in other matters".

Mr. Hyman said further that "The Impartial chairman has been careful to point out that he did not base his decision on the merits of the dispute, but merely acted for convenience in the operation of the impartial machinery."

Dodge Issues.

The Impartial chairman, in a long statement accompanying his decision bases his action upon the character of the impartial machinery, which deals with all factors in the industry. He declares that two of the factors, the jobbers and the American Association, have made agreements with the International and that since this is so, confusion would result in carrying on the business of the impartial machinery should the third factor, the Industrial council, take up complaints with any other body.

A long argument as to the "unity" of the union and the difficulties involved in the factional dispute concludes with the statement that "unity is necessary for the protection of the workers' rights", but fails to make any mention of the causes of the present disunity.

Ignores Question.

The whole question of the right of the International to summarily expel by resolution its entire Joint Board and the officers of locals without proper filing of charges, notice, or trial,—the entire unconstitutional procedure is entirely ignored. "It is not the function, habit, or desire of the chairman to interfere in the internal affairs and controversies of any organization," the statement says.

Central Trades to Discuss Injunctions On Thursday Night

The meeting tonight of the Central Trades and Labor Council to be held at Beethoven Hall will discuss a bill to be introduced in Albany to regulate the issuing of injunctions in labor disputes. Speakers will include John Sullivan, President of the New York State Federation of Labor; John O'Hanlon, Secretary of the State Federation and Assemblyman Frederick Hackenberg.

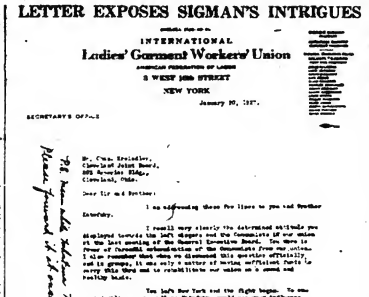
The armies of the Manchurian and ex-bandit occupying the capital of China. The government of Peking now exists only on paper. Chang was the tool of Japanese imperialism in China, the there are reports now current that the British are trying to purchase him. Considerable suspicion is cast on the dictator's motives owing to his failure to move south against the victorious Cantonese.

MAYOR'S MEETING FAILS TO SETTLE BOXMAKER STRIKE

Bosses Absent Again—Another Call Sent

The meeting yesterday between acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, substituting for Mayor Walker, now on a vacation, and the striking paper box workers' delegation was indecisive. The employers again failed to appear, other than to send a letter saying that they did not believe there was any strike.

Inasmuch as Mayor McKee, as at least the nominal head of the police department could not but have heard of the great parade of paper box strikers the day before, clubbed by a cordon of police, and charged into by a mounted policeman, this argument sounded rather flat.



Hurried Hearing

The Mayor hurried the interview through, merely promising that he would "do justice," and setting Friday as the date of another conference, at which the employers are to be more urgently requested to attend. A resolution prepared by Arthur Garfield Hayes was carried, instructing the manufacturers to respect the call of the Mayor and appear, and the police to be neutral.

The Troops Present.

Immediately after the interview, Mayor McKee tripped down the steps to inspect a detachment of marines, drawn up for that purpose. The military display was for the purpose of encouraging enlistments. The recruiting officers were present, and circulated among the crowd as soon as the marines were returned by the acting mayor to the command of their own officers.

LETTER EXPOSES SIGMAN'S INTRIGUES

INTERNATIONAL
Ladies' Garment Workers' Union
AFFILIATED FEDERATION OF LABOR
3 WEST 16th STREET
NEW YORK

January 10, 1927.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE

Mr. Chas. Bruehaus,
Cleveland Joint Board,
801 Citizens Bldg.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Sir and Brother:

I am addressing these few lines to you and Brother Saturday.

I recall very clearly the determined attitude you displayed towards the left wingers and the Communists at our union meeting the last meeting of the General Executive Board. You were in favor of forceful extermination of the Communists from our unions. I also remember that when we discussed this question officially and in groups, it was only a matter of terms, sufficient facts to enjoy this idea and to establish it as our union as a sound and healthy basis.

You left New York and the fight began. To the present date you, as well as Saturday, would see your brethren [illegible] spending money for their campaign. You were down your throats in your field during the elections strike, which resulted in such a disastrous end. I believe that in justice to all you should be sure at this time you have done for the strike, as the movement of this right element is much more obvious, as will have sufficient funds to go there with that we have undertaken. If we will not get the necessary cooperation from our own then our fight cannot be crowned with the success it deserves.

Practical Reasons and I urge both you and Brother Saturday to exert all your influence and energy to immediately [illegible] this from us and to see from other organizations where money is available. You may get this money in donations or by a loan.

Please remember the importance of this work and start to raise money at once.

Yours fraternally,

Abraham Baroff
General Secretary-Treasurer

A photographic reproduction of a letter appears on this page. It was sent by Abraham Baroff, general secretary of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union to officials of the union in Cleveland, urging them to get busy and raise money by fair means or foul, with which to "exterminate the Communists from our union." It complains that the person to whom it is addressed has not carried out the decisions against the left wing arrived at, not only at the General Executive Board meeting, but at various secret, unofficial meetings also held among right wingers, before the International "took over the affairs of the Joint Board."

Since one of Sigman's complaints is that the left wing holds "secret meetings," these signed revelations are very important.

The letter also proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that the right wing International officials are vastly more interested in raking in money for the war against the left wing than in winning strikes for the workers.

PARK AVENUE SPENDING IS LITTLE DIFFERENT FROM BARGAINING ON THIRD AVENUE; SPEND TWO HUNDRED AND EIGHTY MILLION ON FUN

(By ESTHER LOWELL, Federated Press)

Four thousand families living on three miles of a single street in New York spend $280,000,000 a year for their personal pleasures. Residents on Park Avenue have annual average incomes of more than 75,000 and some get more than a million yearly.

Park Avenue is a staring street of brick and concrete and stone. Its crowded Manhattan It is perhaps the widest and cleanest thoroughfare. Its sides are lined with the most modern apartment hotels towering balkily into the skies. Underneath its paved center parkway rush New York Central and New York, New Haven and Hartford trains almost unheard.

They Walk The Dog.

People parade on Park Avenue. People who have time to promenade. People whose names are listed in the ocial rgister. People of America's money - aristocracy. Fashionably dressed women with Pekinese and Pomerian pups, or police dogs or sire-haired terriers, according to the prevailing pet fad. People stepping into handsome limousines with smartly uniformed chauffeurs and doormen attending.

William Ewing, one of J. P. Morgan & Co, partners, resides on Park Avenue. Another dweller is Robert A. Lovett of Brown Bros., banking firm with foreign interests. H. R. Mallinson, one of the biggest silk manufacturers, has a Park Avenue address. William F. Cutler, vice president American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co., lives on this street of Gold. Warren B. Nash, treasurer New York Stock Exchange, has a residence there.

But read the bills! The Park Avenue Assn. tells the story, boasting that this successor to New York's old Fifth Avenue grand display of wealth "leads the world in conspicuous private ornamental playing power." Here's how they spend (and the association says that 25 to 50 per cent can safely be added to most of these estimates from its survey):

Average Expenditure Per Year.
Amusements, theaters, cabarets.	$ 5,000,000
Art galleries, antiques	15,000,000
Automobiles	10,000,000
Auto renting	1,000,000
Candies	2,000,000
Charity	5,000,000
Drugs and perfumes	4,000,000
Electric appliances	2,000,000
Flowers (no gardens on Park Ave.)	3,000,000
Foodstuffs	20,000,000
Furniture, decoration	15,000,000
Furs	16,000,000
Garaging	5,000,000
Gift things	5,000,000
Glass and china	15,000,000
Hairdressing, beautifying	4,000,000
Hardware	2,000,000
Jewelry	20,000,000
Laundries and cleaners	2,500,000
Leather goods	2,000,000
Linens, laces, etc.	5,000,000
Men's shoes	2,000,000
Men's wear	15,000,000
Moving and storage	1,000,000
Millinery	7,000,000
Music, pianos, etc.	2,500,000
Rentals of real estate	18,000,000
Restaurants and catering	10,000,000
Stationery	2,000,000
Traveling	18,000,000
Women's shoes	4,000,000
Women's wear	20,000,000
Yachts	7,000,000

FOR CONVENTION OF FUR WORKERS

Locals Recall Winnik, Sorkin, Dissen

The demand for a May convention of the International Fur Workers' union, and the results of the executive meetings which convened at Monday night's local meetings, were the absorbing topics of conversation among fur workers in the shops today.

The demand for the convention has been made last week by the Joint Board, but the membership of Locals 1, 5, 6, 10 and 15, meeting at Stuyvesant Casino, Manhattan Lyceum, Astoria Hall and Webster Hall Monday night added its approval by voting unanimously for the immediate issuing of the call for this convention "in view of the chaotic conditions which at present exist in the International because of the ruinous policies of the administration officials."

Vice-presidents Recalled.

Then after condemning the action of the International in expelling A. Gross from the vice-presidency, the members of the locals proceeded to recall each of the vice-presidents representing them and in their places elected new members who are known to have the workers' interests at heart.

What an ironic circumstance that while Vice-president I. Winnik was being howled down in Newark, his own Local No. 1, was voting to replace him by S. Lielowitz; and while Sorkin was being called a rat by Local 25, Local 10 disowned him and elected I. Cohen in his place. Local 5, after condemning (from expulsion, elected I. Schiller as a temporary vice-president in his place; and Local 15, voted to recall I. Dissen and elect Mrs. Fanny Warshovsky in his place.

All the local meetings passed resolutions denouncing the International's expulsion policy; another condemning injunctions and particularly the use of the injunction by the International's officials against Local 25; and many resolutions condemning Judge Rosalsky and his brutal sentences to the cloak strikers.

The fur workers pledged their whole-heartede support to the cloakmakers in their efforts to free the workers from prison, and in their fight against the traitorous leaders of the I. L. G. W. U.

PREPARATIONS GO ON FOR GARMENT WORKERS' VOTING

Preparations are continuing to hold the regular, the delayed, election for officers and executive board members of Locals 2, 9 and 25, International Ladies' Garment Workers, in New York. It was for the purpose of discussing this situation, and explaining the necessity of the elections that the great mass meetings were held Monday night in Cooper Union and Manhattan Lyceum.

Elections in these locals, the three which the International attempted to "reorganize," have been due since December, but in spite of the repeated protests of the members demanding the holding of the elections, the International has refused to allow them to be held.

Appointment of "temporary officers" from among elements long since discredited in the union, threw the locals into a chaotic condition, since the "fake" officers insisted in making claims as the representatives of the workers.

Throwing the whole force of their great memberships behind the men whom they had elected as their officers, the locals held nominating meetings,—the shop chairmen elected the Impartial Council of Shop Chairmen to arrange elections,—and when Sigman refused to allow them to be held, authorized the Council to hold them.

Repulse Guerillas.

Sixty ricketa before the Rosenberg and Erskine shop at 345 West 36th street, were attacked by a gang of guerillas early Monday morning, but succeeded in maintaining their line unbroken and repulsed the attack. There were no arrests.

Morris Novick, a cloakmaker of local 2, was acquitted of a charge of assault in Special Sessions, Part VI, on Monday and was discharged. He was charged with beating up a scab in the shop of Simon, Goodman and Lipshitz during the cloakmakers' strike, and the case was pushed by the firm.

Morris Novick, local 2, who was charged during the cloakmakers' strike with assault in the second degree, in connection with picket line activities, was found not guilty and was discharged Monday morning in special sessions court, part VI.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Address all mail for The DAILY WORKER to 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKERS' Carnival - Bazaar

February 25, 26, 27

AT THE ASHLAND AUDITORIUM

Ashland Ave. and Van Buren

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT. 30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

Join the Ranks of the Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the message of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual subs (or $30.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $3.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $300.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Groper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bales, F. Jerger, F. G. Yoos, G. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly, Communist, Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language press and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language press should push The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering a good deal. We are planning to award them at the May 1 Celebrations throughout the country.

A special offer should be made for Workers Academy Subscriptions.

will be given to the best city in each district.

Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

QUOTAS

District 1. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island. $1,800 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.

District 2. New York City and vicinity—part of New Jersey. 10,000 readers.

District 3. Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, West'rn New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and W shington, D. C. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.

District 4. Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Western part of New York State. $600 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.

District 5. Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.

District 6. Cleveland and the State of Ohio. $600 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.

District 7. Detroit, Toledo, Saginaw, and Eastern Indiana. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.

District 8. Chicago, Gary, Indiana, Lower Wisconsin, Missouri, and Lake Counties. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.

District 9. Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan (Upper peninsula), and Northern Illinois. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.

District 10. Seattle, Duluth, North Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa. $600 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.

District 11. Montana, Wisconsin, Idaho, Wyoming. $240 worth of subscriptions or 40 annual subscriptions.

District 12. Utah, Colorado, New Mexico. $600 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.

District 13. California. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.

District 14. Nevada, Arizona, Texas. $120 worth of subscriptions or 20 annual subscriptions.

District 15. Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. $840 worth of subscriptions or 140 annual subscriptions.

District [illegible] Active workers in the [illegible] cities on the basis of the number of party members, every Worker subscriber and sympathizer.

DAILY WORKER
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

Workers Defense Paper

The Sources of Antagonisms Within the Party

Editor's note—The accompanying article is an extract from the report of Comrade Stalin, of the Russian Communist Party, to the Enlarged Executive Committee Meeting of the Communist International.

WHERE do these antagonisms originate from, what are their sources?

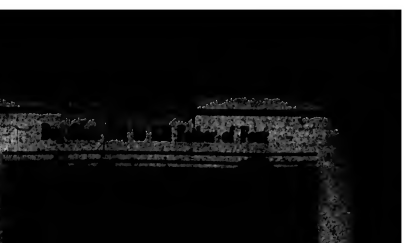
I think that the antagonisms within proletarian parties originate from two circumstances. What are these?

These are, first: the pressure of the bourgeoisie and of bourgeois ideology upon the proletariat and its party in the course of the class struggle, the pressure to which the more irresolute sections of the proletariat, and that means the wavering sections in the party, not infrequently succumb. We must not think that the proletariat is completely isolated from society, or that it stands apart from society. The proletariat is part of society and connected with it through its diversified strata by numerous threads. The party is part of the proletariat, and for that reason the party cannot escape the contacts and influence of the diversified strata of bourgeois society. The pressure of the bourgeoisie and its ideology upon the proletariat and upon its party results in bourgeois ideas, morals, habits and moods, not infrequently penetrating into the proletariat and its party through the medium of certain strata of the proletariat connected in one way or another with bourgeois society.

Secondly, it is the diversified character of the working class, the fact that it is made up of various strata. I think that the proletariat as a class may be divided up into three strata: The first stratum—the principal mass of the proletariat, its main core, its most solid part; this is the mass of the "thoroughbred" proletarians who have long ago cut off all contacts with the bourgeoisie. This stratum of the proletariat is the most reliable support of Marxism.

The second stratum; this stratum is composed of those proletarians who have recently emerged from non-proletarian classes; from the peasantry, petty bourgeoisie and intelligentsia. This stratum, having just emerged from non-proletarian classes has brought into the proletarian class its old habits and customs, its wavering and vacillation. This stratum represents the most favorable soil for all sorts of anarchist, semi-anarchist and "ultra-left" groupings.

Finally there is a third stratum. This is the aristocracy of labor, the upper stratum of the working class, the most secure in its conditions compared with the other sections of the proletariat; it strives to compromise with the bourgeoisie; its predominating mood is to adapt itself to the mighty of the earth and to be "respectable." This stratum represents the most favorable soil for avowed reformists and opportunists.



In spite of their apparent difference on the surface, the last two strata of the working class represent a more or less common milieu which fosters opportunism; frank and avowed opportunism when the mood of the aristocracy of labor prevails, and the concealed opportunism of "left" phrases when the mood of that stratum of the working class prevails which has not completely cut itself off from petty bourgeois contacts. There is nothing surprising in the fact that avowed opportunism very frequently coincides with "ultra-left" moods. Lenin has said more than once that "the ultra-left" opposition is the reverse side of right wing Menshevik, avowedly opportunist opposition, and this is absolutely correct. If the "ultra-left" stands for revolution tomorrow, it expects the immediate victory of the revolution; then naturally it must fall into despair; it must become disappointed in revolution if a hitch takes place and the revolution is not immediately victorious.

Naturally, at every turn in the development of the class struggle, on every occasion that the struggle becomes more acute and difficult, the differences of views, the differences in the habits and moods of the various strata of the proletariat must fall in the form of differences in the party, and the pressure of the bourgeoisie and its ideology upon the party must inevitably cause these differences to become more acute and to find an outlet in the form of a struggle within the proletarian party.

These are the sources of the inherent antagonisms and differences within the party.

Can we turn our backs on these antagonisms and differences? No, we cannot. To turn our backs on them would mean to deceive ourselves. Engels was right when he said that it is impossible to conceal differences within the party for long, they can be settled only by fighting them out.

This does not mean that the Party be converted into a debating society. On the contrary, the Party of the proletariat is, and must remain, a fighting organization of the proletariat. I merely wish to say that we must not shut our eyes to differences within the Party if these differences are over questions of principle. I want to say that only by fighting for principle can the proletarian Party withstand the pressure and influence of the bourgeoisie. Only by overcoming internal Party antagonisms can we guarantee the soundness and strength of the Party.

Mrs. Alberta Harrod with her children, Margaret Shirley, 1, in arms, Marie Inez, 4, seated, Geraldine, 6, and William. Insert is a photo of William Turner Harrod, a gassed and shell shocked war veteran under sentence of death for shooting his sister-in-law. His plea of temporary insanity was disregarded. Harrod's mother and wife pleaded with jury and judge, and now with the governor, for his life.

FROM THE CRISIS OF THE FRANC TO A WORSE CRISIS OF STABILIZATION OF THE FRANC GO FRENCH WORKERS DRIVEN ALONG BY POINCARE

By LOUIS De FILIPPIS
(By Mail)

NICE, Jan. 27.—The New Year in France has opened its gates, on which are posted in big letters, "unemployment," "misery," "war." These are the pass words handed over by the old year. In my last letter dealing with the situation in this country, I pointed out how French financial patrons, juggling with the franc, had reduced the workers, peasants and petit bourgeoisie to a pitiful state. In the meantime, they impeded the "left bloc" government from carrying out its democratic policy of causing depreciation of the franc by means of exportation.

Thanks to th vacillation and scarce-crow policy adopted by the majority of parliamentarians of May 11, the barons of finance came out victorious and their victory has gained the return to their service of the man who served them best in the past, and who is their best hope for the future—Poincare of the war, Poincare of the Ruhr, and now Poincare of the misery.

"The Man Who Laughs"

This great man, who laughed at the armed soldiers reposing in cemeteries, who occupied the Ruhr to make Germany pay, who made six thousand speeches, on which he nourished the starving nation during his ministerial career—this great republican, "who has saved the nation each time it faced a catastrophe"—who better than he could be chosen at the critical moment when the franc was precipitating into the abyss? In brief, the vanquished of the 11th of May have dislodged the victors from their stronghold.

Franc Responds.

On the very day that the left bloc ministry toppled over and on which echoes were rumored about that Poincare would form a cabinet of national unity, then, like magic, the franc began to rise a few points. Since the great man's return to power, the franc has speedily risen to double of its former value. All the dupes of the nation rejoiced over this happy resuscitation of a man condemned to political death by universal suffrage.

The Communist party of France had long before the recent advent of Poincare told the workers that all attempts to stabilize the franc would mean increased misery to them, that it would inevitably sharpen the rising cost of living prices, and bring about a serious economic depression with its consequent wave of unemployment and black reaction.

This is all being felt with the passing the old year. In Paris, in the provinces, throughout the land, the industrial wheel is visibly slackening. Workers are being thrown out of the mines, mills and factories by the thousands. Bosses who still have work fire the old men and take on new at reduced wages. A great many establishments only work four hours a day, or three days a week. Many are the homes that are menaced with starvation. The number of workers-suicides is on the increase as the general situation becomes worse.

Unprecedented Exploitation.

Foreign workers are shamefully exploited and driven by the double whip of deportation and unemployment into signing long contracts that amount to slavery at unbelievable conditions. The fee demanded of them in return for a limited right to remain in France has been raised from 68 to 375 francs a year. Their wives and children must pay a like amount. Even the hotel workers, who are mostly all foreigners, have been thrown out of work by the thousands, since the rise of the franc's value has frightened off foreign visitors. Monte Carlo, Nice, Cannes, the whole Riviera, which could not find place for the foreigner-parasites last winter, are almost deserted this year.

Snared in Red Tape.

A number of municipalities have opened labor exchange offices where endless lines of unemployed move slowly to receive what is not sufficient to buy more than a few ounces of bread. God pity those with a large family! And so strong is the red tape system in France, that they are lucky if aid is not refused them altogether!

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

JARDINE INVITES FARMERS TO APE GIGANTIC TRUSTS

Secretary Says Relief Not Desirable

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 2.—W. M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, yesterday delivered an address to 2,500 farmers assembled at the Fifteenth Annual Farmers' Week at Ohio State University. With a perfectly straight face, as though he were in dead seriousness, he advised them that no form of legislation would do them any good, but that what they should rely upon is forming themselves into big business.

Just Imitate Trust.

"The farmer today finds himself in about the same condition that the thousands of American manufacturers found themselves in fifty years ago," said Jardine. "The manufacturers obtained relief through organization and co-operation, finally evolving into the great corporations found in the United States today. They were not legislated into this position. The same condition confronts the farmer."

Jardine did not talk much about the aid the corporations got from railroad rebates, tax dodging, and protective tariff, nor of the direct grants of public lands to some forms of corporate lands. He warned the farmers not to follow too closely in the tracks of the trusts, but approved of the "corporation idea of bargaining."

Divide And Conquer.

The secretary made an appeal to the sectional interests of the farmers of Ohio, saying that any bills which would assist farmers who raised wool or cotton and bought wheat and corn would injure the Ohio farmers. He gave no adequate explanation of the way in which cheap loans, money for moving and marketing crops, and nationalized grain elevators come to be omitted from the proposed farm laws, or would injure any group of farmers.

Fort-Whiteman in Ohio.

CHICAGO.—Lovatt Fort-Whiteman, national organizer for the American Negro Labor Congress, will speak at two mass meetings arranged for him by tha committee in charge. Whiteman is well known to the workers in Mahoning valley and his coming will attract great interest among the steel workers. Workers and their friends are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Warren, O., Feb. 6, 4161/2 South Pine St.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 7, 269 East Federal St., 8 P. M.

Fight Longer Day.

LAWRENCE, Mass. — A mass meeting will be held under the auspices of the Central Labor Union of Lawrence against the bosses' propaganda for a change of hours from 48 to 54. The meeting will be held in the Oliver school hall on Haverhill street, Friday evening, Feb. 11. All workers of Lawrence are urged to attend. Speakers will be announced later.

Dry Drive in England.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—England was introduced today to an American Prohibition crusade. Emil Lewis Tehanthal of South Manchester, Conn., well known prohibition worker in the United States, arrived here and announced his intention of launching a prohibition campaign in England.

DESCRIPTION OF FLAG WORSHIP EXCITES LEGION

Chicago Post Wants to Arrest Professor

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Demands that Prof. Carleton J. H. Hayes of Columbia University make a public apology for his failure to follow the flag cult, were made today by the Naval Post of the American Legion.

In case he does not apologize, the post will ask the New York Department of the Legion to bring criminal libel charges against the professor, charging him with being a disturber of the peace, a seditious agitator and an undesirable citizen.

Hayes was quoted as saying:

"The religion of nationalism has its own churches, images, icons and relics. That the liberty bell for instance, with a crack in its side. Where it was taken across the continent, groups of old ladies flocked to the railroad track to interrupt its progress. They kissed it—yes they kissed the brass side of the relic.

"Then we come to the flag, the stars and stripes. We have a cult for worship of the flag with very curious, liturgical forms, such as barring the head whenever it passes, and draping the bodies of dead soldiers with it when they are about to be buried. And it must never, never be left on its staff after the sun has set, and we oblige school children to get out and stand in regular rows and lift their hands to pledge allegiance to this flag."

Victims of the Duce

ROME, Feb. 2.—The inaugural session of the military court today was signalized by conviction and sentence to a year in jail and a fine of 500 lire of two men charged with using seditious language against the Duce.

"WOMAN AND THE UNIONS"—WORKERS SCHOOL LECTURE BY THERESA WOLFSON—FRIDAY

Theresa Wolfson will lecture at the Workers' School this Friday night, February 4, on the subject, "Woman and the Unions." Miss Wolfson is the author of a recently published book with the title, "The Woman Worker and the Trade Unions." She has for some time been a teacher of the Workers' University.

This is one of a series of lectures and discussions in the course on American Labor Problems given regularly on Friday nights at 8 P. M. at the Workers' School, 108 East 14 Street.

Miss Wolfson is also giving a course on Monday nights at 9:15 P. M., dealing with the Woman in Industry as part of a series of short courses on Problems of Working Class Women. Her Monday night lectures are to be followed by short courses by Leona Smith and Margaret Undjud, dealing with other phases of the same subject.

WORKERS SCHOOL WILL GIVE NEW COURSE ON SOCIAL INTERPRETATION OF LITERATURE; ALL IMPORTANT RECENT WRITERS ANALYSED

A new course in "Social Interpretation of Modern Literature" with Eli B Jacobson as instructor, will begin on Friday, February 18. The course is given every Friday evening between 8 and 8:15 at 108 East 14 St., the headquarters of the Workers' School.

The contemporary literature of France, England and the United States will be taken up as well as a few selected authors from post war revolutionary Russian literature. Among the authors selected for study are Zola, Flanbert, Hugo, Anatole France, Romain Rolland, Barbusse—for France; Shaw, Galsworthy, Wilde, Wells—for England; O'Neill, Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Sherwood Anderson, Upton Sinclair, Jack London, Walt Whitman—for the United States. In addition, there will be a final lecture on Lebedinsky, Myakovsky, Lunacharsky and other contemporary Russian writers.

The term will end with a survey of current tendencies in literature and their social significance, and a discussion of the disputed problem of proletarian culture, its scope and possibilities.

SECTION MEMBERSHIP MEETINGS TO DISCUSS THE RUSSIAN PARTY OPPOSITION

Sec. 3—Thurs., Feb. 3, at 6 P. M.—100 W. 28th St.—Speaker, Wolfe.
Sec. 4—Fri., Feb. 4, at 8 P. M.—81 E. 116th St.—Speaker, Weinstone.

Admission by membership card only.

Comrades, who for some reason are disconnected from the Party should come to these meetings. There will be someone who will see that they are properly assigned to a Party nucleus.

NEW JERSEY LENIN MEMORIAL MEETINGS.
Friday, Feb. 4—8 P. M.—Paterson—8 P. M.—Carpenters' Hall.
Speakers, H. M. WICKS and BERT WOLFE.
Also
Yonkers—Sunday, Feb. 6th—8 P. M.—29 Warburton Avenue.

READ

Imperialism—The Last Stage of Capitalism

By N. Lenin

Price, 60c in paper, $1.00 Cloth-bound.

An indispensable book for the understanding of the most recent events in Latin-America, China, and the colonial countries now in the throes of revolt against international imperialism. This excellent work treats the following topics: Concentration of Production and Monopoly, The Banks and Their New Role, Finance Capital and Financial Oligarchy, The Export of Capital, The Division of the World Among Capitalist Groups, The Division of the World Among the Great Powers, Imperialism as a Special Stage of Capitalism, Parasitism and the Decay of Capitalism, The Critique of Imperialism, The Place of Imperialism in History.

182 pages published by the Communist Party of Great Britain.

For Your Lenin Library:

LENIN AS A MARXIST

By N. Bukharin

The Present Chairman of the Communist International.

This splendid analysis of Lenin and his place in the field of Marxism is written by N. Bukharin who is considered one of the leading living theorists of the present day. The book is not a mere personal tribute to Lenin, it is rather an attempt to explain Lenin's contribution to the principles of Marxism. The book treats in the following phases of the subject: The Marxism of Lenin, Lenin's Theory and Practice, Problems of Imperialism, Lenin and the Peasantry, The Theoretical Problems Awaiting Us.

On sale now at 10 cents a copy, attractively bound in paper.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street New York, N. Y.

Fliers Land in Equador.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 2.—Following various minor difficulties, the American "global diplomacy" fliers have arrived. The new York, San Francisco and St. Louis arrived without any great trouble. The Detroit had engine trouble and was forced down on her trip. The San Antonio was left behind at Tumaco due to engine difficulties.

Soviet Cities Grow Rapidly.

WASHINGTON (FP).—Leningrad, with revival of industry, has gained 50 per cent in population in the past three years, while Moscow has gained 2 per cent, says the Soviet Union Information Bureau in Washington, reviewing the recent census returns. Average gain for 1523 cities and towns was 21 per cent.

Six Weeks More of Winter.

WEATHER WORKS, Canoe Ridge, Punxsutawney, Pa., Feb. 2.—The ground-hog has seen his shadow and six additional weeks of winter are just as certain as death and taxes.

Nine in Suicide Class.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—With the death of Bernice Richardson, 20-year-old Milliken College co-ed, enrollment in the "Suicide Class of '27" today stood at nine.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

FOR YOUR HEALTH.
Strictly Pure
FLORIDA
Honey
Guaranteed by the Bee-Farmer.
Delivered in New York City at following prices:
2 Lbs. 75c. 3 Lbs. $1.00
5 Lbs. $1.50
10% Goes to Daily Worker. Order by Mail.
J. A. FEURER
3456 Park Ave. N. Y. C.
Agents Wanted.

Foreign Investments Of U. S. Increase by Big Loan to Bolivia

A loan of $14,000,000 to Bolivia has been arranged by Dillon, Read & Co., at 7 per cent interest. It will make a public offering today for that amount.

The issue matures in 1958 and it is understood that the subscription price will be just under par, indicating a yield of a little better than the coupon rate.

The loan was negotiated with Ricardo Martinez Vargas, as financial agent for Bolivia. In accordance with a law recently passed the loan will be applied to complete the railroad from Potosi to Socre, to equip and improve the line of La Quiaca-Cochabamba and Santa Cruz. Within a short time the capital of Bolivia will be connected with all the efficient railway systems of the country, as well as with neighboring countries.

Profits of Electric Bond & Share Co. Are Enormous

The Electric Bond & Share Co., which is a subsidiary of the General Electric Co., has been in existence for 7 years. In that time it has declared cash dividends which average nearly 100 per cent per year on the par value of its stock.

The 1928 profit amounted to $17,003,543, or to $25.66 per $10 share of $1,982,630 meant a return of $44.36 a share for the common stockholders. In 1924 their return was $25.72 a share. Here is a total return of $91.67 a share for the 3 years. This means a 3-year profit of more than 900 per cent.

The above concern is just one among hundreds of real estate operators throughout the country. Most of them are firms whose profits are not made public. But his-race-off of a company like H. O. Stone affords a glimpse of the millions of dollars the country is paying as a penalty for turning over the development of its homes to private exploitation.

Insured Profits.

The $3,616,172 profits of the Fidelity-Phenix Fire Insurance Co. in 1928 suggest that home owners are paying a further excessive toll for insuring their homes after running the gauntlet of the real estate operators. This profit gives the owners of the insurance company a return of $18.08 per $25 share. This is more than 72 per cent.

The profits made by this fire insurance company during the last 3 years total $11,891,517, or nearly $60 on each $25 share of stock, a 3-year return of about 238 per cent.

Cash dividends paid by Fidelity-Phenix in 1926 totaled $1,800,000, the annual rate being 36 per cent. In the last 5 years the owners have received $3,700,000 cash dividends, or 74 per cent on the par value of their stock. In 1928 the company also declared a 100 per cent stock dividend.

Labor governments in Australia have proved that insurance can be handled profitably by the state at a great saving to the beneficiaries and policy holders.

Utility For Stockholders.

Another drain on the modern home owner swells the income of privately owned utility companies. This shows up in the $14,554,178 profits of the Electric Bond & Share Co., the great Morgan utility trust associated with General Electric. After paying preferred dividends this profit gives the owners of common stock a return of $82.21 a share.

The profits of Electric Bond & Share have been steadily mounting. In 1922 they were $5,741,469; 1923, $7,469,258; 1924, $8,455,791; and in 1925, $12,302,366. Altogether in the last 5 years this Morgan trust has taken profits totaling $46,823,160, a 5-year return of more than 160 per cent on the common stock. After paying generous dividends the company has accumulated surplus profits of $36,508,181, nearly 1 1-2 times the common stock, out of which it can eventually declare stock dividends.

PASSAIC STRIKE STILL ON! WE'VE WON IN FOUR MILLS! HELP US BEAT THE REST!

GIVE MONEY PLEASE! For Coal for the Strikers' Homes! For Bread for their families! They have made a hard fight! Now they are winning! Now you must help more than ever! Give all you can! MAKE VICTORY COMPLETE!

Make all contributions by check or money order to

GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE

799 BROADWAY Room 225 NEW YORK CITY

Get 10c Coupons and sell them TO HELP US FEED the Strikers' Children.

On the Industrial Front—Trade Union Activities

BOSTON STRIKING CAPMAKERS ASK 40 HOUR WEEK

Also Demand $44 Wage Were Getting $35

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The Capmakers Local 7, have declared a strike for a 40-hour, 5-day week, and a minimum wage of $44.00 a week.

J. Miller, reporting for the committee which has been holding conferences with the employers, declared that negotiations had been broken off, the employers refusing to consider any of the demands made by the workers. The capmakers are 100 per cent organized and are prepared for a fight. Every speaker who took the floor spoke in favor of striking and showed a strong determination to fight for a living wage.

Time For Raise.

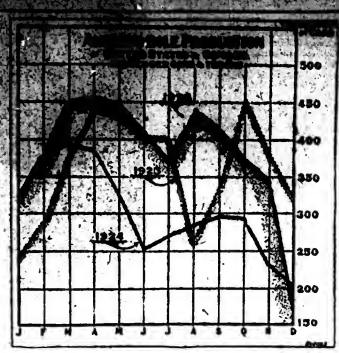
For six years the capmakers have received no increases. Nor have they recovered the 15 per cent cut they suffered in 1919. Now at the expiration of their agreement, they insist that the employers face the responsibility of providing a living wage for the workers of the industry. The average wage of the skilled worker is $35 a week, far below the minimum set by the United States Department of Labor statistics.

Organize To Strike.

As soon as the strike was declared, the following machinery for carrying it on was organized: a General Strike Committee of 17, with J. Miller as chairman; a picket committee of 35 with Weisman, chairman; Korman, chairman of finance; Seligman, chairman of the hall committees, and an out-of-town committee. All members were instructed to station themselves at 7.30 a.m. in front of their shops for picket duty. Twice o day strikers are to report at union headquarters, to have their strike cards punched.

Not Pacifists.

"We do not feel that the Conference Table is our only recourse," said one of the speakers, in praising the decision of the meeting. "Our union still believes in the strike. We have not lost our fighting spirit, and our employers will now see us in action."



The capmakers are known to be good fighters. They showed their solidarity in helping the other needle trades unions when on strike. They have a progressive leadership and are sure to win.

Police "Protection" Costly.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Allegations of the payment of huge sums for "protection" by police and government officials in the landing of a load of rum at Edgewater, N. J., last April were made in United States Court here. The testimony was given by Cecil N. Kinder, of Chicago, who claimed to have paid the money in an effort to safely land 10,000 cases of liquor from the Eker, a boat seized off Yonkers in the Hudson River April 29th last year.

New York Records Earthquake.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—An earthquake of moderate intensity early today about 6,000 miles southwest of New York, was recorded on the Fordham University seismograph. The tremor began at 1:16 A. M., reached its maximum intensity at 1:57, and continued until 2:10.

Observe that in November, the automobile companies suddenly awakened to the significance of the steadily falling demand, and changed a gradual decrease of production into a practical stoppage. In December the lowest point in automobile production within the last three years was reached, just as the highest point had been achieved in April.

LAWRENCE BOOSTERS' COMMISSION DISCOVERS AN INCREASE IN WORKERS' HOURS WOULD ADD TO PROSPERITY OF FAMOUS TEXTILE CENTER

(By Worker Correspondent.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 2. — An industrial commission was appointed a little over a year ago by Mayor Rochefort of this city "for the purpose of inducing new industries to come to Lawrence." Those appointed on the commission were Charles E. Bradley, real estate man; Irving Southworth, agent of the Pacific mills; James K. Mennie, of the Central Labor union; Andrew B. Sutherland, merchant; Albert I. Couch, banker; Michael A. Sullivan, lawyer; Edward J. Wade, city clerk and Alderman Peter Carr, head of the police department.

This commission met only once last year and found there were 14,000 textile workers unemployed and that several thousand others were on part time. They gave no report on how the employed workers were speeded and doubled up in their work and the low wages they were receiving. They then went to sleep and awaited the call of their master.

Suddenly they awoke and on January 11th, this year held another meeting. The merchant, banker, lawyer and the lonesome labor leader seated themselves comfortably round the table to discuss—what? The bringing of new industries to Lawrence? The terrible speeding up of the workers? The low wages the textile workers are receiving? Not on your tin-type. What do you think this commission came into being for? Do you think this is a workers' commission? Well, I should say not. Now who was to do the dirty work for the bosses?

Have patience — worker, while "Andy" delivers the goods. "The Massachusetts textile mills are laboring under a handicap in competition with other states on account of the 48-hour law, and that is why so many of our northern cotton mill manufacturers have acquired plants in the south. There is also danger of losing the woolen and worsted industries, as the two other most important competing states, New York and Pennsylvania, are operating under 54-hour laws."

Now if this wasn't so serious it would really be funny. Here is "Andy" shouting for 54 hours a week when most of us textile workers have been lucky to get 32 hours a week for the past four years. Why is it that the textile mills in New Hampshire and Maine, where they work on the 54-hour week basis are closing down—as per the Salmon Falls mill for instance? They might as well ask for the 60-hour week or better still have the worker pack up his trunk and move into the mill and live there all the time.

And then "Andy" goes on to say—"This year a bill has been introduced to permit 54 hours work but the average of the year will not exceed 48 hours per week." Well, you sly old fox! Do you think we are such dumbbells as to fall for that? As it is now, when we work overtime, we get time and a half. (This only happens in the dye-house and in the mills that work nights.) Your plan would simply mean another indirect wage cut. As far as "competition with other states" is concerned the northern manufacturers own the southern mills anyway and the only ones they are in competition with are—themselves. I suggest that since they have such a hard time competing with themselves that they reduce the hours of work of their southern slaves to at least 46 hours a week. Well, you tried hard, "Andy," and even if the workers are boycotting your store you have the satisfaction of at least being loyal to your boss.

Central Labor Union to Hold Mass Meeting.

The Central Labor union is under the progressive leadership of Robert J. Watt, a painter by trade. At its last meeting it took up this 48-54 monkey business and believe me there was thunder. After Brother Mennie, who is the labor member of the commission, gave his report, the fireworks began. Every member emphatically denounced all those who would return the workers to 54 hours a week. It instructed President Watt to call upon the mayor and demand that the Commission restrict its efforts to reviving old industries and procuring new ones instead of spending its time trying to repeal the 48-hour law. It was also voted to hold a monster meeting of textile workers in the near future to protest and take action against the bosses' propaganda to bring back the 54 hours. Workers watch for the date! Prepare now against the bosses. Join a union. And fight for more wages.

Miners' Convention Ends With Rocky Fielding

(Continued from page 1).

minists.

Want Short Term Contracts.

The progressives did not ask for a five year agreement to cover the bituminous fields, but for one year agreements, so that at any time the unfriendly miners might strike over a breach of the agreement by the operators, or the unorganized be driven on strike by the bad conditions in the southern coal fields, the bituminous miners would not long be prevented from coming to their assistance.

The Wage Scale Committee Lewis has appointed, and from which John Brophy was carefully barred, brought in a recommendation for a two year contract.

Bypass Lewis Again.

There was nothing in the Wage Scale Committee's report that would appeal to the non-union men to come out with the union in case there was a deadlock in negotiations with the employers, and a strike forced upon the workers. This was the point of attack by John Brophy, who declared in a strong speech that this omission was fatal to the success of the union in its program of avoiding wage reductions.

This again directed attention to Lewis' most outstanding failure as an international president, his lack of ability, or of willingness to organize the unorganized.

"The committees' report should be altered so as to appeal more to non-union men to join the organization," Brophy urged. "It is a sad fact but a fact nevertheless, that 65 per cent of the bituminous coal is mined by non-union men. We should do something to strengthen the union membership for the coming clash."

These words roused the most intense ire on the part of Lewis and his supporters, in a terrifically bitter and personal speech, Lewis rejected all such advise and even after the motion to adopt the Wage Scale report had been railroaded through Lewis supporters howled down Brophy's request for a chance to speak in answer to Lewis' villification.

* * *

By JACK KENNEDY.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 2.—Rank and file delegates, legitimately elected from real unions, today voted to send John W. Hindmarsh, militant Illinois independent as United Mine Workers' delegate to the 4th congress of the miners' international.

But when administration tellers finished counting the noses of the 800 to 600 machine delegates from twenty districts and sky blue locals, Hindmarsh was declared beaten by Van Bittner, marshal of West Virginia's packed delegation.

Declare Capellini Also Elected.

President Rinaldo Capellini, of anthracite districte one, was declared elected as second delegate over John Brophy, progressive leader.

Anthony Minerich, Western Pennsylvania progressive, in ringing speeches nominated Hindmarsh and Brophy as the "true representatives of rank and file sentiment in America."

Mike Demshak, who single-handed defied the slugger of District Nine, anthracite, at this convention, completely exonerated himself this morning of charges of scabbing.

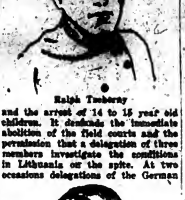
Replying to savage character assassination by President Golden of his district yesterday, Demshak told the convention that President Turnblazer of Tennessee had ordered him to work in a non-union mine for organization purposes.

Demshak Given Ovation.

Later the machine used this to brand Demshak as traitor to his union, Emperor Lewis was obliged to admit the exoneration of Demshak when he was given an ovation by the delegates.

James Johnson, International Board member from Washington, defended himself against Lewis' charges yesterday that he had consented to wage-cut reductions in District Ten. He defied Lewis to his face to prove it, and read a telegram to prove his innocence. Lewis replied weakly that his information against Johnson was from "authentic" but unnamed sources.

Scale Report Up Today.

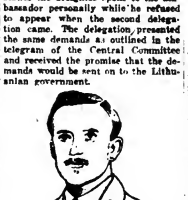


The convention chose Indianapolis for the 1928 convention and adjourned until Wednesday when the important wage scale committee reports. It will ask the convention to grant power and ask no questions about the forthcoming negotiations with operators on Feb. 16th. Continuance of the Jacksonville scale of $7.50 will be the machines' program with quiet sacrifice of important conditions which will, however, effectively reduce the miners wages far below present low standards.

Present population for various cities is: Moscow, 2,018,200; Leningrad, 1,611,100; Kiev, 491,623; Baku, 233,283; Odessa, 411,111; Kharkov, 407,576; Rostov-on-Don, 182,416; Tashkent, 294,349, and Tiflis, 276,915.

Ralph Tuberry

and the arrest of 14 to 15 year old children. It demands the immediate abolition of the field courts and the permission that a delegation of three members investigate the conditions in Lithuania or the spite. At two occasions delegations of the German



Kasis Gedris

Red Aid visited the Lithuanian ambassador in Berlin. In the first instance the deelgates spoke to the ambassador personally while he refused to appear when the second delegation came. The delegation, presented the same demands as outlined in the telegram of the Central Committee and received the promise that the demands would be sent on to the Lithuanian government.

Josef Greifzeberger

From all parts of Germany news arrive in Berlin on the indignation among the workers against the fascist rule in Lithuania. In Eastern Prussia a number of fugitives have arrived who have reported about the events in large mass meetings. In Koenigsberg, a workers' delegation saw the Lithuanian consul. Demonstrations in the open air will take place in Koenigsberg. In many German towns all labor organizations have addressed joint protests to the Lithuanian legations.

Karl Pojels

She Got Caught.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 2.—Miss Stella Bickness, 20-year-old authoress of a script, "The Girl Who Never Was Caught," found herself in the tells of the police here today, charged with robbery. She is alleged to have confessed to thefts of $20,000 worth of jewelry and clothing from wealthy families in New York City, Newark and Montclair.

Mother and Daughter Slay.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 2.—Alternately wielding an axe and a hatchet, Mrs. Anna Lista, 36, and her daughter, Elizabeth, 15, early today smashed in the head of Anthony Lista, husband and father, as he lay sleeping in bed here, according to the woman's alleged statement made to police sergeant Kofler.

Postpone New Immigration Scheme.

WASHINGTON, (FP).—By unanimous vote the senate committee on immigration urged that congress postpone for one year the application of the "national origins" scheme of fixing immigration quotas.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 2.—Perjury indictments against the 14 troopers now under $5,000 bail on charges in connection with the Mooney farm siege will be sought on the basis of the report of the state police investigating board, Justice Judge George K. Large of Flemington announced today.

In and Around the Miners' Convention

INDIANAPOLIS (By mail).—Within 100 miles of the convention hall, in the state of Indiana, can be found ominous results of the Lewis policy in allowing West Virginia to slump back into non-unionism. Thousands of Indiana miners are again working two to four days a week after a burst of activity late last year. The latest report of the state bureau of mines shows coal operations at only 51 per cent capacity. Twothirds of this idleness is due to that chronic disease of an overexpanded industry which has slipped from the grasp of the union.

Production is back to 600,000 tons weekly after a few months due to an excited market stimulated by preparations for the possible soft coal strike next spring and the export demands which led West Virginia coal to England, rather than to markets formerly possessed by Indiana coals.

After the needs of railroads and industries laying up coal against the possible April 1 strike and the normal winter demands have been filled, Indiana foresees the worst slump in history. Nearly fifty mines are already idle although January is usually an active month in the coal regions.

* * *

Membership of the Miners Union will receive election results only when and if John L. Lewis cares to give it to them. A resolution asked the publication of the tabulated vote in the Miners Journal. The steamroller flattened it out.

* * *

The next convention will be held the second Tuesday of December, 1928.

* * *

In an effort to prevent the theft of elections, is was proposed that an international elections committee be created to "relieve" the secretary of the job. This committee of five would maintain its own headquarters and handle the entire business. Just picture to yourself how John L. snorked when he read that! No, it didn't pass.

* * *

The Lewis machine finds very handy the constitutional provision allowing any local, no matter how small, to send a delegate to the convention. International officials a few months before conventions work themselves up into a frenzy in moribund districts, organizing scores of petty locals. Ziegler, ill., miners in a resolution declared this system of "packing the convention with delegates who represent practically no miners, is disrupting and destroying our miners' union." They asked that locals of less than 100 members be obliged to team with other small locals in sending a delegate. "No," said the committee.

Article XIV, Section 2 is the famous section which bars members of the Workers (Communist) Party from the United Mine Workers. This section, after dealing with financial requirements, proceeds to include mine managers, top foremen, operators' commissioners, persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors and members of the National Civic Federation (page Matty Well) from membership. The third paragraph excludes members of the Industrial Workers of the World, the Working Class Union, the One Big Union and dual unions not affiliated with the A. F. of L. as well as Workers Party members. Members of the Miners Union accepting office in these organizations are expelled forever unless reinstated by the international executive board.

* * *

John P. White, former president of the United Mine Workers, pulters about the platform doing errands for Lewis and Kennedy. The old fellow is penalized by the machine. His one qualification for Lewis' job, a pretty corporation (known also as a baywindown) did not prove enough.

The Engineer's Corner

INFRA-RED RAYS.

By the use of infra-red rays in a recently perfected photographic apparatus, scientists of the University of Chicago have been able to obtain accurate views of the planet Venus, which has heretofore been considered impenetrable, owing to the dense clouds with which it is surrounded. With the aid of these rays, it was possible for the scientists at the University of Chicago to penetrate through the surface of the planet, which had been hidden from the gaze of human beings until their time. It is suggested that even more important scientific data will be disclosed with the help of the piercing power of this new discovery.

The daily life of the worker is also surrounded with dense clouds, which hide from him the actual forces at work in present day society, and the fundamental causes of the problems which he meets. On all sides there is the thick mist of capitalist misinformation, disseminated by the kept press, the movies, the radio, the church, the schools, etc. Within this blinding mist the average worker is groping and toiling unconscious of the tremendous forces which have chained him to the yoke of wage slavery.

Like the infra-red ray of the scientist, THE DAILY WORKER pierces this dense cloud, and reveals to the working in the language of the workers, and telling the facts, as are life as it really is, without sham, without deception, what the workers want them told. With the growth and development of The DAILY WORKER, the workers may be assured that there will be revealed as marvelous and even more vital discoveries about the present order of society, and that the valuable facts thus revealed will be a rousing stimulus toward the development of a strong revolutionary movement in America for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government.

BERT MILLER.

A GERMAN FLY IN THE CAPITALIST OINTMENT! BRITAIN AND U. S. LOOK WITH SIGNIFICANT DIFFERENCES ON FORMER ENEMIES' EXPORTS

The rapid strides which Germany is making on the economic field are the cause of complaint from two different sources—America and England.

Brigadier General Andrews, assistant secretary in charge of customs, makes public the finding of Secretary Mellon to the following effect: "After due investigation I find that pig iron from Germany is being sold and is likely to be sold in the United States at less than its fair value and that the industry of making pig iron in the United States has been and is likely to be injured by reason of the importation of pig iron into the United States from Germany." But the statement goes on to say that "the imposition of a countervailing duty" is negligible factor in affording protection to the domestic interests."

Much Worried.

The Midland Bank of London in its January bulletin remarks: "The outlook, however, is not too pleasing, at least on the surface, to the British manufacturer, artisan and exporter, for Britain's products compete to a large extent directly with Germany's. Unfavorable reports of severe forms of competition with American plants causes the big American interests far less concern.

Leads To War.

For the workers, however, the figures speak eloquently. They show clearly how Britain is being forced by her economic plight into desperate efforts to extend her foreign markets, efforts which can only lead to a new imperialist war. On the other hand the figures show the workers of America the eagerness with which patriotic American capitalists are ready to utilize their growing dominations over German industry and the German proletariat to compete with American industry and thus drive down the wages and living standards of the American worker. International world trade union unity offers the only hope of meeting this menace.

KITTY O'SHEA'S GLADSTONE NOTE READ IN COURT

Letter Ties Can on the Hypocrite's Reputation

LONDON, Feb. 2.— That William E. Gladstone, liberal premier of England in Victorian days used Mrs. Kitty O'Shea, wife of a British army officer, to discredit Charles Stewart Parnell, was proven in court today in the course of the famous trial arising out of a book written by the captain in which he lifts the curtain on the sexual life of the noted liberal leader.

Mrs. O'Shea's husband was aware of the conspiracy and prostituted himself in return for a promise of a ministerial appointment."

Captain Wright taking the stand read the following letter from Mrs. O'Shea to Gladstone in open court:

Incriminating Letter.

"Dear Mr. Gladstone: I thank you very sincerely and I hope I have not trouble you so far you may deem unnecessarily. I hope you will forgive me and believe in the sincerity of the motives which have induced me to do so. I enclose a letter from my husband which I will be grateful if you will read and destroy at your leisure. Also a telegram which I have just received referring to the same subject.—Kitty O'Shea."

Hundred and Eighteen Million Is Poupation Now Estimated in U.S.

The population of the United States will be 118,628,000 by July 1927, according to surveys made by the government Census Bureau.

This is an increase of 1,492,000 over the estimate for July 1, 1926, and an increase of 12,917,380 over the estimate of Jan. 1, 1920, when the last census was actually taken.

New York State, with a population of 10,385,227 in 1920, is credited by the new survey with a population of 11,423,000. The population of the state in 1926 was estimated at 11,304,000.

The new survey is based on available data regarding births, deaths, immigration and emmigration.

Consevatives Make Deal with Each Other To Establish Cabinet

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The right wing nationalists have capitulated and the Marx cabinet is now complete.

The insistence of the ultra-nationalists that Dr. Walther Graef, the friend of Hitler and Ludendorf, be included in the cabinet, despite the objections of President Hindenburg, has been withdrawn.

Oskar Hergt, nationalist, who unsuitable as minister of interior, has been named as minister of justice.

Walter Von Kendell has named as minister of interior.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1850

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE
BERT MILLER, Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The Threatened War on the Soviet Union

A Geneva dispatch published in a New York morning newspaper stated that there was no doubt but England was trying to build a steel ring around the Soviet Union threatening it with a Polish invasion in the event of any Soviet assistance to the Cantonese in repelling the British attack.

This dispatch strikes at the heart of the present international situation.

World imperialism sees in the Soviet Union a constant menace, and world imperialism has never relinquished the objective of crushing the workers' and peasants' government. Great Britain happens to be the leader of the imperialists in the conspiracy to destroy the Soviet Union. As The DAILY WORKER has pointed out time and time again there can be no peace between the Soviet Union and world capitalism. One or the other must go, and it is written in the stars that it is capitalism's next move to shove off the historical checker board.

It is no accident that fascist governments have arisen in Poland and Lithuania. It is no secret that another fascist government is being conceived in Latvia. Indeed the period of conception is long past and the hour of delivery is near, according to reliable reports from the Baltic states. Great Britain was behind the Polish coup de'etat, behind the Lithuanian fascist seizure of power and is the guiding brain behind the plot to overthrow the complacent socialist government of Latvia and supplant it by a black shirt dictatorship.

Great Britain has no intention of relinquishing her spoils in China without a struggle. Just now, she is indulging in honeyed speech while her steel bulldogs are growling in front of Shanghai. She knows that the masses of the Soviet Union are in sympathy with the revolutionary movement of the Chinese people struggling to throw off the yoke of the foreign brigands. She knows that the people of the Soviet Union sympathise with the hundreds of millions of imperialist victims who are ground down beneath the iron heel of imperialism all over the Orient. She knows that as long as the Soviet Union exists there is a dagger pointed at the heart of world imperialism. So she thinks this is the time to strike the blow.

We are not indulging in fanciful language. This is a critical moment. The imperialists have their inner conflicts they recognize one mortal foe, the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union is more than a piece of territory. It is the fatherland of the world's working class. It is the headquarters of the world revolution that will free humanity from the curse of wage slavery. It is the beacon light that is guiding the untold millions of workers, peasants and subject people along the road to their emancipation. The imperialists say that the Soviet Union must go. The international proletariat say that the Soviet Union must be defended with the last drop of working class blood.

The imperialists want to crush the Chinese revolution. Four hundred millions of Chinese stand in the way. The imperialists want to destroy the Soviet Union, but the revolutionary masses of the world will chant the funeral dirge of the bourgeoisie instead.

The American working class must do their share in preventing the Wall Street government in Washington from carrying out its purpose to aid in the crushing of the Chinese revolution and to strike at the Soviet Union through Canton.

"Hands off China."

"Hands off the Soviet Union."

Those must be the slogans of American labor.

Har, Har! Mr. Lewis.

The New York World rises to applaud the action of John L. Lewis in fumigating the constitution of the United Mine Workers of America by removing therefrom the revolutionary clause that the coal miners were entitled to the full social value of their product. This smacks too much of Communism so John turned around and decided that if the mine workers receive an "equitable" share of their product they will have no kick coming.

Who is going to determine the miner's share of his product? The coal operator or the miner? If the former, the miner's share would be a bowl of canned vegetable soup and a toothpick. If the latter, it would be every black diamond he sent to the surface.

Under the present system neither side is in a position to entirely determine the distribution of the product. Where the miners are strongly organized they are able to get more of the value of their product and where they are unorganized they are obliged to accept what the boss is willing to grant them. What is equitable in both cases depends on the weakness or strength of the miners in relation to the power of the coal operators they have to bargain with.

In Lewis' opinion the miners have no right to the mines, even tho they dig all the coal that keeps the wheels of industry moving. The mines belong to the operators by "divine right," according to labor manager Lewis.

Those few words were an eyesore to Mr. Lewis and his company lieutenants for several years, but they were afraid to remove them lest the miners stage a revolt. The miners' union has a revolutionary tradition. It was and still is—despite the treachery of the Lewis leadership—the iron battalion of the American labor movement. Lewis is now determined to bury that fighting tradition.

Lewis can have the applause of the capitalist press. He can well afford to spend part of his $12,000 a year on a clipping service. But he can no more prevent the coal miners from carrying on the struggle to secure for themselves, in common with all other workers, the full social value of the product of their toil, under a workers' government than old King Canute could keep back the tides with his broom.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

Marxian Social Science

By EMANUEL KANTER and ALEX SCHWARZENFELD

This is the first of a series of articles in the DAILY WORKER on different aspects of social science, in order to counteract the false and perverted doctrines that the capitalists have disseminated through their corrupt press, subsidized schools and universities and their servile and time-serving churches.

The defenders of capitalist civilization, have perverted all knowledge, that pertains to ancient and modern society in order to justify the existence and permanency of capitalism, which is the system of war, of exploitation, poverty, disease, misery and hate.

They would have us believe that war, exploitation, private property etc, were always in existence. That war was born and bred in the soul of man. They would have us believe that we have inherited the instinct, the passion for war, exploitation and private property from the social apes, the ancestors of man.

We will point out in these articles that the capitalists and their servants, the bourgeois scholars and professors, are fundamentally in error on these issues.

We will show that war, private property in the means of production, the exploitation of class by class was unknown in primitive society. That the savage and Matriarchal Barbarian was unfamiliar with these social phenomena. Then we will proceed to demonstrate how Patriarchal Barbarism sowed in the seeds of these institutions.

Civilization, which is divided into three phases, Slave, Feudal and Capitalist, developed more and more until today in the declining phase of capitalism (or Imperialism) the working class is being overwhelmed with misery, disease, poverty and war.

We are living in the last phase of capitalism, namely Imperialism, when the struggles of the workers are daily growing greater for conquest of power. The Soviet Union, a living symbol of working class accomplishment shows the workers that they too can establish a workers and farmers' government.

It is our intention in these articles to be printed daily to take the history of the past ages and bring them before our readers in the light of Historical Materialism. To explain the development of the human race and its characteristics.

It is essential to have a clear insight into past history, to know the why and wherefore of things not merely for the sake of being educated as an ideologic factor in our daily struggles. With a clear insight of the past and present we are better fighters—Marxian, Leninist fighters for the future order.

* * *

War in Savagery.

The workers of America have been taught to believe that war was always there. Always we have had wars between nations, and other forms of conflict, and other forms of conflict between classes, and slavery there always was. Always there will be wars. They have been convinced by the professors and preachers of the capitalist system that war is the inevitable destiny of mankind

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 19. NEW YORK, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1927 Price 3 Cents

BRITISH AGITATION FOR SOVIET BREAK GROWS

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

HERE is some food for thot. I ran across the morsel in a capitalist paper but nevertheless it is all right since it serves a useful purpose. On a crowded sidewalk in front of a Paris railway station two persons collided and as usual in such cases both expressed themselves in language more vigorous than seemly. One suddenly became an—"awkward lump" while the party of the second part was transformed into an imbecile. The "awkward lump" adjusted his monocle, drew himself up to his extra height and declared: "Sir, I am an Englishman." "And I sir, I am a German," replied the "imbecile" "and if the French had not defended you, we would have wiped our feet on you."

* * *

Rather delightful for those who suffered from the patriotism of the capitalists, their lieutenants and their misguided mass followers during the war. The best of the story is yet to come. Parisians gathered around the pair and sided with the German, the once terrible "hun." The Briton was ushered into a taxi by a policeman to the accompaniment of a chorus of jeers from the assembled French. In all probability both of the star actors in the farce kept far away from the trenches during the war. They may have been engaged selling pictures of their respective kings or working for the national equivalent of the Y. M. C. A.

* * *

UNCLE SAM is sending thousands of troops to China and if Morgan thinks it advisable to start shooting our tabloid sheets will drop "Peaches" liks a hot potato and devote their pages to the "Yellow Peril." "Patriots" who now cannot find a job in their "own" country will vent their indignation of Chinese laundrymen and on the section of the working class that will seriously protest against the invasion of China. The moving pictures will dig up pictures from the time of Boxer rebellion, and put new captions on them. They will use whitewash on Negroes behind lynched down south and declare they are missionaries being hanged by the Cantonese. There is nothing our patriots cannot do in case of emergency. But when the shouting and the tumult dies down, the war mongers eat, drink and smoke together and send wreaths to the graves of the respective unknown soldiers.

* * *

WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE, the "Grand Old" hypocrite of the Victorian era was not a promiscuous fellow even tho he patronized the darkalleys of London and the benches in Hyde Park. If he conversed with ladies of elastic virtue his motives were of the purest. He was actually out to save them. Perhaps he did deceive them on occasion. But, it was only to plumb the depths of their sullied souls and Freudianize the truth out of them. Just as our prohibition enforcement department goes into the bootlegging business to find out who's who? In bootlegging, or power, how much better to direct the scoff laws. A dead man can't get away.

(Continued on page 2)

Central Labor Union Of Pocatello Votes Against Imperialism

POCATELLO, Idaho, Feb. 3.—The Pocatello Central Labor union, in regular semi-monthly meeting Friday night, went on record in opposition to the Coolidge policy in Mexico. The delegates, representing some 15 affiliated unions, passed the motion of Paul T. Miller, typographical union, to wire congress urging support of the Wheeler and Frazier resolutions in the Senate.

Against Coolidge Plan.

The Wheeler resolution provides for Senate investigation of the administration policy in Mexico, and the Frazier resolution expresses "the sense of the Senate" against the president exercising powers of commander in chief of the army and navy to send armed forces to Mexico or vicinity.

Disgust At Wall Street.

The meeting also voted to consign to the waste basket a questionnaire sent out by Wall Street interests seeking labor's attitude toward the five-day work week. The questionnaire was sent to three "representative" groups—bankers, manufacturers, and labor.

Republicans Are Blocking Quiz of Kellogg

Secretary Used A. P. to Put Out False Information

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—By a vote of 8 to 5 the senate foreign relations committee has "indefinitely postponed" consideration of the Norris resolution calling for investigation of the attempt of Assistant Secretary of State Olds to induce the press associations to publish as a fact his claim that Mexico was trying to establish a Communist federation in Central America.

This story of a "Mexican-fostered hegemony between the United States and the Panama Canal" was published by the Associated Press on Nov. 18, as an explanation for Kellogg's hasty recognition of Adolfo Diaz as president of Nicaragua. Later, various newspapers published an expose of the secret conference held by Olds with press association correspondents, wherein Olds explained that the department was satisfied that Mexico was spreading bolshevism in Latin America, and it wanted the press to inform the public without in any way involving the department as authority for the claim.

A Secret Vote.

Members of the foreign relations committee are Borah, Hiram Johnson, Moses Lenroot, Willis, Pepper, Edge, Capper, Swanson, Pittman, Robinson of Arkansas, Underwood, Walsh of Montana, Reed of Missouri, Harrison and Shipstead. The vote was taken in secret session. It is assumed that Borah, Harrison, Walsh, Robinson and Shipstead stood out for a public inquiry.

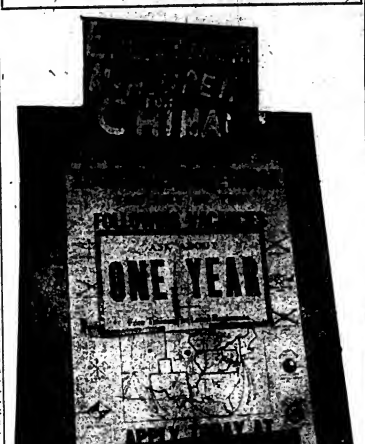
This tacit endorsement of the framing of the press by Kellogg's subordinate, and the prejudicing of public opinion by the Associated Press, reflects a powerful effort by the administration and the Associated Press interests to capitalize the incident as an argument for the handling of foreign policy to the White House and state department. Sen. Willis of Ohio, servant of the administration, declared the committee acted in defense of the department, since any investigation would merely result in a new storm of criticism of kellogg and his policies.

Reported Fairchild Resolution.

The house committee on foreign affairs, meanwhile, by a vote of 10 to 9, reported favorably the Fairchild resolution endorsing the administration's policy toward Mexico and Nicaragua. By a vote of 8 to 7 it rejected a motion by Moore, Democrat, to call Secretary Kellogg before the committee to be questioned as to his actions. Fish of New York, Republican, voted with the democrats to summon Kellogg. Definite action was not secured until the administration republicans in control of the committee had been denounced by the democrats for their "gagging tactics."

Not to Recognize Sacasa.

Secretary Kellogg is much pleased. He announced on Feb. 2 his determination never to recognize Sacasa as president of Nicaragua, regardless of the outcome of the present civil war in the republic. He even asserted that Adolfo Diaz, former American-made president, who has again been installed and recognized as the agent of the American bankers," was never connected in any way with Chamorro and had nothing to do with Chamorro's revolution."



In order to be prepared for the collapse of Diaz, however, Kellogg said he would consider recognition of any government that the two parties in Nicaragua might establish by agreement or through an election which might be hastened by changing their constitution.

Muscle Shoals Unsold.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The bids of the American Cynamid Company and the Farmers' Federated Company for the government's big power plant at Muscle Shoals were rejected today by the House Military Affairs Committee.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Cannon Fodder Is Needed For the Imperialistic War

* * *

U. S. ARMY CALLING FOR RECRUITS TO INVADE CHINA; POSTERS UP IN CITY OF WALL STREET

Ever since the Nicaraguan, Mexican and Chinese situations began to grow critical, the U. S. Army and Marine Corps recruiting officers in New York City have been displaying increased activity. A short time ago a giant demonstration of airplane tactics took place over Union Square, culminating in the appearance of a number of recruiting sergeants who solicited among the crowds attracted by the sham "attack on New York."

Mayor Helps.

The acting mayor of the city, Joseph V. McKee, hurried to end an attachment of marines drawn up before the city hall, waiting for the important conference, called by a mayor to review them, and again the committee of citizens, for mediation of the paper box strike. His rush was caused by the presence of a de-

(Continued on page 2)

BRITISH COMMUNIST CALLS ON WORKERS TO REPUDIATE McDONALD'S CHINA STAND

Special Cable to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Feb. 3.—J. T. Murphy, the well-known British Communist, made the following statement in regard to the special interview given by J. Ramsay McDonald on the events in China:

"When McDonald says that we have to maintain our prestige in China, both for industrial and political reasons, he does not express the attitude of the whole labor movement, but merely that of the right wing leaders. When he says 'we' he means the British capitalists. By declaring that the issue rests in the hands of Canton, he deliberately incites the British government to continue forcing its imperialist aims on the Chinese people. McDonald also states that Cheng should welcome British warships and tanks as precautionary means which will prevent his hands to be forced by people who want to fight. This statement of the leader of the British Labor Party should be repudiated by the whole movement. Otherwise the British Labor Party will identify itself with the Tory government and will participate in the greatest piece of political hypocrisy of modern times. The British working class must repudiate McDonald because he does not represent their interests and never has represented them. The interests of the British working class are identical with those of the Chinese revolution. The British workers must compel the British government to withdraw all armed forces from China, to recognize the Canton government and to liberate completely the Chinese people from imperialist brigandage and exploitation."

Kellogg Foe of Mexican Oil Confiscation Holds On to German Property

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Ready to crush Mexico for alleged confiscation of property rights of Doheny, Mellon and Sinclair in the Mexican oil fields, Secretary Kellogg is now accused of being a confiscation expert himself. Under his guidance the senate judiciary committee in bringing out a bill disposing of the seized German property which confiscates, for a period of years, $26,000,000 more of the alien property than does the bill adopted by the house.

Because of the unfairness of this measure, passage of any bill restoring the German properties will probably fail in the present session of congress. British interests are overjoyed.

FARMER-BANKER SENATORS RUSH VOTE ON RELIEF

Log Rolling Measure to Pass Weak Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—The newly organized farmer-banker bloc in Congress won an initial victory when the Senate voted to take up at once the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

A series of friendly negotiations with the opposition senators had failed to get their agreement to abandon plans for a filibuster that would prevent consideration of farm relief at this session.

Finally Senator McNary moved to bring up the bill at once, and got a vote of 66 to 14. This insures that a petition now being circulated to shut off debate and force a vote will get more than the required two-thirds majority, and the filibuster is doomed.

The bargain between middle western senators and the eastern investment bankers who want a reduction in taxes on corporations and the passage of the McFadden-Pepper Branch Banking Act has been consummated within the last week, the final touches being made by the low tax crowd.

The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which now seems assured of passage in a moderate measure, offering little in the way of substantial relief. It does not set any minimum prices for farm products, it does not provide for government ownership of grain elevators, nor give directly any money to help in harvesting or movement of crops. It does provide for a small loan, on security, to farm co-operatives.

The bill has the opposition of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, who told 2,500 farmers assembled at the Ohio State University a few days ago that what they needed was business methods, consolidation of small concerns into larger ones, and not new laws.

Wisconsin Farmers Suffer.

Meanwhile conditions on the farms grow worse. Richard S. Powell, head of four large banks in Wisconsin, now on a trip east, stated today that "the dairy farmers in that section are experiencing the worst of six of the poorest years they ever had". The dairy industry is about all there is to farming in northern Wisconsin, too, said Powell, as a bad year prevented crops from maturing.

Banker Gives It Up.

"What the solution of the farmers' problem will be it is impossible to predict. Certainly their condition is a matter of grave concern. Its solution may come, but I have not yet met anyone who offered what seems to be a real solution. Of course, it is possible for the farmer who has no debts to worry along. But the man who has interest to pay on a mortgage is now in a hopeless predicament. The younger men will not stay on the farms because too little real money to make farm laboring attractive. As a matter of fact, the farmer can make more money working for wages than he can by raising crops on his own account.

Willis Mob Lynches Negro.

WILLIS, Tex., Feb. 3.—Tom Payne, a negro, was taken from two officers by an unmasked mob of white men near Willis last night and hanged to a tree.

Recognize Russia as Chief Capitalist Foe

Report United States Now Has More Marines In China Than Great Britain

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Churchill-Birkenhead-Joynson-Hicks faction of the British cabinet is agitating for a break with the Soviet Union under the pretext that Soviet influence was responsible for Eugene Chen breaking off negotiations with the British representative in Hankow.

Chen insisted that he could not sign an agreement with Britain while British troops were being landed on Chinese soil.

Tory newspapers are demanding that the Soviet diplomatic and trade representatives in London be handed their passports.

The conspiracy to incite the fascist states on the western frontier of the Soviet Union to attack is showing signs of renewed vigor.

There was never any possibility, as reported, of the expeditions on the way to Shanghai being recalled. It is possible that detachments may be ordered disembarked at Honkkong in order to give British agents an excuse for reopening negotiations with Chen, but British prestige is at stake and the howls from the jingoistic imperialists are becoming more insistent.

Right Wingers Imperialist Allies

While Sir Austen Chamberlain and Stanley Baldwin are said to favor diverting the troops on their way to Shanghai it is noticeable that they are not asserting themselves in this direction.

The government's policy is to incite the people against the Soviet Union, which Britain recognizes as the chief foe of world imperialism.

The Communist Party and the left wing of the trade union movement are conducting an energetic propaganda against a war on China. The right wing socialists and labor leaders are either coming out openly for the government or maintaining silence.

* * *

Suffolks to Hongkong

HONGKONG, Feb. 3.—A battalion of the Suffolk regiment is expected to arrive here tomorrow and will not proceed to Shanghai. It is believed that Britain will continue to rush soldiers to Hongkong where they will be within easy striking distance of Shanghai.

* * *

Fascisti Support Britain

ROME, Feb. 3.—Italian support of the British position in China is foreshadowed by the Giornale D'Italia. An increase in the Italian fleet in Chinese waters is predicted.

* * *

No Sign of Change

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — The state department showed no signs of altering its stand on China.

This was taken to mean that the Somers' resolution now before the house, which calls upon the president to name commissioners to deal with the Chinese, will be completely ignored by the president.

More Marines Dispatched

A detachment of more than 250 marines today was ordered to Shanghai.

Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet, advised the navy department that 160 marines on U. S. S. Goldstar from Guam, and three officers and 84 enlisted men from the Philippines have been ordered transferred to the U. S. Tanker, which will sail tomorrow from the Philippines.

FORD, SPEED-UP KING, OWNER OF MULTI-BILLIONS

Assets Increased 8,400 Per Cent, Board Hears

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — Henry Ford, the world's richest man, is a billionaire and perhaps a multi-billionaire.

"Ford is worth at least $1,500,000,000," Norval A. Hawkins, Detroit accountant, formerly sales manager for Ford, told newspaper today. "He has about $400,000,000 in cash in banks."

May Be Worth Several Billion

Ford may even be worth a couple of billions, Hawkins intimated, for in estimating the billion and a half, he did not include Ford's railroads, mines, or holdings in the Ford Motor Co., of Canada and the Ford Motor Co. of Great Britain. Hawkins is a witness for the defense in the government's $36,000,000 tax suit against Senator James Couzens of Michigan and ten other defendants who sold Ford the minority stock in the Ford Motor Co. in 1919 for $107,000,000.

Fred Gies, also a Detroit accountant, was the first witness called for the defense today. Examined by John W. Davis, counsel for the appellants, he identified numerous exhibits containing tables showing the number of persons on the Ford payroll at various times, overhead costs, sales, inventories, etc. A. W. Gregg, the government's counsel, was overruled when he objected to their introduction.

Assets Increased 8,400 Per Cent

The currents assets of the Ford Motor Co. had increased 8,400 per cent, according to one table. On Sept. 30, 1909, cash, municipal and United

Continued on Page 4

File Resolution in House to Negotiate Treaty With Canton

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—Resolution calling upon President Coolidge to open negotiations with China for revision of treaties between that nation and the United States were filed in the house by Rep. Somers (D) of New York.

A commission, including one senator and one representative, would negotiate with the Canton and Pekin governments, if necessary to reach representatives of all China.

Somers urged that the new treaties abrogate American jurisdiction over the Chinese tariff and special rights granted this country under the extra-territorial understandings.

OFFICIAL OF GUARANTEE COMPANY BACK FROM RUSSIAN TRIP AMAZED AT IMMENSE PROGRESS

William H. Hamilton, assistant vice president of the Guarantee Company, has just returned from a long trip in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics with a story of peace, order, and miraculous transformation of the industrial life from the chaos into which seven years of war, invasion, and reactionary rebellion by White Guard chiefs had thrown it.

"We saw no disorder and were granted every facility for comfort and every courtesy by officials," said Hamilton. "Everywhere we found conditions improving. Whether we like their system or not they are doing a most amazing job.

"Russia is making the biggest experiment in the history of the world—and they are getting results."

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

PRUDERY WINS AS GLADSTONE JURY VOTES TO ACQUIT

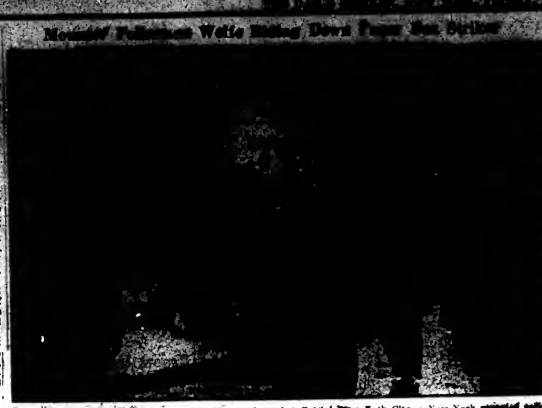
Gladstone's Associates All Defend Him

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Victorian England had its day in court when the jury came in tonight with a verdict of "not guilty" in the libel suit of Captain Peter Wright against Viscount Gladstone, son of the statesman and several times premier of England, William Ewart Gladstone, now deceased.

Viscount Gladstone had jockeyed Wright into the position of plaintiff in the case by calling his statements about Gladstone's private life "foul and cowardly lies." In the trial much evidence was presented to show that Gladstone was personally engaged in clandestine relations with the actress, Lily Langtry as well as with a female agent of the Czar, and various other women.

Same Old Excuse.

The defense argued that Gladstone was merely trying to "reform fallen women," and naturally, all those still alive who were involved in the scandal hurried to deny their parts, thus becoming witnesses for the Gladstone family.



Lily Langtry, now Countess de Bathe, by virtue of a marriage into British nobility, repudiated her acquaintance with the older Gladstone, but a curious confirmation came from Chicago of the truth of Captain Wright's story when a grand nephew of "the Jersey Lily" found references to it in some of her letters. However, the Chicago witness did not get before the court, and Lily Langtry's telegram did.

'Tay Pay' O'Connor on Stand With Brand New Meaning for 'Seraglio'

LONDON, Feb. 3.—"Tay Pay" O'Connor, prominent in the old Irish party in the House of Commons, has rushed to the defense of the memory of his former ally, Gladstone. Echoes of long forgotten pre-war political deals were heard about the courtroom when "Tay Pay" took the stand in the libel suit started by Captain Peter Wright's book, "Portraits and Opinions."

Wright had stated as a matter of fact that the statesman Gladstone, representative of British liberal factory owners, was a hypocrite on sex matters, and while posing as the extremist of Victorian puritans, acted all love intimately various ladies of the demi-mond, and was susceptible to the intrigues of female international spies of loose morals.

O'Connor raised a few smiles while trying on the stand to explain that his reception of Lord Milner's accusation imposed by Wright that "Gladstone was governed by his Seraglio," meant only that his family influenced him.

During mass picketing of the paper box manufacturing district, New York City, a New York mounted policeman rode his horse on the sidewalk, charged the crowd of pickets, and seriously injured one striker. The paper box makers have been on strike for eighteen weeks, and have 2,000 men and women out, with over four hundred relief kitchens that have been established to keep the strikers from starving. The strike has not been settled, and a mere decree or two back at work in struck shops. The union calls for help in the way of relief for strikers' families. It holds regular meetings at the Church of All Nations hall.

NEGRO SLAVERY STILL PRACTISED BY LA. PLANTERS

Two Whites Arrested For Enslaving Family

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 3. — Charges of wholesale practice of ancient slave tactics in Amite county, Miss., were being investigated by federal officers out of New Orleans today, following the indictment of two men by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the Peonage act.

The men, Webb Bellue and John D. Alford were specifically charged with abduction, sale and enslavement of a family of five Negroes.

Federal officers said they have evidence that the two men went to the home of Crawford Allen, 50, Negro, near the Louisiana border in Mississippi and after seizing the Negro, his daughter, wife and two small children took them to F. Hurst, planter and mill owner, and sold them for $20.

The five were forced to work without wages for several weeks, federal officers declared.

Federal investigators said they also learned that many families of Negroes are being worked in that section under pretense of farming hands or share croppers, while they are virtually slaves and live under worse conditions than slaves before the Civil War.

Senate Committee Not To Hear of Inspired Mexican War Stories

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee today sidetracked a proposed investigation into the alleged efforts of the state department to induce press associations to carry anti-Mexican propaganda.

The committee voted 8 to 5 to postpone indefinitely action on the resolution of Senator Moses (R.) of New Hampshire demanding the inquiry. This was done, members said, to prevent embarrassment to the state department.

KELLOGG IGNORES PRES. SACASA IN NICARAGUAN WAR

Admiral to Run Country Is the Inference

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — Peace between the warring factions in Nicaragua, if there is to be any, will be established by Admiral Latimer, commander of the American expeditionary force, it appeared today.

Secretary of State Kellog contributed by ignored the communication of Dr. J. S. Vaca, Washington representative of the Sacasa liberals, setting forth Dr. Sacasa's willingness to participate in a peace conference under the auspices of Kellogg and General American diplomats.

The state department now has word that Vaca was an "unrecognized" person. The government is determined to support the puppet Diaz at all costs.

STOWAWAY FROM MUSSOLINI LAND TRIES TO STAY

Darrow Will Argue Case Against Deportation

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 3. — George Miers, youthful stowaway, issued an appeal today for any information concerning the Miers family of New York or of Florida so that they may come forward and save him from being deported.

Immigration authorities ordered Miers deported following his arrival here from Genoa, Italy, Jan. 23, aboard the steamer Texas. He had stowed away for five days before hunger caused him to come out of his hiding place.

The attention of Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminal lawyer, has been called to the case and he has promised to argue Miers' side before Federal Judge Ervin. Meanwhile he has interested the local firm of Ambrogi and Bland to aid the boy.

"There are 12,000,000 Americans in this country," Darrow said. "One boy of his age who speaks English and claims to be an American cannot hurt them by remaining here."

Miers who claims he is 17 years old, says he was born in New York city and taken to Naples, Italy when four years old. His father was John Miers, an American, and his mother of Italian birth but he does not remember her name.

His parents died several years ago in Italy, Miers claims. When the family moved to Italy, they also took two sisters, both of whom married and are living in Italy but he has forgotten their names.

An older brother, now about 35 years old, was left in this country and it is through him that George seeks to prove his claim that he is an American citizen.

Australia Mail Workers Strike When Insulted

VIENNA, Feb. 3.—A general strike of all postmen and mail wagon drivers was called here today.

It is the result of a reprimand given to a postal worker because he did not take off his hat in the presence of the postmaster of the Vienna district.

The other workers took offense and called the strike.

Automobile Production Picks Up a Little

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—From 1,400 to 1,600 more automobiles are being turned out daily in the Detroit district than for any day in January, it was learned today.

Factories working short time in January are now working full time and in some cases overtime to meet the increased demand. Production increases ranging from 12 to 15 per cent are being put into effect by manufacturers.

Argentina Prohibits Night Work in Bakeries.

Night work in bakeries has been prohibited in the Argentine, according to an announcement of the Department of Labor, which states: "The president of Argentina has issued an executive decree putting into effect Law No. 11388, which prohibits work in bakeries between the hours of 9 p. m. and 5 a. m."

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Germany in Race Again Sells Iron Goods Here

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The first Diesel direct-drive locomotive to be operated in the United States will be imported from the Friedrich Krupp works at Essen, Germany, by the Boston-Maine Railroad, the management announced today. This indicates the competition that the revived German steel industry is offering American industrialists.

The purchases of the locomotive is part of the Boston and Maine's new policy, which will add twenty-six locomotives to its foot freight service.

Three Million Deaf School Children.

The extent of deafness discovered in recent surveys among the children of New York States indicates that there are more than 2,000,000 hard-of-hearing children in the United States. It therefore seems important that all children should be tested for hearing, and a method has been devised, through the use of a phonograph and individual telephones, by which 40 children may be examined at a time.

Take $14,000 Champagne.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2.—A raiding party of customs officers boarded the French steamer Pennsylvania at Locusta' Point today and confiscated 1,200 quarts of champagne, valued at American bootleg prices at $14,000.

Vivid Contrast of What Old Age Has in Store for Workers and Parasites

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

THE whole race rushes obstacle-ly toward old age. For the multimillions of workers, old age is a time to be dreaded, for then a period of penury and want. For the parasites it is a period of ease thru declining years.

The contrast is revealed in startling manner in the stories of Joseph Goldstein, the 57-year-old garment worker of New York, and David R. Mathias, "less than 60 years," retiring superintendent of the Joliet (Illinois) works of the Illinois Steel Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

Goldstein is out on bail awaiting sentence at the hands of the vicious Judge Otto Rasolsky. He may go to prison.

Mathias, according to the New York Times, is planning "to spend the rest of his life in travel."

That is the varying lot of the victim and the beneficiary of the present capitalist social system.

* * *

Goldstein is a member of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. He fought with his class. He came out on strike. He was among the pickets, in the vanguard of the struggle to win the 40-hour week. He was arrested. He was thrown into "The Tombs" with many of the occupational ills that attack workers in the different industries, that the infamous Rosalsky denounced as "thugs" and "gangsters," trying to put them in the same class with the Hessian army employed by the bosses to help break this and every other strike.

Goldstein was in a continuous agony in "The Tombs," without medical attention, and suffering all the resulting physical and mental tortures.

It was probably inevitable that Goldstein, under these conditions, should give way. When he was released on bail and returned home to await sentence at the hands of the notorious lackey of the bosses, Rosalsky, he surrendered to the power of employers' prisons. Rather than return, he tried suicide, and at this writing hovers near death.

* * *

Suicide is not the road of escape for militants in the class struggle. The working class soldier of the class war remains in the fight until the last breath is gone.

In every land the working class is giving of its best fighters, to win freedom, in order that the cause may make progress.

The agony of Goldstein, driven to an attempt to take his own life, but only glaring the fact that the American despotism apes closely the tyranny of the czardom that is gone. Thoro is a new Siberia in Russia, and on that spot of land seemingly named in horrible jest, Welfare Island (formerly Blackwell's Island). There many of the prisoners unheeded by Rosalsky have now been taken. There they suffer for their cause, the cause of the working class.

* * *

If Goldstein dies, the torturer will not only be not the head of the capitalist judge, but also on the head of the capitalist social system that, grives this human tyrant the power and the right to sit in judgment over workers striving to lift their meager standard of living.

* * *

It is only because such as Goldstein are plunged into the agony of deepest despair, that it is possible for great capitalists like Mathias, the friend of Judge E. H. Gary, head of the steel trust, who fought for the 12-hour-day for workers, to earn great profits, enriching themselves and their class. The sufferings of the Goldsteins in all industries speed the ships on which the Mathias parasites sail for sunny climes to enjoy themselves gorging on luxuries made possible by wealth stolen from labor.

* * *

As Mathias starts his tour of the world, as Goldstein wends his way toward prison, the creation of greater and even greater profits goes steadily forward. The steel trust that favors Mathias develops the southern mills, where labor is even cheaper and more oppressed than in the North, especially the steel trust mills of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, located at Birmingham, Alabama.

Similarly the cotton spindles of New England move into the southern states so that it is possible for Elmore N. Higgins, vice-president of the Bank of America, to say that:

"For the first time in the history of this country the number of cotton spindles in the southern states has at last exceeded that in New England. Moreover, the southern mill owner is producing twice as much as the New England mill owner per unit of machinery."

That means that the wage slaves of the South are being driven twice as hard as those of the North.

* * *

The capitalist plunderers are not satisfied with crushing the life out of a Goldstein with a union to give him some protection.

They must move their industries into the Southern states where labor is unorganized and helpless. All the greater need, therefore, for labor in the North to develop its struggle, overcome all obstacles and develop a trade union movement that will spread into every corner of the land.

It is in this fight that the members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union are now going to jail and prison. Thru their sacrifice it will be inexcusably possible for the cause to conquer.

YAQUI UPRISING NEAR END WITH 1500 ENTRAPPED

No Support for Indians After Priests Fail

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3.—With the clerical rebellion practically crushed, and a stream of individuals forced in the reactionary bands hurrying to take advantage of the government's offer of amnesty, the attention of the public is directed at the Yaqui uprising.

Yaquis Surrounded

Annihilation threatens 1,500 rebellious Yaqui Indians and their leader, Luis Matus, surrounded in their stronghold in the wild fastnesses of the Sierra Bacatetes Mountains in Central Sonora, by 6,000 Mexican federals under command of General Antonio Rios Zertuche, according to official advices received today at Mexican military headquarters in Nogales, Sonora, across the line from Nogales, Arizona.

A Timely Revolt

There has always been something queer about this Yaqui uprising, in the opinion of anti-clericals here. There is the undoubted fact that it was timed to coincide with the catholic rebellion further south, and there are constant rumors of Americans acting as military advisers of the Indians, or connected with their service of supplies. With the collapse of the clerical uprising, the Yaqui revolt also appears to break down, as if there were no further need of it.

* * *

ROME, Feb. 3.—The Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican, contains horror tales of Mexican priests alleged to be deported from the country by the Mexican government because they concealed church property.

* * *

Lighter Embargo

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — The government today clamped down tighter the embargo on munitions to Mexico.

The ban was ordered recomposed to sulphur and sulphuric acid, both of which are used in munitious manufacture.

Valerian Dovgalevsky New Ambassador of U. S. S. R. to Japan

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—Valerian Dovgalevsky has been appointed as ambassador at Tokio, succeeding M. Koyo, who is now attached to the foreign office Dovgalevsky, until recently was minister to Sweden.

M. Dovgalevsky, a native of Kief, is a mining engineer of Toulouse University. He was Commissar of Posts and Telegraphs in 1927.

Connect Airplane Radio With Telephones

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. Direct telephone communication for commercial aircraft passengers will soon be possible, according to the U. S. Bureau of Standards, which has been studying the possibility of an aeronautical radio telephone system.

Dr. L. H. Bellinger, chief of the radio laboratory, declared that the radio telephones would operate on a wave band from 340 to 600 meters. The first in-stallations will connect airplanes and commercial aircraft chiefly for the communication of information to the pilots.

It will be but another step to connect passengers with the commercial telephone switchboards, according to experts.

Bill in Pennsylvania Ending Child Marriage

The Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania plans to introduce in the 1927 general assembly, a child marriage bill raising the minimum age to at least 16 years for both sexes, and a hasty marriage bill requiring a five-days' interval between the application for and granting of a license. The present legal minimum age is 14 for boys and 12 for girls, and a recent study made by the association's child-welfare division revealed that 821 girls under the age of 16 were married in the state during 1924.

Explosion Kills Workers.

BEACON, N. Y., Feb. 3.—As the result of the explosion of a freight locomotive of the Central New England railroad at Green Haven, N. Y., about twelve miles from here, today one man is dying, another is in a serious condition and a third suffered minor injuries.

Lenin Meeting in Paterson.

A Lenin memorial meeting in Paterson, N. J., will be held Friday, February 4, 1927, at 8:00 p. m., at Carpenters' Hall, 54 Van Houten Street. Admission will be 25 cents. Speakers Bert Wicks, H. M. Wicks.

IMPERIALISM SEEKS CANNON FODDER

(Continued from page 1)

uniformed man-catchers were busy in the crowd of spectators, soliciting each young man to "be a soldier—see the world."

To Invade China.

The most brazen admission of the reasons behind this activity comes now, however, when hastily scrawled signs appear on all the recruiting enlistment posters, as pictured above. "Enlistment now open for China."

A Washington dispatch shows that this is not mere local entusiasm of a desperate recruiting officer trying to show results. Inspired statements from the capital say:

"Twelve hundred marines, many of whom have seen service in France, Nicaragua and the Philippines, are making ready at San Diego for departure this week on the transport Chaumont for Far Eastern duty, while army recruiting officers have called upon corps area commanders for 250 recruits to fill up gaps in the Fifteenth infantry garrison of Tientsin.

Penetrates Interior

The American infantry garrison at Tientsin (fifty against of Pekin, capital of China under the North China government), is part of the foreign military patrol of the Pekin, Tientsin railroad. This involves service in the interior of China, and in case of a sudden advance of the Kouminchun, the army of Feng Yu-hsiang, now allied with the Koumintang, or Cantonese movement, American troops would very likely be placed in a position where they could defend imperialist interests against Chinese nationalists.

There is every indication of a desire to rest, replacements and reinforcements from New York to China. The war department states that the move is a "routine one," but at the same time is known to have ordered recruiting officers to pick for Chinese duty "specially promising" men who will not need a long course of physical culture to overcome the starvation of a life in the slums.

"Only Americans."

None but American citizens will be accepted, as the war department feels that the effect of propaganda coming into American lines thru the Cantonese, and perhaps from Russia, will be less with the more patriotic Americans than with foreign born.

The war department is not overlooking the fact also, that imperialistic interests in China are not entirely parallel, and that if trouble develops between the United States and European countries over choice bits of loot, it will not be advisable to have nationals of those other countries in the American army.

Usual Bunk.

Special inducements offered to soldiers for Chinese service do not seem to be very different from those promised at all times. Handbills distributed by the recruiting officers carry the usual appeals to men crushed and despondent from unemployment, hard work and low wages.

They emphasize especially regular pay (without stating how very low it is), regular meals and shelter and clothing, advancement (without a word about the exclusiveness of the officer caste, or the difficulties thrown in the way of self respecting men who wish promotion), and a final appeal to the man who lacks class consciousness altogether; the soldier "never has to quit work and go on strike." The fact that the soldier who tries to quit work with or without "going on strike" can be court martialed and shot in time of war, or imprisoned for long terms in time of peace, is not brought out in the handbill.

Kuhn Loeb & Co. Have Fire

Noon day traffic in the financial district was disrupted, and thousands of office workers were forced into the street yesterday by a fire which smoldered for more than an hour in the 22-story building of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from page 1)

from the most flat-footed policeman.

So it was with the case Gladstone. The man who intrigued with Mrs. Kitty O'Shea to scandalize Parnell would not be the kind of a man to chase "fallen" women. Thus spoke Gladstone's son on the witness stand. His testified that a large part of his father's wealth was spent in trying to save the "wicked." It is said that Gladstone was firmly convinced that he was ordained by his deity to save the world and that he thought the British empire was the instrument through which the divine will could be carried out. All those who hitherto had doubts about the truth of the stories concerning Gladstone's amorous activities should shed them now. A fellow with a divine mission is just tha kind of a man innocent girls should avoid.

* * *

BERNARR MacFADDEN, physical culture protagonist and foe of flesh meat has no objection to using animated human flesh as an aid to his circulation department. Hearst and MacFadden are running a race for the salacious championship of the United States. Both offer prizes for the snappiest double-meaning puns on the "Peaches-Browning" trial. MacFadden has an editorial in one of his filthiest editions, denouncing criminals and congratulating a jury that sentenced a moron who killed two policemen to death. The moron is a public assets compared to MacFadden. Hearst's rag chests up the drooping spirits of those who feared that their daily editorial of slush would be snatched from their intellectual teeth, when the Browning trial ends. The trial of King Benjamin of the House of David is next, says Hearst and Browning is only a lame duck compared to Ben. Those are the custodians of public virtue and the watchdogs of social cleanliness!

Anne Louise Strong Will Talk on Russia

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Anna Louise Strong, just returned from Soviet Russia, will lecture on "Religion and Morality in Soviet Russia," at the Workers' House, 1902 W. Division St., Chicago, on Sunday, February 6, at 1:30 p. m. Admission 25 cents.

They Smoked 'Em Anyway

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 3.—Governor Ben S. Paulen today signed the measure that repeals Kansas' twenty-year old anti-cigaret law.

The bill, which taxes cigarets, prohibits advertising them and other regulations relating to licenses, will become a law in May when the statutes are published.

For the Life of a Sailor

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 3. — The steamer Empire without a rudder is helpless at sea said drifting southeast 85 miles off Sable Island according to a wireless message received here by the marine and fisheries department today.

Rail Workers Killed

BEACON, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Two men were critically injured today in a freight wreck on the Central New England Railroad between Hopewell, N. Y., and Stormville, N. Y., about ten miles from here.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! Don't Delay!

Workers' [Communist] Party

From the Minutes of a Shop Nucleus

By JACK STACHEL.

NUCLEUS X in one of the largest mens clothing factories in this city has 6 comrades who work in that factory and three others that have been attached to it. The nucleus carries on its work probably no worse than the average nucleus in the party. It meets more or less regularly; the members pay their dues; they all read the party press; every one of them is an active member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and most of them also belong to fraternal organizations. The comrades also attend regularly the meetings of their fraction and of the Trade Union Educational League.

Question Of Judgment.

At the last meeting of the nucleus during the discussion of the organizers' report the following interesting situation was brought to the surface.

One of the comrades expressed himself that the entire shop was a left wing shop and it was only due to the Beckerman terrorism in the shop that the workers did not respond to the calls and slogans of the Trade Union Educational League. Upon further questioning of the comrades I learned that in this shop of over 350 workers 80% of whom are Italian speaking and the other 30% Jewish speaking, only about 25 read the Freiheit and only three read the Italian left wing paper, Il Lavoratore.

Too Much For Granted.

Our comrades in this shop have no doubt taken too much for granted. They actually believed that in a factory of 350 workers and only 33 reading the left wing press, that they have the bulk of the shop behind them. No doubt the influence of the left wing and the Communists in this shop is much larger than the actual readers of the left wing press, this is due to the fact that even many of the workers who read the bourgeois and right wing press recognize that the left wing is the only group that has a constructive program for the industry, and that Beckerman is ruining the union, but these workers who are not sufficiently conscious to read the left wing press can not be relied upon in all occasions to stand behind the left wing.

Getting Readers—A Daily Task.

I cite the above as very important, because these comrades have not made a systematic effort to secure readers, for our papers. The comrades in all factories must consider the getting of readers and subscribers to our press as one of the most essential tasks in their every day work.

Not only must we secure more readers for the Freiheit and Il Lavoratore in that shop but we can and must get readers for the DAILY WORKER as well. Particularly the younger workers must be induced to read The DAILY WORKER, since these workers can in most cases read enough English to read The DAILY WORKER.

In the needle trades shops our comrades often neglect to appeal to the shipping clerks, office help, etc., simply because the union does not organize them. We must get after these workers and win them over for the trade union movement, and by explaining to them why they are not organized, and that the left wing stands for industrial unionism and that we favor the organization of the workers in the factory, we can also win them for the left wing. Even before they are organized these workers can be of great service in the struggle between the right and left wing forces in the shop.

"They Are Mostly Women."

When pressed to the wall as to why only three workers out of 175 read the Italian left wing paper one of the comrades came forward with the explanation that most of the Italian workers are women. Unconsciously this comrade betrayed a mistaken attitude toward women workers—a non-Communist attitude. This attitude is usually not expressed in opposition to work among women, but rather it is expressed through passivity in this field.

It may be true that in many instances it is more difficult to organize the women workers than it is the men. This situation has its roots in historical development of both women and the woman in industry. But on the other hand the Passaic strike like many other battles are an indication of how even elderly and illiterate women can fight once they are convinced. There are many reasons because of which the Italian left wing has not been able to organize the workers in this shop. In this particular shop the comrades must not be content even if they secure a majority of Jewish workers. This narrow attitude must be fought. If our comrades cannot speak Italian they can bring the Italian left wing press into the shop, as they can bring the press of any other language that they do not speak. In the case of the Amalgamated there is no doubt that unless the left wing wins a majority of the Italian workers they cannot hope to oust the present right wing leadership.

Caution—But Not Ineetivity.

One comrade stated that due to the terrorism of the Beckerman machine which removed from the job every worker even suspected of distributing literature, it was impossible for the nucleus to distribute much literature in that shop. He went further and said that "we could not do anything until we have Beckerman on the run in the union." This comrade forgets however that in order to have Beckerman on the run in the Amalgamated we must win over the masses in the factories.

To win the masses in the factories we must face the dangers even for the loss of jobs. Above we must do everything possible to avoid persecution. We must be extremely cautious, but at the same time caution and terrorism must not become an excuse for inactivity.

Find a Way Out:

There can always be found ways and means of conducting the work in the shop, and the distribution of literature. It can be done by dropping literature in the closets, on the benches and many other ways. Also comrades not working in that factory can be secured to distribute literature.

Furthermore, every comrade must build a corps of sympathisers around him who have confidence in him and who will not only take from him literature but who can also be used to get contact with other workers. Our comrades must develop the habit of personal contact and personal agitation. Going home with different workers every evening, speaking to them about their home and family problems, you will get a sympathetic hearing on the other questions you will take up with them.

Did Not Know Who Were TUEL.

The biggest surprise of the evening was yet to come. None of the comrades knew exactly how many members of the T. U. E. L. were in the shop. In order to get this information they said they would consult the organizers of the T. U. E. L. groups of the various locals. It is obvious that when the nucleus does not possess such elementary information it cannot carry on systematic work, that it cannot recruit members for the party. Not only should the comrades of every nucleus have a list of the members of the left wing but every reader of the party and left wing press as well as every sympathizer should be known to the nucleus. The nucleus should have the records of these workers.

Attention To Detail Work.

I did not cite the above facts because this nucleus is the worst one in the district. By far not. I cited these facts to show that in spite of the fact that the nucleus consisted of comrades all active in their union, their fraction and in the T. U. E. L., and in spite of the fact that it met more or less regularly and paid dues, the nucleus failed to pay attention to some of the most elementary details of party organization work. I cited these cases because in a large measure this deficiency holds good for the entire party. These comrades who are very active in the Amalgamated failed to do the most elementary work in their shop to mobilize the workers against the bureaucracy and for the left wing. The lessons from the above are quite obvious to every party member and to every left wing worker. Only by paying attention to our elementary and detail tasks will we be able to mobilize the masses in the struggle against the bosses and against the right wing leaders.

WORKERS PARTY CONFERENCE IN NEWARK LAID BASIS FOR MUCH MORE ACTIVE WORK; FOUND CONSIDERABLE SUCCESSFUL ACTIVITY ALREADY

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 2.—The conference in the New Jersey sub-district of the Workers (Communist) Party held in Newark on Sunday, January 30, prepared the field for more intense work in the trade unions, for organizing the unorganized, and for the building up of the party organization.

Reports Heard.

Reports were made to the conference by representatives of the city central committees and the sub-district and by the representatives of the district, comrades Weinstone and Krumbein, as well as the representative of the youth, comrade Gerbert.

The reports showed that the work in New Jersey has become more enlivened and that in most of the cities, particularly Passaic, Perth Amboy and Elizabeth, very good work has been done in attempting to organize the unorganized and in trade union activities. Passaic showed the greatest progress in building up mass organization but it was pointed out that the party membership must be doubled there before complete satisfaction can be expressed.

Constant Progress.

In Passaic, Perth Amboy, Elizabeth and Paterson the party is showing greater vitality, more consolidation and a greater ability of undertaking the general, all-around tasks of Party work. Weaknesses were pointed out in the activity in Hudson county and in Newark, to which the attention of the sub-district and district has been called in order to keep these cities in step with the progress being made in the rest of the sub-district.

Set Up Shop Nuclei.

The conference unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of establishing shop nuclei in each of the cities in the big factories in addition to the present street nuclei that exist and in this connection for the establishment of one shop paper in the near future in each city.

Watch Details.

The conference also declared for more systematic recruiting of membership and building up of well-functioning Party units by greater attention to the detail tasks which this work involves, and building up of women's, Negro, and youth organizations.

The conference expressed the fact that we must not be satisfied merely with the first beginnings that had been made in organizing the unorganized; that further progress must be made through more systematic colonization in such cities as Elizabeth, Perth Amboy and New Brunswick, in fighting against the company unions and helping to organize trade unions in these cities.

Help Daily Worker.

The need for obtaining subscribers and readers and supporting The DAILY WORKER, and utilizing it in the work of organizing the unorganized end in trade unions activities, were very sharply stressed.

The necessity for building up defense branches was pointed out in an appeal that was made by the organizer of the I. L. D., Pat Devine, who appeared before the conference.

Continue Colonizing.

The need for comrades colonizing in the various cities and remaining there for a comparatively long time to build up and maintain organization was stressed in the conference. The formation of forums and classes in which progress has been made in Passaic, Paterson, Perth Amboy, Newark, was brought out as an important task to raise the ideological level of the workers and attract progressive-minded workers toward the Party.

Protect Foreign Born.

The conference went on record for the building up of councils of the foreign-born in all cities, to aid in the formation of trade union committees for the Labor Party and conduct propaganda against the new war danger, and imperialist ventures in Nicaragua and in China.

"CONTRIBUTIONS OF MODERN SCIENCE TO HISTORICAL MATERIALISM," SUBJECT OF LECTURE SUNDAY AT WORKERS SCHOOL FORUM

The Workers' School Forum announces for this Sunday night, February 6, at 8 P. M., a lecture on, "The Contributions of Modern Science to Historical Materialism," by Louis Fischer. The lecturer is Bernard J. Stern, who is a lecturer in sociology and the author of various articles and books on topics in his field.

He will take up the recent developments in biology, psychology and sociology and the light they throw on the question of historical materialism.

This lecture is to be followed on the following Sunday, February 13, by a lecture by Louis Fischer on th esubject "Oil and Imperialism." Fischer was for several years the Russian correspondent of the Nation and has spent much time in various oil storm centers of Europe. He is the author of a book with the same title as his lecture.

FORD OFFER TOO BILLION DOLLARS FOR HIS FACTORY

So Testifies Prentiss; Ford Refused

(Continued from page 1)

States bonds and sight drafts, amounted to $3,068,569, while on July 1, 1918, these had increased to $253,501,500. During these periods current liabilities increased from $911,606 to $102,582,838.

"Based on the efficiency of the management, and the popularity of the product, stock in the Ford Motor Co. was worth $10,200 per share in 1913," Paul Clay, vice president of Moody's Investors Service, testified.

By "efficiency of the management," Clay probably was referring to the "speed-up" system, so highly developed by the Ford personnel engineers.

Government Sues For $34,000,000

The valuation placed by the minority stockholders in their income tax return was $9,409. The original tax paid by the minority stockholders was on a basis of $3,547 per share. If the government valuation stands, the defendants must pay $36,000,000 more taxes.

Dr. David Friday, economist, characterizing the Ford business as the "eighth wonder of the world," placed the value of Ford stock on March 1, 1913 at $12,000 a share.

* * *

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—Henry Ford's plant end trade are worth a cold one billion dollars, according to expert testimony given today in the case of the government's tax suit against Senator Couzen- end associates who sold their stock to Ford, and perhaps undervalued it to the government. Last month, according to the witness his firm, Hornblower and Weeks, offered Ford a billion for his firm, end were refused.

Business Secrets Out.

The Couzens tax case court room today became a whispering gallery for the weird tales of high finance. John W. Prentiss, of New York, one of the partners in the investment banking concern of Hornblower & Weeks, told of towering fortunes, scraped up from the millions of common and mostly poor people, who buy some patented article "cheap".

Woolworth's "fiv eand ten" stores, the high secrets of dispensing "Castoria" and "Syrup of Pepsin", he mentioned with respect. Their product may be humble, but the rake-off is fine. They are magically growing, modern big business.

But Ford Is First.

But, says Prentiss, Heffry Ford eclipses them ell. His car may seem cheap to the buyer, be that as it may, but that is a misleading idea about that same "cheap" car. His firm, so he swore on the witness stand, offered Henry Ford half a billion dollars for his outfit in 1916, and Henry Ford paid for the lunch, and laughed at him.

In 1925 he tried to get hold of enough stock from Edsel Ford to control, but Kdsel consulted with the old man, and laughed at him too.

Price Goes Up.

Then within the last thirty days, Hornblower and Weeks offered Henry and Edsel a round one billion dollars for the Ford Motor Co. He did not say whether that was laughed at. Probably it is sacrilege to laugh at one billion dollors. But Ford did not sell.

Other profits of big automobile business were revealed by Prentiss. His firm bought into the Chevrolet and bid for a share of the Dodge brothers. He said the Dodge Company earned $17,000,000 in 1923 and the Chevrolet made big money too.

A Whopper of a Trust.

Prentiss said his firm had Ford accepted the billion dollar offer a syndicate of the most powerful banks in the country would have been formed to finance the deal.

The valuation of the Ford plant in 1913 was only $250,000,000, Prentiss said, but if the property could then be sold for $750,000,000 it could have been capitalized at a billion dollars, through the public offering of $200,000,000 of stock, and still afforded a moderate profi ton the investment.

Any high grads American industrial concern, Prentiss said, is figured to be worth ten times its average annual earnings over a period of years. Thus, as Ford's earnings were estimated at $100,000,000 annually, the Ford concern was figured by the bankers to be worth a billion dollars.

Hear Lenin Assassinated, Trotsky Exiled, Stalin Premier, Soviet Republic Ended

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—"Over two hundred persons gathered at 225 Valencia street in honor of the third Lenin anniversary. The speakers of the evening discussed the struggle against American imperialism, the application of Leninism to problems of the American workers.

Lenin Against Imperialism.

The two speakers, E. Levin and E. Owens, dealt with the tremendous necessity of struggling against American imperialism, the strongest section of capitalism today. Levin took up the role of Lenin and the Communist International and pointed out that the Comintern under the leadership of Lenin considers as one of the most essential tasks the struggle against imperialism and the unity between the exploited colonial masses and the industrial workers of the imperialist nations.

Lenin, the Labor Leader.

Owens dwelt upon the role of Lenin as the leader of the working class, and the necessity of using Leninism as the weapon of the workers in their struggle against capitalism.

In addition to the above two speakers, the Young Workers' League speaker emphasized the necessity of drawing the youth in ever greater numbers into the struggle. A unique feature of the program was the reproduction of two of Lenin's speeches on the phonograph.

Big Crowd.

This meeting, the most successful held by the Workers' Party in San Francisco in recent months, will do much to draw the party nearer to the masses and will be the beginning of an energetic anti-imperialist campaign to mobilize the masses in opposition to the program of American imperialism.

Spanish Newspaper in Rage Because French Expose Bribe to Krim

MADRID, Feb. 3.—The semi-official newspaper La Nacion today attacked the French newspapers for their recent campaign regarding Tangier. La Nacion indignantly denied the accusations of the French newspapers that Spain offered Abd-el-krim, exiled Moroccan leader, millions of pesetas for financing his war against the French forces in Morocco. The paper also denied the charge that Primo De Rivera was acting as a tool of Premier Mussolini, carrying out the latter's wishes in reopening the Tangier question.

All Went Africa.

The question of who shall own north Africa, with its valuable grain lands, within easy colonizing distance of all Mediterranean European countries, is actually

Organized Labor—Trade Union Action

News and Comment
Labor Education
Labor and Government
Trade Union Politics

CHURCH REPORT ON ROCKEFELLER RAILWAY STRIKE

Communities Protested Attack on Labor

WASHINGTON (FP.).—Report upon its investigation into the causes and incidents of the long strike of the locomotive engineers and firemen on the Western Maryland Railroad is to be published about Feb. 15 by the joint committee of the Federal Council of Churches, the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Communities Protest.

This report will deal with the aggressions of President Byram of the road—which is a coal-carrier—against the brotherhoods of its employes, the consequences of its virtual lockout of the union men on its engines, and the response of the communities along the line of the road to the wrong done the workers and these communities by the company's anti-labor policy.

One feature that presumably will not be included in the latest trick of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., largest stockholder in the Western Maryland, to avoid public scorn for his offense in refusing to have the company make peace.

Rockefeller Hides.

Rockefeller has run to cover in this instance, as in various earlier cases, by selling some of his stock, without losing actual control of policy.

In the Western Maryland case, as in the case of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. of a dozen years ago, and in the case of Consolidation Coal, Rockefeller began by brazen denial that any wrong had been done the workers. Then, when the facts were thrust upon his attention—the people of Cumberland, Hagerstown and other points along the road holding meetings and having their municipal officials and clergy appeal direct to Rockefeller at New York—he pleaded that he did not own a majority of the stock. Finally, he has been driven so uncomfortable in his pretenses that a stock-selling flurry has been staged on Wall Street, and he has cashed in on the higher price created for Western Maryland and for Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Still the Boss.

But Rockefeller has not sold his interest in Consolidation Coal nor in the Davis Coal & Coke Co., which furnish the Western Maryland with the biggest share of its freight revenues. Wheeling & Lake Erie gave him an outlet northward and the Western Maryland an outlet to seaboard for his coal. Over the Western Maryland he has shipped, despite the strike of the past two years, the huge volume of coal that fills his contracts with the Italian government.

How much stock in each road Rockefeller has handed over to the market, while the shorts in that stock were being pinched, is not known. That he said enough to endanger his power to dictate the labor policy of the Western Maryland is not believed by the strikers or the railroad finance experts in Washington. Rockefeller remains responsible for the lockout of the brotherhoods on the Western Maryland, as he is for the anti-union policy of Consolidation Coal.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

NEARLY TWO BILLION FOREIGN INVESTMENTS LAST YEAR; "MODERN METHOD OF CONQUEST" RAPIDLY REMOVE GERMANY, SOUTH AMERICA

(By LELAND OLDS, Federated Press)

The rapid extension of American capitalist domination over the world stands out in reports on the record capital flotations of 1926. According to Vice-president Edd Whitaker of Moody's Investors' Service, American foreign investments during 1926 reached a net total of $1,960,700,101. This brings the grand total investment of U. S. capital in foreign lands, exclusive of loans by the government, to $18,258,000,000.

Shows Private Bank.

These figures are somewhat larger than those reported by the Commercial & Financial Chronicle because they include not only news securities publicly offered but also issues placed privately with American investors, direct American purchases of foreign property not involving the public offering of securities, the acquisition of foreign securities already outstanding and the purchase of foreign internal issues. The Chronicle reckons publicly offered foreign securities at $1,145,099,749 in 1926, $1,056,160,500 in 1925 and $966,870,320 in 1924, a total of $3,227,930,569 in 3 years.

Modern Conquest.

Woodrow Wilson pointed out that such financial penetration of foreign countries was the modern form of conquest. Winkler says:

"Just as the Napoleonic wars brought about a transfer of the finan-

American foreign investment:	Gov't, State & Municipal	Corporations
In 1926
Europe, except Germany	$187,292,000	$189,524,680
Germany	87,460,750	348,396,550
Total Europe	274,712,750	537,920,230
Canada	130,882,122	357,219,500
South America	263,067,970	139,830,350
Central America	10,920,000	104,421,880
U. S. Territories	8,881,000	2,547,599
Miscellaneous	19,779,000	56,782,100
Grand total	$708,232,842	$1,198,472,259

cial hegemony of the Netherlands to London, the world war appears to have been responsible for the shifting, for the time being at least, of the financial supremacy from the classic center of finance to New York."

Using The War.

Before the United States openly entered the war New York financiers saw that it offered them an opportunity to make New York the financial capital of the world. With $3,513,000,000 invested in Canada, $3,927,000,000 in Europe, $4,514,000,000 in Latin America, $1,086,000,000 in countries outside these spheres, and thy total growing at an increasing pace, they are on their way.

The following table shows the distribution of 1926 foreign investment to governments and municipalities and to corporations:

Important American investments outside of Germany in 1926 included $20,000,000 in the Italian Public Utility Credit institution; $16,000,000 in Cuban-Dominican sugar; $22,500,000 Intl. Match Corp.; $35,000,000 in Chile copper and $10,000,000 in the Fiat auto works at Turin, Italy.

Taking Over Germany.

American capital is pouring into Germany, especially into German steel and utility corporations. The $348,395,550 of American capital which went into German corporations in 1926 follows $203,229,500 in 1925, making a total of more than $550,000,000 in two years.

Print Weird Legends About Cantonese in Swedish Canada News

(By a Worker Correspondent)

CORNING, Sask., Canada, Feb. 3.—The Swedish Canada News, a paper absolutely loyal to the pretentions of the imperialists in this dominion, and willing to betray their misinformed Swedish immigrants for the sake of Canadian and British capitalists, publishes long editorial articles against the Cantonese uprising in China.

Wields Romantic Pen.

Drawing heavily on his imagination, the editor of the Swedish Canada News presents Dr. Sun Yat Sen and General Chiang-Kai-shek as two dime novel tricksters, rousing the fanatical Chinese to follow them by posing as saints, and working miracles by slight of hand.

Opposite of Fact.

The absurdity of this tale would be apparent to anybody who could even read the complaints of foreign missionaries that the Kuominting have no more regard for the native religion than they have for Christianity, but diverted all religions altogether. However, the Canadian Swedish paper thinks to take advantage of the limited information of readers who come to the Swedish language bourgeois papers for information. The Communist Ny Tid will explain the facts to such as do not read English.

Brooklyn Teachers Meet Feb. 7.

The February meeting of the executive committee of the Brooklyn Teachers Association, Oswald Schkolnik president, will be held at the Unity Club, Bedford avenue and Dean street, Brooklyn, on Monday, February 7.

Do You Want a Good Daily Worker? Then Be a Correspondent

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

What happened in your shop today? Are your working conditions good, bad, or worse? What is your union doing? Are you having an organization campaign?

If you sat down tonight and wrote us a story about these things you'd be a first-rate, on-the-job workers correspondent. But for some reason the workers have grown lazy recently and we are missing our former regular reports from the various battle lines.

Suppose in a war the reporters forgot to send news back to the papers, or suppose they only wrote a story once every six months—and all the time the war was going on, men were being killed, cities bombed, warships blown up! What sort of newspapers would be printed? Above all that people cared about was the war!

That's the way The DAILY WORKER is left when its correspondents forget their jobs. Field news has to be suspended. The DAILY WORKER can't afford to send an investigator out to your shop. What is happening—either to you, or to the mill, and mines and factories.

The DAILY WORKER needs its whole corps of worker correspondents to be actively collecting news in every city and town of the country. How else can this workers' paper know what the workers are doing except when great masses of them are engaged in some national event like a strike which attracts wide attention? For the everyday story of the worker on the job, and the story of what he is doing little by little to better his conditions—or what the conditions are under which he works—the DAILY WORKER must rely on the worker correspondents.

Those who send in stories here will not only be filling a place on The DAILY WORKER, but they will be preparing themselves to establish a factory or shop newspaper when each story, if you haven't one in mind. Then write it just as you would tell it to one of your friends. Don't try to be literary. The greatest writing is simple. Don't express personal opinions, or describe your feelings. Give us news.

Remember, write on one side of the paper only, and if possible use a typewriter.

Syrian Insurgents Again in Damascus

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 3.—Reports of fighting between the French occupation forces and the rebellious tribesmen in Syria continue to filter in here. The insurgents today were reported to have entered Damascus, where active street fighting ensued.

CAPMAKERS OUT 100 PER CENT IN BOSTON STRUGGLE

Furriers Promise Help; Youth in Forefront

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The striking capmakers' headquarters are throbbing with life and enthusiasm. Picket committees report that the result of the call for the strike had been a 100 per cent walk-out. Every shop had been protected by the early-morning pickets.

After the various committees reported at a recent mass meeting, L. Beckman, organizer of the Boston furriers, spoke. Recalling the part that the capmakers had taken in helping the furriers to win the 40-hour week and increased minimum wage, he offered the financial and moral support of his union. "My speech will be short," he said, "because I am not well, but I feel it an honor to have been called as the first guest to address the striking capmakers and I know yours will be a winning fight."

Call for Veteran.

A loud call then came from the strikers for Morris Widrow, a worker veteran, who was the virtual organizer of the Capmakers' Union in Boston 25 years ago. His comparisons between the conditions of the workers then and now entirely burst the bubble of workers' prosperity in the last decade. He showed that 20 years ago, when workers had very little, there was still a vistage of humanity even in the bosses, which is completely extinct in the modern profit-hungry "magnates," as he facetiously called the "sock-rack" employers.

Bosses Careless.

Widrow caused much merriment in recounting daily encounters with foremen and employers, with which all capmakers are familiar, pointing out in each case how unconcerned the bosses are wherever workers' interests are involved.

Encouraging Reports.

Bob Glover, Sharpe and other rank-and-file workers spoke, all voicing the same sentiments of co-operation and unified effort, offering themselves and all they have to win this fight.

The spirit of the workers is very high, and they seem to enjoy the idea of a bit of a vacation from the grinding of machinery.

The Youth to the Front.

An encouraging feature is the enthusiasm of the young workers. They are in the forefront at picketing, and ready to do the liveliness of the picket lines. As a result of their activities, other young workers, unused to strikes, and uninformed, have begun to see what it is all about, and to leave the struck shops. Shippers and packers especially are coming out every day, and joining their fellow workers on strike.

The young are discriminated against in the capmaking industry. The season is short for all workers, and the pay averages $30 a week for adults, and even less for young workers. The seven per cent increase demanded will come in handy.

Furniture Rubbers Stick Together to Run Out Pace-maker

(By a Worker Correspondent)

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 3.—In the rubbing department of a furniture factoly here, the boss recently came to the men with an imporatnt job of radio cases to get the finishing process. "Rub this furniture out," said he to the men, all on piece work, "and we will make a fair price for the work."

The men set to work, tacitly agreeing to set a moderate pace. But there was a pace-maker in the crowd, one individual who slapped his part of the work through in much less time than the others took.

Solidarity Wins.

The foreman, commenting on this, set the price of the job at $1.75, whereas the others, at time rates, would have got about $2.50.

The men immediately protested, one went to the boss to demand for all of them at least $2.25, and another organized them together for a walk out if necessary. The boss yielded, and also agreed to fire the professional speeder.

No Appropriation for Envoy to U. S. S. R.

An attempt was made by Representative La Guardia (D.), of New York City, to provide an appropriation for an American diplomatic representative in the Soviet Union during the final reading of the bill making appropriations for the Department of State. Mr. La Guardia urged that the Soviet Government be recognized. His amendment was defeated.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

From the Logging Camps.

Editor, DAILY WORKER—As one of the many victims of the logging industry, in the Northwest, I deemed it for the best interests of the workers who work in the logging and lumber industry to relate some of my experiences. I was twice injured last year and the last time my knee was badly hurt, which the it is several months since, I am still far from being able to work normally.

It is not my fault for the injuries received. The work is one of the most hazardous and anyone, no matter how cautious, may expect to be hurt most any time. It will, of course, take a long time to explain this part of the matter. But what I want to complain about is the fact that under the compensation laws of the state of Washington, the companies are required to report the accidents at once, yet I took the Clemens Logging Company more than 4 months before they reported to the department of labor and industries. In the meantime I had to pay myself for medicine and other care in connection with the hospital attendance. Finally I received a compensation, that for the sum of $64 for living expenses and all. Altho even under this compensation law, which is a bosses' protective law, I am entitled to more than this, but the commissioner seems to delay the matter instead of helping, which is his duty. It is rather plain that the department of labor in this state, instead of helping the injured workers, are playing the boss's game.

For my part, I wish the workers would get wise in the logging industry and organize and fight for their rights as men should, instead of depending on the department of labor and boss's compensation. Although I could hardly stand up, the state doctor advised me to do light work and I was forced to work part of the time in order to earn my living.

The state paid doctor of the department of labor told me, or tried to tell me, that I was sick of tonsilitis and that that was responsible for my suffering of rheumatism and that had to do with the injury received. On the other hand the private doctor in Seattle not only laughed at such nonsense on the part of the state paid doctor, but sent a letter to the state department informing them that it was not a case of tonsilitis but one of injury received.—ALEXANDER KEMNUS, Seattle, Wash.

IT'S CRAFTED PAINTERS' MONEY

But Official Accountant Shields $20,000 Thief

Twenty-six thousand dollars was stolen in a period of 19 months by Charles F. Koenig, secretary of the New York District Council of Painters.

This was the report of Certified Accountant Doyle, who had been engaged by George H. Hedrick, president of the Brotherhood of Painters, to examine the official records of the district council, and to investigate the charges of Painters Local 806, that huge sums of money, belonging to the treasury of the council, had been stolen by Koenig, the financial secretary, and Philip Zausner, the day secretary of the council.

Shows Big Graft.

Doyle's report states that he inspected the books of the council, and that in the 19 months from January, 1925, to September, 1926, 1637 new members were admitted with an initiation payment of $75 per member. Of this number, 37 names had been entered as honorable members, at the rate of $5 per head. The United Keenig the sum of $2,830. Only 278 men were recorded as having paid the full amount of $75, the bulk of the candidates, though having paid the full amount, were entered as having paid much less, and, according to the certified account, netted the grafters a nice income of $23,000.

Headquarters Admits It.

This total falls far below the amounts which are missing, according to the public accountants of Palk, Deorkin & Co., who had been engaged by Local 806, but nevertheless, coming from a man who had been appointed by the Painters Headquarters of Lafayette, Indiana, the admission of the actual graft is staggering.

The report was read at the regular delegate meeting of the district council. No sooner had he finished reading his findings, than Doyle immediately switched his position. He praised the neatness in which the books had been kept, and offered the suggestion, that the council accept the offer of Koenig, that it should but one half of the money that was stolen by him, so that Koenig would return to the council $12,000, and let the case rest. Doyle, assuming the role of a dictator, stated that this must be accepted, that the whole affair must be settled within the council, and must not be permitted to go to the courts, and that the matter should not even be submitted before the various local unions.

Won't Cover Up.

In this he was, however, severely rebuked by the progressive delegates, and was told, that Koenig and his co-partners had stolen the funds belonging to the membership at large, and that his report would therefore have to be submitted to each local. The delegates were serious in their suggestion, that, having stolen $20,000 from their organization, Koenig would now "generously" agree to repay half of that amount, and then go away, a free man. A demand was made that he be brought to court, like the criminal that he is.

Doyle Shields Grafter.

At this demand, Doyle, who is a former business agent for the Brotherhood at Buffalo, and also a notorious floorlicader at the Painters' conventions became furious, and stated that Koenig would never go to jail, that the bonding company had already demanded his extrication and arrest, but that he, Doyle, would shield him.

A motion was made then that Doyle's report be referred to the various local unions so that the membership of the whole district should decide whether such an offer is satisfactory, and whether the grafters shall go free. The motion carried, and within a week each local must vote on this report, and must turn in their vote to the district council not later than Feb. 10, when the council will hold its next meeting.

Was Communist Hater.

It will be recalled that during the last three months in 1926 these charges of graft, made by Local 806, were referred to by headquarters as a lot of dirt thrown out by the Communists in order to win the election of their candidate to the council. The man most implicated in fraud, Phillip Zausner, was again running for the office of day-secretary. He was beaten by the progressive opposition candidate, Thomas Wright.

Zausner and Koenig accumulated during their reign of office much property and real estate. Zausner is now in business selling paint, but the members are not thru with him yet.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Labor League's Corner

"LIEBER WENIGER ABER BESSER"
(Rather less but better)

"In these words Lenin expressed a principle which is basic in the building up of a strong revolutionary movement. It is a principle which is totally at variance with the entire ideology of capitalism. The same principle may be fittingly applied to the question of the press.

The chief claim of the average capitalist paper, of which it boasts and on the basis of which it claims the right to the patronage of the workers, is the fact that it gives quantity. The average capitalist paper weighs far more than The DAILY WORKER. It contains more pictures. It contains more articles. It has more writers. It contains more features. Its selling cry is, "We have MORE than the others."

But when this mass of material is made up of the filth of the Browning case, attacks on labor, and matter tending to confuse and mislead the minds of the workers, then surely the boast of quantity becomes an empty one, something to be regarded by the workers with misgiving rather than approval.

The DAILY WORKER, on the other hand, is limited to six pages. But within that limited space is included the really important news of the day. A worker has neither the time nor the inclination to wade throw the mass of unnecessary, irrelevant and stupid material which finds its way in the columns of the capitalist press. He therefore seeks a paper which shall pick out for him that which is worth reading, which shall give him far more than the news itself, a correct interpretation of the events of the day. For this reason The DAILY WORKER is slowly but surely establishing itself with the discriminating reader as a paper worth reading not for its voluminousness, but rather for the quality of its news and views.—BERT MILLER.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE MUST GROW TO CARE FOR CASES OF PERSECUTION SURE TO COME IN NEW YEAR OF UNION ACTIVITY

By PAT DEVINE.

A close study of experiences of the working class of the world shows that during the past year conditions for the workers have been gradually getting worse and worse. In Europe the workers are rapidly being driven down to the coolie level.

Great Britain was the scene of the most gigantic class conflict since the Russian revolution. The inevitable result of capitalism was openly manifested, viz., the workers on one side, the employers on the other, each demanding that the other submit to their terms. During that momentous struggle many workers were thrust into prison because of their working class activities. As a result of these imprisonments the British workers have realized the urgent need for organizing a definite body for the protection of prisoners and their dependents.

Italy Writhes.

Italy has also passed through fire during the past year. Mussolini, the personification of all the employing class forces of suppression, has been riding rough-shod over the workers. One had only to show signs of being a man to find oneself thrust into prison, and proposes deporting all the militant working class Italian elements.

Save Sormenti.

Sormenti, that courageous anti-Fascist is threatened with deportation. If such deportation is carried out, he undoubtedly will be put to death as soon as he reaches Italy. Americans who pride themselves on the freedom of the country must protest against this action. Our Italian comrades are fighting our battle as well as their own.

An organizational campaign is commencing now. Strong ow. The I. L. D. is, it must become stronger if it has to successfully tackle the question of defense on a larger scale. Meetings will be held shortly all over the city and all workers are urged to be there and think it worth fighting for must rally to those meetings. No slovenly or haphazard methods will suffice for this new year. The workers are going to pass through trying times in the United States. Undoubtedly many good working class fighters will be arrested in an attempt to cripple our forces.

Bring in Unions.

The unions must be brought into the I. L. D. They are the first line of defense. The I. L. D. is a most essential part of their activity. Trade unionists must raise the question in their locals.

Let this campaign be a gigantic success. Workers! Previously you have fought everybody's battle but your own. Today you are fighting your own battle. Rally to the I. L. D., remember the prisoners in jail; protect the future prisoners. All aboard for the big organizational campaign of the I. L. D.! Your duty demands it—we expect it. Here's for a strong mass International Labor Defense!

Sacco, Vanzetti Case.

Then there is the famous Sacco and Vanzetti case. The international labor defense has been most active in the fight to save the lives or these two valiant working class martyrs. Not only in America, but in every country in the world, the workers have vigorously protested against this unprecedented frame-up. Nobody seriously believes Sacco and Vanzetti committed the murder for which they are charged. There is a flagrant case of anti-working class prejudice. Thanks to the wonderful response from all sections of the workers, these two comrades are alive. If our agitation abates ever so little they will go to the chair.

Catch Poll for Benito.

Another most important question facing the American working class is that of political refugees. In years gone by the United States was considered a refuge for the downtrodden and oppressed the world over. Well can we remember the protests of our politicians that "America, the most wonderful country the world has ever known, is no different from the European and other countries, we are free

FOR YOUR HEALTH.
Strictly Pure
FLORIDA
Honey
Guaranteed by the «Bee-Farmer.
Delivered in New York City at following prices:
2 Lbs. 75c. - 3 Lbs. $1.00
5 Lbs. $1.50
10% Goes to Daily Worker. Order by Mail.
J. A. FEURER
3456 Park Ave. N. Y. C.
Agents Wanted.

Published by the DAILY WORKER Publishing Co.
50 First Street, New York, N.Y. Phone, Orchard 3620

Subscription Rates:
By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months
By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year; $3.25 six months; $1.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 50 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Moving In on China.

Out of the maze of assertions, denials and counter-denials coming from the foreign and state departments of Great Britain and the United States, one fact stands out clearly: The imperialists of both countries are using the pretext of protecting their nationals in Shanghai in an effort to crush the revolutionary movement in China, the preliminary to a new attack on the Soviet Union.

Great Britain has 20,000 troops on the way to China and the United States government is rushing warships under sealed orders to the Orient.

The officials of both governments have words of peace on their lips, but they are keeping their powder dry. The honeyed words are used to deceive the Chinese people and the masses in the imperialist countries. But the words of capitalist statesmen should fool nobody.

The imperialist powers are determined to hold their grip on China, by force if necessary. They refuse to recognize the Nationalist government, the only responsible government in China. Great Britain dickers with the Cantonese the while she rushes her battle cruisers to Shanghai. While the Cantonese break off negotiations, owing to the landing of hostile British forces on Chinese soil, the British blame the Soviet government for the rupture. The imperialists blame the Soviet Union for rebellion in China. They blame the Soviet Union for trouble in Morocco, in Latin America, and wherever the subject peoples strike for freedom. But there were uprisings of subject peoples before the Soviet Union was conceived of. There will be uprisings until the last imperialist power is wiped off the map.

The Wall Street Gold Dust twins in Washington, Coolidge and Kellogg, insist that the United States will not follow a policy of joint action with Great Britain in China. But the following paragraph from an editorial in the New York Evening Post shows why Coolidge and Kellogg are deceiving the masses:

"We may say in Washington, for reasons of state, that our policy must not be one of joint action with Britain, but on the waterfront and barricades at Shanghai there can be no doubt that American marines and British bluejackets would be standing shoulder to shoulder as they have done before. After all it was an American sailor who went to the aid of the British in Chinese waters with the sound and simple statement, 'Blood is thicker than water.'"

Here we see the policy of Wall street mirrored thru the reactionary Evening Post. "For reasons of state" the administration insists that the United States will not act jointly with Britain but will be with Britain on the Shanghai barricades.

"Blood is thicker than water," undoubtedly, but much water has passed under the historical bridge since the Boxer rebellion and four hundred millions of Chinese are able to do some blood letting, too. The imperialists face a different China today to what they encountered when the international forces of the imperialists marched to Peking. If they essay a similar march today they will meet, not an aggregation of disorganized individuals, led by brigands, but a powerful cohesive force that strikes with the might of the greatest reservoir of man-power that ever met an invading army in all human history.

The capitalist vultures might well keep their claws off. That is the task of defending China must not be shouldered by the Chinese masses alone. The workers of all lands and particularly the workers of the United States and Great Britain must rally to the assistance of the workers and peasants of China. Should the interventionists win in China, it will mean a temporary setback to the revolutionary movement on a world scale. It will mean another link forged in the imperialist chain around the Soviet Union, a prelude to a concerted attack from east and west against the workers' republic, and the signal for a new assault on the standard of living of the workers in all countries.

The American workers must organize "Hands Off China" committees. The slimy imperialist tool Calvin Coolidge must not be permitted to use the naval and military forces of the United States to crush the Chinese revolution.

Kellogg pretends to be in favor of arbitrating the Nicaraguan question. Dr. Sacasa, the liberal president, expressed his willingness to participate in a conference under the auspices of Kellogg and Latin-American diplomats. But Kellogg will have none of it. He would not recognize Sacasa if all Nicaragua and his wife voted for him. Here is "self-determination of nations" with a vengeance.

Aimee McPherson arrived in Chicago wearing a beautiful fur coat that cost enough money to keep The DAILY WORKER going for three months. It pays to boost Jesus nowadays. No sackcloth and ashes for our modern evangelists.

The Italian socialist labor leaders have suddenly discovered that fascism is just about what they always wanted under the name of socialism. The socialists of the state of Indiana came to the same conclusion with reference to the Ku Klux Klan when 95 per cent of them joined the hooded order. Fortunately for yellow socialism the Hoosier editor of the New Leader was nearer to Abe Cahan than to the grand dragon at Indianapolis when the exodus started. What a first class kligraph he would make?

The British foreign office denies a breaking off of negotiations between its agent O'Malley and Eugene Chen. They simply stopped negotiating!

Henry Ford is reported to be worth $2,000,000,000. Not that he could be boiled down for more glycerine than the average hobo, but he owns and controls that much worth of property. Did Henry accumulate all this wealth by saving his nickels and dimes? He did not. He amassed it by learning to exploit hundreds of thousands of workers.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

Marxian Socialism and War in Barbarism

By EMANUEL HARTMAN and ALEX SCHWARZENFELD.

We have already learned in the article "War in Savagery" that peace was the condition of savage society. It was shown that the savage primitive Communists held their property in common; that there were no classes, no poor, no rich, no slavery, no oppression of man by man or of woman by man. They shared their food and often their wives, according to the custom of hospitality. We also know that there was no greed among them, for they had not yet learned the value of property.

They were honest and truthful, for as yet their was no reason to steal or lie. They were in the Golden Age of humanity, as the ethnologists and poets tell us, when the warrior, the priest, the judge and the exploiter did not yet mar the natural communism then prevailing.

In a later period, that of Matriarchal Barbarism, when hunting and food-gathering, by means of which the savage lived, were supplemented by a primitive kind of agriculture (gardening), i. e. when the mode of production and the tools of production were further developed, the primitive peacefulness was still little disturbed. For even then the means of production were communal, and society was still classless; so that the division into rich and poor, into exploiters and exploited was unknown.

Under normal conditions peace generally reigns. Honesty and truthfulness and hospitality (the sharing of food) still exists, as Morgan has shown in his Ancient Society and Houses and Houselife among the American Aborigines. Of course when natural forces cause such a people, as the Iroquois, for example, to migrate from their original habitat and to seek a home elsewhere they are apt to come in conflict with other tribes, whose territory they may attempt to occupy. But since there is no desire to make private property of the land but to use it to hunt on, in order that they might not starve, an agreement is easily reached.

The Iroquois formed a confederation, a league of nations. "One of its avowed objects," says Morgan, "was peace, to remove the cause of strife by uniting their tribes under one government, and then extending by incorporating other tribes of the same name and lineage." This condition of peace was later disturbed by the intrusion of the civilized French and English.

Yet, can be said without fear of contradiction that under normal conditions, when the tribal communal life is not disturbed by external forces, peace prevails in the savage and barbarian tribes. On this point Mr. Powell, of the classical school of Anthropology, says (of the North American Indians) that "their accumulations are not of great value to be tempting, accordingly battle for plunder, tribute and conquest was almost unknown."

As soon as humanity develops out of the hunting stage into the pastoral, as soon as cattle, the first means of production to become private property, is appropriated by the males of the tribe and used for their own enrichment, as the means of primitive society is disturbed.

The first victims of this change in the natural relations of society are the women. The men of the tribe, now rich and holding the reins of state, rights and privileges their savagery and matriarchal barbarism had granted them. If prior to this change the husband, the woman was the equal of man, now she was subjected and subordinated. The women as a whole composed the first class to be exploited. But since no class in society willingly accepts a subordinate position, since no class meekly submits to being robbed and expropriated and "enslaved" we find the women, wherever they were able, as in Asia Minor, in South America, and elsewhere, rising in revolt against the men, and fighting them to the death. In one case, in Africa, they even succeeded in overcoming the men and enslaving them.

But since in the majority of cases (when the matriarchal tribes were changing into patriarchalism) the women were unarmed, they could put up no effective opposition and had to accept more or less meekly their subjection. An unarmed class is always at the mercy of an armed class. That is why the Leninists always insist on arming the proletariat, as in Russia, for if unarmed they will be "enslaved" and subjected, as were the women of old.

The introduction of private property in cattle transformed the happy-go-lucky and freedom-loving hunter into a warrior, a seeker after private property, and an enslaver. For the first time in the history of the human race man began to lie and steal and rob. He now wished to get more and more, not so much by work as by exploiting and robbing. For he found that he could accumulate property more easily by treachery and stealing and by exploiting others. So that now the men of the cattle-tribes went out on the warpath, they went out to steal from other tribes. And this form of activity, the source of the first primitive accumulation, disturbed the peace of humanity.

It was the birth of private property, the desire to get more and more, that made a warrior out of the hunter and herdsman. Do you not see that when man was launched on his property career he begun to shun labor, to oppress women, to rob his fellow-man? Do you not realize that now for the first time in the history of our race, lying and stealing was of importance? Do you not see developing before your very eyes the passion of greed? The savage and matriarchal barbarian was altruistic, kind and communistic in his daily life; but the Patriarchal Barbarian the man who made cattle his private possession, became selfish and greedy; a liar and a thief, he became a lover of war!

We must also realize that when the Patriarchal Barbarian subjected the women and began to accumulate private property, when he began to enrich himself at the expense of others it was necessary for him to be able to leave his wealth on his death to his children. In order to accomplish this it was necessary for him to guard his wife for wives) and his daughters; it was necessary for him to compel them to chastity. If in primitive times—in Savagery and early Barbarism—woman had the right to have as many lovers as she wished, who pleased her, now she was compelled to be faithful to one man, her husband, but he of course could still do as he pleased in sexual matters.

It was the introduction of private property that compelled woman to be chaste and virtuous. It was not due to the fact that she is by nature unfair to man in these matters. Originally woman was just as promiscuous as man, but since man needed to know his children were, in order to will his property to them, he forced the woman to be virtuous. In later civilized times, in Rome for example, he had the right of life and death over her. He could kill her if she had relations with another man.

However, we must remember that since in the period of Patriarchal Barbarism the land was not yet private property, for civilization had to be reached before that could take place—the wars of these tribes were not real "wars." That is to say, since the men had not yet learned how to use land to enrich themselves, they did not go out to conquer the land of other people. They did not fully understand that it was profitable to enslave children were, in order to become rich. They merely had a faint inkling of this truth, but only in Civilization was it put into practical application.

The contention that only booty and tributa raids existed in Patriarchal Barbarism, and no true wars, is supported by many authorities. Nieboer, in his "Slavery as an Industrial System" says that "among the Ama Xosa and Ovaherero the chief object of warfare is cattle stealing." The Masai of Africa, supposedly a very warlike tribe, are merely cattle thieves. In these fights very little blood is shed and few are killed. The same may be said of the Beni Amer, the Somal, the Mairs and most other cattle tribes.

The Abipones, says the missionary Dobrixhoffer, curse a victory if one of their men are killed. In Africa the Watutra cease fighting as soon as a few men are slain. During two years of warfare, says Spike, between the great chief of Munda and a petty chief only six men were killed. And Thomson (Through Masai-land) tells us that even the "warlike Masai" spill little blood and slay few in their "wars," which are nothing but cattle raids.

These few cases are sufficient to show that Patriarchal Barbarism merely sows the seeds of war. It does not develop these seeds into real war because the land has not yet become private property, because the state, the armed power of the ruling class of the exploiters, has not yet organized a special army.

It is only on this basis that real war can exist, that it is possible for the exploiters to make war on other peoples in order to secure more and more land, more and more slaves by means of which to enrich themselves.

In the next article we will demonstrate how civilization, by making the land a private possession and by founding a state, scourges humanity with war and divides society into classes, the rich and the poor. We will show that capitalist civilization are Siamese twins; that capitalist civilization is the system of War par excellence.

(Next article tomorrow).

A POUND OF SLICED BACON

By JOEL SHOMAKER

A long time ago man found a wild, animal he named swine. The beast was a cloven-hoofed mammal that did not chew the cud so he was not considered fit for human food. The Jews and Mohammedans forbade the use of swine flesh in cooking. Even to this day many people refuse to eat of the swine.

Civilization converted the swine into a domesticated hog. That gave the animal entrance to the various fields and marts of commercialism. The hog now feeds in the fields, roots in the pastures and rides to market in railway trains. He is a very important brute for he helps to grease the wheels of commerce.

The farmer has adopted the hog as one of his favorite pets. He feeds the animal on corn, peanuts and field peas, because these foods contain much protein and fat. When the hog reaches the age of maturity he is given transportation to the big city. At the slaughter-yard the hog sounds the last life call.

No part of the fat hog is cast into the waste heap. The packing-house directors cash in on the hair, hide and hoofs. The meaty body supplies the bacon, hams and lard. The head gives material for cheese. The ribs are sold as spares. The back-bone finds a ready market among certain epicures.

Man was puzzled on what to do with the hog-blood and squeal. That problem was soon solved. The blood was stirred into tasty puddings. The squeal was canned, to be used as air and parlor propaganda, to prove to the world that the farmer, who owns hogs is the richest man on earth—the robber of the workers.

My feet recently led me to a retail meat market. I did not go for bacon for the very good reason that I do not eat pork in any form. I was just a plain investigator. I knew the working people were paying more than they could afford for the necessities of life. So I listened in.

A woman with sad eyes peered into the meat show-case. She was looking for something for lunches for the workmen in her family. There was a mental struggle going on in her brain. The wrinkles in her face seemed to sink deeper into the flesh. She fumbled for her pocket-book. She moaned and mumbled words.

"Let me have a pound of sliced bacon," the voice almost whispered.

"Yes, ma'm," said the smiling salesman, as he quickly tossed a few thin slices of very thin meat on the scale table.

"How much?" the woman slowly asked.

"Sixty cents, please," the clerk replied, without flinching.

"My lord," said the woman, turning to me for sympathy.

"Well, you know the price of hogs is way out of sight," the butcherman suggested, as he rubbed his hands together.

"I don't know so much about that," I butted in, without even having so much as an excuse for talking. The price on live hogs, at the Chicago stockyards, range from seven to thirteen cents per pound. From those prices must be deducted the profits of buyers, freight and selling expenses, so the farmer does not get very much money for his hogs after all.

"The farmer never gets anything for his hogs, corn or anything else," said the boss, who had suddenly appeared on the scene. "The farmer don't know he is alive. He is a dead number. We might just as well forget that he is alive. He works every day in the year and turns his produce over to his city bosses. They host him out of his eye-teeth. He stands for it. Let him play along as he always has, with nothing but growl."

"When will this boosting of prices on the necessities of life come to an end?" I asked, rather abruptly.

"The present conditions will not end, but will get worse and worse, so long as big corporations continue to control the buying and selling prices of everything," the clerk fairly breathed, in a confidential way.

The woman tucked her little package of bacon in a small hand-bag and slowly paced the floor to another stall in the public market.

The men parted company. The meat-cutter took up his saw and knife. The boss of the place passed into another part of the shop. I went on my way to inspect other stores where the lives of men, women and children are being sacrificed on the altars dedicated to the high cost of living.

The same old story comes from every food distributing point. The high cost of distribution under the capitalist system is responsible for the unrest, hunger, illness and general misfeeling among the people who pay the bills.

Who are the payers of bills? The farmers who produce the raw material, the workers who convert the raw material into finished products and the consumers, who buy and pay for the marketable products of the farmers and workers.

The manufacturer, wholesaler, transportation agency and the retailer who completes the line of distribution, do not worry about bills. The business pays their bills. The people pay the bills that create and maintain the business. The business must pay rent, insurance, taxes, salaries and profits for the kleptocracy to be a profitable business and cause to an end.

A NEW NOVEL

Upton Sinclair

CHAPTER XIX
THE PENALTY

I

The billboards of Paris broke into universal ecstasy: "Schmolsky-Superba Presente l'Etoile Americaine, Viola Tracy, dans La Couche d'Or, Cinéma-Méiodrame de la Société on Huit Reels." There were pages in the newspapers, "Premiere Production sur le Continent d'Europe"—Schmolsky was doing the job in style. "L'Etoile" herself was coming all the way from California; and Bunny motored to Havre to meet her, and oh, how happy they were, a second honeymoon, with the old disharmonies forgotten. He drove her back to Paris — no, almost to Paris, she must board a train outside the city and make her entrance according to schedule announced in the newspapers. There were the shouting thousands, the cameras, and the reporters, including those whose duty it would be to cable the stirring news back to New York and Angel City.

The world grows one, and it is the "cinéma-méiodrame de la Société" that is doing it—which is to say the world grows American. The premier here in Paris was the same as a premiere in Hollywood, except that the crowd made more noise, and sought to embrace its idol, actually imperilling the idol's life. There were a double dozen for excitement, because the man who had played the leading part was no common movie actor, but a real prince from Roumania, who had been visiting in Southern California, and had yielded to the wiles of Schmolsky and become a star for a night. Now here he was in person, on his way home to Roumania having traveled on the train and the steamer with Vee, so Bunny learned. Well, lean young man, not very handsome, but used to attention; courteous, but easily bored, wearing a quizzical smile, and reluctant to be at serious—until he heard Bunny express some sympathy with the murderous and blasphemous reds! After that, he preferred the company of Bunny's sister.

When the Paris premiere was over, Dad got him a touring car of royal proportions, and they motored to Berlin, Bunny driving, with Vee by his side, and Dad on the back seat with his secretary and a chauffeur for emergencies. It was all just as grand as their tour to New York; and Bunny found beautiful scenery, humble peasantry standing cap in hand and awe-stricken, servants rushing to wait upon them at every inn. All Europe owes us money, and this is how it pays.

And then Berlin—"Erste Aufnehrunge in Deutschland, Schmolsky Superba zukeseelgt," etc. And the crowds and the cameras and the reporters—the world was one. This had been enemy country less than six years ago; but did any ex-soldiers in uniform take station at the theatre entrance, and forbid American films to set too high a standard for the native product? They did not; and Bunny smiled, remembering his remark to Schmolsky, "Vee virtis!" and the latter's reply, "Huh!"

They went on to Vienna. It is a poor city now, and hardly repays the advertising, but there is still magic in the name, and it counts with the newspapers. So here was another premiere, less noisy but more genial. Vee and her lover were a little bored now; she had had the last great "kick" that she could get out of life. When a star has had her continental tour, and has got tired of it, she is an old-timer, blasé and world-weary, and life from then on is merely one thing after another.

The person with gift of perennial childhood was Dad. He enjoyed each premiere as if he'd never seen the others, and he would have liked to go on to Bucharest, where her majesty the Queen—herself a genius at advertising—was to attend the first showing, in honor of Prince Marescu. But another attraction kept Dad in Vienna—the spooks had followed him! His friend, Mrs. Olivier had given him a letter to a wonderful medium, and they went to a seance, and Vee was told about the patent medicine vendor who had raised her in a wagon—the very phrase this man had used to the crowd. By golly, if it was a trick, it was certainly a clever one!

II

There was only one cloud on this second honeymoon, and Bunny kept it hidden to his own soul. There were "Pyrrah" papers in both Berlin and Vienna, and he considered himself bound to call at their offices and invite the rebel editors to lunch. Naturally, some letters for Rachel to publish. In Vienna was a paper in the English language devoted to the defense of political prisoners; it was a Communist paper, but so well camouflaged that Bunny didn't realize the fact, and anyhow, he would have wished to meet the editors. He was still making his pitiful attempt to understand both sides—even here in Central Europe, where the Socialists and the Communists had many times been at open war.

In this obscure office in a working class part of the city Bunny came upon a ghastly experience. There was exhibited to him a creature that had once been a young man, but now was little more than a skeleton covered with a skin of greenish-yellow. It had only one eye and one ear, and it could not speak because its tongue had been pulled out or cut off, and most of its front teeth had been extracted, and its cheeks were pitted with holes made by cigarettes burned into it. Likewise all the creatures' finger-nails had been torn out, and its hands burned with holes; the men in the office bared its shirt, and showed Bunny how the flesh had been pinched and torn by lashes this way and that, like cross-hatchings in a pen and ink drawing.

This was a prisoner escaped from a Roumanian dungeon, and these scars represented the penalty of refusal to betray his comrades to the White Terror. Here in this office were photographs and letters and affidavits—for this kind of thing was being done to thousands of men and women in Roumania. The government was in the hands of a band of ruling class thugs, who were stealing everything in sight, selling the natural resources of the country; one of the biggest of Roumanian oil fields had just been leased to an American syndicate, possibly Comrade Ross had heard of that? And Comrade Ross said that he had. He didn't add that his father was in on the deal!

This victim of the White Terror was from Bessarabia, a province taken from Russia under the blessed principle of self-determination. It was inhabited by Russian peasants, and the natural struggles of these people for freedom were met by slaughtering or torturing to death such people everywhere who revolted, but everyone who expressed sympathy with the revolt. Nor was this a sporadic thing, it was the conditions existing all along the Russian border, a thousand miles from the Baltic to the Black Sea. All these provinces and countries, inhabited by Russian peasants, had been taken from the reds and given to the whites. And so you had this situation on the other side of the line the peasants had the land and the government, they were free men and women, making a civilization of workers, while on the other side they were serfs at the mercy of landlords, robbed of the fruits of their toil, and beaten or shot if they ventured a murmur. It was impossible to prevent peasants from one side crossing to the other; and the contrast between the two civilizations was the plain thing that no child could fail to understand it. So the class struggle went on all the time, a hideous war of which no word was allowed to leak to the outside world.

Left to themselves, this landlord aristocracy could not survive a year. But they had world capital behind them; they got the munitions with which to do the slaughtering, or the money to make the munitions, from American big business. Yes, it was America which kept alive this White Terror, in order to collect interest on the debts, and to come in and buy up the country—the railroads, the mines, the oil fields, even the great castles and landed estates. Would not Comrade Ross tell the American people what bloody work their money was doing?

Bunny went away with the question on his conscience. Would he tell, or wouldn't he? Would he begin by telling his darling of the world? Would he mention that the young Prince Marescu whom she so greatly admired, was the son of one of the bloodiest of these ruling class thugs?

All the time Bunny was driving his darling through winding passes amid the glorious snow-covered mountains of Switzerland, he was not happy on that account. When he got to Berne he would have long periods of brooding, and she would ask, what was the matter, and he would evade. But then she could pin him down—being shrewd, like most women where love is concerned. "Is it those reds you've been visiting?" He said, "Yes, dear, but let's not talk about it—it isn't going to make any difference to us." She answered, ominously, "It is going to make all the difference in the world to us!"

(To Be Continued.)

THE ONLY ENGLISH LANGUAGE COMMUNIST DAILY IN THE U.S.A.

THE DAILY WORKER

FINAL CITY EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 39 — Entered as second class matter at the post office at New York, N. Y. under the act of March 3, 1879. — NEW YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1927 — Published daily except Sunday by the Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 First St., New York, N. Y. — Price 5 Cents

Withdraw the American Naval Forces from Chinese Waters! Recognize the Chinese Nationalist Government!

Statement of the Central Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America

THE American Government, continuing the imperialist policy which it is following in Nicaragua, and in its threats against Mexico, is concentrating war vessels in Chinese waters and barrying marines to China.

While Secretary of State Kellogg has issued a statement containing "fair" words about the willingness of the American government to negotiate new treaties surrendering some of the power it has usurped to dictate to China what its tariff laws shall be and the extra territorial rights under which American citizens are immune from Chinese law and trial in Chinese courts, this declaration remains only words and no action is taken to abrogate the unequal treaties which are an insult to the Chinese people.

This declaration of Secretary of State Kellogg, coupled with the massing of American war forces against China, is shallow hypocrisy used to coerce China into agreement to new treaties, which will make possible the continuation of the brutal exploitation of the Chinese people by the American capitalists.

Capitalist Imperialism in China

The Chinese people have for a half century been degraded by the bitter exploitation of the imperialist powers.

These powers have grabbed the national resources of China, established their factories in that country in which the Chinese workers have been compelled to labor for pitiable wages, they have thru their great banking houses made loans to the various Chinese warlords who aided them in the exploitation of the Chinese people, and then seized control of the Chinese tariff administration and collected the tariff to secure repayment of their loans, thereby placing new heavy burdens on the Chinese people.

In order to make the representatives of this imperialist system of exploitation immune from responsibility under Chinese laws, the imperialist powers established the principle of extra-territoriality under which these representatives could not be tried in Chinese courts

(Continued on page 2.)

Information on U. S. Secret Deal With a Foreign Power Asked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Demand for information as to whether the American government had a secret understanding with any foreign power for military action in China was made in a resolution introduced today by Rep. Black (D) of New York.

Black proposed that the foreign affairs committee be instructed to obtain the information from Secretary of State Kellogg.

"There are too many American ships and soldiers going to China," said Black. "There have been reports from Europe that the United States has a secret understanding with the British for possible military action."

Cantonese Win Big Victory Over Fang

Road Now Open for Revolutionary Army's Drive To Capture Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4.—Sun Chuan Fang, so-called "defender" of Shanghai against the Cantonese, has suffered a staggering defeat in the neighborhood of Hangchow, according to reliable reports received here.

The battle is reported to have been fight in so far as casualties go, but the defeat of Sun Chuan Fang is regarded as conclusive here as it is not likely now that he can reorganize his forces and stem the Cantonese drive on Shanghai.

* * *

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The British cabinet held a second lengthy session late this afternoon.

The cabinet, it is understood, has now asked Eugene Chen for full information regarding guarantees he will give for the protection of "life and property" in China, providing British troops evacuate to Shanghai are recalled. Chen has already given ample assurances that the Cantonese government is capable of guaranteeing the safety of all nationals in its territory.

The cabinet has not yet made known its decision as to the diversion of the troops now enroute to China, but there is a general belief here that the troops will be maintained at points outside of Shanghai. This opinion appears to be backed up by a dispatch from Hong Kong to the effect that the second Suffolk regiment has arrived there and is being held for further orders.

The faction in the cabinet which has long sought the abrogation of the Anglo-Soviet agreement is again demanding a break with Russia.

Sir William Joynsen-Hicks, home secretary, in a statement declared:

"It is unfortunate and not a little peculiar that the Chinese nationalists' anti-foreign bias should have been directed mainly against the British. For this it seems the Soviet government is largely responsible."

Chen Will Reply To U. S.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4. — Eugene Chen, in charge of the foreign affairs of the Chinese nationalist government announced today that he had been unable to reply to the United States statement regarding America's Chinese policy because of the press of the negotiations with England. He added that he will reply in a few days.

Left Wing Wins Unprecedented Garment Vote

Locals Re-elect Militant Officers in Heavy Poll

An unusually heavy vote was polled at the elections in Locals 2, 9 and 35 of the I. L. G. W. U. which were carried on Thursday under the auspices of the Council of Shop Chairmen.

The tellers turned in their complete count at noon yesterday, after they had spent all night at the polls which closed at ten o'clock. They announced that Joseph Boruchowitz was reelected manager of Local 2 by a majority of 2,300 out of 2,500 votes cast; Abraham Zirlin was reelected manager of local 9, by a majority of 1,344 votes out of 1,400 cast; and Joseph Goretzky was reelected manager of Local 35 by a majority of 950 out of 1,100 votes cast.

Manager Just Out.

Arrangements for the elections in Local 35 had been delayed because Manager Goretzky was only released a few days ago after spending two weeks in jail. He was one of seven men whose bail was unaccountably raised from $1,000 to $25,000 by Judge Otto Rosalsky some weeks ago, following their indictment during the cloakmakers' strike.

Two prisoners, held because of strike activities, participated in the election in Local 2. They sent their wives with proxy votes and letters to the judges of the election asking to be allowed to cast a vote in this way since they could not vote in person. Their request was granted.

Joint Board leaders declared the vote was the largest polled in many years in these locals.

Coal Gas Poisoning.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Eleven members of one family were found unconscious from coal gas poisoning today and at noon physicians were still working to save their lives. Those overcome are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and their nine children.

MARCHING BOX STRIKERS UP IN COURT, BUT FREED

Employer Sentenced for Beating Girl

Genett Lionetti, 18-year-old paper box maker, appeared in Judge Corrigan's court yesterday and brought charges against Mr. Travin, a manufacturer at 191 Mercer St., for having beaten her while doing picket duty. Travin pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined by the judge to pay $25 damages.

The pickets who were arrested on Monday for marching through the district also appeared in court, but were dismissed, as the judge recognized the right of a striker to picket a shop where strikebreakers are employed. The union welcomed this decision as it will strengthen their position considerably. Those involved in this case were Juliet Points, Joseph Mordkowitz, Joseph Familia, and James B. Wyker, a student of theology.

One man, Edward Hersch, was fined $10, for having called a strikebreaker a scab. Hersh was beaten up by a policeman and thrown into jail. No one was in court to substantiate the charge against Hersh, nevertheless the judge recognized it and placed the fine.

According to information from the strikers' headquarters a meeting has been arranged by the mayor between William Karlin, attorney of the union, and Samuel Wallenstein, legal representative of the employers, to arrange to adjudicate the strike. This meeting is to take place on Monday at the mayor's office.

Announcement was also given that the concert and ball to be staged at the New Star Casino, 97th St. and Park Ave., for the assistance of the strikers will be held on the 11th of February.

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

SO our friends the enemy have rebaptised Eugene Chen, the Canton-ese foreign minister, the "Czar" of the Nationalist government. Chen is a republican and has as much use for a king as a bull dog has for an Irish terrier. When the British monarchistic coal-owners wanted to discredit Cook in the eyes of the masses they nicknamed him "Emperor" tho he is painstakingly obedient to the wishes of the rank and file. They have not succeeded in their designs on Cook. They will be equally unsuccessful in their attacks on Chen.

SINCLAIR Lewis has written another book and it smells like a mannequin. He has done to the clergy what he previously did to the petty bourgeois in Babbitt and to the medical fraternity in Arrowsmith. Neither of those two categories have been put out of business and in all probability they had as good a laugh at their own pictures as the rest of us. Both are great works. We are anxious to read what Lewis has done to the clergy.

OLD Art "Mushbrain" the artful dodger of the Hearst press takes a seam at the author because he starts out to delouse the clergy with a description of a soused divine. Art thinks Lewis is going too far. Poor Art is getting old and should be excused. A man with a salary of $100,000 a year and a large income from investments should be put in a padded cell for turning out a daily column. Sinclair Lewis should get a move on and do most of his writing before he becomes a millionaire at the expense of doctors, preachers and real estate operators. We suggest that he tackles newspaper business managers next and then take a ship to Paris and stay there. He will have justified his existence.

SEVERAL readers of The DAILY WORKER, goaded into ungovernable anger because of our jibes at christian scientists, holy rollers, bush baptists, seventh day adventists, chiropractors, sun-worshippers, vegetarians, snake-oil peddlers and freudian fanatics, have threatened to commit hari kiri by choking themselves with raw alfalfa unless we turn around and charge the medical doctors with being engaged in the business of poisoning the human race. We suggest that our irate readers buy a copy of Rational Living, a magazine published by Dr. Liber, which is about the most rational bit of reading on the healing business

(Continued on page 4).

Jersey Bus Drivers Strike Today Unless They Get Wage Raise

Three hundred bus drivers of Jersey City and vicinity have voted to strike at 3 p. m. today unless the bosses make a move for peace before then.

The drivers voted to go on strike at a meeting held in the Orpheum Theater, Jersey City, if their demands are not met. They demand a three year contract calling for a raise in pay from $42.50 to $50 a week. Before they took the strike vote they offered to compromise on $45 a week, but the bosses refused.

Edward Levy, business agent of the union, said that ultimately all the 1,800 drivers in the union might be involved and 100,000 travelers obliged to travel other than by bus in Jersey City, Bayonne and North Hudson. If the bosses materialises today, it will affect about 30,000 bus riders.

SHOP CHAIRMEN OF NEEDLE TRADES URGED TO RALLY TO MEETING FOR SIXTEEN CLOAK STRIKERS SENTENCED BY ROSALSKY TO LONG JAIL TERMS

In behalf of the sixteen cloakmakers who, for their trade union activities, have been sentenced to long terms in jail, the Shop Chairmen's Council of the Cloak and Dress unions has issued a call for aid. An urgent invitation has also been sent to all shop chairmen of the needle industry and all labor organizations, to attend a conference today in Webster Hall at 1 p. m.

First Appeal.

This is the first time in the history of the I. L. G. W. U. that such an appeal has gone out. "In the face of such a critical situation, when our union has been exhausted by five months of civil war," says the Shop Chairmen's letter, "we are now confronted with a most trying and critical problem.

"Sixteen members of our union, the most active in our ranks, workers who were ready to sacrifice their lives in order to improve the conditions of their fellow workers, have been placed behind iron bars in prison for long terms.

Must Free Victims.

"These union men must be freed. Under normal circumstances our cloakmakers' union could, through its own efforts and with its own resources, maintain their families and work to bring about their release. The trying circumstances however, under which our union finds itself today are such that we must have the activ eco-operation of other labor organizations in order to secure their freedom."

Today's meeting is to be the beginning of a vigorous campaign to rally the workers of all trades in a demand for the release of the cloakmakers who through Sigman's tactics and Judge Rosalsky's brutality have been sent to prison for such unprecedented terms.

Rosalsky Is Too Busy; Cloak Strikers Wait For Hearing in Jail

Pressure of court business was the reason given for postponing the sentencing of the two cloak strikers, Max Gorenstein and Oscar Newman, who were to have appeared before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday.

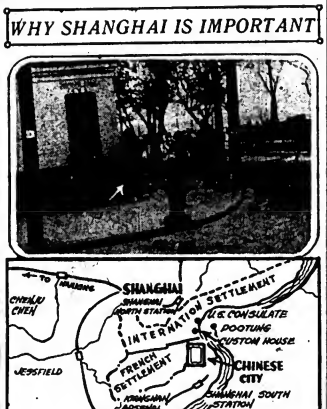
They were held in the Tombs over night and their cases are to be heard today.

Jacob Goldstein, who attempted to commit suicide two days ago, was still to ill to appear for sentence.

Neckwear Makers Faker Hates Forty-Hour Week "Communists Support"

Opposition to the 40-hour week has originated in a new quarter. According to reports of members of the United Neckwear Makers' union, their manager, L. D. Berger, at the last meeting, stated that he was against the five-day week because the idea originated in the Communist movement.

Mr. Berger in his excitement went so far as to say he would favor a 50-hour week if it originated in the Neckwear Makers' union. Apparently anything is better than a good idea if it comes from printers, carpenters, furriers, cloakmakers and automobile workers.

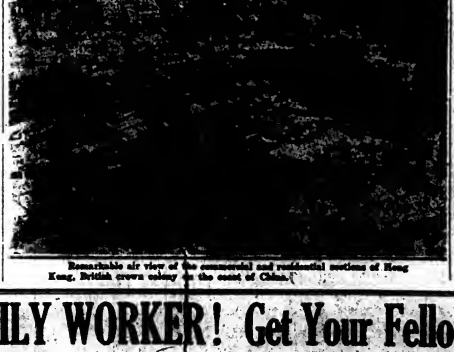


Several other original ideas were presented at the membership meeting of the neckwear workers this week. One, coming from Louis Fuchs, was that members be fined a dollar if they missed a meeting. On the surface this sounds business-like, and quite appropriate from a business-agent. But it followed a proposition that meetings of this local be held regularly every two weeks, since there was growing criticism of the fact that the union rarely held any meetings at all. Apparently Mr. Fuch's motion about a heavy fine was intended to defeat the move for regular meetings.

Gave Sigman Cash.

The absence of regular meetings made it possible, a month ago, for the Executive Committee to present Sigman with $5,000 without consulting the membership. Another $5,000 was voted this week, in spite of one speaker's objection that this union had given only $25 to the 16,000 Passaic strikers, and $300 to the 12,000 striking furriers. There were no more speeches on the matter after this.

The condition of this union may be judged further from the fact that a shop chairmen's meeting decreed that any member who failed to attend the armory meetings called by the right wing of the trade unions, January 20, should be fined ten dollars.



WHY SHANGHAI IS IMPORTANT

All of China, to a large extent, is dependent upon Shanghai, for it not only is tih chief port of China and the eighth largest port in the world, but it collects forty per cent of the Chinese customs. It is the center of large British interests. Its population is estimated at 1,839,000. Above is a photo of the Shanghai Bund (at right) and (in foreground), Nanking Road, scene of recent rioting. Aroved is picture points to a Sikh policeman of the "international city" of Shanghai. Dressed like an English bobby, he is resented by the Chinese. Below is a map of Shanghai, showing both the international city and the French concession.

A BRITISH CONCESSION IN CHINA

Remarkable air view of the commercial and residential sections of Hong Kong, British crown colony on the coast of China.

Wall Street's Mercenaries in Nicaragua

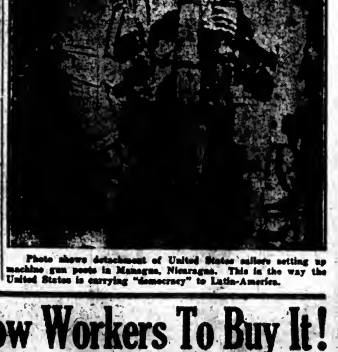


Photo shows detachment of United States sailors setting up machine gun posts in Managua, Nicaragua. This is the way the United States is carrying "democracy" to Latin-America.

Ask Your Newsdealer For The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Workers To Buy It!

FORD TAX TRIAL EVIDENCE SHOWS FORD NOT NEEDED

Great Corporations Run By Own Management

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Henry Ford, America's first billionaire, with enormous profits and a clear field, is quoted as "pessimistic" in 1923 about his stock was a "good buy" in 1918 at $10.000 a share, according to testimony adduced today before the board of tax appeals.

Today's principal witness was Pierce C. Ward, an investment banker of Chicago.

Business Runs Itself.

If Henry Ford had dropped out of the business at that time, it would have made little difference in its future history, the expert declared. He stated that the policies were well established by that time, and its control of the situation secure, so that the gigantic momentum of the business would carry it along." He described it as too "big a business to be affected by one man."

Others Run Same Way.

Ward cited the cases of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Bill and Harriman railroads and Marshall Field of Chicago as examples of great corporations built up by outstanding men.

"When the builders dropped out, the corporations continued to progress," Ward declared.

Ford The Richest.

Government counsel sought to compare the Ford situation with that of the General Motors corporation, but Ward insisted that "General Motors is not in as favorable a position now as was Ford in 1919."

"This is without reflection on General Motors," he added. "Ford in 1913 practically dominated the small car field, while today General Motors is faced with a different competitive situation."

General Motors stock was valued at twice its annual earnings in 1918, and about 7 1-2 times the earnings at the present time, he said.

"Ford stock in 1913 was a better buy at ten times the annual earnings than was General Motors at twice the earnings," Ward said.

Virtual Monopoly.

"With a virtual monopoly and little danger of serious competition for some years to come, Ford was in an incomparable position in the motor field," Ward declared.

The government, which claims Ford stock was worth approximately $3,-000 a share in that year, sought to break down Ward's testimony, by forcing him to compare Ford stock with the securities of other motor companies.

Capitalized Profits.

Ward, however, in explaining his valuation made on a basis of ten times the annual earnings of the Ford company, insisted that Ford's position was unique and could not be compared to that of other corporations.

Ward declared that a number of other first class industrial corporations were recapitalized in 1918, the valuation being fixed at from 8 1-2 to 11 3-4 times the normal annual earnings.

"However, Ford's position was much stronger than any of these corporations," Ward said.

"A conservative valuation of the Ford business in 1913 would be placed at $200,000,000."

Building Contractors Leave Bricks and Tools

A wind storm rattled through the metropolitan district early yesterday imperilling lives and causing considerable damage.

The 60-mile gale clipped off bricks and lumber in buildings under construction, endangering pedestrians and in some cases delaying vehicular traffic.

Bricks, lumber and workmen's tools rained down into the Borough Hall square section of Brooklyn when square section of Brooklyn when scaffolding on the twenty-fifth floor of the half completed Temple court building, Court and Montague streets, was shaken loose by the wind.

It was necessary to rope off the square, delaying trolley car service and handicapping thousands of pedestrians.

About $400,000 Profits In Ford Company Store

Henry Ford made $400,000 from his company stores last year, says a report to the Daily News Record. Annual business was $12,000,000. The Ford stores sell garments, shoes and many other personal goods in his Detroit territory and in the neighborhood of important assembly plants in other cities.

Workers of the American Revolution Have Always Been Champions of Oppressed Peoples Everywhere

Workers and Farmers Must Speak for Chinese Liberation

It is the workers and farmers of the United States, and not the imperialist government of the capitalists, who are the friends of the Chinese people in their struggle against imperialist exploitation.

The workers and farmers of the United States must take up the cause of the Chinese workers and the peasants by taking up the struggle in their interests against the government of Coolidge and Kellogg.

The threats of military coercion against Chinese contained in the sending of American warships and marines to China is but another indication that the policy of fighting for investments and profits of the Wall Street banking houses, which has already led to the invasion of Nicaragua and threats of war against Mexico is leading this country into a new imperialist war.

The workers and farmers of this country must redouble their struggle against the imperialism of the Washington government, if they are not to be led forth to give their lives in a war for Wall Street investments.

The representatives of a quarter of a million farmer-labor voters in Minnesota, through a state farmer-labor conference, have declared their determination to fight the imperialist policies of the government and demanded the impeachment of Secretary of State Kellogg. The workers and farmers throughout the whole country must follow this example and organize conferences from all workers' and farmers' organizations for the fight against American imperialism.

Hands off China!

Withdraw the American marines from Nicaragua!

No war with Mexico for American oil interests!

Cancel the unequal treaties with China!

Withdraw American naval forces from Chinese waters!

Recognize the Canton nationalist government of China!

Workers and farmers unite for the fight against American imperialism under these slogans!

Central Committee,

Workers (Communist) Party of America

C. E. Ruthenberg, General Secretary.

Carmi Thompson Plan In Philippine Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Control of the Philippines and other insular possessions of the United States would be removed from the war and navy departments and placed in the hands of a civilian bureau under terms of a bill introduced today by Senator Willis (R) of Ohio.

This plan was recommended by Col. Carmi A. Thompson in his report to President Coolidge on conditions in the Philippines.

French Have New Seaplane

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Another means by which capitalist lackeys can exterminate each other has been added to the French navy. A seaplane, the smallest in the world, capable of being taken apart and packed aboard a submarine, was delivered today. At a convenient point, the submarine can rise to the surface, and in nine seconds the plane can be assembled. Many dozens are to be constructed, since one is to form part of the equipment of every submarine in the French fleet.

Chinese Nationalists Challenge Imperialist Rule

It is against this system of imperialist exploitation through which the imperialist powers preyed upon China, that the Chinese Nationalist Government (Canton) is fighting. It is because the Canton government has declared that it will continue its fight until this system, under which the Chinese people have been made the slaves of the imperialists, is wiped out, that the Chinese people have rallied to its support.

The Chinese Nationalist armies have swept forward from victory to victory because they are fighting for the liberation of the Chinese people. The Chinese warlords, usually puppets of and subsidized by one or the other of the imperialist powers, have been unable to halt the nationalist movement.

It is against this Chinese Nationalist Government, now sweeping forward toward Shanghai, the centre of imperialist exploitation in China, that the American government is now sending its warships and harrying its marines from San Diego, Guam and Manila. Although Coolidge and Kellogg pretend to express friendship to the aims of the nationalist movement, in fact they are following the policy of Great Britain in massing military forces at Shanghai in an effort to coerce and intimidate the Canton Nationalist Government.

Soviet Russia Is the Only Friend of China

If the government of Coolidge really meant the professions in the statement of Secretary of State Kellogg there is an easy way for it to demonstrate its intentions. It should surrender its imperialist privileges in China. It should cease trying to split up China by supporting various warlords. It should recognize the Canton Nationalist Government as the government of China.

The Government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has shown the way. It has declared null and void all unequal treaties with China made by the Czar, such as those through which extra-territoriality and tariff control was established. It has surrendered the right to special armies to maintain police and military forces in China. It has returned to China the concessions wrung from it by the imperialist government of the Czar. It has recognized the Canton Nationalist Government.

That is why the Canton Nationalist Government considers the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics its friend.

IF COOLIDGE AND KELLOGG WANT TO PROVE THAT THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT IS SYMPATHETIC TO THE ASPIRATION OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE FOR FREEDOM FROM IMPERIALIST-EXPLOITATION LET THEM FOLLOW IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE UNION OF SOCIALIST SOVIET REPUBLICS.

But the American government under the direction of Coolidge and Kellogg will do nothing of the kind. The American government represents the American capitalist exploiters of China. It makes statements containing some "fair words," but rushes war vessels and marines to China to protect the property rights and the imperialist exploitation of China by the American capitalists.

Chinese Nationalists Capture Shanghai

Revolution Spreads to Other Provinces

By Cable to The Daily Worker.

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 4.—Shanghai, the great commercial city of China, is now in the hands of the Nationalist armies, it was announced today by the Canton Nationalist Government.

The capture of Shanghai, which is the centre of foreign exploitation in China, is a severe blow not only to the people which the foreigners have been exploiting, but to the foreigners themselves.

The Nationalist armies have been sweeping forward from victory to victory, and the capture of Shanghai is the most important victory yet won.

The Nationalist armies are now marching on Nanking, another important city in the Yangtze valley.

The Nationalist movement is spreading to other provinces. Reports have been received that the province of Fukien has declared for the Nationalist government.

Coolidge Is Backing Standard Oil Company Has Its Trade Unions

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

IN the United States the workers proclaim profits for the Rockefellers who dominate the Standard Oil. It should be interesting to American organized labor to learn that Chinese workers employed by Standard Oil in the Orient do have their trade unions.

* * *

This also recalls again, for instance, that the mighty army of workers in this country toiling for the richest man in the world, Henry Ford, are entirely without organization. Ford's wealth now tops the two-billion mark, according to experts. The pile grows ever more rapidly as Ford coins new methods of robbing the workers on the payroll of the wealth they produce.

But in little Denmark, where Ford also has a flivver plant, the workers are organized, and recently won a strike against the Ford billions.

* * *

Cabled reports state that recently the Chinese workers employed by the Standard Oil Company had a little tilt with Rockefeller's gold. One of their number had been discharged "for dishonesty." That is a charge that usually covers a multitude of sins. No doubt it was the result of loyalty to the principles of Canton and the national revolutionary government rather than adherence to the Manchurian warlord, Chang Tso Lin, and his Peking outfit, that created the prejudice against him.

The big point, however, is that the Chinese workers stood loyally by their comrade who was fired. They developed such solidarity as labor has never displayed in the industrial halls of Standard Oil in this country. Thus the New York World reports the result of the struggle as follows:

"The company has signed terms to settle the strike which include a $4 raise for every man, a promise to pay two months' wages and a 'present' of $ like amount to every man discharged and an agreement to raise pay semi-annually."

* * *

It is not stated just what the two months' wages were for, probably for the time the workers were engaged in the strike. This is probable since the men discharged are to get a "present" of a like amount. Mexican labor has often enforced a similar demand. Another reason for American armed intervention, of course.

The significant fact, however, is that the Chinese workers win an agreement to raise wages semi-annually, which shows that Chinese labor feels it has been in the depths of exploitation and is coming up, while wage cuts are being forced on America's unorganized workers, or, as in the case of the United Mine Workers of America, the coal miners are now being asked to continue working for the same wages under the Jacksonville Agreement of 1923.

* * *

The best comparison of the spirit of organized labor in the two countries, the United States and China, is given in the letters of the American newspaper correspondents on Shanghai.

Labor from China to American newspapers concerning strikes and various crises brought about by the demands of unions most seem almost unreal to Americans readers because the United States has long had a first-hand acquaintance with strikers and with unions and has found them, as a rule, they are not so terrible.

"But in China the temper of the unions, the manner of conducting strikes, and the methods in which the Chinese equivalent to sabotage is carried out are far different from anything ever known in the United States."

* * *

Then follows, of course, a long recital of the woes of exploiters in China, the "outrageous demands" of the farm workers, increases demanded by other workers, reports of which spread inland and cause labor elsewhere to make similar demands, and then the victory of the Amoy silk workers, that resulted in numerous concessions, including two months' full pay while sick. It is claimed that this will increase the price of silk for American consumers, which will no doubt cause all silk-wearing parasites in the United States to make a grand rush for the recruiting stations, to enlist for military service in the Orient, for the folly war to keep wages down for the Chinese.

* * *

American workers and farmers, when fully informed of the struggle of Chinese labor, must come to the conclusion that their stand is with the rising working class of the Orient. They will enlist for the war against the imperialist war that looms bigger and bigger every day against labor in the Far East. When cotton silk-wearing parasites are left to fight their own imperialist war, then it can already be safely predicted that victory will rest comfortably on the standards of the Chinese revolution.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Phillips, First Canadian Envoy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The appointment of William Phillips, now ambassador to Belgium, as America's first diplomatic envoy to Canada, was officially announced today by the state department.

Ships Ashore, Endanger Crews.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Feb. 4.—Two coal steamers, Norfolk to Boston, went ashore today along the shores of Vineyard Sound.

The steamer Selwyn Eddy, with 26 men aboard, was pounding on the rocks of Tarpaulin Cove, Naushon Island.

Model Killed, Says Sister.

Mrs. Charles W. Schwefel of 213-19 107th street, Queens Village, sister of Marion Hunt, beautiful cloak model, who was found dead from a bullet wound early Friday morning outside Mrs. Schwefel's home, declared today that she believes her sister was murdered.

Catch $2,000,000 Rum Runners

Motions by defense attorneys to dismiss the indictments against three of the men on trial on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in connection with the landing of a $2,-000,000 rum cargo from the steamship Ebor off Edgewater, N. J., were denied today by Federal Judge Isaac N. Meekings.

Injured in Train Wreck.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 4.—A broken arm was the worst injury today in the wreck of the Detroit to Chicago flyer of the Wabash Railroad, in which two pullman cars left the rails and overturned throwing passengers into panic. The wreck occurred three miles east of Tyatt, Indiana.

Finance Board Lifts Price.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The War Finance Corporation announced today that it had instructed the federal reserve bank in New York to raise the price, on Feb. 15, of the unsold balance of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, rapid transit securities 6 per cent gold bonds owned by the corporation, to par, plus accrued interest and less a commission of one quarter of 1 per cent of par value to be allowed to bankers and other recognized bond dealers and brokers.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Segregated Race Lives In Shacks and Toils

Deadly Tools of South Bind ON NEGRO BACKS

(Special to The Daily Worker).

By THURBERT LEWIS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 4.—"Colored Waiting Room"—is the first sign that hits your eye as you step off the train in this metropolis of the south-land. "Detention Home for Colored Children," greets you as you ride along in a street car that has a special section for Negroes.

I was told that at least half of the city is populated by Negroes. In the environs of Memphis you see mansions that would put many a Gold Coast or Fifth avenue town house in its place. The Negro sweats and lives in shacks that would not be used for live-stock in Iowa.

Wooden Windows.

Windows appear to be a luxury. I saw many a "house" with wooden swing windows that have to be shut to keep out the child—and the light.

Memphis is rated as a rich and up-and-coming town. No doubt it is. It is a big cotton market as well as a lumber center. It is obviously upand-coming on the backs of the underpaid and abused Negro workers. And yet white workers' homes that I saw seem to have left much to be desired.

It may seem peculiar for one to write of the south as of a foreign country. Yet that outstanding and ever present fact of a large, enslaved and segregated race that hits you in the face wherever you look makes it impossible to take any other view in correspondence to be read in the north where the fact—though it exists there too—is not so compelling.

Farmers Suffer.

In the country, the Negro, and also the white, cotton farmers are suffering acutely. This year's cotton crop is ruinous. On top of this has come damaging of goods. You see homes" in the country, inhabited by both Negro and white tenants that challenge your credulity—it is impossible to believe that human beings will live in them.

Southern Booster Bugs.

Memphis, Atlanta, Birmingham, Dicksburg and New Orleans may all be "booster" burgs with rich mansions and yowling Kiwanees fairly bursting with prosperity—the south may be reflecting the "good times" that is turning the A. F. of L. officials into trustees and bank directors—but a cursory study of southern dwellings for workers will show that the boom has still far to go to make itself felt very warmly by the mass of workers and farmers south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Peakhurst Now Conservative.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Emmeline Pankhurst, who was once a leader of suffragists storming the House of Commons, will now seek entry to that body via the ballot box. She has been selected as the conservative candidate for the White Chapel end St. George's division.

Gas Kills Four.

Four men were found dead from gas poisoning in a house at 6605 Hull avenue, Maspeth, Queens, early today. Two of the men lived in the dwelling. The others were their guests.

The Manager's Corner

COMMENT

The editors and the management of The Daily Worker are engaged in a serious effort to improve the paper. The recent features which have been added to the paper have been a step in that direction. However we cannot hope to make any real progress unless we have the full cooperation of our readers.

In going the rounds among comradee, in an attempt to secure their opinions on the character of the paper, I have had some interesting experiences. In reply to my question, "What do you think of the paper?" one comrade asked me in turn, "Do you want me to be frank?" Of course we want frankness, even brutal frankness. Don't be afraid to hurt our feelings. We want the truth.

On another occasion at a conference of labor organizations, a delegate asked the following question, "You ask us to support The Daily Worker. But we want to know our rights and our duties toward the paper." This question was aptly answered by another delegate, who pointed out that at a conference called for the Volksreitung, those in charge had stated that those present had no right to discuss anything about the paper's policy, but must limit themselves solely to the question of the financial support of the paper. The Daily Worker does not maintain this policy.

We believe that we have a definite responsibility to those who read our paper and to those who support it even in the smallest way. We welcome and respect the criticisms and suggestions of all those who are interested in the progress of The Daily Worker. In fact we cannot get along without them. We, therefore, urge our readers to send in their comments on The Daily Worker. Let us know what you think of it, especially in its new form.—BERT MILLER.

DEMANDS RETURN TO CONSTITUTION

State Rail Employes Out on Strike

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 4. — Although rumors prevail that the garrison of Oporto in the commercial center of the country, has surrendered and that its mutiny and attempted revolution is at an end, there is as yet no confirmation. At four o'clock the government stated that previous reports of the end of the revolt were inaccurate, but that loyalist troops surrounded the city, and that negotiations for surrender were going on.

Strike Starts.

Meanwhile, taking advantage of the situation, the railroad employes have struck, and the government is trying to conduct an emergency truck service, using army truck drivers. Troops also guard the tracks.

All Portugal is under martial law. There has been a little fighting and a few casualties.

The rebellious garrison at Oporto, is now revealed, telegraphed the government, demanding that it resign and return the country to a constitutional administration.

Idaho Solons Plan Bill To More Exploit Prison Labor on County Roads

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 4.—Further exploitation of prison labor will be sanctioned in the state of Idaho if a bill introduced in the house of representatives of the state legislature here today is eventually passed. The bill permits county commissioners to hire county prisoners for labor other than public works on the highways, school, good roads, and irrigation districts and municipals. Proceeds from this labor are divided 25 per cent to single prisoners and 75 per cent to the families of married prisoners. Balance reverts to "the general county fund."

Alien Registration Comes Up in House; Called "Voluntary"

Provisions for a system of voluntary registration by aliens who desire to become citizens of the United States would be made in a bill just introduced in the house by Representative Hickey (Rep.) of Illinois.

Under the terms of the bill, the department would furnish application blanks, which would contain information relative to the history of the applicant, when filled out by the alien, and that any alien who has been in the United States for a period of five years preceding registration, shall not be subject to deportation

Tourist Club "The Friends of Nature".

Sunday, February 6th, we hike to Long Beach. This is the time of the year when it is very interesting along the coast. Stormy seas with thousands of sea gulls flying about combine to make quite a hike that is far above the ordinary. Send dimes and dollars and bear evidence of the herculean power of the sea. We hope many grasp the opportunity to spend a pleasant day away from the city. Meeting place, Municipal Building (downstairs at entrance to trains); time, 8 a. m.; those living in Brooklyn, Long Island R. R. Jamaica Station waiting room; 9 a. m.; walking time, 5 hours. Fare, $1.00; leader, Will Beck. Non-members are always welcome provided they are naturaloving proletarians.

Ten Cent Fare in Syracuse.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Trolley fares in Syracuse will be increased on Feb. 10 from 7 to 10 cents, under a ruling made today by the public service commission.

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A drama written on the American style
by
Leon Hausman
Author and Playwright
One Dollar and Ten Cents sent to
LEON HAUSMAN
"BOLSHEVIK"
POST OFFICE BOX 137
ELIZABETH, NEW JERSEY
secures a copy of
"BOLSHEVIK"
In English for the present.
Translations may be had at a later date.

Dance and Ball
HARLEM CASINO, 116TH STREET AND LENOX AVENUE
Tickets in advance 50 cents, at the door 75 cents.
Arranged by the YOUNG WORKERS' LEAGUE, 108 East 14th Street.
February 19th

BUSINESS MEN'S JURY CONVICTS PASSAIC STRIKER

Proof of Third Degree Methods Brought Out

HACKENSACK, Feb. 4.—A jury of small business men and women sitting in the county court house here tonight rendered against the Passaic strikers brought in a verdict of guilty against Adolf Wisnefski, 122 Passaic street, Garfield, one of the eleven textile strikers incarcerated since last September in the bomb frame-up which strike leaders allege was intended to prevent the entry of the I. W. W. into the big textile strike, who was brought to trial today before Judge William M. Seufert in the Bergen County Court of Quarter Sessions in this city, after a series of imperialistic postponements.

Alexander McDeed of Paterson, counsel for Wisnefski, declared that the prisoner had been subjected to a brutal third degree at the time of his arrest and that a confession had been wrung out of him because of the torture and promises that it would go easier for him if he signed a fake confession. Attorney McDeed argued that as the confession was not voluntary it should not be accepted in evidence.

Apart from the testimony of strike scene police, and the forced confession, the state furnished no witnesses against Wisnefski.

Wisnefski was held in $15,000, while some of the other prisoners were held in as high as $50,000 bail.

Wisnefski, when placed on the stand today, repeatedly declared that he had no knowledge of the bombings and that he was at home with his family on the night of the bombing in connection with which he was arrested.

No lives were lost in these peculiar bombings and little property damage done.

Wisnefski has a wife and five small children. He will be sentenced next Friday.

Corrupt Electrical Union Local Officers Hire Some Gangsters

Four men were arrested and one injured when thugs in the employ of the corrupt ex-officers of Local Number 3 of the electrical workers' union prevented international officers from taking possession of the local offices at 130 East Sixteenth street yesterday afternoon. The crooked local officers deposed last December were denounced by 2,000 rank-and-filers who met in the day at the Yorkville Casino, Eighty-sixth street, between Second and Third avenues.

Thugs Fire At Crowd.

Several shots were fired by hired thugs in the afternoon fracas in order to break up the crowd of workers who stormed the local office. Alexander Fiadini, one of those arrested, admitted that he had fired at the crowd. The three others arrested were Jack Diaz of 1872 Fifty-third street, Brooklyn, and Julius V. Thomas of 917 Eighteth street, Brooklyn, both supporters of international officers, and Gerald Hook of 417 West Forty-fourth street, who is not known as a member of either faction. Hook was found unconscious on the stairs, probably a victim of the terrorist tactics of the crooked local officials.

Denounce Grafters.

Former President Richard O'Hare, Mike Stanton, Peter Gilroy, and other corrupt officials who were expelled from the union for accepting bribes and misusing the local's funds, were denounced at the Yorkville Casino meeting in the evening. The meeting said to be illegal by the ousted officers, was perfectly regular, according to H. H. Broach, international vice-president.

District Attorney for More Effective Censor

Criminal prosecution of producers of objectionable plays and prison sentences if they are convicted was the new stand taken today by District Attorney Joab H. Banton, coincident with the scrapping of the play jury system.

Banton, declaring he believed the play jury system ineffective, asserted he would urge personally that convicted producers be sent to prison.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

VOLUNTEERS WANTED to help with

Bazaar preparations.

The Office of the
I. L. D.
799 Broadway, Room 422
Will be open(ed) daily from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M.

Volunteers to address envelopes, prepare signs, etc., are needed at once.

Help with the work of relief to Class War Prisoners.

"SINNER"

An all-star cast, including Claude H. Brooke, will be seen in Monday night in the Time Theatre, by Richard Herndon (in association with H. W. Gardner Adams) with Alice Brady as leading and Co-Star. Production is now being

"BREAKING CHAINS"

A Thrilling Film — Russia from 1917 to 1923

LOVE — HATE — REVOLUTION

2 P. M.; 4.15 P. M. 4 Showings 7 P. M.; 9 P. M.

SUN. FEB. 6, 1927

WALDORF THEATRE, 58th St., East of Broadway

Advance Sale of Tickets at the Box Office Waldorf Theatre, Jimmie Shorter Book Store, Daily Worker Office—Auspices Workers Aid

Tickets in Advance 75c At the Door 99c

Neighborhood Playhouse 466 Grand St. Bryant 9628

Every Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.

"PINWHEEL"

By Francis Edwards Faragoh

THE STRAND Thea., W'y at 47 St. Evs. 8:40. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:40.

CHANNING MANSFIELD Evenings

For BETTER OR WORSE

NEW COMEDY DRAMA

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Mats. Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings and Thurs. and Sat. Mats.

WINTHROP AMES presents

Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. in H. M. S. PIRATES OF PENZANCE

Thursday Evenings Only. "Iolanthe"

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

New York Assembly Has Bill to Provide Eight Hour Day in Hospitals

A bill has been introduced in the assembly at Albany, to amend the labor law in relation to employment in state hospitals. The bill has been read once, and referred to the Committee on Labor and Industries. As amended it reads: "Eight consecutive hours, exclusive of necessary time for meals, shall constitute a legal day's work for attendants, nurses and other employes on the ward service of state hospitals. No such attendant, nurse or other employe shall be permitted or allowed to work more than eight hours in one day, or forty four hours, provided, however, that extra labor may be performed in case of an epidemic of disease or sickness in any such hospitals.

BRONX YOUTH ATTENTION!

All comrades and sympatizers are invited to the Sunday gathering of Bronx Street Nucleous of the Young Workers' (Communists) League on Sunday, February 6th, 2 p. m. at 1347 Boston Rd., Bronx. Special feature —The appearance of the first number of our Wall News Paper—"The Red Torch". Admission free. Bring your friends.

Lectures and Forums.

THE PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE

Program Feb. 6 to Feb. 12
At Labor Temple (3 St.) & Astor Pl.)
at 8 o'clock. Admission Free

Sunday, Feb. 6—Dr. Emanuel Sternheim: "Education in Recent Fiction."

Tuesday, Feb. 8—Dr. Alfred Adler: "Mental Hygiene and Individual Psychology."

Friday, Feb. 11—Everett Dean Martin: What is the Matter With Modern Ideas? "Naturalism."

AT MANHATTAN TRADE SCHOOL
Lexington Av. & 22d St. at 8 o'clock
Single Admission, 25 cents
Reduction for Course Tickets

Monday, Feb. 14—Dr. Morris R. Cohen: American Philosophy—"General Background and Characteristics of American Thought."

Wed., Feb. 9—Dr. Harriet E. Seymour: How the Scientist Works—"Chemistry Old and New."

Thurs., Feb. 10—E. C. Spaulding: Questions People Expect a Philosopher to Answer. "Must One's Philosophy Express One's Temperament."—Wm. James.

Mon., Feb. 13—Mortimer J. Adler: Psychological Relativity. The Four Gesmitties of the Soul. "The Soul of the Body."

LABOR TEMPLE

14th Street and Second Avenue

This Sunday

5 P. M.—Contemporary Authors.

PROF. H. W. L. DANA

"Gorki"

ADMISSION 25 CENTS

7:15 P. M.—

EDMUND B. CHAFFEE

"Mexico, Oil & Peace"

ADMISSION FREE

8:30 P. M.—

MORRIS HILLQUIT

"American Socialism Today"

ADMISSION FREE

Harlem Open Forum

Sunday, February 6

WHITHER CHINA

—H. M. Wicks

Harlem Workers' Center

81 East 110th St.

8 P. M.

Come and bring your fellow workers!

ANNUAL BALL OF FREIHEIT GESANGS VEREIN HELD TONIGHT AT TAMMANY HALL, 8 O'CLOCK

The popular singing club, the Freiheit Gesangs Verein, will hold its annual ball tonight at Tammany Hall, 14th St. and Third Ave., near 14th street station. It is easy to get there, by elevated, subway, or surface car. The affairs of this organization are always extremely interesting, and are enlivened by choral singing by the Verein, by mandolin orchestral selections, and by plays. The tickets are 75 cents, including war tax and hat check. They can be obtained at the box office.

SIGMAN GUERILLA HAS LONG RECORD AS LAW BREAKER

But Bosses' Friends Seldom Pay Penalty

If the Baumes law applies to gangsters as well as to other criminals, J. Zeuruch, one of President Sigman's guerillas, is destined to spend the rest of his life in jail following his arrest yesterday for beating a picketing cloakmaker.

Zeuruch was captured after he and his companions had beaten to insensibility Theodore Tiriris, one of the members of Local 38, who was picketing the shop of Reisman, Rothman & Beaver of 521 West 57th street.

The gangster was found, when taken to police headquarters, to have a long criminal record with three previous convictions for felonies against him. He was at the time of his arrest out on bail of $25,000 and he is now held without bail pending a hearing of his case.

This is one of the clearest cases of the International's use of gangsters to force workers, by terrorist methods, to register and thus support Sigman. The firm of Reisman, Rothman & Beaver had been called on strike this week when three workers were discharged for refusing to register, and since then the picket lines have been constantly harried by guerillas. On Wednesday shots were fired at the pickets from passing automobiles, but no one was hurt. Yesterday, Tiriris was unprotected when Zeuruch and his gang attacked him with lead pipes and left him unconscious.

LETTISH EDUCATIONAL SOCIETY HOLDS CONCERT AND BALL TONIGHT; PARTLY FOR "DAILY"

A grand concert and ball will be held tonight at the Bohemian National Hall, 321 East 73 street, by the Lettish Educational Society. Part of the proceeds will be donated to The DAILY WORKER.

The program will include a Lettish orchestra of 24 men. Mr. Zuzsy Weinstein, contralto, a trio of violin, piano and cello, and an operatic cantata in three scenes featuring a Lettish chorus of thirty. Many other features are being arranged.

The performance starts at 8ight p. m. and the admission is seventy-five cents including wardrobe. All readers of The DAILY WORKER are urged to attend.

LABOR DEFENSE BAZAAR COMMITTEE MEETS TODAY

The usual weekly meeting of the Bazaar Committee is being held on Sunday, February 6th, at 2 p. m., in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th Street.

It is necessary that all delegates attend so that a definite idea can be had of what has been done up to date.

There are only five more meetings so all must realize no time can be wasted. Delegates are urged to check up on their work. Organizations are urged to decide immediately the question of booths.

No letters will be sent to delegates. This is only notice of meeting.

All together Comrades! Your presence is vital to the success of the Bazaar. The Class War Prisoners look to you for aid.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE, N. Y. Section
799 Broadway, Room 422

ATTEND! ATTEND! ATTEND!

THE SECOND ANNUAL BANQUET

of the

DAILY WORKER BUILDERS OF NEW YORK

to be held at

YORKVILLE CASINO (Main Ballroom)

212 East 86th Street, near Third Avenue.

The leading contributors and editors of The DAILY WORKER will be present, among them being J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, SCOTT NEARING, BERTRAM D. WOLFE, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, VERN SMITH, TOM O'FLAHERTY, ROBERT W. DUNN, MICHAEL GOLD, as well as the leading figures in the local labor movement

The banquet will be accompanied by concert numbers given by an excellent orchestra.

The banquet will be followed by a dance in the beautiful ballroom of the Yorkville Casino.

EVERYBODY WILL BE THERE

Don't fail to come

Monday (Washington's Birthday Eve.), February 21, 1927

Banquet starts at 7 P. M.—Dancing at 9 P. M.

COMBINATION TICKETS FOR BANQUET AND DANCE $1.50

TICKETS FOR DANCE ONLY 50c.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO COMRADES!

CHARLES SELIKSON

1255 First Avenue Corner 66th Street

ORTHOPHONIC VICTROLAS AND RADIOS

Cash or Easy Payments. No Interest Charged.

Stromberg-Carlson Radios

Fada Neutrodyne Atwater-Kent Freed-Eisemann

Radiola Super-Heterodyne Freshman Masterpiece

Latest Victrola Records

Everything Guaranteed. Open Evenings and Sundays.

DRAMA

Theatre Guild to Send Out Touring Company

The Theatre Guild will send out a touring company of a successful play next season, it was announced by Lee Shubert. The company will present "The Guardsman," by Molnar; "Arms and the Man," by Bernard Shaw; "St. John Ervine's Jane Clegg," by Miss Ervine, and "The Good Hope," by Sidney Howard. The booking of this company, which will make a transcontinental tour, will be handled by Daniel Mayer, Inc.

Among the cities to be included in the tour are Cleveland, Houston, Denver, Detroit, Brooklyn, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Atlanta and Utica. The Guild last night said that the fall plans of the touring company would be made public later, and that so far no actors had been engaged.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

Carl Reed's next production will be a drama, "Savages Under the Skin," written by Harry L. Foster and Wyman Procter. Shubert D. Williams will direct and Livingston Platt will design the scenery.

Stanley Lupino, comedian of "The Nightingale," at Jolson's Theatre, has completed the book and lyrics of a musical comedy entitled "The Limey." The Messrs. Shubert will produce it. Armand Vecsey has composed the score.

This Saturday Sacha Guitry and Yvonne Printemps will give their final performances in "Mozart" at Chanin's Forty-sixth Street Theatre. They will play a week each in Montreal and Boston and sail for France at the end of the month.

Will Morrissey has completed the cost of his "satirical musical comedy," "Folly of Hollywood," which will open next Monday night at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, under the direction of Harry L. Cort. The cast is headed by Midgie Miller, and includes Robert G. Pitkin, Dave Ferguson, Willard Hall, Hugh Kidder and William Friend.

Civic Repertory Thea., 14 St. & 6 Av. Tel. Watkins 7747.

EVA LE GALLIENNE

MAT. TODAY — "CRADLE SONG"

TONIGHT — "MASTER BUILDER"

Monday Eve., "John Gabriel Borkman"

The LADDER

Everybody's Play

WALDORF, 45th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

RITZ Thea., 48th St., W. of B'way. Evs. 8.30. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2.30.

L. Lawrence Weber's Musical Bon Bon

Bye Bye Bonnie

Music And Concerts.

PHILHARMONIC

TOSCANINI, Guest Conductor

Carnegie Hall, This Sun. Aft. at 2:30

BEETHOVEN SYMPHONY NO. 7

BEETHOVEN SYMPHONY NO. 8

with the SCHOLA CANTORUM

First Appearances This Season of

FURTWAENGLER, Conductor

at CARNEGIE HALL

Thurs. Eve., Feb. 10, Fri. Aft., Feb. 11

Soloist: PABLO CASALS, 'Cellist

Saturday Evening, February 12th

Soloist: Bernard Ocko, Violinist

Sunday Aft., Feb. 13—

Arthur Judson, Mgr. (Knabe Piano)

AEOLIAN HALL, Wed. Eve., Feb 9, 8:30

SONG RECITAL

MARIE

EDELLE

Concert Mgt. Daisy Mayer, Inc.

Aeolian Hall, Sunday Aft., Feb. 6, at 3

GEORGE

MEADER

TENOR—Metropolitan Opera Co.

Concert Mgt. Daisy Mayer, Inc.

Aeolian Hall, Sunday Aft., Feb. 6, at 3

Marguerite Gluck's

SANCHEZ

IN COSTUME

in Songs and Dances of South America, Mexico and Cuba

TIMES SQUARE THEATRE

Sunday Eve., February 13, at 8:30.

Mgt. Loudon Charlton

Mason & Hamlin Piano.

CHARLES (CHIC) SALE

One of the bright lights of "Gay Paree," the Shubert Revue at the Winter Garden.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Tremont 4287 Longacre 7265

L. Browndorff

CHIROPRACTOR

1795 Clinton Ave. Bronx, N. Y.

2-5 P. M.

53 W. 39th St. New York City

1-3 P. M.

By Appointment Only

ATTENTION, HARLEM!

Every member and sympathizer of the International Labor Defense must be present Sunday morning, at 10:30 A. M., at 84 E. 110th St., where a drive will be started for the collection of articles for the Bazaar to be held March 10, 11, 12, and 13. The success of the Bazaar depends upon the earnestness with which this work will be carried on.

This means that you must report without fail. Bring your friends.

MUSIC

METROPOLITAN OPERA

"The Bartered Bride" will open the fifteenth week of the Metropolitan Opera Monday evening with Mmes. Mueller, Jeritza, Telva and Messrs. Laubenthal, Bohnen, Meader.

Other operas next week:

"Tosca," at a special matinee on Wednesday, with Mmes. Jeritza, Flexer, and Messrs. Johgson, Scotti.

"Il Trovatore," Wednesday evening, with Mmes. Easton, Branzell, Anchoney and Messrs. Martinelli, Danise, Pinza.

"Siegfried," Thursday evening, with Mmes. Larsen-Toiisen, Branzell, Telva and Messrs. Kirchhoff, Schorr, Gustafson.

"Pelleas et Melisande," Friday evening, with Mmes. Bori, Howard, Hunter, and Messrs. Johnson, Whitehill, Rothier.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," Saturday matinee, the former with Mmes. Jeritza, Bourskaya, and Messrs, Chamlee and Basiola; the latter with Mme. Marie and Messrs. Fullin, Raffo, Tibbett.

"The Jewels of the Madonna," Saturday night, with Mmes. Easton, Telva, Wakefield, and Messrs. Martinelli, Danise.

Mme. Jeritza will sing the rola of Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana" in concert form, for the benefit of the Metropolitan Opera Company Emergency Fund, this Sunday evening. The other artists include: Mmes. Mueller, Alcock, Lewis and Egener, and Messrs. Chamlee, Basiola and Macpherson.

DOROTHY BURGESS

Leading lady with "Bye Bye Bonnie," Lawrence Weber's musical show at the Rits Theatre.

PHILHARMONIC

Arturo Toscanini concludes his appearances with the Philharmonic Orchestra at Carnegie Hall this Sunday afternoon with a program consisting of the first and ninth symphonies of Beethoven. The assisting chorus in the latter work is that of the Schola Cantorum, and the soloists are Elisabeth Rethberg, Louise Homer, Richard Crooks and Fraser Gange. Mr. Toscanini will said for Europe next Saturday.

Wilhelm Furtwaengler will take over the direction of the concerts for the remainder of the season, beginning Thursday evening at Carnegie Hall. Among the novelties which Mr. Furtwaengler has brought with him is a newly discovered version of Beethoven's Second "Leonora" Overture, with excisions and revisions in Beethoven's own hand. Other works new to this country include Brazzolf's "Don Juan," and Sibelius' Prelude to "The Tempest."

The soloist for Thursday is Pablo Casals, who will play the Saint-Saens 'cello concerto. The program will be repeated Friday afternoon.

MUSIC NOTES

Ruth Hale is writing a libretto from Elinor Wylie's novel, "The Venetian Glass Nephew," which is to be produced this Spring by the intimate Opera Company. Eugene Bonner is writing the music.

Mischa Lovitski will give a second piano recital in Carnegie Hall on Tuesday, March 29, which is to be his farewell appearance here for two years.

"Le Finta Giardiniera," the Mozart operetta at the Mayfair, presented by the Intimate Opera Company, will be followed later by Gluck's "Orpheus," done last season at the Provincetown Playhouse. Richard Hale will play the title role, which he created there.

George Meador, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, will include in his concert at Aeolian Hall, tomorrow afternoon, a group of songs by Richard Trunk, Wolff, Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

Buy Your
DAILY WORKER
at the Newsstand

The New Plays

MONDAY

"SINNER," a comedy of modern society by Thompson Buchanan, will be ushered in Monday night at the Klan Theatre, by Richard Herndon, with Alan Dinehart and Claibourne Foster as the featured players. Others in the company include: Merle Maddern, Hugh Huntley, Richard Raymond Walburn, Vera Allen, Dan Kelly, Geoffrey Harwood and William Stone.

"THE STRAWBERRY BLONDE," a comedy by Martin Brown, will open at the Bijou Theatre Monday evening. The cast includes: George Anderson, Helen Joy, Julie Ring Maibla Reade, Mary Frye and Frances Victory.

"THE ADVENTUROUS AGE," a comedy, which opens Monday night at the Mansfield Theatre, will serve to bring back Mrs. Pat Campbell to Broadway. The author is Frederick Witney.

"FOG," a mystery play by John Willard (author of "The Cat and the Canary"), will open at the National, Monday night, with the following cast: Helen Baxter, Robert Keith, Charles Dow Clark, Frank McHugh, Alex Clark, Jr., Hugh O'Connell and Ben Hendricks.

"JUDY," a musical comedy with book by Mark Swan, music by Charles Rosoff, and lyrics by Leon Robin, will be presented at Chanin's Royale Theatre Monday night by John Henry Mears. The cast will be headed by Queenie Smith and Charles Purcell.

TUESDAY

"OFF KEY," a new play by Arthur Caesar, will have its premiere next Tuesday night at the Belmont Theatre. The cast includes Florence Eldridge, Lucille Watson, McKay Morris and Katherine Reyner.

"LALLY," a satiric comedy by Henry Stillman, will open at the Greenwich Village Theatre, Tuesday night. The cast includes: Gerald Hamer, Reginald Malcom, Wallace Erskine, Joseph Granby and Zola Talma.

"SPELLBOUND," by Walter Elwood, will be presented by Mary Forrest at the Klaw Theatre for special matinees, beginning next Tuesday. The cast includes Adelaide Fitz-Allen, Bert West, Leslie Salisbury, Esther Stockton, Richard Bowler, James G. Morton, Arthur C Morris and Arthur Gay.

THURSDAY

"STIGMA," a new play by Dorothy Manley and Donald Duff, will open at the Cherry Lane Playhouse on Barrow Street, Greenwich Village, next Thursday night. The play deals with the marital relations between the white and colored race.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO. (Inc.), 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1095

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year; $3.25 six months; $1.75 three months.
By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year; $3.25 six months; $1.75 three months.

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE .....
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Injunctions for All Occasions.

A hailstorm of injunctions is sweeping over New York labor these days. Every day brings some new injunction. The capitalist politicians are not only granting injunctions to prevent striking and picketing but in the case of the traction workers the injunction restrains them from organising new men. In the case of a painter's union, an injunction restrains the union from exercising authority over their own members and preventing the union from expelling scabs.

In Local No. 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the local membership has been restrained from exercising its right to try to remove from office those guilty of graft and corruption, after a previous injunction tied the hands of the international office from trying these officers on the grounds that the local membership had the right of trial.

The injunction has become a noose around the neck of labor, that is strangling union organization and seeking to snuff out the life of trade unionism. By the clever procedure of issuing injunctions first and arguing them afterwards, the enemies of labor realize the aim of demoralizing the workers. In many instances the injunction achieves its purpose even before being finally decided by the courts.

There is only one method of dealing with injunctions. This holds true for injunctions against striking, picketing or organizing or injunctions that hamper the honest elements in the unions in dealing with their misleaders. That method is to ignore them and proceed with business. Hesitation and vacillation serve the enemies of labor. Any other method means to help the open shop employers or the scabs and thieves within the union that obtain injunctions preventing the rank and file from taking action against them. The A. F. of L. at its Atlantic City convention issued the slogan of "Defy the Injunctions". This is the slogan for the traction workers. It is the slogan for the honest elements in Local No. 3 of the I. B. E. W. in their dispute with their corrupt leaders. Any other course will lead to demoralization and will serve the ends of the grafters and open shoppers.

A law to prevent the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes must be unequivocally a demand for prohibition of the injunctions. They are unconstitutional. They deny the right of trial by jury. Labor is powerful enough if it exercises its strength to put such a law on the statute books. It can be done if the full strength of Labor politically is mobilized for this purpose. The old-time politicians will not grant such a law. Labor's own men representing a Labor Party could make the proper fight against this judicial octopus that is crushing out the life of organized Labor. A Labor Party is what is needed just now.

Saving Kellogg's Carcass

By a vote of eight to five the senate committee on foreign relations rejected a resolution offered by Senator Norris calling for an investigation of Secretary of State Kellogg's conspiracy with the Associated Press in circulating a story to the effect that the Mexican government was attempting to organize a Communist confederation in Latin America to the detriment of the interests of the United States.

Kellogg knew that he was lying when he pulled off this frame-up. He knew that Calles is not a Communist or anything like it, but a representative of the rising bourgeoisie of Mexico, basing his administration on that element and on the trade union movement headed by Luis Morones, his minister of labor, commerce and industry.

But Kellogg needed an excuse for his bullying of Mexico in the interests of the Doheny-Sinclair-Standard Oil-Mellon oil interests, the copper barons and the big American landowners like William Randolph Hearst. Thru the assistant secretary of state, Mr. Olds, Kellogg invited representatives of three news distributing agencies to the state department and asked them to co-operate in spreading this faked news, without incriminating the state department. Only the Associated Press agreed to this proposal.

A reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch exposed the plot and Kellogg was in hot water. The move to investigate this manufacturer of lies was the result.

Senator Willis of Ohio as much as admitted that Kellogg lied but voted against the resolution on the ground that a finding unfavorable to Coolidge would damage his prestige and weaken the state department at this moment while the Chinese, Nicaraguan and Mexican questions remain unsettled.

Here is a splendid example of the limits to which our lying statesmen will go in order to justify their conduct. Here is another reason why a worker should be as willing to believe the tale of an exposed confidence man as the word of a capitalist politician.

Hugh Frayne, the General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor in New York, declared at the Central Trades and Labor Council meeting that the injunction against the traction workers "has prevented the organizers of that union and himself from organizing those workers. We have to obey these injunctions," he continued, "whether they are just or not. In this way the spirit of the workers is broken."

Mr. Frayne calls himself a 100-per cent A. F. of L. man. Yet the A. F. of L. declared, at its conventions, that the way to beat these injunctions is to defy them and in that way prevent the "spirit of the workers from being broken." The striking cloakmakers did it and nullified the injunction. The courts dare not even mention that their injunction was broken. This is the way to deal with injunctions.

First Signs of a Downward Trend in Industry

By C. E. RUTHENBERG,
General Secretary, Workers (Communist) Party of America.

THE end of the year 1926 was the signal for the letting loose of a chorus of hallelujahs of joy over the great height which the prosperity had reached in that country during that year. Bankers, brokers, merchants and manufacturers joined in the glowing exposition on the unprofitable position which American industry had gained. Even William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, added his voice to the general cry of "all is well."

With these excited cries over the great profits which were rolling into the coffers of the capitalists, the went predictions that 1927 would equally be prosperous and profitable as had been the year 1926. While here and there a note of caution was expressed about the coming year, the chorus of prosperity shouters were in accord upon the estimate that 1927 would be another boom year for the exploiters of labor.

Some figures have just become available which throw light on the question of the present tendency of industry in this country. These figures represent a wet blanket upon the optimism of the prosperity shouters. They show that a distinct downward tendency has made itself felt in industry and that in place of the pace of 1926 being maintained, or even a greater height in production being reached, that a tapering off of production and employment has begun.

The first of these figures are those gathered by the Department of Labor in regard to employment in the manufacturing industry. The department received reports from 10,117 establishments in 54 industries for December, 1926. It makes its comparison with employment in these industries in 1925, which is indicated by the index figures 100. In November, 1926, this index of employment stood at 91.4, and in December it had decreased to 90.0. Comparing December, 1925, with December, 1926, we get the index figure of 92.6 for the first and figure of 4.7 losses this year.

These figures are very significant and do not by any means indicate the full extent of the slump in industry. They do not take into consideration the fact that the automobile industry has been in a state of depression with other factors there as a clear indication that a downward tendency of industry has begun. The steel industry, for example, has shown over a more marked recession. There has been a decline in production for the first quarter of the year. The capacity shortage enjoyed themselves with the interpretation that this was merely a temporary reaction in the production of steel, which would be overcome with the opening of the new year. Production in December, 1926, was 74% of capacity. In January, 1926, this is a year ago, it was 88 to 89% of capacity. It was expected that January 1927, would raise the percentage to that of January, 1926, but the first estimates made public indicate that the past month will only show about the same production as December. That means a fall off of production in the steel industry of 14 to 15% for January of this year as compared to last year.

It has long been an axiom in American industry that the steel industry is first to show the general trend of industry, because it produces the raw material which so many other industries use and the falling of orders for steel indicate an early falling off of production in other industries. Steel is showing the way in a one-seventh reduction in production over last year.

The Purchasing Power of the Farmers.

The purchasing power of the various economic groups has a strong bearing upon the future of industry. If this purchasing power is reduced through the reduction of the earnings of a particular economic group, this is bound to reflect itself in the general development of industry.

In considering this phase of the situation we have the important fact that the total value of the principal agricultural crops for 1926 was more than a billion dollars less than in 1925. In other words, the farmers will have a billion dollars less of purchasing power for 1927 than they had in 1926.

The Automobile Industry.

The automobile industry was one of the industries which shared in the boom of 1926, producing more cars than for any previous year. There are many signs that the market for new automobiles is narrowing. The total of the number of automobiles now in use in the United States has reached the enormous figure of over 20,000,000 cars, and it seems improbable that a market can be found to absorb the high rate of production which has existed in this industry during recent years.

The Outlook for 1927.

While the factors discussed above indicate the general tendency of industry, that is, a general recession in production with an increase in unemployment, it must not be inferred that there is an immediate danger of a depression or crisis. For some months yet we may look forward to fairly general employment.

The tendency of industry, however, is downward. How deep-going the depression will be is not yet apparent, but that it is in the offing is indicated by all the factors governing industry. If such a depression comes it will bring with it a sharpening of the struggle between the workers and the employers, who will as usual take advantage of it to endeavor to reduce wages and enforce less favorable working conditions upon the workers generally.

The facts now becoming apparent indicate that the chorus of glee with which the new year was opened was in the nature of shouting to keep up the courage of the exploiters rather than a viewpoint based upon the actual situation in the industry of this country.

CURRENT EVENTS

Continued from Page 1

that we have seen anywhere. I will furnish the address on the slightest provocation.

* * *

A great outrage has been committed here in New York on an honorable citizen who was on the way to becoming a second Henry Ford when the minions of the law swooped down on him. His name is David D. Deutsch and if you will pardon the pun, he is "in Dutch" up to his pocketbook. Deutsch had succeeded in collecting $1,500,000 in return for security chattel mortgages on non-existent automobiles. My proposition is that all the little business men who gave him their money in the hope that they would get in on quick profits should be canned and Mr. Deutsch permitted to breathe the ozone again. A top notch confidence man is always preferable to the little gambler who expects to make ten dollars grow out of one at somebody else's expense.

* * *

A Chicago bootlegger shot and killed his fiance after spending $50,000 on her. He could have saved money by a little foresight. This particular bootlegger is a former waiter. While trying to make an honest living he didn't get any nearer to his goal than a few paltry dollars a week. He made $75,000 in nine months dealing in intoxicating beverages. It must be tough even on a bootlegger to be told by a girl on whom he has spent $50,000, that he cannot see her home. This world is mostly all ingratitude. However, the survivor of the shooting affray is not worrying. Who ever heard of a rich bootlegger getting convicted in Chicago? he asks. Alright, but who ever heard of a man with only $25,000 left, having a nickel after the lawyers get thru saving him from the gallows?

* * *

THE Daily News, New York tabloid sheet, with a reported circulation of one million and a half, is out for censorship of the press. The Peaches-Browning case got its dander up. It is true that the Daily News started out to serve up the filth with all the most intimate trimmings that experts in sexual histrionics could present in word and in picture. But it could not stand the competition of the bawdy rags published by William Randolph Hearst, our leading jingo, and Harmsworth MacFadden, our leading foe of flesh meat. Now the Daily News howls for a censorship in conjunction with the New York World and other virtuous sheets that could see their circulation dropping to zero under the impact of a few more Peaches-Browning trials.

* * *

THE Daily News believes in publishing the details of criminal trials. But it draws the line somewhere. Here is an excerpt from an editorial in the News of Feb. 3: "We believe it was proper to publish full details of the Hall-Mills case. That was a case of what might be called NICE CLEAN CRIME." (Copr. 1926, T. J. O'F.). Here's for nicer and cleaner crimes! The Rev. Hall was killed in a shady lane while holding a clandestine meeting with his chorister.

* * *

IT seems that almost everybody else in New Jersey was there, too. The papers must have reasonable crimes to fill their pages with. But criminals mustn't go too far. They must consider the susceptibilities of the press. If they want publicity in the future they must avoid the pitfalls of scandal. it looks had for King Benjamin of the House of David whose trial is approaching. He is said to be shoved in with the used-furniture advertisements. "Daddy" Browning was a wise gander after all. He got under the tape just in time.

* * *

THE William J. Burns detective agency evidently believes in "secret covenants openly arrived at." A few days ago we commented on a speech delivered by the master fink and perjurer, before an aggregation of rotarians. He spoke on crime and criminals, and blamed Karl Marx and Lenin for both. Another one of his hirelings picked on a Kiwanian club and spewed a similar speech on them. The understudy, however, accomplished the impossible. He proved himself to be a bigger sap than Burns. He declared that he was in possession of information to the effect that a group of revolutionaries were now plotting in Brooklyn, to bring about a revolution in Venezuela, but, since the Burns agency was investigating the conspiracy, he wished to keep the matter a secret. Then he had the "secret" published in the New York Times.

The stoolpigeon also declared that Senator Borah stopped advocating recognition of the Soviet Union because of proof of Communist propaganda submitted to him by former secretary of state Hughes. Borah flatly denied this, and stated he never saw any document that would have the slightest weight in regard to the matter. Detectives may be the dumbest mortals, outside of a reporter, but they are the world's most shameless liars. Because they are dumb, perhaps!

THE JACKASS ON A SPREE

This picture represents the battle in the ranks of the democratic party between the wet Wall street forces led by Al. Smith and the dry, K. K. K. elements whose standard bearer is William Gibbs McAdoo. It looks like another attempt at political suicide on the part of the donkey.

A NEW NOVEL by Upton Sinclair

III

Back in Paris, and there were long letters from Verne; the government had filed suit for the return of its oil lands, and the Sunnyside tract was in the hands of a receiver, and all the development stopped. But they were not to worry—their organization would be put to work on the various foreign concessions, and as for the money, what they were getting out of Paradise would keep them in old age.

Strange to say, Dad worried scarcely at all. Mrs. Ollivier had discovered a new medium, even more wonderful than the others, and this Polish woman with bad teeth and epilepsy had brought up from the depths of the universal consciousness the spirit of Dad's grandfather, who had crossed the continent in a covered wagon and perished in the Mohave desert; also there was the spirit of an Indian chief whom the old pioneer had killed during the journey. Most fascinating to listen while the two warriors told about this early war between the reds and the whites!

Bertie was furious, of course; she didn't dare say much to Dad, for the old man was still the boss, and would tell her "where to get off." She took it out on Bunny, storming at him, because he was the one who might have made Dad from this dangerous vamp. Bunny couldn't help laughing, because Mrs. Ollivier was so far from the type which the Hollywood directors had taught him to recognize; a stoutish, elderly lady, sweet and sentimental, with a soft, caressing voice—it was too funny to listen to her coo to the fierce and surly Indian chief, "Now, Red Wolf in the Rain, are you going to be nice to us this evening? We are so glad to hear you again! Captain Ross's little grandson is here, and wants you to tell us if the faces of the redmen are white in your happy world."

Bunny was taking Vee about to see Paris; a city which was exhibiting to the world the moral collapse of capitalist imperialism. In the theatres of this culture centre you might see a stage of crowded naked women, their bodies painted every color of the rainbow; some of them died of the poisoning which this treatment inflicted upon the system, but meantime the war for democracy was justified. While Bunny was there, the artists of the city took offense because the managers of the underground railway objected to an obscene advertisement; to express their scorn of censorship, some hundreds of men and women emerged at dawn, having torn off their clothing in drunken orgies, and invaded the subway cars entirely naked. These beauty-creators and guides of the future held a festival once every year, the Quatres Arts Ball, a famous event to which Vee, as a visiting artist, was welcome; and here, when the revels were at their height, you might stroll about a vast hall, and see, upon platforms set against the walls, the actual enactment of every variety of abnormal vice which human degeneracy had ben able to conceive.

With the time he had left from such diversions, Bunny was preparing for "The Young Student" a moving protest against the Roumanian White Terror. He left this nearly completed manuscript on the writing table in his hotel room, and when he came back it was gone, and inquiries among the hotel staff brought no information. Two days later Bertie came to him with another tantrum; she knew all the contents of his manuscript, and what shame he was bringing upon their heads! "So Eldon's been setting spies on me!" exclaimed Bunny, ready to get hot himself; but Bertie said rubbish, Eldon had nothing to do with it, it was the French secret service. "Did he imagine for a moment the government was failing to keep track of Bolshevik propaganda? Or that they would let him use their country as a centre of plotting against the peace of Europe?

Bunny wanted to know, were they so silly as to imagine they could keep him from writing home what he had learned in Vienna? He would do the article over, and find ways to get it to America in spite of all the spies. Then Bertie actually broke down and went; of all countries for him to pick out — Roumania! Here she had been pulling wires to get Eldon appointed to a high diplomatic post, with the combined influence of Verne in Washington and Prince Marsacu in Bucharest; and now Bunny came along and smeared them with his filth!

And more than that! Blind fool, couldn't he see that Marsacu was interested in Vee? He was going to give her up to him? The prince would of course hear about this matter through the French government, which was using Roumania against Russia. Suppose he were to come back to Paris and challenge Bunny to a duel? The hot-tempered smerdisch answered, "We'll fight with tennis rackets!"

(To Be Continued.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The tattered torso of a body, hacked into unrecognizable pieces and burned beyond recognition gave St. Petersburg today the most gruesome and mystifying crime in local police annals.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV.—No. 30. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1927 Price 5 Cents

Withdraw the American Naval Forces from Chinese Waters! Recognize the Chinese Nationalist Government!

Statement of the Central Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America

THE American Government, continuing the imperialist policy which it is following in Nicaragua, and in its threats against Mexico, is concentrating war vessels in Chinese waters and hurrying marines to China.

While Secretary of State Kellogg has issued a statement containing "fair" words about the willingness of the American government to negotiate new treaties surrendering some of the power it has usurped to dictate to China what its tariff here shall be and the extra territorial rights under which American citizens are immune from Chinese law and trial in Chinese courts, this declaration remains only words and no action is taken to abrogate the unequal treaties which are an insult to the Chinese people.

This declaration of Secretary of State Kellogg, coupled with the massing of American war forces against China, is shallow hypocrisy used to coerce China into agreement to new treaties, which will make possible the continuation of the brutal exploitation of the Chinese people by the American capitalists.

Capitalist Imperialism in China

The Chinese people have for a half century been degraded by the bitter exploitation of the imperialist powers.

These powers have grabbed the national possessions of China, established their factories in that country in which the Chinese workers have been compelled to labor for pitiable wages, they have thru their great banking houses made loans to the various Chinese warlords who aided them in the exploitation of the Chinese people, and then seized control of the Chinese tariff administration and collected the tariff to secure repayment of their loans, thereby placing new heavy burdens on the Chinese people.

In order to make the representatives of this imperialist system of exploitation responsible under Chinese laws, the imperialist powers established the principle of extra-territoriality under which these representatives could not be tried in Chinese courts

(Continued on page 2.)

BUSINESS MEN'S JURY CONVICTS PASSAIC STRIKER

Proof of Third Degree Methods Brought Out

HACKENSACK, Feb. 4.—A jury of small business men and women sitting in a cosy room charged with prejudice against the Passaic strikers brought in a verdict of guilty against Adolf Wisnefski, 123 Passaic street, Garfield, one of the eleven textile strikers incarcerated since last September in the bomb frame-up which, strike leaders allege, was intended to prevent the entry of the A. F. of L. into the big textile strike, who was brought to trial today before Judge William M. Seufert in the Bergen County Court of Quarter Sessions in this city, after a series of impermissible postponements.

Alexander McDeed of Paterson, counsel for Wisnefski, declared that the prisoner had been subjected to a brutal third degree at the time of his arrest and that a confession had been wrung out of him because of the tortures and promises that it would go easier for him if he signed a fake confession. Attorney McLeod argued that as the confession was not voluntary it should not be accepted in evidence.

Apart from the testimony of strike zone police, and the forced confession, the state furnished no witnesses against Wisnefski.

Wisnefski was held in $15,000, while some of the other prisoners were held in as high as $50,000 bail.

Wisnefski, when placed on the stand today, repeatedly declared that he had no knowledge of the bombings and that he was at home with his family on the night of the bombing in connection with which he was arrested.

No lives were lost in these peculiar bombings and little property damage done.

Wisnefski has a wife and five small children. He will be sentenced next Friday.

Can Kill Fireman For $13,000.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y.—Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau of Suffolk County today approved settlement of a claim made by administrators of the estate of John Montgomery against the Long Island Railroad Company, for the death of Montgomery, a locomotive fireman, in a wreck at Calverton on August 13 last. Five other persons died in the wreck. Settlement was for $13,000.

VANCOUVER.—The sum of $20,000 has been awarded the estate of S. H. Anderson, longshoreman who was killed last summer while loading a vessel. The jury deliberated two hours and decided that the Oregon Stevedoring Company was negligent in not having a batch cover fastened.

In Land of Law'n Order.

Morris Dreyfuss, office manager of a millinery manufacturing establishment here, carried a payroll of $2,000 right into a waiting gunman's arms today. For his trouble he suffered severe scalp lacerations.

Cantonese Win Big Victory Over Fang

Road Now Open for Revolutionary Army's Drive To Capture Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4.—Sun Chuan Fang, so-called "defender" of Shanghai against the Cantonese, has suffered a staggering defeat in the neighborhood of Hangchow, according to reliable reports received here.

The battle is reported to have been light in so far as casualties go, but the defeat of Sun Chuan Fang is regarded as ominous here as it is not likely now that he can reorganize his forces and stem the Cantonese drive on Shanghai.

* * *

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The British cabinet held a second lengthy session late this afternoon.

The cabinet, it is understood, has now asked Eugene Chen for full information regarding guarantees he will give for the protection of "life and property" in China, providing British troops enroute to Shanghai are recalled. Chen has already given ample assurances that the Cantonese government is capable of guaranteeing the safety of all nationals in its territory.

The cabinet has not yet made known its decision as to the diversion of the troops now enroute to China, but there is a general belief here that the troops will be maintained at points outside of Shanghai. This opinion appears to be backed up by a dispatch from Hong Kong to the effect that the second Suffolk regiment has arrived there and is being held for further orders.

The faction in the cabinet which has long sought the abrogation of the Anglo-Soviet agreement is again demanding a break with Russia.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, in a statement declared:

"It is unfortunate and not a little peculiar that the Chinese nationalists' anti-foreign bias should have been directed mainly against the British. For this it seems the Soviet government is largely responsible."

Chen Will Reply To U. S.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 4. — Eugene Chen, in charge of the foreign affairs of the Chinese nationalist government announced today that he had been unable to reply to the United States statement regarding America's Chinese policy because of the press of the negotiations with England. He added that he will reply in a few days.

COOLIDGE LEADS ALL BOOSTERS FOR MORE MONEY

Falls in Line Suddenly And Forgets Economy

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—President Coolidge today completely abandoned his "economy" program as far as the navy and war department appropriations are concerned. Weak opposition from administration groups in congress has melted away before the assurance and vigor of the preparedness bloc. In fact, the administration is taking the lead in advocating additions to the originally proposed budget for war material.

Asks Millions More.

Approval by congress of supplemental budget estimates totalling $8,500,000 requested by President Coolidge within two days will start recruiting for both the army and the marine corps. More than 5,000 men will be added to the nation's fighting force before July 1.

The first sign of a change on the part of the administration came when the army supply bill was passed to provide for 118,750 men next year despite the president's budget message for an army of but 115,000. Virtually no opposition was offered by administration wheel-horses to the change.

The fight of the "big navy" bloc for the senate cruiser amendment, providing $1,200,000 with which to begin construction of three new cruisers, was to be renewed today in a meeting of senate and house conference committees. This is now the sole point at issue between the "big navy" people and Coolidge.

A deadlock was predicted, with the result that the question will be fought out again on the floor of congress.

Bill to Bar Aged City Employes in New York

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4. — New York City employes, who have passed the age of 80, would be permitted to continue to hold their positions, under a bill introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman Ricca, Kings republican.

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

SO our friends the enemy have recaptured Eugene Chen, the Canton-ese foreign minister, the "Czar" of the Nationalist government. Chen is a republican and has as much use for a king as a bull dog has for an Irish setter. Since the British monarchistic coal-owners wanted to discredit Cook in the eyes of the masses they nicknamed him "Emperor" tho he is painstakingly obedient to the wishes of the rank and file. They have not succeeded in their designs on Cook. They will be equally unsuccessful in their attacks on Chen.

* * *

SINCLAIR Lewis has written another book and it smells like a hamminger. He has done to the clergy what he previously did to the petty bourgeois in Babbitt and to the medical fraternity in Arrowsmith. Neither of those two categories have been put out of business and in all probability they had as good a laugh at their own pictures as the rest of us. Both are great works. We are anxious to read what Lewis has done to the clergy.

* * *

OLD Art "Hushbrain" the artful dodger of the Hearst press takes a slam at the author because he wants out to defouse the clergy with a description of a soused divine. Art thinks Lewis is going too far. Poor Art is getting old and should be excused. A man with a salary of $100,000 a year and a large income from investments should be put in a padded cell for turning out a daily column. Sinclair Lewis should get a move on and do most of his writing before he becomes a millionaire at the expense of doctors, preachers and real estate operators. We suggest that he tackles newspaper business managers next and then take a ship to Paris and stay there. He will have justified his existence.

* * *

SEVERAL readers of The DAILY WORKER, goaded into ungovernable anger because of our jibes at christian scientists, holy rollers, bush baptists, seventh day adventists, chiropractors, sun-worshippers, vegetarians, snake-oil peddlers and freudian fanatics, have threatened to commit hari kiri by choking themselves with raw alfalfa unless we turn around and charge the medical doctors with being engaged in the business of poisoning the human race. We suggest that our irate readers buy a copy of Rational Living, a magazine published by Dr. Liber, which is about the most rational bit of reading on the healing business.

(Continued on page 4).

FIFTEEN-MINUTE STRIKE TO HONOR FALLEN WORKERS

Great Demonstration at Austrian Funeral

VIENNA, Feb. 4.—A general strike which paralyzed all activity in Vienna and nearby cities for fifteen minutes was called today to honor the memory of the two socialists who were murdered in cold blood by the nationalist "Frontkampfers" last Sunday.

Sixteen thousand members of the Red Guard, mostly from Vienna, were brought in twelve special trains to the twin villages of Shattendorf and Lolperabach, where the victims were shot, for the funeral. More than 1,000 unemployed marched the fifty miles from Vienna to pay tribute to their murdered comrades.

The general strike, which took place at eleven o'clock, was not only a tribute to the two victims, but a warning to reactionary elements in Austria. Factories, railroads, the post office and even parliament and the stock exchange were tied up for fifteen minutes.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Troy Collar Workers On Strike to Prevent Lowering of Wages

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Refusing to accept a 20 per cent decrease in wages, more than 400 shirt ironers for Cluet, Peabody and Co., have gone on strike.

Threats to call out a sympathetic strike involving 5,000 workers unless the old wage was restored were made by the shirt ironers, who organized themselves in the Amalgamated Association of Collar Workers, looms here.

Fish Eat Parasites.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 4.—Approximately 10,000 gambusbias, small fish imported from Florida and the Panama Canal Zone, were released in various New Jersey streams today to prey on mosquito larve, it was announced at the New Jersey mosquito commission offices here.

Coal Gas Poisoning.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Eleven members of one family were found unconscious from coal gas poisoning today and at noon physicians were still working to save their lives. Those overcome are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and their nine children.

Sail From Manila.

MANILA, Feb. 4.—A detachment of 190 marines was scheduled to sail from this port to Shanghai today. They will clear for China on the U. S. S. Tanker Pecos.

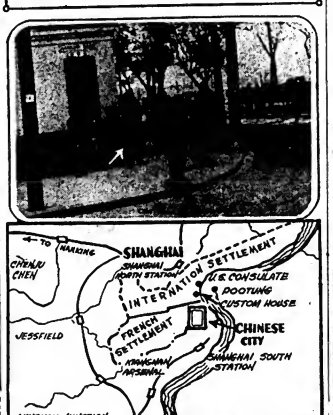
DIEGO RIVERA IN NEAR FATAL FALL OFF SCAFFOLDING

Art for Mexican Masses His Life Work

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—Diego Rivera, whose wall paintings for and about workers are known all over the world, is suffering from a fractured skull and other serious injuries as the result of a fall from a scaffolding while painting a fresco here.

Rivera's art not only deals with revolutionary subjects, but is handled in a way that makes it intelligible to the simplest Mexican worker or peasant. Art for Rivera was not the exclusive property of the rich, and paintings, he thought, were not meant to gather dust on the walls of any one who had the money to buy them. Rivera's paintings are done for the most part on the walls of public buildings, where the worker and the peasant may see them.

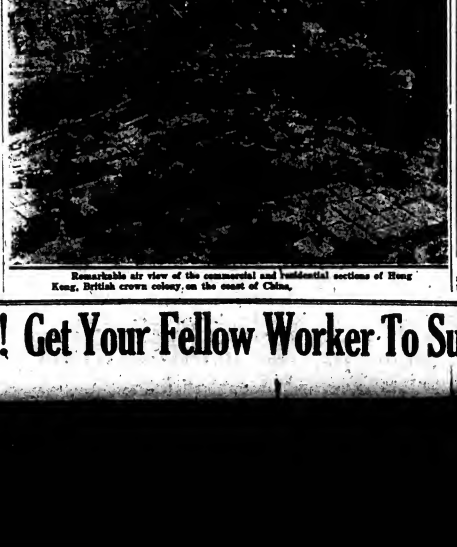
Wages For Artists.



That artists are workers who should receive workers' wages and no more, was another theory of Rivera's. He founded a painters' and sculptors' union in Mexico, which functions as a regular labor union. Rivera himself never asked more than an unskilled worker's wages for his work.

Rivera did not confine himself to painting. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the Communist Party for a number of years, and always a Communist sympathizer.

Modern Technique.



His work, the subjects of which are suggested by titles like: "The Miner," "The Worker and the Peasant," and the "Destruction of the Land," are influenced by modern technique studied in Paris under Picasso and by native Indian motifs.

WHY SHANGHAI IS IMPORTANT

All of China, to a large extent, is dependent upon Shanghai, for it not only is the chief port of China and the eighth largest port in the world, but it collects forty per cent of the Chinese customs. It is the center of large British interests. Its population is estimated at 2,539,000. Above is a photo of the Shanghai Bund (at right) and (in foreground), Nanking Road, scene of recent rioting. Arrow in picture points to a Sikh policeman of the "international city" of Shanghai. Dressed like an English bobby, he is resented by the Chinese. Below is a map of Shanghai, showing both the international city and the French concession.

A BRITISH CONCESSION IN CHINA

Remarkable air view of the commercial and residential sections of Hong Kong, British crown colony, on the coast of China.

Wall Street's Mercenaries in Nicaragua

Photo shows detachment of United States sailors setting up machine gun posts in Managua, Nicaragua. This is the way the United States is carrying "democracy" to Latin-America.

Ku Klux Klan Involved In Killing of New Rich Long Island Chauffeur

WOODMERE, N. Y., Feb. 4.—The hand of the Ku Klux Klan today was dipped into the ever-growing mystery surrounding the murder of Tromas V. Ward, truck driver, who inherited a modest fortune several months ago.

While the finger of suspicion rests on one person, according to District Attorney Edwards, the highest potentates of the Klan on Long Island, it was learned, are being urged to hasten arrest of Ward's slayer before the case is presented to the grand jury.

Mrs. Ward discovered her husband's body, she told police, in the private garage adjoining their home. A .45-calibre automatic lay by his side.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

FORD TAX TRIAL EVIDENCE SHOWS FORD NOT NEEDED

Great Corporations Run By Own Momentum

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Henry Ford, America's first billionaire, with enormous assets and a clear field, occupied as "incomparable position" in the motor industry in 1913 and Ford himself was a "good boy" in 1918 at $10,000 a share, according to testimony adduced today before the board of tax appeals.

Today's principal witness was Pierce C. Ward, an investment banker of Chicago.

Business Runs Itself.

If Henry Ford had dropped out of the business at that time, it would have made little difference in its future history, the expert declared. He stated that its policies were well established by that time, and its control of the situation secure, so that the "gigantic momentum of the business would carry it along." He described it as too "big a business to be affected by one man."

Others Ron Same Way.

Ward cited the cases of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Hill and Harriman railroads and Marshall Field of Chicago as examples of great coroporations built up by outstanding men.

"When the builders dropped out, the corporations continued to progress," Ward declared.

Ford The Richest.

Government counsel sought to compare the Ford situation with that of the General Motors corporation, but Ward insisted that "General Motors is not in as favorable a position now as was Ford in 1913."

"This is without reflection on General Motors," he added. "Ford in 1913 practically dominated the small car field, while today General Motors is faced with a different competitive situation."

General Motors stock was valued at twice its annual earnings in 1913, and about 7 1-2 times the earnings at the present time, he said.

"Ford stock in 1913 was a better buy at ten times the annual earnings than was General Motors at twice the earnings," Ward said.

Virtual Monopoly.

"With a virtual monopoly and little danger of serious competition for some years to come, Ford was in an incomparable position in the motor field," Ward declared.

The government, which claims Ford stock was worth approximately $3,-00 a share in that year, sought to break down Ward's testimony, by forcing him to compare Ford stock with the securities of other motor companies.

Capitalized Profits.

Ward, however, in explaining his valuation made much of ten times the annual earnings of the Ford company, insisted that Ford's position was unique and could not be compared to that of other corporations.

Ward declared that a number of other first class industrial corporations were reorganized in 1913, the valuation being fixed at from 8 1-2 to 11 8-4 times the normal annual earnings.

"However, Ford's position was much stronger than any of these corporations," Ward said.

A conservative valuation of the Ford business in 1913 would be placed at $200,000,000."

Building Contractors Leave Bricks and Tools

A wind storm rattled through the metropolitan district early yesterday imperilling lives and causing considerable damage.

The 60-mile gale elipped off bricks and lumber in buildings under construction, endangering pedestrians and in some cases delaying vehicular traffic.

Bricks, lumber and workmen's tools rained down into the Borough Hall square section of Brooklyn when square section of Brooklyn when scaffolding on the twenty-fifth floor of the half completed Temple court building, Court and Montague streets, was shaken loose by the wind.

It was necessary to rope off the square, delaying trolley car service and handicapping thousands of pedestrians.

About $400,000 Profits In Ford Company Store

Henry Ford made $400,000 from his company stores last year, says a report to the Daily News Record. Annual business was $12,000,000. The Ford stores sell garments, shoes and many other personal goods in his Detroit territory and in the neighborhood of important assembly plants in other cities.

Withdraw the American Naval Forces From Chinese Waters! Recognize the Chinese Nationalist Government!

(Continued from page 1.)

or under Chinese law, but were responsible only to the courts which the powers set up in China.

Together with these foreign courts the imperialist powers forced upon China their own police forces and quartered their marines and military forces in Chinese territory. They established within China concessions or areas on which foreign cities, harboring the imperialist exploiters and their industries, were built within the borders of China, governed by the imperialist powers.

The imperialist exploiters paraded through China as if they were some sort of overlords or gods before whom the Chinese people must cower in abject obedience. Actually they were imperialist robbers, who enforced their exploitation through the ever threatening guns of their war vessels, their private police forces, their marines and their regiments of foreign soldiers.

The Government at Washington has helped to establish and maintain this system of imperialist exploitation, together with the imperialist governments of Great Britain, Japan, France, Germany, before it was stripped of its position in China during the World War, and imperialist Russia of the Czar. While the American government was a late comer in the game of imperialist exploitation of China, and had no concessions of its own in China, it shared in the tariff control and enforced its extra-territoriality treaties. The occasional hesitation in supporting imperialist aggression in China by the other imperialist powers, or even opposition, on the part of the United States, was not inspired by friendship to China, but by a desire to improve its own position as an imperialist exploiter of China.

Chinese Nationalists Challenge Imperialist Rule

It is against this system of imperialist exploitation through which the imperialist powers preyed upon China, that the Chinese Nationalist Government (Canton) is fighting. It is because the Canton government has declared that it will continue its fight until this system, under which the Chinese people have been made the slaves of the imperialists, is wiped out, that the Chinese people have rallied to its support.

The Chinese Nationalist armies have swept forward from victory to victory because they are fighting for the liberation of the Chinese people. The Chinese warlords, usually puppets of and subsidized by one or the other of the imperialist powers, have been unable to halt the nationalist movement.

It is against this Chinese Nationalist Government, now sweeping forward toward Shanghai, the centre of imperialist exploitation in China, that the American government is now sending its warships and hurrying its marines from San Diego, Guam and Manila.

Coolidge and Kellogg pretend to express friendship to the aims of the nationalist movement, in fact, they are following the policy of Great Britain in massing military forces at Shanghai in an effort to coerce and intimidate the Canton Nationalist Government.

Soviet Russia Is the Only Friend of China

If the government of Coolidge really meant the professions in the statement of Secretary of State Kellogg there is an easy way for it to demonstrate its intentions. It should surrender its imperialist privileges in China. It should cease trying to split up China by supporting various warlords. It should recognize the Canton Nationalist Government as the government of China.

The Government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has shown the way. It has declared null and void all unequal treaties with China made by the Czar, such as those through which extra-territoriality and tariff control was established. It has surrendered the right to special concessions, to maintain police and military forces in China. It has returned to China the concessions wrung from it by the imperialist government of the Czar. It has recognized the Canton Nationalist Government.

That is why the Canton Nationalist Government considers the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics its friend.

IF COOLIDGE AND KELLOGG WANT TO PROVE THAT THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT IS SYMPATHETIC TO THE ASPIRATION OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE FOR FREEDOM FROM IMPERIALIST EXPLOITATION LET THEM FOLLOW IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF THE UNION OF SOCIALIST SOVIET REPUBLICS.

But the American government under the direction of Coolidge and Kellogg will do nothing of the kind. The American government represents the American capitalist exploiters of China. It makes statements containing some "fair words," but rushes war vessels and marines to China to protect the property rights and the imperialist exploitation of China by the American capitalists.

Workers and Farmers Must Speak for Chinese Liberation

It is the workers and farmers of the United States, and not the imperialist government of the capitalists, who are the friends of the Chinese people in their struggle against imperialist exploitation.

The workers and farmers of the United States must speak up the cause of the Chinese workers and the peasants who are rising up in the struggle in their interests against the government of Coolidge and Kellogg.

The threats of military coercion against Chinese contained in the sending of American warships and marines to China is but another indication that the policy of fighting for investments and profits of the Wall Street banking bosses, which has already led to the invasion of Nicaragua and threats of war against Mexico is leading this country into a new imperialist war.

The workers and farmers of this country must redouble their struggle against the imperialism of the Washington government, if they are not to be led forth to give their lives in a war for Wall Street investments.

The representatives of a quarter of a million farmer-labor voters in Minnesota, through a state farmer-labor conference, have declared their determination to fight the imperialist policies of the government and demanded the impeachment of Secretary of State Kellogg. The workers and farmers throughout the whole country must follow this example and organize conferences from all workers' and farmers' organizations for the fight against American imperialism.

Hands off China!

Withdraw the American marines from Nicaragua!

No war with Mexico for American oil interests!

Cancel the unequal treaties with China!

Withdraw American naval forces from Chinese waters!

Recognize the Canton nationalist government of China!

Workers and farmers unite for the fight against American imperialism under these slogans!

Central Committee,

Workers (Communist) Party of America

C. E. Ruthenberg, General Secretary.

BOOSTER TOWNS OF SOUTH GROW ON NEGRO BACKS

Segregated Race Lives In Shacks and Toils

(Special to The Daily Worker).

By THURBER LEWIS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 4.—"Colored Waiting Room" is the first sign that hits your eye as you step off the train in this metropolis of the south-land. "Detention Home for Colored Children," greets you as you ride along in a street car that has a special section for Negroes.

I was told that at least half of the city is populated by Negroes. In the environs of Memphis you see mansions that would put many a Gold Coast or Fifth avenue town house in its place. The Negro workers live in shacks that would not be used for live-stock in Iowa.

Wooden Windows.

Windows appear to be a luxury. I saw many a "house" with wooden swing windows that have to be shut to keep out the chill—and the light.

Memphis is rated as a rich and up-and-coming town. No doubt it is. It is a big cotton market as well as a lumber center. It is obviously up-and-coming on the backs of the underpaid and abused Negro worker. And yet white workers' homes that I saw seem to have left much to be desired.

It may seem peculiar for one to write of the south as of a foreign country. Yet that outstanding and ever present fact of a large, enslaved and segregated race that hits you in the face wherever you look makes it impossible to take any other view in correspondence to be read in the north where the fact—though it exists there too—is get so compelling.

Farmers Suffer.

In the country, the Negro, and also the white, cotton farmers are suffering acutely. This year's cotton crop is ruinous. On top of this has come damaging of goods. You see homes" in the country, inhabited by both Negro and white tenants that challenge your credulity—it is impossible to believe that human beings will live in them.

Southern Booster Barge.

Memphis, Atlanta, Birmingham, Dicksburg and New Orleans may all be "booster" burgs with rich mansions and bowling Kiwanese fairly bursting with prosperity—the south may be reflecting the "good times' that is turning the A. F. of L. officials into trustees and bank directors—but a cursory study of southern dwellings for workers will show that the boom has still far to go to make itself felt very markedly by the shacks of workers and farmers south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Pankhurst New Conservative.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Emmaline Pankhurst, who was once at the head of suffragists storming the House of Commons, will seek entry in that body via the ballot box. She has been selected as the conservative candidate for the White Chapel and St. George's division.

Gas Kills Four.

Four men were found dead from gas poisoning in a house at 6593 Hull avenue, Maspeth, Queens, early today. Two of the men lived in the dwelling. The others were their guests.

Chinese Labor Fighting Standard Oil Company Has Its Trade Unions

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

IN the United States the workers "producing" profits for the Rockefellers who dominate the Standard Oil Company are not organized.

It should be interesting to American organized labor to learn that Chinese workers employed by Standard Oil in the Orient do have their trade unions.

* * *

This also recalls again, for instance, that the mighty army of workers in this country toiling for the richest man in the world, Henry Ford, are entirely without organization. Ford's wealth now tops the two-billion mark, according to experts. The pile grows ever more rapidly as Ford coins new methods of robbing the workers on his payroll of the wealth they produce.

* * *

But in little Denmark, where Ford also has a flivver plant, the workers are organized, and recently won a strike against the Ford billions.

* * *

Cabled reports state that recently the Chinese workers employed by the Standard Oil company had a little tilt with Rockefeller's gold. One of their number had been discharged "for dishonesty." That is a charge that usually covers a multitude of sins. No doubt it was the result of loyalty to the principles of Canton and the national revolutionary government rather than adherence to the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso Lin, and his Peking outfit, that created the prejudice against him.

The big point, however, is that the Chinese workers stood loyally by their comrade who was fired. They developed such solidarity as labor has never displayed in the industrial halls of Standard Oil in this country. Thus the New York World reports the result of the struggle as follows:

"The company has signed terms to settle the strike which include a $6 raise for every man, a promise to pay two months' wages and a 'present' of a like amount to every man discharged and an agreement to raise pay semi-annually."

* * *

It is not stated just what the two months' wages were for, probably for the time the workers were engaged in the strike. This is probable since the men discharged are to get a "present" of a like amount. Mexican labor has often enforced a similar demand. Another reason for American armed intervention, of course.

* * *

The significant fact, however, is that the Chinese workers win an agreement to raise wages semi-annually. This shows that Chinese labor feels it has been in the depths of exploitation and is coming up, while wage cuts are being put over on America's unorganized workers, or, as in the case of the United Mine Workers of America, the coal diggers are now being asked to continue working for the same wages under the Jacksonville Agreement of 1923.

* * *

The best comparison of the spirit of organized labor in the two countries, the United States and China, is shown in the enumeration of the Associated newspaper correspondent as follows:

"Cables from China to American newspapers concerning strikes and various crises brought about by the demands of unions must seem almost unintelligible to American readers because the United States has long had a first-hand acquaintance with strikers and with unions and has found that, as a rule, they are not so terrible.

"But in China the temper of the unions, the manner of conducting strikes, and the ruthless manner in which the Chinese equivalent to sabotage is carried out are far different from anything ever known in the United States".

* * *

Then follows, of course, a long recital of the woes of exploiters in China, the "outrageous demands" of the farm workers, increases demanded by other workers, reports of which spread inland and cause labor elsewhere to make similar demands, and then the victory of the Amoy silk workers, that resulted in numerous concessions, including two months' full pay while sick. It is claimed that this will increase the price of silk for American consumers, which will no doubt cause all silk-wearing parasites in the United States to make a grand rush for the recruiting stations, to enlist for military service in the Orient, for the holy war to keep wages down for the Chinese.

* * *

American workers and farmers, when fully informed of the struggle of Chinese labor, must come to the conclusion that their stand is with the rising working class of the Orient. They will enlist for the war against the imperialist war that looms bigger and bigger every day against labor in the Far East. And the silk-wearing parasites are left to fight their own imperialist war, then it can already be safely predicted that victory will rest comfortably on the standards of the Chinese revolution.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Phillips, First Canadian Envoy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The appointment of William Phillips, now assistant secretary of state, as the first diplomatic envoy to Canada, was officially announced today by the state department.

Ships Ashore, Endanger Crews

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Feb. 4. Two coal steamers, Norfolk to Boston were aground today along the shores of Vineyard Sound.

The steamer Selwyn Eddy, with 36 men aboard, was pounding on the shoals of Tarpaulin Cove, Naushon Island.

Model Killed, Says Sister.

Mrs. Charles W. Schwefel of 210-19 107th street, Queens Village, sister of Marion Hunt, beautiful cloak model, who was found dead from a bullet wound early Friday morning outside Mrs. Schwefel's home, declared today that she believes her sister was murdered.

Catch $2,000,000 Rum Runners

Motions by defense attorneys to dismiss the indictments against three of the men charged in the conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in connection with the landing of a $2,-000,000 rum cargo from the steamship Ebenezer, N. J., were denied today by Federal Judge Isaac N. Meekings.

Injured in Train Wreck.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 4.—A broken arm was the worst injury today in the wreck of the Detroit to Chicago flyer of the Wabash Railroad, in which two pullman cars left the rails and overturned throwing passengers into panic. The wreck occurred three miles east of Uyatt, Indiana.

Finance Board Lifts Price.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The War Finance Corporation announced today that it had instructed the federal reserve bank in New York to raise the price, on Feb. 16, of the unsold balance of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, rapid transit securities 6 per cent gold bonds owned by the corporation, to par, plus accrued interest and less a commission of one quarter of 1 per cent of par value to be allowed to bankers and other recognized bond dealers and brokers.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

OPORTO GARRISON DEMANDS RETURN TO CONSTITUTION

State Rail Employes Out on Strike

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 4. — Although rumors prevail that the garrison of Oporto the commercial center of the country, has surrendered and that its mutiny and attempted revolution is at an end, there is as yet no confirmation. At four o'clock the government stated that previous reports of the end of the revolt were inaccurate, but that loyalist troops surrounded the city, and that negotiations for surrender were going on.

Strike Starts.

Meanwhile, taking advantage of the situation, the state railway employes have struck, and the government is trying to conduct an emergency truck service, using army truck drivers. Troops also guard the tracks.

All Portugal is under martial law. There has been a little fighting and a few casualties.

The rebellious garrison at Oporto, is now revealed, telegraphed the government, demanding that it resign and return the country to a constitutional administration.

Idaho Solons Plan Bill To More Exploit Prison Labor on County Roads

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 4.—Further exploitation of prison labor will be sanctioned if the state of Idaho if a bill introduced in the house of representatives of the state legislature here today is eventually passed. The bill permits county commissioners to hire county prisoners for labor other than public works on the highways, school, good roads, and irrigation districts and municipals. Proceeds from this labor are divided 25 per cent to single prisoners and 75 per cent to the families of married prisoners. Balance reverts to "the general county fund."

Alien Registration Comes Up in House; Called "Voluntary"

Provisions for a system of voluntary registration by aliens who desire to become citizens of the United States would be made in a bill just introduced in the house by Representative Hudson, Rep., of Illinois.

Under the terms of the bill, the department would furnish application blanks, which would contain information relative to the history of the applicant, when filled out by the alien, and that any alien who has been in the United States for a period of five years preceding registration, shall be subject to deportation.

Tourist Club "The Friend of Nature".

Sunday, February 6th, we hike to Long Beach. This is the time of the year when it is very interesting along the coast. Stormy seas with thousands of sea gulls flying about combine to make this a hike that is far above the ordinary. Sand dunes and driftwood bear evidence of the herculean power of the sea. We hope many grasp the opportunity to spend a pleasant day away from the city. Meeting place. Municipal Building (downstairs at entrance to trains); time, 8 a. m.; those living in Brooklyn, Long Island R. R. Jamaica Station waiting room; 9 a. m.; walking time, 3 hours. Fare, $1.00; leader, Will Beck. Non-members are always welcome provided they are nature-loving proletarians.

Ten Cent Fare in Syracuse.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Trolley fares in Syracuse will be increased to Feb. 10 from 7 to 10 cents, under a ruling made today by the public service commission.

Read the

'BOLSHEVIK'

A drama written on the American style

by

Leon Hausman

Author and Playwright

One Dollar and Ten Cents sent to

LEON HAUSMAN

"BOLSHEVIK"

POST OFFICE BOX 187

ELIZABETH, NEW JERSEY

secures a copy of

"BOLSHEVIK"

in English for the present.

Translations may be had at a later date.

Carmi Thompson Plan In Philippine Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Control of the Philippines and other insular possessions of the United States would be removed from the war and navy departments and placed in the hands of a civilian bureau under terms of a bill introduced today by Senator Willis (R) of Ohio.

This plan was recommended by Col. Carmi A. Thompson in his report to President Coolidge on conditions in the Philippines.

French Have New Seaplane

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Another means by which capitalist lackeys can exterminate each other has been added to the French navy, a seaplane, the smallest in the world, capable of being taken apart and packed aboard a submarine, was delivered today. At a convenient point, the submarine can arise to the surface, and in nine seconds the plane can be assembled. Many dozens are to be constructed, since one is to form part of the equipment of every submarine in the French fleet.

The Manager's Corner

COMMENT

The editors and the management of The Daily Worker are engaged in a serious effort to improve the paper. The recent features which have been added to the paper have been a step in that direction. However we cannot hope to make any real progress in our task without the full cooperation of our readers.

In going the rounds among comrades, in an attempt to secure their opinions on the character of the paper, I have had some interesting experiences. In reply to my question, "What do you think of the paper?" one comrade asked me in turn, "Do you want me to be frank?" Of course we want frankness, even brutal frankness. Don't be afraid to hurt our feelings. We want the truth.

On another occasion at a conference of labor organizations, a delegate asked the following question, "You ask us to support The Daily Worker. But we want to know our rights and our duties toward the paper." This question was aptly answered by another delegate, who pointed out that at a conference called for the Volkszeitung, those in charge had stated that those present had no right to discuss anything about the paper's policy, but must limit themselves solely to the question of the financial support of the paper. The Daily Worker does not maintain this policy.

We believe that we have a definite responsibility to those who read our paper and to those who support it even in the smallest way. We welcome and respect the criticisms and suggestions of all those who are interested in the progress of The Daily Worker. In fact we cannot get along without them. We, therefore, urge our readers to send in their comments on The Daily Worker. Let us know what you think of it, especially in its news form.—BERT MILLER.

Dance and Ball HARLEM CASINO, 116TH STREET AND LENOX AVENUE February 19th

Tickets in advance 50 cents, at the door 75 cents.

Arranged by the YOUNG WORKERS' LEAGUE, 108 East 14th Street.

SIGMAN SAYS DRESSMAKERS TO REJECT CONTRACT

Sigman Simply Sold Out Everything He Could

S. C. Sigman, manager of the dress division of the Joint Board of Cloak and Dressmakers' Union, characterized the new two-year agreement made with the Association of Dress Manufacturers by the International, as a "complete sell out."

"The employers boldly state that the union is so weakened by internal dissensions that the contractors were able to gain a majority of their points while the union gained none," Sigman said. "For the first time in the history of the association, it has won, such concessions from the union as practically wipe out conditions of work for which the dressmakers have fought for years.

"President Morris Sigman, who seized control of the dressmakers' local 22," with the false statement that its leadership intended to call a strike in the industry, has succeeded in affecting a complete sell out to the employers.

"The union did not win one demand, while the employers carried eleven of their demands, wiping out the minimum guarantee, the labor bureau, the guaranteed price schedule for piece workers, lengthening the trial period from one week to two weeks, modifying the discharge clause so that the workers will receive no remuneration if unfairly discharged, admitting firms to the association in spite of any difficulties with the union, and making other concessions.

Dares Not Publish.

"Realizing the defeat for the workers that he has brought about, Sigman did not dare to present the agreement to his meeting of shop chairmen on last Wednesday, although it now appears that it was signed at that time. He well knows that the dressmakers will be in revolt against such an agreement, and will refuse to accept its provisions.

"The full extent of the disaster is not known as yet. It has been customary for the International to arrange 'secondary' agreements, in which still further concessions were secretly granted to the employers, In the past. Such a secondary agreement has doubtless taken care of the few remaining demands of the employers that have not been granted openly by Sigman."

Life in Prison For Lads.

CHICAGO.—Found guilty of manslaughter by a jury late today, the nine boys tried for the murder of Stanley Ciesla are to be sentenced to imprisonment from one year to life. The youngest of the nine is 16, the oldest 19.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE DAILY WORKER SHOPMEN IN CHICAGO.

Brothers: Enclosed find check for $10.00 to help you raise the full amount for the shop paper, THE DAILY WORKER, and I think the Arbitration committee, Joint Board refused me that privilege to be heard on the matter, but I am sure that the meeting will be held on Wednesday, February 9th, at 1402 Wilmot Street, Room 1, Chicago. When we organized in New York on January 22nd we were greeted by about 1000 workers and the huge enthusiasm of those present showed us that we had struck a responsive chord. We are convinced that at the meeting you are planning there will be another demonstration of loyalty and devotion for the only paper in the English language which is fighting in the interests of the workers throughout the country. The success of the Daily Worker depends, upon the number and value of the articles sent in, which will be issued into book form by the Proletkult. The enlistment of a vast army of canvassers to solicit articles to be sold at the bazaar is therefore the first step toward making the bazaar an award success. Good luck to you. You are making a good start and your efforts will surely be crowned with success.—BERT MILLER, Business Manager.

Negro Lynched by Texas Mob; Police Use Little Effort Seeking Culprits

WILLIS, Texas, Feb. 4. — Police made no arrests today for the brutal lynching of Tom Payne, 28, a Negro, who was taken from two officers by an unmasked mob of white men near Willis yesterday night and hanged to a roadside tree.

Payne, a saw-mill worker, had been arrested and charged with assault in connection with an assault on Jack Rogers, a white saw-mill worker, who was slashed by an unknown person on Monday night. Rogers is in the hospital here, and will recover.

Fearing mob violence, his Negro was being taken by two officers to Huntsville for safekeeping when they were surrounded by a mob on the road and disarmed. Little effort is being made to bring the members of the lynching party to justice.

Bill to Make Governor General Wood Entirely Boss Over Legislature

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—Secretary of War Davis today requested the House Insular Affairs Committee to approve a bill freeing Governor-General Wood from the financial restrictions of the Philippine legislature.

He urged passage of a bill taking control of customs revenues upon American imports from the legislature.

An increase in the Governor-General's salary from $14,000 to $25,000 also was requested.

Nations League Opens Again.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — The League of Nations Preparatory Disarmament Conference will be resumed in Geneva on March 21, the state department announced today.

Hugh Gibson, American minister to Switzerland, will represent the United States, but additional delegates may be sent later.

NEW YORK LABOR RALLIES TO AID BOX STRIKERS

Central Trades Council Head Praises Union

The militancy of the Paper box makers' union in maintaining their solid picket line is winning for them the tremendous support of all organized labor in this city.

Yesterday, in their regular meeting at the Church of all Nations, the union had as speaker John P. Coughlin secretary of the central trades and labor council, who stated that he was addressing them in his official capacity as secretary of the body, and that his purposes in speaking to them was to give assurance, that the council has decided to give its entire support to the strikers. He said: "We will either win as a union, or let the bosses starve as open shoppers".

No Slave Driving Allowed.

Coughlin continued. "Never before in recent history has any such slave driving been permitted to exist. It shall not exist now. The very fact that the bosses refuse to negotiate proves conclusively that they have no justification for their action."

Police protection, which has, up till now been so generously furnished to them by the city authorities, will have to stop, Coughlin stated, and assured his hearers that the council will know how to stop it. Yesterday's mass demonstration was not interfered with.

Must Have Union.

Coughlin praised the union for sticking to its demands, "If the employers are arrogant enough to tell respectable civic and labor institutions to go to hell," he added, "what would hapless workers without a union have to expect from them"?

The council has sent communications to all labor organizations in this city, and has requested them to give active and financial support to the striking workers. It has invited the representatives of the union to come to last night's meeting at the councils' headquarters, and to take a collection for strikers fund.

They Won't Quit.

The heroic struggle has now gone on for 18 weeks. At yesterday's meeting the strikers voted, "That unless the employers agree to recognize the union and deal collectively with the union, the strike will continue indefinitely."

The public will have a chance to render vital assistance to the 2,000 strikers at the concert and ball which is being arranged at the Webster Casino, 167th St. and Park Ave. Tickets are 50 cents each and can be secured either at the Unions' quarters 701 Broadway, or at the offices of the Emergency Committee for Strikers relief, 799 Broadway.

Browning Arrested.

Edward West Browning was arrested in his office late this afternoon in a civil action brought by Arthur T. Axtford, a newspaperman, who had sued Browning alleging slander.

Browning was taken before a Magistrate and after a brief hearing was released in $10,000 bail.

A BOOK FOR THE IRISH WORKER

"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916."—Introduction by P. J. O'Flaherty.—By G. Schuller.

Price 15 cents.

Jim Connolly was the military leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing through one of the most serious crises that it had encountered during the world war. Connolly, the international Marxist, lined his small army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly is one of the first revolutionists the international socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist question in the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Socialist in the full sense of the term. This little pamphlet by Schuller is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this period. It was first published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be distributed in large quantities among the Irish workers in the United States. Connolly is a magic name to every Irish worker who has a spark of the divine fire of revolt in his system. It can also be read with interest by every radical worker who wants to soak up as the strategy and tactics of revolution. Connolly, schooler declares that Connolly was a Socialist. He was. He led before a British squad in 1916, one year before the Russian workers and peasants hurled the Czar and Czarism and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.

WORKERS DECIDE TEXTILE STRIKE YET UNSETTLED

Forstmann - Huffman Mills Hold Out

PASSAIC, Feb. 4.—For the second time in two days the striking workers of the Forstmann & Huffmann company refused to accept the letter of Julius Forstmann to Judge Cahall and Monsigeny Keenan as a basis for settlement of their strike when last night at Textile Hall in a secret ballot, they again declared themselves unwilling to call off the strike on the strength of that letter, and voted to prosecute the strike with renewed vigor.

A meeting the previous night in which a vote was taken by hands had shown a majority of those who voted as against calling off the strike, but as most of those present had refrained from voting, James A. Starr, international vice-president of the United Textile Workers, had invoked the constitution of that organization to order a secret ballot.

Letter Concedes Little.

The Forstmann letter, while putting the company on record as dispensing with the silly fiction that there was no strike in the F. & H. mills, does not concede recognition of the right of the workers to organize in a union of their own choice or to do collective bargaining. It merely declares that the company had never and does not now object to membership of its employes in outside organizations "whether religious, social or otherwise," while on the question of no discrimination the letter was even more vague, Mr. Forstmann simply saying he would re-employ his old workers as business permitted and according to individual fitness.

Letter Only Basis.

At a meeting two weeks ago, at which the Forstmann letter was first presented to the strikers, it was unanimously decided to accept it only as a basis for further negotiations and to that effect President McMahon and Vice-president Starr were requested to continue their efforts for full recognition of the union. At this meeting the local leaders had advised this course, and the strikers had accepted their advice. Tuesday night, however, the strikers were called together to receive the report of Vice-president Starr that further efforts at negotiations had been unsuccessful. "We have done everything we could to get a better settlement," Starr reported. "but I am sorry to say we have failed."

Relief Situation Critical.

In view of the critical relief situation, the stores being almost empty and money coming in but slowly, the strikers were advised by both their local leaders and Vice-president Starr of the U. T. W. to call off the strike and try to build a union on the meagre concessions made by Forstmann. The attitude of the workers, however, was that they would "starve rather than surrender," and, as one man epitomized it for the others they "would go to work in hell if there's a union there, but would not go to work in heaven without a union." The company union fostered by the F. & H. came in for hot attacks from the floor, the general sentiment being that company unionism in Passaic should be fought to a finish.

Still Vote To Strike.

The meeting last night was called to order by Gustave Deak, President of Local 1603, U. T. W., who briefly explained the method of taking the vote. The strikers were then addressed by Vice-president Starr, Chief Organizer Francesco Coco, Ben Lawinski, Polish organizer, Emil Gardos, Hungarian organizer, and Alfred Wagenknecht, relief chairman, all urging acceptance of the resolution calling off the strike and calling upon the A. F. of L. and the U. T. W. officials to help the workers build a union in the F. & H. plants by holding Forstmann to his word of no discrimination. The floor was then thrown open for questions and discussions and an impassioned plea in support of the resolution was made from the floor by Ellen Dawson, financial secretar of Local 1603, U. T. W. and herself a Forstmann-Huffmann strikers. Most of the rank and file, however, spoke against calling off the strike, expressing their determination, after nearly a year of strike (the Forstmann-Huffmann workers came out one month after the Botany), to continue the struggle with renewed vigor and unflagging zeal, and when it was finally put to the vote it was voted down three to one.

The result was that Vice-president Starr, the organizers and the relief chairman all renewed their pledges of support until the strikers can secure a more satisfactory settlement.

West Philadelphia International Branch 3. A.

WELCOMES

the only LENINIST daily paper in America,

The DAILY WORKER

of New York,

where it can just serve the interests of the workers.

CENTRAL TRADES ATTACK THE USE OF INJUNCTIONS

State and City Labor Leaders Ask New Law

Injunctions took precedence over conventions of the Central Trades and Labor Council meeting last night, and the question of meeting the right wing delegates from the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union were postponed for two weeks until the next regular meeting on February 17. The matter will be taken up at the executive committee's meeting on the 16th, and that body's finding will be handed to the delegates on the 17th.

Joint Labor Meeting.

Last night's meeting was a Joint Meeting of the New York Central Trades and Labor Council, and the New York State Federation of Labor for the discussion of the problem of injunctions. John Milholland, vice-president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, was in the chair; and the speakers on the subject of the evening included John Sullivan, state president of the A. F. of L., Assemblyman Frederick Hackenberg; John O'Hanlon, secretary of the state federation; and William Collins a federation organizer.

Chairman Milholland opened the discussion by stating that he had at one time had confidence in courts, but now he has his doubts about some judges. It was largely their use of injunctions in labor cases which has caused him these misgivings.

President Sullivan of the state federation spoke briefly on the evils of injunctions, and was followed by J. O'Hamlin, who announced that this meeting was only one of many similar ones being held throughout the state, and marked the opening of a campaign to restrict the power of judges to use the injunction against workers merely trying to protect the standards of living for their families. "You cannot prevent judges from granting injunctions," said the speaker, "but you can prescribe on what occasions they are not to be used."

Assemblyman Hackenberg spoke in explanation of his bill, and told of attempts to give it a non-partisan character. "It may be," said Hackenberg, "that the republican chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee will introduce it in the senate." Hackenberg is a democrat.

Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the New York State Federation of Labor, referred to the injunction that was issued against the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, restraining them and their associates from organizing the traction workers of New York. "This has prevented the organizers of that union and myself from unionizing those workers," continued Frayne.

READ

Imperialism—The Last Stage of Capitalism

By N. Lenin

Price, 60c in paper, $1.00 Cloth-bound.

An indispensable book for the understanding of the most recent events in Latin America, China, and the colonial countries now in the throes of revolt against international imperialism. This excellent work treats the following topics: Concentration of Production and Monopoly; The Banks and Their New Role; Finance Capital and Financial Oligarchy; The Export of Capital; The Division of the World Among Capitalist Groups; The Division of the World Among the Great Powers; Imperialism as a Special Stage of Capitalism; Parasitism and the Decay of Capitalism; The Critique of Imperialism; The Place of Imperialism in History.

181 pages published by the Communist Party of Great Britain.

For Your Lenin Library:

LENIN AS A MARXIST

By N. Bukharin

The Present Chairman of the Communist International.

This splendid analysis of Lenin and his place in the field of Marxism is written by N. Bukharin, who is considered one of the leading living Marxists of the present day. The book is not a mere personal tribute to Lenin (the Outpost "Workers" Union even postponed for two weeks until the next regular meeting on February 17. The matter will be taken up at the executive's Council's meeting on the 16th, and that body's finding will be handed to the delegates on the 17th.

Joint Labor Meeting.

Last night's meeting was a Joint Meeting of the New York Central Trades and Labor Council, and the New York State Federation of Labor for the discussion of the problem of injunctions. John Milholland, vice-president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, was in the chair; and the speakers on the subject of the evening included John Sullivan, state president of the A. F. of L., Assemblyman Frederick Hackenberg; John O'Hanlon, secretary of the state federation; and William Collins a federation organizer.

Chairman Milholland opened the discussion by stating that he had at one time had confidence in courts, but now he has his doubts about some judges. It was largely their use of injunctions in labor cases which has caused him these misgivings.

President Sullivan of the state federation spoke briefly on the evils of injunctions, and was followed by J. O'Hamlin, who announced that this meeting was only one of many similar ones being held throughout the state, and marked the opening of a campaign to restrict the power of judges to use the injunction against workers merely trying to protect the standards of living for their families. "You cannot prevent judges from granting injunctions," said the speaker, "but you can prescribe on what occasions they are not to be used."

Assemblyman Hackenberg spoke in explanation of his bill, and told of attempts to give it a non-partisan character. "It may be," said Hackenberg, "that the republican chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee will introduce it in the senate." Hackenberg is a democrat.

Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the New York State Federation of Labor, referred to the injunction that was issued against the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, restraining them and their associates from organizing the traction workers of New York. "This has prevented the organizers of that union and myself from unionizing those workers," continued Frayne.

READ

Imperialism—The Last Stage of Capitalism

By N. Lenin

Price, 60c in paper, $1.00 Cloth-bound.

An indispensable book for the understanding of the most recent events in Latin America, China, and the colonial countries now in the throes of revolt against international imperialism. This excellent work treats the following topics: Concentration of Production and Monopoly; The Banks and Their New Role; Finance Capital and Financial Oligarchy; The Export of Capital; The Division of the World Among Capitalist Groups; The Division of the World Among the Great Powers; Imperialism as a Special Stage of Capitalism; Parasitism and the Decay of Capitalism; The Critique of Imperialism; The Place of Imperialism in History.

181 pages published by the Communist Party of Great Britain.

For Your Lenin Library:

LENIN AS A MARXIST

By N. Bukharin

The Present Chairman of the Communist International.

This splendid analysis of Lenin and his place in the field of Marxism is written by N. Bukharin, who is considered one of the leading living Marxists of the present day. The book is not a mere personal tribute to Lenin (the Outpost "Workers" Union even

Performance and Dance

Given by the

Russian Workers' Mutual Aid Society of Chicago

Sunday, February 6, 1927,

at Webb Hall, 1044-56 Noble St., Cor. Milwaukee.

"The Way to Happiness"

A new play in four acts, just received from the U. S. S. R., will be presented under the leadership of the well known Russian actress A. Pogodina. Dancing after the play. Refreshments will be served. Admission 50 cents. Come and see the Soviet's Cultural Work.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium

Feb. 25th

" 26"

" 27"

ASHLAND AVE. AND VAN BUREN

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT.

30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters; 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

PREPARE! TO BE CHALLENGED.

The Russian Bolsheviks have invented a scheme whereby they have developed a real mass movement behind their paper. This has been done by means of challenge cards circulated throughout the country to tell what they have done for their paper. Each of the comrades challenged, when he sends in his subscriptions, has the right in turn to challenge five other comrades. The same rule applies to these comrades when they turn in their subscriptions. We are planning to begin with a challenge to 100 comrades. You may be the one first challenged. Prepare now. The names of all comrades challenged will be published, and the number of subscriptions obtained. Be ready.

In addition there are the valuable prizes which are being offered in connection with the campaign.

Join the Ranks

of the

Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 22 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the workers of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual subs (or $30.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $5.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $300.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Groper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bales, F. Jerger, F.-G. Vose O. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly (Communist), Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

They should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowance are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language papers should push for The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 Celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions. Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions

QUOTAS

District 1	Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island, $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 2.	New York City and vicinity, part of New Jersey 10,000 readers.
District 3.	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Western New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D. C. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 4	Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Pa., and the Western part of New York State. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 5.	Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 6.	Cleveland and the State of Ohio $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 7.	Detroit, the State of Michigan and Eastern Indiana. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 8.	Chicago, and Illinois, Lower Wisconsin, Missouri, and Lake County, Ind. $3,000 worth of subscriptions or 500 annual subscriptions.
District 9.	Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan (Upper peninsula), Minnesota. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 10.	South Dakota, North Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa. $900 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 11.	Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming. $750 worth of subscriptions or 48 annual subscriptions.
District 12	Oregon and Washington. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 13.	California. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 14.	New Mexico, Arizona, Texas. $150 worth of subscriptions or 25 annual subscriptions.
District 15.	Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. $450 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.

District Agents should set quotas for the various cities on the basis of the number of party members, Daily Worker subscribers and sympathizers.

DAILY WORKER

26 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO
Daily except Sunday
at 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1850

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $4.00 per year; $2.50 six months; $1.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Injunctions for All Occasions.

A hailstorm of injunctions is sweeping over New York labor these days. Every day brings some new injunction. The capitalist politicians are not only granting injunctions to prevent striking and picketing but in the case of the traction workers the injunction restrains them from organizing new men. In the case of a painter's union, an injunction restrains the union from exercising authority over their own members and preventing the union from expelling scabs.

In Local No. 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the local membership has been restrained from exercising its right to try to remove from office those guilty of graft and corruption, after a previous injunction tied the hands of the international office from trying these officers on the grounds that the local membership had the right of trial.

The injunction has become a noose around the neck of labor, that is strangling union organization and seeking to snuff out the life of trade unionism. By the clever procedure of issuing injunctions first and arguing them afterwards, the enemies of labor realize the aim of demoralizing the workers. In many instances the injunction achieves its purpose even before being finally decided by the courts.

There is only one method of dealing with injunctions. This holds true for injunctions against striking, picketing or organizing or injunctions that hamper the honest elements in the unions in dealing with their misleaders. That method is to ignore them and proceed with business. Hesitation and vacillation serve the enemies of labor. Any other method means to help the open shop employers or the scabs and thieves within the union that obtain injunctions preventing the rank and file from taking action against them. The A. F. of L. at its Atlantic City convention issued the slogan of "Defy the Injunctions". This is the slogan for the traction workers. It is the slogan for the honest elements in Local No. 3 of the I. B. E. W. in their dispute with their corrupt leaders. Any other course will lead to demoralization and will serve the ends of the grafters and open shoppers.

A law to prevent the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes must be unequivocally a demand for prohibition of the injunctions. They are unconstitutional. They deny the right of trial by jury. Labor is powerful enough if it exercises its strength to put such a law on the statute books. It can be done if the full strength of Labor politically is mobilized for this purpose. The old-time politicians will not grant such a law. Labor's own men representing a Labor Party could make the proper fight against this judicial octopus that is crushing out the life of organized Labor. A Labor Party is what is needed just now.

Saving Kellogg's Carcass

By a vote of eight to five the senate committee on foreign relations rejected a resolution offered by Senator Norris calling for an investigation of Secretary of State Kellogg's conspiracy with the Associated Press in circulating a story to the effect that the Mexican government was attempting to organize a Communist confederation in Latin America to the detriment of the interests of the United States.

Kellogg knew that he was lying when he pulled off this frame-up. He knew that Calles is not a Communist or anything like it, but a representative of the rising bourgeoisie of Mexico, basing his administration on that element and on the trade union movement headed by Luis Morones, his minister of labor, commerce and industry.

But Kellogg needed an excuse for his bullying of Mexico in the interests of the Doheny-Sinclair-Standard Oil-Mellon oil interests, the copper barons and the big American landowners like William Randolph Hearst. Thru the assistant secretary of state, Mr. Olds, Kellogg invited representatives of three news distributing agencies to the state department and asked them to co-operate in spreading this faked news, without incriminating the state department. Only the Associated Press agreed to this proposal.

A reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch exposed the plot and Kellogg was in hot water. The move to investigate this manufacturer of lies was the result.

Senator Willis of Ohio as much as admitted that Kellogg lied but voted against the resolution on the ground that a finding unfavorable to Coolidge would damage his prestige and weaken the state department at this moment while the Chinese, Nicaraguan and Mexican questions remain unsettled.

Here is a splendid example of the limits to which our lying statesmen will go in order to justify their conduct. Here is another reason why a worker should be as willing to believe the tale of an exposed confidence man as the word of a capitalist politician.

Hugh Frayne, the General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor in New York, declared at the Central Trades and Labor Council meeting that the injunction against the traction workers "has prevented the organizers of that union and himself from organizing these workers. We have to obey these injunctions," he continued, "whether they are just or not. In this way the spirit of the workers is broken."

Mr. Frayne calls himself a 100-per cent A. F. of L. man. Yet the A. F. of L. declared, at its conventions, that the way to beat these injunctions is to defy them and in that way prevent the "spirit of the workers from being broken." The striking cloakmakers did it and nullified the injunction. The courts dare not even mention that their injunction was broken. This is the way to deal with injunctions.

First Signs of a Decline in Industry

By I. AMTER
General Secretary, Workers (Communist) Party of America.

THE end of the year 1926 was the signal for the setting loose of a chorus of hallelujahs of joy over a great height which production and prosperity had reached in this country during that year. Bankers, brokers, manufacturers, politicians joined in the chorus and expatiated on the impregnable position which American industry had gained. Even William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, added his voice to the general cry of "all is well."

With these excited cries over the great profits which were rolling into the coffers of the exploiting class went predictions that 1927 would equally be prosperous and profitable as had been the year 1926. While here and there a note of caution was expressed about the coming year, the chorus of prosperity chasers were in record upon the estimate that 1927 would be another boom year for the exploiters of labor.

Some figures have just become available which throw light on the question of the present tendency of industry in this country. These figures represent a wet blanket upon the optimism of the prosperity shouters. They show that a distinct downward tendency has made itself felt in industry and that in place of the pace of 1926 being maintained, or even a greater height in production being reached, that a tapering off of production and employment has begun.

The first of these figures are those gathered by the Department of Labor in regard to employment in the manufacturing industry. The department received reports from 10,117 establishments in 54 industries for December. It makes its comparison with employment in these industries in 1923, which is indicated by the index figures 100. In November, 1926, this index of employment stood at 91.4 and in December it had decreased to 90.9 (Compared with December, 1925, with December, 1926, we get the index figure of 92.6 for the first and that we have seen anywhere. I will furnish the address on the slightest provocation.

Continued from Page 1

* * *

A great outrage has been committed here in New York on an honorable citizen who was on the way to becoming a second Henry Ford when the minions of the law swooped down on him. His name is Harold D. Deutsch and if you will pardon the pun, he is "in Dutch" up to his pocketbook. Deutsch had succeeded in collecting $1,500,000 notes for security chattel mortgages on non-existent automobiles. My proposition is that all the little business men who gave him their money in the hope that they would make quick profits should be canned and Mr. Deutsch permitted to breathe the ozone again. A top notch confidence man is always preferable to the little gambler who expects to make ten dollars grow out of one at somebody else's expense.

* * *

A Chicago bootlegger shot and killed his fiance after spending $50,000 on her. He could have saved money by a little foresight. This particular bootlegger is a former waiter. While trying to make an honest living he didn't get any nearer to his goal than a few paltry dollars a week. He made $75,000 in nine months dealing in intoxicating beverages. It must be tough even on a bootlegger to be told by a girl on whom he has spent $50,000, that he cannot see him home. This world is mostly all ingratitude. However, the survivor of the shooting affray is not worrying. Who ever heard of a rich bootlegger getting convicted in Chicago? he asks. Alright, but who ever heard of a man with only $25,000 left, having a nickel after the lawyers get thru saving him from the gallows?

* * *

THE Daily News, New York tabloid sheet, with a reported circulation of one million and a half, is out for censorship of the press. The Peaches-Browning case got its dander up. It is true that the Daily News started out to serve up the filth with all the most intimate trimmings that experts in sexual histories could present in word and in pictures. But it could not stand the competition of the bawdy rags published by William Randolph Hearst, our leading jingo, and Barnarr MacFadden, our leading foe of flesh meat. Now the Daily News howls for a censorship in conjunction with the New York World and other virtuous sheets that could see their circulation dropping to zero under the impact of a few more Peaches-Browning trials.

* * *

THE Daily News believes in publishing the details of criminal trials. But it draws the line somewhere. Here is an excerpt from an editorial in the News of Feb. 3: "We believe it was proper to publish full details of the Hall-Mills case. That was a case of what might be called NICE CLEAN CRIME." (cops curse—T. J. O'F.). Here's for nicer and cleaner crimes! The Rev. Hall was killed in a shady lane while holding a clandestine meeting with his chorister.

* * *

IT seems that almost everybody else in New Jersey was there, too. The papers must have respectable crimes to fill their pages with. But criminals must not go too far. They must consider the susceptibilities of the press. If they want publicity in the future they must avoid the pitfalls of scandal. It looks bad for King Benjamin of the House of David whose trial is approaching. He is liable to be shoved in with the used-furniture advertisements. "Daddy" Browning was a wise guesser after all. He got under the tape just in time.

* * *

THE William J. Burns detective agency evidently believes in "secret covenants openly arrived at." A few days ago we commented on a speech delivered by the master fink and perjurer, before an aggregation of rotarians. He spoke on crime and criminals, and blamed Karl Marx and Lenin for both. Another one of his hirelings picked on a Kiwanian club, and spewed a similar speech on them. The understudy, however, accomplished the impossible. He proved himself to be a bigger sap than Burns. He declared that he was in possession of information to the effect that a group of revolutionaries were now plotting in Brooklyn, to bring about a revolution in Venezuela. Just since the Burns agency was investigating the conspiracy, he wished to keep the matter a secret. Then he had the "secret" published in the New York Times.

The stockpigeon also declared that

CURRENT EVENTS

THE JACKASS ON A SPREE

This picture represents the battle in the ranks of the democratic party between the wet Wall street forces led by Al. Smith and the dry, K. K. K. elements whose standard bearer is William Gibbs McAdoo. It looks like another attempt at political suicide on the part of the donkey.

A NEW NOVEL
Upton Sinclair

III

Back in Paris, and there were long letters from Verne; the government had filed suit for the return of its oil lands, and the Sunnyside tract was in the hands of a receiver, and all the development stopped. But they were not to worry—their organization would be put to work on the various foreign concessions, and as for the money, what they were getting out of Paradise would keep them in old age.

Strange to say, Dad worried scarcely at all. Mrs. Olivier had discovered a new medium, even more wonderful than the others, and this Polish woman, with bad teeth and epilepsy had brought up from the depths of the universal consciousness the spirit of Dad's grandfather, who had crossed the continent in a covered wagon and perished in the Mohave desert; also there was the spirit of an Indian chief whom the old pioneer had killed during the journey. Most fascinating to listen while the two warriors told about this early war between the reds and the whites!

Bertie was furious, of course; she didn't care say much to Dad, for the old man was still the boss, and would tell her "where to get off." She took it out on Bunny, storming at him, because he was the one who might have evade Dad from this dangerous vamp. Bunny couldn't help laughing, because Mrs. Olivier was so far from the type which the Hollywood directors had taught him to recognize; a stoutish, elderly lady, sweet and sentimental, with a soft, caressing voice—it was too funny to listen to her coo to the fierce and surly Indian chief. "Now, Red Wolf in the Rain, are you going to tell us to us this evening? We are so glad to hear you again! Captain Ross's little grandson is here, and wants you to tell us if the faces of the redmen are white in your happy world."

Bunny was taking Vee about to see Paris; a city which was exhibiting to the world the moral collapse of capitalist imperialism. In the theatres of this culture centre you might see a stage of crowded naked women, their bodies painted every color of the rainbow; some of them died of the poisoning which this treatment inflicted upon the system, but meantime the war for democracy was justified. While Bunny was there, the artists of the city took offense because the managers of the underground railway objected to an obscene advertisement; to express their scorn of censorship, some hundreds of men and women emerged at dawn, having torn off their clothing in drunken orgies, and invaded the subway cars entirely naked. These beauty-creators and guides of the future held a festival once every year, the Quatres Arts Ball, a famous event to which Vee, as a visiting artist, was welcome; and here, when the revels were at their height, you might stroll about in a vast hall, and see, upon platforms set against the walls, the actual enactment of every variety of abnormal vice which human degeneracy had ben able to conceive.

With the time he had left from such diversions, Bunny was preparing for "The Young Student" a moving protest against the Roumanian White Terror. He left this nearly completed manuscript on the writing table in his bedroom, and—when he came back it was gone, and inquiries among the hotel staff brought no information. Two days later Bertie came to him with another tantrum; she knew all the contents of his manuscript, and what shame he was bringing upon their heads! "Sir Eldon's been setting spies on me!" exclaimed Bunny, ready to get hot himself; but Bertie said rubbish, Eldon had nothing to do with it, it was the French secret service. Did he imagine for a moment the government was failing to keep track of Bolshevik propaganda? Or that they would let him use their country as a centre of plotting against the peace of Europe?

Bunny wanted to know, were they so silly as to imagine they could keep him from writing home what he had learned in Vienna? He would do the article over, and find ways to get it to America in spite of all the spies. Then Bertie actually broke down and wept; of all ecsanries for him to pick out — Roumania! Here she had been pulling wires to get Eldon appointed to a high diplomatic post, with the combined influence of Verne in Washington and Prince Marescu in Bucharest; and now Bunny came along and smeared them with his filth!

And more than that! Blind fool, couldn't he see that Marescu was interested in Vee? Did he want to give her up to him? The prince would of course hear about this matter through the French government, which was arming Roumania against Russia. Suppose he were to come back to Paris and challenge Bunny to a duel? The young smart-aleck answered, "We'll fight with tennis rackets!"

(To Be Continued.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.— The tattered torso of a body, hacked into innumerable pieces and burned beyond recognition, gave St. Petersburg today the most gruesome and mystifying crime in local police annals.

Senator Borah stopped advocating recognition of the Soviet Union because of proofs of Communistic propaganda submitted to him by former secretary of state Hughes. Borah flatly denied this, and stated that he never saw any document that would have the slightest weight in regard to the matter. Detectives may be the dumbest mortals, outside of a coffin, but they are the world's most shameless liars. Because they are dumb, perhaps!

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

Cantonese Correspondence

By Y. F. NAI

Canton, December 25, 1926.

[illegible] is reported to have adopted a new [illegible] Chinese. This policy is supposed to [illegible] defined in the conversations at Hankow [illegible] Miss Lampson, newly appointed British [illegible] to Peking, Mr. Eugene Chen, Minister [illegible] Foreign Affairs of the Nationalist Government. It is supposed also to have been the destruction of the note sent by the British Charge d'Affaires in Peking to the ministers of the powers [illegible] to the Washington agreement.

[illegible] attention has been given to this new [illegible] policy of Britain, in the Chinese and the [illegible] press. Although no authoritative version [illegible] of the note to the conversations has been [illegible] yet, fairly complete summaries of the context [illegible] have been printed both here and in [illegible] It is said the conversations [illegible] which are reported to have been "cordial" [illegible] created in some circles as indicating a new and better policy on the part of [illegible]

[illegible] Papers hereabouts Anti-[illegible] to some have welcomed the new "policy" [illegible] which will go far toward set[illegible] Chiang and the Powers. [illegible] on the other hand, has not [illegible] conversations between the na[illegible] the British press that it is said [illegible] whether the taking of territory under its [illegible] was the program reported to be proposed in [illegible] Hankow conversations. In regard to the [illegible] Nationalists are assuming [illegible] unwarranted resentment. The London [illegible] says, Mr. Lampson certain extra[illegible] with the represen[illegible] but shows [illegible] being attributed to his dealings [illegible] Nationalist chiefs. He is reported [illegible] on his way to Han[illegible] Chang Tso-Lin at [illegible]

[illegible] Nationalists are not so [illegible] both from Peking and [illegible] there is in that [illegible] recognition of the Nationalist [illegible] to permit the [illegible] as well as Peking, to collect [illegible] customs. This has the [illegible] a bit weak, where the taxes are al[illegible]

[illegible] thereby decreasing this pro[illegible] the part of British customs [illegible] of the unsound [illegible] the Washington agreement is [illegible] Further, the opposition to [illegible] attempt to give [illegible] anti-nationalist forces [illegible] partisan in the eyes of the [illegible]

[illegible] is entirely in conflict with the [illegible] and, as it is said, is taken [illegible] Minister at Hankow [illegible] that the government [illegible] a policy of relieving the [illegible] the abolition [illegible] and the abrogation of all treaty [illegible]

[illegible] brought out in the nationalist [illegible] 2 1-2 and 5 per cent taxes are al[illegible] Hongkong, and all ar[illegible] have been made to collect them in the [illegible] nationalist control. This [illegible] connection with the powers, [illegible] and, therefore, profit by [illegible] although the anti-nationalists [illegible]. Further, foreign banks [illegible] The collection of these taxes in the [illegible] Chinese financial ma[illegible] and the foreign banks as in the [illegible] so far as nationalist [illegible] plan would mean a [illegible] and the extremely disadvantageous [illegible] of the collection of taxes from [illegible]

[illegible] domination in foreign as well as

Here Some Yen Bodyguards Our Lives and Property.
—Thomas in the Detroit News.

On the Road Up Hankow Way

(With thanks to Rudyard Kipling for the jingle.)

By the mighty Yang Tse River, surgin' eastward to the sea,
There's a Chinese soldier watchin' and I know he waits for me,
For the wind the flood is sweepin' and methinks I hear 'im say:
"Come you on you British soldier—come you on up Hankow way."

Come you on up Hankow way,
Where the Canton armies lay,
Can't you hear their cannons roarin', can't you see the airmen play,
On the road up Hankow way.
Where the spittin' maxims slay,
Where the dawn of freedom's comin', crimson red up Hankow way.

'Is uniform is yaller with little tabs of green,
An 'is rifle an' his bay'net they look most awful mean,
While the open door's 'is motto an' he means it sure enough
For 'ell 'elp us thru it flyin' with a freeman's kick that's tough.

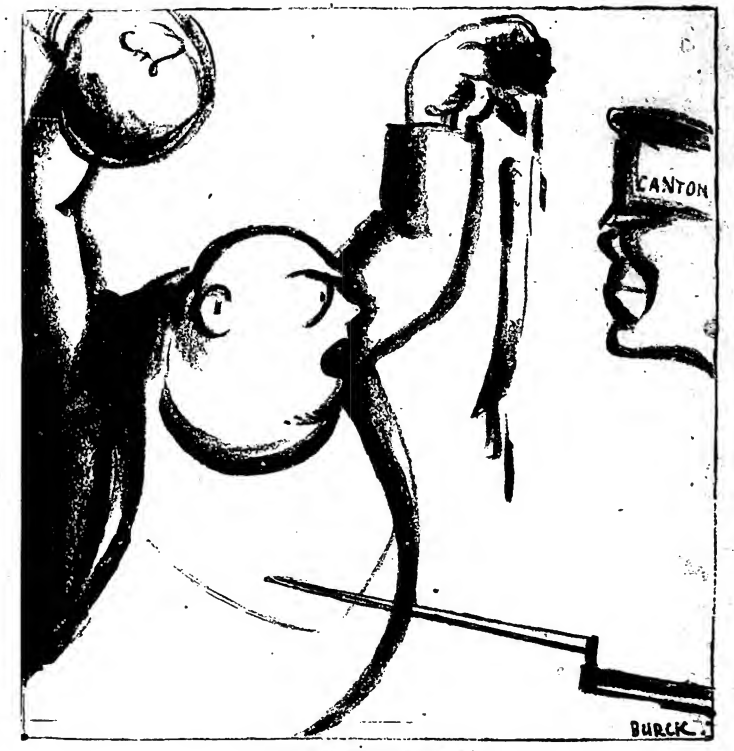
Guns and bay'nets made of steel,
Gawd's strewth they make you feel,
That the hempire's nearly banjaxed; just 'ear them tommies squeal
On the road up Hankow way,
Neath the screamin' shrapnel's spray,
Where the dawn of Freedom's comin', crimson red up Hankow way.

Well we're cooped up 'ere in Shanghai with the warships in the bay,
An' a barbed wire fence around us an' no Supi Yaws to play,
Their little tinklin' banjoes for we aint in Mandalay,
An' them Chinese on the warpath comin' down from Hankow way.

"Bloomin' Chinks" we used to say,
(We were safe in Mandalay.)
But they cut away their pigtails and they chased us all the way,
Down the bloomin' Yang Tse River,
To our gunboats in the bay,
An' the dawn of freedom's comin', crimson red up Hankow way.

Ship us somewhere West of Suez—ship me the very first,
For the Cantonese are comin' the plunderbund to burst,
And there aint no ten commandments to stop them in the fray,
For them Chinks can fight like blazes as they come from Hankow way.

Comin' down from Hankow way,
We may sleep in Chinese clay,
An' I 'ear them Chinese singin' while the rapid firers ring,
On the road up Hankow way,
Comin' nearer to the bay,
For the dawn of freedom's comin', crimson red up Hankow way.



R. Monteith.

THE NEW MAGAZINE

Supplement of THE DAILY WORKER

Second Section: This Magazine Section Appears Every Saturday in The DAILY WORKER.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1927 — ALEX BITTELMAN, Editor

The Bayonet Is Mightier Than the Bible.

In the Wake of the News

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THERE is a struggle going on inside the British cabinet between those who think it wise to pursue a moderate policy towards the Cantonese, and the blood and iron element that trusts to the sharp sword rather than to the slippery tongue. Both are thoroughly imperialistic. Both will defend the interests of the empire with equal enthusiasm and loyalty. The differences between them are over the question of the best way to preserve British interests in China. Chamberlain believes in using sweet language to his enemies. Churchill is a sabre-rattler. Neither of them considers the question of peace or war except in so far as either one or the other may help imperial interests.

* * *

Nevertheless we cannot ignore those inner conflicts. They play a big part in history. The conflicts within the different capitalist states as well as the clashing interests of different imperialist powers interfere with their desire to make a united front against a common enemy. Without question the robber powers would have crushed, or made another military attempt to crush the Soviet Union but for those contradictions, the fighting power of the Soviet workers and peasants, the greed to make profits from Russian trade and the aversion of their industrial classes to a war on the Workers Republic.

* * *

Now they are unable to unite against China, though all the brigands brandish their swords and elevate their guns in Shanghai harbor. Great Britain has been the principal instigator of the conspiracy against China since Japan pulled out of the mess. Hence the main stream of Chinese hostility has been flowing against Britain. This kind of a situation was not pleasing to John Bull, so his diplomats got busy in the capitals of Europe, America and Japan to seek assistance. Various reports were issued. It was said that this government and that government agreed to the British proposals, but nothing came of it, until the United States got involved in Nicaragua and Mexico.

* * *

It is no secret that British oil interests were in conflict with American oil interests in Mexico until about this time. The Aquila Oil company who willing to obey the Mexican laws. Then a change came. The Aquila Oil company lined up with Andy Mellon, Edward L. Doheny, "Teapot Dome" Sinclair and the Standard Oil company of Indiana in defying the Mexican government. The tory papers in London began to congratulate Coolidge on his strong policy in Latin America and—United States warships began to assemble in Chinese waters. Britain stopped picking feathers out of the American eagle's tail in Latin America.

(Continued on page 7)

The Escape of Anderson Hixon

By ELLEN WETHERELL

It was midnight in Red City; a sultry, suffocating midsummer midnight. A black night, in which the sand roads, pine tracts and gray, barren fields were swallowed up. Occasionally a mutter-ing of distant thunder ominously broke the stillness. Almost at the same the musical hum of insects. The cedar id cape jasmine was rich upon the air.

Delsie Hixon leaned from her window to get a freer breath, her heavy body palpitated with the heat, and swarmed in and out and settled upon her shoulders and then her head. She was talking in a low, musical voice. "I'se tole" she tole that my boy man' leave Red City, I'se tole that my Anderson, my baby, mus' go away or he'll be hanged! Tole that my Anderson, my baby, mus' go his father an' mother an' go away or he'll be hanged! I'se tole that he mus' go away or he'll have to die! I'se tole he mus' go away from Red City and never come back no mo'! But I, his mother, I commence hearin' the voice of that Court. I, re-hearin' the voice of that Court say, 'Not guilty! Not guilty! Anderson Hixon of the crime of—' As I remember here I cried when I hear that voice of the Court. How I laughed fo' joy when I heard the voice of that Court a-sayin' 'Not Guilty!' An' I remember how glad was my heart when I walked out of that Court, free. Now I'se tole that he mus' go away; I'se tole the citizens of Red City demands my Anderson go away! They say he can't live among us no mo'." Delsie folded her arms across her breast and leaned farther out on the window sill as she continued to talk in a low musical voice. "I, his mother, say that the Law have pro-claimed him free! The court have pro-claimed him 'Not Guilty!' an' I, his mother say he shall not go away; but he shall live what he is, an' thereby right shown at home."

She paused and drew back from the window. A red cinder leaped from the threaten-ing cloud and writhed across their blackness; a peal of thunder followed. Still, the mosquitoes in the thicket.

Delsie again rested her broad bosom on the sill and went on in her low, musical voice. "I remem-ber, Boys, I remember when I was a very little girl. I lived with my mother on the plantation. I remember my father, I expects that my mother was my father. I remembers the whippin's that I received, I remembers the death blows that I received, an' the long hours after them when I lay still in the sunrays. I can see the dogs with their red tongues hangin' out and their lips, an' their lank gaunt a heavin'; I can hear them, dogs boy, an' their snapin' an' their growlin' when they had from' the po' negro. I sees again the slaves what runs past my mother's cabin, a-runnin' long until I get a drink of water, make my cautious steps outside into his tracks so's not to get off the chain. That slave man a-bearin his master's cotton his breast, all bleedin' ana-dyin'! I sees again the dogs, the bloodhounds, on the chase and fastest.

"I knows of the awfulness of the Slavery days, my boys, I tells me all, of the degradation, the unrest, the hopelessness, I tells the made a runaway sheet himself rather than toe be taken back. Then the sweet, sad purple prays' too God, an' how he used toe have no mercy. The last we had toe tell was the sickness, an' the stealin's, an' the hog from starvin' when it might have been toe have starved!" Delsie stopped. Another cinder leaped from the clouds, another pro-longed peal rocked the stillness! Delsie turned her head and into the night; there was no rain upon it.

"I remember the day when that word was used toe freedom and women, and free, lil chillun of the black slaves. I remembers that day well, how them leaves and womens an' lil' chillins all 'round each other a cryin' fo' joy, an' a-shoutin' 'We free! We free! Glory, glory! We's free! We's free! An' I remembers seein' the white folks' black, an' how they goes out an' hides themselves a season' mad, like the cowards they is, an' how they comes after that free like as if still his'; the black people a-tryin' to get the North, wonder' an' lil chil-lins sufferin' as of cold and hungerin' them. Then better days begin to be, an' I remembers my mouth that the black man must have the right toe vote fo' things, toe say what he wants in the ballot box; I remembers my husband the first time just how he feared fo' myself. How I was the white folks laughed when the black voted, an' how these votes did not count long while after these "free" days, my An-derson an' me. We's happy fo' a while, but it seems that we's not so free as we thought we was. But, I said if Anderson can go toe school like white will work and wrath fo' the rich, and I pay fo' my boy's schoolin'. Such a bright boy, my Anderson, a-favorin' his father, I remember how the white boys laughed at toe school, how they called him a 'nigger-lover' an' 'nigger-head' an' 'nigger-face' an' how them white boys use toe fight him, beat him up hard 'til he was black beat at one of them, and I remem-ber it was that white boy, that said he would nee my Anderson was 'sprobed' some day, he hated my Anderson 'cause Anderson war defendin' hisself against the white boys' blows and beatin's.

Nobody took my boy's part but the colored folks, and even they didn't dare to show their best feelin's. One day came when my boy war arrested fo' makin' love, they said, toe a white girl! How I laughed at that, my boy Anderson, makin' love, him only fifteen year. But the officers came an' took him, fo' they said that he had broke the law. The white girl swore against him, an' the boy that said he'd see my boy lynched some day, swore too, but thar war them that knew me an' they tole thar story an' that story proved my boy innocent fo' he was not there whar the white girl said he war; they showed what they called an alibi.

"Fo' three days that Court sat a'tryin' to prove my boy guilty, but the evidence war with my boy, an' the Court had toe let him go free! 'Not guilty,' said that Court on that third day.

"All the colored peoples believed it, and, some of the white folks believed it. I believed it befo' the Court said so, fo' I believed in my boy!"

Delsie stopped. Was there not a murmur of voices down the road? She brushed the mosquitoes from her arms and listened. From the bed came the heavy breathing of her husband; across the fields came the plaint of a "mourning dove." "Some peo-ples goin' home from meetin'," said she reassur-ingly. Delsie sniffed the air acstatically. "The jas-mine am pow-ful too night." Again came the mur-mur of voices louder than before, and still louder, until, Delsie heard oaths and loud laughter.

She heard an oath close at hand from a thick voice, and she heard the blow of an axe. Delsie sprang from the window to the bedside of her sleeping husband. "Hixon," she cried, "Hixon, awake! Awake! thars enemies at the do'."

Hixon turned heavily in his bed, muttering that it was the thunder that she heard. At that mo-ment the black night lifted; a white fire ran over the heavens, and in the lurid light Delsie saw a group of men fumbling at the locked gate. Again came the blow of an axe, followed by a second blow. Hixon sprang from his bed and into his clothes, crying, "Who ar yo' an' what doe yo' want?"

"We want to see Anderson at the door," came the reply.

"Anderson is sleepin'," said his father. "Tells me yo' business with him!"

"To hell with his sleeping; it's Anderson we'll see or— —"

Delsie threw herself before the bedside of her boy who was awake and trembling. "Save our chile, Papa!" she cried. "save our chile, papa!"

"Doan open the do' but shoot! Shoot!

Hixon grasped his rifle, he thrust it through the open window into the darkness and rattled out, "I knows yo' an' what yo's wants, an' I say in the name of the law go away or I'll shoot!"

Instantly came another blow from the axe on the door, then a noise of splintering wood. As the door fell Hixon's rifle blazed. A sharp cry came up from the yard, a coarse oath followed, then a medley of oaths, a smothered groan arose to Del-sie's ears. Again the black night lifted and by the light of the blazing sky Delsie caught sight of a group of men going slowly through the gate car-rying something very heavy between them.

In the early morning Delsie found on her door steps, close to the wrecked door, a large sheet of coarse paper with these words written on it. "Yen have shot a prominent citizen of this city in the log. We shall come again for Anderson, and we'll lynch not only him but you all, next time!"

Delsie read the lines in a trembling voice to her husband, Hixon turned to her, saying, "Delsie yon have saved our boy this time from being lynched." As Hixon spoke he pointed to a large coil of new rope left before the door. "Delsie we are not free peo-ples! We have toe get free! What will you do when these peoples come again?" Delsie smiled as one assured of themselves and their righteous acts; "Papa," she said, "we'll defend Anderson in the name of the law!"

—By William Gropper.

— 6 —

"Grace of The Lamb"

By ALEX JACKINSON

THROUGH the yellow waters of the broad Yangtze floated a large river boat where lay Chang, carefully huddled together behind a coil of rope. He heard footsteps and made an effort to crouch still closer. Chang was in fear of being discovered, not that there was any danger if he would be; it was merely that Chang felt peeved and wanted to be left alone.

Before Chang ran away he was traveling with the Workers Theatre Group. He was not an actor, nor did he aspire to be one. Chang's history is brief. He is thirteen, and one of China's many waifs who spend their time fishing in the Yangtze. That is what he did before the Cantonese took possession of Hankow. It was then that Chang first heard of the "Three Peoples Principles," which the southerners were pledged to uphold. After that Chang no longer aspired to be a fisherman, instead he wanted to become a soldier, revolutionist, anything so long as it would give him an opportunity to fight for the rightful cause.

The recruting sergeant took one look at the little body of Chang's when the latter came to enlist, and shook his head. Insistence finally moved the officer to place him as orderly to the Workers Theatre group which, though Chang did not know, had become an indispensable part of the revolutionary forces.

The Cantonese introduced a novel and effective method of spreading propaganda among the masses. As soon as they occupied a new city, theatrical groups which travel with the army, immediately take over the theatres and in such manner acquaint the people of their progress. Chang spent two weeks with the troupe, brooding continuously for not being big enough to be a real soldier, before he made up his mind to run off to Shanghai.

Along the fertile banks of the Yangtze-Kiang marched the large Cantonese army, then on the way to Shanghai. Platoon after platoon passed by in disciplined formation. Most of the soldiers were dressed in loose fitting garments of grey, but not all. Some walked in cloth shoes, others in leather boots, which left numerous footprints in the soft soil. Over their shoulders they carried foldei blankets. The heat was incessant, and one by one the soldiers doffed their military caps for the wide bamboo hats which offered a slight relief from the sun.

The river banks were thickly crowded with fishermen, who left their little sampans floating midst lotus flowers to cheer the victorious troops. Onward the hope of awakened China marched. Over the wilds of Tibet they came, marching victoriously north, under the guidance of General Chiang Kai-Shek.

Famous for decades as great traders and revolutionists the Cantonese in less than three months swept from far off Canton to the outskirts of Shanghai, wiping out all opposition, including that of Wu Pei-Fu, England's cardboard "strong" man, liberating from the fetters of imperialism such industrial centers as Hankow and Wuchang. Today the Cantonese control two-thirds of China and will continue to fight until the entire country is united under their red banners.

Chang now found himself in Shanghai, but he was still lost. He seemed almost oblivious of the many people that milled in and out of his gaze. In truth he was conscious of his little body. He felt weak and useless to the "Three Peoples of Principles" to which he had silently pledged allegiance. He seemed to realize that he was small, and feared that the glory of success was not to be his. It distressed him somehow. Chang was inspired with that innate pride of all Orientals.

He wandered listlessly down to the waterfront, hoping that the muddy waters could somehow swallow him up. It was only when his narrow eyes shifted up the harbor that his hallow cheeks became animated with life. There floating idly at anchor, he saw an armada of warships flying the colors of the Powers. Variously colored flags breezed through the air. Chang looked at the high powered guns which were trained upon the city, as though he was planning things. He would Chang knew that when the Cantonese will arrive, the same guns will be used against his countrymen. His mouth twitched slightly, a smile broke through his lips. He scratched his shaven head, and like a dark shadow faded away.

Only Chang did not share in the excitement that was prevalent in the city. Everywhere along the beautiful Bund, foreigners walked, betraying in their hurried strides the tensity that was in the air. In hotels guests gathered to discuss the latest events. Of the menacing Cantonese ran their talk. In consulates sat generals planning measures to be taken against the invaders. Kellogg's and Chamberlain's notes were carefully read. While in mission houses Christian Science healers were beginning to moan over their diminishing patronage. In shops, talk veered to a lack of business and to the recent strikes which occurred in Shanghai. Only today the strike against the Shanghai Tramway Co. ended. Prior to which all traffic was at a standstill for days.

Out of the industrial zone, that part which is known as "Chinese quarters," agitation was also evident. In out-laying districts followers of the Kuomintang, the Peoples party were drilling with long rods. These men were secretly training to join the Cantonese when they would reach the city.

Throughout the ancient kingdom sprung up "Dare to die corps," comprised mostly of students from the universities. The "Dare to dies" were introduced in Chiang's first great victory, when a picked squad stormed a narrow road in the face of machine gun fire. Not all crossed the line, but those that did completely routed the first of the many warlords, Chiung Ching-ming.

Now every city boasted such groups. Nationalists, who were ready to die for Dr. Sun Yat-Sen's "Three Peoples Principles"—a slogan which was sweeping throughout China with the rapidity of a forest fire. A government of the people, by the people, and for the people:

Chang continued to walk along the wide waterfront of Shanghai. He eyed the tiny bamboo sail boats, which swayed in the waters. While on the banks stood wharf coolies dressed in rags, importuning passers-by to bid a wicker basket of freshly caught fish. These scenes held no interest for Chang. He merely looked on for a while and turned his attention elsewhere. He soon found himself walking through a labyrinth of winding streets, lined on both sides by low bamboo dwellings where the Chinese workers lived. Suspended under gaudy banners hung paper lanterns fastened on to long poles. An aroma of cooking rice reached his nostrils. Here bare-headed urchins rush as he played in the roads. Some extended their palms to tressed women wearing long blue jackets as they waddled by. Other streets were lined with stalls where tourists come to haggle over nonchalance curios.

Chang reached the beginning of the French Bund. Here the streets were paved and well cleaned in contrast to the dusty roads he just came from. Well dressed foreigners and Chinese merchants attired in silk garments rode in rickshaws, pushed by sweating coolies. Chang took silent notice of the difference and walked on until he reached the public gardens. Near the entrance two Sikh policemen were chasing several Chinese. The public gardens is a park where no Chinese are allowed to enter unless it is a nurse with foreign children.

Like all Chinese, Chang deeply hated the Sikh policemen who were imported from India by the English. He avoided walking near the park, and instead turned into Nankin Road, Shanghai's leading thoroughfare. Here he gazed into brightly displayed windows. But even these scenes failed to attract his interest. He kept walking along without taking notice of the busily congested street.

The multitudes which swarmed both sides of the road suddenly stopped to gaze down the street from whence came the clanging of street car bells once more. The brightly painted trams rolled up the street, for the first time since the strike began, but did not stop for passengers as usual. The cars were gaily decorated by irridescent flags. The workers took the cars from the barn to celebrate their victory before resuming work.

Down Nanking Road came the chain of cars followed by workers on foot. As the cars passed certain points, sympathizers of the victorious strikers set up a shout of joy. It was Labor's Holiday and thousands of workers from other trades joined the procession. In their midst walked students carrying "Down with Imperialism" banners.

Suddenly the cars ceased to move. For a few seconds the workers were puzzled as to what happened. But not for long. Word soon reached the paraders that the company had purposely shut off power to bar their demonstration. The women instantly stepped out of the cars which were left stranded railways in the street, and held a hurried meeting. They decided to march to the company and there hold a mass demonstration. Before long the strikers swarmed down Nanking Road headed for the International Settlement, where, since the land regulations, no Chinese were allowed to enter.

Through neighboring streets, poured sympathizers in ever increasing numbers, which soon swelled the multitude to a huge mass. The streets became clogged with milling people rolling along like an avalanche of humanity. From all corners they came, batieas and shouting, but eager to show their newly discovered strength. Wheel chairs were left in the streets as their drivers joined the moving columns.

Shop keepers withdrew their window displays fearing the wrath of the workers. The sea of humanity continued to roll onward, sweeping pedestrians off the sidewalks. Others darted quickly into hallways.

Chang felt himself being carried along. His little arms flew wildly in the air, open-mouthed he gasped as he found himself pressed tight in the midst of the crowd.

The entire force of the hated Sikh policemen were arrayed at strategic corners. In their grasp were long bamboo sticks with which they pounded the heads of the workers. Arms reached out and caught the ends of the sticks, instantly other workers edged closer until they wrested the weapons from the hands of the unwelcome aliens. Soon Britain's mercenaries were forced to retreat.

The great demonstration did not subside until the treading of heavy feet was heard in the distance, as a detachment of marines from all nations appeared from around the corner. The guns in their hands were primed for action. Without ado an order to fire was given.

Later in the day two missionary doctors were separating the dead from the wounded. Chang's little body was among the lifeless. One of the missionaries cleared his throat. "'Heaven be Praised,' he chanted; "not a single white man was hurt." The other rolled his eyes heavenward and replied: "Thank the merciful Lord—'Tis the grace of the lamb——"

In the Wake of the News

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page 1)

Now we learn that the United States will pursue an independent diplomatic policy in China, but will line up with England on the barricades in Shanghai and on the waterfront. This is most amusing, but we doubt if the Chinese masses will see any humor in the announcement. Tit for tat. An agreement between imperialist scoundrels. You help me rob the Latin-Americans and I'll help you fleece the Chinese. But how far can the brigands go with this game? Remember that the ultimate judge in every situation of this kind is POWER. The Chinese have the man-power. They have RIGHT on their side and a consciousness of being engaged in a sacred crusade is dynamic. Against the mercenaries of the imperialist powers the Chinese millions are invincible. They are not as well equipped as their foes, but a united nation of 400,000,000 people is unconquerable. And the foreign imperialists must deal with a large section of their people at home who are in opposition to a war against China in the interests of the robber money barons of Wall Street, New York and Threadneedle Street, Logdon.

* * *

The presence of Winston Churchill in Italy a few weeks back was commented on in The DAILY WORKER last week. The result of his visit can now be seen in the dispatch of Italian warships to China and the announcement in a fascist paper that Italy would stand with England in her conflict with the Cantonese. But we are willing to wager a small sum of money that Italy will not send many warships to China. Mussolini will keep them in the Mediterranean since the former loving ally of Italy to the north would like nothing better than to see the Italian navy at the bottom of the sea.

* * *

THE elastic toothpick, first prize for exemplary gullibility is awarded this week to the czarist Russians exiled in Bulgaria, who believed the yarn that the czar and the rest of his brood are living comfortably in Siam nnter the protection of the emperor of that realm. The Russian church Sofia is crowded day and night and if the faithful have any old kopecks left they will soon be in the pockets of the clergy. The Russian orthodox priests were always adept in the art of conjuring up remunerative spooks and since our own Aimee McPherson, did a fade-away to her greater dishonor and profit, there is no reason why her European competitors should not shake down their flocks for what they have left.

A Proletarian Magazine

By A. B. MAGIL

A MAGAZINE became a year old. Not remarkable. Many magazines become a year old. Some are even lucky enough to become many years old and nobody takes notice of it. But last Sunday afternoon a crowd composed largely of workers jammed Webster Hall, New York, and cheered and laughed, and applauded because a certain infant magazine, printed on poor paper with small smudgy type, was celebrating its first birthday.

The magazine in question is called "The Hammer." It is a Jewish Communist monthly, published in the cultural interests of the Jewish working class by a group of Jewish writers and publicists under the chairmanship of Moissaye Olgin. And to observe this festival of its first birthday, "The Hammer" invited a group of distinguished Jewish writers, most of whom have been its contributors, to hold a symposium on art and its place in the world.

The crowd too had come to celebrate, filling the pit and balcony, and those unable to find seats sprawling over railings and sills or standing up, until, for four exciting, incredible hours, A. Yiddish Tyr, a holiday) "The Hammer" is a year old.

They had come, these workers, to hear what their writers, their poets and story-writers and essayists, the makers of their magazine, had to tell them about the problems of their art. The audience was there when the lights came down on the platform and it is my that the average American audience would find incredible. When John Howard Lawson, author of "Processional," and Gelbert-Only paid tribute to the work of bringing the workers themselves and the common people, he is trying not unsuccessfully to do what these Jewish writers are doing naturally and instinctively: create a proletarian literature.

Olgin opened the symposium with a discussion the history of "The Hammer" and its aims in ing to create a Jewish culture rooted in the class struggle of the present. The next speaker, Joseph Opatoshu (Joseph Opatoshinsky), one of the greatest of living Jewish novelists spoke very briefly.

Louis Lozowick, in his work, the life of Negroes and the reactions of oriental people in America, the stories are full of the nostalgia of vast continents, the clashing of brute forces, written in a language that is frank, full flavor and stuff of sap. Lozowick says he hates the rehearsed, mannikin solidity of a true stamper.

Opatoshu began by praising the work of the Hammer" in attempting to give literature a new social orientation, in connecting with a plan for the future and its harmonies, the inchoate of spontaneous creative forces that lie outside the immediate field of the class struggle. This plan, obtained rather unfortunately, is to fix the geographical limits that will set off the proletarian literature of the future. The question immediately aroused into a controversy between two opposing points of view. On one side were ranged the poets, who were unwilling to connect literature with any plan for the future, and economic reformers, who saw in literature only a political and economic reflection of the social forces being; what should be the relation between the artist and the class struggle.

Moissaye Olgin, editor of "The Freiheit," opened the attack by accusing the writers of having gone but part of the way in their acceptance of Communism and the identification of their ideals with the ideals of the struggling proletariat.

"We Communists," he said, "ask that the new Jewish culture be Jewish in form and proletarian in content. But so many of you writers would have it the other way around. You want to cling to the moth-eaten culture of the Jewish bourgeoisie and merely content yourselves with an externally proletarian manner and a perfunctory sympathy with the Communist cause.

"The Hammer," if it is to mean anything to the Jewish masses, ought to be not merely a collection of poems and stories, but a mighty weapon for the Jewish proletariat in the bitter struggle with those forces that threaten and oppress it."

From the applause that burst forth when Epstein had finished, it was plain that the audience was decidedly partisan. Olgin arose to introduce the next speaker, and the noise subsided into expectant silence. The battle was on. Epstein had made his challenge and his indictment. The Jewish writers would have to answer for their misdeeds. Who would be chosen to lead the defense?

The name of H. Leivik was called. It is a name that during the last few years has become known throughout the Jewish-speaking world. His play of the life of garment workers, "Shop," has been running for many weeks at the Irving Place Theatre. And his poetic drama, "The Golem," is now being produced by the Habima players. Besides being the most important of the younger Jewish playwrights, Leivik is also one of the finest of the poets. And his background, moreover, is unequivocally revolutionary. He was not a "convert" to the workers' cause. This small, lithe man, with the tall, precipitous forehead under a crop of yellow hair, had spent some of the best years of his life in Siberian dungeons for his Bundist activities in Czarist Russia. And he has written of those black days bitterly and tenderly in numerous poems.

Leivik's glittering blue eyes are ablaze as he walks to the center of the stage. He speaks hastily, passionately, stumbling over his words, trying to clarify his ideas. Literature is an end in itself, he says, not a mere tool. The word to the artist is sacred. Leivik resents the "demands" that the Communist theorists make of the artist. It is wrong and pernicious to ask the artist to abdicate his individuality and merge it in the interests of the masses. To deny that the truly progressive Jewish artist is seeking to shirk the responsibilities of the class war. "The life of the artist is eternal struggle," says Leivik. "He doesn't run away; he seeks struggle, it is necessary to his existence."

L. Talmy, of "The Freiheit" staff, suave and eminently rational, made the rebuttal. Talmy posed a few questions. "Why is it that here in America, where we have so many important Jewish writers, there exists no truly unified and homogeneous Jewish literature and culture? And why is it that in the Soviet Union, where Jewish writers are comparatively few and immature, we already see the beginnings of a Jewish literature and culture that is truly organic?

"You artists and writers constitute in yourselves so many beautiful and distinguished personalities. How much more beautiful and distinguished would your personalities become, how much more freely, more deeply would they develop if they were intimately associated with the mighty movement of the workers towards the creation of a new order and a new life."

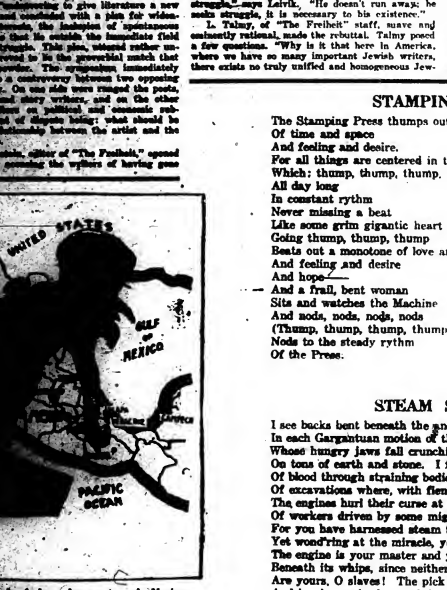
The final shots in the battle were fired by the poets, M. L. Halpern and Aaron Layeles-Glanz. Halpern, who after a hiatus of two years has recently reassociated himself with "The Freiheit," declared that the writer was typical of the environment and the people from whom he sprang, that the workers themselves were not yet psychologically proletarian and therefore the writer could not be expected to be psychologically proletarian.

Layeles-Glanz, who was one of the founders and leaders of the In-Sich (Introspective) movement in Jewish poetry, discussed standards of intelligibility in art in relation to recently published statements accredited to Lenin. The rest of the program consisted of the reading of original poems by Halpern, Leonid Feinberg and S. Kurz, a talk by Shachna Epstein of "The Freiheit," and performances by the great neighbors of the Habima players.

As I think of those four impetuous hours in Webster Hall, one or two incidents stand out luminously in my mind. There was the joyous tumult that broke forth recklessly when Olgin introduced Abraham Raisin, beloved Jewish tale-writer and folk-poet, who has become a regular contributor to "The Freiheit." Though he is only in his early fifties, Raisin has been writing for 35 years, and he is at present the most widely known and read Jewish literary figure. Many of his poems have been set to music and sung by the Jewish masses for years. Raisin is most assuredly an anomalous. Not so much because of his artistic achievement; that I consider greatly overrated. He is not to be compared with the great Yehoash who died recently, and there are several among his younger contemporaries who have written poetry that is more subtle, more searching and dynamic. But none of these possesses the intimacy and the simplicity of Raisin. None has come so close to the heart of the Jewish masses, the everyday folk who take their poetry with their bread and butter.

An unforgettable afternoon. "The Hammer" is a year old. I am looking forward to next year and the years after and to many birthdays. I am looking forward to a "Hammer" that will continue to beat upon the strongholds of capitalist society and powerfully to forge and shape the culture of the militant Jewish proletariat of America.

STAMPING PRESS.



The Stamping Press thumps out a monotone
Of time and space
And feeling and desire.
For all things are centered in the Stamping Press
Which: thump, thump, thump, thump
All day long
In constant rythm
Never missing a beat
Like some striking gigantic heart of iron
Going thump, thump, thump
Beats out a monotone of love and life
And feeling and desire
And hope—
— And a frail, bent woman
Sits and watches the Machine
And nods, nods, nods, nods
(Thump, thump, thump, thump)
Nods to the steady rythm
Of the Press.

—MAX GELTMAN.

STEAM SHOVELS.

I see backs bent beneath the ancient scourge
In each Gargantuan motion of the scoops
Whose hungry jaws fall crunching in long swoops
On tons of earth and stone. I feel the surge
Of blood through straining bodies on the verge
Of excavations where, with fiendish whoops,
The engines hurl their curse at huddled groups
Of workers driven by some mighty urge.
For you have harnessed steam to ease your toil—
Yet wond'ring at the miracle, you gasp!
The engine is your master and you cower
Beneath its whips, since neither scoop nor soil
Are yours, O slaves! The pick once more you grasp
And bend your backs—and dream not of your power!

HENRY REICH, JR.

...Wall Street's shadow advances towards Mexico ...Continental Investors, carrying a brief case marked "Loot" dollars—$300,000,000."

A Pox Upon Pagans

By Will de Kalb

I am not much given to criticizing the reverend gentlemen who each month endow the newsstands with copies of "The Catholic World." Theirs is a difficult task, editing "a monthly magazine of general literature and science" (to quote the flypiece) when all their expressions of fact or opinion must be so colored as to harmonize with the pernicious doctrine they profess and preach.

Had the article to which I shall shortly refer aroused my ire, this essay would never have been written. I have read so much catholic literature that its perversions no longer anger me. But when I find a paragraph or two that amuses me, my pen, or my two typewriter fingers rather, are inspired. This article, I might add, caused me to give birth to a few guffaws, at the expense of the bespectacled and ever-so-serious minded Paulist apologists.

Among the religious laity in the Church of Rome, one would naturally expect to find many strange opinions. But those expressed in the Editorial Comment column of the January issue of this leading christian journal, rival all others for that adjective, especially in the weirdness of logic, naivete, and innocence of knowledge displayed.

The general subject of the four essays that make up the column appears to be "paganism." "We are surrounded by pagans, and by pagan ideas, pagan morals, pagan ethics," the good father tells us, with the same assurance as a wood-pile informs us that if we pray to any one of the thousands of saints the church, for business reasons, created, that particular halo weaver will cure our ills, lighten our burdens, and lessen our woes. At this juncture in his writing, we can imagine him throwing up his hands in horror at the propensity of the thought, as the true follower of the "christian" St. Paul should. He does not stick to his subject—but that is a trick of apologetics; by wandering he makes a point that would otherwise be sighborn.

II.

I am almost enroede, for example, that the sentence to death of Sacco and Vanzetti is a "pagan" act, for among the few tablets the Phoenicians have left us we find accounts of the burning in pitch of heretics. In pagan civilizations, heretics, saturated in pitch of course, were found to serve most efficiently for illumination; indeed, if we are to believe ancient history, the street lighting system of ancient Rome depended to a large extent on such human torches.

But I must insist on drawing the line even here, for in ancient times, and even up to the advent of the Industrial Revolution, heretics were burned for their heresies. In the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, their heresy was in not accepting the Rotarian interpretation of economics; they were to be executed for a murder they had no hand in committing. And pagans gave their transgressors an opportunity to prove their innocence by drinking hemlock tea; a fairer test, to my way of thinking, than a trial before a Massachusetts judge. I hold no brief for paganism, but the least I can say for it is that it was frank and honest.

Then there is the "loony gas" case of four years ago, in which a score of Jersey workers were driven insane during the manufacture of a gasoline compound which included in its formula the health wrecking tetraethyl gas. A richly colored advertisement of the gasoline, appearing in a current periodical, recalled to my mind a woodcut on Foxe's "Martyrs and Martyrdom," which was captioned "Christian martyrs sacrificed to make a Roman holiday." But, as Johndee and his fellow Standard Oil directors will hasten to correct me, these were no "christian martyrs," only goddam foreigners.

Even the antics of Benito Mussolini I hesitate to label pagan, in spite of that grandeur complexed individual's attempt to restore, at the expense of his overtaxed and downtrodden workers, the glory that was Rome. The murder of Matteotti was done as brutally as ever Caesar Augustus executed a Gnostic. But murder has always been a favorite sport of oppressors—I do not believe I have any right to lay its source at the doors of the pagans.

III.

I mentioned, several paragraphs ago, the holy editorialist's wanderings from his subject to make an extra point or so on the sly. He begins by ridiculing Shaw, proceeds to an attack upon John Haynes Holmes, brings in Bohemianism and the suicide of George Sterling, the poet, and then, in a grand finale, analyzes Anthony Ludovici's "Lysistrata, or The Future of Woman" by the methods known as reductio ad absurdum in the important science that defends the faith.

The Shavians have no claims upon me. I recognise Shaw's ability as a dramatist, but I apply no superlatives to my critiques of the man and his work. If the man is open to ridicule, let him be ridiculed, I say, whether it be by profane critic or holy editor.

The attack upon John Haynes Holmes needs no answer, for the writer's crude twisting of one of Holmes' literary errors defeats its own purpose. Holmes in reviewing Bishop Lawrence's "Memories of a Happy Life," insists "there have been great labor troubles within the Bishop's barony in his [illegible] and mentioned." The critic seizes upon this point, and calling Holmes a "Wells-Shaw-Bergson agnostic" (rash epithet, by the way, contradicting the other), assails his doctrine as a "composite of ancient and modern paganism." The good father should pull his own nose; but more of this later.

IV.

It is in his analysis of Ludovici's "Lysistra" that the catholic apologist reveals that his education, like h's church, is several hundred years behind the times.

Ludovici sets forth that "the tendency will be in a society whose principle is to sacrifice the less to the greater, to proceed to some sort of controlled and legalized infanticide. "Abnormal, defective, incurable, undesirable people will no longer be allowed to grow up . . . The gradual elimination of the undesirable dregs of humanity will clear the air . . . It is noble and virtuous to sacrifice the less for the greater, the rubbish for the precious."

"Such a plan!" the holy man exclaims in horror. He calls it, revealing an inhibited clerical obsession for Latin phrases, the "ultima thule" of paganism. The "last word" in paganism, really? Can it be that the good father has never, having faithfully limited his reading to those books not inscribed in the Index Expurgatorius, heard of Friedrich Nietsche? The German philosopher's doctrines of the "many-too-many" and the "Super-man" are clearly expounded in "Zarathustra," written half a century ago—I would advise the reverend to procure a copy.

V.

An article rambling around the subject of "paganism" could not be considered complete if it did not include at least one whack at Communism. The exclusion of Madame Kollontai, Soviet Ambassador to Mexico, furnished food for "thought," given birth by the Roman writer's vitriolic pen.

He raises the question "if the Soviet Ambassador is a lady and a scholar, why do we debar her from the country?" He quotes an Associated Press dispatch which states that Kollontai's trunks, instead of containing Paris gowns, held a library consisting of "a wide range of general literature in half a dozen languages." He attempts to dispute her classification as a scholar by asserting that the dispatch "does not give us much of an idea of what is in her library of books, largely philosophical."

What the black-cassocked editor implied, but hypocritically hesitated to state, was that the books chiefly dealt with the various aspects of Communism. I do not doubt that this may not be true, but even if it is, may one not be a scholar of Communism, just as one can be a scholar of catholicism?

The literary clergyman questions her standing as a "lady" because she has radical views concerning the family relation. But is Kollontai any less a lady than Gloria Gould, whose divorce was recently legalized by the Roman Rota?

VI.

Upon mentioning his attack on Holmes' doctrine as a "composite of ancient and modern paganism," I said that the holy scribbler should pull his own nose. A catholic writer should be careful how he attacks paganism, for he thereby attacks the very institutions that are the foundations of his Holy Church.

In a church that has for its sacred symbol the phallus, its highest ceremony the eating of its god (one of the most ancient forms of worship, Frazer tells us in "The Golden Bough"), its liturgy almost taken bodily from pagan religious ceremonies, its supernatural beliefs concerning heaven and hell and the resurrection of the body plagiarised from the Zoroastrian, not wholly and unequivocally pagan?

"We are surrounded by pagans," the saintly scribbler reiterates. Perhaps we are, for he, a pagan preacher of paganism, should know. But like most statements emanating from a clerical source, that one must be taken with a grain of salt. Indeed, it must be very well seasoned to be accepted [illegible] who thinks for himself, and is not afraid of "radical" ideas.

Structural Worker

Two dimensional in space he stands
Moving arms in broken rythm
Against a crimson background.
Now one hand;
Now the other
Going up and down
Up and down
Making clandestine gestures
To a huge beam of steel
That juts and groans
As it is hoisted to its place.

—MAX GELTMAN.

The Semi-Sympathizers

By CHARLES ASHLEIGH

THE District Organizer was rather tired, and his nerves were a bit on edge. A sixteen-hour day—sometimes an eighteen-hour one—is enough to tell on you, after a while.

There were so many things to think of, he reflected, as he walked along the quiet street, with its roomy comfortable houses, behind tree-shaded lawns. And, when the Party is illegal, "underground," the work is so much more harassing. One had to make appointments on street-corners, and in remote restaurants; one must continually be on one's guard against spies. One is hampered at every step by the technical requirements of illegality.

His city's work was done—all but one thing. He had organized committees; he had interviewed party officials. He had covered miles, by street-car and subway, to see them every one. But still there was one more thing to do, and an important matter it was. It had all his attention, the strained attention of the conscientious will; he must find a meeting-place for the Central Committee. There were two things to do this, and to let the comrades know, by secret mail, messenger where it was.

The delegates had arrived in the city from an outlying district that morning. Tomorrow, Wednesday, they must meet the dozen leading comrades of the city, and report to them on the congress; and then the work must get straighter. It was up to the District Committee to see that it did. They were waiting for him. They were waiting for him.

Here was the house he had been seeking. A middle-class dwelling, it was. There were lights shining through all the front windows. Through the curtains of the ground floor, one could hear music, laughter and a hum of conversation. Guests were arriving, as he approached.

This is no place, thought the Organizer, for the quiet and secretive that always stood open, in the cellar-entrance.

There were about thirty people, in the large living-room. Groups were discussing, animatedly, books, the drama, art, literature, or current events. Someone was playing the piano; it was the well-known professor at the Conservatory.

The master of the house came towards the Organizer, his wife glinting welcome, through his spectacles.

"I am so glad you came," he said. "This is going to be fine. Ha! You will enjoy some of the people here; they have absolutely no comprehension of the masses."

He led the Organizer towards a corner of the room.

"My dear," he said to his wife. "Look whom we have with us."

The lawyer's wife rose, and hurried towards the Organizer, with outstretched hand.

"How glad I am," she said. "So good to see you again. Come, there are some interesting people here tonight."

And before the Organizer could protest, she sheered him into the thick of the crowd.

"This is Mr. Gohlnsky," she said, presenting the Organizer to a stout solemn gentleman, "who has made such interesting researches into the Fourth Dimension. Mademoiselle Fancsin, the well-known cyclist, who has done so much for the emancipation of women. And this is our dear Flor Stax, the founder of the Flamboyant School of poetry. My friends, I want you all to meet Mr. Strauss. Shhh! Let me warn you—he is one of those terrible Bolsheviks! But you know how I feel about that! He must tell you all about his experiences in prison. Two-and-a-half years of it! Just think—In these so-called enlightened days!"

A murmur of appreciation arose. They eyed the Organizer with expectancy. One young lady ecstatically said: "How I envy you your martyrdom!"

The Organizer was in agony. He forced an amiable smile. "In a moment, ladies and gentlemen," he said. "But first, may I beg our host to show me where I can telephone?"

"By all means," said the hostess, leading the Organizer from the room.

"I must speak with you and your husband at once, for a few minutes," said the Organizer, as soon as they were alone.

"Why, of course," said the hostess breathlessly. "Oh, is it something very exciting?"

In the privacy of an upstairs bed-room, the Organizer explained his errand.

"It is a very important meeting," he said, and it must be held at nine o'clock this evening. All we want is a room—any room upstairs will do. There's only a dozen of us."

The lawyer, pursing his lips, looked doubtfully at his wife. "I really don't know . . ." he said. His wife—for once—was silent.

—North in the Washington Post.

"It is quite safe," urged the Organizer. All his harried nerves were shrieking to him to get the business done. "Everyone knows you hold frequently these literary and artistic soirees. People come and go, all the time, during them. No one will think anything, when my comrades drop in, in ones and twos. And they can just quietly go upstairs, and no one will be the wiser. Half your guests don't know the other half, so there is nothing to fear from that quarter, either." He explained it all, with weary patience, reassuring them.

"I was sure you would agree," added the District Organizer. "You are so interested in our movement. And I have always known you to be among the most valuable and helpful of our sympathizers."

"Of course, we are interested," said the lawyer. "We would do anything possible to help you. But—"

"Mr. Strauss," the hostess interrupted, "I really don't think it fair of you to ask us to do this. Consider our position! With your party illegal, it is not safe! If there were any arrests, we should be in a terrible position. My husband and I, as hosts—as inspirers, I might even say—of so many men and women of talent and ideas, have practically a public position. Can we endanger it?" She glanced nervously at her husband for confirmation.

"That is so," said the lawyer. "We really must consider the greatest good to the greatest numbers, you know. And my position as a professional man—it is not as though I had nothing to lose. If it were discovered that the meeting was held here, it might seriously damage— Really, while I sympathize with your ideals, as I have often said, I do not think you should come to me with this proposal."

The District Organizer was silent. He gazed at them apply, meditatively, appraisingly.

"It is not fair!" burst out the little lawyer, petulantly.

"Is this the first time we have asked you to do anything to help us?" asked the Organizer thoughtfully.

"Yes," said his host. "But you see how it is. . . ."

"Yes," said the Organizer, "I see how it is. Good evening!"

Flutteringly, his host accompanied him downstairs.

He was out upon the street again. Only an hour and a half left now, in which to find a place. He must find a place; he must find a place. It was expected of him; the comrades were waiting. The Party expected it of him! He must find a place.

He ran over, in his mind, the list of Party sympathizers living in this neighborhood.

There was So-and-So; he had a smaller place, in a poorer street. There was more risk. But still, he wasn't known to the police.

"Yes, I'll go there," he thought, brightening with decision. "He's a good sympathizer; and I don't think he'll refuse. He's a workingman."

And he hurried on towards the lamp-lit corner where the street-cars stopped.

The Imperialist League

By ALAN MACLANE

THERE is an article in last week's "Nation" by H. N. Brailsford, who is considered to be the (self-) appointed critic of the British I. L. P. (Independent Labor Party). His discussion of the League of Nations is penetrating, and he shows its wordy cloak of peace and internationalism to be mere camouflage. But the all bourgeois socialists, he fails to draw reasonable conclusions from his analysis.

He recalls Smyrna, Damascus, the war against Emir Feisal Mesopot, the British ultimatum to Persia, and he has not forgotten that "as China awaited the League's Council, British gunboats fired their salvo of welcome on the city of Wanhsien."

But with all these examples before him, he fails to realize that the armies are as large and even larger than before; the armament works are smoking busily, while the great chemical industries in each country are organized into the most powerful weapons of attack and defense yet known.

And while land and water pacifist or liberal might stop this week, Brailsford goes further. Lord Cecil says, according to a speech in London why Great Britain could not reduce her armaments. "The enemy hovers ominously in the offing, and the British navy patrols to police the empire." That quotation reveals, continues Brailsford, "as plainly as any battle diagnosis, the motives of a great power's armaments. The defense of one's home territories has become the least of the excuses for modern armaments. Recalling that "there are at this moment fifty-five British naval units in China waters, engaged, in the last analysis, in maintaining against the will of the Chinese nation certain privileges" he sees clearly that "these imperial police forces are not the guardians of the common good; THEY ARE THE DEFENDERS OF OWNERS' PRIVILEGES" (my emphasis, A. M.). And in concluding the first part of his article he says, "While it hesitates to face this problem of economic imperialism, the League is . . . etc., etc."

With this statement Brailsford reaches complete absurdity. It is as impossible for the League "to face the problem of economic imperialism" as it is for a man to stop his heart beating and still live. For if the League is considered as an organization of sixty or seventy sovereign and independent nations, trying to bring peace and cooperation by legal and evolutionary methods, its behavior since its foundation is contradictory and inexplicable. But if it is considered as a League of the Great Imperialist Powers—England, France and Japan, surrounded by their satellites, its entire past behavior becomes rigorously logical.

The League of Nations is not a "misprint in history" as Brailsford calls it. It is a definite expression of the evolution of capitalism into the stage of financial imperialism. It is merely a more highly developed means of exploitation. It is the political equivalent of the vast trustification of industry, such as the Continental Steel Cartel, or the British Chemical Combine. It glosses over the cruelties of modern imperialism with a smoke cloud of committees and councils, and a wailing about democracy, ideals and self-determination.

As such we can see why Russia will have nothing to do with it. On the other hand, America begins to feel out in the cold when opposition to her imperialism in Panama, Nicaragua or China develops. Some financiers are beginning to realize this, and the financial section of Saturday's "New York Times" bears a quarter page advertisement by a prominent firm, entirely devoted to the League of Nations. In bold headlines it asks "Can American investors afford their country's twilight zone position en the League of Nations?" It says that "Today America is the outstanding creditor nation of the world. American investments abroad, including our government's loans to foreign nations, total more than $28,000,000,000. We contend that with this amount of our money scattered over the face of the globe a continued national policy of smug isolation is ontworn."

Finally it concludes, "We believe today a preponderance of thinkers in high places consider the League the best hope and agency for world peace and good-will. We believe Americans remain responsive to ethical and altruistic argument. But if self-interest must be a concomitant of action, then for the sake of and in the name of "dollars and cents" we suggest an accounting of cost, and an indictment against further delay in America joining the League of Nations."

As for the workers, this matter of fact statement of the self-interest of Wall Street, should help to illustrate the League's true position in modern history.

On Hearing the Internationale

Voice of Labor mighty!
Rolling, thund'ring, surging,
Crashing, batt'ring, dirging
A chant of Capitalism's Tyre and Nineveh.
Voice of Labor mighty!

Song of lusty giant!
Crying "Death" to status quo,
Razing walls of Jericho,
A psalm of Mankind's happiness forever.
Song of lusty giant!

Wail of new-sprung infant!
Tearing ignorance's vitals,
Rending Dollar Kingdom's titles,
A hymn that age-old chains shall sever.
Wail of new-sprung infant!

SIMMONS GUINNE.

The Chinese Situation

By HARRY FLEMING

THE Cantonese (nationalist) troops are sweeping across central China. Between them and the corrupt Peking government which they hope to wipe out, stand the reactionary war lords and the troops of the imperialist powers which are pouring into China.

Will the Cantonese succeed in defeating the war lords, who are the tools of the foreign plundering nations; will they be able to reassert China's independence by abrogating the unequal treaties wrung from them by the foreign powers? Will they, perhaps, succeed in establishing a workers' and peasants' republic that will stand shoulder to shoulder with Soviet Russia in its fight against the imperialist nations of the world?

To attempt to answer these questions you've got to find out what all the shooting's about; you've got to get an idea of the economic and social forces underlying the nationalist movement. You've got to find out who's pulling this revolution and why.

Ask an imperialist statesman who's pulling the revolution and he'll answer "Soviet Gold." Soviet gold has purchased Sacasa, the Civil Liberties Union, Calles and the Emir of Afghanistan.

Ask a socialist and he'll give you a more plausible answer. "This is a bourgeois revolution," he'll tell you. "The industrialization of China, which has taken place in the last few decades, has given birth to a Chinese middle class. This new native bourgeoisie wants to get the gravy that has been going to the foreign capitalist. The bourgeoisie and the students are the backbone of the revolution."

There is much in this theory that is correct. The native merchants and factory owners are a powerful factor in the revolution. They and the students supplied the fireworks at first. After the Shanghai massacre the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce called a protest meeting which made the following demands:

1—The annulment of unequal treaties.
2—The return of all foreign concessions.
3—The dismissal of all foreign concessionaires.
4—The transference of the municipality of Shanghai to China.
5—The release of those arrested the day before.

But in the last year or so, the leadership in the struggle for national liberation has been assumed by the working class. Beneath the hullabaloo and the froth raised by the students and the bourgeoisie has been the tremendous drive of labor.

The forces that have created a bourgeoisie have created a proletariat—and if the Chinese industrialist has been getting it in the neck, the Chinese worker has been getting it twice as hard.

Forced from the farm by poverty and famine (the income of the average Chinese rural family of five ranges from fifty to seventy-five dollars a year) Chinese men, women, and children entered the foreign-financed factories springing up in the coast cities. All the horrible conditions that customarily attend capitalism in its early stages, exist in China. Children of six work twelve and fourteen hours a day, with not more than an hour off for meals, for twenty silver cents a day.

Since 1920 organizations of the workers has proceeded rapidly. This Chinese worker is challenging the bosses. In so far as he is challenging his foreign exploiter, he is a force (and the dominant force) in the nationalist movement; in so far as he challenges his native boss (and this angle will become infinitely more important when China has settled its scores with the imperialist powers) he is the dominant force in the creation of a Workers and Peasant's Republic.

It is a mistake, therefore, to assume as socialists do, that the interests of the Chinese worker and bourgeois are identical in China. The Chinese merchants and industrialists have often taken an openly hostile attitude toward the labor movement, as was the case in the strike of the Tian-Shang coal miners in 1922 which was suppressed by armed force and with great severity.

A word about the powers and the possibility of intervention on a large scale. Great Britain has —or will have in a few days—20,000 troops in China. Whether or not she is prepared to go much further on her limited budget and with opposition at home is open to question. The United States will probably follow England's lead. The policy of the United States and Great Britain in the far East have been more or less allied, since the United States smashed the Anglo-Japanese alliance several years ago.

From St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The Giant Is Bursting His Bonds.

Japan will probably refrain from armed intervention. Her chief concern with China is commercial. She wants raw materials from China; she wants to sell finished goods to China's vast population. Furthermore, she wants to keep on the good side of the Soviet Union.

More likely than armed intervention is that the powers, particularly Great Britain and the United States, will support and subsidize the war lords, who have been opposing the Cantonese. Sun-Chuan-Fang, who has been standing between the nationalist troops and Canton, is already allied with Great Britain. The same is true of Wu Pei Fu. It is also likely that Chang Tso-Lin, who seems to have been deserted by Japan recently, will be supported by the United States and Great Britain, in their attempt to prevent the liberation of China.

The World of William Clissold

By H. G. WELLS

(Published by Doran, N. Y., 2 v. $5).

IN 793 pages of words, Mr. Wells says the final word on science, industrialism, anthropology, the League of Nations, capitalism, psychoanalysis, love, Lenin, America, Marx, Russia and Communism. If the reader will, as he reads on, find too many quotations, it is for his amusement only.

Mr. Wells tells us somewhere along in the first volume that—"there is no more capitalism now than there was feudalism in the eleventh century." He cannot understand this consistent classification (by the Communists) of people into classes such as capitalist and proletariat. But what Mr. Wells cannot understand should result in no comment from us. It is rather what he understands or thinks he understands and passes judgment on with such audacious finality, that bristles our spleen. For Mr. Wells does write well. In a book that is more than half replete with infantile notions on everything, one, still, cannot help but be struck by the amazing quality of his prose. It is masterful. Mr. Wells has never written better—to less avail.

The World of William Clissold is being received with great acclaim by the clergy here in America. They sermonize over its tolerance and "revolutionary" utterances. And their acclaim was to be anticipated. For here is a man who offers us the Kingdom of Heaven on earth and—even though he does speak against "god"—his revolution will not oust those who support the clergy, the rich. Truly the millenium. And no more starvation. For when the big industrialists stop fighting among themselves, unite and make larger profits, then, of course, the workers shall get more pay. Easy, isn't it?

Here is something that students of Leninism may have missed when studying revolutionary tactics—"for the real revolution before mankind. I do not look to the mass of people for any help at all. I am thinking of an aristocratic and not a democratic revolution." This may interest some. "The multitude can upset anything, but it cannot create anything." Masses can only destroy. Their power in "in the strike, (where) it embodies itself in the machine-breaking expert-hunting (!) mob." That ought to suffice for what Mr. Wells thinks of the masses and revolution.

Let's laugh! Mr. Wells on Marx and Socialism. He, Marx, was an "imperfectly aerated old gentleman sitting in the British Museum." Some more. "I have accused Marx as the prime mover in the destruction of Socialism." Emphasis mine. One is almost prompted to ask if Mr. Wells does not mean the Abe Cahan brand. And is this all Mr. Wells has to say about Marx? Oh no! Mr. Wells accuses Marx of everything from wearing elastic-sided shoes to reading in the British Museum. He characterizes him as a "bearded Victorian." Marx is psycho-analyzed. Psychoanalyzed by the super-realist, Wells, who finds that "at best, he (Marx) could only copy Hegel."

The book is an interesting exposition of Fabian senility. Mr. Wells went to Russia expecting, presumably, to find the people walking around in Greek tunics and acting, in general, a la "Man Like Gods." But, no! The people wore coarse linens and had very little to eat. They had the realistic task of building Communism in a socialised country. Mr. Wells could not see that.

The book, as said before, is well written. It deserves being read for its presentation of the "liberal psychology. We are at present hearing echoes, here in America, of Mr. Wells' ideas, in the speeches and writings of William Allen White, who declares that it is the advertiser who is revolutionizing the world, not the Communist. Mr. Wells' book is full of such ideas. Read it and laugh.

Max Geltman.

On Wall Street Business.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 4.—The San Diego marine base was depleted of marines today following the embarkation yesterday afternoon of the Fourth Regiment, U. S. M. C., under command of Colonel Charles S. Hill, aboard the Transport Chaumont bound for Shanghai.

The Only Militant Labor Daily in the English Language

For the Organization of the Unorganized
For a Labor Party
For the 40-Hour Week

THE DAILY WORKER

FINAL CITY EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 21. NEW YORK, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1927 Price 3 Cents

KELLOGG SENDS THREATENING NOTE TO CHINA

Demands Neutral Zone in Shanghai

Addresses Communication to Military Leaders Ignoring Peking and Nationalist Governments

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—British labor in a mass demonstration at Albert Memorial Hall tonight protested against the dispatching of British troops to China.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Secretary of State Kellogg's note to the Cantonese government's military commander-in-chief and to the two militarists Chang-Tso-Lin and Sun Chuan-Fang demanding that the international settlement in Shanghai be eliminated fro mthe theatre of conflict was made public here tonght while dispatches continued to pour in from China with news of the rapid advance of the victorious Cantonese armies on Shanghai.

Unless the United States government can be given assurances that American lives will be safeguarded in Shanghai more warships and marines will be immediately rushed to China, Kellogg says.

Kellogg's action in addressing himself to the leader of the Cantonese armies is looked upon a studied insult to the Nationalist, government, the only responsible government in China.

Though the Peking government has a minister in Washington, Kellogg's note ignored his government and recognized instead the notorious brigand Chang-Tso-Lin.

Favors Reactionaries.

Political observers see in Kellogg's move an attempt to steal a diplomatic march on the Cantonese. They expect Chang-Tso-Lin and Sun Chuan Fang to agree to the Kellogg demands since they are tools of the imperialists and have no interest in tearing China loose from foreign clutches.

On the other hand a cardinal principle in the Cantonese program is the wresting of control of those international settlements from the foreign imperialists. The Cantonese cannot be expected to draw a chalk line around a certain section of China at the command of the imperialist powers and declare that it shall be immune from the rigors of war.

Withdrawal of Warships.

General Chiang Kai-Shek, it was pointed out, may demand a withdrawal of the steadily increasing forces of warships and troops at Shanghai as the terms upon which a neutralization of the foreign settlement can be granted.

Such a request, is was indicated, will be flatly turned down. Even though agreements was reached to keep the foreign settlement removed from the fighting zone.

Meanwhile the movement of marines and additional ships toward the Chinese area continued with all speed.

The note expresses the "anxiety" of the American government over the civil war raging in China, but the anxiety may be due more to the victorious advance of the Cantonese armies than to the loss of Chinese lives and the disruption of the business of the country as a result of the strife.

The Wise Mr. Kellogg.

Kellogg makes the profound observation that the international settlement suffers during periods of strife and prospers in times of peace, but so did the people of Europe during the late war, a fact which did not prevent the American government taking participation in it.

The note ends with the declaration that: "The American government will be ready for its part to become a party to friendly and orderly negotiations properly instituted and conducted regarding the future status of the settlement."

* * *

Attacks Soviet Union.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Reports of a bitter fight over the Chinese question

(Continued on page 2)

R. R. Mediation Gives Firemen Small Raise

Brotherhood President Says Slight Gain Satisfactory

As a result of the operation of the Watson-Parker act mediation machinery, firemen and enginemen have just agreed through their president for a settlement on the basis of less than half the wage increases demanded by them to bring their real income up to that they received before advances in the cost of living. They asked fifteen to twenty per cent raise, and get seven and a half, at least on paper.

Not only that, the railroad union officials waive all other demands of importance; mechanical stokers on extra crews on the big "hog" engines, time for meals, expenses for living away from home at the end of divisions, etc.

Robertson Satisfied

Although making these sacrifices for the men, President D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen says he is quite satisfied.

"We are highly pleased with the efforts of Mr. Hanger, one of the most experienced of the government mediators, his experience running back to the time of the Erdman and Newlands acts."

Mr. Hanger said both sides had been "reasonable and business like" and that they had discussed matters "without heat."

Much Talk, Little Money.

The agreement just adopted provides for a "sliding scale" involving continual further negotiation as to just exactly how much wages the men receive at any time. It is retroactive to February 1.

It follows two weeks' negotiations between the government's mediator, Wallace W. Hanger, of the Federal Board of Mediation, with the employers' committee and the union officials. The discussions took place in the Waldorf hotel, New York. The case opened with demands made June 25, 1926, by the union for wage increases and other relief.

Meeting to Protest Coolidge Nicaraguan Invasion, Thursday

A meeting to protest against the invasion of Nicaragua, the bullying of Mexico by the American state department, and the sending of troops and battleships to China, will be held at Cooper Union, on 8th street, between 3rd and 4th avenues, this Thursday night (February 10), under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party.

The speakers will be Scott Nearing, author of "Dollar Diplomacy", Jay Lovestone, William F. Dunne, a representative of the Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist Party, Benjamin Gitlow, William W. Weinstone and Bertram D. Wolfe.

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

A RECENT issue of Advance, official organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, contained a lengthy editorial on the present situation in the needle trades unions and particularly on the move to exclude all known Communists from those unions and from the trade unions in general. The editorial commented on the glee with which the ousting of the radicals is hailed by the socialists and observed that if this policy is carried out, the socialists will also come in for a share of the medicine intended solely for Communist discomfiture.

* * *

This little bit of criticism of the expulsion policy championed by the socialists and the Tammany Hall labor leaders did not escape the eagle eye of the editor of The New Leader. Evidently amazed that such heresy should see the light of day in the official organ of Abraham Beckerman's slurping squad, Mr. Oneal hastened to assure the intellectual editor of Advance that socialists did not entertain the idea that Communists as such should be excluded from the unions. Oh, no! Only Communists whose presence is injurious to the unions.

* * *

Such generosity on the part of Mr. Oneal is about as substantial as the I. O. U. of a confidence man. Mr. Oneal has nothing to give and if he had, he would not give it. The type of person who would believe the word of Frank B. Kellogg or give serious consideration to an official announcement from the British foreign office might assume that editor Oneal was not talking tarr the Abe Cahan. But we can see the Ethiopian's toe sticking out from beneath the underbrush. If we can be introduced to a labor faker who thinks there is an interest in an animated Communist to which the term "good" can be applied we will show you a labor faker who does not know enough to come in out of the rain, yea, a labor faker who holds his job, either because there is no money in his treasury or because William Green is not aware of his presence in the labor movement.

* * *

The New Leader devotes approximately 50 per cent of its weekly space to attacking the Communists. The capitalist system is almost forgotten. Perhaps the socialists will return to their old hat after the Communists are destroyed. The official organs of the open shop movement brazenly declare that they are supporting the anti-Communist leaders, but when the battle ends in a Communist defeat (this is the hope, but the bible said that "hope deferred maketh the heart sick), they are open shoppers will return to their war on trade unionism. In our opinion the socialists are thru fighting capitalism.

* * *

In his "Timely Topics" column, Doctor Norman Thomas preaches occasionally against the foes of the horny-handed sons of toil, with as much or as little fervor as he formerly preached against the devil and his bad angels. Thomas is one of the few living specimens in the socialist party who is willing to identify himself with any struggle where a wicked Communist is suspected of being engaged in the nefarious business of agitating the minds of the workers against the employing class. Even Doc. Thomas is not what he used to be in this respect. It is hard to know which side he is on at times. He sometimes slaps his reactionary bed-mates on the wrist, then turns around and plants a well-directed kick on the Communist midriff. A useful come-on for the socialists! The League for Industrial Democracy is one of the socialist decoys used to entice the non-socialist flies into the socialist party web. The New Leader occasionally publishes a list of organizations influenced by the Workers (Communist) Party. It charges the party with deception because of this policy of building auxiliary organizations that provide a recruiting ground for the party and help to bring more workers into radical ac-

(Continued on page 2)

Pupil Stops Fire

While 1,000 boys and girls marched quietly out of the building, Joseph Colatcurna, 17, a pupil in the East Side continuation school, extinguished a blaze which he discovered in an air shaft.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

British Tories Plan to Outlaw Strike Weapon

"King's" Hypocritical Speech On Chinese Situation

LONDON, Feb. 6.—King George will declare a new session of Parliament open on Tuesday, the ceremony being characterized by the usual pomp and splendor.

His speech which the cabinet finished last Friday will be most important from an international viewpoint in its references to China.

The speech insists that British aggression in China is of a "defensive" character, and that the government is in sympathy with the national aspirations of the Chinese as long as they are not "inconsistent with legitimate British interests."

Silent On Latin-America.

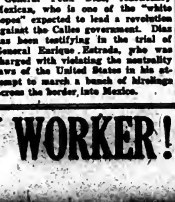
It is not believed that the King will refer to the disturbances in Mexico and Nicaragua, this silence being a result of the deal which assures Britain of United States support in China.

In the domestic field the government has placed at the forefront of its program for the coming session a bill which strikes at the heart of trade unionism by declaring the strike region illegal. The speech will make a distinction between "economic" strikes and "political" strikes, but this is only a distinction without a difference since every strike of any consequence takes on a political character.

Extremists of the conservative party are seeking to deprive the unions of the right to use their funds for political purposes but the cabinet fears the risks of alienating all the support of the workers by any such drastic measure.

Thousands of trade unionists still support Tory candidates and a party caucus has resolved not to invite defeat at the next general election by driving these voters into the Labor Party.

Slams U. S. Movies.



Another domestic measure which the "King's" speech will mention is a bill compelling film exhibitors to show a small percentage of British made films, thus forbidding all-American programs in theaters.

It is predicted the treasury will insist on an extension of the income tax to the huge profits made from American films exhibited in Britain.

Killed While Cleaning Sidewalk.

Mrs. Catherine Hirschliffe, 56 years old, slipped on the ice today when she was clearing off the sidewalk in front of her home. She sustained a fracture of the skull and was dead when a neighboring physician arrived.

Imperialist Tool

General Felix Diaz, reactionary Mexican, who is one of the "white hopes" expected to lead a revolution against the Calles government. Diaz has been testifying in the trial of General Enrique Estrada, who was charged with violating the neutrality laws of the United States in his attempt to march a bunch of hirelings across the border into Mexico.

MEETING OF DRESSMAKERS AFTER WORK TONIGHT TO DISCUSS DISASTROUS CONTRACT BY SIGMAN

Indignation of the dressmakers over the agreement which was signed by President Sigman on Saturday, will be voiced tonight at a meeting to be held in Webster Hall right after work.

Two other meetings, of shop chairmen and active union members, have been arranged at the headquarters of Local 22, at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. today.

Pure Treachery.

"An act of the blackest treachery" this agreement is called by C. S. Zimmerman, manager of the dress department of Joint Board, and its terms will be discussed and denounced in detail by the members who attend tonight's meeting.

In a call issued to the dressmakers, it is stated that Louis Schwartz, president of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, Inc., remarked at a meeting of the contractors that never in the history of the association have the contractors been able to achieve such a sweeping victory over the union.

Still Worse Coming.

Zimmerman not only accuses President Sigman of betraying the union by this "scab agreement," but declares that as usual the international officials have arranged a secondary "secret" agreement which will eventually become known to the dressmakers and which "completely does away with the union standards and places our industry on an open shop basis with a union label."

Sigman's Excuse.

In a press statement yesterday, President Sigman announces that with the signing of the dress agreement "70,000 cloak and dress makers can rest secure in their livelihood for two years to come." He says the "union will now devote itself to rehabilitate its strength and morale which have been admittedly undermined by the disastrous conduct of the cloak strike in which $3,500,000 was expended by the Communist leaders." Such wild charges have many times been refuted by Joint Board officials, but it is not unexpected to find them offered as excuses for treason.

What the dressmakers think of such explanations and the prospect of "resting secure" in the sort of agreement that Sigman has handed the manufacturers, will be fully expressed at Webster Hall tonight.

"A. P." Defends Helping Olds' Mexican Lie

Other Press Bureaus Would Not Enter Conspiracy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—L. C. Probert, superintendent of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, publicly defends his organization for its ready compliance with the wish of Assistant Secretary of State Olds in disseminating anti-Mexican propaganda, especially the "Red Scare" stories, at a critical time in the relations between that country and this.

In a speech before the Twentieth Century Club, he described the A. P. as influencing the course of history, combating Bolshevism, and enlarging the influence of the United States in foreign countries to the south of it through these stories, without regard as to whether there was any proof of the sensational "revelations" themselves.

"Created Sensation."

Probert claimed credit for his association for having created a news sensation, brought out charges and a showdown on facts, and thereby led the way to a better understanding as to what had happened in Mexico and Nicaragua. Instead of apologizing for starting a false report, he blandly posed as the promoter of investigation and possible changes in governmental policy.

"What does it all mean?" he asked. "It means that a great deal has happened that never would have happened if the Associated Press had failed to report what was going on. Presume for a moment that the Associated Press had fallen in its duty. The American people wouldn't have learned of the situation otherwise. Other disseminators of news admit they didn't tell the public about it because they were declining to be used."

Rivals More Honest.

In this argument, the A. P. official hits out at the Scripps and the Hearst telegraphic news services, whose correspondents at the state department refused to say that Mexico was a bolshevist agent unless Olds could produce evidence or make the claim on his own responsibility. No other press correspondent was permitted to be present at the secret conference where Olds tried to "frame" the press on this occasion. The three men invited in were sworn to secrecy. Other correspondents learning the facts afterward through a leak in the secrecy dike, denounced the Olds scheme of press-framing.

Two Brothers Conservative.

At the head of the A. P. is Frank Noyes of the Washington Star, a paper that has grown very wealthy by always approving the conservatism and anti-unionism of the party in power.

19 Airplanes Prepare For Flight to China; Expect Orders Shortly

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 6.—Preparations for an immediate embarkation of the west coast marine corps aircraft squadron to China have been completed by Major Ross Rowell, commander of the force, it was announced today.

The squadron, which consists of ten commissioned officers and enlisted pilots, fifteen mechanics and nineteen fighting, bombing and observation planes, may be ordered to China in the immediate future, said reports in circulation here today.

Major Rowell declared that his squadron is fully equipped and ready for embarkation the minute the orders arrive.

MOUNTED POLICE OFFICER TO FACE STRIKERS TODAY

Rode His Horse Against Pickets on Sidewalk

A hearing on the charges made against mounted patrolman Mathew J. Wolf, of traffic A, shield No. 7714, is ordered for today at 11 A. M. at the office of the first district under Inspector Arthur J. Dodd.

The union was informed that an investigation will be made of its complaint which rises out of the fact that he rode on the sidewalk without warning into an orderly line of picketers, majority of which was girls.

Worker Is Trampled On.

One worker, Bonchi Friedman, was trampled on, and had to be treated for injuries to his back. One student,

(Continued on page 2)

Get Zeppelin For Polar Flight

RIGA, Feb. 3.—Professor Eckener, director of the Zeppelin Company, has placed at the disposal of a company, which is being formed in Leningrad, a Zeppelin airship for a flight to the polar regions, the Soviet Official Agency announced today. A series of exploration flights are intended, it is said.

Shop Chairmen's Meeting Scores Rosalsky

Starts Drive to Free His Cloakmaker Victims

A call is going out today to all labor organizations in this city to attend mass meetings, in Webster Hall, Cooper Union, Manhattan Lyceum and other halls, on Wednesday, February 9th, to initiate a nation-wide move to free the sixteen cloak strikers who were so heavily sentenced by Judge Otto Rosalsky on January 28th.

As the first step in this campaign, more than 1,500 shop chairmen and representatives of labor organizations crowded Webster Hall on Saturday afternoon to prepare for the fight in behalf of these workers who were sentenced for their union activities.

Brauner Presides.

The chairman of the Cloakmakers' Shop Chairmen's Council, I. Brauner, presided at the conference and explained that the meeting was the beginning of a mighty protest to be carried throughout the country; and each speaker who followed pointed out that the freeing of these men who had been so penalized was absolutely necessary to the whole labor movement.

Hyman Points Danger.

"If these workers can be put behind prison bars, separated from their wives and children, for their picketing activities during a strike," said Louis Hyman, general manager of the Cloakmakers Joint Board, "no worker will be safe in future labor struggles.

"All the labor forces of the country must be made to realize that an injustice to these cloakmakers in New York is a blow at workers everywhere. If a judge with the known prejudices of Judge Otto Rosalsky is allowed to impose such unprecedented prison terms, without a protest from the workers, judges in other parts of the country will quickly follow his example. Such a practice must be stopped now before it spreads."

Gold Scores Rosalsky.

Ben Gold, in denouncing Judge Rosalsky and his sentencing of the cloakmakers, pointed out that he persecuted Jewish workers this way in court, while in his leisure hours he was an ardent Zionist.

"President Sigman joins with Rosalsky, and Abe Cahan, another Zionist, in throwing workers into jail and trying by these methods to break the

(Continued on page 5).

Alien Property Graft Comes to Trial Again Today; Daugherty Case

Harry M. Daugherty and Colonel Thomas W. Miller, the Ohio buccaneers who are charged with accepting $391,000 for granting a $7,000,000 claim to a Swiss company, will be tried for the second time when they appear before Federal Judge John C. Knox today.

Since the first trial, which ended in the acquittal of Daugherty and Miller, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner has been gathering more evidence against the pair. In an effort to locate some of the payments of the bribe, he is examining the books of banks having business relations with the Midland National Bank of Washington Court House, Ohio, of which Mal. S. Daugherty, Harry Daugherty's brother, is an officer.

HINDU NATIONALIST PARTY IN AMERICA CALLS ON INDIANS NOT TO FIRE ON CANTONESE

The Hindustan Gadar Party, No. 5, Wood Street, San Francisco, Cal., an organization working for freedom for India, writes The DAILY WORKER:

"Through your valuable columns, we wish to send our message of deep sympathy towards the National Liberation movement of China. Our party wishes the people of China to know that India is with china heart and soul. We urge upon all the Hindustanees in China to co-operate with the National forces of China. We consider any Hindu a traitor to India if he fires upon the Chinese in behalf of British Imperialism.—(Signed) M. Singh."

Ask Your Newsdealer For The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Workers To Buy It!

COMMERCE CHIEF SAYS ACCIDENTS HINDER SHIPPING

U. S. Shipowners Kill Too Many Sailors

(By Federated Press).

NEW YORK (FP).—Cutting seamen's wages is not the way to put the American flag back on the seas. This contention of the International Seamen's Union was successfully sustained by Norman P. Thom, chief of the transportation division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, speaking before the Propeller Club he said that inefficient management methods were the reasons why America was having difficulty in competing with foreign owners.

And one of the worst sins of American management, Thom pointed out, was its carelessness towards industrial accidents. The large number of accidents to workers needlessly injured in the marine industry is taking an increasing financial toll. Damage suits brought by injured workers have become a formidable item. His remarks follow in part:

Cites Wastes.

"It is not the high cost of operation under the American flag, but the high cost of extravagant and inefficient management which has been the chief factor in preventing us from meeting successfully the competition of foreign flag shipping in overseas trade. Until shipowners set their own house in order and follow the example of scientific management, efficiency and economy set by the big American industries we will not have real American merchant marine supremacy.

Costly Insurance.

"One outstanding element of cost in America in insurance on personal injury claims covered by compensation or protection and indemnity policies. . . . The matter of the increasing number and severity of accidents is one of supreme importance. Holmes & Sons, probably the leading writers of protection and indemnity insurance, are authority for the statement that their record loss of life and personal injury claims on British vessels is 5d (pence) per gross registered ton, and on American vessels 2s (shillings) 6d per gross registered ton; in other words the accident ratio on American vessels is six times greater than on British vessels.

High Priced Accidents.

"Surely, here is room for improvement. If trouble is caused by excessive accidents—the remedy is to reduce the number of accidents. Safety engineers now claim that 75 to 90 per cent of all accidents are preventable."

The International Seamen's Union has been waking up the shipping world to the accident situation by its aggressive policy of damage suits for injured marine workers. With Simon Axtell, veteran marine lawyer, representing the organization, a heavy financial retribution has repeatedly been levied on erring shipowners who let their workers be needlessly maimed and killed.

Would Cheapen Lives.

Thom sees that these accidents are bad business for the shipowners. He looks at it in a dollar and cents way. He favors a federal maritime workmen's compensation law. And here the union disagrees. The seamen's union finds that its damage suits bring higher sums than the restricted payments provided under the kind of compensation law that would be passed. And the higher the financial penalty to the careless employer the more certain he is to reduce accident risks.

Barber Progressives Rouse Official Wrath By Demanding Activity

Charged with the heinious crimes of issuing a leaflet and holding "secret meetings" progressive members of Local 900 of the Barbers' Union, will be hailed before an investigating committee this evening.

The leaflet, which has aroused the ire of the local's reactionary officials, is a thoro condemnation of the administration's policies.

Contract Breaches.

That wages often fail to come up to the minimum scale, that non-union men are permitted to work in supposedly union shops, that elections for officers have been fixed, are among the accusations levelled against the administration in the leaflet.

The cry of "Communist" was raised against the progressive element in the union and will probably be raised again this evening.

Demand Activity.

The platform of the progressives demands an intensive organization campaign in New York amalgamation of New York locals, the organization of the beauty parlors, separation of the office of president from that of the organizer, rank and file joint boards, rank and file control of the organization, and economy.

Accuse La Guardia.

WASHINGTON—Chester P. Mills, federal dry administrator for New York, was again accused for making "political capital" for Fiorello La Guardia, (R) of New York, in a statement issued

ANNOUNCING A NEW COLUMN

THE DAILY WORKER presents on this page today a column of satire, irony, wit, literary sketches, what not, for readers and non-readers alike. Name of column: a column of satire, irony, wit, literary sketches, what not, for readers and non-readers alike. Name of column: TOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS" and conducted by Eugene Lyons.

"Now I want chief contributor to do the actual writing to his own attitude is to be determined by the reader. He undertakes the job in the conviction that he will be flooded with contributions by readers.

He realizes that F. P. A., Heywood Broun and the rest of the wise crackers are eternally complaining that they have no time for their own humor. But that, he hopes, is because these gentlemen and their contributors don't see the jobs in the news. They are bourgeois-minded. But for the readers of THE DAILY WORKER all of American life is a great forum—the plight of exploiters, the beastliness of politics, the idiocy of capitalism, the loathsomeness of its great men, the furious attempts to put a patent-leather gloss on the horrors of its money-madness.

All these things are in the news. But these comments add stray thoughts and ironic touches which don't fit into the news columns or the literary columns or the art columns are wanted for the "Footnotes."

Among the contributions that are wanted especially, are:

Poems—or just verse.

Clippings from the press; bits that are especially funny or tragic; bits that might fit into a radical "Americana," quotations from Mencken being particularly welcome.

Comments on the news.

Cartoons.

Short stories, the kind that fit into a few paragraphs.

And anything else that you care to try on the conductor of the column. Address contributions to Eugene Lyons, care THE DAILY WORKER, 33 East First Street.

Kellogg Plan Would Aid Chang-Tso-Lin

(Continued from page 1).

between two factions in the cabinet persist. The blood and iron group is reported to be winning over the "moderate" faction led by Sir Austen Chamberlain. Churchill is the leader of the blackjack brigade. It is rumored that Premier Baldwin is being won over to the Churchill faction.

The capitalist papers continue the agitation in favor of a rupture with the Soviet Union. Screaming headlines demand that the commercial and diplomatic representatives of Russia be given their passports. The Soviet government is constantly blamed for the militancy of the Cantonese government and the "unyielding attitude" of Eugene Chen, the foreign minister. The Communist press points out that the butchering of innocent and unarmed Chinese workers by British armed forces and the general brutal and greedy policy of the imperialist power is responsible for the harvest of hate that is now being reaped by the British government.

Churchill Stirs Mud.

Churchill continues to hurl insults at Russia, China and A. J. Cook, the leader of the miners. The chancellor of the exchequer hopes to step into Baldwin's shoes on the issue of breaking with the Soviet Union and a more aggressive campaign against the Cantonese. The vitriolic firebrand is almost as unpopular with the more balanced conservatives as he is with the liberals, many of whom deserted him a cabinet post in the tory government. In view of his brilliant but disastrous military and naval strokes during the war the ruling classes hesitate to trust the helm of the ship of state to hands that are steadier when wrapped around a well-filled champagne glass than at the helm of a battleship.

Fascists With Britain.

Great Britain has succeeded in lining up Italy for a war on the Cantonese. Mussolini, ardent admirer of Churchill's hat, who visited Italy recently ostensibly to make sketches of historic spots. The French government is now convinced that Mussolini has showed Mussolini pictured a fat French goose ready for the spit which Italy could have the pleasure of devouring without any growling interference from the British lion provided Italy aided British schemes in China. The Italian government originally refused the British request for co-operation in China. Now the fascist papers are playing up the need for Italian action in the French side with Great Britain. What did Churchill offer Mussolini, is a popular question nowadays in French newspapers. It is well known that Britain has his eyes on the French colonies in Northern Africa and in Syria.

* * *

Mopping Up Sun's Brigades.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—The Cantonese armies continue to mop up the demoralized forces of Sun Chuan Fang and are making progress in their drive on Shanghai. The increasing anxiety of the powers can be attributed to the conviction that the Cantonese will be in Shanghai before sufficient imperialist force is available to hold it for the foreign capitalists.

Oppose Sending Troops.

Many foreigners here are strongly opposed to the sending of troops to China. Those residents are of the opinion that the powers might as well bow to the inevitable, that there is so much volume to the nationalist movement that it cannot be stemmed. Several Americans comment adversely on the French promise to treat with the first stable government that appears in China. This is simply objective support of the bandit militarist tools of the imperialists.

Britain intends to use her fleet to cut the Cantonese off from their southern base by patrolling the Yangtze river as far as Hankow and to blockade the Chinese coast. The main purpose of the blockade is the prevention of arms shipments.

There is little doubt that the powers will fight to retain their political footing in Shanghai. There is less doubt about the intention of the Cantonese to fight like furies to capture it.

France Supports Italian Deal.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Premier Poincare has given the Chinese demand that the League of Nations take action to prevent Great Britain from making war on China. Such action is considered possible in view of Italy's declared intention to support Great Britain's policy in the Orient. France is of the opinion that the bargain behind this policy was made at the expense of the League's business. Britain dominates the league, though at the last elections to the league assembly a large number of French puppet states were successful in getting in on the ground floor.

League Of Robbers.

The Cantonese will have nothing to do with the League of Nations, branding it as an imperialist tool and a foe of subject peoples. During the period of strained relations between Great Britain and Turkey over the Mosul oil fields, a league commission headed by an Esthonian general gave Great Britain the oil and Turkey the can.

But the Cantonese are marching on Shanghai and only a rapid-motion commission could hand down a decision fast enough to suit the British, and in view of possible French hostility the commission might not be as generous as the former oil-bearing one.

* * *

Fifty U. S. War Vessels in China.

PEKIN, Feb. 6. More than fifty American war vessels are now in Chinese waters or within a few days steaming of this turbulent country.

Rear Admiral Hough in command of the Yangtse Patrol now has under his orders the U. S. S. Isabel, the U. S. Elcano, the U. S. S. Monocacy, the U. S. S. Palos, the U. S. S. Penguin, the U. S. S. Pigeon and the U. S. S. Vaillabolos. These vessels have been busily engaged during the past week protecting women and children evacuating Hankow and Ichang and are now keeping the Yangtze open for refugees coming down from Chunking and Chengtu in Szechuan.

Captain J. M. Hoover is commanding the South China patrol, with the U. S. S. Helena and the U. S. S. Pampagna, is stationed in South China.

* * *

Ready to Land Troops.

Admiral Williams in command of the Asiatic fleet, which generally winters in the Philippines, is now at Shanghai on the Flagship Pittsburg and has perfected plans for landing 3,000 marines in Shanghai. Twenty-four destroyers, ten auxiliary ships and eleven submarines of the Asiatic fleet are ready for duty in China.

In Pekin here are 480 marines stationed as a legation guard, while the 15th U. S. Infantry of approximately 800 men is stationed at Tientsin.

* * *

Money For Barracks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — An appropriation by congress of $1,066,000 for construction of new barracks at Governors' Island, was considered virtually assured today.

The house is expected to accept a senate amendment to the army post construction fund, calling for new barracks at Fort Jay, Governors' Island.

Responding to the appeals that disgraceful housing conditions at Governors' Island be corrected, members of congress are falling into line.

* * *

'Washington "Abandons Hope."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6. — The administration reports that it has abandoned hope of early peace in China, will refuse the plea of Foreign Minister Chen, of the Kuomintang government that no more warships come to Shanghai and will rush all available cruisers either to Chinese ports, or to nearby island ports.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Panama President to Retain Office Until New U.S. Treaty Made

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone, Feb. 6—In view of the pending treaty with the United States, President Chiari has decided not to resign from office to become a candidate for re-election.

A president who desires to run again must resign twenty months before election. His resignation at this time is indivisible, according to the decision of the liberal party leaders.

POLICE OFFICER TO FACE STRIKERS TODAY

Rode His Horse Against Pickets on Sidewalk

(Continued from Page 1)

Donald Chase, of Union Theological Seminary, who was present in the mass picket line, was struck in the face by Patrolman Wolf. He made an individual complaint and is also being asked to come to the hearing. Other complaints have been made by Norman Thomas, Florence Gellar, Juliet Poyntz and many others.

It is interesting that Mathew Wolf admitted on the witness stand when cross questioned by the lawyer for the union, that he knew the man who is leading the open shop for the bosses, for the last seven years.

The union has crowded mass meetings daily. Committees are being sent to all workers to be on the picket line Monday evening even if working in other trades.

William Karlin, attorney for the paper box makers' union has been invited by Harry M. Durning, member of the mayor's fact finding committee on the paper box strike to be present at its first hearing Monday, Feb. 7th, at 12 noon, a place to be appointed later. Acting Mayor McKee prevailed upon the representatives of the Greater New York Paper Box Manufacturers' Association to have their attorney, Samuel Wallerstein be present at the same time.

The employers have received another letter from the mayor asking them to rescind their former resolution not to meet the union and to have representatives at Monday's hearing for the purpose of arbitration.

Boss Strikes Girl.

A paper box employer was fined $25.00 today for striking in the face a young girl who was picketing his shop. Justice Corrigan in Tombs court found guilty of assault Isidore Travin, of Travin & Son Paper Box Co., 191 Mercer St. on the complaint of Jeanette Lionetti, 86 Orchard St., 18 years old. She says that he struck her in the face, causing her lip to bleed and her nose to swell, tearing her dress while she was on the picket line. The officer making the arrest saw her lip bleeding and was finally prevailed upon to make the arrest.

The Consumers League an organization headed by Mrs. Daniel O'Day, wrote the following letter to managers of the department stores now using the boxes made in the shops still on strike:

"After attending the hearings at the City Hall on the box-makers' strike, the executive committee of the Consumers' League feels a deep sympathy with the efforts of eminent citizens and the city authorities to bring about a conference or arbitration between the strikers and their former employers.

"The Paper Box Makers' Association has refused all forms of conference, declaring that there is at present no strike—a statement which we find is not borne out by the facts.

"We are appealing to you as one of the immediate consumers of the product involved to use your good offices with the box manufacturers to induce them to meet their former employes and to put an end to the bad sanitary conditions under which, if we are correctly informed, many of these boxes are made.

"The Consumers' League feels its duty to be to secure decent working conditions for the people who make the goods which the league members enjoy. That is why we are turning to you, confident of your co-operation in this enterprise.

Sincerely yours,

MRS. DANIEL O'DAY,

Director.

Plan Concert for Relief.

The concert and dance which the union is running to raise relief will be held Friday at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue. The finest talent has been secured and a five-piece jazz band will furnish the music. Valentine Rightland will play a four hand piano recital assisted by Anne Falley. Hyman Licht will play the violin and George Rightland will entertain on the mandolin. Tickets are 50 cents each and can be secured either at the union, 701 Broadway, or at the office of the Emergency Committee for Strikers' Relief, 799 Broadway. The heroic fight of the union has won public opinion. Public support is needed even more desperately and is invited thru the attendance of the union's friends at this dance.

British Press Worried Over Discriminating Clauses in U. S. Bill

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The new U. S. senate bill which would prevent vessels carrying aliens among their crews from entering American ports was severely criticised in an editorial in this morning's Sunday Times.

"The folly of supposing that a merchant can commerce and maintain a great merchant navy by hampering the merchant navies of the rest of the world is or should be patent," the editorial states.

Tell your friends to buy The DAILY WORKER at the newsstands.

The Farmer Now Crowd Continues to Develop An Increasing Support

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

THE very significant news comes from Washington that the "Plans made by the army for accomplishing a navy building program before adjournment on March 4 much larger than was contained possible at the opening of congress in December."

This is not the message that the so-called "Good Fliers" are carrying to the countries of South America.

Yet it would be positively correct if these fliers, headquarters of great air armed forces to carry out the mandates of "Dollar Diplomacy," would scatter leaflets among the inhabitants of the cities over which they passed, telling of the big navy being built in the United States under orders from Wall Street imperialism. It could be added with perfect truth that these battleships are being spawned in American navy yards as weapons to protect the right of American investors, thru their dollars, to plunder and rob all Latin America, even against its bitter resistance.

* * *

The resentment of Nicaragua at the oppressive rule of American imperialism, which won the almost instant support of the masses in all other Central and South American countries, has no doubt been used by the big navy crowd to force senators and members of the house of representatives into line. Some of these capitalist statesmen make "peace" speeches and then, thru voting greater armaments, help speed the preparation of the international bankers for the coming war.

* * *

Representative Britten, (republican-Illinois), joins with Representative Woodrum (democrat-Virginia), in developing bi-partisan support for the bigger navy.

It was Fred Britten who brought the Army-Navy football game to Chicago, last November, as one of the biggest bits of war preparedness propaganda ever put over in this country, carrying the Eastern militarist idea to the anti-militarist West.

Woodrum comes from the state of Senator Swanson, ardent supporter of the world court and league of nations program of Coolidge section of the republican party, that advances the interests of the Wall Street foreign bond sharks.

Both the democratic and republican parties are therefore on record, in numerous bills, as the parliamentary lackeys of the dollar's ambitions beyond the seas.

* * *

On the heels of the bi-partisan vote in the senate, providing an appropriation of $1,250,000 to begin work on three new cruisers, and the vote of the opposition to the $21,400,000 for reconditioning the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada, to increase the limit of cost of the airplane carriers, Lexington and Saratoga, and for a new $4,000,000 submarine. Craft above and below the water, and in the air, are thus provided for, which should satisfy the war maniacs of all schools of preparedness.

In addition, with the approval of President Coolidge, it is also planned to put thru a ten cruiser program, appropriations for which will come later.

In spite of Great Britain's protest, that elevation of guns on battleships would violate treaty obligations Britten is pushing energetically his proposed plan for gun elevation on eleven battleships. With the United States acquiescing in British imperialist policies in the Orient it is probably hoped that London will change its attitude toward gun elevation, making the concession that will result in American killers being able to murder their victims at greater distances than ever before.

In the words of the Virginia democratic, Woodrum, "the United States must be prepared to protect its rights on the high seas and insure its rights to uninterrupted commerce."

* * *

Thus the bulldogs of American greed, not only in Nicaragua, Mexico and China, but everywhere else, go hunting the trouble that develops imperialist aggressions into new wars—into the next world war.

No single votes in congress speaks or the growing numbers of workers and farmers who oppose the war preparedness program of the American exploiters, now grown dominant in the world for the time being as a result of the last world war.

In practically every parliament in the world, there are strong groups of Communists demanding the ending of imperialist war and the abolition of capitalist rule. Such a demand must also be heard in Washington. This can only be achieved thru the breaking away, of ever broader masses of workers and farmers, from the old political parties. The Labor Party is the present instrument with which to achieve this cleavage. Against the efforts of the war-mongers for the greatest armaments this profit world has yet known, the demand of workers and farmers for the independent political action of labor to build the ever-increasing power of toil against humanity's oppressors.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from page 1)

tivity than could be reached by a direct party appeal.

We do not raise our hands in a sanctimonious gesture of indignation because the socialist party has sprung this liberal fraud, the L. I. D., on the workers. We are not going to accuse the socialists of organizing it in order to financially milk the workers, for the good reason that the workers would not give a drop to this fake organization. Furthermore, it does not have to beg for money from the workers. It is endowed. What we would call to the attention of our readers to the flimsy structure on which this particular socialist criticism is based. A structure of obvious lies. There is no political immorality involved in building auxiliary organizations to attract the masses, provided the purpose is honest and the aim in harmony with the best interests of the working class. Organizations under Communist direction will never be found collaborating with the employers, the government and with the labor fakers.

"Economy Cal" Willing To Spend Real Money For More Submarines

Bulletin.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 — President Coolidge today submitted to congress a supplemental budget recommendation of $2,942,542 for the navy department during the current fiscal year.

The amount would cover extra expenses due to the marine guard of the mails and bring the marine corps to its full strength of 18,000 by the end of the fiscal year, a total of $1,060,000 was recommended for the marine corps.

Polish Police Fire On Open Air Meeting

KOSSOW, Poland, Feb. 6. — Five persons were killed and eight were seriously wounded today when the police opened fire upon an open-air meeting. Police had prohibited the meeting but the organizers disregarded the ban.

Scott Nearing Makes Rubber Company Spies In Audience Wriggle

By CARL HACKER.

AKRON, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Lecturing under the auspices of the International Labor Department Scott Nearing made a splendid talk on the attack which American employers have been carrying on against organized labor in this country in the past years.

He explained the situation in which labor finds itself by being only about thirteen per cent organized as against the practically 100 per cent organization of the employers through their various Chambers of Commerce, their Rotary Clubs, their Kiwanis Clubs, etc.

Bosses Organize.

He pointed to an outstanding example of the watchfulness of the employers when he stated that in the city of Detroit the manufacturers are completely organized while labor is only 3 per cent organized. Nearing explained the various methods employed by the bosses to prevent the workers from getting together and in breaking up organizations which they might have been successful in building up in years gone by.

Pointing out very clearly that the newspapers are owned and controlled by the manufacturers and by Wall Street, Nearing showed how all of the same elements, showing the buying up of union officials by way of offering them jobs at higher salaries than their organizations are able to pay them; he then launched into an attack upon the company spy system.

Explains Spy Tactics.

He explained the methods that are used in checking up on workers in the shops, and as he did so, the half dozen or more of wall knaves rubber company spies who were in the audience looked rather uneasy and squirmed around in their chairs with a very pronounced expression of pain on their faces. The audience of 200 remained throughout the question period.

Nearing also spoke in Cleveland, to an audience of 900; this meeting being equally as interesting as the Akron meeting.

Subscribe to the DAILY WORKER.

MCNARY-HAUGEN BILL LOG-ROLLS THRU CONGRESS

Every Effort to Give Farmers Weak Relief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was well on its way today to enactment by the present congress with prospects of its being tossed onto the White House steps within two weeks for the signature of President Coolidge.

With final vote anticipated in the senate by next Wednesday, the bill will be hurried there by the house, where farm bloc leaders predict its passage by a margin of 50 votes. The bill, unless the house changes the senate form, will then go to the President for his approval or rejection.

Smash Filibuster.

Senate leaders announced that they would brook no filibustering against the bill and that they were ready to invoke cloture to shut off debate if dilatory tactics were adopted by the opposition. There will be a 66 to 14 majority for the bill, test votes indicate.

In the house, the farm bloc leaders announced they would call up the farm bill either Tuesday or by Thursday at the latest. In passage by the house, it was said, will be postponed until after the senate has enacted the bill in order to avoid, if possible, any additional delay by being forced to send two conflicting measures to conference. Both Rep. Haugen (R.) Iowa, author, and Rep. Dickinson (R.) of Iowa, leader of the house bloc, predicted enactment of the bill.

Log Rolling Wins.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine in fighting the bill, telling farmers at meetings that what they need is trustification. The entire measure seemed doomed until a week ago when a log rolling compact was made between middle western congressmen, anxious to make a gesture of relief of their farmer constituents, and a sinister industrial group, determined to lower taxes on corporations and pass the McFadden-Pepper-Branch banking act.

It is as a result of this compact, proposed first by the banker group, that the farm relief bill is going through congress.

Increase Wall Sreet's Naval Forces in China

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — A still further increase in American naval strength in Chinese waters is expected within a few days. This will be in addition to the 1,200 marines now on the way to join the Asiatic fleet, and the three cruisers which sailed from Balboa yesterday.

All details of the government's plans in China have not been announced, but it has been determined that the plans will be carried out to its fullest extent despite whatever protests may be received from the Canton and Peking foreign ministers from the Chinese minister here or from congress.

That this government has a tacit understanding with the British for co-operation in the matter of a military movement in Shanghai is now believed certain, although the state department denies that it has been in correspondence with the London foreign office on the subject.

The response of Eugene Chen, Cantonese leader, to Secretary Kellogg's policy statement, now being awaited here, is expected to take the form of a protest against American naval movements.

Chen has shown no desire to recede from his stand of refusing to deal with the powers in the question of treaty revision unless he is at the same time assured that such negotiations imply the recognition of Canton as the central government of China.

Soviet Union Heads Deny Chen's Adviser Is Government Agent

Moscow, Feb. 6.—Officiel Russia and the Russian press today joined to denials that Russian influence caused Eugene Chen, Chinese nationalist leader, to refuse the proposals made to him last week by Owen O'Malley, British charge.

It was officially declared that Borodin, the Russian adviser of Chen, has no connection with the Soviet government.

The church congress of Buddhists of the Soviet union meeting here has issued a manifesto to the Buddhists of India, Tibet and Mongolia, protesting against military intervention in China and demanding that the Buddhists of the world support the struggle for freedom of the Chinese."

Unemployment Seeks Charity Appeal.

GLASGOW, Feb. 6.—Because the students assisted in breaking the general strike, the local trades unions have refused to help student charity endeavors, and the committee in charge reports labor help here has ceased.

IMPERIALISM WAS NEW ENEMY IN HONDURAN LABOR

Federation Becomes Part Of Pan-American Body

By LAURENCE TODD,
Federated Press.

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Feb. 6—Raising the slogan of "no further exploitation of our brothers, either by employers from abroad or at home" the many scattered labor unions in Honduras have met in convention at LaCeiba and have established the Honduran Federation of Labor. Solidarity of the workers in one federation within the republic, and affiliation with the Pan-American Federation of Labor on the outside, were the decisions announced when the 150 delegates adjourned.

Honduras is a northerly neighbor of Nicaragua, whose labor movement was inspired by the action of the Mexican Regional Federation of Labor. As in Nicaragua the labor federation became the backbone of resistance to Wall Street imperialism, so in Honduras it is anticipated that the same general conditions as to foreign financial domination will bring about the same activity by the unions.

Bad News For Kellogg.

In the formal report of this Honduran labor congress, received at Washington headquarters of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, the president of the congress stated that for three days the delegates discussed every problem of their industrial and political and social condition. He added that their determination to form a single center authority, and to affiliate with the P. A. F. of L. was due to their desire to preserve international peace and their refusal to accept unlimited exploitation.

When it is recalled that Honduras challenged the treaty by which Chamoro as president of Nicaragua granted to the United States a canal route and a naval base on Fonseca Bay—on which bay Honduras faces the Nicaraguan coast—the birth of this labor federation at LaCeiba cannot be considered as good news for Secretary of State Kellogg. It means one more step toward the creation of a Latin American league of labor, hostile to American imperialism and friendly to the ideals and program of the Mexican revolution. It strengthens the voice of the Pan-American labor movement in its frequent protests to the State Department, the White House, and to Congress, against the use of armed forces of the United States to force new usbts and new taxation and worse industrial conditions upon the peoples of Latin America.

Coolidge Recommends Sending Man to Make Geneva Obey Morgan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The participation of the United States in the Genova Economic Conference, called by the League of Nations, was recommended by President Coolidge to the senate and house today.

Pointing out that delegates to the conference cannot in any way "bind their governments and will not be qualified to act as spokesmen of an official policy", the president requested an appropriation of $15,000 for the expenses of the delegates to tha conference, which will begin May 4th.

Big business in America has a mortgage now on many railroad lines, etlephone companies, and former government monopolies in Germany France, and Poland.

Over Eleven Million Women Are Employed In American Industry

Teresa Wolfson, author of "Women Workers in Trade Unions" speaking under the auspices of the Workers' School at 108 East 14th street declared that the entry of women into the trade unions has completely changed the economic life of society

She stated that eight and a half millions of women were gainfully employed in 1920 and since then another three millions have been added to the number.

She denied that women only work a short time. They are mostly single and only two and a half millions are married.

It should be definitely understood, Miss Wolfson declared that women are in industry to stay.

Chicago Labor Radio Engineer Wants Union Chief on Radio Board

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 6.—I. J. Lesh, radio engineer for the Chicago Federation of Labor, has issued a statement in favor of at least one labor official on the proposed five-man radio commission. Lesh boost Wm. J. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, for the place. He points out clearly the dangers of a non-labor control of radio broadcasting, but does not prove that Green on the board could reform it.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

EXCLUSIVE PHOTOS OF SHANGHAI FOREIGN CITY

Street scenes in Shanghai, China. Photos made exclusively for the Central Press Association. The lower left picture was taken at the very outskirts of the "foreign city." The Chinese on the extreme left are on the "foreign" side of the thoroughfare. At the center, in uniform, are two Chinese policeman, as a "frontier guard." The lower right photo depicts two officers of the Chinese republican army, stopping, by chance, on the edge of the "foreign city," with a big European building in the rear.

Shanghai, China, with approximately 500,000 inhabitants,—a prize at which the Nationalist forces have been aiming—is valuable to the British because of its concessions in the "foreign city" within the city. This "foreign city" is governed and policed by the "Europeans," which, in the nomenclature of the Orient, includes Americans. Posted at the entrance of a park in this section there has been a sign, "Chinese Keep Out."

CORPORATION WELFARE WORK PAYS, SAYS GARY, AND INVESTIGATION SHOWS IT PROFITABLE AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR WAGES; TIES WORKER DOWN

(By ROBERT W. DUNN, Federated Press)

Why do American employers blow in millions of dollars annually on various types of industrial welfare work? There seem to be a mixture of motives. Experts on welfare have summarized some of them. Leading the list is the "welfare work pays" announcement of Judge Elbert Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, the most be-weifared corporation in the United States.

Welfare work pays because it increases productive efficiency, reduces labor turnover, "attracts a desirable grade of labor," advertises the business and gives the corporation an incalculable boost in public good-will.

Other conclusions of Boettiger in his employe welfare work, are that the practice reduces strikes and labor difficulties, "lulls workers into a feeling of contentment with conditions which would otherwise be vigorously protested," avoids state regulation by furnishing an argument that it is not needed, "provides palliatives for a long wage," benefits humanity, reduces on profits by artificially inflating costs. Finally it "disrupts the discipline of unionized labor."

All For Results.

These are a few of the motives, the reasons, the rationalizations and the results underlying welfare. And all these may be reduced to one—the desire to promote the highest possible efficiency of the industrial machine under the profit system. Incidentally the margin of profit out of welfare is not the same for all employers.

The big fellows usually get more out of a unit of welfare than the small industries. And the smaller employers are usually compelled to make the heaviest retrenchments on a falling labor market when there is less need for welfare.

More Welfare, Less Pay.

The range of welfare activities now current in American industry is suggested by the following miscellaneous list. The worker can check off the ones practiced in his own plant. And he may be able to figure out his relative wage level in universal ratio to the number and extent of the items selected up by the corporation that employs him.

Social clubs, mutual benefit societies, prizes, pins, buttons and gold watches for service records, dinners, cafeterias, company theatres, church-by, boys and girl scouts, sunshine clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s, athletic teams, gymnasiums, clam bakes, minstrel shows and dramatics, employe magazines, field days, thrift clubs, bands, orchestras, insurance, pensions, suggestion prizes, picnic committees, pony-polo games, Christmas baskets, dances, outings, "village beautifula," knitting circles, veterans' clubs, volley ball leagues, booster clubs, housing associations, employe stock ownership schemes, building and loan associations, company gardens and flower beds, outings, baths, domestic science courses, golf clubs, profit-sharing, coffee bars, club houses, mottoes on the wall, pay envelope inserts, bulletins bearing the poetry of Eddie Guest, camera clubs, service talks, flying squadrons and open air talks. These are but a few samples out of several hundred.

All these institutions serve the interests of the corporations. Whenever there is a strike, or the threat of one, the press agents of the "generous corporations" are put to the fight that will make even his senile gest, it was resumed.

Senate Would Hear All Non-embarrassing News About Mexican Quarrel

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Senate this afternon called on the state department to produce the "inside story" of the controversy with Mexico over the New Mexican oil land laws.

Adopting the Norris resolution by an unanimous vote the Senate asked for the names of all American individuals and corporations holding oil concessions in Mexico, the names of those accepting the Mexican land laws, and the names of those refusing. The resolution also asked what "advice or instructions" the department had given those companies refusing to obey the law, and for copies of all correspondenbee between the department and oil concerns over the law.

At the instance of Senator Curtis (R) of Kansas, the Senate gave the department an opportunity to refuse the information if it was "incompatible with the public interest."

In other words the corporation openly admits that its free-will gifts were made in the hope and expectation of getting due "credit" for them in an emergency. Even Commerce and Finance, Wall street organ, admits that many of the welfare attempts were made for other than pure and holy purposes. It says "they were spurious in that they were substitutes for an adequate wage and were devised principally to tie the worker to his job, and ware to a great extent empty forms devoid of spirit."

Labor's opposition to the swindle is often expressed.

But the American corporations, admired by all traveling "labor delegates" of European nations, is "selling" more and more of this sort of feudalism to tha American workers, and all the outcry of the trade unions has not yet been able to stem the tide. Some of the unions have decided to try the workers all, or at least the best of, the benefits they could get from the company.

Vare Holds Secret Talk With Coolidge

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6. — Representative Vare, who bought himself a nice senatorial election in Pennsylvania last fall, conferred with President Coolidge. Although Senator-elect Vare said that he visited with the president "on routine matters", he may have been actually negotiating for a declaration somewhere in the fight that will make room

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

ELECTRIC TRUST SEEKS TO BALK U.S. POWER PLAN

'Central Agency' Burns Up Wires With Protests

WASHINGTON, (FP). Feb. 6. — Electric power corporations throughout the southwest and the south, all of them identified with the power trust which centers around the General Electric are attacking the Boulder Canyon dam project and the government operation of the Muscle Shoals power plant, in congress. Rep. Swing of California, replying to the lobby's assaults upon the bill for construction of the $125,000,000 power dam at Boulder Canyon, declared that the "central agency" of the power combination was directing the flood of telegrams that has come to members of the house and senate opposing the measure.

The power trust lobby sent out a memorandum, without any identifying marks as to its source, which contained the statement: "The only treatment of the power development at Boulder Canyon in which the electrical industry can acquiesce is the lease of water rights". That is to say, private construction of the power plant, for exclusively private control of electric rates and profits in the southwest.

Fight Norris Bill.

"In protection of the interests of 2,000,000 stockholders", it went on to say, "the electrical industry cannot agree to the entry of the federal government into the business of construction and operation of electric-generating equipment."

Having thus laid down its ultimatum to congress, the trust lobby waited while its connections in hundreds of cities sent in telegrams which quoted whole sentences from its anonymous statement. Similar tactics are being employed to prevent the passage of the Norris bill which would establish the government in the business of selling cheap power from the Muscle Shoals plant to all applicants.

Philippine Paper in Plea for Comedian as Next Coolidge Agent

A request has come from the Manila Daily Times suggesting, that the next time Coolidge sends some one to the Philippines, he should select Will Rogers to make an investigation.

The paper makes the promise that Rogers would at least enlighten the American people as to where the Philippines are located. The statement continues: "The American people seem to think that we are somewhere off the coast of Cuba or near the Canal Zone, or part of Hawaii. A good many government officials are under the same illusion. In fact the Governor General once received a letter from the White House, mailed to, 'Manila, Porto Rico'."

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

SENATE GRANTS NEW FAVORS TO WAR PROFITEERS

Battleship Contracts Go To Private Yards

WASHINGTON,—(FP)—Feb. 6—Dill of Washington, democrat, lost his fight in the senate to compel the navy department to build in its own yards the new cruisers which the "war party" have voted. Discrimination by Secretary Wilbur and his admirals, against the government yards and in favor of private yards that charge huge profits, will continue. On a point of order, raised by Chairman Hale of the committee on naval affairs, Dill's amendment was ruled out by Vice-President Dawes.

Since the world war, the government has constructed in private yards 10 cruisers; in government yards none. In the same period, the private yards have had the building of 68 destroyers; government yards built only 9. Of other types of war vessel, 19 ware built at private profit, while 8 were built at cost by the government yards.

Navy Yards Idle.

Hale made the usual excuse that the Secretary of the Navy would use his best judgment, and would not discriminate against the yards under his own control. Dill replied that the fact that the demand for the new cruisers "is largely a demand which originates from the private shipbuilding interests", and that Secy. Wilbur is allowing the navy yard to go into idleness while private yards are kept busy.

Sen. King of Utah, democrat, supported Dill, testifying especially to Wilbur's neglect of the $50,000,000 navy yard at Vallejo, Calif., in Wilbur's own state. He then recited the financial history of the converted cruisers Lexington and Saratoga, built at private profit, whose cost was first set at $16,500,000 each and has lately been estimated at $40,000,000 each when they are made into airplane carriers. King recalled the Tavenner expose of the world wide "war trust" of steel companies just prior to the war, and how it was shown that armor plate was sold by American steel companies to the Russian tsarist government at several hundred dollars a ton less than the same armor was sold to the United States for its navy. He declared his belief that the navy department has been too much concerned in behalf of privately owned shipyards and has been in too close contact with the steel trust, or the steel interests, of the United States".

City Population in Soviet Union Shows Big Leap Forward

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6.—Bulletins on the new census being completed in the U. S. S. R., received by the Russian Information Bureau, show remarkable increases of the population of the cities since the urban census of three years ago. Moscow has passed the two million mark, having increased its population 23 per cent in three years. Leningrad, with the revival of industry, has shown a gain of 50 per cent. A list of 1523 cities and towns shows a gain of 21 per cent during the three-year period. The male population increased by 22.7 per cent and the female by 19.7 per cent.

The largest cities showed the following gains: Moscow 2,018,256 as compared with 1,611,045 three years ago. Leningrad 1,611,103 as compared with 1,067,328, Kiev 491,333 as compared with 432,734, Baku 433,383 as compared with 244,852, Odessa 411,111 as compared with 316,762, Kharkov 407,578 as compared with 310,264, Rostov-on-Don 302,416 as compared with 236,421, Tashkent 294,349 as compared with 263,871 and Tiflis 275,915 as compared with 233,958.

The unusual gain in the case of Baku is partly due to the inclusion of new industrial suburbs within the city limits.

Judge Lindsey Alleges Allowed No Defense

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 6. — Judge Ben B. Lindsey, recently ousted by the Suprem nCourt of the state, has appealed for a rehearing on the grounds that he was allowed no defense.

The opponent of Judge Lindsey in a recent election, to whom the Supreme Court now gives the job, is Rice W. Means Graham, a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He has committed suicide, but his widow continued the case.

Canadian City Largest In Fire Fighters Union

WASOINGTON, Feb. 6. (FP)—Moncton, New Brunswick, is the latest city to organize a local of the International Association of Fire Fighters. The international union is steadily making inroads on unorganized territory in eastern Canada, despite opposition from the national catholic unions.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Darrow Says Lack of Work Is Cause To Stop Self Murders

FAIRHOPE, Ala., Feb. 6.—"The use of automobiles is always a decisive factor," declared Darrow, in commenting on the "epidemic" of suicides among college students.

"Man is not really an intellectual animal and children are most likely being pushed too fast. They are too precocious," said Darrow.

"Assuming it is true there is a suicide epidemic among college students," he said, "I would say there may be no cause whatever. Things just happen in this world and most times there is no explanation.

"However, anything may happen to an adolescent boy, and education and understanding oftentimes leads to despondency and despair."

Asked what remedy he had to suggest, if any, Darrow said:

"Physical exercise, work and play is probably safer and better for young people than the introspection that comes with too extensive and swift an education."

SCHWAB POPS UP IN ENGLAND BUT DENIES ANY DEAL

"Just Came Over to See Lloyd George," Says He

LONDON, Feb. 6.—"I did not come here for business", said Chas. Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel, on his arrival today, "I came to England to play a few games of golf and see my friends Lloyd George and Winston Churchill."

Schwab said his stay in France would be only, "to enjoy the sunshine of the Riviera", the same excuse made by the half dozen or so of American bankers who flocked to France just before the giant international steel cartel was organized last year.

Food of Mellon.

Bethlehem steel was doing well, said Schwab. He ascribed a part of the reason to the Coolidge administration.

"Secretary Mellon is certainly the ablest financier of our time. I may be prejudiced in his favor because I have known him since we were young men but I am sure all thoughtful business men approve of his administration as secretary of the treasury.

"I would be happy to see England share some of our prosperity. It would create a better feeling between the two nations which is greatly to be desired."

Not Afraid of Cartel.

Returning to the subject of the steel trade Mr. Schwab said:

"The establishment of a great steel combination in Europe means keener competition but I am sure we need not fear the outcome.

"The growth of the steel business in the United States is unparalleled by any other industry."

Telephone Boss Fails To Answer Charge He Evesdrops on Workers

BOSTON, (FP). — "Listening in" charges made against the New England Telephone company, are not being answered before the city council's unemployment committee. Phone company vice-president Charles S. Pierce —general counsel for the firm—has notified the committee that the board of directors will not appear to answer charges as "no useful purpose will be served."

Councilman Joseph McGrath told the committee that the phone company "listened in" on union hello girls and fired activs ones, that it tapped wires of lawyers having cases against the firm and of politicians known to be unfriendly.

General March Finds His Uniform Disliked In Mortgaged Europe

DENVER, Feb. 6.—European hatred for the United States was described by General Peyton C. March, who has completed a five year tour of the seventeen major countries of Europe. What they want is a strong man like Mussolini to lead them in knocking Uncle Sam's block off, General March said.

"Every nation wants its guarantee to thrash the hide off the United States," he said. "All Europe hates us with the possible exception of Spain." European countries have stopped hating each other to unite in a grand hatefest on the United States."

Prppose Lash in Bill In Minnesota Senate

ST. PAUL, Minn., — Semi-public whippings of 20 to 40 lashes in addition to customary sentences for a long list of crimes ranging from murder to drunken automobile driving is prescribed for in a bill introduces in the state senate here today.

The crimes for which the lash would be applied include murder, manslaughter, [illegible] grand larceny, [illegible] arson, [illegible] abduction and [illegible] auto driving.

NEW RADIO LAW GIVES COOLIDGE VAST AUTHORITY

Civil Liberties Warns Against Censorship

President Coolidge could shut up the radio stations and "save us public opinion" if the administration's conference committee radio bill before congress becomes law, American Civil Liberties Union attorney Morris Ernst asserts. The bill gives the president the right to suspend all rules and close any radio station in time of war, threat of war, or "a state of public peril." Coolidge could follow his first step of seizing censorship powers by urging press and public to support his Mexican and Nicaraguan policies with radio control under the bill.

No Free Speech.

All protection against free speech gags, discrimination and monopoly has either been cut out of the new radio bill or framed into jokers, Ernst charges in a telegram to Senator Dill, who made the original radio control bill. The Civil Liberties Union objects to the new bill, Ernst wires, for these reasons:

1—New measure places no restrictions on trading in licenses for profit. 2 — It offers no safeguard against monopoly through stock ownership. 3—It has no provisions against party discrimination in broadcasting, as guarantees of equal opportunity for candidates do not cover partisans of candidates. 4—There is no provision for complete public records of broadcasting permits and rejections. 5—Power of appeal from decisions is restricted to appeals from decisions ruling out the public. 6—The president's power to suspend rules and close stations in times of public emergency could prevent the public of radio service at the hour of greatest need."

* * *

Bill Meets Obstacle.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Failure of the Dill-White radio bill to assert absolute government ownership of the air brought radio legislation to a serious impasse in the senate today face to face with a threatened filibuster.

Senator Howell (R) of Nebraska, led a stiff fight against the measure, claiming that unless it divested broadcasters of every vestige of ownership of the air, the powers of the commission provided in the measure would be totally destroyed. Left with undisputed ownership rights, he declared, broadcasters could bring suit to force the commission to renew their licenses on the grounds of priority rights.

Howell Against the Bill.

Howell advocated retention of the language in the existing "make-shift" law, which declares the ether to be wholly in the United States. He opposed repeal of this law, which was enacted only as a temporary measure at the last session, and declared the conferees on the present bill had no right to provide for repeal of this law "when it hadn't even been passed when the house and senate acted on the bill they had in conference." A decision by the chair, however, overruled this objection, which was in the form of a point of order.

Friends of the bill, on the other hand, declared that it was impossible for the conferees to agree to retaining the absolute ownership language.

British Government Agrees to Encourage Export of Children

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6. — The U. S. Department of Labor issues a statement on the case of imported contract child labor on the farms of Canada and Australia. The statement says:

"By agreement between the British and Ontario governments, commencing in the spring of 1927 boys from Great Britain, 15 to 17 years of age, may have free passage to the province, to receive agricultural training, and then be placed with reliable settlers at wages of about £2 per month, board, and lodging. The boys are to remain in those positions for three years.

"Last year New South Wales passed an act giving the minister of labor and industry the care and control of juvenile immigrants from 14 to 18 years of age, and empowering him to designate farms for their reception and training, to place them on such farms, and ultimately to find them employment. The transfer or dismissal of such juvenile immigrants is not permitted except after seven days' notice in writing to the minister of labor. This law supplants the unsuccessful indentured apprenticeship system established in 1923 under which the children were not adequately protected. By July 20, 1926, a total of 1,444 boys had entered under the boy-immigrant scheme."

The leasing out of child slaves to the Canadian wheat farmers has resulted in a vast amount of abuse during the past few years, and several cases in which boys were either murdered through overwork, or took revenge by setting their employers' property ablaze, caused a decrease in permits to import children.

The DAILY WORKER is now on all news stands around New York.

The Workers' Communist Party

Questions on Socialist Construction

Editor's note—The accompanying article is an extract from the typed of Secretary Stalin, of the Russian Communist Party, to the Enlarged Executive Committee Meeting of the Communist International.

First Question: The first question is the question of the possibility of victory of socialism in a single country, the question of the possibility of the victorious construction of socialism. Of course we are not discussing Montenegro or even Bulgaria, but our country, the U. S. S. R. We are discussing a country in which important elements of socialism existed and developed, in which there is a certain minimum of a proletariat, in which there is a party which leads the proletariat. Hence, the question is: is the victory of socialism possible in the U. S. S. R.? Is it possible to construct socialism in the U. S. S. R. on the basis of the internal forces of our country, on the basis of the possibilities at the command of the proletariat of the U. S. S. R.? But what is meant by constructing socialism, if this term is to be formulated in concrete class language? To construct socialism in the U. S. S. R. means to overcome our Soviet bourgeoisie, in the course of the struggle by our own forces. Consequently the question amounts to this: is the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. capable of overcoming its own Soviet bourgeoisie? Hence, when we ask: is it possible to construct socialism in the U. S. S. R., we mean: is the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. capable, by its own efforts, of overcoming the bourgeoisie of the U. S. S. R. This is the only manner in which the question is presented in solving the problem of the construction of socialism in our country.

The party's reply to this question is in the affirmative, for it bases its reply on the fact that the proletariat of the U. S. S. R., the proletarian dictatorship in the U. S. S. R. commands the possibilities to overcome the bourgeoisie of the U. S. S. R. by its own forces.

If this were incorrect, if the party had no grounds for asserting that the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. was capable of constructing socialist society in spite of the relative technical backwardness of our country, then our party would have no justification for remaining in power; it should give up power in one way or another and become an opposition party. For, we have to choose between one of two things, either we can build socialism and finally complete it by overcoming our "national" bourgeoisie,—in that case the party must remain in power and guide the work of socialist construction in the country for the sake of the victory of Socialism all over the world, or we are unable by our own efforts to overcome our bourgeoisie,—then, bearing in mind, the absence of immediate aid from outside, from victorious revolutions in other countries, we must honestly and frankly give up power and set our course towards organizing another revolution in the U. S. S. R. in the future. Would it be permissible for a party to deceive its own class, in this case the working class? No it would not. A party that did that should be hanged, drawn and quartered. But precisely because our party has no right to deceive the working class it should say frankly that, because it is not sure of the possibility of constructing socialism in our country it must abandon power, cease being the government party and become an opposition party.

We established the dictatorship of the proletariat, and by that we laid down the political basis for the advance towards socialist construction. Can we lay down by our forces by doing the economic basis of socialism? Can we lay down the economic foundation necessary for the construction of socialism by our own forces? What is the economic content and economic basis of socialism? Is it to establish a paradise and universal happiness. No, it is not. This is a petty bourgeois idea of the economic content of socialism. To lay down the economic basis of socialism means to combine agriculture with socialist industry into one economy whole; to subordinate agriculture to the guidance of socialist industry; to establish relations between town and country on the basis of a direct exchange of the products of agriculture with the products of industry; to close and abolish the channels through which classes arise and primarily capital, and in the last resort to create such conditions of production and distribution as will lead directly to the abolition of classes.

Lenin said the following in this connection when we introduced NEP, and when the question of the construction of the socialist foundation of our national economy confronted us in all its scope.

"The substitution of requisitions by a tax signifies in principle: the transition from 'war Communism' to a proper socialist foundation. Not requisitions nor the tax, but the exchange of the products of large scale (socialized) industry with the produce of peasant agriculture represents the economic content of socialism, represents its basis." Lenin, Collected (supplementary) Works, Vol. IV., p. 372.

This is how Lenin understood the question of the establishment of the economic basis of socialism.

But in order to weld together agriculture with the socialized industries it is necessary first of all to have a broad network of organs of distribution, a broad network of organs of co-operation: consumers' co-operatives as well as agricultural co-operatives and producing co-operatives. This is precisely what Lenin had in mind when, in his pamphlet, "On Co-operation," he wrote:

"Co-operation in our conditions very often is absolutely identical with socialism." Lenin, Vol. 18, Part 2, p. 144.

Therefore, can the proletariat of the U. S. S. R., by its own efforts lay down the economic basis of socialism at a time when our country is in a capitalist environment?

The party replied to this question in the affirmative (cf. Resolution of the XV. Conference of the C. P. S. U.). Lenin replied to this question in the affirmative (cf. at least his pamphlet "On Co-operation"). The whole experience of our work of construction replies to this question in the affirmative. For the share of the socialist sector of our economy is increasing year by year, at the expense of the private capitalist sector both in the sphere of production and in the sphere of circulation; the role of private capital in proportion to the role of the socialist elements of our economy is declining from year to year.

How does the opposition reply to this question?

The opposition replies to this question in the negative.

It follows then that the victory of socialism in our country is possible; that the possibility of constructing the economic basis of socialism may be regarded as guaranteed. Does this mean that such a victory may be regarded as complete victory, as the final victory guaranteeing the country which is constructing socialism against all external dangers, against the danger of imperialist intervention and the danger of restoration connected with it? No it does not. While the question of constructing socialism in the U. S. S. R. is a question of overcoming our own "national" bourgeoisie, the question of the final victory of socialism" is a question of overcoming the world bourgeoisie. The party says that the proletariat of a single country is incapable of overcoming the world bourgeoisie by its own efforts. The party says that in order to achieve the final victory of socialism in a single country it is necessary to overcome, or at least to neutralize the world bourgeoisie. The party says that this is a task that can be fulfilled only by the proletariat of several countries. Therefore, final victory in one country or another means the victory of the proletarian revolution at least in several countries. The question does not give rise to any particular differences of opinion in our party and for that reason I will not dwell upon it at length. I would refer those who are interested to the material which has been distributed to the members of the Enlarged Plenum of the E. C. C. I.

"PRINCIPLES OF MARXISM," WEDNESDAY NIGHT COURSE IN WORKERS' SCHOOL, PREPARATORY TO MORE DIFFICULT COURSE: MARXISM-LENINISM

The course in "Principles of Marxism" to be given on Wednesday nights at 9:15 at the New York Workers' School, 108 East 14 street, will fill a need long felt by students of the Workers' School. This course will enable all those, who have completed the course in "Fundamentals of Communism" and who wish to take the advanced course in "Marxism-Leninism," to prepare for the latter course. in fact, the school will, in the future, consider "Principles of Marxism" as a pre-requisite for "Marxism-Leninism."

Abraham Markoff, long a teacher at the Workers' School, and well-known as a lecturer at labor forums, will give this course. The first part of the course will deal with the philosophy of Marxism, the second with an analysis of the capitalist system, the third with the nature of the revolutionary working class movement. Three books will be studied thoroughly: Engels "Socialism—Utoplan and Scientific"; Marx's "Wage-Labor and Capital"; and Marx's "Communist Manifesto."

All those wishing to take the course should register immediately. It begins on February 16.

Those interested in other courses of the Workers' School can obtain the catalog of the school by writing to Bertram D. Wolfe, director of the Workers' School, 108 East 14 St., N. Y. C.

Section Membership Meeting Unanimously Supports Decision of Central Committee on Russian Question

At a well-attended meeting of the membership of Section 2, which makes up a part of the needle trades section of the city, held on Monday, January 31, at the section headquarters, 100 W. 28th St., a report on the opposition in the Russian party was heard from the representative of the district, Comrade Weinstone.

The position of the Central Executive Committee of our party, is supporting the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, was unanimously approved.

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A drama, written on the American stage
by
Leon Hausman
Author and Playwright
Per Copy at $1.10
Send to
LEON HAUSMAN
"BOLSHEVIK"
POST OFFICE BOX 137
ELIZABETH, NEW JERSEY
secures a copy of
"BOLSHEVIK"
in English for the present
Translations may be had at a later date.
On and after March 15th, 1927 "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role himself and his wide acquaintance to first read this book. The author is finding it different to get "BOLSHEVIK" in quantities as "BOLSHEVIK" will at once jump to the same AND HOW!!!

A BOOK FOR THE IRISH WORKER
"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916."—Introduction by P. O'Flaherty.—By U. Schuller.
Price 75 cents.
Jim Connolly was the militant leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing thru one of the most serious crises that faced it during the world war. Connolly, the international Marxist, joined his small army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the international socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist question to the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Bolshevik in the full sense of the term. This little book should be a scholar in the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of the world. The articles first published as articles in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be distributed in large quantities among the Irish workers, in the United States. Connolly is a magic name to every Irish worker who has a spark of the divine fire of revolt in his system. It can also be read with interest by every radical worker who wants to look up on the strategy and tactics of the Communists. Comrade Schuller declares that Connolly was a Leninist. His views on the Irish question agree in 1916, one year before the Russian workers and peasants buried the Czar and Capitalism and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.
Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Big League Dance to Open Y. W. L. Member Drive in New York City

The Young Workers (Communist) League, Dist. 2, New York, will launch its membership drive to double the league membership with a grand ball and dance, to be held Saturday, Feb. 19th, at the Harlem Casino.

All Party and League comrades are urged to be present at this affair and to bring along their friends and shopmates. A snappy band will jazz things up and good time will be had by all. After working all week long every worker will welcome this opportunity to meet his friends, and dance and enjoy himself all Saturday evening.

Every League member should bring down every acquaintance of his, his fellow workers and help this campaign to double the League membership receive a real response and impetus.

Wives' Council Meets.

There will be a meeting of the Cloak Makers' Wives Council of Harlem, on Monday, Feb. 7th, at 8 P. M., in the headquarters of the council at 61 E. 116th St., New York City

Tremont 4247 Longacre 7348
L. Browndorff
CHIROPRACTOR
1703 Clinton Ave. 32 W. 39th St.
Bronx, N. Y. New York City
2-4 P. M. 5-8 P. M.
By Appointment Only.

The Manager's Corner

SCIENCE ALONE WILL NOT SUFFICE

The London Labor Herald comments hopefully on the recent advances in the scientific field: "Scientists and inventors are breaking down the barriers of space and making all the world a family. We hope that this development, like others, will bring greater happiness to mankind, and not, like many other boons of science, be prostituted to the base uses of war."

We are not as hopeful about the uses to which these inventions will be put. The World War has demonstrated that the genius of science has been mobilized by the master class to devise ways and means of destroying life and happiness. Since the World War scientists are continuing diligently their investigations, in search of new and more destructive poison gases, armament; airplanes, and other means of warfare. Outside of Soviet Russia labor has not yet been able to secure control of the vast store of scientific equipment and knowledge which the world is accumulating. Outside of Soviet Russia labor has therefore been unable to insure the use of this knowledge for the good of society as a whole.

In one field, a very important field, labor has challenged effectively the control of the ruling class. That is in the field of publicity. Already there has sprung up throughout the world a strong chain of labor papers. These papers have become a tremendous factor in moulding public opinion. To the extent that the labor press is made more powerful, to the extent that it develops, to that extent will the workers have a guarantee that there will be an organized force that will prevent the use of modern scientific invention for purposes antagonistic to society. The thought which is being given to the development of modern scientific investigation, necessitates at the same time even greater thought to its utilization to the end that science may not become a Frankenstein and a detriment to mankind. The development of thought in this direction requires the establishment of a strong labor press.

—BERT MILLER.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES NEARLY THE DEATH OF FARMERS IN CORN AND WHEAT BELTS; GRIP IMPOVERISHED AGRICULTURISTS WITH MORTGAGES

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press).

The prolonged agricultural deflation has dumped tens of thousands of wheat and corn producers in the clutches of the financiers. This is revealed in a report of the U. S. department of commerce on farm mortgages supplemented by data gathered by The Wall Street Journal. These figures show more than 65,000 farms just in the 3 states of Iowa, Kansas and Illinois mortgaged to big life insurance companies to the tune of over $750,000,000.

The department shows that 57 life insurance companies on Dec. 31, 1925, owned farm mortgages valued at $1,667,605,716. These companies annually collect from the farmers close to $100,000,000 in interest.

The 3 states account for 40% of the total valje of farm mortgages held by these insurance companies. Iowa leads with 36,595 farms mortgaged for $399,870,000. In Illinois the companies held mortgages on 18,195 farms for $128,448,775. The figures for Kansas are 28,343 farms mortgaged to life insurance companies for $128,448,775.

The Wall Street Journal has secured more complete figures covering the farm mortgages owned by all life insurance companies licensed to transact business in Iowa. The journal pinces the total at $534,403,255 and adds: "One can only guess at the total mortgages owned by bank and trust companies, land banks, individuals, etc."

The journal shows 13 life insurance companies holding more than $10,000,000 of Iowa farm mortgages as follows:

Iowa Farm Mortgages owned by Life Insurance Companies.

Metropolitan, N. Y.	$77,304,802
Equitable Life, N. Y.	62,476,964
Bankers Life, Des Moines	47,898,320
Northwestern Mutual, Milwaukee	47,874,115
Equitable Life, Des Moines	44,310,060
Prudential, Newark, N. J.	42,980,119
Mutual Life, Newark N. J.	36,249,561
John Hancock Mutual Boston	32,069,727
Aetna Life, Hartford	21,833,300
Travelers, Hartford	16,820,350
Union Central, Cincinnati	15,693,098
Connecticut Mutual, Hartford	12,854,112
New York Life, N. Y.	10,171,874
Total	$466,606,392

During 1925, the journal shows, all life insurance companies doing business in Iowa increased their total farm mortgage loans from $458,444,013 to $534,403,255 or more than 16%. The Metropolitan alone reported an increase of $11,392,894 and the Equitable $9,763,384.

KUZBAS CLOSES AMERICAN OFFICES; HAS ENOUGH RUSSIAN TECHNICIANS TO OPERATE

In a letter from S. S. Shipman, its New York office manager, the autonomous colony Kuzbas, located in an important coal region of the U. S. S. R., announces that it no longer needs special technical help from America, and closes its American office. The letter is as follows:

The Autonomous Industrial Colony "Kuzbas" announces the closing of its New York office on February 1, 1927. In future all its business in this country will be handled through the Amtorg Trading Corporation, 165 Broadway, New York City.

Contracts Not Needed.

The elimination of an independent American representation comes as a consequence of gradual changes in the character of the administration of the Kuzbas enterprises. These changes resulted in the placing of an increasing proportion of Russian technicians and administrators in responsible positions in the industries. This has done away with the necessity of retaining the special American contracts for which purpose a separate New York office has been maintained up to the present time.

Colony Flourishes.

It will be of interest to friends and well-wishers of the Kuzbas project to know that, in spite of the change in the character of the management, the industries are in a flourishing condition. The coal mines are producing at the rate of 120,000 tons per month as against an everege production of 70,000 tons per month during the last fiscal.

The coke production, from two batteries, is 13,000 tons per month and a third battery of ovens, which will have the capacity of the first two together, is in process of construction. Various chemical products to the amount of 150 tons per month are manufactured, the most important being benzol, pitch, ammonia, napthaiene, toluol and anthracene. The sales value of the products of the various enterprises is about six million dollars per year. Production costs have been steadily lowered and general energy living conditions correspondingly bettered.

In the light of the comparison between the present state of the Kuzbas industries and their former condition there can be no question that the efforts expended to bring about these results have been well worth while.

LECTURE CLASSES ORGANIZED BY BOSTON DISTRICT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

BOSTON, Mass.—Under the supervision of the district executive committee of the Workers Party, the following course of lectures are open in Boston at 36 Causeway Street:

Class for party functionaries and inner party theory and practice, conducted by G. S. Shklar, on every Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Fundamentals of Communism, conducted by H. J. Canter, every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, beginning with February 10, at 93 Stanford Street, Boston.

Class on theory and practice of trade union work, conducted by Sydney Bloomfield, every Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, 36 Causeway Street.

Classes in English, conducted by Phyllis Fenigston, at Clayman, in Boston, Peabody and South Boston.

Housewives Meet Wednesday.

A central committee meeting of the United Council of Working Class Housewives will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 9th at 8 P. M. at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St. This meeting is of great importance. A report on the Bulletin will be given. A report on the sale of bonds for the $1,000 to be raised for the cloak workers will be given.

DRAMA

Eva Le Gallienne to Do "The Inheritors"

"The Inheritors," a play by Susan Glaspell, will be produced at the Civic Repertory Theatre on Feb. 21. This will be the eighth production of the season at the Civic Repertory. The next two will consist of a play by an American author and a foreign play. When Eva Le Gallienne and her group begin their second season in Fourteenth St. on Sept. 26, with "Camille," the theatre will have been renovated, redecorated and a new heating system installed.

Miss Le Gallienne will close her repertory season on April 30. On May 2 she and her company begin a road tour in Washington. They will play the following week in Baltimore, two weeks in Philadelphia, one week in Boston, and a week at the Harkness Theatre of Yale University. After her tour Miss Le Gallienne will sail for a vacation abroad.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

Beatrice Lillie is going to play "Camille" at a special matinee, at the Fulton, Friday, February 26th. It's to be a modernised version. Charles Winninger will appear as the elder Duval; Wallace Scott will be the Count de Varville; Cyril Ring will be Armand.

"No, No, Nanette," the Frazee musical show, will open at the Bronx Opera House tonight and remain a week. The cast includes Mary Spoor, Johnnie Fields, Roland Woodruff, Barbara Barbour, Eve Vincent, Eulalie Young, Viola Leach, Jack Parsons, Helen Case, and Irene Comer.

"Cradle Song" will be repeated at three performances; Tuesday and Friday nights and Saturday matinee, by the Civic Repertory Players, at the 14th Street Theatre next week. The other plays scheduled: "John Gabriel Borkman," Monday night; "Twelfth Night," Wednesday matinee; "Master Builder," Wednesday and Saturday night, "La Locandiera," Thursday night.

The Dorrance Davis play, in which Peggy Wood is rehearsing, will be called "A Lady Loves," instead of "The Biter Bitten."

Mary Nash will be starred in "The South Seas," by Arthur Behrens, which William A. Brady will present out of town early next month.

Co-featured with Allan Dinehart in "Sinner," a new comedy by Thompson Buchanan, opening this evening at the Klaw Theatre.

"The Great Adventure" closed at the Edyth Totten Theatre Saturday night. "Babbling Brooks," a play by Edyth Totten, will open there on Feb. 21.

"In Abraham's Bosom" will continue at the Provincetown Playhouse for two weeks.

The American Theatre association has sent invitations to more than 100 noted Shakespearean actors to form a fellowship. Such a Shakespearean Fellowship would serve to encourage the production of Shakespeare's plays eventually to include a cycle of the whole group. The Fellowship would also form and maintain a Shakespeare Museum.

Five plays will have their premiers this evening: "Sinner," a modern comedy by Thomas Buchanan, opens at the Klaw with Allen Dinehart and Claiborne Foster featured; "The Strawberry Blonde" at the Bijon; Mrs. Pat Campbell in "The Adventurous Age" at the Mansfield, and "Fog" at the National; "Judy" at the Royale.

"Michael Strogoff" moved into Mosz Cameo yesterday. The picture is based on Jules Verne's novel.

AMUSEMENTS

KLAW TH., W. 45 St. Tonight, 8:30 OPENING
"SINNER"
With Allan Dinehart & Claiborne Foster
PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Eves. 8:30. Mats. Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings and Sat. Mats. WINTHROP AMES' Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. PIRATES OF PENZANCE Thursday Evenings Only. "Iolanthe"
Theatre Guild Acting Company in PYGMALION
Week Feb. 14—KARAMAZOV
Week Feb. 7—2d St. Eve. & Sat. Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:30
Ned McCobb's Daughter
John Golden Thea., 58 St. E. of B'way. Circle 7846. Mts. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30.
Civic Repertory Cor. 6 Av. & 14 St. Tel. Watkins 7747.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
Tonight, "JOHN GABRIEL BORKMAN"
Tomorrow Evening, "CRADLE SONG"
Neighborhood Playhouse 466 Grand St. Dryduck 7256. Evgs. Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
By Fredric Edwards Ferrar
"THE DIBBUK"—Feb. 17
An AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre 5TH MONTH Mts. Wed and Sat.
The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF, 50th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30.
RITZ Thea., 48th St., W. of B'way. Eve. 8:30. Mats. Wed. and SAT. 2:30.
Bye Bye Bonnie
Musical Sea Rue with Dorothy Sargent, Nadaija Cameron, Louis Simon, William Frawley.

NEGRO SOCIAL WORKER FINDS DISCRIMINATION AGAINST COLORED TEACHERS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN DRIVES MANY TO CRIMINAL LIFE IN SLUMS

Dr. Lionel Francis, head of the "International Alliance of Negroes, Inc.," a welfare organization, is quoted in a circular letter to the press as saying that the inability of the specialized, educated negroes to obtain employment in the lines for which they are trained is driving large numbers of them to immorality end crime.

Become Immoral.

The letter describes Francis as being "alarmed at the large number of scholarly women he finds residing in the slum districts of our cities as regular habitues of the 'night life'", and continues:

Job Shortage.

"The cause is plain to see, and it is not of their own making, but rather a force of circumstances due to the lack of such employment suitable for persons whose scholarly training make them eligible for same. First hand information has revealed the fact that as long as the race is without the means to provide employment for its people children of that race must be satisfied with 'the crumbs that fall from the white man's table' or 'drift into immorality, pauperism and crime'."

Unrest and Discontent.

"Many have expressed the opinion that the early training received would well until they had to face the world for a living. Even the schools where colored children are taught are closed to them because white teachers are given preference. Those who receive a business training found that owing to so small a percentage of colored business, the supply of trade ed colored help is far greater than the demand.

"A general dissatisfaction exists everywhere because the parents and the greatest and largest institution—the churches—have neglected to build industrial and commercial institutions for the children whom they expect to be of value to the race and to the world.

"Owing to this neglect the domestic field is overcrowded and there again the supply is greater than the demand, and on account of such, wages for domestic servants is but a miserly pittance, and will always remain so as long as the market is overcrowded."

Long Overdue Payment Made to Widow; Held Up By Anti-Bolshevik Hate

OLYMPIA, Wash.—Kiaba K. Bachelieff, a resident of Soviet Russia and the widow of a workman killed in industry in this state in 1914, will receive $5,250 in accrued compensation payments, according to a decision of the Supreme Court.

Payment was authorized in 1916 and the money sent to Russia, but the checks came back unpaid and were cancelled. In May, 1925, request for payment was again made but was refused by the Supreme Court on the ground that the Bolshevik government might confiscate the fund. The Supreme Court later ruled that the money should be paid to the party holding power of attorney from the plaintiff.

PONSONBY, M. P. WARNS OF SCHEME TO ATTACK RUSSIA

Says Invasion of China Saves Cash, Not Lives

A warning that western capitalist nations plan war for selfish interests on China and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics was given yesterday afternoon by Arthur Ponsonby, member of parliament, who spoke at the home of peace, 109 St. and Fifth Ave. under the auspices of The Women's Peace Society.

Referring to the situation in the Far East the speaker said that the Chinese are the most peace-loving people in the world, and that the present conflict is not caused by one people doing an injury to another, but that big commercial enterprises have invested their finances in China and call upon "civilized" white men to protect their ill-gotten spoils.

Save Profits—Not Lives

"The slogan of protecting American lives", is just a subterfuge, Ponsonby stated, "the real cause for intervention is to protect the property and business of American capitalists", " He continued by saying that if anybody wants to invest in a foreign country that he must do so at his own risk, and not at the risk of the lives of thousands of young men who will be enlisted to fight a war.

Want War on Russia.

The speaker said that he believed that a Chinese war would lead to a world conflagration, the ultimate object of which is to annihilate the Soviet Union. He urged upon everyone not to fall victim to any war propaganda, like that which was conducted in this country by the British in 1916, to refuse to support any steps taken by the government which might lead to war, and to petition both the president and congress, warning them that the people do not intend to fight, another war against a nation which has done no wrong.

How Armies Grow

Ponsonby warned his hearers of the dangers of enlisting men into the army. He showed that the misery of the worker, unemployment and low wages, make him susceptible to an invitation to end all his worries and care by enlisting. He related the fact that English working man had been enlisted in London into the Spanish army to fight against the Iliffa' a thing only to be explained by the fact of unemployment and starvation.

The pledge circulated by the Women's Peace Society is a refusal to bear arms in war.

Labor in Twin Cities To Fight Against War On China and Mexico

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 6.—The movement for the struggle against the imperialist policies of the government in Nicaragua, Mexico and China has taken definite form here thru the organization of a committee which has sent out a call for a general conference of individuals and delegates from labor organizations and which is planning to hold mass meetings against the interventionist policy of the government.

The call for the local conference is signed by: Rev. John H. Dietrich, S. A. Stockwell, Ernest Lundeen, Louis A. Duncan, J. F. Finnes, Rev. Howard Y. Williams, R. B. French, William Mahoney, H. G. Teigen, W. A. Anderson, V. B. Dunne I. G. Scott, Dr. E. G. Eisbel.

This committee, working under the name of "Conference against Intervention in Central America and China," is planning to hold mass meetings in both Minneapolis and St. Paul ot an early date.

Anti-Imperialistic Meeting in Belfast Puts Out Disrupters

BELFAST, Feb. 6.—A meeting of protest against England's imperialist policy in China ended in the ejection of several who tried to break it up.

The trouble began when a woman in the gallery started, in a fit of patriotic fervor, to wave the Union Jack. Her followers created a riot, which was finally quelled.

The supporters of Britain's policy were compelled to express their feelings in a meeting held outside.

ARE YOU INSPECTING THE NEWSSTANDS IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD?

Fill out this blank and send it to L. E. Katterfeld, 108 East 14th street, New York City.

The following newsdealers are not receiving any copies of The DAILY WORKER and desire to handle the paper.

Name of Dealer	Exact Location	Copies Wanted

Inspector ..... Address .....

GARMENT WORKERS JOINT BOARD ISSUES FIGURES ON ELECTION OF PROGRESSIVE OFFICERS

The report of the Tuesday's elections for managers and executive committee of the Joint Board has been announced in detail by the Election Committee which supervised the voting.

The balloting, which was carried on for fourteen hours, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the progressive candidates and was one of the heaviest vote ever polled in the union.

The votes polled by Local 9 were as follows:

Joseph Boruchowitz, manager ..... 2215 to 81

Isadore Stolzner, chairman ..... 2215 to 40

Executive Board —

I. Alkin	1926
S. Bleman	1842
S. Hyman	1691
B. Miller	1690
M. Bussenman	1556
A. Bravin	1552
M. Zimmerman	1518
A. Kolov	1484
J. Lipnick	1446
M. Solomon	1441
E. Radish	1406
A. Gross	1402
I. Akaler	1399
Charles Disenoise	1382
M. Kanovitz	1365
M. Goldstein	1351
I. Blacher	1335
E. Silkovitz	1329
Charles Weintraub	1311
J. Rainer	1310
I. Weintraub	1366
A. Kutler	1235
S. Cohen	1212
M. Sunkin	1211
I. Levine	1178
L. Summergrad	1176

Those elected in Local 9 were:

A. Zirlin, manager, 1844 to 20.

William Greenberg, chairman, 2171 to 15.

Executive Board —

M. Volper	1164
D. Attenberg	1146
S. Silverman	1124
Abe Etkin	1121
Benny Greenstein	1113
S. Offenwasser	1081
L. Hartman	1081
Dave Greenberg	1077
Louis Barak	1061
I. Verner	1151
Sam Lieber	1026
L. Pasniak	1044
Mollie Friedman	1044
A. Lieber	1021
M. Kaplan	1012
Benny Cooper	991
Sam Sanitz	985
Sam Frankreich	971
J. Forman	960
Rose Kaplan	937
Gabriel Rabinreich	931
Sam Rabinowitz	923
H. Berkman	912
Hyman Berman	451

Those elected in Local 35 were:

J. Goretzky, manager, 904 to 79.

Morris Goldstein, chairman, 869 to 69.

Executive Board —

E. Gerchikoff	834
A. Turek	832
A. Kurrinecki	809
S. Davidoff	806
S. Goldstein	724
A. Kessler	698
E. Zailer	677
M. Rauch	677
M. Friedman	636
A. Goldenberg	617
M. Kahn	615
L. Weiss	613
L. Weiss	602
J. Goldstein	590
A. Greenspan	588
M. Bernatsky	573
S. Goodman	565
S. Bizoff	520
M. Liebman	523
A. Kahn	496
S. Tcherman	478
I. Magaziner	440
S. Stern	450
S. Kahn	384

Way Behind Henry Ford Poor John D's Stocks Increase Only 700%

The huge profits that the Standard Oil barons have raked in during the last fifteen years are revealed by an analysis just completed by Jenks Gwynne and Co.

Investors in the securities of the companies which emerged after the supposed disintegration of the Standard Oil company fifteen years ago have seen their principal increase nearly 700 per cent. In addition they have had an average of 16.27 per cent per year on their investment.

The Standard Oil Companies of Kentucky and Nebraska, both of which are engaged in marketing, have yielded the largest returns. In fifteen years the Kentucky company has yielded the oil barons 49.87 per cent annually, while the Nebraska company has yielded an annual return of 32.05 per cent.

Chief Counsel Declares Government Very Easy With Ward Bread Trust

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Over the protest of its chief counsel, A. R. Brinkley, the federal trade commission dismissed its anti-trust suit against the William B. Ward baking interests, Brinkley declared today before the senate committee investigating the "bread trust".

Brinkley said he was convinced the gigantic merger, later dissolved by consent decree, was in violation of the anti-trust laws.

"The case was strong and should have been prosecuted," Brinkley said.

BOSTON STRIKING CAPMAKERS BEGIN MASS PICKETING

Delegates From Other Unions Promise Aid

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—A mass picketing demonstration of striking capmakers is being arranged for tomorrow morning. The cap district will be covered, and sporadic cases of violence of bosses against isolated pickets will be stopped.

Peter Krupnik, a picket, has already been attacked by an employer, and arrested. He was at once dismissed. The charge was assault.

Strike meetings are regularly held. At a recent meeting, a telegram from the International was read, conveying "congratulations to the capmakers of Boston for their united and unanimous stand in answer to the defiant attitude of the manufacturers and extending wishes for a speedy victory."

At the strike meetings speakers from other unions are often present. Lately Max Rosen, of the Jewish Bakers Local 45, Appel, of the Upholsterers, spoke.

Jersey City Bus Strike In Arbitrators' Hands Expect Agreement Soon

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.

(Special to The Daily Worker).

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 6.—Because they expect a settlement by tomorrow, the four hundred Hudson Boulevard bus drivers who went on strike Saturday, are "conducting" their struggle minus a picket line and are depending entirely on arbitration for a settlement, in spite of a growing feeling among the men on strike that more militant tactics are needed.

The scab busses are being run by the bosses and their "relatives" who promise to give the public full service until the end of the strike.

Conference Called.

A conference held Saturday at the Elks Clubs, although not reaching a definite agreement, promised an early end to the strike. At this conference the strikers were represented by Fred Bremer, vice-president of the Boulevard Drivers Union, and Edward Levy, business agent. The bosses were represented by William Bayer, Moe Greenberg and Neil Eaton. The arbitrators are: Boulevard Commissioners, Joseph Payne, James Billington and Edward Moore, and Supervisor of Jitneys, William Whelan.

The demands of the strikers are a flat wage of $45 a week and a three year contract. This is an increase of $2.50 a week over the present scale. The strikers were willing to compromise on a smaller increase at the eleventh hour to prevent a strike, but the bus owners refused.

Broke and Hungry; Found Dead in Hall

An unidentified man died yesterday as a result of exposure. He was found in the hallway at 439 West 42 St. Having no letters to identify him he was taken to the morgue.

According to the police records he was about 45 years of age. Apparently out of work he had slunk into the hallway to get out of the cold, but being tired and hungry he was not able to stand the gaff.

Capitalists Now Using Radio.

The General Motors Export Company has installed six short wave radio stations in its South American branches. It was learned yesterday. This is said to be the first instance in which a company has used the radio for commercial communication between scattered units of its organization in another country.

Buy Your
DAILY WORKER
at the Newsstand

MALY CABINET WOBBLES THRU FIRST CRISIS

Debate Proves Charge Of Monarchism True.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The Marx, conservative, cabinet barely escaped through with a weak vote on confidence yesterday, in the first test it faced.

Opposition in the Reichstag brought out some interesting proofs of Communist charges. Hammered by Communist speakers on the floor, Dr. Walker von Keudell, newly appointed Minister of the Interior, admitted that his farm was a camp for the fascist armed body "Olympia". His only excuse was that this was before "Olympia" was declared by law to be a treasonable organization.

Theodor von Guerard, leader of the catholic centrists, represented in the cabinet by Marx and several others, formally warned Marx in a speech from the floor, that the Keudell affair must be investigated, and that centrist support would be withdrawn and the cabinet overthrown if it were proved that Keudell supported the Kapp putsch of 1920, as had been charged by opposition parties.

Keudell and the entire cabinet might have fallen then, had it not been also revealed that Stresseman, now in opposition, was also a Kappist at that time. The game of "the pot calling the kettle black" did not look well to some of the cabinet's opponents, and they were temporarily silenced.

When the vote was taken on the motion of confidence in the cabinet, the Communists, socialists and democrats voted in favor of overthrowing it; the nationalist, catholic centrist, German and Bavarian peoples party, participating in the ruling bloc, voted to save it, and enough of the other parties voted for the cabinet to give it a majority of sixty-one.

Represented Wall Street In Argentine Republic

Peter Augustus Jay, above, United States ambassador to Argentina, has resigned, effective March 18. He has been in the diplomatic service, stationed in many countries, since 1902.

Nearing Sees Mexico Leader of Revolt by Latin-American Lands

American imperialism is developing in the Caribbean a situation just like China, so Scott Nearing declared last night in his talk before the open forum at the Community Church, Park Avenue and 34th Street.

"Sooner or later", said Nearing, "we will have the same problems to face as these now meeting the imperialist powers in the East.

"Mexico will be the leader and other Latin-American countries will follow. Already they are building up revolutionary movements, expropriating the property of foreigners and liberating their own people for financial development.

"United States capitalists have four billion dollars invested in Latin-America and of course they are not interested in the right of native peoples."

Touching on the Nicaraguan situation, Nearing said,

"The present situation in Latin-America revolves about the Mexican land laws. They are the real bone of contention, as well as Mexico's effort, thru recognition of the Soviet government, to line up Latin-American sentiment against the United States.

"The United States has not only recognized Diaz, but has provided him with munitions, military support and assistance in many other forms."

The auditorium of the Community Church was crowded for the Nearing lecture, and an hour of questions and discussion followed his talk.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE FURRIERS CONCERT AND DANCE FEBRUARY 18

The furriers section of the Trade Union Educational League will hold a concert and dance on Friday, February 18, 1927, at Manhattan Lyceum, New York. All needle workers are invited.

SHOP CHAIRMEN SUPPORT MOSALSKY

(Continued from Page 1).

spirit of the cloakmakers and needle trades.

"The push attacks against organization and the workers will join with class members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union in the fight they are determined, and that the bosses and his allies are driven from the union."

Geretsky Speaks.

Among the speakers who denounced Sigman and protested the sentencing of the 16 cloakmakers, was Joseph Geretsky of Local 9, who spent two weeks in jail this past month and is at present out on $25,000 bail, which was set by Judge Robitsky; Sam Berg of Local 89 of Philadelphia; J. Sunshein of the Williamsburg Progress Club; S. Solomon of Workmen's Circle No. 326; A. Klenerman of the Shop Chairmen's Council; C. S. Zimmerman head of the dress department of the Joint Board.

Adopt Resolution.

The meeting unanimously adopted the following resolution read by the secretary of the Shop Chairmen's Council, L. Kleinman:

WHEREAS, sixteen cloakmakers who have been members of the cloakmakers union for many years have been sent from their homes and families by Judge Rosalsky to long terms of imprisonment for strike activities; and

WHEREAS, these sentences have been the result of the vicious propaganda and provocative tactics carried on by the officials of the International and the Forward, who planned to have these workers convicted, hoping thus to break the resistance of the cloak and dressmakers against their attempt to impose their discredited leadership on the workers; and

WHEREAS, these workers have never been guilty of any offense and have been placed behind prison bars simply for the crime of fighting for the defense of their union and for the improvement of their working conditions, and their unjust imprisonment is a matter of concern not only to the cloakmakers' union, but to the entire labor movement, since the detention of these workers would undoubtedly

STORM ROSALSKY

(Continued from Page 1).

Workers' Club; Silverstein, Workers' Self-education Club; Rosenberg, W. C. 386; Nevins, Women's Council; Trentman, Lower-Bronx Workers Culture Center; Goldfield, W. C. 225; Fishler, A. C. W. of A.; Zwick, Cap Makers; Zikowsky, Millinery Workers; Sam Gross, Bronx Young Workers' Culture Club; A. Gilmeher, Parquet Floor Workers; B. Kanfer, W. C. 571; Paul Brodsy, Boro Park Jewish Workers Club; Max Delmore, Shoe Workers' Protective Union; Harry Grossberg, Br. 111, Jewish National Union Local 85; Mutsnik, W. C. 168; Abe Nuor, A. C. W. of A.; and from the Furriers' Shop Chairmen's Council, M. Lang, Joseph Weisberg, H. Teschtenberg, B. Alowitz and Paul Skolnik. Ten members are to be added from the Cloak and Dress Shop Chairmen.

Reactionary Officers Of Upholsterers Local Skimp Strike Relief

(By Worker Correspondent)

At the last meeting of Local 44 of the Upholsterers Union the secretary made a report in which he emphasized that in spite of the fact that the local supported the general labor movement yet the financial situation is better than a year ago. And then he enumerated that the local gave ten dollars for the support of the Passaic miners' strike and the same amount for the Passaic strike and 600 dollars for a city garden.

This proves that the city garden means much more to the officials of our local than the outcome of such an important struggle as the Passaic strike or that in England. They are useless at that time for the progressives to fight for more aid for the hungry children of Passaic. But six hundred dollars for a city garden is not too much!

Funny Forty-Hour Motion.

There was spent 1,200 dollars for organizing purposes, but we, the members, did not hear of the results of that organizing. It was the organizer who made a motion that the forty-hour week is finely—but not during the season! He meant it is good during the slack time when there is no work anyway—good for the bosses. It would be good for the workers during the four months' season. And it is the desire and wish of the workers to accomplish the forty-hour week year around. But the officials—god and maybe the bosses know why—are opposed to it. The members are afraid of them as yet. They are afraid that they will not get jobs from them.

There was a motion made also at our last meeting that the term of all the officers shall expire at the same time not as it is today. Wagner, the secretary, became frightened when he heard the motion, and he spoke against it. He argued that it is impossible that his term shall expire in January, right after the season. He cannot go any job then. Poor Wagner! Out of his five thousand dollar salary he could buy only one house—so far. And he is afraid that he won't be able to get a job. The members of the union face this situation every year, but Wagner wants special favor.

Na Anti-Foreignism In China.

There is no anti-foreignism in China but the Chinese people object to foreigners having privileges which infringe on the sovereignty of the country Ging Ling-Chang, Consul General of the Peking government declared in, a statement issued here. The speaker warned Americans to be on their guard against "foreign propaganda" designed to prepare public opinion for hostile action against China.

OPPORTU OUTBREAK SEEMS TO GATHER POPULAR SUPPORT

Coincides With General Railroad Strike

LISBON, Feb. 6. — An artillery duel and heavy fighting took place this afternoon between the rebels and government forces at Oporto.

The rebels are still heavily entrenched in the place de Barthalha and declare they will fight to death rather than surrender.

The casualties are believed to be heavy. The city is in panic. Many houses have been damaged by the shooting and several persons have been wounded. Ten soldiers have been killed.

* * *

LISBON, Feb. 6.—The armed rebellion which broke out last Thursday in the garrison barracks at Oporto, has spread thruout the country. On account of the strict censorship established by the government very little news is being given out, but from all accounts the fighting seems to be mostly around Oporto, the commercial center of the country, where the revolt gains strength.

The rebellion is directed against the president and minister of war Carmorna, who thru a military coup d'etat last July seized power, broke up the existing government and established himself as dictator of Portugal. He centered his troops around Oporto, and has from this operation center conducted a rigid control over the affairs of the country, which has of late developed into a reign of terror.

Liberal Revolt.

The opposition, lead by Sousa Diaz, has gathered sufficient troops and amunition to challenge the regime of Carmona. Before engaging in an open attack, Diaz sent a committee to Carmona, demanding that constitutional government be re-established. General Sinel de Cordes, acting minister of war, answered this demand by sending out his troops and surpressing the rebels. The opposition forces are very popular and have the support of the greatest part of the population.

Industries, which had considerably broken down due to the military disturbence, is now completely tied-up by a general strike of the railway workers. The strike was declared last night.

Constant Unrest.

Portugal has been in a constant state of intermittent revolution ever since the assassination of King Carlos of 1908. His son Manuel ascended the throne, but was deposed after two years, following a series of notorious scandals, in which Manuel was charged with looting the treasury to support his favorites in luxury.

Power Maintenance Men Meet.

The Amalgamated Power Plant and Building Service Workers, Local No. 1 calls on all engineers engaged in power plant and building maintenance work to meet in mass meeting to be held tonight at 8 p. m., at the New Labor Temple, 14th street corner of Second avenue, New York.

Charlie Still Free.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6. — Lita Grey Chaplin's request that her husband, Charles Chaplin, be arrested for failure to support his two children was refused by District Attorney Asa Keyes here today.

Reported Capture of Co-ed Moro Princess Who Led Island Revolt

MANILA, Feb. 6.—Princess Tarahata Karim, who with her husband, Datu Tahif, are leading a Moro uprising in Jolo, has been captured, according to a report received here today.

Details of the reported capture of the princess, niece of the Sultan of Sulu and a University of Illinois graduate, have not been received.

Philippine constabulary sent to quell the disturbance have been hold at bay.

Crushing Defeat for Yaqui Insurrection

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6.—A sweeping federal victory over the rebellious Yaqui Indians was officially confirmed today. The Yaquis have abandoned Bacatete and Sierra La Gloria and have fled to a new stronghold. The federals are pursuing and another major battle is expected today or tomorrow.

ATTEND! ATTEND! ATTEND!

THE SECOND ANNUAL BANQUET

of the

DAILY WORKER BUILDERS OF NEW YORK

to be held at

YORKVILLE CASINO (Main Ballroom)

212 East 86th Street, near Third Avenue.

The leading contributors and editors of The DAILY WORKER will be present, among them being: J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, SCOTT NEARING, BERTRAM D. WOLFE, WILLIAM F. DUNNE, ANNA RECHT, OTTO HUISERT, ROBERT W. DUNN, MICHAEL GOLD, as well as the leading figures in the local labor movement.

The banquet will be accompanied by concert numbers given by an excellent orchestra.

The banquet will be followed by a dance in the beautiful ballroom of the Yorkville Casino.

EVERYBODY WILL BE THERE

Don't fail to come

Monday (Washington's Birthday Eve.), Feb. 21, 1927

Banquet starts at 7 P. M.—Dancing at 9 P. M.

COMBINATION TICKETS FOR BANQUET AND DANCE $1.50

TICKETS FOR DANCE ONLY 50c.

SAVE THIS VALUABLE PRIZE COUPON

A Copy of Red Cartoons of 1927, Worth $1.00 for 50 Cents With 50 of These Coupons

CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT.

RED CARTOONS OF 1927 is even a finer collection of the most recent cartoons of the well-known labor artists—Robert Minor, Fred Ellis, K. A. Suvanin, Art Young, Hay Bales, Jorgen Vese and others. Each picture is large enough to be framed and mounted. The book includes in all 84 of the finest cartoons of the past year. This wonderful volume is not for sale. It is offered only to those who help us to build the Daily Worker.

DAILY WORKER

33 First Street New York, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.

50 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): $8.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.50 three months. By mail (outside of New York): $9.00 per year $5.00 six months $2.50 three months.

Address all mail and make but checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 50 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors

BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The Sanctuary of Reaction.

Pascual Diaz, the reactionary bishop of Tabasco, Mexico, is the latest prominent member of international reaction to make his abode in this refuge of the enemies of human progress. The capitalist press of this financial and commercial capital of American imperialism has thrown open its pages to the papal agent thru which he can hurl his priestly thunderbolts at the Mexican government.

The New York World, evidently trying to regain the catholic favor it lost thru its opposition to intervention in Mexico has outdone its competitors in abasing itself before the bishop. The World gives us to understand that it is opposed to the anti-clerical regulations adopted by the Mexican government to protect the state against the fascist conspiracies of the church and the United States oil and land magnates. One might as well say that he is opposed to Coolidge's policy in Mexico but favors that of Kellogg. The policy of the church in Mexico is of a piece with that of the American imperialists. Both are exploiters of the masses. Their interests dovetail perfectly. Both wish to keep the masses in ignorance. Intelligent workers and peasants do not see ghostly virgins stalking thru the gloom. A nation of spook-chasers may be short on intelligence but they are there with the pesos.

A working class that believes in the medicinal value of a pail of water seasoned with salt and "blessed" with the incantations of a priest are liable to believe the same priest when he tells them that it is sinful to go on strike. The clergy are useful to the exploiters of labor in Mexico. This accounts for the popularity of their cause among the ruling classes of this country.

Bishop Diaz insists that the church in Mexico does not countenance armed opposition to the government. We do not blame the holy man for lying. This is a congenital weakness from which honest clergymen suffer. It comes as natural to them as swimming comes to a duck or exploring for fleas to that kind of a dog. The workers who may be fooled by the Jesuit cunning of the bishop should adopt the wise precaution to assume that every utterance of the bishop's is a falsehood until proven true.

The church that had nothing but praise for the fascist dictatorship in Italy, an anti-working class dictatorship, until the fascists began to step on papal corns, is the sworn foe of the Mexican government, which, tho not a working class government by any means, must be given credit for doing more to enlighten the Mexican masses by a modern system of education during a short space of time than had been done in centuries by the church of which the heavy-jowled bishop is a representative.

Intelligent, class-conscious American workers will support the Mexican government against the oil barons and against the machinations of the catholic church. If the Mexican government ever makes peace with either, or with both, this will be a sign that the government has deserted the masses on which its power is based and has gone over to the enemy.

The Pulitzers Get Them Coming and Going

The Morning World, owned by the Pulitzer family, in its issue of Feb. 4, carried an editorial on the Chinese situation which showed up the diplomacy of Great Britain as a dishonest attempt to pull the wool over the eyes of the Cantonese government officials so that England could preserve the concessions she forced out of China when China was weak and disorganized and Britain was stronger than she is now.

But on the previous evening The Evening World, owned by the same Pulitzer family, hails the deceptive "concessions" made by the British government to the Cantonese as evidence of British desire for peace. "When the troops and warships began to move toward China," says the Evening World, "the World protested because of the fear that they were being sent to bolster up the British system there....but since the British are ready to sign a treaty providing for the wiping out of the system, in large part, the world in general is satisfied."

"The world in general" may be satisfied but the Chinese are not. Neither are the class conscious workers of the world. The snivelling bourgeois liberals who are always ready to flatten their noses on the ground in obeisance before the imperialists provided they have the slightest excuse for slapping the big fellows on the back may think the Chinese should be content with a quarter of a loaf or with a mite of the loot that was stolen from them. The Chinese are not. They want their country and they are going to take it with the strength of their arms.

He who believes in imperialist honesty is either a fool or a knave.

The British parliament re-opens Tuesday and masses of workers thruout the world will be watching eagerly to see if there are any elements in the Labor Party courageous enough to break with the backward leadership and open an attack on the developing wars against China and the Soviet Union.

The interallied military control over Germany has come to an end and another dream of the Versailles bandit peace that followed the last war fades away. Only a triumphant German working class can destroy the militarism of German capitalism.

Henry L. Mencken is an amusing fellow. In an article in a recent number of The American Mercury he starts by editorializing on the numerous secretaries who make a livelihood saving the county from Communism. In the middle of the article he dictates the Communists out of existence and proves that Communism can never flourish on American soil. Good old boobery stuff and as rotarian as a Coolidgeian. He winds up by prognosticating the decline of capitalism in the United States. To be clever one must not be consistent.

Facing the Year 1927 in China

HANKOW, Jan. 4. (By mail).—Profound changes in the general Chinese situation, both domestically and so far as the position of China and the world is concerned, are apparent to political observers here at the beginning of 1927. Accounts are beginning to be cast of the historic events of 1926, and it is generally conceded that a situation exists now which is greatly different from that obtaining at the beginning of 1926.

At the dawning of the year which has now closed, the position of what might be called the modern progressives of Chinese politics—the Kuomintang nationalists of Canton and, to a considerable extent, the Kuominchun armies of Feng Yu-hsiang—were better in the North than they are now, but not nearly so good in the South as they are now.

The Kuomintang had their housecleaning during 1925 and were well started on their way toward the erection of a modern and progressive government at Canton and throughout Kwangtung Province. They held authority, however, only over Kwangtung and Kwangsi Provinces, the Liang-kuang territory as it is generally known.

Kuominfang Forges Ahead.

In the north, Feng Yu-hsiang and his progressive subordinates were in control at Peking. But no direct liaison, even of policies, had been worked out between these two "modern arms" of China.

During the year the Kuomintang forged steadily ahead in their progressive work of modernizing the government of their home province of Kuangtung. The last of the reactionaries had been swept out, the army was busy exterminating bandits, life was being made safe for the peasantry, recognized as the basis of the body politic thruout China.

Meanwhile a thoroly modern finance system, under Finance Minister T. V. Soong, was being put into effect. "Squeeze" and corruption of all kinds was eliminated. Honest tax collection officers were everywhere appointed. The treasury at Canton actually got the money its mandates ordered to be collected in the way of legitimate and scientific taxation—a condition that has perhaps never before been achieved in any Chinese province. This system became so efficient that the year 1926 saw a sum approximating one hundred million dollars gathered into the nationalist treasury. The highest amount of revenue ever before collected in the province had been $51,000,000, in 1921. In 1924 it had fallen as low as $9,200,000.

Also meanwhile, as a normal phase of the work of this modern and progressive government, road projects were undertoken thruout the province, while Canton itself, an enlightened city government, under the chairmanship of Commissioner Sun Fo, undertook and carried out numerous projects for the general sanitary and developmental improvement of the community. Wide mashes (literally, horse-roads) were cut thru the city whose ancient streets are too narrow even for two rickshaws to pass. In order to do this, houses or parts of houses had to be demolished. So amazed were the house owners and merchants at these signs of progressivism that they gladly paid the cost of building these streets and contributed portions of their own house property toward the improvement.

Trade Unions Encouraged.

The beginning of an adequate sewer system, which had been started the previous year, were carried forward. Efficient street-cleaning work was carried on. The health of the city was greatly improved.

Education was pushed, particularly in the elementary forms. Political education of the masses in the aims and purposes of the nationalist movement was carried on everywhere. Labor organization was encouraged.

The events in the North in the early part of the year, when a so-called "alliance" between the former arch enemies, Chang Tso-lin and Wu Pei-fu, succeeded in eliminating the Kuominchun forces from Peking and finally, in the late summer, out of their stronghold in the Northwest—these events had a natural repercussion in Canton. Wu Pei-fu had breathed threats of bringing the war into Kuangtung as soon as he had defeated the Kuominchun in Chihli. When he first made pronouncements about these intentions, there seemed some possibility that the tuchuns and super-tuchuns might hold together long enough to make the beginnings, at least, of such an anti-South campaign. So the natural result was preparation on a grand scale for a northern expedition by the revolutionary nationalist forces, to defend their own territory in the south by an offensive campaign against the north.

This campaign started in July. Within a period so short as to create nothing short of amazement on the part of even foreign military observers, the nationalist troops had succeeded in rolling through Hunan Province and bestriding the Yangtze at the Wuhan area, which comprises the cities of Kankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, the latter with its great arsenal.

Control the Central Yangtze.

This put the revolutionary nationalist forces practically in control of the central Yangtze, the heart of commercial China, the reservoir of her financial and numerical strength. Wu Pei-fu was forced to evacuate Hankow. He moved far north into Honan Province, making his headquarters at Chengchow, where now sits amidst the ruins of a slowly-dia integrating organization. There is not a single one of his so-called ad bereft generals whose loyalty he can vouch for. To a greater extent than may at first seem apparent, Wu Pei fu's debacle and the disorganization of his forces represent the disintegration of medieval Chinese ideas and methods before the fresh, clean air of the modernized and progressive ideas and methods.

The nationalist armies now controlled Hupeh and Hunan, as well as Kuangtung and Kuangsi. Sun Chuanfang, after much hesitation, threw in his lot with the already defeated Wu Pei-fu and offered battle against the nationalist armies. The result was swift. He was eliminated from Kiangsi, which made safe the nationalists line of communication from its farthest outposts in southern Hunan to its revolutionary base in Kuangtung. Meanwhile another nationalist expedition into Fukien wrested that province from Sun's grasp, while part of the forces on the Yangtze, were used to take possession of part of Anhwei and also part of Chekiang Province, which also had been part of the self acclaimed domain of the "Five Provinces Director," a title Sun Chuang-fang had for a year or more claimed.

Popular Support.

An outstanding difference between the campaign of the Nationalist forces and those of any other fighting units in China was that it had universal popular support. Many of its incidental victories were made possible by the direct help of the peasants who, in some instances, guided the vanguard forces of the nationalists along the easiest routes against particular strongholds of Sun Chuan-fang. The capture of Kiu-kiang was a notable instance of this. Everywhere, also when the nationalist troops arrived, they were given every evidence of wholehearted welcome. They were regarded not as an exploiting army, but as a liberating army.

As the year neared its close, the situation in the north also began showing signs of hopefulness. Feng Yu-hsiang and his Kuominchun forces, which had been forced into the far northwest of Kansu, had reorganised; by the end of November they had succeeded in sweeping down through Shensi province and entering western Honan. There was every prospect that they would succeed early this year in effecting junctures with the nationalist troops already in the southern portion of that province.

The year 1927 opens, therefore, with the nationalist government moved nearly a thousand miles north of Canton and astride the Yangtze. It is now in full control of Kuangtung, Kuangsi, Fukien, Hunan, Kweichow, Hupeh and Kiangsi provinces, with partial control of Chekiang and Anhwei provinces, and with every prospect of control in Honan province within a short time.

Since Feng Yu-hsiang had, during the summer, definitely joined forces with the Kouminfang by becoming a member of the party and by inviting political instructors for the education of his men, the territory he now controls is also part of the territory under nationalist domination. It includes all Kansu and the northwest special areas, all of Shensi and part of Honan.

There is also a direct liaison between the Kouminfang in Mongolia and the nationalist forces, so that vast territory is also part of the nationalist dogma.

The year just passed has been one of historically outstanding importance in the fifteen-year-old plan of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen for the unification of the land under the aegis of the Kouminfang and its popular principles. There is some reason to believe that the year just opening may see the first steps in the Chinese emancipator's dream finally fulfilled.

A NEW NOVEL
Upton Sinclair

IV

Matters came to a climax. A letter for Bunny, bearing a French stamp, met him as a familiar handwriting that made his pulses jump. He tore it open and read: "Dear Son, I am in town for a few days and would you like to meet me? Yours for old times, Paul Watkin."

Bunny was twenty-four years old now, but it was just the way it had been eleven years ago, there in Mrs. Grosvy's back yard, when he had left his father and run shouting, "Paul! Paul! Where are you? Please don't go away!" Bunny had a date with Vee, but he got out of it—his sister would invite her to one of those diplomatic tea-parties where you met the Prince de This and the Duchesse de That. Then Bunny hurried off to the obscure hotel where his friend was staying.

Paul was haggard; one does not take a trip to Moscow to get fat. But his sober face was shining with a light of fanaticism — the same thing which his brother Eli called the glory of the Lord! Dad would have said there were two of them, equally crazy; but it didn't seem that way to Bunny, who mocked at Eli's god, but believed in Paul's — at least enough to tremble in his presence. Paul had been living under a workers' government again—and this time not as a wage-slave, a strike-breaker in army uniform, but as a free man, and master of the future. So now in this dingy hotel room Bunny was sitting opposite an apostle; Paul, with his somber, determined features and toil-accustomed figure, the very incarnation of the militant working class!

And the miracles of which he had to tell were real. First of all a spiritual miracle—a hundred million people proclaiming their own sovereignty, and the downfall of masters and exploiters, kings, priests, capitalists, the whole rabble of parasites. It was a physical miracle, too, because these hundred million people controlled one-sixth of the earth's surface, and were building a new civilization, a model for the future. They were poor, of course; they had started with a country in wreck. But what were a few years, and a little human compared with the ages of torment they had survived?

Paul described the sights of Moscow. First of all, the youth movement; a whole new generation being taught to be clear-eyed and free, to face the facts of nature, and to serve the working-class, instead of climbing out upon its face and founding a line of parasites! You saw those young Communists in the class-rooms, on athletic fields, in the streets—marching, singing, listening to speeches—Paul himself had talked to tens of thousands, in his little bit of Russian, and nothing had ever meant so much to him. He had but one interest for the rest of his life, to tell the young workers of America about the young workers of Russia. He began by telling Bunny!

He talked about the councils he had attended, the international gatherings where the future of the parties all over the world was charted out. Bunny of course made his protest against this. Did Paul really think it was possible for an American political party to have its course determined in a foreign country? Paul smiled and said it was hard enough — the Russian leaders couldn't understand how far back in history America stood. But what else could you do? Either you meant to have world order, or you couldn't? If you left the party in each country to determine its own course, you were right back where you were before the war, with men calling themselves Socialists, and holding power in the name of Socialism, who were in reality patriots, ready to back the exploiters of their own land in wars against the exploiters of other lands.

That was the thing which threatened to destroy the human race; and the only way to end it was to do what the Third International was doing—have a world government and enforce its orders. The workers' world government was located in Moscow, because elsewhere the delegates would be thrown into prison, or assassinated, as in Geneva. But before many years the Third International would hold a Congress in Berlin, and then in Paris and London, and in the end in New York. The workers of the world would send their representatives, and their Congress would give its orders, and the regions would obey their fighting just you bet! The Czars and Kings as usual were swept along upon a wave of great events.

(To Be Continued).

MY MACHINE

By C. SARA SHERMAN

1 o'clock, I return after a western sandwich in the neighborhood cafeteria. My back still aching from the morning bending. I am not at all rested by the hour of lunch. But I sit down to my machine. My machine! The same machine that makes up the "Shop". It is the old, old story. It is the story of ages and ages of struggle. Not so to me, to me it is a new epoch. It is a new life, a great, powerful, vigorous life, the makers of the machine. The machine, the new powerful weapon of life intent to make life easier. I am all power to it. Men of the world, don't forget that when you bend your backs to it, look at it straight and earnestly. You have made it. Yes, all of you bent backs have made the "Machine". It is yours. Use it and keep it.

Dzzzz Dzzzz Brrrrrr. The power has started up. Quick, quick, quick, the machine is calling. The machine has rested one whole hour and the boss needs dresses to sell. To sell. Shop does not wait for little kids like me to rest. It demands of us to be strong. Alright . . . we shall be strong. We shall make dresses, the world needs dresses. But for whom? I look at the cloak, then at my sisters, black sisters, white sisters, and I say to them with my eyes, for I cannot speak with my tongue, shop does not permit that. I say to them: Yes, let us be strong, let us catch up to the machine. Dzzz Dzzzz goes the machine . . . Put your white linen under it, a stitch here, a stitch there, turn the corners, repeat a stitch at the end to make the other stitch last.

Just the things, a stitch here, a seam there, all together we make clothes. The world needs clothes. I again look at my Southern sister, and she seems to understand me. Her big black eyes splash out of her black skin, she nods her kindly head smilingly. Yes, the world needs clothes. We will make clothes altogether.

Mary the Polish seamstress makes back seams, Nina the Russian girl is making the sleeves, Angelina the Italian girl is putting on the collars, while my negro sister opposite me is punching the buttons. A lot of colorful material is thrown on the machines. Color! Colors! Colors Galore! Pink, Blue, green, flowered, and red, red. The vogue now is red. Red blouses, red dresses, red kerchiefs.

I hem-stitch, to give it the finishing touches and I think almost outloud, how well organized shop is, how well the girls understand unity of production, each one doing their bit, from the cutters to the pressers. No fights, no squabbles—just union work. Who can say we are individualistic? That we are anarchistic? No, we are social beings, we prove it by our work, by our life. Red, red, again that color flared up amongst the rest, it is the vogue, even the French modiste proclaim it so. I think of Russia. Yes, it is the vogue life proclaims it so. Unity in production, we have that. But there is still another unity. The unity of distribution. Those same ones sitting with me at the machines who make clothes together. . . .

Comrades, sisters, brothers, black, white, brown—join in let us all unite and own the clothes we make. . . .

Poincare Expects More Hard Times in France

PARIS, Feb. 6. — The immediate stabilization of the franc, is not part of Premier Poincare's immediate program. Such action would be "dangerous," the premier told the Chamber of Deputies today.

The two times confronting France since the franc was "saved" are temporary, according to the premier, but he warned the chamber that the country would have to face an unpleasant economic situation before the complete recovery of the franc.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 22 NEW YORK, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1927 Price 3 Cents

Halt the Lithuanian Murderers

By JAMES P. CANNON, Secretary International Labor Defense.

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 7.—Cables just received by International Labor Defense convey the astounding news that the Lithuanian fascist government has renewed court martial proceedings and that death sentences have been imposed on the teacher Adamonki, the students Glewacki and Sewarsburg and the trade union leader Vitul. This is in addition to the four working class leaders already executed.

Court martials are beginning to operate throughout Lithuania and sentences to death and life imprisonment are becoming the order of the day.

The leaders of the Lithuanian working class, racked with torture and facing the firing squad, appeal to us for help. The fascist murderers, seeking loans in America, are very sensitive to a protest movement here.

We must organize this protest without delay.

The most practical immediate steps are the following:

Send telegrams to the Lithuanian ambassador at Washington.

Send cables to Antòn Smedona, president, Kaunas, Lithuania.

Help the victims of Lithuanian fascism!

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE dreams of early socialists have been realized in the United States, declares the Daily News, New York tabloid sheet in commenting on the absence of general indignation over the discovery that Henry Ford refused a three billion dollar offer to sell out. Had such a sensational news story broke twenty years ago, says the News, Jack London and Upton Sinclair would fly to their typewriters and click out their wrath to the multitudes. Today the news is accepted without a yelp. Evidently the News editorial writer does not read The DAILY WORKER.

• • •

Workingmen own stocks in the companies that employ them, the employers build recreation quarters, pay bonuses and old age pensions and talk over wage disputes rather than quarrel over them. This is the bunk the Daily News serves to its hundreds of thousands of readers. This is the socialism that is sponsored today by the socialists of the socialist party, but it has no more in common with Marxian socialism or Communism than limburger cheese has with attar of roses.

• • •

Had this editorial writer read his own paper he would find a story on the starvation wages paid to employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, who are alleged to be on the verge of revolt. Evidently a man with a family trying to live on from $12 to $20 a week cannot be expected to chortle over the fact that Henry Ford is worth billions of dollars. There is little danger that the News exaggerated the story in the interests of Frank Hedley's slaves. But we are informed that of the eight men interviewed by the News none of them averaged more than $20 a week and several produced time books showing earnings of barely $12 to $18 a week.

• • •

A bitter factional fight in the church of England is feared when the archbishop of Canterbury presents the revised book of common prayer to a convocation at the church house, Westminister. It took the divines twenty years to make the revision. It is rumoured that the holy men discussed whether the word "obey" should be deleted from the marriage ceremony for one year. A council of catholic bishops once spent a session discussing how many angels could dance on the point of a pin. It seems we are progressing.

• • •

THE Chinese seem to have had about as much of the missionaries as they can stomach. While some of those evangelists revolted at the conditions under which the Chinese masses were suffering at the hands of native militarists and foreign imperialists, most of them remained loyal to their payrolls, which were furnished by the financial masters of the capitalist countries. The Chinese have now decided to place these capitalist agents on the revolutionary shovel and dump them into the holds of outward bound ships.

• • •

Professor J. C. Beaty of the University of Virginia who is traveling in the Far East tells of a missionary, who was departing for America. His Chinese friends gave him a farewell banquet and the admonition "Don't come back. We can get on better

(Continued on page 2)

Communist Party of China Flays British

Calls on Masses to Support Demands of the Revolutionary Nationalist Government

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—The Communist Party of China has issued a manifesto on events in Hankow charging the British government with having provoked a bloody conflict with the Chinese masses to have pretext for demanding that the nationalist government repress the people.

It is quite clear that Great Britain has plotted to prepare for intervention. The British imperialists are trying to create a united front at home and if possible to unite all imperialist powers against the Chinese revolution.

The aim of Great Britain in conducting negotiations with the Cantonese government was to gain time while troops and naval forces were concentrating.

The manifesto calls on the Chinese workers and peasants to support the demands of the nationalist government for the abolition of special privileges to foreigners, the return of concessions and the withdrawal of armed forces of the imperialists from China.

• • •

BRITISH COMMUNISTS URGE DIRECT ACTION TO BLOCK IMPERIALISTIC WAR AGAINST CHINA

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Central Committee of the Communist Party of Great Britain has issued a manifesto calling for direct action on the part of the working class of the country to prevent the transport of soldiers and the shipment of arms and munitions for war on China.

The Communists want to force the reformist leaders to break the alliance with the Baldwin government. The workers are urged to demand the resignation of the imperialistic government which is preparing to embark on another bloody war.

LISBON SEIZED BY PORTUGUESE REVOLUTIONISTS

Most of Army and Civil Population Rebels

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Portuguese revolt has spread from Oporto to Lisbon, the capital, according to advices received here this evening.

The outbreak of open rebellion in the capital was reported to have met with the greatest success. The revolutionary forces, together with the marine guard, the republican police, and infantry, rapidly occupied several strategic positions.

Their triumph is considered as a foregone conclusion, according to the report received here, and the whole civil population has joined in the revolutionary movement with the greatest enthusiasm.

• • •

Rail Strike Continues.

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 7.—The railway strike still paralyzes the country, and makes news that does escape the government censorship.

(Continued on Page 2).

LATEST NEWS IN BRIEF

"President Harding" Stranded.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—The steamship President Harding, Bremen for New York, was reported stranded off Halifax, N. S., in messages received here today. The President Harding was reported out of fuel oil, as the result of a leaking tank.

U. S. Kind to Vets at 6 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — The house today unanimously passed the bill to authorize the veterans bureau to make loans on soldiers' adjusted compensation certificates. An unsuccessful move was made to reduce the interest rate fixed at six per cent in the bill.

Loses Life in Fire Trap.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Trapped by fire, a youth met death early today and three children who leaped from windows into a life net formed of automobile robes were probably fatally burned. The father of the victims saved his life by leaping to the sidewalk while the mother crept to safety along a narrow flame-swept ledge.

Seven Cars Leave Rails.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—More than 100 passengers on a fast Chicago, Burlington & Quincy passenger train from St. Paul were shaken up when seven cars left the rails at Downer's Grove, 21 miles west of here today. No one was seriously hurt as all of the cars remained upright.

Track Star Defeated.

BRESLAU, Germany, Feb. 7.—Dr. Peltzer, ace of German long distance runners, today went down to a sensational defeat at the heels of Herr. Schoemann of Breslau in a one thousand metre race on a board track.

Admiral Latimer Is Neutralizing All Nicaragua

Liberals Winning Despite United States Forces

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, Feb. 7.—Admiral Latimer is expected to declare Chinandega, now captured by the liberals, to be a neutral zone, if the liberals are able to hold the city against the conservative counter attack, according to reports received here.

Liberals Are Winning.

The liberal forces having completed their occupation and domination of eastern Nicaragua are now preparing for offensives in the western area.

General Arguello, commanding the Diaz forces at Guadeloupe on the Rama river, has withdrawn to Managua, thus clearing the last eastern stronghold of conservative forces. A handful of conservatives were left at the Diaz garrison at Guadeloupe but were soon captured.

Standing Off Conservatives.

Reports of continued liberal successes in the west have been received here, and there is great interest in the issue of the battle of Chinandega, to the north of Managua, where the liberals are standing off conservative troops.

Could Block Communications.

If the liberals can occupy and hold Chinandega it may bring about a serious problem for the American marines in occupation in Nicaragua, for from this city it would be possible for the liberals to interrupt communications between Managua and Corinto, where the naval vessels on the west coast have made their headquarters.

Throughout the eastern zone all is reported quiet and the liberals have consolidated their position.

Liberal headquarters have emphasized the importance of their forces entering Chinandega and state that the strength of the liberals at Chinandega is evident refutation of earlier Managua reports that the liberals had suffered a heavy defeat at Ramos.

Reports have been received here that the liberal forces are in possession of Nagarote and that notice has been given that they will not permit arms and munitions for Diaz to pass through Leon.

• • •

American Army Fliers Serving in Nicaragua With the Diaz Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — The state department today disclaimed any "official" knowledge of American aviators fighting with the Diaz conservatives in Nicaragua, although news dispatches telling of the battle of Chinandega carried the names of Americans who have joined the Diaz forces against the liberals.

The Diaz government is supported and recognized by the United States government.

Press dispatches named Maj. Lee Mason, Maj. William Brooks, and Maj. E. J. Clay as being identified with the conservatives.

Kellogg Was Informed.

Newspaper correspondents in the capital believe that Kellogg had advance information that those aviators were taking service with the revolutionary Diaz and there is not the slightest probability that the government will take steps to recall them.

Pioneer Negroes of World State Object Is Uniting of Race

Another move has been made toward organizing the Negroes, with the formation of the Pioneer Negroes of the World. The Pioneers held a meeting yesterday, at 158 West 136th street, which was attended by about two hundred men and women.

Wesley Holder, secretary of the new organization stated that the main object of the Pioneers is to unify the Negro peoples of the world. The charter was signed by Frederick W. Dove, former deputy mayor of Freetown, West Africa.

Frank Crosswith, of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, stated: "At this moment the non-white races of China, India, Africa and Japan are rising to let the minority know that white supremacy is a myth and that this myth must end. The Pioneer Negro comes into being at a most propitious moment. If the early accomplishments of our races are used as a beacon light to guide this group, then the world should feel its force."

Baldwin Anti-Strike Law Goes to Commons At Third Day Session

LONDON, Feb. 7.—An attempt to put the screws on the British Labor movement will be made by Baldwin's reactionary government when the third session of present parliament opens tomorrow.

Prohibition of the general strike, restrictions on picketing, and the separation of the benevolent and political funds of unions are some of the provisions of the trade union bill which will be introduced by the Baldwin government.

The entire situation and the budget are other vital issues which will arouse stormy controversy, and which must be introduced soon.

FOUR ARRESTED FOR ENSLAVING NEGRO DEBTORS

Southern Planters Sell Whole Family for $20

FLUKER, La., Feb. 7.—Several cases of interstate commerce in Negro slaves have just been brought to the attention of special agents of the Department of Justice in Louisiana and Mississippi. It is common knowledge thruout this section that peonage flourishes, but arrests are unusual.

Joseph C. Anders and Loomie Blumenfield, two wealthy plantation owners of Amite County, Miss., are in the hands of the federal government, and have already been indicted. They are charged with causing deputy sheriffs to arrest a Negro at his home in Tangipahoa Parish, La., for a debt which they claimed he owed them. His denials were overlooked, and finally, it is said, he consented to avoid a severe jail sentence by working out the "debt" on a plantation owned by the men. They smuggled him over the state line in an automobile. The sheriffs have confessed.

Sold Whole Family.

Webb Bellue and John D. Alfred, owners of a plantation in Amite County, Miss., and also of a farm at Fluker, La., are indicted for seizing in the same quasi-legal manner a Negro named Crawford Allen and his family, whom they placed at hard labor on their own farm. After several weeks, evidence indicates they sold the fifty-year-old man and his wife and three children for $20 These cases follow the regular method of enforcing peonage in the country districts of the South. Negroes are arrested for debt or for vagrancy, then turned over to white planters who accept the debt or pay the vagrancy fine, the Negro "agreeing" to work off the amount owed. If he runs away he can be brought back by peace officers for "attempting to abscond, leaving bills unpaid." There is no way in which the planters can be forced to pay any wages, and as a result, the debt usually continues to grow indefinitely.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Gary Workers to Hear Lecture by Lowrie on Cooperative Movement

GARY, Ind., Feb. 7.—The third of a series of interesting lectures offered by the Open Forum Committee of the Gary Workers Cooperative Society will be given Sunday, February 13, 3 p. m., at the Public Library Auditorium, 5th avenue and Adams street.

"The Cooperative Movement of America," will be the topic discussed by Charles Lowrie, secretary of the Farmer-Labor Exchange and a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor from the Post Office Clerks Union. Questions and discussion will follow. Admission free.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Gary Workers to Hear Lecture by Lowrie on Cooperative Movement

GARY, Ind., Feb. 7.—The third of a series of interesting lectures offered by the Open Forum Committee of the Gary Workers Cooperative Society will be given Sunday, February 13, 3 p. m., at the Public Library Auditorium, 5th avenue and Adams street.

"The Cooperative Movement of America," will be the topic discussed by Charles Lowrie, secretary of the Farmer-Labor Exchange and a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor from the Post Office Clerks Union. Questions and discussion will follow. Admission free.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Cantonese Driving On to Shanghai

Fang Pours Last Reserves Into the Battle as Southerners Push Forward

SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—Great excitement prevails here today as reports continue to reach the city that the Cantonese armies are again moving forward and grinding the enemy in the mighty maw of their invincible war machine.

The booming of heavy artillery is heard in Hangchow, the immediate objective of the Cantonese and the only serious obstacle between them and Shanghai. Sun Chuan Fang continues to express optimism but it is definitely known that he has thrown his last reserves, his own personal bodyguard of 8,000 picked men into the fray in a desperate effort to stop the military steam roller of the revolutionary Nationalist government.

Reports have reached here that the city of Fuyang, fifteen miles south of Hangchow, has fallen to the Cantonese.

"Come Home Chang!"

It is reported here that Chang-Tso-Lin's chief of staff has telegraphed insistently from Mukden requesting his chief to return at once as the situation is none too bright in Manchuria.

Eugene Chen in a strong speech delivered in Hankow charged the British government with having a "Peking complex." He declared that "Great Britain is mainly responsible for bolstering up the dying feudal government of Peking and maintaining the brigand Chang-Tso-Lin and his allies.

Fascists War On China.

ROME, Feb. 7.—Mussolini ordered 1,500 men to be dispatched to China on a dreadnaught which is expected to leave here in a few days. The troops will be equipped for shore duty. Fascist leaders openly boast of this imperialistic adventure.

• • •

Consuls Make Protest.

PEKING, Feb. 7.—The American, British, French, Italian and Japanese ministers have called on Wellington Koo, active head of the inactive Peking government and protested against the discharge of Sir Francis Aglen, the British collector of customs who was discharged by Koo for refusing to perform his duty.

• • •

U.S. Ready to Join Great Britain Against Canton

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — The United States stands ready to take joint action with Great Britain against the Cantonese government if the Cantonese reject the American proposal for eliminating the Shanghai international settlement from the zone of war activities.

This course has been under consideration for some time, it was learned today.

The identic note containing the Shanghai neutrality proposal sent to Chang Tso-Lin, Chiang Kai-Shek and Sun Chuang-Fang, was couched in diplomatic terms and contained no threat as to what action this country would take in the event of its rejection. It is known, however, that the request was not intended to be an empty gesture.

Dispatches from Europe have intimated that the United States already has secretly agreed to take part in a joint intervention although the existence of a secret compact has been officially denied here many times.

• • •

Protest Dispatch of Troops.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—American missionaries in China today sent an appeal to the Federal Council of Churches against use of armed force in China.

It came from 147 American missionaries stationed at Nanking, and expressed the belief that a show of force is "unnecessary and likely, to cause trouble and danger to all interests."

Kellogg Spurns Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — Denial was made by Assistant Secretary of State Olds today that he had authorized any interview concerning mediation of the Nicaraguan Civil War.

ARREST HUNDRED AS EMPEROR OF JAPAN IS BURIED

Ostentatious Funeral For State Purposes

TOKIO, Feb. 7.—A hundred arrests featured the burial today of Yoshihito, emperor of Japan. All persons suspected of tampering with the funeral equipage of the forty-four days dead emperor were placed in custody, and an investigation started into what may become a first class scandal.

The center of ceremony in the royal funeral is the cart, which carries the corpse through the streets, in a magnificent parade. This cart, at the last moment, was discovered to have a broken shaft, and the crowds of hundreds of thousands of loyal, or curious, subjects who were waiting for the procession to start, continued to wait while hasty repairs were made. Meanwhile, all persons who might have tampered with it were imprisoned.

Yoshihiti was a feeble man, absolutely without effect on the social events of his time, other than that, by merely existing, he was able to preserve the fiction of a land ruled through divine authority, by a descendent of the Sun Goddess.

Put in Holy Show.

Since his usefulness to the capitalist military oligarchy that rules Japan with an iron hand lay in his ceremonial capacities, his funeral was intended to lack none of the ancient and impressive rites that might be made use of.

Constantinian spread thruout official society, therefore, when it was found that the sacred funeral cart, used to transport the ashes of the man-god, was mysteriously unserviceable.

This cart, especially built for the funeral by a firm that for more than 100 years has made carriages and other conveyances for the imperial family, is chiefly of Japanese cypress, with wheels of zelkowa and axles of oak. It is lacquered black, trimmed with gold. Its length is 33 feet and it is 12 feet high and 12 feet wide with wheels nearly six feet in diameter.

Three jet black oxen drew the cart and as the bullocks trudged along, the wheels of the cart gave forth a peculiar wailing note denoting grief to the Japanese mind. This was in accordance with an ancient Japanese custom which requires that the wheels of the catafalque of an emperor shall "mourn." It requires much skill in building the cart to produce these strange wailing notes at regular intervals, but tradition calls for it. When an emperor dies it is felt that the whole empire and everything in it, animate and inanimate, should cry out in sorrow.

Behind the cart walked the chief mourner.

Almost every personage in Japan

(Continued on Page 2).

LITHUANIAN FASCISTS CONDEMN THREE MORE COMMUNISTS TO DEATH BY COURT MARTIAL

KOVNO, Lithuania, Feb. 7.—Three more members of the Communist Party of Lithuania were sentenced to death by courtmartial on the second of February and a fourth was given twelve years with hard labor.

The names of the condemned men are: Strushas, Kasakewiczus and Aleksinas. Turia goes to prison.

TERRIFIC PROFITS FOR BIGGEST BANK OF U. S.; ROCKEFELLER BANK GETS BIGGEST LUMP SUM

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press).

The exorbitant price the country pays for leaving the administration of social credit in private hands is revealed in a Wall Street Journal compilation of New York profits in 1926. According to this survey 38 banks and trust companies took a toll of $121,559,000 off the business which they handled in 1926. This is a return of more than 35% on the aggregate capital outstanding and of 13.2% on the capital plus $600,000,000 surplus profits of previous years.

Double Capital.

Three financial institutions show profits of more than 100% invested capital. These are the Kings County Trust Co. with $186.80 profit on each $100 invested; the U. S. Trust Co. with $120 on each $100 and the First National bank with $104.40 on each $100 of capital.

Profits of more than 100% are the rule in the case of Kings' County Trust and the First National. In the

(Continued on page 3)

Subscribe To the DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

DAUGHERTY FACES COURT AGAIN ON CHARGE OF GRAFT

Allege He 'Shook Down' Alien Property Owners

The jury who will decide the fate of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, charged with conspiracy against the government in connection with the return of $7,000,000 in seized enemy alien property to alleged German interests, was completed late this afternoon.

The case of the U. S. government versus Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, charged with conspiracy to defraud the United State is in court, to be re-tried, after the jury in the first trial disagreed and was dismissed. The outstanding facts in the case are as follows:

War Loot.

Richard Merton, a German, came to this country in 1921, to demand the return of $6,500,000 in property of a German metal company, which had been confiscated during the war by the office of the Alien Property Custodian.

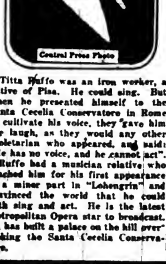
He entered into negotiation with John T. King, Connecticut politican, who in turn introduced him to Jess Smith, the handy man of Harry Daugherty. Merton says he paid the sum of $391,000 in Liberty bonds and $50,000 in cash to King, as a bribe to accomplish his purpose.

Graft Left Trail.

King and Smith are dead, and cannot be held to answer. However, the government says this payment of graft was traced to the hands of Miller and Daugherty. In fact evidence in the previous trial showed that Miller got $50,000 and that $224,000 went to Smith and Daugherty. These funds were deposited in Mal Daugherty's bank, the records of which were destroyed.

Paid For Votes.

This is a clear case. Practically nobody disputes the validity of the evidence, and it was stated that the only thing which saved the defendants in the first tirnl was that the jury had information that these graft payments had been used by the Ohio gang to pay the deficit of the 1920 presidential campaign expenses.



Yesterday, while appearing in court, Daugherty was approached by reporters and asked some political questions. He answered: "I never was much interested in politics, not even when I was attorney general." It is expected that the trial will last about three weeks, and that the prosecution will demand a verdict of guilty.

Another Attack On Women.

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 7.—Women and girls of this city were terror stricken today as the result of the twentieth assault in the last seventeen days on girls and women.

Thirteen-year-old Eva Bline Is the latest victim. She was burned about the face by a man who threw the contents of a small bottle of acid as she was walking home after visiting friends.

Titta Ruffo, Singer, Once Iron Worker

Central Press Photo

Titta Ruffo was an iron worker, a native of Pisa. He could sing. But when he presented himself to the Santa Cecelia Conservatores in Rome to cultivate his voice, they gave him the laugh, as they would any other proletarian who applied, and said: "He has no voice, and he cannot act". Ruffo had a musician relative who coached him for his first appearance in a minor part in "Lohengrin" and convinced the world that he could both sing and act. He is the latest Metropolitan Opera star to broadcast. He has both a palace on the hill overlooking the Santa Cecelia Conservatore.

MINE NEGRO GANGS KILL 4 FOUR

Scene at the mouth of mine of the Norton Coal Mining Co., Ilaley, Ky., where four miners were killed by a gas explosion, blowing down tons of coal, wrecking ten cars in the tunnel and setting the mine afire.

The U. S. Bureau of Mines reports show that gas explosions do not occur in properly inspected mines.

BIGGEST BANK MAKES TERRIFIC PROFIT

(Continued from page 1)

last 3 years the trust company has turned a profit of $440.60 on each $100 invested, while the great Morgan institution has handed its owners $361.20 on each $100 of capital stock.

John D. Gets It.

The huge National City Bank which brings together Kuhn Loeb and the Standard Oil interests reported the largest actual profits, the amount being $15,583,000 or 31.7% on $50,000,000 capital.

The 1926 profits of the 20 leading banks together with the percentages earned on capital and on capital surplus and undivided profits were:

	Annual profit	Pct. on capital	On capital & surplus
New York Bank Profits, 1926
Chatham-Phenix National	$3,027,000	22.4	11.6%
Chemical National	2,091,000	46.4	9.2
Commerce National	6,044,000	24.2	9.1
City National	15,833,000	31.7	13.7
First National	11,545,000	116.4	13.9
Hanover National	2,599,000	51.9	8.3
Park National	2,885,000	28.8	8.5
Seaboard National	2,203,000	26.7	13.9
Corn Exchange National	2,861,000	26.8	10.9
Chase National (6 months)	4,240,000	16.6	5.5
Bankers Trust	9,069,000	45.3	7.7
Central Union Trust	8,849,000	59.2	21.1
Equitable Trust	6,392,000	17.8	12.4
Farmers Loan & Trust	2,934,000	29.3	10.1
Guaranty Trust	7,074,000	28.3	15.9
American Exch-Irving Trust	9,700,000	30.3	16.7
Manufacturers Trust	4,315,000	17.1	10.7
New York Trust	3,771,000	37.7	12.5
Title Guarantee & Trust	5,792,000	57.9	21.9
United States Trust	2,101,000	120.0	11.5

Mergers Help.

This group of 20 banks had a combined profit of $116,123,000 if we assume that the Chase bank made approximately $8,000,000 for the full year. The 10 largest banks in the list had a combined total profit of $87,218,000 or about 2-3 of all the profits made by the 38 banks and trust companies in the Wall Street Journal compilation. These 10 financial institutions are the chief instruments of New York banker control over the country's economic life.

The report shows that these big New York banks are merging to form even larger aggregations of credit power. The most important mergers of 1926 involved the Chase National and the American Exchange-Irving Trust. These National absorbed the Mechanics & Metals National bank at the same time, increasing its capital from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000. The American Exchange-Irving Trust is the result of a series of mergers, the first bringing together the Irving National bank and the Columbia Trust, the others bringing the National Butchers & Drovers bank and the American Exchange Pacific bank into the combination.

Rochester Workers Muster Forces for Sacco-Vanzetti

ROCHESTER, Feb. 7.—"Sacco and Vanzetti are innocent and must be freed." This is the slogan with which the Rochester Defense Committee has approached the task of enlisting the help of the entire local labor movement to work towards the freeing of these two men.

A mass protest meeting against the continued persecution of these martyrs and against the decision of Judge Thayer, will be held in this city at the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Hall, on Feb. 26th. Arthur Garfield Hayes will be the principal speaker, and John Flynn, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, has been asked to preside.

To date there are 38 organizations in Rochester who have affiliated with the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee. Between now and Feb. 26th, all A. F. of L. unions will be visited by the committee and the necessity of support will be explained. All labor must be aroused to free these two men who have now for six years been the victims of capitalistic "justice."

"King Benjamin" Stands Mute.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Feb. 7.—"King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the house of David, was held for trial in circuit court May 16 on three criminal charges when arraigned today before Judge Charles E. White. Benjamin was brought into court on a stretcher. He stood mute after the information in the three cases brought by the Bamford sisters and Mrs. Bessie Woodward were read.

British Charge Said To Favor Diversion Of Troops From China

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The British cabinet met today to consider the recommendation of British Charge O'Malley that the British troops now enroute to Shanghai be diverted.

Chan Tso Lin, northern leader, is reported to have agreed to Secretary of States Kellogg's suggestion that the international settlement in Shanghai be considered outside of the war zone.

Wait For Chen's Reply.

Eugene Chen, nationalist leader, has repeatedly stated that he does not intend to occupy the international settlement in Shanghai and this is believed to be his probable reply to Secretary Kellogg.

American missionaries in Nanking have cabled the state department urging against the landing of American troops in China as unnecessary and likely to create difficulties.

British Troops Parade.

HONG KONG, China, Feb. 7.—The second battalion of British light infantry arrived from India today. Parading through the streets, the second Suffolks, headed by the regimental band were received in gloomy silence by the huge throngs of Chinese that lined the curbs.

The first cruiser squadron is due to arrive here tomorrow from the Mediterranean. Military authorities, it was rumored, plan to take over the new and commodious buildings of the Diocesan boys' school and Kings' college, using them for military hospitals.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

AMNESTY HONORED AS EMPEROR OF JAPAN IS BURIED

Ostentatious Funeral For State Purposes

(Continued from Page 1)

except those too old or too infirm to walk, was in the procession which followed. The army's guard of honor, escorting the coffin, consisted of 2,000 men selected from the imperial guard division—the old guard of the Japanese army. The navy provided an honor guard of 4,000 blue jackets. The colors of every regiment of the Japanese army—77 in all—were carried in the procession by picked representatives.

Along the route of the procession soldiers and sailors lined the left side of the street while the public occupied the right. More than 30,000 army officers and men under command of Lieut. Gen. Nan Isomura, commander of the Tokio garrison, participated. More than 9,000 police were in the streets.

1,000 Priests On Hand.

Over 1,000 priests of the Shinto faith took part in the ceremonies.

Within the flow of thousands of lanterns and torches the ceremonies began at 6 P. M. (4 A. M. New York time), when the funeral procession left the palace in the heart of Tokio. They will end at dawn tomorrow at Ngashi-Asakawa, a country village on the Musashi plain, about 30 miles from Tokio, when the mortal remains of the one hundred and twenty-third occupant of the world's most ancient throne, will be laid to rest in the mausoleum especially built to receive it.

Socialist Labor Party Advertizes National Cash Register Wares

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

AKRON, O., Feb. 7.—A humorous lecture illustrated by stereoptican slides was given last night by Adolph Silver, national organizer, of the socialist labor party before an audience of fifty-five in the Music Hall.

This lecture is the first of a series of four which "economizes" to solve the problems of capital and labor. Unfortunately, the first lecture, "Do We Need the Capitalists," was illustrated principally by pictures of improved types and calculating and tabulating machines furnished by the National Cash Register Company.

Watchful Waiting.

The purpose of these pictures was to prove that modern machinery is doing away with bookkeepers and white collar help, and by simplifying management is also doing away with the necessity for the capitalist. The overthrow of capitalism then becomes simplified. Join the S. L. P. and watch the system crumble!

No Listeners.

Needless to say there were few present and little applause. This is in strking contrast to the reception Scott Nearing got Monday night, where the entire speech was punctuated by applause and enthusiasm of 400 workers and where hundreds of pamphlets were sold. Nearing spoke under the auspices of the International Labor Defense on the subject, "The Attack on the Labor Movement."

Roll In the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Senate Insurgents Now Completely Swallowed By Republican Old Guard

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

Ah, the maneuvers of the regular American "old guard" to entice the insurgent group in congress here full fruit in the senate vote for reducing democratic hopes to force so-called tax reduction in the present session of congress.

While Hyper brookforth, promises of committee positions and party patronage for loyal vote getters have spawned rich results.

Every republican, from Smoot to LaFolletta, stood hitched, with a rope around the neck even of the farmer-labor senator from Minnesota, Magnus Johnson, in direction by The DAILY WORKER of the backward drift of the LaFollette group, including Shipstead, is thus completely fulfilled.

* * *

Republican unity 100 per cent, was mustered against the effort of the democrats to steal a little campaign thunder for 1928 thru support of a resolution introduced by Senator Pat Harrison (democrat-Mississippi) seeking to have the treasury surplus devoted to tax reduction.

The reduction of taxes, to benefit the great rich, is one of the "economy" stunts that President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon reserve exclusively for the republican party. Every invasion of this territory by the democrats is fought bitterly.

* * *

But it remained for the republican insurgent from Nebraska to lead the old guard battle against the democrats. It was Senator Norris, still fresh from his last November invasion of Pennsylvania to fight the candidacy of Vare by seeking votes for the democratic sensational offering William B. Wilson, who presented the substitute to Pat Harrison's resolution demanding that any treasury surplus be applied to the reduction of the national debt. Norris, getting every insurgent vote, led the republican "old guard" to victory with the Labor result standing at 52 to 35.

* * *

Thus the LaFollette insurgent group has no tax policy separate and apart from that offered by the chosen few on behalf of the predatory interests. Even Shipstead, who joined tal Coolidge in his morning repast of flapjacks and maple syrup, raised no voice against the president's fake economy schemes, against the government financiering in Mellon. He just went along.

This should be valuable news to the discontented farmers of the west, who have been demanding that the government use some of its surplus funds to aid bankrupt agriculture. The whole farm bloc

Eight Jurors Selected In Murder Trial.

CANTON, O., Feb. 7.—More than half the panel of vanire men drawn to serve as jurors in the case of Ben Rudner, alleged instigator of the conspiracy to murder Don. R. Mellett, had been excused, with eight tentatively seated.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Frazier and Nye, Norbeck and Norris, LaFollette and Shipstead, Howell and McNary, all went along with the Peppers, the Smooths, the Wadsworths and the other bellywhers of the plunderbund.

* * *

The next step in the insurgent surrender will be the admission of the LaFollette group to the old guard caucus. The republican reaction has already issued the invitations and the so-called "progressives" are expected to accept, with joy.

Thus the insurgent alliance with the democrats to crash the gates of reaction and give the middle class a feeble voice in congress goes glimmering. In the words of one Washington correspondent, on the day after the vote of the Norris tax measure was taken, we find:

"The congressional firm of Democrat, Insurgent & Company, which has done a thriving business on capitol hill since the 1924 election, and embarrassed and defeated President Coolidge on innumerable occasions, apparently was on the verge of dissolution today."

* * *

Thus the so-called "balance of power", that has been touted as a tremendous weapon as between the two old parties, also goes on the rocks.

With the division of strength in the coming congress almost equal as between the two old parties, the insurgents completely surrender and make it possible for the old guard to control, in spite of the fact that republicans in the next congress have a paper majority of only one, and this even includes the votes of Senator-elect Smith, of Illinois, and Vare of Pennsylvania, who presumably will never get a chance to cast a ballot in the next senate.

It is declared that the informal understanding between the administration regulars and the progressive insurgent provides that on all matters of strictly partisan division, the insurgents have pledged themselves to vote as republicans rather than as insurgents. In matters affecting public policy and issues having a progressive tinge, the insurgents will vote, as one correspondent puts it, "as their consciences dictate". The insurgents have consulted with their consciences and have come to the decision to place their personal fortunes in the hands of the agents of Wall Street. That is not the way of the masses moving leftwards.

* * *

This whole development should be the greatest stimulus yet in the development of independent political action of the workers and farmers thru the Labor Party.

Battle Continues Along Banks of Doure

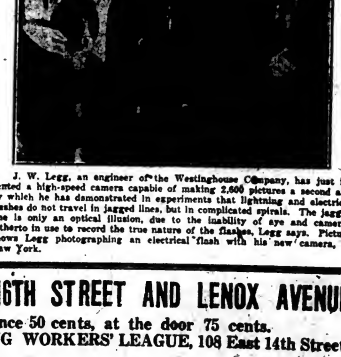
(Continued from Page 1)

slow and uncertain. Martial law is maintained in all parts of the country controlled by government forces.

The government of General Carmona, whose abolition is the first demand of the revolutionists, has issued a statement claiming victory, but other reports indicate that along the northern bank of the river Doure the rebels had consolidated themselves, and were exchanging a hot fire with the government forces drawn up along the south bank today.

Oporto Captured?

The official (Carmona) report claims that the mutineers in the Oporto garrison have surrendered and relates that many of the rebels were killed and hundreds were wounded in the battle between the rebels and the government forces, which continued from Friday to Sunday.



Following a parley between representatives of the rebels and the Minister of War, at which the minister demanded unconditional surrender, which the rebels refused, the Minister of War warned all foreign residents and the civil population of Oporto to leave the city. The government troops brought up artillery and bombarded the rebels' trenches, especially in the vicinity of their headquarters at Placa Batalha.

Communications between northern and southern Portugal were still interrupted today, and it was difficult to gauge the full extent of the revolution. The uprising is headed by General Sousa Dias, chief military commander of North Portugal."

A movement, which involves the building of barricades by small mobs that the police refuse to attack, has started in Lisbon. It is made up of sympathizers of the Oporto mutineers, and the railroad strikers.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

LIGHTNING SPIRAL, NOT JAGGED

J. W. Legg, an engineer of the Westinghouse Company, has just invented a high-speed camera capable of making 2,600 pictures a second and by which he has demonstrated in experiments that lightning and electrical flashes do not travel in jagged lines, but in complicated spirals. The jagged line is only an optical illusion, due to the inability of eye and cameras hitherto in use to record the true nature of the flashes, Legg says. Picture shows Legg photographing an electrical flash with his new camera, in New York.

Congressman Sol Bloom.

Sol. Bloom, of New York, speaking in the House of Representatives against the Dill-White Radio Bill, said:

"Inside of five years we'll be transmitting power and heat and light, we'll be cooking and running automobiles and railroads by radio. Within ten years we won't have to have gasoline to drive our automobiles.

"Are you going to turn all this over, in advance, to a monopoly?"

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page 1)

without you." The professor also tells of a Chinese "gentleman" who expressed his sympathy for the Canadian government but preferred to live under British rule. Most gentlemen would. It is doubtful if the gentleman will have a choice unless he takes ship to some British possession that admits Chinamen.

* * *

NOW that William Randolph Hearst has stopped pulling the British lion's tail but instead has taken to stroking the old boy down the back, we are waiting to hear the sound of gnashing teeth coming from all parts of the compass where Irian nationalist patriots live and flourish. Hearst is the great American who blamed John Bull for everything that was garlic to the nostrils of the patriotic Irish politicians who favor the exploitation of Mexico, Nicaragua and the Philippines by the United States but gag at the enslavement of Ireland by the British.

* * *

Mussolini was one of the heroes of the Irish Republican party. The Italian correspondent of The Irish Republic, also that official organ of the republican party of which DeValera was president, praised Mussolini highly, the dictator sharing eulogies with the pope. I was informed sagely by an editor of that paper that Mussolini was the sworn foe of John Bull and was out for the fat boy's scalp. Now Benito turns around and agrees to Join England in a campaign against China. Two disappointments in one month is two too many.

Concentrate 20,000 Roumanian Troops

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Twenty thousand troops have been concentrated at Bucharest in anticipation of a coup d'etat by the peasant party and the Transylvanian nationalist party in favor of Prince Carol according to dispatches from Bucharest to the Berlin Lokanzeiger today.

The already rigid censorship has been tightened still more. Six Bucharest newspapers were confiscated and suppressed yesterday for making preferences to impending events.

Deputy Migail Poporitch, a friend of Carol's who has just returned from Paris, has been excluded from Parliament for ten days for defending the prince in a speech in Parliament.

Administration Opposes Farm Relief.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The administration's fight to substitute the Curtis-Ashwell bill for the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure was opened in the senate this afternoon.

Senator Curtis (R) of Kansas declared the substitute would benefit all agricultural commodities instead of wheat, corn, rice, swine and cotton which are specified in the McNary bill. Curtis also urged adoption of his bill because it provides loans to farm organizations to help them store crops without including the equalization fee, which is a part of the McNary bill.

Expect New Booze Bill Soon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, informed Gen. L. C. Andrews, dry chief today, that a substitute for the treasury's whiskey purchase bill might be reported out of the ways and means committee this week.

Andrews announced that "an emergency exists" in relation to the country's supply of medicinal liquor.

Roll In the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Dance and Ball
HARLEM CASINO, 116TH STREET AND LENOX AVENUE
Tickets in advance 50 cents, at the door 75 cents.
Arranged by the YOUNG WORKERS' LEAGUE, 108 East 14th Street.
Sat., Feb. 19th

EMBARRASSES THE DIPLOMAT CROWD

Nicaraguan Envoy Sends Kellogg to Bed

WASHINGTON (FP).—No sooner was the Coolidge episode of lathering on the back of Leith Aranson for a friendly policy, and course the world of its tender solicitude for the Chinese, than the bumptious and wily Chinese minister, Sze-Ke Alfred Sze, takes advantage of the Kellogg pose by asking an embarrassing question.

Take the events of Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 2 and 3, for example of the rudeness of these backward people's diplomats.

On Wednesday noon Secretary Kellogg, heatedly denying that Adolfo Diaz "ever had anything to do with, or connection with, Chamorro," sought to soften the harassment of the press correspondents by adding that he stood ready to use the good offices of the Washington government to bring peace between the Diaz and the Sacasa forces in Nicaragua. Four hours later Dr. Vaca, agent for Sacasa, appeared at the State Department and delivered a note on Sacasa's behalf, accepting this "offer of good offices." Vaca suggested that Kellogg immediately call a conference of the Central American states to arrange mediation and bring peace in his country. Of course Kellogg refused to see Vaca, and the note had to be left with his stenographer, and with the press.

Minister Sze Calls.

Next morning the Department was serenely denying knowledge of the purpose for which the regiment of marines was being sent to the Orient, when up came smiling Minister Sze to ask a few questions. Kellogg was sick, but he saw Under-secretary Grew. Sze came as representative of the Peking regime, but said he would send to Foreign Minister Chen of the Nationalist government any information that Grew could give him. He wanted to know why the American naval forces in Chinese waters were being steadily increased, and why a regiment of merines is being shipped to China.

Grew Gets Embarrassed.

These questions embarrassed Grew as much as a trained diplomat permits himself to be embarrassed by any exposure—because Sze had been solemnly assured, two weeks earlier, that Ameriran naval vessels were gathered in Shanghai and other Chinese ports solely in order to carry away Americans who might have to leave their places of residence on Chinese soil. Now Sze suggested that the American naval force was too heavily manned for effective service as a passenger ferry, and the regiment of marines looked like something different again.

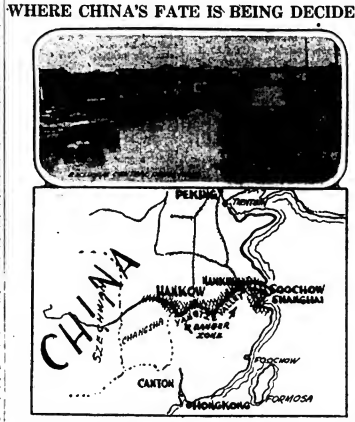
Dr. Sizes Cone Mark.

Meanwhile Dr. Vaca came back with a press statement explaining what was meant by protection of American property under the American Intervention in his country. At Wawa, a village outside the "neutral zone" held by American marines, an American, Davis by name, severely beat his native mistress while he was drunk. The girl fled. Davis searched the barracks occupied by 25 Liberal soldiers. Failing to find the girl, he returned at 2 in the morning with 50 marines, who roughly searched the barracks, confiscated the arms of the garrison and then retired to the American zone.

This incident, related in affidavits by Davis himself and by the Liberals, Vaca described as being the one actual instance of protection of "American property" since Admiral Latimer landed his forces.

Dumped Liberal Ammunition.

On the other hand, Sacasa has forwarded affidavits showing that it was on Latimer's orders that the marines seized and dumped into the river 1,000,000 rantridges belonging to the Liberals in the midst of their battle and defeat of the Diaz forces at Pearl Lagoon. By thus partially disarming the Liberals, Latimer seems to have hoped to defeat them without being caught in the act of shooting at them from American guns.



As to Adolfo Diaz and Chamorro being wholly unrelated in the military overthrow of the Liberal government in 1925, Vaca presents a list of the members of Diaz's family who fought in Chamorro's forces, and shows that Diaz himself was the director of the whole movement in 1925, as he was partner in the Chamorro regime in earlier years.

Photo shows British marines marching down to the docks at Portsmouth, England, to embark for Shanghai, China.

The Communists of Great Britain distributed leaflets in this crowd of spectators, and among troops in barracks, denouncing the use of troops by British capitalism to attack the rising Chinese nationalist forces.

WHERE CHINA'S FATE IS BEING DECIDED

Nationals of various foreign countries have been leaving the villages and the cities of the Yangtze river valley, China, as the Cantonese army of the south and the Peking government's army of the north, prepared to come together for a major conflict to decide control of the region between Hankow and Shanghai, on the coast and the fate of Shanghai, itself. Hankow, seized by the southern forces, has been temporary Nationalist capital. Picture above shows the Grand Canal where it passes through Soochow, halfway between Hankow and Shanghai. Arrows on the map point to theatre of what military men term the deciding conflict. The Cantonese objective has been in complete control of the Yangtze valley, including the British-defended city of Shanghai, whose customs' revenues are 40 per cent of China's total.

All of China, to a large extent, is dependent upon Shanghai, for it not only is the chief port of China and the eighth largest port in the world, but it collects forty per cent of the Chinese customs. It is the center of large British interests. Its population is estimated at 1,539,000. Above is a photo of the Shanghai Bund (at right) and (in foreground), Nanking Road, scene of recent rioting. Arrow in picture points to a Sikh policeman of the "international city" of Shanghai. Dressed like an English bobby, he is resented by the Chinese. Below is a map of Shanghai, showing both the international city and the French concession.

American Born Chinese Back to China

Mr. and Mrs. Woon Tsoi-lee, of Chicago, were born in America, educated in American colleges, but are going back to China. The student class is nationalistic; and the fact that they have seen Western civilization does not seem to make them fond of western bayonets or western domination of the Orient.

WOLFE, NEARING, LOVESTONE, DUNNE, GITLOW, WEINSTONE AND OTHERS SPEAK THURSDAY

Among the speakers scheduled for the anti-imperialist mass meeting to be held this Thursday night (Feb. 10) in Cooper Union, 8th street, between 3rd and 4th avenues, under the auspices of the Workers Party, is Bertram D. Wolfe, who was active for several years in the Mexican labor movement and was finally deported from Mexico by the administration of President Calles for taking a leading part in a general railway strike. He is a member of the Anti-Imperialist Committee of the Workers Party.

Other speakers include Scott Nearing, Jay Lovestone, William F. Dunne, representative of the Kuomintang, the Chinese nationalist party, Benjamin Gitlow and William W. Weinstone.

Admission is 25c. No tickets sold in advance.

Wisconsin Workers to Fight Bill for Lower Child Labor Age Limit

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Feb. 7.—It is expected that the Wisconsin State Legislation Conference arranged by the American Federation of Labor, to be held at Madison, February 15-19, will go on record against the bill now pending in the state legislature to reduce the age limit for child labor.

At a recent meeting of the Milwaukee Trades Council it went on record as opposed to the bill.

HIT AS PRICES RISE WITH FRANC

No Salary Raises Since Franc Was Restored

PARIS, Feb. 7.—The height of irony in France these days is to ask for raises.

Although the cost of living has risen steadily since July, when the government set out to save the franc, there have been few increases in salary or wages for any occupation.

Government employes have sent up one cry of protest after another, but the Premier has turned down every proposal. His lead has been followed by the industrialists, the shopkeepers, and all other bosses, only too happy to find an excuse by means of which the payroll total can be kept from mounting.

Less Pay Than Ever.

Now that the franc has been restored, the prospect of increased pay for wage-slaves seems slighter than ever.

As political problems having been settled, the members of the French officialdom cannot be bothered worrying about the plight of the man in the street. Their chief concern, throughout the economic crisis, was to protect the investments of capitalists, whose finances were jeopardized by the fluctuations of the franc.

Militant labor organizations here and in the provinces are becoming incensed over the government's refusal to act and attempt to cope with the situation.

Tree Kills Lumberjack; Old Man Had to Work

MINOCQQUA, Wisc. (By mail).—John D. Wolf, a woodsman for the McGrath Lumber Co., was instantly killed when struck by a falling tree.

He was 56 years old and the son of one of the early settlers of this vicinity.

Mrs. Sun Yat Sen

The wife of the former provisional president of China and organizer of the Kuomintang plays an active part in the progress of the Cantonese forces as a leader in the propaganda department of the Kuomintang. Her son has been several times mayor of Canton.

May Call Andy Mellon To Testify for Rich Couzens in Tax Trial

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Secretary of Treasury Mellon may be summoned as a witness in the government's suit to collect $20,000,000 additional income tax from Senator Couzens (R) of Michigan and other former minority Ford stockholders, it was indicated today.

Mellon's testimony would be important as the defense has charged that the extra tax was levied because of personal animus against Couzens, who prosecuted the Senate's investigation of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

David H. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue, and his chief deputy, C. R. Nash, have refused to testify voluntarily and have been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow. After hearing their testimony, the defense will make a final decision whether to call Mellon.

Today's session before the board of tax appeals was devoted to highly technical testimony regarding the valuation of Ford motor stock. The government contends the valuation was placed too high, thus enabling the minority stockholders to make an enormous profit when they sold to Henry Ford. A. W. Gregg, youthful counsel for the government, conducted a tedious cross examination of David Friday, and Paul Clay, economists.

Ziegfeld Ready for Censor to Stop "Baring Breasts" of the Youth

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—District Attorney Joab H. Benton conferred today with Police Commissioner George A. McLaughlin on the theatrical situation. He announced that he was receiving valuable assistance from theatrical producers in his campaign to bar the stage to filthy and indecent plays, and showed a telegram he had received from Flo Ziegfeld, which read:

"Accept my congratulations for the stand you are taking. I hope you will visit the revues in New York, not one of which would be tolerated in Philadelphia or Boston. The baring of breasts of the youth of America to draw a few extra dollars should be stopped. I fear a censor such as is employed in Boston and Philadelphia is the only real cure."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Pat M. Neff, former governor of Texas, today was appointed by President Coolidge as a member of the board of railroad mediation. He succeeds Carl Williams, resigned.

VENEZUELAN CONSULATE FOUND HIDDEN BEHIND BUSINESS FIRM WHOSE DIRECTOR SERVES BOTH HIMSELF AND HIS COUNTRYMEN IN ONE OFFICE

From the English Secretary of the Venezuelan Labor Union, The DAILY WORKER has received the following letter which discloses an interesting example of the friendly spirit of cooperation existing between capitalist governments and business.

To the Editor of The DAILY WORKER: Dear Comrade:—The Organic Law of the Consular Service, Section 1, Article 11, reads as follows: Consuls must not engage in commerce or any other professional or industrial occupation in the countries where they serve.

The Venezuelan Consul in New York is P. R. Rincones, Jr.

The first thing to be seen on the doors of the Venezuelan consulate in New York is: P. R. Rincones, Jr. and Co, Inc. This inscription occupies the most prominent place, the name of the consulate is relegated to an absurdly inferior position. The doors afford a perfect view to the interior; the chief part is occupied by the offices of this company, in which the new consul is so patently a guiding spirit. The consulate, limited to a small part of the floor, is furnished with several chairs and an enormous case. To be sure, so far as the offices of P. R. Rincones, Jr. and Co. Inc., are concerned, the furniture is not to be sniffed at.

One would suppose that the new consul would go thru at least the formality of resigning from this position he occupies in the company which bears his name; but no. The bonds are too tight. The offices are continued at 80 South Street, on the same floor; they are entered by the same doors. For a telephone the consulate has to depend on that of P. R. Rincones, Jr. (John 6124). Indeed, the Venezuelan consulate is the only one in New York without a telephone of its own. There is no way at all of securing information from the consulate except by communicating with the mercantile house which haunts its precincts.

Fraternally,

(Signed) MARTIN FEINSTEIN,
English Secretary, The Venezuelan Labor Union.

Hale Ship's Officers In Court for Mackinac Wreck; Not the Owner

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 7.—Eye-witness stories of the steamboat Mackinac boiler explosion disaster and testimony regarding the equipment of the ill-fated excursion craft will be unfolded to a jury at the trial of Captain George W. McVay, his chief engineer, John A. Grant, and George J. Kelley, passenger agent for the ship's owners. A panel of 115 veniremen were on hand when the trial opened today in Superior Court.

The three men are charged by the state with responsibility for the death of Irene Borgue, one of the 54 persons scalded to death when the steamboat blew up in Newport harbor August 18, 1925. Captain McVay and Engineer Grant are charged with manslaughter and Agent Kelley with being an accessory.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

DIEGO RIVERA TO RECOVER RAPIDLY FROM BAD INJURY

"Workers' Painter" On The Job Again Soon

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7.—Diego Rivera, well-known artist and fresco painter, who sustained severe injury in a fall from the scaffolding on which he had been working, is recuperating very satisfactorily. He was removed to a hospital, and given surgical treatment.

It is expected that within a few weeks Rivera will be able to resume his work and will complete the wall decoration of a new public building which he started a short time ago.

The accident caused considerable anxiety among the ranks of workers and progressives, as Rivera is not only well-known but also the outstanding figure in his field, the creation of an art which springs from, and appeals to, the working masses.

American Imperialism Will Be Denounced in Brooklyn Mass Meeting

American imperialism is to be protested by the Brooklyn Section of the Workers (Communist) Party at a mass meeting arranged for February 11 at Royal Palace, 16 Manhattan Avenue, near Broadway.

Workers of Brooklyn will be mobilized to fight the danger of a new war, and to demand of the United States Government that she take "Hands Off Mexico," "Withdraw the Marines from Nicaragua," and take "Hands Off China."

Scott Nearing, Juliette Stuart Poyntz and William W. Weinstone are to be the speakers on February 18, and the committee has also arranged a musical program.

British Church Ripens New Brand of Dope for Twenty Years; Option

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The long-awaited changes in the Church of England prayerbook were announced today, but the Archbishop of Canterbury in making the announcement stressed the fact the use of virtually all the changes is optional with the clergy and a rector can not force his congregation to use the changes unless they consent.

The principal changes are these:

The word "obey" is dropped from the marriage ceremony.

The marriage ceremony is changed so the bridegroom says, "all my worldly gods I with thee share" instead of "I with thee endow."

The reservation of the sacrament is authorized but only for the sirk.

Archaic language is removed.

Prayers for the dead are authorized.

The work of remodeling the prayer-book started twenty years ago.

Work Permits Show Child Labor Fast Spreading in U. S.

Increased child labor in twenty-four out of twenty-nine large industrial cities was reported to the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor during 1925, Grace Abbott, chief of the bureau, stated in her annual report for 1926.

Twenty states and twenty-nine cities having a population of 100,000 or more, reported to the bureau on the numbers of 14 and 15-year-old children receiving work permits during 1924 and 1925. Eight of the states and twenty-four of the cities reported increases during 1925 as compared with 1924.

DEBATE; HURRIED APPROPRIATION

Enacting Radio Monopoly and "Farm Relief"

(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 7.—Necessity for quick action, if the present congress is not to post into history with very little accomplished, has resulted in an agreement among senators to leave extremely debatable measures alone and concentrate on those which they have reason to believe will go through easily.

Even the low tax bill, a bargain over which guaranteed the McNary-Haugen so-called "farm relief" bill, will probably be left to the consideration of a new congress.

For Radio Monopoly.

In spite of considerable opposition the radio bill, described by its opponents as a means of foisting a complete monopoly of the ether on future generations through the establishment of a control board that is even now seen to be capable of preserving for existing possessors all the best wave lengths as property in perpetuity, will probably be rushed through. Aside from this, the senate will concentrate on appropriation bills and measures already agreed on.

Altho jammed calendars await action in both house and senate, the republican leadership decided to abandon all legislation during the remaining days of the present session, rather than permit the blocking of a single appropriation bill, the enactment of which is necessary to operate the government during the coming fiscal year. As a result, the legislative program for the rest of this session will be composed chiefly of those bills which can be enacted by unanimous consent or passed without prolonged debate.

Farm Bill to Pass.

Out of this jam, there were indications the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, the compromise Watt Dill radio control act and possibly the Broadden Pepper banking act will be the chief measures enacted or at least brought to a final vote in both branches of congress. The farm and radio bills will reach a final vote in the senate this week, with the banking bill facing a vote early next week, and house leaders intimate all three measures also will pass the lower branch.

Keep Taxes As Is.

Tax reduction legislation and all bills relating to prohibition enforcement are dead, administration leaders declared. The prohibition bills, including even the Andrews reorganization measure—which the dry's particularly desired at this session, include. The senate killed tax reduction legislation last week by voting in favor of using the treasury surplus to retire the national debt.

The Muscle Shoals bill, for leasing the $150,000,000 project to private interests, is also dead, leaders said. Action on the other great water-power measure—the Swing-Johnson boulder dam bill—likewise faces small chance of enactment.

Old Time Bills Untouched.

Other bills which have been pending in congress for years and which have but little opportunity of enactment at this session, include the French spollations bill, the flooding "long and short haul" railroad bill and the Capper "truth in fabric" act. An effort, however, will be made to pass the alien property bill, which the house has enacted, but if it runs into extended debate, it also will be sidetracked.

Northwestern Lumber Barons Control State; Tough for Lumberjack

To the Editor of The DAILY WORKER: The letter in your issue of Feb. 4, from a logger is interesting; it is also convincing—and the latter is what counts.

The lumberkings of the northwest own and control everything in the northwest including the state departments of labor and the medical practitioners who pile their trade in and around logging camps.

There is no redress at present for the logger, he is unorganized, he is politically disfranchised. In proportion to what the lumber-jack produces they are the lowest paid workers in America.

The company doctors work in harmony with shyster lawyers and employment sharks in the interest of the lumber kings, at all times, against the interest of the over-worked lumberjack. Magistrates, sheriffs and other hirelings devote their energy to defending the barons, should any plebian see fit to bring them into court.

Now that "our" benevolent government is giving to unemployed a chance to eat Armours embalmed pork and beans in China, the lumber-jacks ought to engage the lumber baron's in a variety of skirmishes.

Nothing short of a revolution will relieve the lumber-jack of his heavy cross.—Daniel F. O'Brien.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7.—Jose G. la Pena, Governor of Nayarit has been impeached on charges of unlawful intervention in municipal affairs, according to dispatches from Tepic.

AGED FARMER TO HOLD UP A BANK

Farmers Organizations Say Others Tempted

DETROIT, Feb. 7.—Driven to banditry by the failure of his potato crop and captured by the police after he had held up a branch of the Peninsular State bank on January 11 with a mail order pistol, John McGregor, white-haired sixty-two-year-old farmer, was placed on two year's probation by Judge Edward J. Jeffries in the Recorder's Court.

Since an investigation into his past proved he was telling the truth when he said that he held up the bank to obtain money to pay off the mortgage on a run-down, stumpy plot of land in the bottoms of the Little Muskegon river, into which he had poured his entire savings of $1,090, the court, after much dickering with the police, decided to be lenient with the old man. The police scouted the story, but it was definitely proved.

Caused by Desperation.

"The defendant's rugged countenance carries lines of honesty and good will, and lacks the appearance of furtiveness and predatory aggressiveness characteristic of the bandit," read the recommendation of the probation department.

"And the sturdiness with which he bears his sixty-two years can't fail to excite among those who observed him to that he must have been a man who at some desperate moment, acting under some powerful strain, committed an act entirely contrary to the usual impulses of his life".

Many Farmers Fail.

Leaders of farmers' organizations thruout the central states are holding up this case as an example of the state of desperation into which the farmers are being driven, by the money-lust activities of Wall Street. They are pointing out that the failure of a single crop can wipe out the lifetime savings of a farmer, and that most farms are being run at a loss one to the price-fixing of the middlemen.

San Francisco Party Finds Fertile Ground For School and Speakers

By HOWARD HARLAN,
Worker Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—With new party headquarters in the center of the city, a beautiful party forum, and a labor college going full blast, the Workers party is putting a dent in the trade union situation of San Francisco. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the United Garment Workers, and the Millinery Workers all invite left wing speakers to address their business meetings once a month.

The party conducts weekly study classes and keeps the soap boxes busy all year around. The "skid row", as the employment bureau streets are called here, is nightly the scene of one of two meetings where theories of class struggle and class consciousness are hammered into large audiences. Quantities of literature are passed out. Speakers find the favorite topics to be current issues, such as news from Soviet Russia and the Mexico and China crises.

Days of Darrow Wake Unionists to Leninism

Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer of Chicago, New York and Detroit, for four days.

On Wednesday night he spoke to a mass meeting held in Turbine Hall.

Thursday evening he spoke to a crowd of workers in Globeville, the Packingtown of Denver, who attended on a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Young Workers' League.

Friday evening he gave a very interesting talk on the "Youth Movement" at the Denver Lyceum to Young Workers' League members and their friends.

Saturday evening he spoke to a strictly membership meeting.

Sunday morning he made a few brief remarks to the Young Pioneers and also attended the Pueblo Relief Conference at Walters' Hall, at which he urged the conference to do all it can to aid the strikers still out in Pueblo.

Sunday night the Workers Party arranged a Lenin memorial meeting in Denver Lyceum. William Dietrich acted as chairman and made a few brief remarks about Lenin and the Communist movement. The International was sung by the Jewish Singing Society.

The principal speech of the evening was made by Weisbord, who spoke on "Leninism." He also made some very hard remarks about the U. S. using soldiers and warships to keep the oppressed nations down, such as Nicaragua, Mexico and China.

Monday morning he spoke to the Ministerial Association of Denver.

The opinion of the members of the Workers Party and trade unionists of Denver is that Weisbord has done a world of good while in Denver.

Course in "Problems Of the Communist Movement," Tuesdays

The course in "Problems of the Communist Movement," to be given at the Workers School, Tuesday nights, at 8 P. M., beginning Feb. 22, is necessary for everyone who wishes to play an important part in leading the American workers to their emancipation, William W. Winstone, who will give this course, is general secretary of the New York district of the Workers Party and is intimately acquainted with the problems facing the Communist both internationally and nationally.

Cleveland to Have Sunday Class to Study Communism

A class in Communism will be held at the Freiheit Hall, 3514 East 116th street, Cleveland, beginning Sunday, Feb. 13 at 10.30 a. m. sharp. The instructor will be Comrade J. Brahtin, and the class is open to all Party and Y. W. L. members and sympathizers. Classes are free. Another class will be started in the near future in another section of the city.

Brooks World Record.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Erich Rademacher, crack German swimmer today broke his own world record for two hundred metres by three seconds. Rademacher finished the distance in two minutes, 27.4 seconds.

CHICAGO WORKERS ARRANGING GREAT CARNIVAL BAZAAR FOR DEFENSE, FREIHEIT, DAILY WORKER

CHICAGO.—Workers of all languages, readers of working-class papers, members of workers' fraternal societies, unions, etc., are actively engaged in helping the great Workers' Carnival Bazaar to be held here February 25, 26 and 27.

Many organizations will run booths of their own, collecting the goods for the display themselves. Most of these are setting goals or quotas of a certain number of hundreds of dollars' worth of articles; among them are the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit branches, the local International Labor Defense and its branches like the Young Workers' League, Workmen's Circle branches 519, 567, Freiheit Branch, United Workers' Co-operative Ass'n., Progressive Hatters' Group, Progressive Miliners' Workers' Group, various language groups of the Workers Party, the Freiheit Youth Club, the Young Pioneers, with a children's corner, and the Independent Workmen's Circle 96, which has set a goal of $500 worth of stuff.

Volunteers Busy.

Every afternoon volunteer solicitors go out from the bazaar headquarters at 19 S. Lincoln St. to collect articles, get advertisements, etc. A call has been issued to all workers to help in these collections.

Three stations have been established to which collected goods are to be brought—19 S. Lincoln St., 3209 W. Roosevelt Rd. (Freiheit office), and 2720 W. Division St. (book store). Every Sunday morning special mobilizations of volunteers will take place at the last two above addresses.

Split Proceeds.

The bazaar is run for the benefit of The DAILY WORKER and the Daily Freiheit, with 30% of the proceeds to be given to the International Labor Defense. This explains why the secretary of the bazaar committee has said: "It is a poor friend of the working class movement who will not do his share toward making the bazaar a grand success."

A BOOK FOR THE IRISH WORKER

"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916." Introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty. Cloth. Schulter Pub. 10 cents.

Jim Connolly was the military leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing thru one of the most serious crises that faced it during the war. Connolly, the international Marxist, joined his small army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the International socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist question in the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Bolshevik in the full sense of the term. This little pamphlet by G. Schuler is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this period. It was first published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be circulated in large quantities among the Irish workers in the United States. Connolly is a magic name with every Irish worker who has felt the first divine fire of revolt in his system. It can also be read with interest by every radical worker who wants to soak up on the strategy and tactics of revolution. Comrade Schuler declares that Connolly was a Leninist. He was. He fell before a British squad in 1916, one year before the Russian workers and peasants buried the Czar and Czardom and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

PLOT TO OBTAIN MUSCLE SHOALS

Farmers Want It For Producing Nitrates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Congressional investigation of the hydro-electric power "trust" was urged by congressmen, who suspected that propaganda for power "grabs" was financed by these interests.

A flood of telegrams, from different cities but having the same phrasing, giving evidence that they were written by one hand, has deluged congress during the past few days, emphasizing the need of electrical energy as the prime necessity for settling Muscle Shoals.

Hand of Insull?

Representative James (R) of Michigan, a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Muscle Shoals, declared his suspicion that the "power trust" was back of most of the telegrams emphasizing electrical power.

An investigation of this propaganda was urged by Sen. Pomer. Power interests have lined up their forces, bankers and officials of trade bodies, behind bids for Muscle Shoals that make power production their prime object.

Farmers Want Nitrates.

However, farmers' organizations are fighting this drive with a demand that Muscle Shoals be used primarily for production of a fertilizer to improve the farmers' plight. American farmers are today in the grip of the Chile nitrate monopoly, they point out.

James is of the opinion that it might help to the country's interests to investigate "higher-ups" in the war department connected with water-power projects. His statement that an engineer in the department solicited funds from officials of the Electrical Bond & Share Co. of New York, for a survey of the Tennessee river, has caused a stir.

Labor Unity Exposes Lewis' Election Steal; Opposes Court Action

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—Several important articles feature the current number of Labor Unity, the new left wing paper published at 376 W. Monroe Street, Chicago. Among the most important articles is one revealing that the railwaymen are fighting mad at the three cent compromises put over on them against their demands for substantial wage raises.

An article by George Papcun, a coal miner of Pennsylvania, exposes in detail the methods used by John L. Lewis in stealing the election in the U. M. W. of A. and packing the miners' convention. It is set off by an excellent cartoon.

The movement in Minnesota for a labor party is told of and an editorial urges all trade union progressives to set up committees locally and generally for the formation of a labor party. Joseph Zack exposes the frame-up by the trade union bureaucrats against the New York Furriers' Union on the charge of "bribing the police."

An article of primary importance is given by W. Z. Foster warning against the new tendency in the trade unions' internal disputes of workers taking their cases to the capitalist courts as a means of ousting the bureaucracy.

An excellent article on American imperialism's conquest of Central America is given, as well as one on the machinists' elections, the A. F. of L. executive council meeting, articles on science and many other features which make Labor Unity well worth the dollar a year asked for a subscription. Then there are poems, a call to shoe workers, lively editorials and humor, and sport columns feature each issue.

Architectural Iron and Bronze Workers Will Have Meeting Tonight

An important meeting of the Iron and Bronze Workers' Union will be held Tuesday evening, February 8th, 1927, at 7 East 15th Street, New York City, at 8. P. M. sharp.

A well-known speaker will briefly address the meeting on a very important topic. Various important reports will be given. Plans for the coming organization drive will be discussed and acted upon.

It is of great importance that every member should be present at this meeting without fail.

New Evidence Showing Innocence of Hoffman, Serving Twenty Years

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Mrs. Agnes Hoffman, missing former wife of Harold Hoffman, convicted slayer of Mrs. Maude Bauer, found murdered in Staten Island two years ago, is being sought by counsel for Hoffman today to appear as a witness at a new trial the prisoner has been granted.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

The Manager's Corner

THE SWITCHBOARD OF THE BRAIN:

"In every one's brain," says the Literary Digest, reviewing "The Open Court" by Clara Stevens, "is a switchboard where the connections are made that result in our emotions and acts. One of the sense-organs, perhaps the eye or the ear, is the transmitter. The wire in the nerve which carries the impression to 'central' goes to the switchboard in the upper brain. Connection is made with a cell of another set known as associative, a second 'switchpipe.' This, in turn, connects with a cell of a third group called motor-cells. And then the impulse passes into the spinal cord and discharges into the nerves and muscles of the body, resulting in action." "THE VITAL POINT IS," says Miss Stevens, "WHAT CONNECTIONS ARE MADE ON THAT SWITCHBOARD".

In order to secure the proper response to any given impression, Miss Stevens points out that drill is necessary. The soldier whose natural instinct is to run from danger is thus trained to defy it. When the connection from the "switchboard" has been made several times, "the soldier's will is no longer necessary . . . his trained nerve-cells carry him forward even to danger."

In order to insure its domination, the ruling class makes every effort to see to it, that the "proper" connections are made with the "switchboard." Day after day the capitalist press DRILLS the workers against organization, against revolt, and for meek submission to exploitation and oppression. As far as the relation between the two classes in society is concerned, this is the major function of the capitalist press.

It is the task of The DAILY WORKER to so transform and train the "switchboard of the brain" that on every occasion the worker makes the proper connections from his own class viewpoint, that he thinks and acts at all times as a militant class worker, and that these connections, whether it be to a wage cut, or a call to aid in an imperialist war, be always an expression of working class resistance to capitalist exploitation.—BERT MILLER.

STRUGGLE FOR FREE SPEECH AS SEEN BY AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION

Following an interview between John Larkin Hughes, Newark attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, and Chief of Police McRell of Newark, the Workers Party was permitted to hold a Lenin memorial meeting in that city on Jan. 28. Party members had tried unsuccessfully for two weeks to get a permit. They charge that city hall authorities put them off.

Police broke up a Workers Party meeting in Newark on Jan. 16, it is alleged. The meeting was on the Amalgamated Clothing Workers left and right wing internal fight. No disorder occurred and no reason was given for interference. Mr. Hughes reminded the Chief of Police of correspondence between the legal department of the City of Newark and the American Civil Liberties Union in which the former committed the city to a policy of non-interference with peaceful meetings.

University Bars I. W. W.

The University of Washington closed its doors against Edward Delaney, I. W. W. organizer, who was sceduled to speak on the campus on Jan. 18 against the criminal syndicalism laws, according to the Industrial Worker of Seattle. When Delaney arrived the doors of the hall were locked and it was announced the meeting was called off. The talk had been sponsored by the Social Science Club.

New Hampshire and Evolution.

New Hampshire was the sixth state to introduce an anti-evolution bill in the legislature during January. The bill proposed by Representative Roscoe Crane would declare uniawful the teaching of any "philosophy which deals with religious belief, and especially the evolutionary theory." The penalty is a month's loss of salary for the first offense and dismissal of the teacher for the second. Other states with evolution bills are Missouri, Arkansas, Alabama, North Dakota and Minnesota. A West Virginia measure was defeated.

University Paper Retracts.

The Exponent, student newspaper of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., has retracted in an editorial of Jan. 21 the charge made in an editorial of Nov. 16 that the American Civil Liberties Union is "the official organ in this country of the Third International, of Russia primarily, but worldwide in scope."

Get Union Literatnre.

Literature from the American Civil Liberties Union attacking anti-evolution laws has been sent to key-men in the Mississippi stato legislature in an effort to combat the anti-evolution bill introduced last week. The Union has also offered its help to professors at the University of Missouri, who have been urged to fight the measure for the sake of academic freedom.

Klan Mobs Terrify Negroes.

A fiery cross was burned in front of the home of Jesse Burrell, school director of Carney, Iowa, last week because he appointed a colored teacher to take the place of a white teacher in his district. Negroes in Miami, Fla., have been intimidated by two public parades and demonstrations by the Ku Klux Klan. Three Negro bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church refused to attend the closing banquet of the Citizens' Committee of One Thousand for Law Enforcement when it was learned that they would be "Jim Crowed" to a segregated table at the Willard Hotel in Washington, D. C. The home of a Negro in Denver, Colo., has been twice riddled with bullets and damaged by bombs from white neighbors who resented his moving into the district. Five white men in Shreveport, La., kidnapped a Negro baggage carrier and flogged him in the woods with kaiser straps and sticks. Although he knows the names of his assailants, he is afraid to reveal them. No reason for the assault is known.

I. W. W. Faces Deportation.

The Seattle immigration station is housing Andrew Stinson, an I. W. W. charged with illegal entry into the United States, despite the fact that he proved legal entry and has applied for first papers, the Seattle Industrial Worker reports. Stinson is being held for deportation because he is a member of the I. W. W., the weekly charges. He was arrested while hunting for a job. The Washington branch of the General Labor Defense is handling his case.

PASSAIC WORKINGWOMEN'S COUNCIL PARTIES FOR CHILDREN COMBAT SCHOOL PROPAGANDA

On Saturday afternoon, at 152 Eighth St., Passaic, Workingwomen's Council No. 8 held a party for the children of the neighborhood. Four hundred children attended. There were eats,—cake, cocoa, peanuts. There were singing of strike songs and games.

A great party. But there was more than that. The children were brought together in order to teach them the class struggle. These are mostly the children of textile workers who are fighting a tremendous battle to build a union. The children must know of their parents' struggle.

Teach Class Struggle.

Last summer at Victory Playground, where many hundreds of children attended every day, there were daily mass meetings to teach the children the class struggle and the need for them to participate in it. Every one knows the vital part the children played in the strike . . . picketing, rooting out scabs, enlivening the mass meetings with songs, encouraging their parents.

Dread School Propaganda.

Now, since the children have gone back to school, there is a danger that they will forget the lessons of last summer. In the school, they hear bosses' propaganda. About how wonderful this country is, how everything is the best in the world. How the workers who strike are only troublemakers who should be put down immediately.

Not a word about the poverty of the children's homes, about child labor, about labor unions, about imperialist wars. In short, not a word of vital truth.

Combat Lies.

Realizing that their own children may be lead to believe the untruths taught in the schools, and may even be turned against the struggle of their parents, the Workingwomen's Councils, with the active cooperation of the local pioneers, are going to hold meetings and parties for the children in all localities. This coming Saturday there will be one in Wallington. The next week in Garfield. And so on through the textile district.

DRAMA

A GREAT THIRD ACT

WALTER WOOLF

Makes an ideal hero in the romantic musical play, "Countess Maritza," now in its sixth month at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Broadway gossipers who "know the dope" have slated Paul Green's "In Abraham's Bosom" for the next Pulitzer Prize unless something comes along with a new play to change the minds of the awarding committee. Green's play is a story of simple Negroes in the South with the bitter, unsuccessful struggle of one of them to lead his people out of ignorance and peonage. Though deficient in technique, the play has fervor and passion and something to say. It comes as near as anything produced in New York this season being a workers' play. Radicals ought to see it—at the Provincetown Playhouse.

"Spread-Eagle," a melodrama dealing with the Mexican American revolution, has been bought by Jed Harris who produced "Broadway," to be staged at once. The effort of Americans to hang on to their Mexican oil concessions forms the basis of the plot. The authors are George Brooks and Walter B. Lister, the latter-city editor of the Brooklyn Times. No indication is given whether the Mexican characters in the play are human beings or the perennial "treacherous greasers" of melodrama.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

"Off-Key" opens tonight at the Belmont Theatre. Another opening: "Sally" at the Greenwich Village. This afternoon "Spellbound" will begin a series of special matinees at the Klaw.

The vaudeville program at Moss' Broadway this week is headed by Lang Tack Fong, Dave Harris & Co. and Moss & Frye. The screen feature "Held By The Law," has Ralph Lewis, Marguerite de la Motte and Johnnie Walker in the cast.

The cast for "What Anne Brought Home," Larry E. Johnson's new comedy which Earl Carroll will present at Wallack's Theatre, the latter part of this month, will include: William Hanley, Mayo Methot, Ed Pollard, Marion Stevenson, Lenore Sorsby, Peggy Shannon, Erman Seavey, George Earle and Cecil Secrest.

Robert Craik, who played Francois Villon in "The Vagabond King," has joined the cast of "The Desert Song" at the Casino, playing the role of Captain Fontaine.

John MacMahon has acquired the American rights of "Mediterranee," play by Paul Haurigot, recently produced the Theatre Michodiere, Paris, and will present it in New York following a spring try-out.

The Civic Repertory Theatre will present at least three performances a week of "Cradle Song." "The Mistress of the Inn" will be played only once, Thursday.

Vaudeville Scribe to Organize Unorganized

The "organize - the - unorganized" spirit has hit vaudeville writers. Edgar Allan Wolf, veteran writer of vaudeville sketches and author of the gypsy play in which Nazimova is now starring at the Palace Theatre, is roosting for a "League of Vaudevil Writers." His object in to secure more uniform type of contract from the managers, to standardize arrangements for advance royalties, and to provide security to authors for the collection of royalties. He also urges the use of more one-act plays in vaudeville programs.

AMUSEMENTS

KLAW THEA., W. 45th St. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30

"SINNER"

With Allan Dinehart & Claiborne Foster

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Mats. Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings at 8:30

WINTHROP AMES presents

Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. in PIRATES OF PENZANCE

Thursday Evenings Only, "Iolanthe"

Theatre Guild Acting Company in PYGMALION

Week Feb. 14—RAINBOW

GUILD Thea., W. 52d St. Evs. 8:30, Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:30

Ned McCobb's Daughter

with JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT

John Golden Thea., 58 E. of B'way. Circle 8th. Thurs. & Sat., 2:30

Neighborhood Playhouse

466 Grand St. Orchard 9346

Every Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.

"PINWHEEL"

By Francis Edwards Faragoh

Civic Repertory Thea. 14th St. & 6th Ave. Tonight at 8:30

EVA LE GALLIENNE

TONIGHT "CRADLE SONG"

Tomorrow Aft., TWELFTH NIGHT

Tomorrow Night, "MASTER BUILDER"

An AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre West of 8th St. 5TH MONTH Mts. Wed. & Sat.

The LADDER

Everybody's Play

WALDORF, 50th St., East B'way. Mats. Wed. and Sat.

RITZ Thea., 48th St., W. of B'way. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30

Bye Bye Bonnie

Musical Rue Rue with Dorothy Fields, Rudolph Cameron, Louis Simon, William Frawley

H. HARRIS THEA., West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2:30 & 8:30

WHAT PRICE GLORY

Mats. (exc. Sat.) $2-$1.

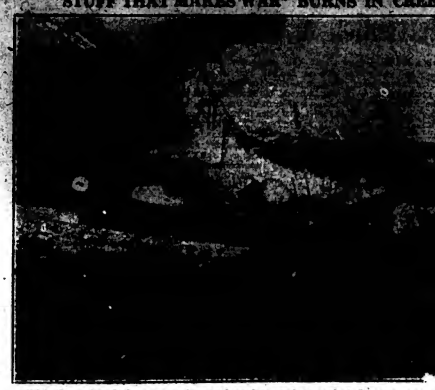
MARX CABINET WOBBLES THRU FIRST CRISIS

Debate Proves Charge Of Monarchism True

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—The marx, center, cabinet barely escaped defeat with a weak vote on confidence yesterday, in the first test it

Opposition in the Reichstag brought out some interesting proofs of Communist charges. Hammered by Communist speakers on the floor, Dr. Walker von Keudell, newly appointed Minister of the Interior, admitted that his farm was a camp for the fascist armed body "Olympia". His only excuse was that this was before "Olympia" was declared by law to be a treasonable organization.

Theodor von Guerard, leader of the catholic centrists, represented in the cabinet by Marx and several others, formally warned Marx in a speech from the floor, that the Keudell affair must be investigated, and that centrist support would be withdrawn and the cabinet overthrown if it were proved that Keudell supported the Kapp putsch of 1920, as had been charged by opposition parties.



Keudell and the entire cabinet might have fallen then, had it not been also revealed that Stresseman, now in opposition, was also a Kapplist at that time. The game of "the pot calling the kettle black" did not look well to some of the cabinet's opponents, and they were temporarily silenced.

When the vote was taken on the motion of confidence in the cabinet, the Communists, socialists and democrats voted in favor of overthrowing it; the nationalists, catholic centrist, German and Bavarian peoples party, participating in the ruling bloc, voted to save it, and enough of the other parties voted for the cabinet to give it a majority of sixty-one.

French White-Collar Worker Is Guaranteed Lunch Hour at Home

PARIS, Feb. 7.—Time to go home for lunch is considered the normal, inherent right of every Frenchman. The ministry of finance upholds this view, in ruling that every worker, of any class and in any trade, is entitled to deduct from his taxable income the amount spent for meals when business hours or location prevent him or her from going home at noon.

Just how much this will benefit the average worker who carries a lunch box is uncertain, since the exponents of the speed-up system, both here and abroad, have quite an established practice of cutting short the lunch period of the employes.

Oil is the modern fuel, necessary for naval warfare, and convenient for commerce and industry. Here are 19 tank cars overturned into a small creek at Catoosa, Oklahoma, and burning up at an estimated cost of ½ hundred thousand dollars. Wars are fought for oil, so no wonder profit hungry men hurry the tank cars too fast, and occasionally spill them.

SPEED DEBATE ON BILL PROMISING AID TO FARMERS

Seek Southern Vote on McNary-Haugen Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—In an attempt to secure a final vote on the McNary-Haugen bill by next Wednesday, leaders of the farm bloc are speeding up the debate in both houses.

Additional support for the bill is promised by the amendment prepared by Senator McKellar of Tennessee, which proposes to place tobacco under the provisions of the act. The amendment will win the support of many southern senators, it is expected. Members of the farm bloc claim that the pending bill will be passed by a majority of at least six votes in the senate and by a majority of twenty in the house.

The farm bloc is also compromising with the banking and law-tax groups to get their support.

The DAILY WORKER is now on all news stands around New York.

Chief Consul Declares Government Very Easy With Ward Bread Trust

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Over the protest of its chief counsel, A. R. Brinkley, the federal trade commission dismissed its anti-trust suit against the William H. Ward baking interests. Brinkley declared today before the senate committee investigating the "bread trust".

Brinkley said he was convinced the gigantic merger, later dissolved by consent decree, was in violation of the anti-trust laws.

"The case was strong and should have been prosecuted," Brinkley said.

British Employers' Prosperity Talk Exposed by Labor

The class collaboration movement, which has been making headway in England, was severely attacked by the officials of the Amsterdam Internationl in a statement issued on January 20th.

"Some of the British papers call for industrial peace on the ground that Britain is on the eve of a new period of prosperity," the statement says; "but there is no genuine rejoicing. The underlying idea is only to say to the workers, 'Don't dream of asking for a penny more of wages or an hour's shorter week. If you do you may throw away this chance of better times.'"

The Gentle Boss

Exposing the tactics of British employers the statement continues, "The British employer is only playing the ogre; he is urging the workers in gentle tones to be calm, and to come and be eaten when they are called."

In puncturing the propaganda which urges workers to "be docile lest they disturb prosperity," the Amsterdam officials declare that "if British industry is to make a stride forward, it must not be at the expense of the working conditions of labor."

Whitman Will Speak Against Imperialism At Pittsburg, Feb. 9

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 7.—Lovett Post-Whitman, national organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress will speak on the Nicaraguan, Chinese and Mexican situations, and their relation to the struggle of the American Negroes in their final struggle for emancipation.

There will also be other speakers announced later, and a musical program. Meeting at Pythias Temple, 2011 Center avenue, Pittsburg, Pa., 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, February 9th.

MEXICAN SECRET MISSION VISITS OIL INVESTORS

Obregon and Pani Set Out for California

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7.—Fearing that the American government will support its oil investors, General Alvaro Obregon, former president of Mexico, and Alberto J. Pani, once secretary of treasury in the Calles cabinet, have left for San Francisco to confer with the American petroleum operators.

Although the Obregon-Pani mission is said to be secret, it is understood from reliable sources that General Obregon has received full powers from President Calles to negotiate agreements with oil companies which succeeded operations when their drilling grants were cancelled. Senor Pani is acting after the financial interests of the government, which faces heavy revenue losses because of the suspension of operations of the foreign oil companies.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7.—A 5 per cent ad valorem increase in import duties, effective thirty days hence, was decreed by President Calles today.

HONOR ROLL

S. Boroff, Roxbury, Mass.; Joseph Weinstein, Bronx, N. Y.; Wm. Stemmer, Mason, Wis.; S. S. Ware, Ventura, Calif.; John Bennett, Detroit, Mich.; Solon De Leon, Long Island City; J. Gracolowski, Cleveland, Ohio; M. Biell Boute, Boston, Calif.; H. Schulman, Worcester, Mass.; Frank Newman, Binghamton, N. Y.; Zenon Stasulis, Elizabeth, N. J.; Adolph Castro, Yorkville, Ohio; M. Shapolov, Riverside, Cal.; Sidney Smith, Denver, Colo.; E. W. Theigerit, Valley Falls, R. I.; Martin J. Reiner, Cleveland, Ohio; Mary Lyons, Saginaw, Minn.; T. Krucen, Cleveland, Ohio; Mary Butich, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; George J. Postico, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.; C. Schettler, St. Louis, Mo.; B. Burtz, Seattle, Wash.; J. Askhau, Hudson, Mass.; Anna Puz, Cleveland, Ohio; M. C. Kesser, Reading, Pa.; A. Conrad, Coeur D'Alene, Laurentz Larson, Coeur D'Alene, Idaho; S. E. Telleson, San Diego, ——, Abe Evans, Jasper, Minn.; J. D. Love, Phila., Pa.; J. E. Normand, Sherryville, B. C., Can.; George J. Postico, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Andro Gaspar, Wilkesbarre, Pa.; Tony Sroeg, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; J. Shine, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; J. Mesich, Pastre, Yorkville, Ohio.

Wilkes Barre, Pa.; F. Sugar, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; C. J. Kroven, Cleveland, Ohio; Sidney Smith, Denver, Col.; Martin J. Reiner, Cleveland, Ohio; M. Shapolov, Riverside, Cal.; Adolph Chuper was crowded for the Nearing lecture, and an hour of questions and discussion followed his talk.

BOSTON STRIKING CAPMAKERS BEGIN MASS PICKETING

Delegates From Other Unions Promise Aid

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—A mass picketing demonstration of striking capmakers is being arranged for tomorrow morning. The cap district will be covered, and sporadic cases of violence of bosses against isolated pickets will be stopped.

Peter Krupnik, a picket, has already been attacked by an employer, and arrested. He was at once dismissed. The charge was assault.

Strike meetings are regularly held. At a recent meeting, a telegram from the International was read, conveying "congratulations to the capmakers of Boston for their united and unanimous stand in answer to the defiant attitude of the manufacturers and extending wishes for a speedy victory."

At the strike meetings speakers from other unions are often present. Lately Max Rosen, of the Jewish Bakers Local 45, Appel, of the Upholsterers, spoke.

Nearing Sees Mexico Leader of Revolt by Latin-American Lands

American imperialism is developing in the Caribbean a situation just like China, so Scott Nearing declared last night in his talk before the open forum at the Community Church, Park Avenue and 34th Street.

"Sooner or later", said Nearing, "we will have the same problems to face as those now meeting the imperialist powers in the East.

"Mexico will be the leader and other Latin-American countries will follow. Already they are building up revolutionary movements, expropriating the property of foreigners and liberating their own people for financial development.

"United States capitalists have four billion dollars invested in Latin-America and of course they are not interested in the right of native people."

Touching on the Nicaraguan situation, Nearing said,

"The present situation in Latin-America revolves around the American land laws. They are the real bone of contention, as well as Mexico's effort, thru recognition of the Sacasa government, to line up Latin-American sentiment against the United States.

"The United States has not only recognized Diaz, but has provided him with munitions, military support and assistance in many other forms."

The auditorium of the Community

Read the 'BOLSHEVIK'

A DRAMA IN PLAY FORM written on the American style by

Leon Hausman

Author and Playwright.

Per Copy at $1.10

sent to Leon Hausman "Bolshevik" Post Office Box 137, Elizabeth, N. J., receives a copy of "Bolshevik" in English for the present.

Translations may be had at a later date.

On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, advises his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The author is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" notices in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND NOW!!!

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium

ASHLAND AVE. and VAN BUREN

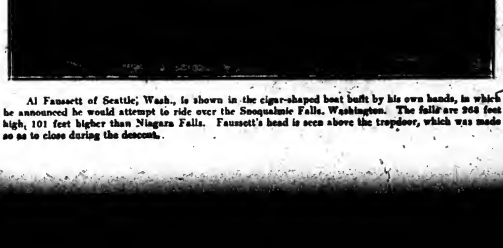
FEB: 25th " 26th " 27th

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT. 30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.



ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

TO ATTEMPT RIDE OVER FALLS IN QUEER BOAT

Al Fausett of Seattle, Wash., is shown in the cigar-shaped boat built by his own hands, in which he announced he would attempt to ride over the Snoqualmie Falls, Washington. The falls are 268 feet high, 101 feet higher than Niagara Falls. Fausett's head is seen above the trapdoor, which was made so as to close during the descent.

PREPARE TO BE CHALLENGED.

The Russian Bolsheviki have invented a scheme whereby they have developed a real mass movement behind their paper. This has been done by means of challenging certain comrades throughout the country to tell what they have done for their paper. Each of the comrades challenged, when he sends in his subscriptions, has the right in turn, to challenge five other comrades. The same rule applies to these comrades when they turn in their subscriptions. We are planning to begin with a challenge to 100 comrades. You may be the one first challenged. Prepare now. The names of all comrades challenged will be published, and the number of subscriptions obtained. Be ready.

In addition there are the valuable prizes which are being offered in connection with the campaign.

Join the Ranks

of the

Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 22 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the message of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual subs (or $20.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $2.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $40.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $200.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bales, F. Jerger, F. G. Vose, O. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

to the district securing the largest number of subscriptions in proportion to the number of party members, Daily Worker subscribers and sympathizers.

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly (Communist), Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign languages press should push The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions. Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

QUOTAS

District 1.	Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island. $1,400 worth of subscriptions or 280 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 2.	New York City and vicinity—part of New Jersey. 10,000 readers.
District 3.	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Western New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D. C. $1,400 worth of subscriptions or 280 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 4.	Buffalo, Rochester, Erie, Pa. and the Western part of New York State. $500 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 5.	Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 300 annual subscriptions.
District 6.	Cleveland and the State of Ohio. $500 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 7.	Detroit, the State of Michigan and Eastern Indiana. $1,400 worth of subscriptions or 280 annual subscriptions.
District 8.	Chicago, and Illinois, Lower Wisconsin, Missouri, and Lake County, Ind. $3,000 worth of subscriptions or 500 annual subscriptions.
District 9.	Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan (Upper peninsula), Minnesota. $1,400 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 10.	North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa. $440 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 11.	Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming. $260 worth of subscriptions or 45 annual subscriptions.
District 12.	Oregon and Washington. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 13.	California. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 14.	New Mexico, Arizona, Texas. $140 worth of subscriptions or 24 annual subscriptions.
District 15.	Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. $140 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.

DAILY WORKER

33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.

33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year, $3.50 six months, $2.50 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year, $3.50 six months, $2.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors

BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

A Patriot in the Pillory.

Former Attorney General Daugherty, super-patriot and red-baiter, strikebreaker and grafter, yesterday went on trial for the second time in a federal court charged with having received the lion's share of split of $224,000 in return for aid rendered a German concern in regaining $6,500,000 worth of properties confiscated by this government during the war as alien property.

Daugherty was acquitted at his first trial. He is going to have another chance on getting whitewashed by a "jury of his peers."

In the pillory with Daugherty sits a second patriot, a gentleman by the name of Thomas W. Miller, a colonel. Col. Miller was one of the founders of the American Legion. But Col. Miller found nothing inconsistent with patriotism in accepting the sum of $50,000 from the hated "Hun," that he so valiantly defended the country from during the war.

In addition to Daugherty and Miller, the other leading grafters in the play were, John T. King of Connecticut, national republican party committeeman, and the notorious Jess Smith, who is supposed to have died by his own hand, tho there is good reason to believe that he received assistance in shuffling out of the way. King is also dead, and Daugherty's books have been destroyed by fire.

Owing to the failure of President Coolidge to have Daugherty and Miller prosecuted for bribery, the statute of limitations intervened and none of Daugherty's successors in the department of justice showed any enthusiasm for the job. The United States attorney in New York City for some reason or other got a hal' neison on the grafters and hailed them before the bar. There is no doubt but the defendants received the bribe money. Had Coolidge shown as much concern over the political morals of his republican friends as he has displayed over the internal affairs of Mexico, Nicaragua and China, Daugherty and Miller would now be doing time in Atlanta or Leavenworth, since the bribery charge would stick like glue to a blanket.

Now they can only be charged with a "conspiracy to defraud the United States" of their deliberate and disinterested judgment in passing upon claims for restitution of alien property held by the Custodian.

Patriotism is the refuge of the grafter.

"Major" Berry, the Employers' Yes-Man.

Yesterday's issue of The New York Times gives honorable position to an article by the president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America on Henry Ford's five-day week plan. The notorious strikebreaker devotes scant attention to Ford's profit-making aim in introducing this new industrial departure. What the "Major" is concerned with are the interests of the employers, particularly the section which employes him as strikebreaker.

To quote from Berry's article: "The International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America has very frankly declared that it does not consider the time propitious even to think about a further reduction in the work week."

These are the words of a loyal and faithful capitalist servant. Mr. Berry continues: ". . . the International Union does not intend to give its attention to the regulation of the work week downward, basing its reasoning on the theory that our time and attention can best be given in promoting the spirit of cooperation and the development of ingenuities to succeed those that have brought to us the conditions we now enjoy."

In other words Mr. Berry proposes that his union—"his" is used advisedly—shall not concern itself in the future with struggles for shorter hours and higher wages but will devote its entire attention to the "development of ingenuities" that will enable the employers make more profits. This is just what Mr. Berry has been doing right along. Every time he succeeded in breaking a pressmen's strike he put money in his employers' pocket. Perhaps Mr. Berry is thru with such vulgar money-saving schemes. Perhaps he thinks the members of his union are now thoroly broken in spirit and will no longer call forth his strikebreaking ingenuities. We doubt it. The interests of the members of Mr. Berry's union and those of Mr. Berry and the publishers are as far apart as Mr. Berry is from common decency.

Should the New York Assembly pass a newspaper censorship law, there are ninety-nine chances out of one hundred that it will be used against the radical press and not against the salacious sheets that play up sexual perversion for the benefit of circulation and increased revenue.

George Bernard Shaw has written a eulogy of Colonel Thomas E. Lawrence, the "conqueror of Arabia." Here is the alleged anti-imperialist talking "Z with his own hands explode and smash the Turkish dominion in Arabia and join up with Viscount Allenby (the redeemer of Palestine) in Damascus at the head of Arabia liberata, Arabia redenta, Arabia allied to Britannia just when Britannia needed her." Shaw is an imperialist to the tips of his whiskers and to the smell of his garlic.

While the remains of the late Emperor Yoshihito of Japan were being conveyed to the imperial mausoleum an accident happened to the carriage. Since the emperor became a god as soon as he stopped breathing, the authorities feared that the incident would weaken the faith of the masses in divine efficiency. So they turned around and arrested one hundred innocent bystanders to keep the people so excited that they would not have time to think.

New Danger of Intervention in China

By TANG SHIH SHE.

After Lloyd George and the social democrat MacDonald, who in the year 1924 was responsible for an armed intervention against Canton, for the purpose of forming a common government mainly made use of the Chinese question as a weapon against the Conservative government of Baldwin and Chamberlain, and after Chamberlain and Baldwin have come to realize that the continual armed actions in China have not resulted in any success, the English government is adopting towards China a so-called liberal policy which first found expression in the much talked of Memorandum.

What does the Memorandum actually say? It speaks of the unconditional grant of the Washington extra taxes (there is to be demanded neither the abolition of the Likin, nor are the new revenues to come under foreign control nor are they to serve for the funding of the Chinese debts); the revenues are to be at the disposal of the most competent Chinese authorities, that is, they will not be paid into a European bank. Secondly, in regard to the question of ex-territoriality, England refers to the fact that certain proposals of the commission for the investigation of the question of the ex-territoriality could, without any great delay, serve under present circumstances, already be carried out. Thirdly, England proposes that the powers recognize the national aspirations of China in a common program declaration. The policy of protest in small matters is to be given up; protest shall be preserved for important cases, but must, however, then be made effective by common action."

The question of ex-territoriality plays only a minor role in the Memorandum. England's attention is mainly directed to bringing together the international imperialists for the purpose of an attack against the Kuomin government and against the liberation movement. Further, England, by recognizing the additional taxes for the whole of China and the delivery of the revenues to the "competent" Chinese authorities, wishes to help the military rulers to obtain funds. The civil war in China is to be prolonged and the whole country is to be divided up into so many little feudal principalities, as in India.

The clique of imperialist lackeys, the Chinese generals, such as Chang Tso-Lin, Wu Pei-Fu, Sun Chuan-Fang etc. are obviously collapsing; the soldiers are mutinying, the lower generals are falling away and going over to other armies. This fact is mainly attributed to the great lack of money. Neither the soldiers nor the officers are receiving their pay. The Imperialists have therefore recognized that it is precisely the exorbitant pressure exercised by the reactionary military rulers which is more and more increasing the sympathy for the revolutionary troops. They have for long been seeking a way out for their lackeys from this impasse. The tariff conference, which they had hindered and postponed for years, was for them, after the bloody bath of the 30th May 1925, after the revolutionary movement had extended more and more, a welcome excuse for supporting the reactionaries. In the Autumn of 1925 the conference was convened under the Tuan She-Sui government. Last year when finally there was no longer any Peking government in existence, the English constantly endeavoured to carry out the tariff conference to an end, because they wished, on the basis of the surtaxes, to grant the counter-revolutionary rulers a loan. After the seizure of power by the revolutionary Canton army in the Central Yangtze area, in Hankow and Kiukiang, the English propose in the Memorandum the unconditional grant of the Washington surtaxes. It is stated in this Memorandum that the revenue is no longer to be delivered to the Central government but to the local officials.

In China there are 45 marine customs' offices. 18 of these at present belong to the Canton government, the remainder to the outspoken imperialist lackeys. The big customs office of the Kuomin government, i. e. such as collect over one per cent. of the total customs revenue, are: Hankow, Canton, Swatow, Kiukiang, Changkiang and Amoy. But their income only amounts to a small percentage of the total revenue. Hankow receives only 8% of the total revenue, Canton 5.4%, Swatow 2.48%. The reactionaries, on the other hand, have a much greater share of the total revenue, for example, Shanghai 39.58%, Tientsin 9.9%, Delnij 7.78%, Klautschow 4.61%. Of the total revenue the Canton government receives a fourth. The 2.5% surtaxes can increase the total income of China by 30 to 40 million Haikwan Taels (a Tael is about 3 shillings). Of this amount, according to the intentions of the imperialists, the northern military rulers are to receive 20 to 30 million annually. This sum is to represent the foundation for a large planned English loan of 100 million pounds sterling for the control of China. The moment for such a plan would have as a result an immediate attack against the Kuomintang government by Japan. The Japanese will not allow the surtaxes to be introduced unconditionally in "their" area, that is, in North China as the English in South China have been compelled to do. They also do not wish to come forward on behalf of Sun Chuan-Fang and Chang Tsung-Chang, both of whom are more inclined to the side of England. All the imperialist powers together are, moreover, jealous of England, which has gobbled the largest share of the Chinese revenues, and wish to prevent England gaining still more privileges through its contemplated hundred million loan. Japan and France have already expressly opposed the English memorandum. England only finds a weak support in the social democrat Belgian Minister Vandervelde and the Portuguese military dictator. The Americans who do not possess any great special privileges in China and who are endeavoring to carry out their dollar policy, in no way approve of the dangerous intervention policy of England.

The Chinese people have immediately recognized England's lust for intervention. The Canton government, as the representative of the Chinese people, submitted a protest to the Washington government (the originator of the Chinese tariff increases at the Washington Conference). The additional taxes fixed by the Canton government, are not based upon the Washington agreement, but are special production taxes which are levied, not for military purposes, but for the benefit of the unemployed and striking Chinese workers. Should the English and their friends attempt to carry out their intriguing plans by means of force, there would set in a boycott against their goods. In addition a serious conflict between Chang Tso-Lin and his "followers" Chang Tsung-Chang would break out, as the latter is in possession of the great majority of the big ports, as Shanghai, Tientsin, Kiouchow etc., with the best revenues, which Chang Tso-Lin can in no wise tolerate.

Chinese Maintain "Order" at Hankow

HANKOW, Jan. 8. (By mail)—Comment in the foreign community here concerning the events of the past week—beginning with the near-encounter between the people and the British marines on the British Bund Sunday, and rapidly followed by the intervention of the Chinese authorities in the British Concession for the purpose of preserving peace and order—differs according to the nationality and temperament of the commentator.

Not even the most truculent of the jingoists, however, seems to be demanding armed intervention. And that seems to indicate that some of them have gone a long way toward understanding the new temper of the Chinese people. It is looked upon as a good sign.

In British circles the assumption of control over the British Concession is still looked upon, to be sure, as important. But some of the more reasonable seem able to see that it has not been the prompt intervention by the nationalist government an impossible situation might have been projected.

The same comment heard during these pregnant past few days is that of an American, whose opinions are worth stating even if for obvious reasons they must remain anonymous. He said:

"Really, it seems to me the foreign community here should be eternally grateful for the prompt and effective measures taken by the nationalist government in meeting an exceedingly difficult situation.

"There on the Bund on Monday was a situation which might at any moment have meant bloodshed on a large scale. Had the British marines used those machine guns there would have been another massacre. Its effect would have been felt thruout China. The position of the foreigner here would have been intolerable, perhaps untenable.

"Instead, reason prevailed. The nationalist government sent two officials to the scene. They

Published by the Workers (Communist) Party of America, affiliated with the Communist International, the Red Vanguard Party of the World.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 23. NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 9, 1927 Price 3 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

FOR unashamed lying, an article in last Monday's issue of the New York Evening Post is worthy of the attention of the Nobel Committee provided the deceased dynamite expert left any part of his fortune to encourage the fine art of prevarication as he did for excellence in literature and commendable effort for the preservation of peace among capitalist nations. The writer of the article, Herbert E. Casson by name, strings so many falsehoods together in the course of a short article that I can only deal with the top notchers.

• • •

Casson tries to bring a warm glow of satisfaction to the patriotic breasts of the Wall Street readers of the Post by insinuating that prosperity is raging furiously in England, that the "red agents" found the soil so barren for their revolutionary seed that they withdrew their gold from the Bank of England and returned it to Moscow, and that A. J. Cook, the mine leader is an "ostrich," the government having refused him a seat on a mining commission, though the prize liar did not say that Cook was the unanimous choice of the miners' executive for the committee. Casson proves that Cook is outlawed by the government but followed by the miners.

• • •

Mr. "Liar" Casson finds a definite swing against radicalism in England since the beginning of the year, and a tendency to a higher appreciation of the capitalist system. The gentleman forgot to note that in practically every election held since the general strike, labor candidates have been returned and the tories defeated. Does this look as if the masses were going backwards to capitalism or forward to a Workers' government?

• • •

About this Russian gold! Here are the facts. This gold was deposited in the Bank of England at a time when the Soviet Union's credit abroad were not considered satisfactory by foreign commercial houses. The gold was a guarantee that Russia's bill in England would be paid. Now the Soviet Union's credit is so high that there is no longer any need for this gold to lie stored away in the Bank of England. It can be used for building more factories in Russia or more houses for the workingclass.

• • •

Another fable conceived by Mr. Casson is that a trade union convention voted for one to repudiate Cook and all general strikes and revolutionary movements. The vote was true to one in support of the action of the right wing leaders in calling off the general strike. Cook was not repudiated by the rank and file. He is still secretary of a union with a membership of over one million. And on the very day this rubbish appears in the Evening Post, all the New York papers carry reports of a big mass meeting in Albert Hall, London, where James Maxtin, chairman of the Independent Labor Party, and a moderate socialist called on the workers to refuse to manufacture munitions for the war against China. Maxton was forced to come out with this language because of the opposition of the working millions to the war.

• • •

This does not look as if the "reds" were being scorned as Mr. Casson would have us believe. He claims that England is prosperous but does not explain the existence of an unemployed army of 2,000,000. Prosperity and unemployment do not make agreeable bed-mates. He says that the mass of the people were never better fed, better clothed or as well housed. This he finds mysterious "considering the financial position of England as a whole." Yes, it is mysterious to those who do not know that British prosperity is a myth and that Casson and his kind are damned liars.

• • •

MR. Arthur Ponsonby, member of the British Labor Party delivered a pacifist. lecture here last Sunday. He declared that all wars were futile, which is so much hunk. The revolutionary war now being waged by the Cantonese is not futile. Neither was the war that smashed the power of the ruling classes in Russia and defeated the intervention of the imperialists. Ponsonby's program is futile. It lulls the workingclass into a false sleep, while the enemy is perpetually forging new chains for them. War is terrible and horrible but since we are bound to have wars as long as capitalism exists and it is a certainty that the capitalists will not surrender their power without a struggle, there is no alternative to a battle between the exploited and the exploiters. If there is we await proof.

Trace Bonds In New Daugherty Bribe Trial

Evidence Shows Nearly Half Million Dollars Graft

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner delivered his opening address to the jury in the second Liberty trial and government witnesses began to testify immediately afterwards, tracing the course of bonds used in the bribery.

Harry Daugherty, former attorney general, and famous "anti-red" driver, is on trial with Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian. They are accused of accepting a bribe of $441,000 in cash and Liberty bonds for turning back to its German owners $7,000,000 worth of property of the "American Metal Co.," held by the alien property custodian after the war was over.

Claim All Right.

Buckner pointed out to the jury that the government's case did not require showing the government suffering any monetary loss through the action of the defendants. He said that it was merely necessary to show the defendants had deprived the government of their "honest and unprejudicial services" through the alleged conspiracy and that the validity of the claim had nothing to do with the matter.

How They Split.

Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian received $50,000 and the late John T. King, Connecticut politician, received $175,000 as their part from the $391,000 alleged bribe for putting through the return of $7,000,000 in seized war time assets, U. S. Attorney Emory R. Buckner charged in his opening jury address.

Buckner declared that he would show this "divvy" through the tracing of Liberty bond coupons to the brokerage houses of Miller in Wilmington, Del., and in New York and through deposits in Daugherty's bank at Washington Court House, Ohio.

The $391,000 in bonds, Buckner asserted, was paid by Richard Merton, German financier, to King for putting the deal through.

Jess Smith the Go-Between.

Buckner told the jury he could not show any conversations between Daugherty and Miller concerning the claim but would show that Jass Smith, Daugherty's aide, brought Merton to Miller.

The introduction of bond tracing testimony as the first move by the government reversed the tactics of the prosecution at the first trial, which resulted in a disagreement of the jury. In the original action the status of the $7,000,000 claims and the testimony of Merton occupied the early days of the trial.

Trading Bonds.

A check for $40,165 made out in December, 1923 to Harry M. Daugherty was identified by Miss Veail and was emphasized by Buckner. The United States attorney then brought out that the $49,165 was traded in for five $10,000 Liberty bonds, alleged to be part of the $391,000 worth of bonds in the Merton-King deal.

In Mal's Bank.

Employes of Mal Daugherty and of brokerage firms took the stand.

Solomon Raschkind told of giving Merton a receipt for the bonds, which the government charges that Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, shared.

Miss Vera Veail, assistant cashier of Mal Daugherty's bank in Washington Courthouse, Ohio, was the next witness.

Miss Veail testified regarding the bonds deposited in the bank headed by Mal, who is a brother of Harry Daugherty, and which later were sold.

Miss Veail testified that Mal Daugherty signed his brother Harry's name to checks "many times." She said she did not remember ever seeing Harry sign a check himself.

Harold Corbin, attorney for Daugherty, offered to stipulate the accuracy of the bank records introduced by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

If She Hadn't Been a Co-ed!

VERMILLION, S. D., Feb. 8. — Marian Meyers, the University of South Dakota co-ed who tried to rob a bank here on Saturday, was adjudged insane by the Clay county sanity board today and ordered sent to the Yankton State Hospital for observation.

Working Women to Hold Protest Mass Meetings On Rosalsky, Saturday

Working women will unite to help in the defense of the 16 imprisoned cloak makers.

A mass meeting will be held, on Saturday, February 12, at 1 P. M. in Webster Hall, 119 East 11th St., New York City, to protest against the unjust sentence of pickets by Judge Rosalsky, with the aid of agents provocateurs and gangsters of the Sigman makers.

Working women of Greater New York shops, factories and homes —your duty is to attend and participate in protest at this mass protest meeting.

Let the voice of the working women be heard!

Sisters, the 16 innocent cloakmakers must be free and return to their wives and children.

AUSPICES OF:

Cloak Makers Wives Councils, United Council of Working Class Housewives, Joint Board Cloak and Dresses Womens Committee.

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL WINS WIDER SUPPORT

Holds Two Large Cities; Carmona in Hiding

LISBON, Feb. 8.—The Portuguese Constitutional Revolution against the tyranny of General Carmona has now spread to nation-wide dimensions. The opposition has been joined by sailors, policemen, the republican guard and detachments of infantry.

The center of fighting has now been definitely transferred from Oporto to Lisbon, the capital of the country, where the revolutionists have captured the ministers of foreign affairs and of the interior, and are holding them prisoners.

General Carmona, who until yesterday commanded a very strong position, has been compelled to retreat and is at present in hiding. His whereabouts are not known. Artillery fire in Lisbon continued all day yesterday, the casualties were 7 dead and twenty wounded. Strategic positions were captured by the anti-government forces.

Troops from Valencia were bombarded by the government forces as an effort to prevent them from embarking on the boats en route to Lisbon where they expect to join the revolution.

Oporto, the northern center of the country, where the rebel troops have firmly established themselves, was the scene of big demonstrations yesterday. Civilians and soldiers paraded the streets shouting "Down with Carmona! Long live the republic!"

Colonel Mendes Reis, commander of the Revolutionary Committee, in yesterday's dispatch says, "The revolutionary forces are rapidly taking np positions in various parts of Oporto. We are hopeful of triumph. Certainly the entire population is armed and with us in the battle. They have signed with enthusiasm the revolutionary manifesto."

The official announcement of the government in Monday's dispatch, describing the imminent collapse of the revolutionary movement in Oporto was a maneuver to prevent the civilian uprising of the liberals and sympathizers in Lisbon, who were waiting only for a signal to revolt.

• •

British Cruiser Sent.

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 8.—Due to the revolutionary movement in Portugal the British cruiser Comus has been ordered to Lisbon from Gibraltar, it was reported here today.

The destroyers Windsor, and Westminster are sailing for Oporto.

Legislators to Break Republican Majority

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—An effort was being made at the capitol early today to break the deadlock of the republican majorities in the legislature over the designation of a candidate for member of the state council of farms and markets.

Led by Senator Knight, republican leader of the upper house, the senate republicans, at a caucus voted for George E. Hauge of Arcada, a fellow townsman of Senator Knight. The G. O. P. members of the assembly voted to support Roy P. McPherson of Genesee County.

McNary-Haugen Bill to Pass On Friday

Lowden Slaps Coolidge With Telegram Boosting It

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — The senate will vote on the $250,000,000 McNary-Haugen farm relief bill at 4 o'clock Friday under an unanimous consent agreement adopted this afternoon.

At least fifty senators are known to be favoring the measure, and there was every indication it will be enacted by the senate on the final vote. Under the agreement, debate will be limited after 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The agreement eliminated all need for cloture, which leaders of the farm bloc had threatened to invoke in event opponents of the bill attempted a filibuster. A cloture petition, circulated last week, was signed by 35 senators, and this helped to bring about the agreement to vote.

Lowden Raps Cal.

Ex-governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, a potential candidate for the 1928 republican presidential nomination, today actively entered the fight for enactment of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill to which President Coolidge is opposed.

In a telegram from Chandler, Arizona, to George N. Peek, farm representative, Lowden criticized the administration-supported Curtis-Crisp bill because it omitted an equalization fee and hailed the McNary bill as the best relief measure for the farmers.

"Without the equalization fee the large scale cooperatives of staple farm products are, I fear, in great danger," Lowden said.

Politics! Jockying.

The struggle over this bill is, as far as the farmers are concerned, something of a sham battle. The bill provides little relief for the farmers directly, though it does establish a loan fund for cooperative societies.

But the importance of the measure consists in its ability to rally votes in the middle west, and in the political alliance which its supporters have formed with the groups in congress desiring passage of lower tariff bills, and of branch bank measures. This has caused it to be the point at issue between President Coolidge and a section of his party. In this respect, the action of Lowden in dramatically coming to its support, foreshadows the conflict in the next republican convention.

See Radio Legislation Favored.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Early enactment of radio control legislation by congress was forecast today when the senate rejected two motions by Senator Pittman of Nevada to send the Dill-White bill back to conference for drastic revision.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Tow Liner Into Port.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 8.—Prince Louis De Bourbon, of France, was among the 55 passengers aboard the United States liner President Harding towed to this port today by the Canadian Government steamer Lady Laurier.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Women's Bureau Figures Show Waste of Long Day

Mrs. Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, makes public figures secured through a study of 18 cotton mills. These statistics show that in mills with long working day the operatives suffered from illness more than in others with shorter day. In mills working 48 hours per week, men operatives lost 11.3 per cent of their time and women 13.6 per cent of theirs; in mills working 55 hours a week, men lost 18.9 per cent of their time, and woman lost 27.3 per cent. This in addition to time lost through shutting down the mill. Women usually have some home duties as well as factory labor to perform.

Emergency Rent Laws Subjects of Hearings Conducted at Albany

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Representatives of tenants' organizations and real estate operators appeared today at a hearing on two bills affecting the emergency rent laws. One of the measures, introduced by Assemblyman Orvilller, New York democrat, extends the rent laws for another year in New York, Albany and Buffalo.

The second bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Grenthal, New York republican, provides for stays in actions to dispossess tenants for nonpayment of rent, where landlords have failed to live up to all requirements of the rent laws.

A plea for passage of a bill under which laudlords could not collect rent unless they made needed repairs, was made by the tenants.

"In some apartments there are ratholes in the floor large enough for a baby to fall through," said one tenant.

The emergency reut laws will expire May 1, unless extended by the legislature.

SENATE STIRRED BY BUTLER'S RAP AT CAL'S CHANCE

Neely Fears or Expects Booze in White House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Nicolas Murray Butler's prediction that President Coolidge would not be a candidate for another term, but that a "wet" would be sponsored by the Republicans drew the Senate's attention this afternoon.

Discussing presidential breakfasts, Senator Neely (D) of West Virginia declared that syrup and buckwheat cakes, the President's favorite breakfast combination, would go beside the boards and "tempting beverages" be substituted if a "wet" occupied the White House.

Borah Sees Dry.

Dr. Butler's assertion that no candidate can be elected president next year who did not favor the present prohibition drew him a challenge from Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho.

In an open letter to Dr. Butler, Senator Borah declared this afternoon that he was willing to take the prohibition issue into every state in the union this summer and, the time of the next republican convention and battle it out in the election of delegates

"For his own part, Borah said, he intended doing everything in his power to "force this issue to a final conclusion in the next convention."

Butler Argues Coolidge Sensible Enough to See Can't Ever Win Again

President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, who visited the White House last week, told members of the Riverside Republican Club that he believes Calvin Coolidge will not be a candidate for renomination for president. Dr. Butler also suggested that United States Senator James A. Reed might be the democratic candidate.

Dr. Butler said:

"I am taking it for granted that when President Coolidge thinks the right time has come he will make a public statement of his unwillingness to have his name considered in connection with the republican presidential nomination of 1928.

"One of the president's strongest characteristics is his common sense, and common sense dictates this course."

Parasites in the Courts.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Sybille Pope, mother of Richard Thrne, indicted with Philip Elliott on serious charges in connection with an attack upon Miss Violet Anderson, show girl and model, today appiled to Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor, Jr., here for alimony and counsel fees from her husband, Charles H. Pope, of 1212 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Four Years for Governors.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—By a strict party vote, with all the democrats recorded in opposition, the senate today passed the Thayer resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution providing a four-year term for governors, the elections to be held in the same years that presidents are chosen. The vote was 26 to 24.

China to Turn Down Kellogg's Proposal

Will Deny Right of Imperialist Power to Determine Internal Policy

WUCHANG, Feb. 8.—A defiant refusal to accept the Kellogg proposals to neutralize the international settlement at Shanghai will be the answer of the Cantonese government to the American note, if speeches delivered by prominent Nationalist officials are a criterion of the government's point of view.

Sun Fu, son of Sun-Yat-Sen, declared that the Cantonese did not recognise the right of foreigners to interfere in the internal affairs of China.

Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, in a bitter attack on the British government declared that if any violence took place in Shanghai the British mobilization of armies and fleets would be responsible.

The Cantonese intend taking the foreign concessions as soon as possible. The war lords Chang-Tso-Lin and Sun Chuan-Fang are ready to dicker with the imperialists. This gives the key to the imperialist opposition to the Nationalist government. It is freely stated here that the Kellogg note was a hostile move against the Cantonese government since Washington knew beforehand through information supplied by Minister MacMurray in Peking, that Chang was willing to accept the neutralization proposals.

Favor Militarists.

The imperialist powers have no objection to the presence of Sun Chuan-Fang's mercenaries in Shanghai, but they express the utmost concern over the arrival of the Cantonese whose reputation for orderly conduct has penetrated throughout the whole of China. It is clear that the powers are not sending armed forces to Shanghai to protect the lives of their nationalists but to safeguard their ill-gotten possessions.

• • •

A Suspicious Victory.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—Details are curiously lacking of the alleged victory of Sun Chuan-Fang's armies and the retreat of the Cantonese. The customary tally of dead, wounded and captured is missing from the reports.

Observers here are of the opinion that the Cantonese employed the "retreat before the Red army of Russia," which often gave ground to the whites, for political as well as strategic reasons. The conduct of the reactionary mercenaries was so atrocious that it was more successful in bringing the peasants over to the side of the revolution than tons of propaganda.

British Hopped Up.

There is a noticeable stiffening of the British government's attitude towards the Cantonese government since news of Chang's alleged victory reached London.

As was expected Chang-Tso-Lin has signified his agreement with the Kellogg proposals to neutralize the International settlement at Shanghai. The bandit Chang has been engaged in the lucrative business of national real estate operator since he quit murder and pillage outside the law. He is now the white-haired boy of the Christian governments of Great Britain and the United States. The heathen Japanese having lost their "yen" for him, so it is said

DEPUTIES HARRY FRAIL OLD WOMAN SEEKING ESCAPE

CAMILLUS, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Edna Denning, 52, of New York City, frail, grey-haired little woman who escaped from Auburn prison late Saturday by picking two door locks and scaling the walls of the penitentiary and who eluded armed police and deputy sheriffs for three days, was captured near Manlius today and not until she had plunged down a twenty-foot embankment in an effort to get away.

The woman was discovered by deputy sheriff Allen Taylor walking along the tracks of the Auburn division, New York Central Railroad. She sighted the deputy sheriff at about the same time he recognized her. She scrambled down the steep embankment with the deputy sheriff after her. He overtook the fugitive after a short chase. The woman collapsed and the deputy was forced to carry her back more than two miles to Camillus.

BRITISH POLICY OF FORCE IN ATTACK ON CHINA STANDS

King's Speech Approves the Mailed Fist in China

LONDON, Feb. 8.—King George read his prepared speech to parliament today. It dealt chiefly with the Chinese situation, internal affairs and the invasion of the British film market by American movies. The speech represents the cabinet's policy.

The British government will maintain its "policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of China" the declaration of policy said with typical British hypocrisy. This is the government that forced the opium drug on the Chinese people and stole important territories from them.

Macdonald's Weak Reply.

Ramsay MacDonald made a weak sreech in opposition to the dispatch of troops to China and warned the government that they were endangering the safety of the empire by this policy.

In reply Stanley Baldwin, premier, declared that his government would not permit Eugene Chen or any other foreigner to say what or where British warships should be sent to "protect British lives." This statement was greeted with cheers from the tory benches. Its imperialist ring was in striking contrast to the whine of MacDonald who would have delivered the challenge of British labor to the tory government.

Favors Strike Laws.

King George's ready-made speech expressed royal satisfaction with the change in his title resulting from the decisions of the imperial conference, expressed approval of the proposed anti-strike laws and noted the slight change for the better in industry.

"British troops will be landed in Shanghai if the emergency requires, otherwise the advance guard will be halted at Hong Kong while the rest of the force is approaching," Premier Baldwin said. "Nothing has happened at Hankow to make us alter our determination to achieve our ends."

• • •

Another Fleet Sails.

SHEERNESS, England, Feb. 8. — The eighth destroyer flotilla of nine vessels left port here today under orders for China.

Senators, Worried by Farmers' Unrest, Throw Sop to Buy Fertilizer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The senate today passed the Norbeck bill providing $8,600,000 for loans to farmers in the drought-stricken northwest, the cotton states, and Florida for purchasing seed and fertilizers.

Not more than $300 would be available to any single farmer.

Of the total, $6,000,000 would be available for seed loans. $1,500,000 for fertilizer in the south, $300,000 for the storm-torn area of Florida, and $800,000 for cotton growers. The states of North and South Dakota and Montana would be alloted $5,000,000 of the total for seed loans.

There is much unrest among agriculturists over lack of adequate farm relief.

Mexican Railway Unions Threaten Strike

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8.—A new ultimatum has been presented to the railroad managements by the railroad unions, threatening a strike on February 17 if their demands are not met.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

NAVY RULERS OF VIRGIN ISLANDS IMPRISON EDITOR

Rothschild Francis in Appeal to U. S. Negroes

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Island. (By Mail).—Rothschild Francis, editor of The Emancipator, in a letter which he sends to the Negro press of America, cites the struggle that the natives have to face from the American naval commanders.

He points out that when America bought the island from Denmark it promised the natives American citizenship among many other things, none which have materialized. How he, himself, has been picked out as a special target by the American naval officers and given several sentences as a result. The latest one for thirty days in jail and a fine of $200.

Calls Negroes To Aid.

He writes: "The manner in which I am persecuted in the Virgin Islands should not go unchallenged by you. White American friends have given me free legal counsel, publicity and financial assistance to combat the oppressors down here. But the fight is bitter and long and I need all the help possible at this moment."

He continues by pointing out that the court of appeals has just returned the papers in the last contempt case against him which means thirty days in jail and a $200 fine or 230 days in jail.

For Lower Fines.

"I have written American friends to raise funds for the fine. Our poor people who are putting up this noble fight for justice are without funds at present. So serious are the present fines placed upon certain people that Councilman Conral Cornelero, had to introduce a bill in the council to modify them. Seemingly he has the support of a majority of the council, but the naval governor is opposed to the measure. He is quoted as having said that the judiciary must raise enough to support itself.

Due For Long Term

"Should these friends fail to raise this amount, I will be compelled to remain in jail for 230 days. Under no circumstances will I ask the governor to commute this sentence. To great principle is involved. What have I done to merit this persecution? I simply reproduced in the Emancipator a release from the American Civil Liberties Union of New York city without comments. This same release appeared in The Chicago Defender and other newspapers on the mainland.

Underhanded Attack

"Now they have applied the Roman law of divide and rule. On the other hand, the voice of the Emancipator must be silenced at any cost. A man who once was a member of the working people cause has been made to bring a civil suit against the Emancipator for $80 due him on notes, with interest and a reasonable attorney fee.

I. L. D. In Fight.

"I have written the International Labor Defense and asked them to raise that sum of money for us so that the only labor organ in the Virgin Islands will not be hampered while I am in jail.

"The situation out here calls for redress. We are counting upon you to help; otherwise our sacrifices will have been in vain. Yours for the progress of the Race.

"ROTHSCHILD FRANCIS,
"Editor the Emancipator."

St. Thomas, V. I.

House Committee Kills Bill That Would Cut Immigration to 150,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The House Immigration Committee today voted for the repeal of the national origin provision of the immigration law which would reduce the annual immigration to 150,000 and materially change the quotas of many nations.

This action was taken as a substitute for Senate bill which would delay the effectiveness of the national origin provision from next July 1 until July 1, 1928. Under the national origin provision the quotas of English nations would be materially increased while German and Scandinavian immigration would be cut down.

Consolidation of Railroads Splits Congress Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Railroad consolidation will be made a live issue before the country under plans of administration leaders.

The program calls for a favorable report upon the Parker consolidation bill by the house interstate commerce committee. While there is admittedly no hope of making the bill in the present session of congress, it is explained this action would place the question squarely before the voters.

The committee is said to be sharply divided on the bill after weeks of study. Objection has been registered on the ground the bill would virtually amend state laws as applied to railroad companies.

FIGHTING THE CAPITALIST PRESS, LIARS, CHEATS
DAILY WORKER IS CHAMPION OF CLASS STRUGGLE

The Daily Worker is the official organ of the Workers (Communist) Party of America. All the official Communist news of the activities of Lenin, the Russian Communist leader, will be published in the Daily Worker. Send in your subscription at once and get a start for 25c.50.

"We are the natural supporters of the Lithuanian Co-operative Publishing Society, Inc., publishers of the workers' daily, Laisves, Brooklyn, N. Y., February 6, 1927, and our associated publications in the DAILY WORKER, Chicago, Illinois, Workers (Communist) Party of America, the only English Communist daily in the world. We express our admiration for its heroic struggle in defense of working class interests and for its steadfast adherence to the Communist position. We pledge The DAILY WORKER all possible support in its campaign for conquering the widest masses for Communism."

TEACHERS' UNION LAUNCHES BLOW AT TAX DODGERS

Chicago Millionaires Do Not Support Schools

CHICAGO, (FP). — Two suits by Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, to bring the big corporation tax dodgers to book are making progress with the circuit court decision that the suits are properly brought. Previous suits by other parties had been thrown out on various grounds and so Local 2, the men teachers union, authorized James A. Maude to bring suit in his name as a taxpayer.

Want Education Fund.

The object of the suits is to make the corporations pay their just share of taxes. The teachers contend that if the corporations paid on their property just as the small home owner and small business man must pay there would be plenty of money for the education fund to give every school child a seat, reduce the size of classes from around 50 to a manageable number and to pay adequate wages to the teachers.

Millions Involved.

There are 86 corporations named in the suits, dodging taxes on $234,000,000 in capital stock value, assessable under present law. The openshop U. S. Gypsum Corp., for example, if properly assessed on its capital stock would pay enough additional taxes to meet the wage increase granted the city firemen for an entire year. Some corporations have been paying nothing at all as capital stock tax though their stock is bought and sold on the stock exchange and its market value and amount easily ascertainable by the assessors. Altogether Cook county loses taxes on $440,000,000 in capital stock values, the teachers show.

Pell Saves Money.

Besides the dodging on capital stock, about $225,000,000 in property belonging to 40 corporations is kept off the tax rolls by pressure or influence, it is charged. This property is easily accessible to the state tax commission, the suit complains.

The teachers have the support of the Chicago Federation of Labor in their suits. Their attorneys expects an early decision on the issue, now that the legal points have been cleared up.

Credulous Missourian Found; Hawes Bill to Exclude Russian Gold

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Two bills, which would prevent foreign powers, corporations or individuals from contributing to the campaign funds of candidates for the presidency or congress, were sponsored in the senate this afternoon by Senator Hawes (D) of Missouri. One of the bills also would prohibit foreign powers or aliens from using money in this country to promote or influence the enactment of legislation in congress.

The bills were aimed at reports that a $12,000,000 slush fund was raised in Germany to help secure the enactment of the Alien Property Bill, returning seized German property. They also were directed, Hawes said, at alleged Japanese and Russian propaganda.

Violations of either law would be punishable by fines of $2,000 or jail terms not exceeding two years.

New York Milk Scandal Again to Fore; Smith Bros. License Revoked

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 8.—An echo of the alleged New York city milk scandal, which figured in the last gubernatorial campaign, was heard at the capitol today.

Berne A. Pyrke, state commissioner of farms and markets, announced he had revoked the milk gathering license of Smith Brothers milk and cream company of New York City.

Action by Commissioner Pyrke in revoking the milk gathering license of Smith Brothers is the first step of its kind ever taken by the farms and markets council.

During the campaign last fall Odgen L. Mills, the republican gubernatorial candidate, called upon Governor Smith to order a state probe of the alleged bootleg milk scandal in Greater New York. The executive insisted the farms and markets council had ample power to make such an investigation.

LATEST NEWS IN BRIEF

Settle for Breaking Chains.

All who have taken "Breaking Chains" tickets to sell are requested to settle for them immediately whether sold or not. If sold bring the cash, if not return the tickets.

Boost St. Lawrence Canal.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 8.—The Illinois house today passed a senate resolution urging President Coolidge to negotiate a treaty with Canada for the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway.

Finance Wizard to Serve Time.

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Charles Ponzi, ex-financial wizard, is to be brought back from Texas at once.

The "get-rich-quick" man is wanted here to serve a term of from five to seven years as a "common and notorious thief."

Youth Escapes Prison Drowns?

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A seventeen-year-old youth, who with two others about the same age, attempted to escape from the State Reformatory on Randall's Island, was today believed to have drowned in the East River.

Impeached Governor Abducted.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8.—An armed band has abducted Jose de la Pena, impeached governor of Nayarit, despite the protection of federal troops afforded him, according to reports received here.

Held Alleged Dope Peddler.

Four men, declared to be involved in a dope peddling ring operating exclusively in New York's "night club district," were held in $5,000 bail each today when arraigned before a United States Commissioner here. The men are Samuel Walker, Moses Solomon, John Waite and Thomas Ryan.

Prohibition at Its Worst.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—The bodies of four persons, two men and two women, were found today in a house in the eastern suburbs of Los Angeles, according to reports to police headquarters.

Police were unable to determine whether death was caused by carbon monoxide suffocation or by poison liquor.

Dempsey Out of Danger.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, who has been in bed suffering from blood poisoning in his left arm resulting from a neglected minor scratch, was considered entirely out of danger today and the prospect was he would be up within the next two days, according to word given out by Estelle Taylor, his wife.

Rises From the Dead.

LEMBERG, Feb. 8.—A daughter's delay in arriving for her mother's funeral probably saved the mother's life. While the tardy funeral services were being held, the "dead woman," Mrs. Russ, awoke from a trance and raised herself from the coffin, setting the mourners aghast. Put for the delay in the arrival of the daughter the woman would have been buried alive.

Mail Bandits Confess Hold-up.

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Feb. 8.—Three men confessed today, according to Sheriff Percy Moore, that they staged a $10,000 mail robbery here in September, 1924.

The men gave their names as Ron ald Monzer, 38, for 11 years an employe of the local postoffice; Ronald Fox, 28, and Howard Scott.

One of the men, posing as a Federal inspector, obtained a bag containing the $10,000 from a ticket agent, it is said.

Big Shakeup in Booze Graft.

Thirty-one persons, five former prohibition agents and three rabbis, were under indictment today, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Coincident with the indictments, which were returned by a Federal Grand Jury before Judge John C. Knox, came an announcement by prohibition administrator Mills of new regulations for withdrawal of sacramental wine.

White Plains Sends Greetings.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Packed with pictures of nude women, doll babies, toy limousines and two thousand pages of "red hot" testimony, a large box arrived here today. The contents were the official court record of the recent trial held in White Plains, officially known as Browning vs. Browning.

The box is destined for Justice Seeger, who is at his home here considering his decision.

POLICE CHIEF SUED BY WORKER FOR FALSE ARREST

Shows Bias in Favor of Steel Trust Tool

By A. JARIRA.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 8.—"Ham" Brown, chief of Aliquippa police, is sued for ten thousand dollars damages by Pete Musulin, of Woodlawn, Pa. The action against Brown was taken by Musulin after Brown raided a meeting of a picnic committee of the Woodlawn Croatian Benefit Union and placed under arrest several men found in the house. No search warrant was produced when the arrests took place, and all were released after being in jail for several hours. The arrests took place on July 7th last year. Musulin with the aid of the International Labor Defense and the American Civil Liberties Union brought suit against the chief of police.

Raise Religious Issue.

The case opened in Beaver County court Friday, Feb. 4th. After the jury was picked the attorneys called upon Pete Musulin, the plaintiff in the case, as the first witness. To the great surprise of all Musulin was not permitted to take the oath until he answered questions as to his religious beliefs.

The objections raised by Musulin's attorneys were overruled by the judge. Musulin was refused the right to take the stand to testify in his own behalf, a procedure never heard of in the courts even of Pennsylvania. The next witness, Mrs. Zima, was also questioned about her religious beliefs. When she answered that she believed in god, she was further asked in what god she believed, and whether she expected a punishment after she died and if yes what punishment she expected.

Judge Yields.

It was only after the court adjourney that the judge had to admit that he made a mistake by permitting such questions and promised to eliminate the questions about religion in the next sessions of the court.

Police Chief Drunk.

Pete Musulin was then permitted to take the witness stand on Saturday morning and was subjected to a three hour direct and cross examination. He testified that "Ham" Brown raided the meeting while he was intoxicated and used a language which could not be repeated in court, that four men were handcuffed and that Brown said that he needed no warrant.

Senator Craig, the attorney for Brown, proceeded to prove that Musulin was a "Bolshevik" and submitted evidence some Communist books seized in the raids on Armistice day. A bust of Lenin was also introduced as evidence. Mr. Wilson, the attorney for Musulin, objected vigorously against using as evidence in this civil case literature which was not found during the Armistice day raid, but the judge overruled the objection. Musulin was then subjected to a grilling in regards to his personal beliefs about the overthrow of the American government and the establishment of a Soviet government in the United States. The objections against these questions were overruled by the judge.

Served U. S. Army.

Considerable excitement was caused in court when Musulin under cross examination stated that he had served in the U. S. army during the war and that he became a Communist after he returned from France and after he saw that the war was carried on in the interests of the big business and not for democracy.

An attempt to introduce as evidence the official tabulation of the votes cast in the elections last November 2nd showing that the Workers Party was on the ballot in this state was overruled by the judge, who continually took the side of Hamilton Brown.

Trial Adjourned.

The court adjourned at 12 noon on Saturday and will continue the case next week. A large number of witnesses are expected to be called in by both sides. This is the first case of its kind in Pennsylvania, attempting to stop the iron rule of the steel and coal trust in this state. Two other suits for damages are pending in court against the same "Ham" Brown as the result of the false arrest on July seventh.

Plan Now Is to Declare McNary-Haugen Farm Bill "Unconstitutional"

By I. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

It is declared that the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill will go the rounds because of congress with flying colors.

The only question that arises, it is claimed, is whether President Coolidge will sign the bill when it comes to him, or whether he will veto it.

But that isn't the end of it. Representative Tincher, of Kansas, whose bill was produced when the arrests took place, and all were released after being in jail for several hours. The arrests took place on July 7th last year. Musulin with the aid of the International Labor Defense and the American Civil Liberties Union brought suit against the chief of police.

Raise Religious Issue.

The case opened in Beaver County court Friday, Feb. 4th. After the jury was picked the attorneys called upon Pete Musulin, the plaintiff in the case, as the first witness. To the great surprise of all Musulin was not permitted to take the oath until he answered questions as to his religious beliefs.

The objections raised by Musulin's attorneys were overruled by the judge. Musulin was refused the right to take the stand to testify in his own behalf, a procedure never heard of in the courts even of Pennsylvania. The next witness, Mrs. Zima, was also questioned about her religious beliefs. When she answered that she believed in god, she was further asked in what god she believed, and whether she expected a punishment after she died and if yes what punishment she expected.

Judge Yields.

It was only after the court adjourney that the judge had to admit that he made a mistake by permitting such questions and promised to eliminate the questions about religion in the next sessions of the court.

Police Chief Drunk.

Pete Musulin was then permitted to take the witness stand on Saturday morning and was subjected to a three hour direct and cross examination. He testified that "Ham" Brown raided the meeting while he was intoxicated and used a language which could not be repeated in court, that four men were handcuffed and that Brown said that he needed no warrant.

Senator Craig, the attorney for Brown, proceeded to prove that Musulin was a "Bolshevik" and submitted evidence some Communist books seized in the raids on Armistice day. A bust of Lenin was also introduced as evidence. Mr. Wilson, the attorney for Musulin, objected vigorously against using as evidence in this civil case literature which was not found during the Armistice day raid, but the judge overruled the objection. Musulin was then subjected to a grilling in regards to his personal beliefs about the overthrow of the American government and the establishment of a Soviet government in the United States. The objections against these questions were overruled by the judge.

Served U. S. Army.

Considerable excitement was caused in court when Musulin under cross examination stated that he had served in the U. S. army during the war and that he became a Communist after he returned from France and after he saw that the war was carried on in the interests of the big business and not for democracy.

An attempt to introduce as evidence the official tabulation of the votes cast in the elections last November 2nd showing that the Workers Party was on the ballot in this state was overruled by the judge, who continually took the side of Hamilton Brown.

Trial Adjourned.

The court adjourned at 12 noon on Saturday and will continue the case next week. A large number of witnesses are expected to be called in by both sides. This is the first case of its kind in Pennsylvania, attempting to stop the iron rule of the steel and coal trust in this state. Two other suits for damages are pending in court against the same "Ham" Brown as the result of the false arrest on July seventh.

U. S. Officers Aid Diaz.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—American aviators fighting with the forces of General Diaz in Nicaragua may lose their citizenship despite the fact that Diaz is supported by this government it was learned at the state department today.

Dispatches from Nicaragua said Major William Brooks, Major E. L. Clay and Major Lee Mason, American aviators, are in the service of the conservatives.

There are two laws governing such action, officials said. One provides expatriation for Americans who pledge allegiance to a foreign government, and the other provides trial and imprisonment for Americans who enlist in a foreign army within the limits of the United States.

It was indicated that a warning may be issued to the flyers, advising them that they are jeopardizing their citizenship, if their activities are "officially" reported to the department.

This was done in the case of American flyers who aided the French in the World war.

It is declared that the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill will go the rounds because of congress with flying colors.

The only question that arises, it is claimed, is whether President Coolidge will sign the bill when it comes to him, or whether he will veto it.

But that isn't the end of it. Representative Tincher, of Kansas, whose bill was produced when the agrarian committee, arises to exclaim, that if this relief bill is headed off nowhere else, "The United States Supreme Court will surely declare it unconstitutional."

* * *

Many farmers think that the McNary-Haugen bill, if enacted into law, will be of great benefit to them.

* *

Arthur Brisbane, a personal friend of the president, frequent visitor at the White House and persistent booster for "Silent Cal's" aspirations for re-election in 1928, writes as follows in the Hearst press:

"Washington wonders if the McNary-Haugen farm bill passes, whether President Coolidge will veto it, and if so, whether it will hurt him in 1928.

"The president was against the bill last time, but he is not among those who are too feeble to change their minds. If farmers want it, and congress chooses to run the risks alleged to lurk in the bill, the president may sign it. If he doesn't think it wise he will veto it."

* * *

The Hearst sheets are supposed to be democratic. But Arthur talks as if he sat on the republican throne in the Washington White House and knew all the inner policies of the administration in power.

* * *

This declaration reveals, however, the present passive attitude of the politicians toward this legislation that was denounced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, during the last session of congress, as "economically unsound." Coolidge had to the Mellon viewpoint.

The McNary-Haugen bill seeks to put the production of wheat, cotton, corn and several other farm staples on the same basis as the production of steel, textiles, wool and even Mellon's own favorite aluminum products. The farm bloc has adopted many of the same tactics, that the high-tariff seeking industrialists have pursued. If the New England textile crowd can get together with the agricultural sector clique, to win congressional legislation granting tariff protection, then the wheat and corn growers will be able to get together with the cotton and rice planters to exert joint pressure on congress. This is exactly what they have done. Every agricultural section of the country has been made to feel that it has a stake in the McNary-Haugen bill, which embodies a system of price-fixing to force up the domestic prices of farm products by conserving the surplus to be disposed of in the foreign market.

* * *

The strength that has been mustered by the supporters of this legislation is analyzed by the Washington correspondent of the New York Times in language as follows:

"The strength apparently has developed to a point where, unless the administration acts promptly, the conservative republicans see no way of overcoming the deal the farm bloc has gained in the senate and house by trading on other legislation."

It is announced that the big banking and great industrialists have placed Representative Ogden L. Mills, late contender with Al Smith for the governorship of New York State, in charge of the chess battle being waged by the anti-relief forces. Ogden Mills indulged in a milk bottle battle with Al Smith in the last state campaign. That is as close as Mills ever got to any agrarian products.

* * *

The DAILY WORKER has continually emphasized that altho wide masses of dirt farmers, tenant farmers and even farm workers have been drawn into support of the McNary-Haugen measure, nevertheless, this legislation will be of little benefit to them.

The rule worklde, the declaring of this legislation as unconstitutional, will help open the eyes of millions of land workers to the real nature of the capitalist state that is oppressing them, seeking to kill even this palliative.

* * *

The old party politicians are not anxious to incur the hatred of the voters on the eve of the 1928 elections, not even Cal Coolidge. If the strike-breaker president vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill, after it had been passed by both houses of congress, that would be political capital in the pockets of such republican contenders for the presidential nomination as Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois; Charles G. "Hell and Maria" Dawes, the vice-president and Chicago banker, to mention only two. Thus there is much to be said in support of the belief that Coolidge may sign the bill, but pass it on to the supreme court to be declared "unconstitutional," which is just as effective a method of defeating it. Then again Coolidge may decide that his white house days are over and veto the bill as one of his farewell blows at the farmers of the west who threw him a lot of votes in the 1924 landslide.

* * *

The manner in which this farm relief legislation is handled about, is the biggest proof that it does not effectively strike at the capitalist state being real support of the farmers' struggle for existence against the profiteering interests. That fight awaits the time when a mighty labor party will send hosts of class conscious workers and farmers into congress, not to trade as between Coolidge or Dawes, Fess or Lowden, but who will wage an open war on the predatory power so ably served by both the old parties.

Whichever way the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill goes, the workers and farmers, especially the latter, should get an excellent lesson in the desirability of independent political action as against trailing after the parties of Wall Street in the make a political football of their discontent and woe.

BRITISH FIRMS BUILD NAVY FOR LATIN AMERICA

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A scheme to build a great armada for South American countries is now being perfected by the various agents which British imperialists have stationed in the foreign countries.

The plan as outlined by the British financiers would net the steel-barons and shipbuilders a round sum of $200,000,000.

Chile has already placed an order for a flotilla of large torpedo boats the price of which totals $10,000,000 and negotiations are now on to get the rest of the contracts for warships which would bring this sum up to $30,000,000.

All Want War Ships.

Argentina is expected to hand in contracts for three light-cruisers, six destroyers, and six submarines, aggregating a purchase price of $15,000,000. The Brazilians are next with a similar contract.

The British government is officially encouraging this progress, and intimates that it does not see any war preparation in the construction of such warships.

London opinion has it, however, that the British government is rather glad on the whole to see growing possibilities of resistance to the United States among Latin American countries.

BRITISH TRIAL INDICATES SPY TRADE THRIVES

Post-War Governments In Suspicious Mood

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The sentencing of several men of Irish extraction, one of whom is said to be a full pay roll of the United States government for espionage and commerce in Admiralty secrets, revives a deal of spy talk.

The two latest battleships built in England, the Rodney and the Admiral Nelson, are so jealously guarded, the secrets of their structure so carefully protected, that they have become known as "the hush-hush ships." Part of the secrecy may be demanded by the necessity of breaking as gentlemanly as possible the Washington "5-5-3" naval ratio.

U. S. Has Spies.

Rumors are current that Washington has already a report from a spy on the British fleet during secret battle practice, to the effect that the range of the guns was increased by altitude obtained through filling the blisters on one side of the ship with water.

Continental Europe is a hotbed of espionage. The sale of aircraft secrets has put a number of individuals lately in French military prisons.

It Costs High.

Millions of dollars are accounted for on the budgets of what is left of "The Central Powers" and new Baltic and Balkan powers for maintenance of clever and unscrupulous ladies of the demi-monde and luxuriously living "men about town" in their neighbors' capitals, where they can mingle with the rulers, especially when the rulers are a little tipsy, and garner gossip of public affairs.

New War Weapon

In spite of the argument of liberals and left groups in the parliaments of countries investing heavily in this sort of service, that spies are not needed in time of peace, and that military secrets cannot be kept anyway, the general staffs and ministers of war always answer that no country can tell what surprises it has in its armory; the latest in poison gas, in explosives, in disease germs for military use, in improved tanks, submarines, in sixteen inch guns, dreadnaughts that carry flocks of airplanes—all these are hidden menaces to life and limb which each nation keeps sealed until time for use, and continues to develop. In such an atmosphere, espionage flourishes.

Carpenters Union In Struggle to Pass Bill Restricting Injunction

Carpenters union, Local 791 at its regular meeting held last Monday night at 144 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, endorsed the action of the Central Trades and Labor Council in its move for the passing of a bill by the state legislature to make the issuing of injunctions in labor disputes more difficult.

It decided to write all the members of the local and request them to obtain the support of their assemblyman and state senators for the bill being introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Frederick Hackenberg in cooperation with local labor leaders.

Tom Ryan one of the members of the local said that "it is illegal for judges to issue injunctions in labor disputes and the partner of the bill probably won't do much good."

He was followed by Morris Rosen, who said: "We should support the move to pass the anti-injunction bill. Our policy should be to adopt the slogan of Samuel Gompers, 'Violate the Injunction!' However, we must not expect too much results from politicians of the old political parties. The workers should form their own labor party to fight for their interests."

Urge Debate on God In West Virginia Be Permitted to Go On

The American Civil Liberties Union with headquarters in New York wired Mayor W. E. Neal of Huntington, West Va., today urging him to lift the ban of City Commissioner Homer L. Yelch against a public debate on "Is There a God in the Universe?" The debaters are Dr. T. T. Martin, field secretary of the Anti-Prohibition League of America, and Charles Smith, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Atheism.

The telegram of Forrest Bailey, director of the union, follows:

"Will you not use your good offices to restore the principle of free speech in Huntington and persuade Commissioner Yelch to permit a debate in the city auditorium between Dr. Martin and Charles Smith? We understand the auditorium is paid a month in advance and the character of the meeting was fully understood. Such discussions surely are beneficial. The sound American principle of free speech demands that they shall not be suppressed."

"We learn that the action of Commissioner Yelch was incited by intolerant groups who disapproved of the debate," declared Mr. Bailey today. "The subject of the debate has nothing to do with the matter. If in the debate either of the speakers says anything which violates the laws of Huntington or West Virginia, he may be arrested and prosecuted. This is clearly a free speech issue. No city official has the constitutional right to censor of suppress in advance."

Golf Game Not Enough Fun; Rich Man Bumps Off Friend and Himself

Riding in the luxurious motor cars, parading about in swanky clothes, and shooting golf become quite tame when you have nothing else to do but sit on your tail and clip coupons.

When you reach that stage and you crave excitement, you buy your swastika an "African honking gander", or spend $300,000 for an "old master", or you put a bullet thru your best friend. Such are the simple pleasures of the rich.

Andrew Jankowski and Cornelius Callahan were the best of friends. They were more than that. Jankowski, the president of a motor sales company, and Callahan, the general manager of a soft drink manufacturing concern, had invested heavily in each others' businesses—and manuma is thicker than even soda water.

Yesterday, however, Jankowski shot and fatally wounded Callahan—and then killed himself—on the links of the Bellevue Golf Club, Los Angeles.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

CONFERENCE IN MINNESOTA HITS MOVE INTO WAR

Big Gathering Is Held At Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 8.—Three hundred representatives of the labor movement of Minneapolis gathered at a conference here to protest against the course of the American Government in Nicaragua, Mexico and China.

The meeting was called by a committee consisting of representatives of the labor and liberal forces in Minneapolis, among whom were L. G. Scott, Edward C. Robertson, Mrs. C. E. Hadlund, O. Heille, K. M. Columbus, H. G. Teigen, Louis J. Duncan.

The conference adopted the following resolution:

Resolution Adopted.

"WHEREAS, the national administration of the United States of America, thru executive actions of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg, has flagrantly violated the sovereignty of the Central American state, Nicaragua, by armed invasion and the sending of warships, to support the claim of the usurper. Thus, to the presidency of that republic, against the rights of the duly elected president, Sacasa; and

"WHEREAS, in the neighboring republic of Mexico, where President Calles is endeavoring, by prudent and well established principles and constitutional methods, to uphold a real, stable and enduring democracy adapted to the Mexican people and their needs, it now appears that, instead of the hearty co-operation he naturally expected from the executive officers of his neighbor, the United States of America, President Calles has met with only cold formalities, ill concealed suspicions, misrepresentation, and with thinly veiled opposition carrying the arrogant implication that the land holdings by certain United States citizens in Mexico are sacrosanct, not subject to investigation by Mexican officials, nor to the laws and legal procedures and rules governing land titles and taxation in Mexico, and Attack Commercial Domination.

"WHEREAS, at this very hour, what the military and naval forces of our own nation are being hurled against the Chinese people who seek only to free themselves from the humiliating bondage and exploitation imposed upon them by outside persons including these United States, we recognize with humiliation and shame how far we have strayed from the virile and revolutionary faith of our fathers, and the irrational and anomalous position into which commercial greed and imperial ambitions, have driven us; and

"WHEREAS, in all these instances, we recognize not only an arrogance and discourtesy unbecoming the high officials of this nation, but also a manifestation of a spirit alien to the cause, the aims, the principles of democracy; a cynical disregard of the spirit of brotherhood and helpfulness; a blocking of the highway of mutual agreement and good faith that leads to international amity and enduring peace; a warning to all democratically-minded citizens that a new crisis is coming apace, that the Spirit of Commercial Domination and the Spirit of Political Imperialism stalk arm in arm thru our markets and our commercial and governmental highways unashamed and almost unchallenged, therefore Withdraw From Nicaragua.

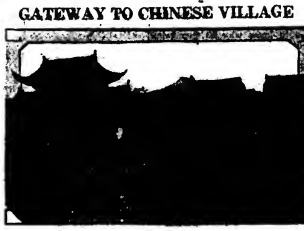
Be it RESOLVED, that we publicly repudiate the idea that these, or similar, instances of official arrogance represent the spirit or the aims of the intelligent commonalty of citizens of the United States of America; and be it further

"RESOLVED, that we heartily commend Senator Shipstead, Senator Wheeler, Senator Borah, Senator Heflin, Representative Huddleston and all others in the U. S. Congress who have exerted themselves to bring about a withdrawal of U. S. military and naval forces from Nicaragua; and that we urge that like efforts be made to prevent interference in the internal affairs of Mexico and China, and be it further

"RESOLVED, that having learned our lesson in a "War to End War" we repudiate warfare as the tactic of imperialists every where, both political and commercial and as a wicked and sinister destroyer of present-day civilization; and we pledge ourselves to support of the principles of Equity and of Reason as the only sane and safe and decent rules for the conduct of human affairs, be they small or great, domestic or foreign, national or international; and be it further

"RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg, to the senators and representatives named above, to all senators and representatives of Minnesota and to the press."

Broadway Bliad-Pigs Raided.



A fresh "wringing" for wet New York, promised by Major Chester Mills, had its opening this afternoon when federal agents swooped down upon Jassen's Hofbrau, arrested four waiters and seized a quantity of supposed liquor.

Afternoon crowds along Broadway were treated to a thrill as the agents took their prisoners and the confiscated liquor to the street.

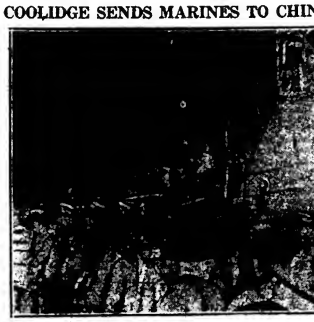


Photo shows Cantonese moving their artillery to the battlefront. Not only have these Chinese Nationalist forces modern equipment, but their training and discipline are said to be of high degree.

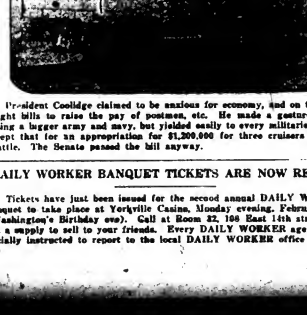
GATEWAY TO CHINESE VILLAGE

Here is a photo of a gateway to a village in the Chinese interior. This photo was snapped from the window of a train on the Shanghai-Nanking railroad. Just the tope of the roofs can be seen above the village wall.

COOLIDGE SENDS MARINES TO CHINA



American marines boarding an army transporte at San Diego, Calif., on the way to "an Asiatic station via Honolulu." Previous reports from Washington state that the American contingent in China is being recruited to full strength. As though sensing the unpopularity of a war against China, the authorities sent this detachment away at midnight.

"CHAUMONT" CARRYING MARINES

Airplane photograph of the U. S. "Chaumont," out at sea, with 1,200 marines aboard, destined to protect imperialism in China against the Nationalists. She also carries ammunition for troops already there. The smaller plane is the Marine Corps Martin bomber.

SORT OF CRUISER THEY WILL BUILD

President Coolidge claimed to be anxious for economy, and on this plea fought bills to raise the pay of postmen, etc. He made a gesture of opposing a bigger army and navy, but yielded easily to every militarist appeal except that for an appropriation for $1,200,000 for three cruisers like the Seattle. The Senate passed the bill anyway.

DAILY WORKER BANQUET TICKETS ARE NOW READY.

Tickets have just been issued for the second annual DAILY WORKER banquet to take place at Yorkville Casino, Monday evening, February 21st (Washington's Birthday eve). Call at Room 32, 108 East 14th street, and get a supply to sell to your friends. Every DAILY WORKER agent is especially instructed to report to the local DAILY WORKER office at once.

FARMERS RAP AT COOLIDGE POLICY AGAINST MEXICO

Wisconsin Organization Condemns Intervention

MADISON, Wis. (FP)—American intervention in the affairs of other countries is roundly condemned in resolutions adopted by the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation. Suspicion that the Coolidge foreign policies are prompted by financial considerations is also voiced. The resolution, which was unanimously adopted at the meeting in Madison, reads:

"Resolved that we oppose war and urge the arbitration of all questions, and we are especially opposed to any kind of intervention on the part of the government that may lead to war, and further, we urge that the U. S. Senate adopt the resolutions pending therein asking for immediate investigation of the financial interests involved in the controversy with Mexico and Nicaragua."

The farmers also expressed their disappointment with Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and demanded a candidate for president "who resides in the agricultural west and whose sympathies are known to be favorable to agriculture." No candidate was named, however.

Aguinaldo Aids Wood; His Veterans' Society Moves to Drop Quezon

MANILA, Feb. 8.—A move to expel Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, has been started by the Filipino Veterans Association, headed by General Emilio Aguinaldo, former rebel leader, it is now completely with the American administration.

The Veterans association is holding its convention here today, and has demanded the expulsion of all "undesirable members" including Manuel Quezon, and all those affiliated with the League of Veterans', an opposition organization.

Though expelling the liberal leader of the Independence movement, the convention passed a resolution demanding independence.

As a justification for their action, the Aguinaldo group state that they are working toward the same end as the Quezon faction, but believe that the freeing of the Philippines can also be accomplished by "gradualism" and "co-operation with the United States government".

The convention received a letter from the dictator-general, Wood, in which the latter praises the "intelligent" manner, in which the association is trying to realise its aims, and it specifically praises Aguinaldo.

Plan to Make Wood Czar of Philippines Defeated in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The administration was forced to abandon its plan to make Governor-General Leonard Wood virtuelly independent of the Philippine legislature in the face of stiff opposition in the House Insular Affairs Committee today.

The committee voted to take no final action on the Kiess bill, which would place $500,000 of customs receipts in the hands of General Wood and make possible the abolition of the "Cavalry Cabinet."

The measure also provided for strengthening of American authority thru increased powers for the Philippine auditor.

Governor General's Men Kill Eight Moro Women in Philippines

MANILA, P. I. — Eight Moro women were shot down by the Philippine constabulary, which is officered by Americans and controlled by Governor-General Wood, in a successful and ruthless attempt to suppress a rebellion in Zamboanga.

Following the collapse of her husband's rebellion, Tarhata Kiram, Moro princess and former University of Illinois co-ed, was captured. Her husband is being sought by the constabulary. She told of the killing of the women.

FEDERATION FIGHTS FOR FREEDOM FROM MORE FEDERAL TIES ON WORKERS

But Big Union Chiefs Remain With It

By ROBERT W. DUNN,
(Federated Press)

Although conventions of the American Federation of Labor have repeatedly gone on record in favor of old age pension legislation, important officials of the Federation and leaders of its international unions continue to hold places on the executive committee of the National Civic Federation, a militant opponent of state pensions.

This fact is again brought to the attention of the American working class through the press service of the Civic Federation, which releases a story on "Recommendations to Industrial Establishments for the Study and Formulation of Funded Pension Plans." The Civic Federation has always fought pension legislation and boosted industrial pensions used by corporations to tie workers to the plant, promote "loyalty" and break strikes.

Feudal Lies.

This latest pension study of the Civic Federation is a further endorsement of what Abraham Epstein, research director of the Old Age Pension Commission of Pennsylvania, calls one of the leading items of the "benevolent feudalism of management." In his recent report on the "Problem of Old Age Pensions in Industry" Epstein concludes that not through employers' paternalism but "through legislation alone, can the needs of all the indigent aged be met adequately.

What Sullivan?

In spite of these conclusions and the exclusively anti-labor character of annuity experts, the National Civic Federation continues to attack all pension legislation. Its latest report is signed by P. Tecumseh Sherman, attorney; James E. Kavanagh, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; Arthur Williams of the New York Edison Co. —notorious open shop firm—William J. Graham, Equitable Life Assurance Society, and Frank V. Whiting of the New York Central Lines. With these goes the signature of "James W. Sullivan (Labor)". There are lots of Sullivans in the American Labor Who's Who. But James is not one of them.

Labor Members!

On the letter heading used by Ralph Easley, executive secretary of the Civic Federation, we find some new names under that section on the Executive Committee, labelled "On the Part of the Wage Earners". The recent appointees to take the places of resigned or deceased labor members are Thomas F. McMahon, president, the United Textile Workers of America; Frank Feeney, president, the Elevator Constructors International, and Anthony J. Chlopek, president, the International Longshoremen's Association. Chlopek succeeds T. V. O'Connor, still "Honorary President, International Longshoremen's Association", while McMahon takes the place of Timothy Healey who resigned in protest against Easley's attack on pension legislation and the British Labor Party.

Daniel Tobin, president of the teamsters' international, is another labor leader, whose name is off the executive list. He is succeeded by Frank Feeney, prominent republican spoilsman of Philadelphia and editor of the Philadelphia Labor World, a fake sheet which Philadelphia labor refuses to endorse. Feeney was named several years ago in the Martin Mulhall expose as taking money from the National Assn. of Manufacturers for services in New Jersey.

In Bad Company.

Others on Easley's committee are James Duncan, vice president, A. F. of L.; M. J. Keough, head, the International Molders Union; W. S. Lee, president, the R. R. trainmen; Wm. D. Mahon, of the street railway employes; James Maloney, Glass Bottle Blowers; D. B. Robertson, firemen and enginemen; L. E. Shephard, of the Conductors; and Matthew Woll, now acting president of the Civic Federation, who signs Easley's broadsides against Senator Borah and other senators favoring recognition of the Soviet Union.

Outstanding open shoppers on the executive committee, representing employers—are Nicholas F. Brady, of New York Edison; George B. Cortelyou, of Consolidated Gas; Marshall Field, the banker; E. K. Hall, of American Telephone and Telegraph, a firm that broke an A. F. of L. telephone girls' strike and uses nonunion electricians only; Elon H. Hooker, of Hooker Electro-Chemical Co., also head of American Defense Society; Odgen L. Mills, of International Paper Co., which broke the Paper, Pulp & Sulphite workers' (A. F. of L.) strike in 1921. Representing the "public are such capitalist figures as T. Coleman duPont, open shopper, and John Hays Hammond, foe of the United Mine Workers and other unions.

Deadly Policy.

Archibald Stevenson, notorious Lusk Law red-baiter is still active with the Federation and Peter J. Brady, labor banker, is secretary of the "Department of Political Education."

The United Mine Workers, Ladies Garment Workers, and other leading unions, bar membership in the Civic Federation. Timothy Healey, resigning said "Judge Gary is one of Easley's financial angels." Frank F. Walsh called it "anti-social and boneful." Morris Hillquit said "To the organized labor movement the policy of the Civic Federation is the most subtle and insidious poison."

Minneapolis Capmakers In Struggle to Prevent Permanent Injunction

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 8.—Judge Norby is expected to decide within a few days whether the temporary injunction issued to the McKibben and Stevenson concerns against the Cloth Hat and Cap Makers union, should be made permanent.

Thomas Latimer is attorney for the union and Chase and Levy represented the bosses.

The temporary injunction issued some time ago extends to the members of the union and the officers of the Minneapolis central labor body and several individuals.

Bus Lines Seek Franchises.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 8.—Applications for bus line franchises were made by two companies today to the Jersey City Commission, it was announced. The Nevin Bus Line Corporation filed an application for a line to include three routes in Jersey City and a route thru the New Holland vehicular tunnel to Manhattan. The other application was filed by the Consolidated Bus Owners of Hudson County, a combination of 150 jitneys, owners of buses now in operation in Jersey City.

The Worker's Corner

TOBACCO SMOKE, ELEVATORS AND TYPEWRITERS.

Some days ago a group of modern bourgeois poets assembled at Vassar College on the Hudson. Some deplored the fact that the chief literary work of the day is written in "an atmosphere of tobacco smoke, elevators and typewriters." It was felt that under such conditions, true criticism and great literature were difficult. Harping on the same melancholy key, Du Bose Hayward declared, "The stupendous development of the modern city has done something terrible to people trying to be artists. The individual resents the control of the crowd."

We have here bourgeois intellectual pessimism at its worst, intellectualism which instinctively shuns the main stream of mass activity and seeks to isolate itself in a noble seclusion which will allow ample room for the aerial flight of its gifted soul. It is the type of intellectualism which is characteristic of capitalist literature in general and of the capitalist press in particular. It is this quality of isolation and aloofness from the masses, on the part of those who make the capitalist press, which makes these sheets mere news carriers rather than expressions of the workers.

"There are no poets contemporary with the age," declares Padraic Colum. But there is a newspaper which is. The DAILY WORKER is produced in the heart of a great city, with all its "tobacco smoke, elevators and typewriters," with its throbbing machinery and its toiling millions. The DAILY WORKER draws its inspiration from the industrial life and struggle of this great city. The DAILY WORKER is an integral part of that struggle. It is for this reason that The DAILY WORKER has won for itself the devotion and loyalty of masses of workers, a loyalty and devotion which the capitalist press can never hope to equal or challenge.

—BERT MILLER.

HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND FEWER JOBS IN FACTORIES LAST YEAR THAN IN YEAR BEFORE; LABOR DEPARTMENT TRIES TO HIDE STATISTICS

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press).

The labor year 1926 ended with 150,000 fewer workers on factory payrolls than were employed at the end of 1925 and about 250,000 fewer than in March, 1926, according to the December employment report of the U. S. department of labor. The December drop of .5% following a decline of 1.2% in November brought factory employment 2.6% below December, 1925. The total amount paid by the factories in wages was also 1.7% below a year ago.

The average number of workers employed by American factories throughout the year, computed from these government figures, was 8,050,000. The peak of employment for the year was reached in March when 8,210,000 were on the payrolls. The lowest point was July with 7,870,000. In 1925 the average number of factory workers was 7,990,000 with the peak in December when 8,110,000 were employed.

Jobs Decreasing.

These figures show the effect of the efficiency drives which are stead-

Factory labor's annual report for 1926 showing from month to month the fluctuations in employment and wages would be somewhat as follows:

Labor Year 1926	No. employed	Payroll	Av. Wage
January	8,080,000	$856,000,000	$107
February	8,175,000	842,000,000	103
March	8,210,000	905,000,000	110
April	8,130,000	930,000,000	114
May	8,030,000	882,000,000	110
June	8,000,000	913,000,000	114
July	7,870,000	876,000,000	111
August	7,940,000	907,000,000	114
September	8,080,000	870,000,000	108
October	8,100,000	943,000,000	116
November	8,000,000	880,000,000	110
December	7,960,000	916,000,000	115
Average	8,050,000
Total		$10,812,000,000	$1,343

The fluctuation in wages from month to month is due in part to the variation in the number of working days.

Big Falling Off.

Significant decreases in employment compared with December, 1925, include automobiles, 19.8%; agricultural implements, 8.3%; brick, 4.1%; cigars and cigarets, 10.6%; iron and steel, 3.5%; hardware, 9.9%; lumber, millwork, 10.6%; millinery and lace goods, 11.2%; silk, 7.6%, and men's furnishings, 9.5%.

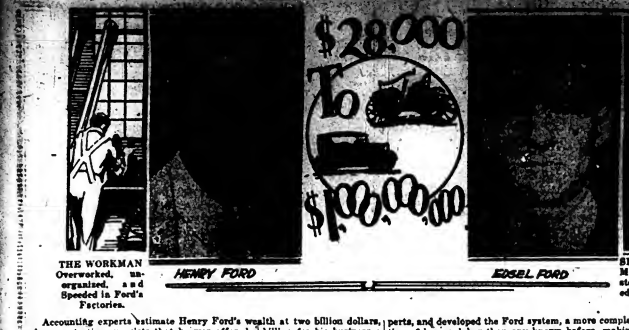
The labor department is quite obviously attempting to play down the slump in industrial activity. Comparing December with November it stresses the fact that 14 of the 54 industries show an improvement in employment when the important fact is that 40 of the 54 industries lost ground. Similarly in making comparison with December, 1925, the report stresses gains in 16 industries when the really serious feature of the situation is the fact that 38 industries show fewer employes than a year ago.

Reuterdahl to Defend God in Public Debate Against Chief Atheist

ST. PAUL, Feb. 8.—A real lively printed word debate is scheduled between Dr. Arvid Reuterdahl director general of the International Theistic Society, St. Paul and Freemon Hopwood, general secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism on the subject, "Is Theism Unreasonable?" The debate will be published in the Theistic monthly.

Mr. Hopwood will take the position that every form of belief in deity is a folliey. He will present the scientific point of view that a belief in god is a superstitious relic from the early days of mankind. Dr. Reuterdahl is a renegade agnostic who will uphold the point of view in the debate that "There is a God".

Chaliapin Performance Cancelled.



LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8.—Police here today were asked to search for C. G. Fritzker, Cleveland, O., promoter, whose "unexplained disappearance" last night caused cancellation of the Chaliapin Opera Company's scheduled performance.

The opera company, here from New York, was under contract to receive $8,500 for a showing of the "Barber of Seville."

Detectives declared today that Fritzker had sold more than $5,000 worth of tickets to the affair.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

FORD'S GOLDEN FLOOD BEGINS TO EBB AS HE FACES ON

THE WORKMAN Overworked, unorganized, and Speeded in Ford's Factories.

HENRY FORD

EDSEL FORD

SEN. J. COUZENS Minority Ford stockholder, charged with cheating government.

Accounting experts estimate Henry Ford's wealth at two billion dollars, and sworn testimony exists that he was offered a billion for his business a month ago, and refused the offer.

A little over twenty years ago, Ford's automobile company was organized with a capital of about $28,000. By 1916, New York bankers were trying to buy it for half a billion. By 1925 they had doubled their offer. At present the elder Ford alone has a checking account of $300,000,000; and his son, Edsel, has as much. It is estimated that Edsel's income is $190.25 a minute or $273,974 a day.

The Ford fortune is the bolding of a squatter, a man who found one corner of the industrial system not already occupied by some one of the great trusts organized last century. Ford developed a new thing, the low priced automobile. He hired the best and most unscrupulous efficiency experts, and developed the Ford system, a more complete and scientific exploitation of human labor than any known before, making the worker more of an automaton, working at a higher rate of speed, and wearing out faster.

Other employers now know the Ford system; there is room for no more manufacturers of cheap cars—and therefore for no more Fords, except perhaps, in a few still undiscovered and minor fields of industry.

In 1919 Ford bought out minority stockholders in his company, among them principally Senator James Couzens. The price paid for the shares was $12,500. Cousens paid profit taxes on the difference between that and $9,500 a share, his figure of the value of the stock in 1913. The government claims the stock was worth only $3,500 in 1913, and $30,821,000 more taxes should be paid.

COMPENSATION ACT WAS FROST TO FRANK HILL

Decisions as Capricious As Artist's Mood

(This is the 5th article on workman compensation written for The Federated Press and The DAILY WORKER by Attorney Wm. H. Seed. Seed has handled the compensation work of two of the largest insurance companies for a number of years. The previous articles will be sent free on request.)

By WILLIAM H. SEED.
(Federated Press)

Injuries due to the weather give rise to many compensation disputes between employers and employes. The records contain sunstroke and heat prostration cases, and at this time of the year frostbite injuries demand settlement.

The law on this subject has not varied, though the practice has varied considerably. The rule is stated again in a case just reported in Illinois. Frank Hill had his hands frozen while shoveling coal for the Consumers Co. at Evanston, Ill. The rule is that if the workman is exposed to greater risk of injury because of his employment, he is entitled to compensation. But if he is only exposed to the same danger as anybody else in that particular climate he is not entitled to it.

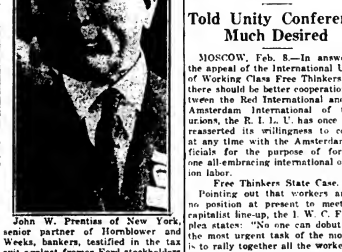
In the earlier years of the compensation acts such cases were usually decided against the worker. More recently the decisions have mostly been in his favor, but the Illinois supreme court by a divided vote, refused compensation to Frank Hill, although the industrial commission and its arbitrator had awarded compensation, and the circuit court had affirmed the award.

The situation is not peculiar to any one state. A Massachusetts case, one of those which started the current of decisions in favor of the employes, awarded compensation to a longshoreman engaged in unloading a steamer on a cold day, because the cold on the pier where he worked was greater than in any place he would have been likely to be otherwise. Many cases of lumberjacks and other outdoor workers seem to turn on whether the man was at liberty to stop work and take shelter. There was an element of this kind in the Hill case, because there was a shanty available for warming up again.

There are other cases of chauffeurs and drivers where the issue depended on whether they were compelled to be out at the particular time or could have postponed their run until after the cold spell.

Tendency Is Toward Compensation

Many of these decisions are based upon very fine distinctions. The result will probably be that all such cases will have to be decided liberally in favor of the employe, because there is no other way of arriving at consistency. If a workman is frostbitten while at work it is reasonable to assume that the injury arises out of his employment. It is true that a person might perhaps just as easily be frostbitten in cold weather if not at work, provided he exposed himself. But if a man is killed or injured in a street accident while on his employer's business nobody disputes the compensation, although he might just as easily have been in such an accident when not at work.



In short, the decisions are uncertain. If you get frostbitten apply for compensation. The more cases are won for frostbitten workers the sooner the compensation law will be finally settled in favor of this class of injured.

WHY DID COUZENS AND FORD PART?

They say that Senator James Couzens is the financial shark who made the Ford Motor Company the money grabbing concern it is. He helped Henry organize the first company, did all the financial deals, and finally parted company in 1919. The present trial may show why. Cousens is a "big business man" with a self assured way. Since he sold his stock back to Ford, he has been ceaselessly campaigning for lower income taxes.

Offered a Billion

John W. Prentiss of New York, senior partner of Hornblower and Weeks, bankers, testified in the tax suit against former Ford stockholders that he offered Henry Ford a billion dollars three times for his company, but Ford refused to sell.

Hungarian Needle Club Invites Public to Hear Gold Speak, Thursday

The Hungarian Needle Trades Workers' Club will have a meeting, its second since organization, at the Hungarian Labor Temple, 350 East 81st Street, New York City, Thursday night at 8 P. M.

The principal speakers will be Ben Gold and Mrs. Warshafsky. There will be special delegations there from the Joint Board of the Fur Workers, and from the International Ladies Garment Workers, also from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. In addition to speeches, explaining the purpose of the unions in organizing workers, and the fight which the rank and file of the needle trades unions find themselves engaged in at present, there will be an excellent concert.

The Hungarian Needle Trades Club is not limited to union members. Its purpose is to bring together for social and educational purposes all workers in the industry. The initiation into the club is ten cents, and the dues are ten cents a month.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

FREE THINKERS ASK R. I. L. U. TO HELP AMSTERDAM

Told Unity Conference Much Desired

MOSCOW, Feb. 8.—In answer to the appeal of the International Union of Working Class Free Thinkers that there should be better cooperation between the Red International and the Amsterdam International of trade unions, the R. I. L. U. has once more reasserted its willingness to confer at any time with the Amsterdam officials for the purpose of forming one all-embracing international of union labor.

Free Thinkers State Case.

Pointing out that workers are in no position at present to meet the capitalist line-up, the I. W. C. F. T.'s plea states: "No one can doubt that the most urgent task of the moment is to rally together all the workers in the trade union struggle or at least to secure the better cooperation between the two trade union Internationals."

The answer of the Red International to the invitation is a decisive affirmative.

Welcome Initiative.

"The executive bureau of the R. I. L. U. welcomes the initiative shown by your International," the response says, "and is ready to come to your assistance in this matter in every possible way. We stand for the point of view that the unity of the trade union movement is not only necessary but possible of achievement, the trade union, by its very nature being an organization embracing workers of various political tendencies. The unity of the trade union movement on a national and international scale is more than ever essential now when direct and indirect attack of capital is on the increase, when unemployment is growing."

Child Slayer Goes to Trial.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Selection of a jury to try Harold Joseph Croarkin for the brutal slaying of little Walter Schmidth was begun before Chief Justice William J. Lindsay in criminal court here today. Attorneys for the defense and the state expect that the jury will not be completed for at least a week.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

ROCKEFELLER'S ITCHING PALM STRANGLES ROAD

Second Richest Man in U. S. Is Greedy Miser

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press).

How private ownership of the railroads permits a single profiteer to block more efficient transportation until his exorbitant demands are met, is illustrated in Wheeling & Lake Erie hubbub. In this instance the greedy multimillionaire is the elder Rockefeller.

The country's interest requires that small railroads like the Wheeling & Lake Erie be merged into larger systems. The transportation act, which ended government control provided for consolidation under supervision of the interstate commerce commission as a substitute for government ownership. Following out this provision two workable plans have been devised for the Wheeling & Lake Erie.

In Complete Control.

Can this road be brought into line at a fair valuation? It cannot. For Rockefeller, although owning less than 10 per cent of the road's outstanding securities, is in complete control.

Rockefeller's control results from his ownership of $11,906,100 of the $11,882,000 of prior lien stock. According to the stipulations covering the issue of this stock, the right to elect a majority of the directors lies with the prior lien stockholders as long as their dividends remain unpaid for 5 consecutive years. Dividends on this stock have piled up but remain unpaid since Nov. 1, 1916 and now amount to 71 per cent. Consequently, Rockefeller elects a majority of the road's directors.

Made Large Profit.

In 1926 Wheeling & Lake Erie made a profit of $3,300,000 after all charges, equivalent to $29.51 a share on the Rockefeller stock, while in 1925 the profit was $3,286,279 or $27.65 a share. Altogether in the last 4 years the profits total more than $75 a share, but no dividends have been authorized so the control has remained with Rockefeller.

Larger railroads are now attempting to obtain the Wheeling & Lake Erie for the consolidations as provided by congress. It is rumored that Rockefeller has been offered the par value of his stock plus the 71 per cent accumulated dividends plus interest on these unpaid dividends and he has refused the offer. Aside from getting an even better price another reason for his refusal is suggested. The Wall Street Journal says:

The Money Sharks.

"Within the last year it is understood negotiations were resumed but the Rockefeller interests turned down an offer of par plus accumulated dividends and interest. It is quite possible that the Rockefeller interests take the position that a further decrease in income taxes is probable in the next four or five years and that such a development may considerably reduce their income taxes on the accumulated dividends and interest on the dividends."

The road's capital issues total $89,928,300, or $187,200 per mile. Adding the 71 per cent due on Rockefeller's prior lien stock would bring the capitalization to more than $98,000,000 or $204,000 a mile. But the interstate commerce commission's valuation of the road, even if we add all subsequent investments, is only $56,536,400 or $117,700 a mile.

The Federated Press, 154 Washington St., Chicago will be glad to hear from readers who desire information on particular points.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

GARY PREPARES TO FORCE TOILER OVER TO Y. M. C. A.

Discharge Men for Work Against Imperialism

GARY, Ind., Feb. 8.—Albert Sajario distributed leaflets put out by the Workers Party in this city, calling a mass meeting against imperialism. Salario worked for the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co., and rather expected to continue doing so, as he had heard no complaints about his work, and had not broken any of the company rules.

The next night he was sick and could not go to the mill; the night following he appeared, and was surrounded by a crowd of workers who wanted to know why he was being hunted by the company police.

On the Carpet.

Two nights later a company spy led a policeman to him, who took his number and told him to see the superintendent, Mr. Graff.

Graff agreed with him against the leaflet, tole him that there were ways of getting rid of him, that the Communist party was made up of Mexicans and foreigners, and he would lose his citizenship papers.

"Why Don't You . . . "

Salario defended his principles, and it ended with the super having him come back again and saying: "I am firing you, though I do not want to. Some Americans may throw you in the lake. Why don't you join the Y. M. C. A., and try to be a good American citizen, and go to the library and read books. If you do that, you can come back and get your job. As it is, come tomorrow at three o'clock and get your check."

It was soon discovered that other workers were having the same experience.

• • •

Judge Gary admitted using spies in the plants of the U. S. Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries.

Workers are fired from their jobs upon the reports of these spies.

No worker will hold his job if he is in favor of a union of the workers in the mills and talks about it in the plant. No worker will hold his job if he is opposed to the one man rule in the city of Gary, through the political machine of the Steel Trust. No worker will hold his job if he is in favor of higher wages and better working conditions.

Milan Jelesevice, Jim Roleda and Albert Salario were fired from their jobs because they distributed circulars announcing meetings not to the liking of the Steel Trust.

They were distributing these circulars in the mills. They did not violate any of the rules of the plant. Their work was satisfactory. They were fired because they exercised their constitutional right of freedom of opinion. They were fired because company spies reported them to the company.

Asks Catalina Channel Race.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, Long Beach, Cal., and Maitoon, Ills., first women to conquer Catalina channel, has not had enough swimming. She wants some more, and she wants to race somebody, preferably a man.

This man, she said today, might be Henry F. Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., the second male swimmer to cross Catalina channel. Mrs. Huddleston's time was three hours better than Sullivan's mark.

Almees' Radioist Again In Trouble.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—The mysterious "Miss X" of the Almee Semple McPherson case will probably be named co-respondent by Mrs. Ruth Peters Ormiston in her suit for divorce against Kenneth Ormiston, "phantom radioist," formerly of Mrs. McPherson's Angelus Temple, it was learned here today.

A Book for the Irish Worker

"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916"

Introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty.

By G. Schuller.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

Jim Connolly was the military leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing thru one of the most serious crises that faced it during the world war. Secretly, the international Marxist, James Connolly, had built an army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the international socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist struggle in the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Socialist in the full sense of the term. This little pamphlet by G. Schuler is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this period. It was first published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be distributed in large quantities among the Irish workers in the United States. Secretly is a magic name with every Irish Worker who has a spark of the divine fire of revolt in his system. It is to the Irish Worker interest by every radical worker who wants to soak up the strategy and tactics of revolution. Schuler declares that Connolly was a Leninist. He was. His fall before the British guns in 1916, one year before the Russian workers and peasants buried the Czar and Czardom and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

DRAMA

New Drama Group Takes Over Stuyvesant Theatre.

A new [illegible] has been formed [illegible] Edward Goodman, Edward Edwards Perkins, Frederick and John Dos Passos, it will be known as the "New Playwrights' Theatre." The organization has taken over the Fifty-second Street Theatre. "Lord Spoker," by John Howard Lawson, (author of Roger Bloomer, "Processional" and "Nirvana" will be the first presentation and it is new in rehearsal.

Their second production, "Earth," by Em Jo Basshe, (author of "Adam Solitaire") will open the following week and will alternate thereafter with "Lord Spoker." The organizers are all playwrights recognized as advocates of the so-called expressionistic drama.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

The premier of "Inheritors," by Susan Glaspell, which will be the eighth production by the Civic Repertory Theatre, has been postponed from Feb. 21 to March 7. There will be a special matinee performance of "Cradle Song" this Thursday afternoon. Sierra's comedy has "taken on" big at the 14th Street Theatre.

The Theatre Guild's special matinee production of Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are," now in rehearsal, will open Wednesday afternoon, February 23.

The cast consists of Laura Hope Crews, Elisabeth Risdon, Reginald Mason, Beryl Mercer, Edward G. Robinson, Helen Westley, Henry Travers, J. W. Austin, Phyllis Connard, Arsina Marshall, Dorothy Fletcher, Philip Loeb, Philip Leigh and Maurice McRae.

Edwin Redding, who plays the role of Earl Watkins in "The Scarlet Lily" at the Comedy, will be co-producer with Jack Conway of "The Pushover," which will be presented soon under its original title of "Plastic Perjury."

Dorothy Overand has succeeded

AMUSEMENTS

Neighborhood Playhouse
466 Grand St. Drydock 7866
Every Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
By Francis Edwards Faragoh
"THE DYBBUK"—Feb. 17

KLAW THEA., W. 45th St. Eves. 8:30
MATINEES THURS. & SAT.
"SINNER"
With Allan Dinehart & Claiborne Foster

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St.
Mats. Thurs. Wed.-Fri.
Sat. Evenings and Sun. and Sat. Mats.
WINTHROP AMES'
Gilbert & Sullivan Operas
THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE
Thursday Evenings Only, "Iolanthe"

Theatre Guild Acting Company in
PYGMALION
A Week Feb. 14—ROMANOFF AND GUILD Thea., W. 52d St. Eves. 8:30
Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:30

Ned McCobb's Daughter
Week Feb. 14—SILVER CORD
John Golden Thea., 58 E. of B'way. Circle
Mts. Thurs. & Sat. | 3678 | Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2

Civic Repertory Cor. 6 Av. & 14 St.
Tel. Watkins 7-8780
EVA LE GALLIENNE
This Afternoon, TWELFTH NIGHT
Tonight MASTER BUILDER
Tomorrow Afternoon, "CRADLE SONG"

An AMERICAN TRAGEDY 5TH MONTH
Longacre West 48 St. Mts. West and Sat.

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF, 50th St. W. of B'way. Eves. 8:40
Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:40.

RITZ Thea., 48th St. W. of B'way. Eves. 8:30 Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30.
Bye Bye Bonnie
Musical Rag Bun with Dorothy Burgess, Hadda Brooks, Jesse Simon, William Frawley.

Sam H. HARRIS THEA., West 42nd St. Evs. 8:30 Twice Daily 2:30 & 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2

MARY SPOOR

In "No, No, Nanette," the Mandel-Harbeck musical comedy playing at the Bronx Opera House this week. Aurfel Lee in "Lady Alone," the Alice Brady play at the Forrest Theatre.

"Pinwheel," at the Neighborhood Playhouse, occupies the entire stage. The children's performance of Debussy's "Le Boite a Joujoux" (The Toy Box) will not be given February 13, but on Sunday afternoon, February 20, and Tuesday afternoon, February 22, when "The Dybbuk" will be the evening bill.

A new group, calling themselves the "Theatre Lovers' Society," have organized under the directorship of John Piccori, 32 Barrow street, in the Village. They announce a desire for original play manuscripts and new members.

The Theatre Guild's production of Pirandello's "Right You Are If You Think You Are," which will be presented at matinees only, will open at the Guild Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 23. The cast will include Laura Hope Crews, Elizabeth Risdon, Reginald Mason, Beryl Mercer, Edward G. Robinson, Helen Westley and Henry Travers.

PHILLIPS RANDOLPH IN SLANDEROUS ARTICLE TO REACTIONARY PAPER DISPLAYS BAD MOTIVE

By H. V. PHILLIPS.

In his slanderous letter to Abraham I. Shiplacoff, chairman of the Committee for the Preservation of the Trade Unions (reactionary officialdom) as published in the organ of the socialist party. The new leader, A. Philip Randolph, erstwhile socialist, writes: "Permit me to congratulate you upon the valuable, necessary and effective fight you and Brothers Sigman and Beckerman of the International Ladies' Garment Workers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers respectively, are making to preserve the trade union movement of America against the disruptive tactics of the Communists."

Communists Save Unions.

The Communists, of whom Mr. Randolph writes, are the center of the left wing in the trade union movement and are class conscious workers who have joined the party of class conscious workers, the Workers (Communist) Party. They have the interest of the working class in general at heart. In the interest of the workers they fight the capitalists and their lackies.

Were it not for the Communists, sympathisers and class-conscious workers in the trade unions, the unions would become merely employment agencies run by the reactionary officials of unions IN the interest of the capitalists. The workers, themselves, would have little or nothing to say as to working agreements, pay, hours, etc. This would all be arranged between the bosses and the officialdom of the trade unions. A worker would have to take what was offered him and say nothing.

Good Fer Fakers.

Mr. Randolph is head of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and I agree with him that this would indeed be an ideal situation for the reactionary officials of the trade unions, but how about the millions of workers? Have they no rights? Must they all be republicans, democrats or socialists?

Mr. Randolph has proven by his letter that he is just trying to feather his own nest like the rest of the reactionary officials, he is afraid there might be some Negro Communist in his union who will demand that it be run in the interest of the sleeping car porters. If not, why does he dislike Communists so much? Do Communists keep Negroes out of the trade unions? Are not Communists the hardest fighters for the admittance of Negroes in the unions on an equal basis? Is it not the Communist Party that fights for Negro workers the same as for all other workers, making no distinction whatever?

Support Communists.

No, Mr. Randolph, you won't get all of the Communists out of the unions, but the expulsion tactics of this union-wrecking committee of which Mr. Shiplacoff is head, will only make members for the Communist Party. The workers need to be easily fooled. They know who fights in the interest of the workers against the capitalists and their hirelings and regardless to what political party these workers belong, the intelligent workers will follow the leadership of those who fight for the interest of the working class—Mr. Randolph to the contrary notwithstanding.

Housewives Meet Today.

The central committee of the United Council Working Class Housewives will meet on today at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 E. 4th., near 2nd Ave. All delegates must be present.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

OLD AND YOUNG ON PICKET LINE FOR CAPMAKERS

Bosses Make Overtures In Boston Strike

(By Worker Correspondent.)

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—The second week of strike finds the Boston capmakers very cheerful. A strike psychology has been developed among the people and the strike machinery is running smoothly. Cap shops are being watched every minute of the day by men and women. Women of 80 as well as girls of 18 can be found on the picket line each day. Night picketing is also being done. Scab bosses discovered trying to get out their own work, have been stopped by the organization committee.

Help Comes.

After a picket demonstration yesterday a mass meeting was held and addressed by Sam Forman of the Raincoat Makers' Union Local 24, Morris Shapiro of the Joint Board Cloak and Dressmakers' Union, and Mrs. Mary G. Thompson of the Women's Trade Union League. A contribution of girls from the Lowell Union, Local 25, appeared before the strikers this morning, expressing their appreciation for the help given them by Local 7 when they were organizing, and offering their assistance wherever needed.

And They Eat.

Refreshments were served after the mass meeting. A concert was announced for tomorrow at 1:00 o'clock. John Van Yaerenwyck, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, will address the workers after the concert.

The bosses, while making overtures for settlement, are trying to create confusion by circulating false statements in the capitalist papers about outrageous demands made by the capmakers. They have twisted figures around to make it appear that the capmakers are asking a $7 wage increase, when the strikers are only asking a $3 increase.

Jennings Speaks.

At Friday's roll call meeting, Secretary Jennings of the Boston Central Labor Union asked for the floor, and, praising the capmakers for their faithful cooperation in every emergency of labor, promised in his turn full cooperation of the Boston labor movement.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

GOOD SHOP PAPERS IN DETROIT CAUSE BOSSES TO HIRE DICKS; ONE SPY SHOWS UP ANOTHER

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

DETROIT, Mich.—Today the Detroit Branch of the Workers Party has secured another victory by exposing two steel-pigeons employed by the industrial barons of Detroit to spy on the labor movement.

Lewis Arnold, employed by the notorious Sponansky, and Lawrence Stephens, employed by the General Production Companies, were among the applicants for membership examined by the investigating committee here.

About a dozen applicants had been examined and passed when Stephens, who, with Arnold, had purposely been left until the last, was called in. When Stephens had entered the office, Arnold called one of the committee aside and told him that Stephens was a spy as he had been taking notes and acting queer.

Stephens Known.

The district committee had already ascertained positively that Stephens was a spy in the employ of the General Production Companies; so after a few formal questions, he was asked when he entered the employ of the company.

His reaction was to flush a deep crimson and confusedly deny ever having heard of such a company. Asked about notes, he offered to show all papers but changed his mind when it came to a certain notebook. As the committee already had certain knowledge of his connections and purposes, he was turned out with an admonition to advise his company to engage more intelligent rats in the future.

Non-Existent Web Local.

Arnold, thinking that he had ingratiated himself with the committee by exposing a "dick," was all assurance and proceeded to display an Illinois Miner's certificate for 1917 and to inform the committee that he had been a member of "Apprentice Machinists Local 254 of the I. W. W." Also that he had aided many "Reds" to secure employment in Swift & Co., Chicago, while acting as a clerk in their employment department. He complained bitterly about living on $4 a per day and of the way the company robbed him on weight while a miner. He declared that he wouldn't defend the country even if attacked by Japan as he "got enough in the last war." During his previous trips to the office he had bought about $10 worth of literature, including the "Decline of Capitalism" and "The Fourth Convention of the Workers Party."

Caught Unawares.

Evidently Arnold was sure now that the committee was convinced of his good Communist integrity, but he was rudely awakened by a direct accusation of being a spy. He had offered to show his papers and while he twirled the pages of a note-book one of the members noticed a list of names. The note book was taken over by the committee.

The names proved to be a list of active members of the movement, including four of the Reynolds family and Johnny Williamson.

Find "Swindle Sheet."

Further investigation revealed a "swindle sheet" (expense account), starting with fare from Chicago, and including such items as drinks and literature. The account started with January and indicated that flinks come high and live well.

After this exposure, Arnold said, "Well, you've got the dope, now what do you want." Some strong expressions of proletarian contempt were worrying him and he became more anxious to "Desert the party."

Must Have Expenses.

He was then confronted with the committee's knowledge that he was in the employ of Sponansky. He denied it at first but later under a grill of questioning admitted that Sponansky had hired him to come here from Chicago. When told to go, Arnold begged the committee to return the swindle sheet so he could collect his expenses; so the note-book was returned minus the list of names.

The attention of these sewer rats headed by Sponansky and inspired by the war department of Wall Street's Coolidge is the result of the fears inspired by our successful shop papers in Detroit. The abrupt cancellation of the lease on the armory with the transparent "reasons" shamefacedly advanced by the local petty officers was the first of a series of open and covert attempts to hamper and injure the movement.

WORKERS PARTY PUTTING MEN ON CHICAGO BALLOT

Mobilizing All Members To Circulate Petitions

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—While the capitalist candidates for mayor of Chicago go through the usual campaign of boasting over their own splendid records and slandering their opponents, the Workers Party is proceeding with the work of getting its mayoralty candidate on the ballot. The republican and democratic candidates are holding meetings of their ward heelers, in preparation for the primaries of Feb. 22nd.

Party Being Mobilized.

Every party member is being mobilized for the campaign in support of C. E. Ruthenberg for mayor. The signature petitions are already out, with a quota of 50 signatures per member. Each nucleus works through its election committee, with a nucleus election director in charge.

Most of the nuclei will be covered with an elementary education course consisting of three lessons on the following subjects: 1—Why Participate in Parliamentary Elections? 2—The Issues in the Mayoralty Election, and 3—Why Party Members Should Become Citizens. The instructors for these have already given in the nuclei classes in Elements of Communism, which have been warmly received by the membership.

Leaflet Soon.

The first leaflet on the elections will be off the press in a few days, pointing out the need for a United Labor Ticket.

CHICAGO LABOR BOTES

By CARL HACKER.

(Federated Press.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Installment work and a year's vacation are features of a contract signed by the Chicago daily labor journalists' union, Typographical Union No. 16, and the publishers of the organization, which comes in 1928, is to mark the culmen of a campaign for the Fourth Anniversary Guarantee Fund, according to the plans presented. Outright donations, underwent gifts of which only the income is to be used, pledges for specific things, and "conditioned on" obtaining similar pledges from others will be sought.

The management reported 64 papers taking Federated Press service, a net loss of 4 since the previous annual meeting, but a gain of 3 dailies, which now number 15. New memberships will be sought not only among American labor papers but in Latin-America and other countries as well. The 1927 budget calling for expenditure of about $35,000 was authorized.

Only Labor Broadcaster.

Chicago labor is still waiting to hear the result of the deliberations on labor radio held by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in Florida last month. The Chicago Federation of Labor's station WCFL is the only labor broadcaster in the country. Its right to the air will come before the federal radio commission when the process of weeding out superfluous stations commences.

Some of its backers believe its chance of surviving the commission's attentions would be improved if the station passed under A. F. of L. control. The transfer of title to the national federation could be accomplished without difficult or expense, Secretary Ed Nockels of the Chicago Federation, who is the principal promoter of the enterprise, asserts.

Massing Fight.

Massing of forces behind the women's 8-hour bill introduced in the Illinois legislature at Springfield is under way. The labor pressure is guided by the Women's Trade Union League. Other women's organizations are cooperating. The present law permits 10 hours a day and 70 hours a week and has considerable exemptions in addition. New York state is also considering an 8-hour law for women.

Anna Louise Strong Speaks.

Efforts of anti-labor and imperialist censors like the American citizenship foundation to put their blacklist of speakers in effect at the Chicago Woman's Club failed this week. The club heard Anna Louise Strong, the Federated Press Moscow correspondent, tell of the latest news from Russia, in spite of the efforts of the military intelligence bureau, a private snooping bureau, to muzzle her. The militarists had enlisted a so-called gold star mother in their repressive tactics, but the club heard Miss Strong as it has in past years, peaceably and sympathetically.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL COMPLAINS THAT ENGINEERS USE SCABS ON BUILDING PROJECT

By ALEX GAULD

(Worker Correspondent.)

NAKOMIS, Fla.—The Building Trades Council of Sarasota, Florida, and vicinity, which includes Venice, where the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have a development project, has decided to send a communication to all the locals of the B. of L. E. through the country, to inform them of the existing deplorable union conditions in Venice.

Of all the building crafts employed on the Venice development, the plumbers alone are 100% organised. The plasterers' union is only about 40% strong, while the carpenters, lathers, bricklayers, electricians and painters, are in a still worse condition.

Try to Get Action.

The officials of the B. of L. E. were notified of the existing conditions on their project, but stated to the building trades council that nothing in common exists between the two organizations.

The membership of the building trades have refused a request to back by the high handed methods of the B. of L. E. officials, and have decided on their above mentioned method to acquaint the membership at large of the brotherhood of the non-union condition which exists at their development plant. It is hoped that as soon as this becomes known that pressure will be exerted to compel the officials in charge of the Venice work to engage only union help, and to stimulate the organization activity of the building trade crafts.

Not Closed Shop.

It may also be interesting to state that any prospective home buyer or builder is informed by the B. of L. E. salesmen that the employment of union or non-union man on construction work is optional.

A local business agent of one of the crafts verified this above statement in his report to the union. Entering the office of the plant at Sarasota as a prospective buyer, he decided on the lot and the type of the house, and let it be understood that he wished to cut down the cost. He wanted to know if it would be possible to employ non-union men in the erection of his house. The salesman unhesitatingly assured him that he could do so, and advanced his opinion by stating that it was a major point of their regular weekly lectures, on sales talks, to the salesmen of the B. of L. E. development project.

DANGEROUS ROOF IN VESTA NUMBER FIVE MINE; BOSS PLOTS TO CHEAT INJURED WORKERS

(From a Worker Correspondent)

"Coal mine conditions and safety first." The words sound very good, but conditions and safety first in the coal mine are very different.

Vesta Coal Company owns a mine, Vesta No. 5, and employ nearly 2,000 men. The lowest number in 200 men. The miners have to leave the bottom at 6:10 A. M., and must leave the places at 3:50 P. M. No protest or any action is taken up by the local officers.

Record Evidence.

Each miner has a card at his working place. This card is issued by the Vesta Coal Co. for each section foreman to keep a record of any violations of the rules of the company's safety first, dirty coal and so on. If it happens the miner gets hurt, it seems to me this new method is used as a record against the miners in case of compensation report.

It is impossible to get mine supplies from the bosses. Props, rails, ties, timbers, spikes and many of the other small and large materials, the bosses refuse in order to cut expenses for the mine owners.

Record Evidence.

Each miner has a card at his working place. This card is issued by the Vesta Coal Co. for each section foreman to keep a record of any violations of the rules of the company's safety first, dirty coal and so on. If it happens the miner gets hurt, it seems to me this new method is used as a record against the miners in case of compensation report.

It is impossible to get mine supplies from the bosses. Props, rails, ties, timbers, spikes and many of the other small and large materials, the bosses refuse in order to cut expenses for the mine owners.

Roof Falling.

The main way, or safety traveling road, is in poor condition. The slate and roof are hanging down all the way in the gangways. Evidence of the 1926, over 80% of the accidents were in the so-called "safety first" mine, Vesta No. 5.

This is a speeding-up system for more profits, less pay and longer hours. Miners from Vesta No. 5 should consider this and get their rights before it is too late.

Pay the Officials.

This is Local Union 762 of the United Mine Workers of America. The president gets $8 at each meeting, which lasts about 15 to 20 minutes. The vice-president gets $2.50; doorkeeper, $2; financial secretary, $18; recording secretary, $12; treasurer, $12. Members of the mine committee get $13 a meeting each, or $45 for three of them, report or no report of the pit committee. Also 4 check weighmen get $10 apiece, or $40 a day, while two of them could easily do the work of four.

Expanding Tons.

The samo cars which we have loaded for the past 6 or 7 years, and for which we used to be paid for 2½ to 2¾ tons, we now are paid for 2 to 2½ tons. This is the work of open labor grafters.

Young miners are being duped by company institutions such as the company's big brick building with pool tables, bowling alleys and moving pictures shows. This is over-crowded every evening with all the youngsters, babies and even old people, spending their money. Of course, they are miserable now, and when the time comes up for struggle some of them will be strike-breaking in the first place, and then complaining of starvation.

A Call to Action.

Miners from Vesta No. 5: get prepared for the struggle of you and children in the coming strike. Remember the 1922 strike and don't let this one and without success. Subscribe to the only real working paper, The DAILY WORKER.

Get in line with the real workers, not with fakers. Then we can expect victory, not for one but for all of us workers.

Arrest Acid Thrower Suspect.

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 8.—Arrest on a Boston to Lynn train of a suspect who tallies with the description of the acid thrower and pipe wielder, who has caused a wave of terror among women and girls of this city and Swampscott, was made by police today. The man, a resident of Boston, was accused of accosting a woman on the train.

Party Functionaries Of Detroit Called to Conference, Thursday

Special conference of all party functionaries of the Detroit party units and section committees is called for Thursday, February 10, at 8 p. m. at the district headquarters, 1967 Grand River Ave.

The meeting will begin with a report and discussion of the Russian party situation. The DAILY WORKER subscription drive. The DAILY WORKER costume ball arranged for Saturday, Feb. 12, and a number of important party campaigns will be taken up at the conference.

Army Captain Jumps to Death.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Suddenly stricken with insanity, Alberto Cabero, a former captain in the Peruvian army, leaped from the fifth story of the house where he lived in West 118th Street, killing himself. Cabero had been caught beating and tearing the clothes from the 16-year-old daughter of the woman with whose family he boarded. Her screams aroused another lodger, who rushed to the girl's rescue just as Cabero jumped.

Grocer Shot in Store.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 8.—Joseph Alperin, 47 years old, a grocer, was shot and killed in his store, 199 Thirteenth Avenue, Newark.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKERS-

CARNIVAL

BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium

ASHLAND AVE. AND VAN BUREN

FEB. 25th

" 26th

" 29th

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT.

30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

Read the 'BOLSHEVIK'

A DRAMA IN PLAY FORM written on the American style by

Leon Hausman

Author and Playwright

Per Copy at $1.10

sent to Leon Hausman "Bolshevik" Post Office Box 187, Hinsdale, N. J. Secure a copy of "Bolshevik" in English for the present.

Translations may be had at a later date.

On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, advises his well acquaintance to first read the book, the better to appreciate it; difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" except in person, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND SOUTH.

TO BE CHALLENGED.

The Russian Bolsheviks have invented a scheme whereby they have developed a real mass movement behind their paper. This has been done by means of challenging certain comrades throughout the country to tell what they have done for their paper. Each of the comrades challenged, when he sends in his subscriptions, has the right in turn to challenge five other comrades. The same rule applies to these comrades when they turn in their subscriptions. We are planning to begin with a challenge to 100 comrades. "You may be the one first challenged. Prepare now. The names of all comrades challenged will be published, and the number of subscriptions obtained. Be ready.

In addition there are the valuable prizes which are being offered in connection with the campaign.

Join the Ranks of the

Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 22 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the message of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual subs (or $30.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $300.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists.

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Groper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bailey, F. Larger, F. G. Vose, O. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly (Communist), Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language press should push The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering 25 solid bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 Celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions. Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

QUOTAS

District 1.	Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 2.	New York City and vicinity—part of New Jersey. 10,000 readers.
District 3.	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Western New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D. C. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 4.	Buffalo, Rochester, Erie, Pa. and the Western part of New York state. $500 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 5.	Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 6.	Cleveland and the State of Ohio. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 7.	Detroit, the state of Michigan and Eastern Indiana. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 8.	Chicago, and Illinois, Lower Wisconsin, Missouri, and Lake Counties, Ind. $1,800 worth of subscriptions or 300 annual subscriptions.
District 9.	Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan (Upper peninsula), Minnesota. $1,800 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 10.	North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa. $150 worth of subscriptions or 25 annual subscriptions.
District 11.	Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming. $250 worth of subscriptions or 42 annual subscriptions.
District 12.	Oregon and Washington. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 13.	California. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 14.	New Mexico, Arizona, Texas. $150 worth of subscriptions or 25 annual subscriptions.
District 15.	Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. $450 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.

District Agents should set quotas for the various cities on the basis of the number of party members, Daily Worker subscribers and sympathizers.

DAILY WORKER

33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
26 First Street, New York, N. Y.
Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year, $4.00 six months, $2.50 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $5.00 per year, $3.00 six months, $2.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Tying the Can to Cal.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, better known as a wet republican than as a brilliant educator, appointed himself a committee of one to tie the old rattle to President Coolidge's political tail.

The president of Columbia University, America's foremost educational foundry, is said to have both eyes on the G. O. P. presidential nomination. Nicholas is a reactionary, but more vocal than Cal. In addition to a greater facility for making head noises Professor Butler has a heavier cargo of gray matter stored away between his ears than our president. As a general rule Wall Street does not care how much or how little its presidents know provided they keep their thots in the garret. Coolidge does this because he cannot help it. Butler can be depended on to do Wall Street's bidding because he is a disciplined machine republican and has no more of the artist's urge for self-expression in his system than a pampered hog.

Butler may not win the presidential nomination. But he is ready to pitch his hat into the ring. His main plank will be malt, hops, fermented grape and Sunny Jim. He will promise more fertilizer to the farmers and more pork sausage to the workers. He does not like the Coolidge foreign policy. He thinks it is too crude, too brainless. He will promise better service to Wall street than that rendered by 'Cal' and 'Kell,' without doubt the two champion dumbbells of international dipiomacy. They are not even capable of subtly translating into deeds imperialist policies thot out by Wall Street experts, without getting entangled in their own diplomatic robes and destroying the crockery in the political curiosity shop.

An animated doll would serve our imperialists as president better than a scholar provided the voters could be induced to vote for the mechanical contrivance. But even Wall Street cannot ignore facts so it must present the voters with a choice of two evils each election day. The workers can vote either for the republican highwayman or for the democratic confidence man. It may be Butler, Longworth or Lowden on the republican ticket and Smith, Ritchie or Reed on the democratic ticket. McAdoo has as much chance of getting elected as the imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan. Coolidge looks as good a prospect for four more years in the White House as Harry M. Daugherty.

But no matter who wins on either ticket the workers will lose. Both parties are tools of imperialism. Whether they pose as pacifists like the late William Jennings Bryan or sabre-rattling, swashbucklers like the late Theodore Roosevelt, they do what Wall Street demands, as witness the rape of Haiti under the regime of Bryan.

The workers and farmers of the United States must turn a deaf ear to the siren calls of the capitalist parties. They must organize a party of their own, a labor party, under whose banner the producing classes in the industries and on the land will press forward on the road to a Workers' and Farmers' government, under which the interests of the usefully employed workers with hand and brain will determine the policies of the country.

Friendship With Guns.

The imperialist powers continue to profess the most friendly intentions towards China while rushing warships, troops and munitions to pulverize the people they pretend to love.

Great Britain sympathizes with the aspirations of the Chinese people but has an army of 20,000 men and a flotilla of battleships on the high seas and on Chinese soil in order to prevent the Chinese from realizing their aspirations.

The United States government posing as a traditional friend of the Chinese people has a fleet of fifty battleships in Chinese waters and is withdrawing marines from occupied territory in Latin-America to block the Chinese nationalists in their struggle for national unity and freedom from foreign imperialism.

The cutthroat government of Italy, the same Italy that peddled herself like an ancient prostitute to the highest bidder in the early days of the late world war has again surrendered herself to Great Britain for a price. The political pimp Mussolini is proud of the sale and pimp-like barks at the door of his palace for more customers. The fascist government is also glad to see an awakening in China but mourns the necessity of butchering those who are succeeding in opening the eyelids of the long-slumbering nation.

With honeyed words on their lips and poisoned daggers hidden in their cloaks, the imperialist foodpads prepare to stab the New China in the back. They may succeed in fooling a large section of the working classes in their own countries. The working classes may think it is none of their business how many Chinese workers and peasants are slaughtered to make a roman holiday for world imperialism and to put more money in their pockets. It is. A victory for the capitalists in China would be a prelude to an intensive campaign against the Soviet Union and the further enslavement of labor the world over.

Therefore the war against China strikes at the very root of the interests of the workers of all countries. The workers must stop the shipment of munitions of war and armed forces to slaughter the Chinese people. Against the honeyed words and poisoned gases of the imperialists the workers must pit their collective power thru the organization of "Hands Off China" committees.

When the liberal forces in Nicaragua clear a piece of territory of conservatives, Admiral Latimer steps in and declares the territory "neutral." The state department had so much success so far that it is probable that in the near future all Nicaragua will be a neutral zone.

The Peasant Revolt in Lithuania

By W. HECKERWICK-RAPPOKAS

[illegible] especially during the last few weeks, the Lithuanian Fascists, led by the so-called christian democrats, have been preparing quite openly for an uphevral. Calls to arm, issued by the entire Lithuanian press. The Communist Party of Lithuania and the left-wing workers had untiringly pointed to the threatening danger and demanded that it be energetically combatted; however, the government, which was composed of popular socialists and social democrats, would not make up his mind to any decided action.

If we inquire into the nature of the present upheaval, we cannot but recognize that it is a fascist-capitalist movement, directed in the first line against the working class and the poor peasantry. Under the petty-bourgeois regime of the Narodniki (popular socialists) and social democrats, who came into power after the Lithuanian Seym elections in May 1926, the working class and the working peasantry had succeeded in making considerable progress in regard to the freedom of coalition, assembly, and the press, besides attaining a practically complete amnesty for political prisoners and the removal of the Ochrana butchers and of certain officials of particular notoriety as emissiers of public property, and at the same time concluding a guaranteed agreement with the Soviet union. The working class of Lithuania could breathe more freely and commenced the formation of trade unions, while there was a series of strikes throughout the country. The poor peasantry demanded that at least the most outrageous acts of the land reform affected in the interest of the formerly prevailing clique be subjected to revision, and that the embezzlers of public property be called to account.

The government of the Narodniki and the social democrats failed to comply with these demands. Under the pressure of the reactionary clerical bourgeoisie, which was louder and louder in its allegations that the government was likely to plunge the country into Bolshevism, the latter began to incline more towards the right. Steps were taken to dissolve the trade unions which were under the influence of the left, certain Communists were arrested, and so forth. The Communist Party failed to attain any legal status, while the Fascists were allowed to carry on their work and found their organization quite openly. During the last few weeks, it is true, the government responded to the growing danger and to the pressure of the peasantry and working class and affected a certain movement towards the left, placing the Fascist leader Ojevtzalis under arrest and prohibiting the publication of his paper. These measures, however, proved insufficient.

At the head of the Fascist movement in Lithuania are the christian democratic party (Chadeki) and the party of the Lithuanian nationalists. The former comprises three organizations, the actual christian democratic party, the union of big peasants and the Yellow Federation of Labor. It is the party of the clerical and Lithuanian bourgeoisie, the bankers, the big peasants and landed proprietors, under the lead of the catholic clergy, the banker Valdkaitis, Stulginvitchius, the others. Up to the last Seym elections, this party was in power; by unscrupulous, corrupt, and brutal practices, by a misuse of public property, by the pressure it exercised on the peasants and workers, by openly favoring with government commissions and contracts a small number of profiteers (such as the parson-banker Vailokaitis), by allotting the "centres" of the dismembered estates to its own protegees, by serious infringements of the law, by giving free play to the jesuits, by the "electrification" of political prisoners, and by similar misdeeds, the christian democrats aroused so much discontent in the country as to entail their severe defeat at the last elections.

Immediately after the elections, which turned out so badly for them, the christian democrats set to work to institute a Fascist dictatorship by means of a general uphaval, Stulginvitchius being designated for the post of dictator. The elections, however, had so far weakened the party, and the general dissatisfaction with their rule had grown so great, that they found themselves under the necessity of deferring the coup d'etat and of waiting until the new liberal government should in its turn have sufficiently compromised itself, in the meantime preparations for the coming struggle. The clerical reactionaries of Lithuania devoted their attention in the first place to the formation of Fascist fighting organizations out of the reserve of officers, former volunteers of the Lithuanian army, students, sharp-shooters (wealthy farmers' sons) and the like, in which direction they had pronounced success. Their main slogans were "Down with the socialist freemason governmentl", "Down with the dictatorship of the trade unions!", "Down with the Communists!", and "Down with the agents of Moscow!". The class-character of such slogans is quite obvious.

During the last Seym elections, the nationalists, headed by ex-President [illegible] Smetona, entered into a bloc with the christian democrats. The nationalists are the party of the Lithuanian bourgeoisie, which is closely allied to the christian democrats. It is, therefore, no wonder that their ideology and their aims are identical. They even came to form one party with the latter in the Seym, and of late began to turn most pronouncedly against the rule of the Narodniki and social democrats.

These two reactionary parties, which, to the delight of Great Britain, aimed at bringing about a rapprochement between Lithuania and Poland and an estrangement from the Soviet union, initiated the Kovno upheaval, in which connection the christian democrats required the aid of the nationalists so as at least slightly to mask their tactics from the working masses who hate the very sight of them.

The leader of the entire movement, Major Plechavitchius, a former czarist officer belonging to the class of Polish leased proprietors in Lithuania, had already distinguished himself in 1919 in his bestial execution of the Bolsheviks of the Shmudj region (in Lithuania), thereby gaining credit in the eyes of the christian democrats; Colonel Glovatzkis, likewise a former czarist officer and one of the landed proprietor class, made a name in the summer of 1919 by causing a number of Communists to be shot in the Kupishaki and Rakishaki districts. Both are in favor of an alliance with Poland.

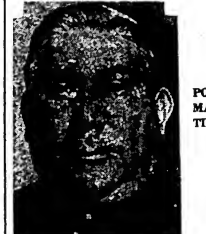
The leaders of the Narodniki and social democrats proved incapable of forming a bloc with the working class and the village poor against the big farmers, landed proprietors, and capitalists, and of putting up a resolute fight against the Fascists. They merely kept declaiming on the threatening danger and had a lot to say about democracy and the will of the people; meanwhile the Fascists organized their ranks and then proceeded at an opportune moment, and without meeting with any resistance, to arrest the entire government, occupy the government buildings and place the commanders of such regiments under arrest as had remained loyal to the old regime. Here, as in Bulgaria, the failure of the petty-bourgeois parties became patent.

Even before the upheaval, the Communist party of Lithuania constantly and emphatically advocated a struggle against Fascism, if necessary with the use of arms. Without actually supporting the government of the Narodniki and social democrats, which was after all a bourgeois body, the Communist party urged it to fight against Fascism, clearly recognizing the advantages of this government as compared with the Fascist and christian democrats policy of the big peasants and big bourgeoisie (according to Lithuanian standards). After their coup d'etat, the Fascist proceeded to arrest numerous Communists, left wing and even social democratic workers. There can naturally be no donbt whatever that the overwhelming majority of the workers and working peasantry of Lithuania are radically opposed to the whole movement and to the dictatorship of the christian Fascist bankers and land owners and, if for the time being they do not take any active steps, there is no question that in a very short time they will take up the fight against this form of dictatorship along the whole front. The lead in such a struggle cannot bnt fall to the share of the Communist party.

The late President Grinius, whose interment has meanwhile been repeated, had dissolved the Stulginvitchius cabinet and entrusted the nationalist Voldemaras with the formation of a new government. The Fascist upheaval and the new Fascist government of Lithuania have, therefore, already been placed on a "legal" footing. Besides the pronounced reactionary and Fascist elements, the christian democrats and nationalists, the government comprises a representative of the farmers' party and an independent, all its members being extreme Right champions of the Lithuanian bankers, capitalists, big farmers, and big landed proprietors.

The attitude observed towards the Soviet union and the guarantee agreement concluded with the Soviet union by the late government, is openly hostile in the case of the christian democrats and in that of the nationalists superficially, i. e., allegedly, friendly, while the attitude assumed with regard to Poland is friendly to the point of servility in the former, and professedly hostile in the latter case. The christian democrats were averse to using the ald of Pilsudski in the subversion of the Narodniki and social democratic government. The fact meanwhile that in spite of the fight they had until recently waged against the christian democrats, the nationalists agreed at the crucial moment to form a bloc with the latter, shows how superficial the differences between the two parties really were.

The developments ensuing in the little Republic of Lithuania have, indeed, come to acquire great international importance.



FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By EUGENE LYONS

[illegible] In the early days of the reign of Calvin Coolidge I got a set of the rest of the world's newspapers at my office. By that time I had come to the conclusion that what I was paid from a Socialist standpoint was to try to find somebody who would be more ridiculous in the presidential role than Coolidge. It was not easy. No pot calling to mind the kettle of the office to which he aspired was ever more shabby. Now comes the Newark Star-Eagle with a promising suggestion. It proposes to nominate the most Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton for president of the United States on a fundamentalist ticket. The idea is on the face of it so beautiful that the boom may be expected to gather momentum quickly. Bryan's boy-friend himself is not so sure he wants to run, but there is no doubt that he would forego modesty for once if enough popular pressure could be generated. His platform, the Star-Eagle says, would call for:

"Strict enforcement of the Sabbath laws, strict enforcement of prohibition with life terms for third offenders, prohibition of tobacco in all forms, abolition of dance halls, strict censorship of movies, books, plays and newspapers, punishment of all atheists, blasphemers, scoffers and evolutionists, and of women dressing indecently."

It is a program to make one's mouth water. In one swoop all of life would be transformed. At present only drinking gives that delicious sense of outlawry, of swashbuckling bravado, of being somehow among the elite who snap their fingers at the law. But under the Rev. Dr.'s regime the most prosaic act or thought will give one similar sensations. Just think of it, such everyday things as dancing a waltz or smoking a cigaret or reading the tabloids will become thrilling. Working on the Sabbath will become a pleasure. Life will be driven underground. The bootlegger will be no longer a specialist dealing only in liquor, but a department store dealing in nearly everything. The national pulse will beat faster, drabness will be banished, living will at last be full of zest for the least of us. We second the Star-Eagle's nomination.

PORTRAIT OF A CHRISTIAN MARTYR, AFTER A LIFE-TIME OF SELF-DENIAL

(Bishop Pascual Diaz, recently kicked out of Mexico.)

EXTRA! Another Scandal EXTRA!

Things are getting worse and worse. Now the government has been accused of putting liquor in its poison! The charge is brought by retainers of the Anti-Saloon League. Officials, of course, make indignant denial and cite recent mortality statistics to confound their accusers.

* * Marvels of Science.—To the great blessings conferred upon humanity by the onward sweep of science and invention may now be added another. The inhabitants of Europe are the beneficiaries this time. At last they will be able to share in a delight until now reserved to Americans. The press has been informed by the National Broadcasting Company that "President Coolidge's voice may be heard as clearly in Europe as in America when he speaks before a joint session of congress on February 22."

LETTER TO A LUNATIC.

Dear Lester:

It sure is awful you being put in that asylum and their not allowing you to read the papers any more. Just when you began to improve your mind by reading all the news from A to Z too! I believe in you, Lester dear, whatever they say! You're as sane as any of them, and I'm sure it wasn't reading the papers that made you that way. I mean the way they say you are. But anyway I'll try to give you most of the important news anyhow in this letter, so maybe you won't be too lonesome. I don't understand it so well myself, but I am sure you will be able to read between the lines, darling.

So here goes. First and foremost, you will be pleased to learn that it was all a lie about the crime wave. The courts have just decided that everybody, at least all the best people, are innocent. For instance, Fall and Doheny, who put one over on the government, didn't do it. And Harry Daugherty too, and Mrs. Hall and her family, and the Rev. Norris down in Texas and Mrs. Aimee McPherson. Isn't it wonderful, Lester dear, to have the courts watch over us? Imagine how many criminals we might have if the courts didn't give them a good character!

Also, everybody says that China is awakening. The way they've been behaving down there I never guessed that they were asleep. I mean the way they've been chasing missionaries and tearing up treaties and so on. But maybe Chinese don't sleep so quiet and when they get fully awake they'll act more sensible. There's also lots happening in a place called Nicaragua. I looked all through the map of Asia and can't find it, so I don't know what it's about. Nearest I can make out the rebels keep capturing towns for the American marines to neutralize and as soon as all the towns are neutralized the question will be arbitrated. So you see that we are neutral.

The other news is not so important but having nothing to do I will tell you about it. So here goes, darling. Young Cornelius Vanderbilt who got a lot of debts for publishing some newspapers is living in a lovely garret on Fifth avenue and will pay back every cent. It's something like $3,000,000 and he says he will pay back every cent by writing. You'd never think it, dear, if you read some of the things he writes, but it all goes to show. Also there was a convention of miners in Indianapolis and they gave the chairman and the board of directors raises in salary because the union is in such a bad way that they will have to work harder than usual to put it back on its feet. Also they will no longer make illegal expulsions of Bolsheviks, because they amended the constitution to make it legal.

That's all for now, honey, but I'll try to send lots more next time. And always remember that I don't believe what they say about you. Also I know that you will get cured real soon, so don't forget your own MYRTLE.

For the present this column will appear Wednesdays and Saturdays. As soon as contributions are plentiful—and unless we are fired before then—it will appear more frequently. Contributions are earnestly solicited. To assure publication make your piece undignified, blasphemous, vigorous. English only. Criticism is also welcome and we promise not to print a word of it.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY NATIONAL DAILY

The Daily Worker Publishes The Organization of the Unemployed. For a Labor Party. For a Workers' Party.

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 24. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1927. Price 3 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

WHEN the prince of Wales is not falling off a stead he is falling all over himself. Edward might win a prize from those newspapers that offer a dollar for a recital of the embarrassment resulting from the sudden discovery that one's stockings don't match, that a suspender broke away from its mooring or that a refractory garter was winning unenviable notoriety in a grand march. The prince's most embarrassing moment came, when on leaving the house of lords after going thru the royal mummeries with the rest of the royal parasites, he mistook his sword for one of his legs and landed on his ear.

• • •

The prince had to do his own thinking, so he should be excused for the mistake. His royal father and mother were attended by a procession of pages and no matter how inebriated they may be, it was almost impossible for them to stumble. The monarch has almost everything done for him except the actual mastication of food and the imbibing of liquid refreshment.

A tottering prince may be suffered by British subjects without evil forbodings but a fallen monarch, in view of the situation in China, would be considered an ill omen. The king must stay on his pins.

• • •

A bitter factional fight has broken out in the Anglican religious josa house over the proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer. The proposal to delete the word "obey" from the marriage ceremony, which has been as superfluous as two tails on a cat, ever since Victoria lost of the good old days when every woman was her own husband (according to some biologists) has aroused deep indignation in the breasts of the old tories who shudder every time the earth makes a revolution around the sun. They dread change even in a prayer book.

• • •

There was a time when the catholic church held that woman was minus a soul. Indeed we are told that the female of the species escaped the status of a beast at a council of bishops by a majority vote of one. Today the catholic church does not insist that the catholic wife should obey her catholic husband. As long as both obey the church and come across with the contributions they are allowed reasonable liberties with the understanding that a violation of the commandments can be atoned for by confession and penance.

• • •

THE dissatisfaction within the religious asylums is spreading out and breaking bounds. The Rev. Harry E. Fosdick, a baptist, and supporter of what goes for "modernism" in church circles urges protestants to return to the catholic device of the confessional, a scheme which was invented by the Roman church and is unquestionably the most efficient secret service system in existence. James Connolly pointed out in his great work, "Labor in Irish History," that the British government was kept informed by Irish priests of revolutionary movements having for their aim the overthrow of the British government. The confes-

(Continued on Page Three)

Not a Workingman

According to announcement just made, the $67,000,000 accrued fortune of Hetty Green, woman financier to whom Wall Street bowed, has been divided between Col. Edward H. R. Green (above) and his sister, Mrs. Mathew Astor Wilks. Col. Green, wintering at Miami, Fla., is manager of the estate.

McNary-Haugen Supporters Confident

Opponents Declare Supreme Court Will Nullify Law

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Confident that President Coolidge will sign the McNary-Haugen bill, farm relief forces extended their battle lines along the entire congressional front today, determined to settle the four-year-old issue within a week.

With the senate engaged in sporadic debate on the measure under an agreement to vote on Friday, the house also took up the bill. Farm bloc leaders claimed a clear majority in both houses.

Rep. Haugen (R) of Iowa, co-author of the bill, took issue with the prediction of Senator Fess (R) of Ohio that President Coolidge would veto the bill.

Think Cal Won Over.

"I've talked farm relief with the president many times," said Haugen. "I believe we have removed all of the objectionable features of the past bills and I think he will accept the verdict of congress."

The next presidential campaign appeared certain to be injected into final debate on the bill as a result of the last-minute plea of Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois for the equalization fee. Opponents of the bill declared that Lowden's declaration was the first specific endorsement he has made of a pending farm relief bill and dubbed the measure the "Lowen-for-president" platform.

Unconstitutional?

Meanwhile Rep. Aswell (D) of Louisiana, leader of the opposition in the house, served notice that the bill faces another hurdle if it becomes a law. The bill is unconstitutional, he said, because it delegates taxing power and a legal fight against it will be carried to the supreme court.

The McNary-Hangen bill, as little as it offers the farmers, yet offers too much for the sections of industry not allied with it through "log rolling" schemes for lower taxes, or what not.

Chamber of Commerce Opposes.

Protest against the evident determination of congress to enact the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill has been issued by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. It declares that the chamber membership is opposed to "any proposal for buying, selling, manufacturing or handling of agricultural products by governmental agencies whether under the pretense of the exertion of price influence or otherwise."

Enactment of this measure, the chamber says, will result disastrously for the farmers, "and thus bring great detriment to all branches of industry and commerce."

Desperate Situation.

Coolidge's reasons for signing the bill, if and when he does, are the result of the feeling the administration has that many defeats for friendly senators and congressmen recently are the result of deep dissatisfaction with "Coolidge prosperity" on the part of the farmers.

A little investigation by administration scouts has justified this view, both aspects of it. The farmers are desperately uncomfortable, and they blame Coolidge for it, in part. The result is an anxiety on the part of the Coolidge regime to show the American farmer that his needs are understood and will be attended to, as long as it doesn't cost too much.

"Sorry for Farmer."

How gloomy the administration has grown, as to the prospects of the

(Continued on Page Two)

Symposium Raises Over Two Thousand Towards Greek Communist Daily

The campaign to establish a $5,000 fund to be raised here for a Greek Communist daily in New York City opened well with the pledging of $2,300 (of which $1,068 was immediately paid in cash) at the dinner and symposium at Palace restaurant.

The symposium was arranged by the local daily EMPROS campaign committee in order to discuss ways and means why, where and how to launch a workers' paper, but the 150 participants in the discussion were not satisfied with the talk only and went into action to collect money.

The $5,000 necessary fund, as decided by the Chicago conference on Dec. 25th, will be oversubscribed before May 1st and the EMPROS will appear daily on that date.

Powers Hapgood

Powers Hapgood, working miner from Cresson, Penna., was a progressive delegate to the International convention of the United Mine Workers of America, recently held in Indianapolis. Hapgood was twice slugged by Lewis gangsters, who happened to be also officials of the union. He was denied the floor. Miners of his district issued a public statement demanding that he be seated, and are circulating a petition for recall of district officials who managed the frame-up to keep him from the convention.

NEW JERSEY BUS STRIKE IS NOW HAVING EFFECT

Bosses Policy of Driving Now Breaking Down

(Special To The DAILY WORKER.)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 9.—The service on the Hudson Boulevard busses has been curtailed.

When the 400 bus drivers went on strike last Saturday afternoon the bus owners promised to continue normal service by running them themselves. They succeeded for a while but now they have broken down under the strain. Some of the bosses have been driving the vehicles eighteen hours a day.

Boulevard commissioners have been unable to effect a compromise between the strikers and the employers. They hope to bring them together at a meeting during the week. The drivers demand $45 a week under a three-year contract, an increase of $2.50 a week.

Edward Levy, business agent of the drivers' local, announced yesterday that officers of a number of unions have ordered membership to boycott the line during the strike.

American Workers to Aid Housing Plan in The Workers' Republic

According to the yellow press and the trade union bureaucracy, the American workers are not interested in what is going on in the Soviet Union. But facts speak otherwise. According to a statement made by W. S. Millson, secretary of the newly organized Building Cooperative, an organization with one hundred members and $100,000 capital, though only a month in existence, hundreds of letters are pouring in from building trade workers all over the country, expressing a desire to go to Russia to help build houses in the Workers Republic.

Some of those workers are single but some have large families. Letters of inquiry have come from Los Angeles, Cleveland, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis and other cities.

The next meeting of the Cooperative Building Group will be held on Sunday, Feb. 13, 3 p. m., at 143 East 103d street.

Soviet Organ Declares League Is Powerless to Aid Chinese Revolution

MOSCOW, Feb. 9.—Declaring that the Chinese ambassador at Rome has appealed to the League of Nations for intervention in China, the official newspaper, Isvestia, declares the league is powerless to do any good in China.

The league demonstrated its weakness when it failed to protest the United States treatment of Nicaragua, said Isvestia.

Interest Money On Bribe Bond To Daugherty

Evidence at Second Graft Trial Implicates Harding

A $2,125 check representing coupon interest on $100,000 in bonds was sent to Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney general, by the late John T. King, Connecticut politician, according to testimony introduced today by the government at the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial.

The government was attempting to show ownership by Daugherty of $100,000 in liberty bonds, part of the $391,000 "fee" alleged to have been received by King for putting through the $7,000,000 claim for return of German owned property of the American Metal Company.

Record of the $2,125 check was missing from the Midland National Bank, the Daugherty Ohio bank, it was testified.

Harding Was There.

This, and testimony connecting the late President Harding with the "house of revelry" or the "green house" which Daugherty and Jess Smith shared in Washington at the time, it is said, some of the worst of the graft deals were put through there, were the high lights in yesterday's proceedings.

Harry's Butler Talks.

The intimacy between former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and the late Jess W. Smith, his confidential aide was testified to by Walter Miller, butler.

Smith and Daugherty lived alone in a house in Washington for nine months in 1921 after Daugharty took office, the witness said. Miller said he was employed by Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, and went to work for Daugherty when McLean loaned his house to Daugherty and Smith. Smith, afterwards committed suicide, or was murdered, about the time the graft revelations began.

Harding Dined With Them.

The butler admitted under cross-examination that many high government officials visited the house where Daugherty and Jess Smith lived. On one occasion, he said, President and Mrs. Harding dined there.

Charts Bond Sales.

The schoolroom atmosphere of the court, caused by United States Attorney Buckner's famous blackboard, on which he traces the intricacies of the bond movements, was heightened when the prosecution distributed to the jurors a number of charts. These also dealt with the alleged passage of liberty bonds of large denominations from the hands of Richard Merton, German financier, to the credit of Daugherty, Miller, John T. King, late Connecticut politician, and Jess Smith, late right-hand man of the former attorney general.

Defense objection to use of the charts was overruled.

D. of J. Employe Traded.

The prosecution in tracing the $50,000 in bonds alleged to have been the share of Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, for aiding in approval of the claim.

Virginia Mullen, former employe of the Federal Reserve Bank, Philadelphia, testified that Vincent A. Carroll, Philadelphia lawyer, in Feb., 1923, exchanged $20,000 in bonds in the deal for others which the government showed were traced to Miller's brokerage houses in Wilmington, Del., and New York City.

Stenos. and Cashiers Testify.

Charles Herman, another employe of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, corroborated Miss Mullen's testimony.

Sophie Hillman, stenographer in the alien property custodian's office in Washington, previously had testified to records showing that Carroll was employed by the department and received $47,000 for services rendered.

Delbert Gallagher, assistant cashier for Laird, Bissell and Mead, brokers, of Wilmington, Del., testified concerning the receiving of the bonds which the government alleges went into Miller's brokerage account.

Throughout the proceedings, Aaron Sapiro, of Chicago and San Francisco, counsel for Miller, objected to the evidence as irrelevant to the charge of conspiracy.

Objects To Gag Rule.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.— Charging that republican leaders of the house were trying to revive "cannonism" by the party caucus which "binds and gags" members, Rep. George J. Schneider (R) of Wisconsin, today rejected the recent invitation to the Wisconsin insurgents to return to party regularity.

Stalin Reported Ill

Joseph I. Stalin, secretary of the Russian Communist Party, is reported ill. The cause is probably overwork. Stalin is a vigorous man, who gives all of his energy and time to the advancement of Communism.

REVOLUTIONISTS ANNOUNCE DEFEAT OF CARMONA ARMY

Fleet Sails to Lisbon to Join Revolt

MADRID, Feb. 9.—Demanding the immediate resignation of the Portuguese government and announcing the creation of a constitutional government, the Portuguese insurrectionists have issued a manifesto claiming complete success in their coup d'etat, according to advices received here today.

The manifesto is signed by the "revolutionary committee," consisting of General Sousa Dias, Captain Jaime de Morais, Captain Jaime Cortaso, Captain Cesar Daimeida and Pereira de Carvalho.

The manifesto declares:

"The revolutionary forces demand the immediate resignation of the government which has been fictitiously attempting to govern by relying on the army, instead of on the people, for strength.

• • •

"We have restored the republic to constitutional normality and the sovereign will of the people.

"A republican government is being formed and will include Alvaro Castro, Pino de Mores, Norton de Nattes, Jaime de Morais, Alfonso de Castro, Matos Cid, Jaime Cortaso, Tanagini Barboso and Seusa Dias."

Fleet Ready to Revolt.

The Portuguese fleet is reported preparing to sail for Lisbon to aid the rebels.

Terrific street fighting was reported in progress in the center of Lisbon.

Another message from Vigo said the revolutionary movement has spread over almost the whole of Portugal. This report said Lisbon was in the hands of the revolutionists.

Bombard Oporto.

Sixty were killed and several hundred wounded during fighting at Oporto. Many houses were damaged by shell-fire. A grenade burst in an asylum for girls, killing one girl and wounding another.

The Vigo correspondent of the Evening News says the rebels at Oporto surrendered at 5 o'clock yesterday morning on condition that private and non-commissioned officers among the rebels be freed from all responsibility.

Rivera Worried.

Reports received here state that there were 200 casualties in Oporto resulting from the bombardment which preceded the government recapture of the city. The civilian population of Oporto, indignant at the bombardment, lasned a manifesto of protest against the government and the action it had taken.

General De Rivera advised the Spanish cabinet today that latest news from Portugal indicated the situation there to be extremely grave as numerous elements in Lisbon had joined the revolution.

Aquarium Nearly Destroyed.

The famous New York aquarium at Battery Place, with its priceless collection of fish, sea animals, and water fowl, was saved from destruction by fire today by the quick work of ninety firemen of the fireboat John Purroy Mitchell and eight land companies.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Cantonese Renew Drive on Shanghai

General Feng Reported Ready to Move South Against Militarists

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9.—The Cantonese armies have renewed their advance on Shanghai, having reinforced their war machine with fresh troops from Kiangsi and Szechuen provinces. The troops are being sent to the battlefront in commandeered foreign and Chinese steamships.

Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang is conscripting raw recruits in Shanghai.

Coincident with the fresh advance of the Cantonese comes the news that the British regiments held at Hong Kong to deceive the Chinese nationalists have re-embarked for Shanghai.

Negotiations between Eugene Chen, Nationalist foreign minister and Owen O'Malley, British charge, have been resumed at Hankow.

To Protect Foreigners.

The Nationalist government has issued orders to all troops to protect the lives of foreigners since it has no grievance against individuals but against the foreign policy of imperialism.

The Chinese at Shanghai have demanded an increased voice in the administration. Neither the Cantonese nor the Peking government have replied officially to Kellogg's note. It is reported here that the political leaders of the Peking government are in sympathy with the Cantonese in that all power is in the hands of Chang-Tso-Lin, the militarist.

Feng On War Path.

That General Feng, the so-called "Christian General" is ready to drive southwards is considered responsible for the strategic retreat of the Cantonese a few days ago. Feng has been getting his forces in readiness for several months and is now ready to strike.

At least a temporary impasse in the Shanghai municipal elections was encountered today when the Chinese taxpayers' association, which is entrusted with the election of three Chinese members on the Shanghai municipal council, proposed that instead of the three, it should elect nine councillors, who would jointly control the international settlement with the present nine foreigners. The association refused to elect the proposed three councillors.

• • •

Enthusiasm Cooled.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The first enthusiasm here for the suggestion of Secretary of State Kellogg for the neutralization of Shanghai has cooled. Official quarters now state that the plan is impracticable and that both British and American interests in Shanghai oppose it.

• • •

Lloyd George In Critical Mood.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—David Lloyd George, liberal leader, came to the defense of Chinese nationalists in the House of Commons this afternoon when debate was resumed on the King's speech from the throne.

Lloyd George attacked that section of the British press which is attempting to show that Russia is instigating the events in China.

The liberal leader's speech was more markedly pro-Chinese than the weak apology of James Ramsay MacDonald, labor leader who justified the dispatch of troops to do "police duty" but expressed fear that some untoward event might lead to hostilities.

MacDonald Attacked Chinese.

MacDonald also castigated the Chinese elements that were engaging in anti-British propaganda in China. "In the backboot going to be applied to us," Mr. MacDonald asked recently when the Nationalist forces announced their determination to expel the foreign imperialists.

Great Britain will acquaint the League of Nations with whatever it thinks the league should know without having it about developments in China. It will not ask the league to mediate. The secretariat of the league heard a rumor that a special meeting of the league council will be held on February 14 to consider the Chinese situation.

"Lizzie Jokes" Coin Money for Ford

Financial Experts in Tax Trial Explain Valuations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Although government prosecutors are concerned about proving their technical point that Ford Motor Company stock in 1913 was worth $3,500 a share and the Senator James Cousens defense as determined to prove it worth at least $9,500, the general public continues to view the Cousens' tax trial here as primarily a searchlight on the dark places in Ford financing.

Expert after expert comes on the stand, and gives his opinion as to the value of Ford Motors. However much each may differ in his estimate of value from all others, each has a little to add to the general enlightenment as to how that fortune of Henry's grew from $28,000 in 1906 to $2,000,000,000 in 1917.

Lizzie Jokes Vauable.

George K. Lindsay, of Hiair & Co., investment bankers of New York, told the money that accrued to Ford Motors out of the popular "tin lizzie" and "flivver" jokes. This, said Lindsay, was tho most effective kind of advertising—and it cost Henry not a cent. The public "sold itself".

After fixing a value on Ford stock in 1913 at from $10,000 to $12,000 a share, Lindsay was questioned closely by Solicitor of Internal Revenue A. W. Gregg, as to the public market for the stock at that figure.

Value Uncertain.

Lindsay agreed that very few persons in 1913 would have bought a block of $1,000 shares at that valuation, although he said that a public offering of the stock, split up into small units would have interested a new field of investors.

"Some smaller investors and farmers at that time were suspicious of Wall Street and would have been interested in Ford stock," Lindsay declared.

Lindsay asserted that had Henry Ford retired from the company in 1913 "for no good reason" he would not have cared to attempt to sell Ford stock to the public in large quantities. Although Lindsay felt that the corporation had made such progress as to be unaffected over a period of years by Ford's retirement it would have brought about a decided temporary effect in the valuation of stock.

Over vigorous objections from John Dodge.

Another point brought out by the government was Ford's belief that his business was a family affair, not open to the general public.

One of Henry Ford's determined measures to keep his plant forever a "closed corporation" was drawn into the limelight in an attempt to show that sales of shares were so rigidly

(Continued on Page Two)

GOVERNMENT OF UNION OF SOCIALIST SOVIET REPUBLICS BUILDS HUGE COLD STORAGE PLANT

ODESSA, Feb. 9.—The Soviet government has just completed here the second of a series of cold storage plants costing $5,000,000 with a capacity of 60,000,000 pounds. Similar plants built along American lines will be erected in Novorossiysk, Sebastopol, Batoum and Baku.

Government engineers in charge of the construction, said they were forced to equip these plants with freezing machinery from Czecho-Slovakia and Sweden because American manufacturers of refrigrating machinery declined to extend credits to the Russian government.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

CRISIS THREATENS BUSINESS OF CAPITALIZING TENANT'S DOCILITY

Renters Can't Afford Much Longer to Meet Standard Demanded by Optimistic Building Appraisers

(By ART SHIELDS, Federated Press)

Not the high cost of building trades wages but the high costs of shady money financing are responsible for the high rents in New York, Chicago, Detroit and other cities. The speculator is the villain of the piece.

Building trades workers and rent payers alike are following the reality of the coming crisis in housing in New York. It proves a specially favored suburban residence and other home building projects are burdened with exorbitant interest charges or a fictitious valuation, far in excess of the costs of construction. The renter has been the goat up to now but the renter is beginning to turn and some of the big realty bond and mortgage concerns are threatened with bankruptcy.

Makes Big Money

This smug, self-satisfied gentleman is R. E. Reynolds, president of the U. S. Fuel & Investment Co. In the market doubled his fortune. Stock gamblers never lose, if they are big enough to control the game. Little fools always lose, sooner or later.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Liners Delayed By Storm...

Five trans-Atlantic liners — the Olympic, the Hannburg, the Bremen, the Aarania and the Camerguia—arrived today from one to three days late, due to a severe storm which has been raging in the North Atlantic.

Seek Gag Law In Delaware.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 9.—The Delaware legislature received an anti-evolution bill in its yesterday's session, which would prohibit the teaching "that mankind either descended or ascended from a lower order of animal". Strong pressure is brought by the liberals and progressives to defeat this bill.

Federal Reserve Extension.

WASHINGTON (FP)—Extension for 20 years from 1934 of the charter of the Federal Reserve Banks is the grand prize contained in the conference draft of the McFadden branch banking bill, which will be adopted in the senate and signed by the president as soon as Coolidge has signed the McNary-Haugen farm relief legislation.

Form 50 Million Typewriter Merger.

Directors of the Remington Typewriter company approved the terms of consolidation with Rand-Kardex Bureau, Inc., and the Dalton Adding Machine company. The consolidation of these companies, together with a number of unidentified companies, will create a $50,000,000 organization for the production of typewriters, adding machines and business systems of various kinds.

A Book for the Irish Worker

"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916"

Introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty.

By G. Schuller.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

Jim Connolly was the military leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was nearing three one of the most serious crises that faced it during the world war. Connolly, the international Marxist, formed his small army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the international socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist question and to advocate struggle against imperialism. He was a Bolshevik in the full sense of the term. This little pamphlet by G. Schuler is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this period. It was first published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be distributed in large quantities among the Irish workers in the United States. Connolly is a useful name to arm every Irish worker who has a spark of the genius for class struggle in his spirit. It can also be read with interest by every radical worker who wants to look up on the strategy and tactics of revolution. Comrade Schuler declares that Connolly was a Leninist. He was. He fell before a British squad in 1916, and very likely when the Russian workers and soldiers buried the Czar and Czarina, they had a hand in burying a British agent in the bargain.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER

Hoover Cuts Two Forest Rangers

CLINTON, Feb. 9.—Two rangers in the Shawnee unit of the Ozark division of the United States army quartermaster depot in Maywood are under investigation by the Clinton police for wholesale traffic in liquor prescriptions.

They are to be questioned concerning the alleged sale of thousands of prescription blanks to bootlegging druggists at $5 each, the police declare.

Each blank, it is charged, disposed of his entire quota, 100 blanks each quarter, in this way, adding $1,200 a year to his income.

New Signan Plot Seen In Figewitz's "Story" To Judge O. Rosalsky

Joseph Figewitz, who was sentenced on Jan. 23 last by Judge Rosalsky in general sessions to an indeterminate term at Sing Sing was brought back to New York Tuesday and appeared again before Judge Rosalsky.

According to unverified reports he told the judge that he "was willing and ready to tell the grand jury the truth as to the identity of officials who had instigated assaults against men opposing the unions and who had selected him and others to commit them."

After these statements, Judge Rosalsky ordered that Figewitz be kept in the Tombs until he could tell his story to the grand jury.

Assistant District Attorney O'Brien declared yesterday that within the last few days the grand jury has filed indictments against two members of the union.

One man had already been arrested during the strike but was released for lack of evidence.

According to the leaders of the joint board of the International Garment Workers' Union and other well informed people, Figewitz is now being used by bigmen and his choice as a new method of attack against the left wing in the needle trades. Unable to win the support of the membership, they are now trying to terrorize the left wing followers.

Anti-Evolution Bill Defeated.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 9.—The anti-evolution bill, prohibiting the teaching of evolution in the schools of the state was killed today in the house of representatives by a vote of 82 to 62. The vote was taken after the bill had been debated for over two and one half hours.

John L. Lewis Getting Fat on Miners' Money

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, develops quite a bit of avoirdapois, and his face end chin is doubling up. However, his machine in the miners' convention, recently ended, voted him an increase of salary from $8,000 to $12,000.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

H. H. Moore, above, of Cooper, Texas, a representative in the Texas state legislature is on trial with Representative F. A. Dale, before a committee of the legislature. Willis Chamberlain of Houston, lobbyist for the Texas Optometry Association, says they took a thousand dollars apiece to fight Moore's own bill to tax resident optometrists $50 annually.

McNary-Haugen Bill Supporters Confident

(Continued from Page One)

American farmer, is indicated in the speech of his Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap made on Feb. 8 before the Farmers' Grain Dealers' Association of Illinois, at Jacksonville, when he declared that never before had farming been placed at so great a disadvantage in comparison with industry, commerce and labor.

"Now agriculture alone is suffering," Dunlap asserted, "and these others are enjoying the greatest prosperity ever known. Instead of the farmers' purchasing power increasing in 1926, as we had hoped it would, we find that at the close of the year it was below the average of 1923, 1924 and 1925. The total value of crops in 1926 was over a billion dollars less than that of 1925, and a billion and a half less than in 1924."

Dunlap declared that cooperation among the farmers in marketing their products had been the most beneficial measure yet tried for improving the condition of their industry.

Pinchot Accuses Mellon.

Gifford Pinchot, recently removed to the capital, has issued the first of several statements he says he has to make on the "relief bill." He praises it as a "step in the right direction," and warns against last minute attacks upon it by Andy Mellon, secretary of the treasury. Pinchot says:

"The McNary-Haugen bill of last year was killed by a letter of June 14, 1926, from Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, whose industries are protected and whose prosperity is generally understood to be fairly good. There is every reason to believe he will try to kill it this year. Ogden Mills, a member of the House of Representatives from New York, recently resigned and was appointed first assistant to Mr. Mellon. Now he has withdrawn his resignation in order to lead the fight in the house against this bill. Which is notice to all concerned."

WRIGLEY SPENDS MILLIONS PSYCHOLOGIZING WORKERS TO CHEW HIS GUM; OTHER MILLIONS OF PROFIT GO TO STOCKHOLDERS; ALL WASTE

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press.)

Have your baby boy chew gum and develop that 100 per cent American jaw. This is the latest pseudo-education which is helping to extract millions of dollars from American workers to enrich the Wrigley, Jr., chewing gum family. Wrigley's profits for 1926 amounted to $9,100,170, giving him a return of at least 98 per cent on his investment in the company.

In the last five years Wrigley has made profits totalling over $40,000,000 on common stock carried on his books at $15,000,000. This is more than 265% on the book value of his investment. If we take into account stock dividends in 1917 and 1922 his 5-year return really amounts to about 420%.

Good to Stockholders

Wrigley has always paid generous cash dividends. From 1914 to 1919 the rate was 16% ; from 1920 to 1923, 24% ; and from 1924 to date, 36% a year. Without allowing for stock dividends Wrigley has paid 300% in cash since 1914.

Wrigley has devoted millions of dollars, taken from the pockets of the workers, to persuading them to chew sticks of gum by the billion. To these ends he had spent $40,000,000 in various advertising. Nearly $7,000,000 went in 4 years to get the public to demand Doublemint.

$700,000 For Signs.

A feature of this Wrigley education, for which the workers have paid so dear, was a giant electric sign above Times Square, New York, to keep this sign for 7 years cost $700,000.

The resulting demand for chewing gum is revealed in figures showing the capacity of Wrigley's plants. His Brooklyn plant can produce 7,000,000 sticks a day. Here is a total capacity of 35,000,000 a day or 10,710,000,000 sticks in the weighing year. This is enough to furnish every man, woman and child in the entire population 90 chews a year.

Takes All He Can.

The Wrigley Co. shows up the joker in the statement that private initiative, stimulated by the profit motive, most effectively promotes the public interest in industry. Wrigley's purpose is exactly that of the old robber barons. He aims at the pocketbooks of the workers. He campaigns with psychological weapons to extract money from those pocketbooks, as much as he can get, for his own profit.

This is the object of all private business, although in other lines greater apparent service to the community conceals the real motive.

Form of Hypocrites.

The $50,000,000 educational fund, which the workers have provided to enable Wrigley to persuade them to chew gum, is just a small part of an advertising bill of perhaps $2,000,000,000 which they are footing annually. The pretense that this is worthily spent for educating the people's taste is wearing pretty shabby as competitive business approaches its old age.

Ten per cent of the money supplied by the workers for Wrigley's advertising would support a labor press which would make great inroads on the power of capital over public views. And one per cent of the total devoted each year to advertising would provide $20,000,000 a year for worker education.

Butler Says Difference Between Democrats and the Republicans is Gone

By J. LOUIS KORNGAIL.

ONE of the most interesting sections of the speech by Hon. Nicholas Murray Butler presenting certain views on "Coolidge prosperity" and the presidential campaign for 1928, dealt with the admitted lack of difference between the republican and democratic parties.

It was like the ghost of the late Frank Munsey, great newspaper publisher and large holder of many trust stock, speaking. While alive, Munsey repeatedly urged the elimination of pretense at difference between the old parties and the marriage of the elephant and the donkey. The combination would bring together the best conservative elements in both organizations and let the liberals, insurgents, progressives, or whatever else they might call themselves, wander where they might choose.

* * *

In addition to being a kick for Coolidge, in the place where he sits down, Butler's speech is also another smart slap in the face for the pie-counter politicians of the LaFollette group in congress, who continually seek to "rip up" workers and farmers headed for independent political action. Labor is told by these adventurists in the Wall Street political organizations that it can get what it wants thru one of the old parties. In North Dakota it is the republican party that feels comfortable for the Sorlies, the Fraziers and the Nyes. Just across the state line in Minnesota, the effort was made to stampede the Farmer-Labor forces into the democratic party.

* * *

Dr. Butler says:

"The names republican and democrat as used nationally are now merely titles of two traditional voting groups, the members of which groups are quite as varied in their policies and preferences as the two parties themselves used to be."

"The political tactics of the moment seem to be not to find out what is right in principle, what is required by public need, but what some one who calls himself by the name of the other party wishes to do and then to oppose that, whatever it may be."

"The democrats at Washington who oppose President Coolidge when he is right because he is a republican, are in the same boat as the republicans in New York who oppose Governor Smith when he is right, just because he is a democrat."

"The voters who call themselves republican are doubtless in considerable majority in the nation, but they are not in favor of the present tariff, of the treasury, whose industries are protected and whose prosperity is generally understood to be fairly good. There is every reason to believe he will try to kill it this year. Ogden Mills, a member of the House of Representatives from New York, recently resigned and was appointed first assistant to Mr. Mellon. Now he has withdrawn his resignation in order to lead the fight in the house against this bill. Which is notice to all concerned."

* * *

That shows that Butler has lost none of the language of political film flam. He doesn't say, in his speech that he wants to be a presidential candidate on the ticket of a united reaction, but that is the meaning of his utterances, and when he had completed his speech, according to the New York Times, "mention was made of his availability as a standard bearer of the party in the nation."

Butler thinks that the voters will go to the polls this fall and vote by the three issues, prohibition, the relief of the farmer and foreign policy.

Butler, the republican, claims to be as wet as Al Smith, the democrat. It is easy to drum up some fake farm relief program, or at least make a pretense of one. As for foreign policy, it is on this issue that Butler plays his trump card, thinking perhaps that it is too intricate an issue for the voting masses to understand.

* * *

It was under the "dollar diplomacy" of the republican party, especially from the period of the Spanish-American war, during the McKinley regime in 1896, down thru the tempestuous career of Theodore Roosevelt, punctuated by the rape of Panama, followed by the four years of William Howard Taft, who had taken a post-graduate course in the workings of American imperialism, as governor-general of the Philippines, that is dear to Dr. Butler's heart.

Dr. Butler now reverts to these good old days of the iron fist advancement of "American business and material prosperity" in other lands.

Dr. Butler, therefore, would rather have a man like Senator Claude Swanson, of Virginia, with his pro-League of Nations and pro-World Court position, in the republican party than Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who is at weakkneed cross purposes with the present Coolidge administration in its aggressions against Nicaragua, Mexico and China. Butler wants a republican parrot that bites on all cylinders at all times for the almighty dollar.

* * *

To get such a party means the break-up of the two old parties as they exist at the present time. If this is the development of the American party system, then there will inevitably arise a sort of "liberal" party, that will be out gunning for labor support, like the Lloyd George outfit in England in its early days, that even included many prominent labor officials, just as both the republicans and democrats have various sections of the labor officialdom in tow in this country.

The problem, therefore, is not only to understand that both the capitalist parties are of the same flesh and blood. It is also necessary to know that any offspring from this bi-partisan combination, even the 'liberal' labelled "liberal," will also develop as a devout supporter of the capitalist social order.

The re-alignment of political forces that is taking place thruout the nation must result in the strengthening of the Labor Party. Only thru the development of independent political action on a class basis will the workers and farmers be able to fight for their own interests, just as Dr. Butler again proposes to solidify, centralize and strengthen the political forces of American capitalism in its present stage of imperialism, with interests in every far-flung corner of the globe.

Vanderbilt Cooks

"You'll get pie, bye and bye, When you've learned how to bake and to fry."

sing rebel workers to the capitalists, after the revolution.

Young Cornelius Vanderbilt is doing what he can to prepare for the evil day. Having lost $3,000,000 in a newspaper deal, the son of America's richest millionaire decided to be a gazeteer—on Fifth Ave.—buying, he says, to save enough on his salary as a tabloid reporter to pay back the debt.

Cleveland Labor to Purchase a 500-Watt Radio Station Soon

CLEVELAND, (FP).—Kept off the air by pressure from employer organizations, Cleveland labor wants to follow Chicago's example and establish a radio station of its own. The opportunity to purchase a 500-watt plant, capable of broadcasting over a 50-mile radius, was reported to the Cleveland Federation of Labor.

Cleveland unions have been negotiating with the Chicago Federation of Labor's broadcasting station to reach their local membership and the Cleveland public generally by radio, according to the business representative Charles B. Smith of the building trades council.

Soviet War Department Outlaws the Aviators Who Fled to Poland

MOSCOW, Feb. 9.—The Commissariat of War announces that Commander Klin and mechanic Timoschuk of the Bielostok Flying Corps have fled to Poland with a Soviet aeroplane, after learning that they were to be arrested on charges of embezzlement. The war commissar announces that the two men are now outlawed.

Well Known Scientist Dies.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, and one of the best known scientists of the country, died today after a brief illness.

"Lizzie Jokes" Coin Money for Ford

(Continued from Page One)

restricted as to depress their market value.

This measure was a clause in the company's by-laws prohibiting any stockholder from selling his shares to "outsiders" unless all other stockholders waived their right to buy them.

Lowered Value.

It was used for the first time in the cross-examination of Ralph T. Crane, New York Banker, head of the securities department of Brown Brothers and Company, although it had become a part of the record in Detroit.

Over vigorous objections from John W. Davis, advisory counsel for the former stockholders, the board of tax appeals permitted testimony by Crane that the restriction would have been a "very important element" to anyone buying the stock.

Best Investment.

Crane insisted, however, that it would not reduce his "value" estimate, which was "not less than $9,500 per share.

This is the value claimed by Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, and the other former stockholders, and agreed to by the government in 1919. They sold out to Henry Ford in 1919 for $13,500 per share. Ford valued the 1913 value to $8,500 per share would add $6,000 a share to their taxable profits on the deal.

Crane declared it was impossible to find any company to compare, as an investment, with Ford's.

Ford Satisfied.

Business conditions in America are "as solid as a rock", Henry Ford declared today after a visit with President Coolidge at the White House. He called to pay his respects to the president.

Ford looks for no diminution on industrial prosperity in the near future.

He declared that prohibition "ought to be here to stay." "Alcohol is not good for anybody", he asserted. Ford leaves this afternoon to visit Thomas A. Edison, who will be 80 years old on Friday.

Couzens Holds Hag.

The suit itself does not directly involve Ford. He is not on trial, and though in Washington, takes a retiring non-committal attitude towards it all. Couzens in the early financier of the Ford Motors Co., and there appears to be no particular friendship towards him on the part of Ford. The reason Couzens was forced out of the concern he did so much to get going, has never been made public.

Lost His Arm When Making Movie for David W. Griffith

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 9.—A. Bender, a former soldier, on the witness stand in his suit against D. W. Griffith, well known motion picture producer, declared he took the part of a British soldier in the Bunker Hill battle scene Griffith was filming, and was instructed by Griffith in person and by a civilian employe in the operation of a cannon.

Under cross-examination by Davis, Bender said he had been instructed to swab out the gun barrel with cold water after each shot, but admitted that he did not know why. He declined, however, that he had failed to follow these instructions, which were given to prevent the heat in the cannon from igniting the fresh charge of powder. One charge exploded in spite of this, and carried away his hand.

The witness said he had been given an artificial hand at the hospital, but after wearing it three days, had put it away in a box, deciding that it was "useless and uncomfortable."

LEGISLATORS OF TEXAS EXPELLED ON BRIBE CHARGE

Holds Up Optometrist With License Bill

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 9.—The legislature today by an unanimous vote of the House expelled two representatives, F. A. Dale and H. E. Moore. This action followed their arrest a few days ago by Captain Frank Hamer and Tom Hickman, state rangers, for accepting a bribe by W. W. Chamberlain of Houston, legislative representative of the State Optometrist Association.

The legislators were caught in a trap, according to testimony before the committee of the House.

A bundle of $1,000 in marked bills was passed into the hands of Dale, who was arrested immediately thereafter. Moore's arrest quickly followed.

According to the testimony, Dale and Moore had promised to kill a bill introduced by Moore taxing optometrists, which was pending before the House Committee on Revenue and Taxation.

Testimony was taken by a separate committee of the legislature, which recommended that Dale and Moore be expelled.

Arguments on the committee's report to the House lasted two days. The vote for Dale's expulsion was 133 to 4 ayes, and on Moore's expulsion 199 to 18 nays.

PREPARE VETO OF PLEBISCITE BILL FOR PHILIPPINES

Coolidge Says Islands Not Advanced Enough

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Coolidge is preparing to veto the plebiscite bill passed by the legislature of the Philippines over the veto of Governor-General Wood.

The proposed plebiscite would settle the question, always posed by imperialist apologists in the islands and by America, as to whether the Filipinos themselves wish independence. It would have no other effect. The bitter opposition of General Wood and of the Washington administration to this simple test is taken by all pro-independence groups as proof that Wood and Coolidge know that the Filipinos do want independence, but that it is not wise to let them show their desires in such a public way as the plebiscite contemplates.

"Not Convinced."

Coolidge stands on his letter to Speaker Hoyas, sent two years ago. He has caused to be issued a statement that he is not convinced that the Filipino people "have made sufficient strides in self-government to enable them to carry on as an independent nation." He believes, it is said, "that ultimate liberty has been pledged them, but that the guiding hand of the United States must be used for years to lead them through the arts of self-government, education, sanitation and kindred necessities." Left to their own resources, they might become the prey of jealous nations, he is said to feel. Nor would their commerce and business provide them with the funds sufficient for a self-sustaining country. He is said to be pleased with what he regards as the remarkable progress which the Filipinos have made since their dominion by Spain was ended, but considers it not sufficient.

Real Reasons Not Told.

The president does not mention the increasing investment of American capital in the Philippines, the exploitation there of cheap native labor by that capital, the laying out of rubber plantations, nor the importance of the Manila naval base in a campaign against China, as reasons for denying the islands their promised independence, but these factors are known to influence the government.

Judge E. E. Zeniger of Akron, O., sprang into fame the other day and excited favorable editorials in all the biggest papers by hooting up John Cayes, wailing trial before him, with a rubber hose. Judge Zeniger has long advocated the whipping post for wife beaters, and immediately issued a statement that he had lashed Cayes for that crime."

One trouble with his argument seems to be that Cayes was not arrested for wife beating at all, but merely for drunkenness. He is a bricklayer, who sought refuge from the monotony of laying one on top of another by a moderate bottle or too, and got something stronger than he sought.

PLENARY SESSION OF THE EXECUTIVE OF THE CHINESE SEAMEN'S UNION REPORTS PROGRESS

CANTON, China.—The Chinese Seamen's union head office in this city has sent the following letter to the Red International of Labor unions, headquarters at Moscow:

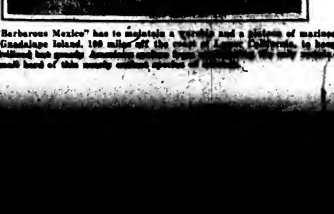
Red International of Trade Unions, Moscow:

Comrades:

It has been fifteen months since we joined the Canton - Hongkong strike, immediately after the imperialist massacre in Shanghai on May 30, 1925. Amidst our struggle, although our attentions were chiefly directed to external affairs, we never forgot our internal work. Consequently a re-organization conference was held last January, and for the following eleven months we devoted our energy to the development of our union and the coherence of our strength.

In the span of eleven months, nearly three thousand new members enrolled, ship committees on board twenty-three ships have been inaugurated and many schools for workers and their children have been established. There is also organized an employment bureau, through which seamen comrades have acquired their jobs.

To review our fighting strength for further struggle, the third plenary session of the executive committee sat at Canton on the 16th inst. It found our past work satisfactory and recommends continued efforts.



We are thankful to recall the moral and material support which the Canton - Hongkong strike received from our comrades of every country, and which has done much to strengthen our decision to stand to the last in the struggle against our mutual enemies.

Comrades! We know from experience that the unity of the working class is imperative, for unity is our power. With this spirit we shake hands with you, and hope you will guide and help us, your juvenile comrades!

The Third Executive Committee of the Chinese Seamen's Union,
Chairman, SON CHEN HING.

Frank E. Campbell, Jr., 14, is insured for $1,000,000, it became known today through supplanting Jackie Coogan, the movie star, as the world's most heavily insured boy. Jackie's policy is for $650,000.

Mexican Gunboat Saves Last of Elephant Seals

"Barbarous Mexico" has to maintain a warship and a platoon of marines near Guadalupe Island, 100 miles off the coast of California, to keep the sheltered bay patrolled. Americans, seeking ivory, slaughtered all but a few of the elephant seals which made their annual herd of this remote island.

GREAT STRIKE OF EASTERN MARYLAND'S STOCK MAY END STRIKE

Owners May Make It Reason for Yielding

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Whether railroad labor will get a larger share in the "prosperity" of 1926 will be settled in the strike of 2,000 employes of the Maryland Railroad west of the Baltimore & Ohio, and his Wheeling & Lake Erie system to the Nickel Plate, Wabash, Cleveland and Baltimore & Ohio interests.

Train service brotherhoods' officials in Washington were confident, when the B. & O. statement was issued, that the end of their two-years' strike on the Western Maryland was near.

Rockefeller Control.

Rockefeller was identified as the largest stockholder and actual controlling influence behind Byars, and during the past year he has been under fire from many quarters because of the ruthlessly unfair labor policy pursued by Byars. This side of his stock is made plain in the eve of the publication of a joint report on the causes and effects of the strike, by investigators for the Federal Council of Churches, the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Central Council of American Rabbis.

A. O. Wharton, president of the International Association of Machinists, leader of the railroad shop crafts and for four years a member of the Railroad Labor Board, refused to express optimism over the stock deal.

Battle of Cash.

"Wait and see what the Interstate Commerce Commission does on this sale of stock in the Western Maryland and the Wheeling & Lake Erie," was his advice. "If the B. & O. is really to adopt a policy, then it is a fortunate thing for rail labor organizations. But there are billions of dollars involved on both sides of this contest in the stock market between the Lorse group and the New York Central, the Nickel Plate or Van Sweringston interests and the B. & O. We do not know what will happen next, to affect the labor policy on any of these big roads or the little ones. It's a gigantic battle, involving the destruction of Lorse, with his backers who are not identified, to have a road through the eastern territory. The Pennsylvania has been obstructive, the policies of the opposition, for its own peculiar ends. It is a battle of big money, and labor does not figure in it at all except as labor gains or suffers by the policy of the winner."

Don't Trust B. & O.

The rank and file on strike see no assurance that the B. & O. will do better than the Rockefeller interests did, but think that the transfer may be made an excuse for retreat on the part of the railroad management from the determined efforts of the strikers to win.

Scandinavians Form Cooperative Society; Deals in Foodstuffs

A group of Scandinavians met at Vasa hall, 62nd street, near 3rd avenue in Brooklyn, to discuss the possibility of organizing a co-operative store in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn.

At this meeting Mr. Molin, the executive secretary of the Co-operative League in Sweden, addressed the meeting on the subject of "Co-operation in Sweden." Mr. Cedric Long, executive secretary of the Co-operative League in the U. S. A. spoke on some of his experiences along these lines in America.

Tells of Finnish Trading.

Mr. Wil Kruth, one of the directors of the Finnish Trading Association, gave the history of this institution. Mr. Wirkkula, the last speaker, spoke on the inside facts and data of the Finnish Trading Association. Mr. Wirkkula dealt mainly with the management and financing of the association. He also announced that the Finnish Trade Association would grant financial and other assistance to the future co-operative store.

After the speakers had concluded, the audience participated in a lively discussion which resulted in a committee of nine being appointed to investigate about a future co-operative association in Bay Ridge.

Committee Meets.

This committee met a few days later in the offices of the Finnish Trading Association, 620 5th Ave., Brooklyn. It was suggested that a store dealing in food products, such as bakery goods, meats, groceries, etc., would at present be the best thing as it is most needed. The best location was found to be between 39th and 40th street and between 3rd and 4th avenues.

Chaliapin's Daughter Works.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Stella Chaliapin, daughter of Feodor Chaliapin, former bass of the Metropolitan Opera, has gone to work as a sales-girl in a fifth avenue department store.

Her decision to become a working girl was made while her father accompanied his own opera company on a tour. Because he might be criticized the idea, she acted while he was away.

Central Press

Dorothy Newson, of Wayne, Ark., is another woman student of engineering. She is studying at University of Arkansas. In other universities there are usually one or two girls taking similar courses. Capitalism and modern industrialism are breaking down the barriers between "men's work" and "women's work." But they usually operate to force women to do a double shift, one at home and the other in the factory, where they get lower wages than the men for the same type of work. These engineering students are considerably luckier than the average woman worker.

MIDDLE CLASS BEING LIQUIDATED WHILE BIG BUSINESS CALLS IT A PROSPEROUS YEAR IS STATISTICAL RECORD OF BUSINESS FAILURES

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press).

A decided increase in the number of business failures in 1926 shows that the prosperity of American capitalism rests on an insecure foundation. The great banker corporations are bulwarked by huge reserves which would carry them through a long depression. But smaller private businesses would be weeded out or absorbed while labor would be faced with unemployment.

The number of commercial failures during 1926, according to both Dun's and Bradstreet's reviews, exceeded any year since 1922. With the exception of 1922 the 1926 figure is the highest on record. Dun shows 21,773 failures in 1926 compared with 21,214 in 1925 and 20,615 in 1924.

Doctors Disagree.

Dun and Bradstreet disagree on the liabilities of the concerns involved. Dun places the 1926 liabilities at $409,232,278 compared with $453,744,372 in 1925, a decrease of about 8%. Bradstreet has reported only on the failures of the first 11 months of the year, the figure being $560,022,323 compared with $436,528,101 in the first 11 months of 1925, an increase of 12.8%. Bradstreet's final total for 1926 will undoubtedly exceed $600,000,000.

Plenty Fail.

Bradstreet's figures for the failures and liabilities of the first 11 months of each year since 1912 are:

Business Failures	Number	Liabilities
1912	12,502	$186,353,034
1913	12,885	253,422,989
1914	14,567	323,489,441
1915	17,447	256,483,716
1916	15,149	157,605,641
1917	12,048	150,081,871
1918	8,819	128,016,124
1919	5,029	106,598,353
1920	6,727	330,032,016
1921	17,581	674,342,828
1922	20,553	602,042,462
1923	17,301	560,921,644
1924	17,801	637,086,384
1925	17,231	436,528,101
1926	18,042	560,022,323

The last month of the year, according to Dun, showed a very material increase both in number of failures and in total liabilities. There were 2069 December failures with $45,619,578 liabilities compared with 1878 failures and $36,570,160 liabilities in December, 1925. The increase in liabilities was 25%.

Middle Class.

Dun's figures for December classify the failures according to line of business. There were 494 failures among manufacturers, 1469 among storekeepers and 106 in other commercial lines. Among the classified manufacturers those producing lumber and lumber products suffered most with 60 failures and $2,480,730 liabilities. Manufacturers of machinery and tools came next with 33 failures and total liabilities of $2,249,236. Among the traders, food stores, clothing stores and furniture stores suffered the heaviest casualties.

As a whole the figures show clearly that although the totals involved are large the persons hit belong to the class of petty capitalists who bridge the gap between the dominant business interests and the working class.

Prolet-Tribune Appears In Chicago, Feb. 26th

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 9.—The next issue of the Prolet-Tribune, the Russian living newspaper of the Chicago Novy Mir Worker Correspondents, will be out Saturday, Feb. 26, published at the Workers' House, 1902 West Division St., beginning at 8 P. M. Admission is 25 cents.

Green Tells New Haven Workers About America Being a Perfect Heaven

(By a Worker Correspondent)

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 9.—The much heralded mass meeting of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, under the auspices of the New Haven Trades Council, drew a big crowd at the Bijou Theatre, last Sunday, Feb. 6.

A mixed group of labor men and those interested in the organized labor movement awaited eagerly to hear what the "head" of the A. F. of L. had to say regarding the burning questions that at present confront organized labor in America. They expected to hear what the successor of the "greatest labor leader of our time," Mr. Sam Gompers, as the chairman of the meeting put it, thought about the intensive campaign that the manufacturers' association is waging at present against the trade unions, in their effort to smash company "unions."

Expected Much.

The public had all reasons to expect to hear the spokesman of organized labor express himself on his attitude towards our state department's stand against Nicaragua, Mexico and China and the struggle of the Chinese to be free of the foreign yoke.

If the people expected to hear Mr. Green touch upon these subjects — they were greatly disappointed, as Mr. Green's mind was turned in a different direction and this is—to glorify the ideal conditions that the workers enjoy in this country, to said that all is well with us; that we are better off here than the workers in any European country, ascribing these blessings to the "safe and sane" policy of the A. F. of L. in dealing with the different labor problems.

Green Is Proud.

Mr. Green pointed out with pride that different labor commissions are being sent here from European countries to study our methods as to "how we make it work," getting such high wages that enable workers to own automobiles. And all this we attained, he exclaimed, in spite of our opposition to independent political action. And here Mr. Green pleaded most eloquently the cause of "rewarding our friends and punishing our enemies," and pictured the horrors that would result if organized labor would join a labor party movement.

No Questions Allowed.

The meeting was over. No questions were allowed, and this was a great advantage for Mr. Green, as he would have a hard job to prove his assertions that all the workers in this country are getting such high wages that the methods used by the A. F. of L. in organizing the workers deserve to be followed by the workers of other countries.

STATESVILLE, N. C., Feb. 9.—A man-hunting mob of 500, armed with rifles, pistols and shotguns, this afternoon was surrounding a dense swamp near here, searching for the slayer of R. Pastor, alleged slayer of his wife.

SMITH TO SIT IN SENATE; THEN GO

Problem of Man Caught In Act Irks Solons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—After a lengthy investigation of precedents, the senate elections committee decided formally today to recommend the immediate seating of Senator-designate Frank L. Smith (R) of Illinois, and to recommend further his subsequent expulsion from the senate because of his expenditures in last November's senatorial primary.

The committee failed to take final action in the case because of a disagreement over the manner of writing its report to the senate.

A majority favored letting Smith take the oath of office at once, but then to declare his seat vacant. Minority reports probably will be filed by some members of the committee protesting against both decisions.

The committee will meet again tomorrow.

The Reed investigating committee uncovered vast sums of money granted to Smith for primary election purposes by the electrical super-power and traction magnate, Samuel Insull, of Chicago. It also disclosed that Insull had financed Smith's chief opponent, though to a lesser amount, evidently dealing with the victor, whoever might win.

City of Angeles to Hear Bishop Brown Speak March Sixth

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—William Montgomery Brown will speak in Los Angeles Sunday, March 6th, at 8:00 P. M. at the Trinity Auditorium, 9th and Grand Avenue. He will speak on the interesting subject, "The Power of the Workers."

Dates are being arranged for him in Long Beach and Pasadena. You are requested to keep the above date open. For further details watch the columns of The DAILY WORKER. Paul C. Reiss is in charge of the arrangements for the meetings.

Denounces Stupid Officials.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Plans of Maj. Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator of New York, to have Rabbis supply him names of all persons that consume sacramental wine, started Rep. La Guardia of New York on the warpath today.

In a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, La Guardia said:

"It is only the hopeless bewilderment of your administrator, Chester P. Mills, and the stupid, impossible orders sent out by him that again compels me to direct your attention to the last blunder of this incompetent official."

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

sional is an extremely useful institution in the catholic church and to the capitalist government. Fosdick wants to foist this bit of 11th century "modernism" on his flock.

* * *

GLEEFUL chuckles can be heard in Washington and London over the reported retreat of the Cantonese. It seems the imperialists feel their nationals quite safe under the tender care of Sun Chuan Fang's bandits. But their big guns were ready to roar when the armies of the nationalist government were approaching. Yet, even the missionaries admit that the Cantonese, thru the Koumintang Party, are the only political group in the history of China with a program other than murder and pillage. The capitalists favor the brigands, Fang and Chang-Tso-Lin, because they are purchasable. They are hostile to the Cantonese because the latter intend to restore China to the people of China. They purpose to clear out the foreign imperialist armies of occupation and to clean up the native militarists.

* * *

AN eight month jail sentence and a $1,000 fine were imposed on a Boston publisher for caricaturing former mayor James E. Curley in a cartoon representing a convict with ball and chain and editorializing on the latter's alleged partiality for the cup that cheers. The former mayor once served a jail term, the best political investment he ever made. While a young man he evaded laborious work but spent much time in the public library, thus acquiring a fair acquaintanceship with the classics. He learned enough about arithmetic to enable him to pass an examination for post office clerk, for a friend who had a large family but little education.

* * *

Curley's offense was brought to official notice, a trial followed and he was sent to the penitentiary on Deer Island for a few months. Later on, when running for mayor the wily James would plant a hardy knight in the crowd attending his meetings and have him ask the question: "Is it or is not true that you served a term in jail?" In a deep voice that hinted a trace of truthfulness the candidate would first caution the audience not to slaughter the miscreant and then he would reply: "Yes, it is true that I took an examination for a poor man with a large family. It is true that this my efforts he secured a position and enabled him to maintain his wife and little ones in comfort. And it is also true that owning to the machinations of the blue-stockinged, poodle-petting parasites of the Back Bay (Boston's aristocratic colony) I was sent to jail. But I am not ashamed of my action, and I would go to jail any time to help a worthy friend in need."

* * *

By this time the candidate's eloquence would be lost to the text in save the questioning culprit from the angry crowd. Curley became many mainly because of a few months in jail. The publicity which he received to excite the populace against a man who went to jail for a friend, built a reputation for never having been on his mother or sent his wife out to do washing and in addition could boast a stein of beer with the lads is a candidate for an asylum for the feeble-minded.

* * *

WE are so busy trying to clean up the stage, magazines and periodicals that cater to the salacious minded, abate the evils that are preying on our legal institutions—the chief) vendors of straw bail—that we completely overlooked the tremendous of honest astrologers whose profession has been invaded by hordes of "pretenders and charlatans who for twenty-five cents will deliver a ready-made horoscope." In other words the legitimate fraud will get at least one dollar for what the illegitimate interloper will turn out for two bits.

* * *

Dr. Brooks, who is holding the thin red line for the "genuine" astrologers, wants a law passed that would provide for a yearly license fee of $25 for those practising astrology. This would drive the twenty-five center into bootlegging his horoscopes.

Dr. Brooks claims that the profession is a social necessity. He says: "Many times we are consulted on marriages—whether a comparison of the prospective bride and groom shows the union would be a happy one." We suggest that the Doctor bring his mystic art to the attention of the Hollywood movie colony. He would be kept as busy there as a furniture mover.

"Eagle Workers Point" Depots Young Workers in Struggle

By J. MAKE

(Worker Correspondent)

The young workers of the Pencil Company, see their opportunity in the shop newspaper, "Workers' Point." They also are driving force behind it striking very heart, (the pocketbooks) of bosses.

What has happened in the past month? Christmas came and went, then New Years came and went. What did the bosses give the young workers as a Christmas and New Years present? A vacation lasting over a week. Imagine a whole week of joy only thinking of tasting, but they received no wages and lots of empty stomachs, also preparing for a big New Year, and more likely worse than the last.

The bosses also had a vacation with pay, taken from the sweat and toil of the youth in the factory, but they also took inventory so that they know with what amount of profit they are starting in the New Year, how to make more profit, even more than the last year, from the toil and sweat of the young workers in the factory.

Christmas and New Years are no isolated cases. Every legal holiday, the workers are cheated of with no pay, if the holidays comes out on a Friday, they are off Saturday also.

"Recently, leaflets for a tablecloth memorial meeting were distributed to members of the Young Workers League in front of the pencil company. What was the demand of the young workers? Where is the "Eagle Workers' Point?" They know that the Young Workers' League through the "Eagle Workers Point," are leading them in their struggle against the bosses of the factory they work in.

Even the adult workers, who are fifty per cent of the total number of workers in the plant, which is about two thousand old timers, and new are grumbling about the conditions there, and know that they must stick with the youth in the struggle, which is their own.

Contributions such as articles and donations should be sent in for the next issue of the "Eagle Workers' Point." Above all, the young workers should join the ranks of the Young Workers' League, and help bring the message more clearly to the rest of the workers in the Eagle Pencil Company. With the immediate demand of a "Full pay for all Legal holidays."

Carpenters' Strike in San Francisco Not Yet Settled; Officers Talk

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9.—The carpenters' strike is going on here. The union officials, working under strict control by Hutcheson, the reactionary dictator of the union, have been negotiating with the employers but without an agreement to date.

The strike has been in progress since April 1, 1926, and is for the closed shop.

How Near Are We to War?

By I. AMTER.

Fascists are loud in their attacks on war. "War must not come, but should it come, all good men must help it." They protest against the sharp attacks on Mexico on the grounds of its being bolshevistic; they decry the schemes of "American munitions" on the grounds that they are serving only the "bankers of Wall Street" (using almost communistic terminology); they demand that China be given full sovereignty over her country—and yet do not see that we are close to another gigantic conflict.

France is incorporating flame-throwing squads in every battalion of the army and does so on the specious plea that all the other nations are doing so, and that therefore she must do so "for purely defensive reasons." France declares that the United States is the instigator of the whole nefarious plan, for the U. S. refuses to be part of the general disarmament scheme. There is no more reason to believe the French than the American government—we cannot believe any of them, for they all are in the midst of the most tremendous war preparations that the world has ever seen.

Mr. Coolidge pretends to be a pacifist, by refusing to consent to the building of three fast cruisers. Congress votes them over his head and wonders what he will do with the Jimmy Thomas, of Black Friday and Red Friday shame, declares that if British nationals are endangered, it is the duty of the government to send a handful of marines to make an effective army. Then the capitalist forces place their helpers in the ranks of the British workers—the leaders of the pseudo-Independent Labor party and of the Labor party are all for war on a big scale. The British Communist Party issues leaflets to the workers about to leave for the Chinese front—for these men are in the front ranks of the coming war.

Soviet Russia is on the alert, for Japan has not yet disclosed her plans. The United States and England will go together, it is stated. That will depend greatly on the success of the Cantonese armies, aided by the advice of Soviet Russia. If they press forward to the north, threatening the area of Japan's influence, the latter country may go into the fight on the side of Chang Tso Lin. The attitude of the three governments will depend on what the Canton government does. England wants her concessions safeguarded—Japan is afraid of her concessions—but also her sphere of influence. The United States wants the "open door." What will be the outline of the battle?

No one can predict today—but all the powers are preparing for war. That much is sure—and all the Liberal papers may claim that they are preventing the war-mongers from plunging the U. S. into a new war, but the fact remains that the workers are being torn from their recruited, are the armies being filled out with chemicals, gases and flame-throwers.

"In times of peace prepare for war." They are preparing all right, for war is in the offing. Up till a short time ago, war preparations were denied by the several nations. They gave figures, etc., to prove that their armies were smaller, and their war budgets smaller. But now on the grounds that they are all doing it, the imperialist powers admit that everything is being made ready.

America will be deeply involved in this war—so too will England. A few days ago the papers announced that the Kuo Min Tang was entering into touch with the Government of Afghanistan in order to come to terms with that country. Afghanistan is the route from China to India. As the Cantonese army proceeds victoriously northward, the flames of revolt will spread through Afghanistan to India. That will be a double threat to England. As America gets more deeply involved in China, the spirit of revolt against American imperialism will spread in the semi-dependencies of Mexico, Haiti, Cuba, San Domingo, etc., and will be aided by Sonth America. Already a revolt is spreading in the Philippines.

How far are we from war? Would the question not be more fitting "how near are we to war?"

Workers [Communist] Party

JOSEPH BRODSKY TO GIVE CLASS IN WORKERS SCHOOL ON CIVICS, GOVERNMENT AND COURTS

Joseph Brodsky, the noted labor attorney of New York City who helped defend the strikers of Passaic and those on the Interborough Rapid Transit, will give a special course this spring in "Civics and Government" at the New York Workers' School, 108 East 14 Street, on Monday nights, beginning February 21.

The workers of New York City and vicinity have learned much during the past year about the nature of the government. Courts, police, mayors, injunctions, etc., are concrete terms the meaning of which they have learned from hard experience. The course in "Civics and Government" aims to analyze government and law in New York and the United States especially in their relation to labor.

Analysis of Law.

The origin of the constitution, the provisions of the constitutions, powers of the courts and the president, the so-called rights of citizens, the position and status of aliens, development of bureaucracy and governmental power, labor and the law, immigration laws and deportation, the question of civil liberties are but some of the points that will be studied.

Plenty Experience.

Joseph Brodsky is well fitted to give such a course. Few attorneys in this country have had the experience he has had in the handling of labor cases, deportation cases and cases involving civil liberties.

Those wishing to become citizens, those wishing to know the rights of labor before the law, those interested in such questions as immigration, deportation and civil liberties should take this course. Registrations are now being accepted for this course. For catalog of all courses at the Workers' School, write to Bertram D. Wolfe, director of the school, 108 East 14 St., N. Y. C.

THE "NATIONAL" AND INTERNATIONAL TASKS OF THE REVOLUTION ARE ONE AND INDIVISABLE.

Editor's note—The accompanying article is an extract from the report of Secretary Stalin, of the Russian Communist Party, to the Enlarged Executive Committee Meeting of the Communist International.

Third question: The third question is that of the problem of the "national" and international tasks of the proletarian revolution in one country or another. The party holds the view that the "national" and international tasks of the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. merge into the one general task of emancipating the proletariat of all countries from capitalism, that the interests of the construction of socialism in our country are wholly and completely merge with the interests of the revolutionary movement in all countries, into one common interest of the victory of the revolution in all countries. What would happen if the proletariat of all countries did not sympathize with and support the Soviet Republic? There would be intervention, and the Soviet Republic would be destroyed.

What would happen if the capitalists managed to destroy the Soviet Republic? A period of the blackest reaction would set in all capitalist and colonial countries. The working class and the oppressed nations would be crushed. The positions of international Communism would be destroyed.

What will happen if the support and sympathy of the proletariat of all countries towards the Soviet Republic will increase and grow? This will considerably facilitate the construction of socialism in the U. S. S. R. What will happen if the achievements of socialist construction will increase in the U. S. S. R.? This will immeasurably improve the revolutionary positions of the proletariat of all countries in their fight against capital. It will undermine the positions of international capital in its fight against the proletariat and increase the chances of world Communism to the highest degree.

From this it follows that the interests and tasks of the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. are interwoven and inseparably connected with the interests and the tasks of the revolutionary movement in all countries, and vice versa, the tasks of the revolutionary proletariat of all countries are inseparably connected with the tasks and achievements of the proletariat of the U. S. S. R. on the front of socialist construction.

Consequently, to contrast the "national" tasks of the proletariat of one country or another to its international tasks, means to commit a profound error in policy.

Consequently, to describe the real and passion displayed by the proletariat in their struggle on the front of socialist construction as a symptom of "national insularity" and "narrow nationalism," as the opposition sometimes does, is nothing but madness or decrepitude.

Consequently, the assertion that the intersts and the tasks of the proletariat of one country are one and indivisible with the interests of the tasks of the proletariat of all countries is the surest guide to the victory of the revolutionary movement of the proletariat of all countries.

It is precisely for this reason that the victory of the revolution in a single country is not an end in itself, but a means, a lever of the development and the victory of the revolution in all countries.

Therefore, to construct socialism in the U. S. S. R. means to serve the common cause of the proletariat of all countries. It means to forge the victory over capitalism, not only in the U. S. S. R., but in all capitalist countries as well; for the victory of the U. S. S. R. is part of the world revolution, it is its beginning and the base for its expansion.

Will Describe Stock Exchange Animals at Workers School, Sun.

Arnold Roller will lecture at the Workers' School Forum this Sunday night (February 13) on "The Workings of the Stock Exchange." He will make an analysis of the Stock Exchange as a medium for the expropriation of the middle class and of the lower middle class and will describe the mysterious procedures whereby the "bulls" and "bears" get the "lambs" and are at times in turn themselves eaten by the "wolves of Wall Street."

Active Syndicalist.

Roller, who today describes himself as a "pro-Soviet syndicalist," has a long record of activity in the syndicalist movement. He is the author of "The General Strike and the Social Revolution," "The History of the Spanish Labor Movement," "Direct Action," and various other pamphlets written from a syndicalist point of view. He has not only studied the Stock Exchange theoretically, but has himself dabbled in stocks in a small way and therefore has first-hand experience as a rather unusually successful "lamb."

Postpones Fischer.

The lecture by Louis Fischer, originally announced for next Sunday night, is postponed to March 13.

On the following Sunday, February 20, M. J. Olgin will speak on "Contemporary Russian Literature."

The Workers' School Forum takes place every Sunday at 8 p. m. at the headquarters of the school, 108 East 14 Street.

Young Workers Ball to Launch Campaign for Doubling Membership

The Young Workers (Communist) League, Dist. 2, will launch its membership drive to double the League membership, with a grand ball and dance to be held Saturday, Feb. 19th, at the Harlem Casino.

All party and league comrades are urged to be present at this affair and to bring along their friends and shopmates. A snappy band will jazz things up and a good time will be had by all. After working all week long every worker will welcome this opportunity to meet his friends, and dance and enjoy himself all Saturday evening.

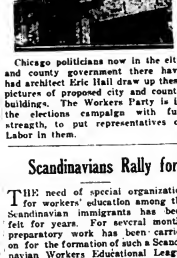
Every League member should bring down every acquaintance of his, and all his fellow workers and let this campaign to double the League membership receive a real response and impetus.

Trade Negotiations Between Poland and Germany Broken Off

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Trade negotiations between Germany and Poland have been broken off duo to a refusal on Poland's part to accept the first principal common to all trade treaties—that of allowing citizens of the nation with which they are contracting to reside in the country for business purposes.

Although Germany amended that article to permit only those Germans to reside in Poland who could prove it was necessary for business purposes, the Poles refused to accept this agreement and began systematically driving German business men out of the country, by special taxes and other measures.

The Germany government says Poland's object is to nullify the point by dragging out the negotiations until all Germans have left the country. For that reason Berlin has broken off negotiations. It is denied that the action is due to the new conservative government here.



Riazanoff on Marx and Engels New Publication In English Translation

Prof. D. Riazanoff's book, "Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels," a searching analysis of their lives and the time in which they lived and worked, has been published by International Publishers, New York. It is translated from the Russian, and tells of the most prominent literary collaboration in history.

Insurgent Surrenders.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 9.—Deserted by his followers and denounced by his wife, Datu Tahil, leader of the short-lived uprising in Sulu province against the government, has surrendered to the constabulary it was reported here today.

Proposed City Hall

Chicago politicians now in the city and county government there have had architect Eric Hall draw up these pictures of proposed city and county buildings. The Workers Party in the elections campaign with full strength, to put representatives of Labor in them.

Scandinavians Rally for Workers Class-Education!

THE need of special organization for workers' education among the Scandinavian immigrants has been felt for years. For several months preparatory work has been carried on for the formation of such a Scandinavian Workers Educational League in Illinois; on Sunday, Jan. 30, 1927, the second conference of delegates was called to a meeting in the Bricklayers' House, Chicago, at which meeting the league was definitely constituted, constitution and by-laws adopted, and executive and educational committees elected. Delegates representing 7,450 workers were present. Among those sending delegates were Scandinavian fraternal organizations, such as the Order of Vasa, Scandinavian Fraternity of America, Order of Vikings, and the Scandinavian I. O. G. T. lodges of Illinois, workingmen's clubs, Scandinavian I. L. D. branches, and Scandinavian I. W. W. propaganda groups.

The initiative for these conferences was taken by the weekly "Ny Tid" and the workingmen's clubs in Chicago. Special emphasis was made by the league for workers' class education and that all bourgeois or semi-bourgeois tendencies should be guarded against. The unity of purpose and action during the entire conference was marked, proving that the work for a Scandinavian Workers' Educational League is a solidifying force, uniting all the various elements among Scandinavians, where they can collectively assert themselves and present a united front in attempts to materialize their demands.

The immediate program calls for the organization of the league on a national scale, so as to reach all Scandinavian workers in America with class educational activities; the study of the American labor movement; American history, with special stress on the American Revolution and Civil War periods; study of the part taken by the Scandinavian workers in the building up of America and the role of the workers in the American labor movement; the study of the English language, both written and spoken, as the key to Americanization; immigrants are quickly assimilated in American customs and language. The work of the league will not only be elementary English but also as well.

Tours for prominent educators and speakers here and abroad are also planned. All Scandinavian organizations in Illinois who are interested in educational work should immediately get in touch with the league's secretary (pro tem), Carl Mattson, 2603 N. California Ave., Chicago.

Protect the Foreign-Born.

The Scandinavian Council for the Protection of Foreign-Born in Illinois, representing 12,000 workers, is actively engaged in work among its 50 or more affiliated organizations. The executive board has mapped out a plan for an intensive campaign during which speakers are to visit these affiliated organizations, talking on the importance and the consequences of the proposed registration and immigration bills now pending in congress.

A resolution, which vigorously protested against the passage of these bills, has been drawn up and will be presented at these organizations and efforts will be made to have it adopted and sent to all the congressmen from Illinois, chairmen of the committee of naturalization and immigration of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives and to the Scandinavian press.

A mass meeting with Senator Shipstead is planned for some time in March. A counsel has been organized in Rockford, Ill., representing 1,200 workers and its third conference will be held within a few weeks. Plans are also under way to combine the various Scandinavian Councils for the Protection of Foreign-Born in America into a National Scandinavian Council.

Hungarian Worker Sport Club Holds Affair In Cleveland, Feb. 20

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 9.—There will be an entertainment given by the Hungarian Workers' Sport Club, Sunday, Feb. 20, in the evening. There will be a gypsy orchestra, and Hungarian national dancing, also singing and dramatics. This will be at the Hungarian Workers' Home, 4309 Lorain Ave. No admission is charged, but hat checks are for sale at a nominal price.

The Hungarian Workers' soccer team is affiliated with the Red Sports International.

DRAMA

A SUPER-PERFORMANCE

Habima Players Present "The Golem" at the Irving Place Theatre

A superb performance of "The Golem" by H. Leivick, was given by the Moscow Theatre Habima. It is one of the few productions now available in theatrical New York that is totally devoid of the merest vestige of cheapness, sentimentality and pathos—the three inseparable villains that both decorate and vitiate the dramatic stream that muddies Broadway. The Moscow Hebrews grace this mystical drama with a noble grandeur and an intensity that is at once so passionate and inspiring that the onlooker and auditor is transported from the seat of his temporal cares and worries to the fantastic Golemic region of terror and catastrophe.

It is a realm where every shaft of ever-changing light and color has a meaning of its own. It is a simple platform rendered significant by the complex and intriguing arrangement of geometric lines. It is a stage where the variation of every sound, the design of every gesture and the sculpture of every posture is studiously conceived and mathematically correlated. When into this 'heaving sea of expertly orchestrated sound, line and color is poured the elixer of noble, dignified and passionate inspiration—we get a performance of the Habima.

There are supreme moments, lyrically. The marching forth of the "Messiah," and Elijah into the desert, was the most glorious expression of poetic hopelessness and despair. The trudging on of the seemingly endless, semi-circular line of homeless Jews, who were exiled by the craftily cruel Tadeush, reveals a pathos and wretchedness rendered sufferable only by an Hebrew-like patience. The moulding of the Golem into unsolicited life, as well as his involuntary surcease were accomplished by a minimum of design, and variety and with a maximum of inner experience.

There are supreme histrionic instances. A. Meskin's Golem is unquestionably inhabited. That monstrous fabric, with sinister vacuity of expression, that savage hopelessness where he is forsaken, that doglike obedience to his master, that infantile tendency to play with fire, that voracious appetite, the clumsy utilization of his body—there are accomplishments to be seen but once in a decade. B. Tchemarinsky is completely immersed in the obstinacy, fanaticism, contemplativeness and diplomacy of the well-meaning Maharl. And Ben Aris, lunatic, perfectly combines the madness of a disordered brain and the amorphous findings of a keen intuition into a credibly tragic whole.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

When the Rochester Opera Company plays at the Guild Theatre, the week of April 4th, the Theatre Guild will present its production of Shaw's "Pygmalion" to the Adelphi Theatre.

McKAY MORRIS

Featured in "Off Key," Robert V. Newman's first production, which opened at the Belmont Tuesday night.

Philadelphia for that week only.

The Neighborhood Playhouse announces that the week beginning February 17 through February 23 will be the last week of "The Dybbuk". "Pinwheel" will resume February 24th and play thereafter.

"The Crown Prince", is announced for early production by L. Lawrence Weber. The cast is headed by Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis and includes; Ferdinand Gottschalk, Henry Stephenson, Kay Strozzi, Harold Heaton, and C. W. Van Voorhis. The adaptation has been made by Zoe Akins. The play opens in Atlantic City Monday, Feb. 21st.

"Granite" by Clemence Dane, will open at the American Laboratory Theatre this Friday night. The play was produced at the Ambassador Theatre in London last summer.

Harold Atteridge, librettist of the Winter Garden revue "Gay Paree of 1927", with Maurie Rubens, composer of the revue, will pay a brief visit to Paris to assist Albert De Courville with the Parisian production which is to be known over there as "Gay New York."

Beginning February 20th the Shuberts plan a series of Sunday night performances for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. They will have the co-operation of the various players, stage hands and musicians, Actors' Equity and the Actors' Fund. The first of the series on Sunday night, February 20, at Jolson's Theatre will be "The Nightingale".

"The Spider," a new mystery play, opened at the Klaw Theatre in New Haven Monday night. It is scheduled to reach Broadway in two weeks. In the cast are John Halliday and Betty Weston.

Willard Mack has written a new third act for his play "Honor Be Damned", at the Morosco.

"Spellbound", which was to have opened at the Klaw Theatre this Tuesday afternoon, has been postponed to next Tuesday. It will be seen for matinees only.

AMUSEMENTS

Civic Repertory Thea. 14th St. W. of 6th Av. Evs. 8:30. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
This Afternoon "CRADLE SONG"
Tonight "LA VENTURE"
Tomorrow Night "CRADLE SONG"

AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre W'ys at 48 St. 6TH MONTH Mats. Wed. and Sat.

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF 49th St. East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2.30.

RITZ Thea. 48th St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8.30. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2.30.
Bye Bye Bonnie
Musical Fun Fest with Dorothy Burgess, Rudolph Cameron, Louis Simon, William Frawley.

Sam HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. E. of B'way. Twice Daily, 2.30 & 8.30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. Tues. Sat. 2.30. Evs. 8.30.

Neighborhood Playhouse 466 Grand St. Drydock 7810
Every Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
By Vincent Lawrence and Joseph Pagano
"THE DYBBUK"—Feb. 17.

KLAW THEA., W. 45th St. Evs. 8:30 MATINEES THURS. & SAT.
"SINNER"
With Allan Dinehart & Claiborne Foster

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Evs. 8:30. Mats. Wed. Fri. Sat.
WINTHROP AMES' PIRATES OF PENZANCE
Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. Thursday Evening Only. "Iolanthe"

Theatre Guild Acting Company in
PYGMALION
Week Feb. 14—GARRICK
GUILD Thea., W. 52d St. Evs. 8:30. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

Ned McCobb's Daughter
Week Feb. 14—KLEIN'S
John Golden Thea., 58 E. of B'way. Circle 8674. Mats. Thurs. & Sat.

Garment Commission's Chief Statistician to Address Workers School

Morris Kolchin, chief statistician of the Governor's Commission on the Garment Industry, will speak at the Workers School, 108 East 14th Street, this Friday night at 8 P. M. His lecture is one of the series in American labor problems and his subject is Unemployment Insurance. Besides being chief statistician of the Governor's Commission, Mr. Kolchin has a long record of special research work on unemployment insurance and on various phases of the garment industry. He was formerly investigator for the impartial machinery obtaining in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' organization, handling the matter of New York and Rochester disputes, and for a long period was in charge of unemployment insurance.

His talk will deal particularly with the problem of unemployment as it manifests itself in the garment industry, the general problem of unemployment insurance, a comparison in this respect between the backwardness of the United States and the high degree of development of Europe, a study of the relative merits of legislated unemployment insurance and insurance secured by industrial agreement and the power of the union, and the study of how unemployment insurance actually works where it has been introduced.

The DAILY WORKER is now on all news stands around New York.

CALL NATIONAL CONFERENCE FOR WORKERS' HEALTH

Bureau Wants Remedy for Occupational Disease

Adoption of a constitution and election of a trade union council featured the third annual convention of the Workers Health Bureau," Forty-two delegates from various unions of the 181 affiliated attended.

Enforcement of a call for a national labor health conference was one of the big actions taken. Occupational dangers were vividly depicted by delegates from bakeries, machine shops, auto repair shops, painting jobs, furniture factories, stone cutting plants, building jobs and hat shops.

Labor Clinics.

Cooperative labor medical clinics were suggested to fight paternalistic welfare practices of employers. Harriet Silverman, a director of the bureau, made the proposal. She stressed the need for combatting the spray gun, which greatly increases the danger of workers from poisonous paint substances. She was chosen educational secretary under the new constitution.

Director Grace H. Burnham was elected executive secretary and Charlotte Todes organizing secretary. Sara Burnham's report covered the bureau's work for affiliated unions, including preparation of trade health safeguards, codes of health protection, chemical analysis of poisonous wood materials, investigations of hazardous trades such as the study of textile mill conditions prepared for the Passaic strikers' union.

Trade Union Council.

Members for the trade union council are: Henry Ahrens, Northwest Painters Conference, Washington; Harry W. Call, secretary, Washington State federation of labor; Henry M. Donnelly, secretary Rhode Island state federation of labor; Max Friedland, organizer Intl. Bakery & Confectionery Workers union; Professor Goepfert, Local 164 Amalgamated Food Workers; Edward Gordon, United Hatters, Danbury, Conn.; Vincent Kennovich, United Mine Workers, Daisytown, Pa.; James H. Maurer, president Pennsylvania state federation of labor; Edward Radtke, Wisconsin state conference of painters; David Shapiro, New York state conference of painters.

The executive committee elected, sitting also on the trade council, is: Frank Busby, Architectural Sculptors and Carvers union of New York; Joseph Meriefi, lodge 119 machinists, Newport, R. I.; Otto Nusselman, Eastern Pennsylvania district conference of painters; and Harry Warren, New Jersey state conference board of painters.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Nick Butler's Speech at "Cal's" Nuptial Bout Not Relished by Most

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Coolidge today declined to comment upon Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's prediction that he would not be a candidate for another term in the White House.

Numerous questions bearing on Dr. Butler's assertion that "the president has served two terms who has twice taken the oath of office" were propounded to Mr. Coolidge today in the bi-weekly press conference, but he ignored them all.

The president was reported to be somewhat nettled by the Butler speech.

EUROPEAN STEEL TRUST MENACED; GERMANY REBELS

Exploitation So Good Demands More Quota

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Threatening to withdraw unless her quota were raised, Germany raised havoc with the recent session of the European Steel Trust at Luxemburg City.

Germany's withdrawal would mean the smashing of the combination.

Having completely reorganized the industry, German steel magnates demand a larger share of the gravy, which French and Belgian steel men are unwilling to grant them. German steel barons, who have forced down wages and who have the support of a reactionary government, are profiting at full capacity, while the trust agreement only calls for 80 per cent of their capacity.

Germany Pays Fine.

German members of the steel trust have already paid more than $2,000,000 to the trust in the form of fines for having exceeded their production quota during October, November and December. They claim that they will be forced to pay $10,000,000 into this year's pool, if they continue on the present basis.

Hard hit by the rapid rise of the franc, French and Belgian steel production has been at a complete standstill for two months. French and Belgian barons resent Germany's threat to withdraw from the combination and accuse her of planning to form an agreement with Britain to oppose French plans for invading world markets.

The differences between the steel magnates punctures the widely-entertained illusion of European peace through the combination of her large industrialists.

WORKERS FIGHT LONG HOUR BILL OF MILL BARONS

Lawrence Mass Meet Opposes Bosses' Plan

(By a Worker Correspondent).

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 9.—A monster mass meeting will be held Friday, Feb. 11th, at the Oliver School Hall on Hayerhill street, to protest against the attempt made by the local factory owners to abolish the 48 hour week.

This meeting is held under the auspices of the Lawrence Central Labor Union, which had invited Matthew Schoen, president of the United Textile Workers Unions to speak at this meeting, but due to other engagements, he is not able to be present, and the committee on arrangements has promised to have another prominent speaker who will tear the arguments for a longer work week to shreds.

The United Front Committee is cooperating with the labor unions, and urges all workers to come and bring their friends along.

Bill For Long Day.

The bill which advocates the abolishment of the 48 hour week, has been introduced at the state legislature, and le expected to come up for a hearing on Feb. 23.

The bosses met with the industrial commission, an organization of their own creation, last Tuesday, and discussed the possibility of getting this bill to pass. They will make every effort to re-introduce the 54 hour week, a thing which must be prevented by the workers of the state.

Women and Children Work.

Lawrence is the center of the textile industry, which means that an increase of working hours would mainly effect women and children. It is the opinion of the local labor officials, that the employers intend to bring about a cut in wages, by lengthening the working hours. This plan is generally denounced, as it would reduce the textile workers' standard of living to the level of a coolie.

King of England Heads A Church; But the Body Of It Is Falling Apart

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Church of England is in danger of a split. The Anglo-Catholic wing seems to have been largely in control of revision of the prayer book, announced now after twenty years' study by a special commission of high prelates. Aside from some sops to commercial individualism, such as are indicated in the revisions in the communion service, all the reforms are in the direction of greater ritualism, vestmenta, confessions, permanent reservation of bread and wine.

Under the leadership of Bishop Barnes, of Birmingham, and Bishop Pollock, of Norwich, the evangelical wing is calling mass meetings thru out the country.

The capitalist papers are in general cautious and worried over the tempest which the believers are creating among themselves.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Scott Nearing to Show Up Nicaraguan Policy At Hartford, Sunday

HARTFORD, Feb. 9.—"Hands off China and Mexico," will be the slogan of the Hartford branch of the Workers Party, at a protest meeting against American imperialism at Unity Hall, this Wednesday evening. An expose of American imperialist technique by Scott Nearing, well-known author and lecturer, will feature the meeting.

Jingo Boosts Armory Construction

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 9.—A bill appropriating $125,000 for the erection of a state armory at New Rochalle was introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman Olsen, republican, of Westchester.

Another Fleet Sails.

SHEERNESS, England, Feb. 9. — The eighth destroyer flotilla of nine vessels left port here today under orders for China.

Read the 'BOLSHEVIK'

A DRAMA IN PLAY FORM written on the American style by

Leon Hausman

Author and Playwright

Per Copy at $1.10

sent to Leon Hausman, "Bolshevik" Post Office Box 197, Elizabeth, N. J., secures a copy of "Bolshevik" in English or its present.

Translations may be had at a later date.

On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the little trick, advertise his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The author is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" copies in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND NOW!!!

The Manager's Corner

HAWKS.

Some time ago Chicago was treated to an avalanche of news about a certain hawk which had invaded the sacred precincts of the beef city. Rewards were offered for the capture or killing of the bird which had killed a number of pigeons in the loop. Squads of bobbies in the financial center paraded through the streets with shotguns, field-glasses, and complete hunting paraphernalia. The roofs of the tall buildings of the financial district were lined with hunters for the contraversome bird. Hawks of all kinds and description were scooped up in the mad chase for the prize which was offered. And the Chicago press lived through a veritable orgy of adventure. The feathered intruder furnished material for column upon column of paper. Pictures of hawks covered every available corner of the capitalist papers. The entire city was hawk-mad.

Mind we don't want you to think that we fallows in The DAILY WORKER don't enjoy a game of this kind; or that if The DAILY WORKER office had been located in the loop, we might not have gone out to look for the noble bird ourselves, or that if we had a shotgun at hand, some of us might not have tried our luck. But when it comes to filling up a paper with that sort of stuff, as many papers do, call a halt. You may take a slam at us for not indulging in this sort of thing once in a while. Maybe we err in the other direction. But we do maintain that it is not the purpose nor the function of a newspaper to fill its columns with material which has no other than an amusement value. We maintain that such a policy is an insult to an intelligent reader, and implies that those who read the paper, do so for amusement only. What do you think?—BERT MILLER.

Child Labor Amendment Passes Montana Senate; Already Passed House

HELENA, Mont., Feb. 9.—Montana goes on record for the Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution. The resolution was introduced by Lucy A. Curran, the only women member of the assembly. It has passed the house and passed general orders in the senate today. The third reading is usually a formality.

Richmond Labor Heads All Loyal to Bourbons; Party Chooses Banker

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 9.—Recently State Senator Workman died, leaving a vacancy to be filled in the coming special session of the Virginia Legislature. At a meeting of the Democratic City Committee, held February 4, Waller Holladay, a banker, was appointed democratic nominee. Mr. Holladay is vice-president of the American National Bank and a thorough capitalist representative.

Needed a Labor Party.

For years the local labor fakers have used the union members as voting cattle for various factions of the democratic party in order to secure jobs and influence for themselves. This appointment of a banker is the reward.

The union members here must demand the formation of a Richmond and Virginia labor party instead of supporting an organization that appoints an out-and-out enemy of labor to such an important position. The few jobs thrown to labor fakers by the democratic party are not friendly acts to labor either. They are the rewards given to traitors who prevent the workers functioning in their own interests.

Passaic Open Forum and Classes Start; Grecht and Ballam to be Heard

The next Open Forum of the Passaic Workers School will be held Sunday, February 13th at 7:30 P. M. in the Workers Home, 27 Dayton Ave. Com. J. J. Ballam will speak on the "Latest development in the American labor movement." Admission free.

The class in Fundamentals of Class-struggle of the Passaic Workers School will start this Friday, February 11th at 7:30 P. M. in the Workers Home, 27 Dayton Ave. Com. Rebecca Grecht, well known labor lecturer will be instructor of the class which will be held weekly.

Gangster Killed in Gas Battle.

OLD FORGE, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Walter "Whitey" Tipping, sought as the slayer of Patrolman James Masterson in a New York restaurant holdup on Jan. 31, was killed here today while resisting arrest in a gun battle with Detective Thomas Martin.

TELL LEFT WING SIDE OF GARMENT FIGHT AT DINNER

Hyman and Progressives Address Liberals

More than three hundred well known liberals, writers, artists, and poets gathered at the Cafe Boulevard, 43rd St. near Broadway, last night to hear the left wing point of view of the present struggle in the garment trades.

Under the chairmanship of Robert W. Dunn, well known labor journalist Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board, International Ladies Garment Workers' Union; Julius Portnoy, secretary of Local 22; Charles Zimmerman, manager of the dress department of the Joint Board, and Carlos Tresca, editor of the Italian newspaper Il Martelo, addressed these assembled on "Democracy in Trade Unions."

Zionists Speculate In Real Estate and Palestine Goes Broke

The American Zion Commonwealth is on the verge of going broke, according to its own confession in the New Palestine of February 4th. Speculations in land in Palestine, where economic depression indicates the failure of the Zionist experiment, are responsible for the financial difficulties of the Commonwealth.

Pointing out that the organization has lost a great deal of the money that it collected from the Jews of this country in land speculation, the statement declares that the "crisis still continues and, as a result, the market for the sale of land in Palestine has completely dried up."

Unemployment Too.

Confessing that unemployment is rife in Palestine, the statement goes on to say that the natural restriction of credits has hit the Commonwealth's land investments.

The land purchases, intended for the settlement of Polish Jews, were also effected by the economic crisis in Poland and the consequent depreciation of Polish currency, which left many parcels of land only partially paid for.

Russian Workers of Newark to Meet Sun.; Talk on World Topics

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 9.—The Russian Workers Club will give a lecture on "A Bird's Eye View of World Politics" at the Russian Labor Lyceum, 150 Court St., on February 13, at 2 P. M. The lecture will cover the following topics: What is happening to China? The Present Situation in Soviet Russia, Nicaragua—Prey of American Imperialism.

Admission is free. The lectures are in Russian.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKERS' CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium

ASHLAND AVE. AND VAN BUREN

FEB. 25th " 26th " 27th

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FRESHEIT. 30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $50.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

Daily Worker Costume Ball

Saturday Evening, February 12, 1927,

at

THE NEW WORKERS' HOME, 1343 East Ferry

DETROIT, MICH.

Music and Refreshments. Admission Fifty Cents.

PREPARED TO BE CHALLENGED.

The Russian Bolsheviks have invented a scheme whereby they have developed a real mass movement behind their paper. This has been done by means of challenging certain comrades throughout the country to tell what they have done for their paper. Each of the comrades challenged, when he sends in his subscriptions, has the right in turn to challenge five other comrades. The same rule applies to these comrades when they turn in their subscriptions. We are planning to begin with a challenge to 100 comrades. You may be the one first challenged. Prepare now. The names of all comrades challenged will be published, and the number of subscriptions obtained. Be ready.

In addition there are the valuable prizes which are being offered in connection with the campaign.

Join the Ranks

of the

Daily Worker Builders

in the Lenin-Drive for

25,000 Subscriptions

WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

Beginning with January 21, 1927, Lenin Memorial Day, the drive for 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER is on. This drive will last until April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). 25,000 subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER will place The DAILY WORKER firmly on its feet and help to bring the message of Communism to thousands of workers whom it has never reached before. Many valuable prizes will be offered for the builders who secure the best results.

PRIZES TO THE DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 5 annual sube (or $30.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual Subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 50 Annual Subscriptions (or $300.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze bust of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

To New Subscribers in Connection With the Daily Worker Drive for

25,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. A. Suvanto, Hay Bales, F. Jerger, F. G. Vose, O. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale. It is offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly, Communist, Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

They should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign languages papers should mail The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all absolutely solid. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions, short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

QUOTAS

District 1.	Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 2.	New York City and vicinity—part of New Jersey. 10,000 readers.
District 3.	Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Western New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D. C. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions or readers.
District 4.	Buffalo, Rochester, Erie, Pa. and the Western part of New York state. $600 worth of subscriptions or 100 annual subscriptions.
District 5.	Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 6.	Cleveland and the state of Ohio. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 7.	Detroit, the state of Michigan and Eastern Indiana. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 8.	Chicago, and Illinois, Lower Wisconsin, Minnesota and Lake County, Ind. $1,000 worth of subscriptions or 400 annual subscriptions.
District 9.	Minneapolis, Upper Wisconsin, Michigan Upper Peninsula), Minnesota. $1,500 worth of subscriptions or 250 annual subscriptions.
District 10.	North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa. $450 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 11.	Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming. $750 worth of subscriptions or 40 annual subscriptions.
District 12.	Oregon and Washington. $900 worth of subscriptions or 150 annual subscriptions.
District 13.	California. $1,200 worth of subscriptions or 200 annual subscriptions.
District 14.	New Mexico, Arizona, Texas. $450 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.
District 15.	Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee. $450 worth of subscriptions or 75 annual subscriptions.

District Agents should set quotas for the various cities on the basis of the number of party members, Daily Worker subscribers and sympathizers.

DAILY WORKER

33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

L DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Chas. E. Ruthenberg, Secretary
Fifth Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year $3.50 six months $2.50 three months
By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year $3.50 six months $2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL
WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Great Britain and the League.

"Great Britain will acquaint the League of Nations with developments in the Chinese negotiations but it does not intend to ask the League to mediate, it was stated officially today."—News item.

Somebody is always taking the joy out of John Bull's life, by putting him in an awkward position, tearing off the mask of hypocrisy and exposing him for what he is, the most arrogant and brutal imperialist robber of them all, unless we give that honor to his working pupil, Uncle Sam.

John Bull organized the league of nations to prevent war. Catch John with an ignoble purpose! In reality the aim of the league is to maintain peace between the imperialist powers, so that they could more efficiently rob the weaker nations. Also, the league would be useful to John in stealing marches on his fellow imperialists thru control of the secretariat of the league where he planted his man, Sir Eric Drummond, as secretary.

But the league did not prevent war or loot. Poland grabbed Vilna from Lithuania and the league nodded like an image of Buddha. Italy shelled Corfu, a Greek island and the league did not even nod. It snored. Great Britain quarreled with Turkey over Mosul oil and this time the league acted. It gave the oil to Great Britain and the ozone to the Turks. Again the league acted when the Greek and Bulgarian militarists quarreled over territorial loot. The imperialists could not afford a quarrel between two pigmy nations. It stopped the ruction mighty quick.

Then France got busy slaughtering the Moroccans, something Spain had been doing not so well for several years previously. The league did not say a word. Defenseless peoples were made to be exploited and if unwilling to be exploited, to be slaughtered until they saw the light.

Finally the Chinese masses awoke and proceeded to clean up on the imperialists. The Peking government, a perfectly polite outfit, but more de jure than de facto, called the attention of the league to imperialist aggression, to the landing of troops and other acts of war. The Cantonese continued to put vaseline on their bayonets and ignored the league. Still they had one ear cocked to hear what the league would reply. The Peking government wanted to put Great Britain on the carpet.

This is where Great Britain came in and uttered the sentiment expressed in the opening paragraph of this editorial. The league to investigate Britain! The league to investigate itself! Perish the thot. The best John Bull will do is to advise the league that its business is to keep quiet. John Bull will take care of his own affairs. He will send his warships to China and his big guns and his soldiers. If he cannot get what he wants by diplomacy he will get it by war. He may not get what he wants either way because the Chinese are old hands in the art of diplomacy and they are apt pupils in the art of modern warfare.

Here we have the league of nations exposed in its scabby nakedness, as imperialist tool, erected to fool the gullible into the belief that peace is possible under capitalism, that the makers of war can also be the agents of everlasting peace.

This is the political bawdy house that virtuous liberals invite the working class to support.

"Join the Navy and See the Movies."

This quotation, reproduced as a title above, is part of the headline of a news article in the New York Times giving some free advertising for the "latest slogan to win recruits" for the sea forces of "dollar diplomacy."

It is just another dodge, among the many already employed, to lure the working class youth into Wall street's murder machine.

But it should have just the opposite effect. Labor should question a social system that can bribe workers to kill other workers, of other nations, with the mere promise that incidentally they will have an opportunity to "See the Movies."

There is no promise that these movies are any better than those offered the general public. The only inference to be drawn is that the navy recruiters feel the movies is an inducement for young workers to become cannon fodder. It is also a confession by the swivel chair admirals that workers, with the wages they receive, too often have insufficient funds to offer even this capitalist amusement to growing boys, to satisfy their movie hunger.

One of the navy's recruiting stations is located on New York's Bowery and keeps open 24 hours every day. It is eternally on the job to catch those approaching the brink of starvation, who "join the navy" as a last resort. The professional thug and killer, so often hired to do the bloody work of employers during strikes, thus gets a higher price for his services than the marine or the bluejacket who can be bought with the promise of seeing a "movie" to do the killing of the profiteers on an international scale.

For the umpty umptieth time the working classes of Great Britain have turned their backs on Bolshevism, for the very good reason that there is no proletariat in that country, being like the United States in this respect, according to a liar in the New York Evening Post. The writer must have written the yarn after dining in the Hotel Cecil.

The funeral of the Emperor Yoshito will cost $2,000,000. This will make the Chicago bootleggers come down off their perches. They were pulling off $100,000 funerals and making the big headlines. Here comes a little Jap and knocks them for a row of misers.

The McNary-Haugen Bill

By WILLIAM BOUCK.

CONGRESS is just now in the throes of another sham battle.

The daily and weekly propaganda press of the country is pawing the air and throwing dust in the farmers' eyes.

They are much interested pro and con in this year's crop of bunk to peddle to the farmers.

The very latest "Mumba-Jumba" is the so-called "New McNary-Haugen" bill. Is it any good? Will it be of any service to the farmers?

Well, first go back a few years. About 25-30 years ago congress and the propaganda machines of the country woke up and helped us farmers get the railroads regulated, and they passed the law creating the Interstate Commerce Commission, from which has descended a whole crop of so-called regulatory measures. Is or has it helped the farmer? We rather guess not, with a big N.

Then we farmers were pursuaded by our friends that we needed help—financial this time—so congress got busy. Our friends kicked up another dust-screen, and we got the Federal Farm (?) Loan System, from which has descended some of the most pernicious laws creating farm loan banks and other monstrosities.

Is the Farm Loan System any help to the farmer today? Ask some fellow in it. Now, we have tariffs on wheat and a whole lot more of such functions which our money grabbing friends said we needed—and do they help us? To say they do is to create a laugh among a group of farmers.

Then we got a law regulating the packers—in the supposed interest of the farmers—and the great and benevolent Secretary of Agriculture is the one whose judgment is made supreme in the enforcement of its provisions. Is that law operating in favor of hog and stock raisers? No intelligent farmer says or thinks so.

Now the farmer is much lower in the economic scale than ever before. He is rapidly progressing down a greased toboggan, and his friends are going to administer another strengthening pill, with plenty of opiate for the mind. It's called the "New McNary-Haugen bill, and is being solemnly debated in congress and out as a real effort to help the farmer. Briefly, let's examine its provisions. It proposes to establish a board to handle the surplus (?) products of the farmers of the U. S.

Here's how the board is to be appointed:

One from each Federal Reserve District in the country.

How appointed? By the president. A committee of five from each district, elected by a convention of farm organizations, chosen by the Secretary of Agriculture as representative of the farmers?

One knows what kind of farm organizations Jardine would choose.

This committee of 5 selects a committee of 3 from which the president selects one. Same old bunk.

The surplus is handled or stored or sold thru farm co-operatives, or such other agencies (?) as the board may choose! It does not in the least propose to distrub the present gambling in farm produce.

This surplus is always a "mythical" proposition. It can't be measured—nor its effect on markets for instance—at this writing, Feb., 1927, —wheat is low, about $1.15 to $1.25, over the northwest, below cost of production at least 25 cents per bushel. Yet there is no surplus.

It appropriates 250 million dollars as a revolving fund for the board to do business with.

Its results, if passed, will be to aid speculators — Bears and Bulls — to gauge the exact amount of grains and other farmers' produce, and thereby make it that much easier to depress the price to the farmer and raise the price to the consumer. It's so much more opium for the farmer. It's the same old billy goat. It's worse than nothing because it creates a hope in the farmer's mind only to dash it to pieces and leave him more discouraged.

CHINA'S RISING TIDE OF COLOR

By C. V. BRIGGS (former editor Crusader Magazine).

Can the Negro be altogether unconcerned about events in China, when the issue in China is the same issue facing the Negro in his home-land, Africa, and in the New World; the issue of the "divine right" of the white robber imperialist nations to rob and spoil subjugation, and dominate the darker peoples of the world?

Negro Endangered.

There is the grave danger of the Negro becoming confused as to the real issue in China. For months now the white daily press, with the exception of labor papers like The DAILY WORKER (New York), have been busy attacking China and camouflaging the motives of the robber powers who are seeking an opportunity to intervene in the present struggle between the victorious Cantonese (Nationalist) armies, sweeping northward, and the discredited Chinese militarists, like Chang-so-lin and Wn Pei Fu, one the tool of Japan, the other the instrument of England.

Smoke Screen of Bolshevism.

The literary prostitutes who edit the average American newspapers, in their anxiety to serve the interests of the capitalist gang upon whose advertising and credit support the success of their papers depend, have shown their readiness to go to any length to malign and discredit the Chinese Nationalists, even raising the old familiar bogy of Bolshevism against the Cantonese, offering as proof of Chinese bolshevism the simple fact that Soviet Russia, unlike the imperialist powers, has consistently recognized the right of the Chinese to rule and possess their own country, refusing to participate in the arms embargo by which the imperialist powers hoped to disarm the Chinese and make them powerless and ready for the plucking.

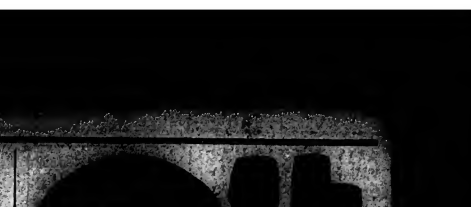
Forced Opium on China.

The record of the imperialist powers in China has been one of brutal and wanton aggression. Imperialist England, leading exponent of the amazing policy of European eminent domain, made the Yangtze Valley a special "sphere of interest" since 1877. In 1842 she seized the island of Honkong after a three-year war fought by the Chinese to keep opium out of their country and by the British to inflict that deadly drug upon the Chinese masses.

Later she forced a weak Chinese government to give tindefinite leases on 400 square miles of mainland near Hongkong and the seaport of Weihaiwei. In 1913, when Tibet, then a part of China staged a British stimulated revolt, England forbade China to suppress the rebellion. In addition, as the result of a second war with China, the British have possession of several strategic areas varying in size in the center of cities of Shanghai, Amoy, Hankow, Kiuking, Chinkiang, Newchang and Tientsin.

These concessions fly the British flag, are policed by British troops and ruled by British law. They constitute a convenient refuge for Chinese criminals. And, in order further to cripple China, the imperialist powers have control of the Chinese tariff and customs. They claim extraterritoriality for Chinese tariff and customs. They claim extraterritoriality for their nationals, that is the right of Englishmen, Americans, etc., to violate Chinese laws and customs with impunity and to be tried in their own courts, under their own laws.

Russia and Germany Neutral.



Only Germany and Soviet Russia do not claim extraterritoriality or special concessions in China. Germany, as a result of the world war, having been forced to surrender her concessions and extraordinary status, and Soviet Russia having voluntarily relinquished those claims as the result of the overthrow of capitalism in Russia and the creation of a workers' state.

Fight Imperialism.

It is against this system of imperialist exploitation of the Chinese masses, that the Chinese Nationalist government is fighting. It is because the Canton government represents the interests and aspirations of the downtrodden Chinese masses and has declared its determination to fight until the imperialist system, in which the Chinese people have been slaves of the capitalists, is destroyed, that masses have rallied to its support.

Negro Attitude.

In the face of this consideration, what is to be the attitude of the Negro masses in the United States? What the attitude of the Negro press? Is it to be one of continued apathy and unconcern towards one of the greatest social manifestations in the world of color—a struggle replete with significance for the Negro masses and the oppressed and exploited of all the earth? Is the Negro to continue indifferent to this tremendous phase of the universal liberation struggle?

VIII

Bunny must not stop to nourish his grief, but must hurry to call upon the French Communists and offer to pay the costs of a lawyer to institute legal proceedings and find out what was happening to Paul. But as a matter of fact the effort was not necessary, for next morning all the newspapers had the story; a notorious American Bolshevik agitator had been escorted by the authorities to Havre and placed on board a steamer to sail that day. The Communist paper in its report commented sarcastically; this was one Bolshevik agitator whom the American government could not very well refuse to admit, since they had him under bond of twenty thousand dollars to make his appearance in court! Bunny had so little confidence in the French authorities that he took the precaution to wireless Paul to the steamer with reply prepaid; and a few hours later he got the words, "On the way to Paradise"—a code message from Paul!

Three days later came a message from his sweetheart—no code this time, but a proclamation to the whole world. The newspapers of Paris and all other capitals—of Madagascar, Paraguay, Nova Zembla, Thibet and New Guinea—announced the engagement of Viola Tracy, American screen actress, to Prince Marescu of Roumania; the wedding was to take place in the great cathedral of Bucharest, and Queen Marie herself would attend. The efficient publicity organization of Schmolsky-Sperba had contrived many a stunt in its time, but never one so effective as this which fate handed to it, free, gratis, and for nothing!

And so there was a chapter closed in Bunny's life. The door which had led from his suite in the hotel to Vee's suite was locked, and a piece of furniture moved in front of it. But there was no piece of furniture that could be moved in front of the memory in Bunny's mind! Nothing could shut out that slender white figure, so vivid and eager, and the memory of the delights she had brought to him. He was maimed in soul, as the victims of the White Terror were maimed in body—and in the same cause!

There were women here, of all kinds and sizes, native and American, young ladies of the highest fashionableness, willing to receive the attentions of a young oil prince. They knew about his romance and his broken heart; and their shrewd mammas told them an ancient formula, known to the feminine world since the dawn of coquetry—"Catch him on the rebound!" Bunny was besought to attend tea parties and dances, but mostly he went to Socialist meetings; and when he thought about girls, it was to Angel City that his fancy fled. Ruth Watkins was so gentle and quiet, yet brave—not giving up her brother because he turned into a Bolshevik! And Rachel Menzies was so steady, so grim in her determination to send him a four-page paper, as regular as the calendar, and always telling him everything he wanted to know! Once every month she sent an itemized statement of receipts and expenditures, typed with her own fingers, and always exactly right—whatever dollars were left over went for sample copies, so he was never troubled by either surplus or deficit!

IX

September, and Dad came bringing an announcement that caused him to hesitate, and turn fiery red after he got going. "You know, son, I have got to be very good friends with Alyse, we—that is, we are interested in the same ideas, and we realize that we can help each other."

"Yes, Dad, of course."

"Well, the fact is—you know how it is—I've been imposing on you for so long, but now you will be free, because I've asked Alyse to marry me, and she consents."

"Well, Dad! I've been expecting that for a quite a while. I'm sure you will be happy."

Dad looked very much relieved—had he feared a tantrum, after the fashion of Bertie? He hastened to say, "I want to tell you—Alyse and I have talked the matter over, and we agree—she is fond of you, and appreciates your standing by me all, and she wants you to know that she's not marrying me for my money."

"No, Dad, I don't think that."

"Well, you know Bertie, and what she thinks. Bertie is mercenary—I suppose she got it from her mother. Anyhow, I'm not a-goin' to say anything to her about this, it is none of her business; we'll just get married on the quiet, and Bertie can read about it in the papers. What I'm a-goin' to do is this—Alyse says she hasn't had anything to do with helping me make my money, and she don't want any children to hate her, as they will if she comes in and takes a big share."

"Oh, bnt I won't, Dad!"

"We've agreed that I'm to make a will, and leave a million dollars to her, and the rest will go to you and Bertie, and Alyse will be satisfied with that—it will give her enough to carry on the psychic work she's interested in. You understand, she wants to do that—"

"Yes, of course, Dad. I am a propagandist too!"

"I know son; and what I've been thinking—you have a right to express your ideas. And while I don't agree with that little paper, I can see that it's honest, it says what you think; so I'm a-goin' to make over a million dollars worth of Ross stock to you, and you can just go ahead and do what you please with that. I hope you won't, turn into a Bolsheviki like Paul, and I hope you won't find it necessary to get into jail."

"It would be pretty hard to keep me in jail if I had a million dollars, Dad."

The old man grinned; the meddlums and the spirits had not yet driven the old devil entirely out of him. He went on to say that of course they weren't going to have as much money as he had once tought. Those government suits were a-going' to dig a big hole in it —no doubt the politicians would fix it so Dad and Verne would lose. Of course they might get a pile out of these new deals abroad, but that was speculative—not the sort of thing Dad fancied, but he was leaving it to Verne.

"What are you and Mrs.—Alyse going to do, Dad?"

"Well, we want to have a sort of you might call it a Spiritualist honeymoon. We'll go see that medium in Vienna, and also another in Frankfort that we've heard about. It'll depend for one thing on what you want. Maybe you'll go back to California."

"I think I will, Dad, for a while —if you are sure you can spare me."

Yes, Dad said he and Alyse would get along all right; his secretary had learned enough French for practical purposes, and they would have a courier or interpreter for their stay in Germany. He hoped the climate there would agree with him; he didn't seem ever to be strong now. That had sort of done him up.

The preliminary steps were taken, and Bunny and his father and the secretary and Mrs. Alyse Huntington Forsythe Olivier of put on their best gold rags and appeared before the mairc of one of the small towns on the outskirts of Paris and were duly wedded, and Bunny kissed his new stepmother on both cheeks, and the mairc did the same, and also heard Bunny and Dad on both cheeks. And then Dad took his son to one side and placed an envelope in his hands. It was an order on Bertie to turn over thirty-two hundred shares of Ross Consolidated Class B stock; a little more than a million at the market. They were "street certificates," Dad explained—he had already signed them and left them with Verne, in case they wished to market them. "And now, son," said the old man, "have a little sense—this is a pile of money, and don't throw it away. Take your time and be sure what you want to do, and don't let yourself be plucked by grafters that will come round just as soon as they smell it!"

(To Be Continued.)

Kuzbas Needs Expert Workmen From U. S.

S. S. Shipman, manager of the New York office of "Kuzbas" Autonomous Industrial Colony in Siberia, wishes to correct an impression which may be gained from a previous announcement that the New York office was closed because it is not necessary to bring over more technicians from America.

It was not because Kuzbas does not need expert workmen. Kuzbas needs technicians still, but does not feel that it needs an office in New York to provide them.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 25. NEW YORK, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1927 Price 3 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

CALVIN COOLIDGE may be getting ready for the next presidential marathon or he may be developing the muscles of his legs for the hike back to Vermont in case Wall Street decides that the White House has been an asylum for the dumb long enough, and hungers for a more vocal occupant. Whatever the reason may be, the president has decided to walk two miles a day around the White House. If Coolidge could use his head as well as his feet he might be allowed to ride his electric hobby horse four more years.

• • •

THO promising to land troops in Shanghai in case of emergency only, on last Tuesday, on Wednesday the British government ordered troops held temporarily at Hong Kong to re-embark for Shanghai, tho there was not even a good sized brawl reported in the city. This is diplomacy. The government heard the speech of Ramsay MacDonald, the leader of the labor party, and felt that there was no sincerity in it. As a matter of fact, Baldwin already had an understanding with Lloyd George and MacDonald and knew that those two imperialists would not do anything to jeopardize the interests of imperialism in China.

• • •

THE DAILY WORKER paid little attention to reports of a Cantonese defeat featured in all the capitalist papers on Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning. The story was an obvious fake. There were no casualties reported, no figures of wounded and captured. It is now definitely known that the Cantonese, far from having suffered a defeat, are advancing on their objective. This accounts for the renewed activities of the imperialists in rushing troops to Shanghai.

• • •

THE United States is definitely out of the world court, an annex to the league of nations, thru the action of certain powers in not accepting one of the reservations made by the United States government as a condition of entry. The senate voted in favor of affiliation provided the United States could do as all imperialist powers really do when they want something badly and have the power to take it, without interference from the court. For instance if the United States wanted to grab another section of Mexico the United States would consider it gross impertinence on the part of the court to suggest that said court should pass on the merits of the case.

• • •

The fraud in Williamson County, Illinois between two gangs of bootleggers is not on a lower moral plane than the conflicts between the imperialist powers. They meet each other with daggers in their garments. Their peace conferences are conspicuous by the absence of everything savoring of peace. They only agree temporarily when there is some mutual material interest involved. The rival bootlegging gangs in Williamson County were one in their war on another element. When that was over they shot it out with each other. Not so long ago Britain would give an eye tooth to have the United States in the world court or the league of nations even if only on one

(Continued on Page Two)

Bill to Wipe Out N. Y. Anti-Vice Society as Merely Blue-nose Club

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Repeal of a law of 1871 which incorporated the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, is provided in a bill introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman F. L. Hackenberg, New York City, democrat.

In a statement, Hackenberg declared members of the society have "injected themselves into everybody's business and stuck their blue noses in the affairs of the entire nation."

He asserted that America has grown out of its "swaddling clothes" and that the time has come to put an end to reformers.

The original members of the society, Hackenberg said, were Morris K. Jessup, Howard Potter, Jacob F. Wyckoff, William E. Dodge, Jr., Charles E. Whitehead, Cephas Brainard, Thatcher M. Adams, William F. Lee, J. Pierpont Morgan, J. M. Cornell, W. H. S. Wood, Elbert B. Monroe, George W. Clarke, Cornelius R. Agnew, E. Delafield Burney of New York City, and Moses S. Beh and Henry R. Jones of Brooklyn.

British Workers For Cantonese Recognition

Demand Made in Commons For Complete Independence

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Debate on the Chinese situation was opened in the house of commons today on a labor motion deploring the dispatch of troops to China and demanding their recall and also urging the recognition of the national independence of the Chinese.

Charles Trevelyan, opening the debate for the laborites, declared that the policy of the Canton Government is also the policy of the Labor Party. This policy, he said, is for absolute independence for the Chinese, the disappearance of concessions and the withdrawal of military and naval powers of the western nations from territories and waters of China.

Great Britain has spent $3,225,000 thus far in sending troops and naval units to Shanghai, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, minister of war, announced.

"Great Britain desires peace in China but realizes that "a peaceful settlement is unobtainable by surrender or scuttling," Foreign Minister Sir Austen Chamberlain declared in the house of commons tonight.

Sir Austen declared that an agreement has been reached with Eugene Chen regarding the Hankow concession, to the effect that the concession will be "formally" returned to Great Britain, but a new council will be elected to administer it, the Chinese having full representation on this council. This is taken to be a settlement to save Britain's face.

• • •

On Way to Shanghai.

HONG KONG, China, Feb. 10.—Two Punjab battalions from Calcutta, due to arrive here today, did not debark from their transports. The troops, a part of the great concentration of British forces intended for action against the Cantonese, proceeded directly to Shanghai.

The Punjab battalions closely followed two regiments from Gloucestershire and Durham, which left for Shanghai after many days here.

The movement of troops to Shanghai is being made in the face of protests from both Peking and the Cantonese governments.

Changsha messages report that Tang Seng Chi, who recently arrived from Hankow, is showing marked anti-British propensities. A street demonstration against the British went off without untoward incident.

The housebo,s' strike at Hankow, according to reports, has been deferred until Sunday. The general situation at Hankow is said to be quiet at present.

• • •

Two Hearts Beat As One.

GENEVA, Feb. 10.—The British policy in China is "in complete accord with the letter and spirit of the league of nations covenant," declared a lengthy statement from Sir Austen Chamberlain, setting forth the British Chinese policy, and received today by the secretariat of the league.

• • •

U. S. Marines Arrive.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 10.—Three hundred American marines arrived here today. The British Gloucester and Durham regiments are due to arrive from Hong Kong tomorrow.

Mediation Again Defeats Demand of Railroad Workers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Through the efforts of the Federal Board of Mediation, an agreement between the Southeastern railroads and labor organizations has been announced granting an increase of 7½ per cent in wages. This agreement eliminates any possibility of a strike of the trakemen and the conductors. They had originally asked a greater increase and when this had been refused had ordered a strike vote be taken. The mediation board asked for a renewal of discussions and the announced agreement is the result of more than a month's negotiations.

It is expected that a demand for an increase in wages in behalf of the engineers and firemen will next be proferred.

Through a similar compromise effected in New York last week the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen signed away most of their demands on railroads north of the Ohio.

Hyman to Tell Story Of Sprague's Fight To Control Union

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—Louis Hyman, general manager of the joint board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, will speak in Cleveland at the Moose Auditorium, 1000 Walnut St., Saturday, Feb. 12, 8 p. m.

All Cleveland workers will be interested in this meeting, for Brother Hyman will tell the inside story of the unscrupulous fight of the Sigman machine of the international, aided by the reactionary officialdom of the American labor movement, against the progressives.

Hyman is a powerful speaker and has been the leader of the strike against the garment manufacturers, and in the struggle against the reactionary officials. This meeting is not of cloakmakers alone. All workers of Cleveland are invited and admission will be free. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Progressive Cloakmakers.

CHICAGO BOARD RAISES INCOME OF DRESSMAKERS

Good Terms of Bosses Credit to Progressives

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—A new agreement has been signed between the Chicago Association of Dress Manufacturers and the Joint Board officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union with the following increases on the previous existing scales. Sample makers received a $5.00 increase; examiners, basters and finishers, $2.50; piece workers, 10 cents per hour; drapers $3.00 per week, and cutters $7.00 per week.

Two Conferences Held.

The agreement was signed after two conferences were held. One on Saturday, January 29th, and another which was concluded on February 5th at the Sherman Hotel. Those representing the Manufacturers' Association were Samuel H. Phillips of Phillips & Gauss, president, Mr. L. Ferdinand, secretary, Nathan Alexander, Mr. Sobie of Sobie & Davis, M. Fingerhut of Grover & Fingerhut, J. Goldbarth, and Samuel J. Brown of Brown & Harrie. Those representing the union were Mr. J. Levin, manager, who was the spokesman for the Chicago Joint Board, H. Ross and Philip Hauser, president and secretary of Local 100; Ida Rothstein, Evelyn Dorndeld, Roy Glassman, business agent, and I. L. Davidson organiser.

As far as the conditions are concerned the agreement could have been signed at the first conference but two conferences were held because the union and the association were interested in discussing the general situation in the industry so as to come to a clear understanding.

Repudiates Statement.

This repudiates the statement in a bulletin issued by the association headed by Frank J. Mitchell of December 2nd, 1926, which read in part as follows: "Negotiations between the union and the Northwest Dress Manufacturers are deadlocked. The union shows no intention to give up its demands and has threatened to call out all members at the expiration of the present agreement unless their demands are granted.

On the date that this bulletin was issued the union's demands were not even formulated and naturally a deadlock was impossible between the union and the association at a time when the demands were not submitted. The fact that this agreement has been signed is an additional proof of the untruthfulness of this so-called association.

Slavery In Their Shops.

The union is now ready to publish

(Continued on Page Two)

Other Mexicans Strike If Rail Workers Quit

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Labor unions, not affiliated with the Mexican Federation of Labor, threaten a sympathetic strike if the railroad trackers strike on Feb. 17 as they threaten to do. The sympathetic strike would partially affect electrical plants, cotton mills and bakeries.

Another Fake Disarmament Conference

Wall Street Jockeying for Better Position

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Another peace fake was launched today by President Coolidge when he submitted to the senate the text of a memorandum which his ambassadors in the principal foreign capitals were simultaneously delivering to the chancelleries of the imperialist world powers.

Coolidge's new scheme purports to be an extension of the Washington Arms Conference, a futile meeting, which only served to sharpen the appetites of the powers for more armaments on land and sea.

Imperialists Will Not Disarm.

If the president knows anything about international affairs he is quite well aware that no imperialist power has the slightest intention of depending for protection on any agreements that may be arrived at at such a conference. Least of all has the United States any intention of doing this.

Speaking for the United States, President Coolidge advised the powers that America's delegates to Geneva will be authorized to negotiate for an agreement covering auxiliary naval craft. He invited them to similarly equip their delegates with authority.

Yaqui Indians Subdued.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Federal troops have taken control of Juljagal in the rebellious Yaqui Indian zone, according to reports received here.

FUR BOSS SAYS GREEN'S MEN SOUGHT BRIBE FOR SILENCE

A startling revelation regarding the American Federation of Labor's report on its investigation of the fur strike was given in a statement issued yesterday by Motty Eitingon, president of the Eitingon-Schild Co., Inc., fur merchants, who was termed in the report as a "Communist" because of his activities in bringing about a settlement of the fur strike.

Mr. Eitingon disclosed the fact that a month before this federation report was issued an emissary informed him of the charges made against him by the committee and said that the report "could be stopped" if money was paid. This bribe offer was witnessed by Michael Hollander, president of A. Hollander & Son, Inc., fur dyers, who brought the emissary to Mr. Eitingon.

When Mr. Eitingon refused to "give one cent" to stop the publication of this report, he offered to give proof that the charges against him were unjustified. Besides this he made a formal statement in the matter and had it witnessed by Judge Julian W. Mack, so that he could show that he "knew of this report and had declined to pay one cent to stop it."

Mr. Eitingon in the American Federation of Labor report was accused of having used, or threatened to use, pressure upon manufacturers to force them to settle the strike because he had affiliations with Moscow. In reply to this, Mr. Eitingon's statement of yesterday shows in detail that instead of threatening manufacturers he had warned union leaders that, if they did not yield to the manufacturers a fund of $500,000 would be used to support the employers in holding ont against the union.

Statements made by Mr. Eitingon are verified by Mr. Hollander who witnessed the bribe offer, and by Mr. Samuel N. Samuels, president of the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., who had discussed the fur strike situation with Mr. Eitingon on many occasions.

More Discussion.

This revelation concerning the American Federation of Labor report comes on the eve of further discussion between the heads of the International Fur Workers' union and President Green concerning the charges made in the report against the New York Joint Board officers who were the leaders of the successful fur strike.

UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS HOLDS FOURTH ELECTION

Early Returns Show Rise of C. P. Vote

(Special to The Daily Worker).

MOSCOW, Feb. 10. — The Soviet Union, the largest nation in the world, is now in the midst of its fourth general election since the establishment of the workers' republic.

Although the preliminary elections are completed in 125 of the smaller cities and in 2,828 out of 8,106 rural Soviets, they are in progress in Moscow, Leningrad and western Russia today.

The fourth congress of the Soviet of Workers, Peasants and Red Army deputies which is the ultimate goal of the present elections, will meet April 25th with more than 2,400 members.

C. P. S. U. Increases Vote.

The Communist Party claims at least 50 per cent of those elected in the cities and 15 per cent of those in the country, giving the C. P. S. U. an increase of about 5 per cent over last year.

The law deprives of the vote employers, non-laborers, clergymen and former officers of the czarist police and army. The franchise was extended last year to include home manufacturers, peddlers, cab drivers, servants and workers' wives. Otherwise only workers may vote in the cities and peasants in the country.

Anti-Imperialist Meet In Brooklyn Feb. 18th; Nearing Among Speakers

The workers of Brooklyn will make a protest against the American imperialism on February 18th, at a mass meeting which will take place at Royal Palace, 16 Manhattan Ave.

The meeting is organized by the Workers (Communist) Party. Prof. Scott Nearing, a well known writer and lecturer on the question of American imperialism, will address the meeting. Other speakers will be Wm. Weinstone and Juliette Stuart Poyatz.

Will Kid Rail Workers

Pat. M. Neff.

President Coolidge has just appointed the former governor of Texas, Pat. M. Neff, to the Board of Railroad Mediation. This is more than just a reward to an unsuccessful politician always friendly to corporations. Neff is a skillful man, able to carry on the work of the Board, in the spirit of the recent decisions for the firemen and enginemen of northeastern roads, and the conductors of southeastern roads, by which they were jockeyed out of half their demands.

Boost For President.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Altho General Arnulfo Gomes has announced his disapproval of political efforts in his favor while he is in the military service, Vera Cruz dispatches state that a presidential campaign for General Gomes is being launched there.

Daugherty Linked With German Gold

Telephone Girls Testify Ex-Attorney General Phoned Alien Capitalists' Agent Frequently

Two strong points were made in the graft case against Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, and Thos. W. Miller, former alien property custodian yesterday. It was absolutely established through the testimony of Richard Merton, the German metal magnate, that he had parted with $391,000 in liberty bonds and $50,000 in cash. He swore on the witness stand that he turned this money over to John T. King, late Connecticut politician to get back his $7,000,000 worth of property then in the hands of the alien property custodian. The government charges this money was split between Daugherty, King and Miller.

The other point was the close relationship between Daugherty, Jess Smith, Miller, and King, brought out by testimony of Department of Justice employes.

Merton took the stand at the opening of the afternoon session. He identified receipts given for the bonds and cash, but said he was not told where the money went, after it left his hands.

The Gang Arranged It.

Merton testified King introduced him to Daugherty's friend, the late Jess Smith and that either King or Smith, he couldn't remember which, arranged for him to meet Colonel Miller to present his claim.

Merton met Miller, who turned him over to George Williams, manager of the alien property custodian's office, the witness testified.

Didn't Need Lawyer.

Before going to Washington the first time, Merton testified, he talked with King about the possibility of needing a lawyer and King told him there was no necessity for a lawyer.

"You do not need a lawyer and you will save expense by not having a lawyer," King said, according to Merton.

Regarding John I. Dulles, the lawyer with whom Merton first talked about his claim, King said Dulles was "the last person to represent Merton because Dulles and Col. Miller were not on intimate terms," Merton testified.

Louis J. Bailey, former chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, now a special agent in the Atlanta, Ga., section of the department, told of Daugherty's reception into office, and of the power of Jess Smith, late intimate friend of Daugherty, in the affairs of the department.

Elizabeth Miller, youthful telephone operator who worked in the attorney general's office, told from the witness stand of the numerous long distance conversations. She said King's calls were a regular thing, no matter where he happened to be.

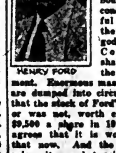
Miss Miller testified that King sometimes telephoned Daugherty from Washington, also, and that at times Daugherty would call King on long distance to New York.

Under cross-examination the witness said that she didn't think of these telephone conversations between Daugherty and King until she read the testimony of the first Daugherty.

(Continued on Page Two)

Coolidge Sits at Meal With $5,000,000,000.00 Worth of Millionaires

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Many of the wealthiest men in the country were present at the dinner given to the president and Mrs. Coolidge by Secretary of the Interior Work, and many others had been invited but were unable to attend. Had all the wealth invited been able to attend it is probable that somethink like $5,000,000,000 would have been represented.



As it was, there were present Henry Ford, reputed to be America's first billionaire; Andrew W. Mellon, said to be the third richest man in the United States; Harvey S. Firestone of Akron, O., the tire magnate; Simon Guggenheim, the copper king; George Eastman, the multi-millionaire kodak manufacturer of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of the mercantile king of Chicago, and others of lesser means.

Among those invited but unable to attend were John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Judge E. H. Gary, Charles M. Schwab, and Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the Philadelphia publisher, whose combined wealth is estimated as well over a billion dollars.

The dinner was given in the Hall of the Americas, in the Pan-American Union building.

Henry Ford Grins.

Henry Ford, the world's richest man, according to some reports, sits and grins while the government tries to collect back taxes from his old friend, Senator Jim Couzens. Couzens planned the Ford Motor Company's finances, and it is said bought out of the concern by guileful Henry. Now the wrath of the gods has fallen on Couzens in the shape of a suit by the U. S. government. Enormous masses of statistics are dumped into circulation to show that the stock of Ford's company was, or was not, worth either $3,500 or $9,500 a share in 1913. Everybody agrees that it is worth more than that now. And the trial probably relates its market price, just as the jokes about tin lizzies helped to sell Ford cars. Every wind is a good wind for the man who sits behind a golden grill.

HENRY FORD

CARMONA FORCES SLAUGHTER MANY IN BOMBARDMENT

Shoot Up Lisbon; Then Announce Revolt Ended

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Although the Portuguese government has announced the complete suppression of the rebellion which broke out last week at Oporto, a message to the admiralty tonight indicates that there is still some firing. The message states that the white flag flies over the rebel headquarters but desultory fighting continues.

• • •

BADAJOS, Spain, Feb. 10.—The reactionary Portuguese government is still making a ruthless attempt, to suppress the rebellion which aims to reestablish constitutional government in Portugal.

Bombardment of Lisbon, which has resulted in the slaughter of many women and children, attempts to smash all labor organizations, and the suspension of newspapers unfriendly to the government are some of the methods which General Carmona is employing to keep himself in power.

General Strike On.

Angered by General Carmona's order that it dissolve, the general federation of labor declared a general strike. The G. F. of L., with the support of all civil and municipal reports, have succeeded in effectively tying up all means of communication. Labor is solidly back of the move to oust General Carmona, the Mussolini of Portugal, acording to advices received here.

Kill Women.

The heavy bombardment of Lisbon by General Carmona's troops has resulted in the slaughter of many noncombatants, including women and children. The bodies of the dead and the dying line the streets of Lisbon, according to the report of a Spanish journalist who arrived at Elvas, a frontier town, yesterday. The property damage is also considerable.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

PARENTS FIGHT CORRUPT SCHOOL SYSTEM

Chicago Parents Want Schools; Called "Mob"

CHICAGO, Feb. 10. — That the school system is not a dead issue in Chicago proven by a great meeting called by the North-West Side Parents' League at 2302 LaSayne St. The basement of the church was packed with angry parents who resent being called "outsiders" and a "mob", when the question of the welfare of the school children is being considered.

John English, member of the board of education, stated that he did not believe in the junior high schools, nor the platoon, but he is in the minority on the school board. He also stated cases of tax dodging by big business. He urged the parents to take more interest in the school system.

The officers of the N. W. S. Parents' League reported that after a fight that lasted for over a year the board of education is still "considering" the question of building additional high class rooms to the Lowell school, when according to the estimation of the Parents' League at least fifteen more rooms are needed. The school has at present over 400 more children than there are seats and it is a growing neighborhood. The other schools in the neighborhood, the Cameron and the Stowe, are also overcrowded.

The N. W. S. Parents' League intends to put up a fight for more school rooms, against the platoon system and against junior high schools.

Bosses' "Sue Bill" to Be Fought by Labor In Massachusetts

BOSTON (FP) — Massachusetts A. F. of L. leaders are appearing before the state legislature in opposition to the "sue bill" permitting voluntary organizations to sue and be sued in the name of the organization, officers or members. At present labor organizations, as voluntary organizations, are protected against such suits. Employers favor the "sue bill."

PONSONBY IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, — Arthur Ponsonby, member of the British parliament and undersecretary of state for foreign affairs in the Ramsay MacDonald government will speak at the Chicago Forum in the Princess Theatre, Sunday afternoon, February 15th.

Electric Chair To Get Rest.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Abolition of capital punishment and the substitution of life imprisonment is provided in a bill introduced in the legislature today by Senator Walsh and Assemblyman Mackenzie, New York democrats.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

Telephone Girls Testify Daugherty Phoned King On Long Distance Frequently

(Continued from Page One)

Miller trial, which resulted in a jury disagreement.

"Then I recalled these conversations," she said, "and thought it peculiar because I had always thought Mr. King was an employe of the Department of Justice."

The testimony caused the first trace of excitement in the courtroom since the second trial began.

"From the frequency of the calls I thought that they must be official," the witness said. She marked them "official," she said, because she was told to.

"I would ask Miss Carroll, secretary to General Daugherty, about the calls, and she told me they were official. Jess Smith also said they were official."

Previous witnesses had testified that Smith had "every evidence of power" in the attorney general's office.

"Hello, John."

Gladys Weeks, another Department of Justice telephone operator, corroborated Miss Miller's testimony.

"General Daugherty received telephone calls from Mr. King and telephoned Mr. King sometimes as often as every day and at other times twice a week during the first few months General Daugherty was in office," she testified.

Long distance calls were made from New York and Bridgeport, Conn., she added.

"What did Daugherty call King on the telephone," United States Attorney Buckner asked.

"He'd say to King, 'Hello, John.'"

The witness did not know what they talked about.

Second Trial.

The trial now proceeding is the second for the same offense. The jury disagreed in the other trial, it is alleged, because the mail of graft led so high that a verdict of guilty would amount to a condemnation of the highest officials, and practically a vote of no-confidence in the American system of government. Evidence in the re-trial has already shown President Harding a visitor to the headquarters Jess Smith and Daugherty maintained together.

The case grew out of the efforts of the American Metals Co., owned by German capitalists, to get back properties of theirs being administered by the alien property custodian after the end of the war. The government is disposed to admit that the German claim was just. What Daugherty, and Miller are accused of, is "holding up" and "shaking down" the Germans, by throwing difficulties in their way, until they paid the nearly half million dollar bribe to smooth the path.

A Book for the Irish Worker

"Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1916"

Introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty.

By G. Schuller.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

Jim Connolly was the military leader of the Easter Week rebellion in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing thru one of the most serious crises that faced it during the world war. Connolly, the International Marxist, linked his small army of workers with the nationalist secret society known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the international socialist movement to appreciate the value of the nationalist question to the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Bolshevik in the full sense of the term. His little pamphlet by G. Schuler is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this country. It was originally published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International.

It should be distributed in large quantities among the Irish workers in the United States. Connolly is a magic name with every Irish worker who has a spark of the divine fire of revolt in his system. It can also be read with interest by every radical worker who wants to soak up on the strategy and tactics of revolution. Comrade Schuler declares that Connolly was a Leninist. He was. His fall before a British squad in 1916, one year before the Russian workers and peasants buried the Czar and Czardom and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.

WILL CONTINUE TO RAID PLAYS PLAYING UP SEX

Theatre District Feels Vague Apprehension

Further raids on "sex" plays are promised by District Attorney Banton while New York is still talking about the arrests of the authors, owners and actors of "Sex," "The Captive," and "The Virgin Man," Wednesday night after the regular performances.

Latest Developments.

The latest developments are as follows:

One—Arrangements are being made by the police department to re-arrest those who were left out on bail Wednesday for safekeeping their plays and to keep up that process at every performance.

Two — Yesterday afternoon's matinees of "The Virgin Man" was raided and resulted in its being called off. Money was refunded to the biggest aggregation of customers the show had ever seen.

Three—Talk on the part of the producers to seek injunctions if the police continue to raid every performance of their plays.

Four—A statement from the district attorney's office that the next point of attack would be the revues that feature nude women.

Five—The publication of the plan of the Committee of Nine, consisting of actors, producers and dramatists for a jury of seven to condemn plays by a majority vote, with the provision that the Actors' Equity Association force its members from the cast of a disapproved production.

Forty-one Arrested.

In Wednesday's raids forty-one arrests were made altogether. Eight were from "The Virgin Man," was raided—one from "Sex" and twelve from "The Captive." Held under $1,000 bail by Magistrate Flood were seven from "Sex" and three from each of the other two shows. The twenty-eight others were held in $500 bail each.

The case will be heard Monday at 2:30 p. m. The prisoners from "Sex" will appear in West Side Court and those from the other two plays in Jefferson Market Court.

"I expect that within a week or ten days the cases resulting from Wednesday night's activities will be dispensed with," District Attorney Banton stated yesterday.

The plan from the Committee of Nine was announced by Frank Gilmore and Winthrop Ames.

"We shall maintain a committee of three managers, three authors and three actors as a permanent theatre supervision board. This board, to be appointed annually, will open an office to act as a clearing house for all complaints on plays already produced and for advance information regarding plays in preparation," Gilmore said.

"A contract has been arranged which places at the board's disposal the services of that most responsible and efficient organization, the American Arbitration Association.

"The scheme will act as follows: A play is about to open in New York upon which the executive secretary's office has disturbing advance information. He calls together a sub-committee of the theatre supervision board to advise him. He is further advised on the public's behalf by an appointee of the American Arbitration Association. Three courses are open:

"The play may be reviewed before its New York opening, on the night of its New York opening, or on public demand after its New York opening."

YOUNG WORKERS ATTENTION.

All articles and notices for the Youth column should be addressed as follows: "J. Perillo, Editor Youth Column, 108 East 14th street, Room 32, New York City."

The quality of the column will in a large degree depend on the matter of contributions received.

Young Worker correspondents, get on the job!

Edison, Octogenarian Today.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 10.—Thomas A. Edison tomorrow will celebrate his eightieth birthday. He will celebrate it by working as usual, as on former anniversaries, although he will grant an interview to newspapermen, and attend a dinner given in his honor by men who have been associated with him for many years.

Tell your friends to buy The DAILY WORKER at the news-

KUOMINTANG SPEAKER WILL ADDRESS CLEVELAND ANTI-IMPERIALIST MEETING

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—A protest against American imperialism in Mexico, Nicaragua and China will be made at a mass meeting called by the Cleveland Committee on American Imperialism and the People's Reconstruction League this Sunday.

The meeting will serve to crystallize anti-imperialist sentiment in this city, it is hoped, and every effort is being made to line up unions, workers' clubs and liberal organizations in the war against American imperialism.

J. Jong, a member of the Kuomintang (nationalist) party of China, Peter Witt, a member of the City Council, Benjamin Marsh of the People's Reconstruction League, Tom Clifford, Rabbi B. Brickner, Rev. Joel Hayden, I. Amter and Mrs. Jellife, who recently returned from Mexico will be among the speakers. A. F. Coyle will be chairman.

The meeting will be held in Moose Hall, 1006 Walnut street, Sunday, Feb. 13 at 3 p. m. Admission will be free.

REAL ORIGIN OF FORD TAX TRIAL

Might Have Missed Loss Except for Letter

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10. — The origin of the government's $30,000,000 tax assessment against the minority stockholders of the Ford Motor company was revealed today to have been in the famous fight over Henry Ford and Senator Truman H. Newberry's admission to the United States Senate.

David H. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue, on the stand today before the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals, revealed that it was a letter from Senator James E. Watson (R) of Indiana, which started the treasury to investigating the original treasury valuation of the Ford company stock.

Angry at Ford.

Senator Watson wrote Commissioner Blair a letter in 1922, enclosing a memorandum questioning the treasury's valuation of the Ford stock. It was at this time that the Newberry fight was at its height in the senate. Senator Watson was one of the republican leaders who fought for the seating of Newberry.

Senator James Cousens (R) of Mich., was appointed to succeed Newberry in November of 1922, and later the treasury assessed against him approximately $11,000,000 in excess taxes.

Commissioner Blair testified that he had received a letter and memorandum questioning the proper valuation of Ford stock and said he referred it to a deputy commissioner for investigation.

Blair said that he informed Watson that "he would trace the matter this time through entirely different channels."

The defense contended that Blair's statement showed the Bureau of Internal Revenue had previously investigated the Roper valuation of $2,429 per share for Ford stock in 1918.

Blair testified that an anonymous letter was sent to the department in 1921 declaring that "Ford owed a lot of tax." He said the letter was dismissed lightly because it was "quite evident that Ford didn't owe tax on the stock transaction."

Deputy Commissioner Nash signed the $10,909,000 assessment against Cousens on March 11, and smaller assessments against other minority stockholders within the next two days, according to his own testimony.

"I was informed by investigators that the Statue of Limitations would expire March 13, 1925," Nash said.

"The expiration of the time was the only 'jeopardy' involved."

The correspondence between internal revenue bureau officials relating to the investigations of the Ford tax action, beginning in 1922, were introduced in evidence today by a strong protest from the government.

Defense Has Innings.

One letter in September, 1922, from M. T. Johnson, chairman of the committee on Tax Appeals and Review, to Cary A. Mapes, solicitor of internal revenue, declared that in his judgment the basis for fixing the original $9,489 valuation as of March 1, 1913, was sound. Mapes approved the report. It was contended that Mapes' decision was reached after several investigations by the government.

Counsel for the taxpayers said that "after repeated approvals and confirmans of the proper valuation in 1921 and 1922, the Bureau of Internal Revenue made a settlement in 1923 of Senator Cousens' tax liability.

Electrician Seriously Injured.

Believing him to be still saliva, doctor and fellow employes today worked for four hours with artificial respiration devices to revive James Linter, 22, an electrician, of 38-A Gauthier Avenue, Jersey City, who collapsed at work today when 11,000 volts of electricity passed through his body.

Lita Scores Again.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—An important legal victory for Lita Grey Chaplin, who is suing her husband, Charles Chaplin, famous comedian, for divorce, was scored here today when Judge Hartley Shaw denied a motion to vacate the receivership order involving Chaplin's Hollywood studio.

Swedish Warship in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Mme. Anderberg, wife of the Swedish minister to Mexico, died suddenly at the legation while making preparations for a reception to officers of a Swedish cruiser visiting Mexico.

War of Big Soldiers Over Railroads Shows Labor the Road to Unity

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TWO of the three recently bankrupt railroads, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas and the Missouri Pacific, have been dismembered by the Wall Street banking interests. The third, the Texas & Pacific, is still intact, but it is being dismembered—the Union Pacific has spread westward to the Pacific Coast. Hill was master of the Great Northern. They both had dreams of far-flung railroad empires. Jim Hill fought the American Railway Union headed by "Gene" Debs in the latter part of the last century. Harriman helped conduct a long and bitter war on the railroad shopmen in 1912.

* * *

Edward H. Collins, in the New York Tribune, now tells us that:

"Out of a welter of stock market gyration, speculation and conjecture that for weeks has hung over Wall Street like a perplexing, almost impenetrable shroud, there has emerged, in the last 24 hours, the clear-cut outline of a new eastern railroad empire, which in expanse not only surpasses any pending present-day consolidation, but which transcends the dreams of those ambitious railroad builders of another generation, E. H. Harriman and James J. Hill."

* * *

Harriman and Hill got rich land grants and subsidies from the government, controlled state legislatures by open bribery and otherwise worked themselves into advantageous positions that made railroading a mighty paying business, especially when miserable conditions at low wages could also be forced on the workers.

Control has now passed from the much advertised "railroad builders" to the great financiers who have their headquarters in Wall Street.

* * *

Thus the new struggle for control in the eastern railroad empire is being waged between these giant groups:

On the one hand the New York Central, the Baltimore and Ohio and the so-called Van Swaringen railroad lines, a group of roads "penetrating to every industrial center of importance between the Mississippi and the North Atlantic seaboard and connecting all of the great land and water gateways of this rich territory."

This mammoth combination is being built by the financial interests headed by George F. Baker, chairman of the board of the First National Bank, and the House of Morgan & Co., and "boasts a 35,000 mile railroad system, despite capitalization of $3,650,604,287."

This is the crowd that engineered the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad "corner" on the stock exchange this week, which incidentally, revealed that these three trunk lines have captured control of the Western Maryland Railroad, in which the Rockefellers have a large block of stock, although John D. Jr., claimed this ownership was not sufficient to dictate a settlement of the strike that has raged on this road for more than a year. This statement, however, is disputed.

* * *

Against this crowd are the forces allied with the Pennsylvania Railroad system, that was drawn in the Kuhn, Loeb "pool," i. e. Loree, head of the Delaware and Hudson and Young (figure) in the Kansas City Southern consolidation in the southwest.

* * *

The fact that this struggle is going on again reveals that railroad consolidation is progressing rapidly.

Out of the clash between the House of Morgan and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., between the group of railroads supporting the New York Central and the contending group backing the Pennsylvania, there will come a more capitalized control that will be in a position to strike more powerful blows against the workers, organized and unorganized.

* * *

While the great capitalists, therefore, are figuring out their differences, passing rapidly from the earlier period of competition to the great trust of today, the trade union movement still clings tenaciously to its outworn craft form of organization. More than a score of craft unions divide jurisdiction on the railroads.

While organized capital, arrayed in mighty formations of billions of dollars, marches forward to strengthen its position and exact a greater toll of profits from its victims, labor segregates its strength in many groups, some of these often competing with each other.

It is on the Pennsylvania Railroad for instance that the operating unions, the so-called railroad brotherhoods, have been especially vicious in undermining the struggle of the shop workers. The former here, as elsewhere, tries to win concessions at the expense of the latter.

* * *

The "corner" in Wall Street, in any stock, means that someone has secured possession of the outstanding stock of the corporation and is holding it for top-notch prices.

It is only when the workers are 100 per cent organized, when their forces are amalgamated into a powerful industrial union, that they will be able to declare a "corner" on labor on the railroads, or in any other great industry, and make possible the winning of better conditions and living wages. The maneuvers of the great financiers in the railroad industry show more than ever that "amalgamation or annihilation" is a more vital slogan than ever for all railroad workers, that should be translated immediately into definite action.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

leg. John Bull is not so enthusiastic now.

* * *

HOW much money John D. Rockefeller cleaned up in the latest gamble in railroad stocks may continue to be as deep a secret as the exact state of his fortune. Wheeling and Lake Erie, controlled by Rockefeller went up from $37.50 to $130 a share while John was innocently playing golf and giving away dimes in Florida. The "get-rich-quick" fraternity who hanker for the flesh pots of Egypt recollected that those who invested their money with Ford are now being chased for income tax. They puchased Rockefeller stock on margin and now have neither money, margin nor stock. Blessed indeed are the rich for they shall become richer.

* * *

THERE is in New York state a society for the suppression of vice. The late J. P. Morgan was one of its incorporators. The law creating the society provided that half the amount of the fines collected thru the instrumentality of the vice snoopers should go to the society. Under the influence of this golden urge the secretary of this society has stuck his nose into everything that promised to add a few dollars to his bank account. There is a bill now before the legislature to repeal the law.

* * *

THOUSANDS of jobless girls pound the sidewalks daily looking for a master. They hunt work because they must eat. The papers do not carry a line about them. The daughter of a noted singer got tired of living idly in her apartment at the Ansonia Hotel and accepted a job selling perfumes in a store. Columns are devoted to the phenomenon. Not so long ago the daughter of a meat magnate decided to start from the bottom of the business at 30 cents an hour in her father's factory. It got a big write up in the papers. Jobs on an equal footing for the poor and rich? Hardly.

* * *

THERE is a "bad" man in a cell in Harrisburg, Illinois, with a thompson machine gun across his knee and a revolver by his side. He was involved in a bootlegging feud with a rival gang and was arrested by the marshal. A considerable jailer provided him with the artillery. The gangster was not satisfied however. He wanted to be let free so that he could deploy his forces to better advantage against the enemy. Had this happened in Mexico, Kellogg would collect the rest of the marines that are still guarding the mails from the attentions of 100 per cent American robbers and send them south to restore order.

* * *

THE Rockefeller-quinine fraternity who hanker for the flesh pots of Egypt recollected that those who invested their money with Ford are now being chased for income tax. They puchased Rockefeller stock on margin and now have neither money, margin nor stock. Blessed indeed are the rich for they shall become richer.

* * *

HERE is in New York state a society for the suppression of vice. The late J. P. Morgan was one of its incorporators. The law creating the society provided that half the amount of the fines collected thru the instrumentality of the vice snoopers should go to the society. Under the influence of this golden urge the secretary of this society has stuck his nose into everything that promised to add a few dollars to his bank account. There is a bill now before the legislature to repeal the law.

* * *

THOUSANDS of jobless girls pound the sidewalks daily looking for a master. They hunt work because they must eat. The papers do not carry a line about them. The daughter of a noted singer got tired of living idly in her apartment at the Ansonia Hotel and accepted a job selling perfumes in a store. Columns are devoted to the phenomenon. Not so long ago the daughter of a meat magnate decided to start from the bottom of the business at 30 cents an hour in her father's factory. It got a big write up in the papers. Jobs on an equal footing for the poor and rich? Hardly.

* * *

Wage Increase for Stenos Proposed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Clerks to judges of the Court of Appeals who also act as stenographers would be entitled to a salary not exceeding $5,000 a year, under provisions of a bill introduced in the legislature today by Senator Pearson of Syracuse. The present salary limit is $4,000.

SEEK TO UNCOVER POLITICAL REASON FOR WORK DINNER

May Be Slap at Butler; Resolution on 3rd Term

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Capital society and politicians were still buzzling today over the history of Secretary of the Interior Work's dinner to President and Mrs. Coolidge Tuesday night, and while thirty-six hours have elapsed no one as yet has come forward with a plausible reason for the cabinet officer's decision to turn the annual affair into what amounted to an official function.

For years it has been the custom of each member of the cabinet to arrange a small and informal dinner in honor of the chief executive. These dinners have been held in the privacy of his home, or, where the department head resides in a hotel, in a private dining room. Only a few intimate friends of the cabinet officer have been invited.

Big Ceremony.

Yet Work engaged the spacious Pan-American Union building which is the State Department employs for state functions, and Marine Band played for the occasion.

Instead of a few intimate friends, his guests included the greatest figures in the financial world—Firestone, Guggenheim, Eastman, Ogden Reid, P. T. Crowley and others. Rockefeller, Schwab, Gary and Curtis were invited but unable to attend.

Ambassadors Present.

Present also were Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador. Rare have been the occasions when other cabinet officers have attended these gatherings, and never—at least in the memory of the oldest correspondents—has a foreign envoy graced the board.

The arrival of the President and Mrs. Coolidge was announced by a fanfare of trumpets and the presidential ruffle. Every other feature of the dinner was in keeping with this ultra-formality.

Those who follow the ways of society—and politicos—are still guessing.

A Public Commendation

Some of the guesses are to the effect that this semi-royal gathering of big business with its representatives in government office is a gesture of the ultra-conservatives, the men with money and influence, presidential campaigns cannot be won, and is intended to intimidate such executives as Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University. They say that Butler and his sort are really tremendously overawed by all the words of wisdom that can be traced to Wall Street. Work's dinner is as fair as Work managed is a way of saying publicity to Butler. "Hands off. This is our faithful servant, in whom we are well pleased."

Democrats Pleased.

The capital is seething with talk for and against the "third term." The democrats consider Butler's latter and the rumpus that followed, as one of them said, "manna from a political heaven."

A resolution, written by Senator T. H. Caraway (D) of Arkansas, probably will be presented in the senate before adjournment which declares it to be the sense of the senate that no man should seek to break down the tradition against a third term in the White House. Such a measure is bound to provoke considerable debate, and admirable it has a chance of passage. Coolidge's friends, of course, will fight it.

House Gets Resolution.

The house was asked today to go on record as opposing any president holding office for more than two terms.

A resolution to this effect was introduced by Rep. Beck (R) of Wisconsin, a member of the house progressive bloc.

He declared that a third term, violating all custom, would be "unwise and unpatriotic."

It was the accepted belief that Beck's resolution was directed at heading off another term of President Coolidge, who has twice taken the oath though he has been elected but once as president.

Butler "The Liberal"?

Nicholas "Miraculous" Butler, who is one hundred per cent wet, and an aspirant to the presidency, has agreed to confer with Senator William E. Borah, a confirmed dry, on the prohibition question, according to a letter made public by Dr. Butler last night.

Staunch advocate of personal liberty that he is, President Butler objects to the 18th Amendment, on the ground that it violates our national Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the constitution.

Having kicked out a number of liberal college professors during the war for entertaining opinions that differed from his, Dr. Butler declares now in his letter, "If to declare for the enforcement of the 18th Amendment means its enforcement even if the violation of the Bill of Rights and other fundamental laws of the land, I am against such declaration and against such policy."

Subscribe for the DAILY WORKER.

LORE'S ATTACK ON COMMUNISTS IS REPUDIATED

Food Workers Re-Elect Delegates He Ousted

Amalgamated Food Workers' Local No. 164 (Bakers), listened to a long tirade against the Workers (Communist) Party and The DAILY WORKER by Ludwig Lore, and then rebuffed him by voting to send back to the Volkszeitung Conference the same delegates that Lore's group had already refused to seat.

Called To Answer.

Lore came to the local meeting to explain why the bakers' delegates were kept out. Instead of explaining, he engaged in a lot of arguments like this:

"We must get rid of this nest of the Workers Party." "The problem fundamentally is a Macht Kampf (struggle for power)." "The DAILY WORKER is dictated to by Moscow." "The DAILY WORKER came to New York to live off the back of the Volkszeitung." "These delegates came to the conference with instructions from a Workers Party caucus."

Immediately Corrected.

This last statement caused one of the expelled delegates, Brother Aumiller, to call Lore'n liar. Aumiller stated he was not a member of the Workers Party.

Aumiller told of squads of fake delegates sent to the conference representing the many branches of the very weak International Workingmen's Association founded in America by Lore, apparently as an insult to Marx and Engels, who founded the historic organization by that name.

Past Policy Different.

Brother Rosenberg, an active member of the union, tore the mask from Lore's policy when he reminded him how he himself created a caucus when he was trying to put out of the editorship Bella Low, and put himself in. He also showed that Lore on the one hand scoffs at the Workers Party as "hankrupt" and on the other hand resorts to the almost reckless, splitting tactics to avoid having any of these supported Workers Party influenced persons in his Volkszeitung conference.

Who Pays?

Brother Fotis put the question very clearly. "Who shall determine the policy of the Volkszeitung? If we give our money and energy for the paper we have a right to help determine the policy of the paper and all attempts at separating the publishing association from the conference is harsh."

In his closing speech Mr. Lore said, "I am in favor of instructions but from the right party. (He means the International Workingmen's Association?) If I think the instructions are not in coherence with the political and economic conditions, I will tear them to pieces (as of Napoleon!) Burharin at the last enlarged executive asked Boris Reinstein to investigate my record, and he reported that I was an independent Communist." (Does he really think that the C. I. has nothing else to do but waste its time with the likes of him?)

None of the members could stomach his stuff and after listening to his long tirade decided unanimously to allow the expelled members to remain as delegates to the Volkszeitung conference. Lore and Winter went away from the meeting totally discredited.

Volume of Machine Business Declines

The American Machinist reports that the volume of business placed for machine tools and other tools for the last week was somewhat below the average. Inquiries for special types of machinery continue active for the time of year. Specialists in the automobile industry increased, but was not reflected in the call for new equipment. Activity around Chicago also slackened a bit. New York trading was quiet and only small business was recorded. The Hardware Age records the same conditions in its field. Reports from its various centers show very slow business.

Czarist Hangman Executed.

LENINGRAD, Feb. 10.—M. Kratsun, former head hangman of the Riga prison, was today executed, together with former Chief Warden Freed and Assistant Warden Loman, on charges of cruelty to prisoners during the czarist regime.

SAVE THIS VALUABLE PRIZE COUPON

A Copy of Red Cartoons of 1927, Worth $1.00 for 50 Cents With 50 of These Coupons

CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT.

RED CARTOONS OF 1927 is even a finer collection of the most recent cartoons of the well-known labor artists—Robert Minor, Fred Ellis, K. A. Suvanto, Art Young, Hay Bales, Jerger, Vose and others. Each picture is large enough to be framed and mounted. The book includes in all 64 of the finest cartoons of the past year. This wonderful volume is not for sale. It is offered only to those who help us to build the Daily Worker.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street New York, N. Y.

SOVIET WORKERS TO BE MAIN ISSUE AT CONVENTIONS

Butler Says Republican Party Must Be Wet

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Prohibition is to be a controversial issue in both the republican and democratic national conventions next year—perhaps the big issue.

This was universally accepted in the capital today by leaders of both political parties. They deplore it, or most of them do, but say they do not see how it can be kept out.

The democrats, of course, have been headed for a wet-and-dry fight in 1928 ever since Madison Square Garden, and the republicans had been congratulating themselves that they would "let the democrats hang themselves" on the hooks of that controversy.

Butler Now Wet Leader.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's assumption of the leadership of the republican wet wing, and his assertion that no man can be elected in '28 who does not take a stand against the Volstead law, has changed the party outlook. Republican drys, headed by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, fairly fell over themselves today in their eagerness to accept Dr. Butler's challenge to thresh it out in the republican convention next year.

"The republican party, as a party, should unmistakably declare itself on this question," said Borah, "and I shall contribute in every way I can to force the issue to a final conclusion in the next convention."

Senator Willis to the Rescue.

"Dr. Butler's prophecies may be lightly passed over," said Senator Willis (R) of Ohio, the Anti-Saloon League's champion in the senate. "Heretofore his political prognostications have been as faulty as his political leadership has been disastrous.

"His pronouncements on the 18th Amendment are cagerly quoted by the lawbreaker who seeks to cover his misdeeds with a cloak of borrowed respectability."

The keenness of the wet-and-dry controversy somewhat overshadowed today the other bold prediction of Dr. Butler — that President Coolidge's "common sense" would prevent his attempting to buck the third-term tradition. A good many republicans in congress agreed with his prediction, though most of them did so privately.

Will Coolidge Run Again?

Senator George H. Moses (R) of New Hampshire, was an exception to the rule of those who would only comment privately.

"I do not think President Coolidge will run for a third term," he said. "I base my opinion on the same reasons given by Dr. Butler and upon other fundamental reasons not stated by him. I do not, however, assume to speak for the president."

A complete and impenetrable silence prevailed at the White House concerning Dr. Butler's comments on the third term and upon prohibition. Mr. Coolidge has ignored all questions put to him concerning these matters.

Women Workers to Keep World-wide Holiday in March

By M. HARTLIEB.
(Worker Correspondent.)

On Tuesday, March 8, the workers of New York City are going to celebrate the recent but very significant international holiday, the International Women's Day.

Since the year 1910, when this holiday was declared at an international conference of women at Copenhagen under the influence of Clara Zetkin, International Women's Day has been celebrated in every country that boasts of a labor movement.

Thrice Enslaved.

On March 8 the woman worker, who is richly exploited as a worker, housewife and mother, dedicates herself anew to the struggle. The woman worker is beginning to learn that her problems are not peculiar problems that can be solved in some peculiar way. The woman worker is fast realizing that her problems are part of the problems of the working class as a whole, which can, and will be solved only when the struggle of the working class will be fought out.

Most Exploited.

The woman, who is one of the most exploited workers in the present capitalistic order, is falling in line with other members of the oppressed class. On International Women's Day the great mass of the working class, the working women, will review the lessons that they have learned in the process of their struggle; solidify their forces, and, shoulder to shoulder with their fellow workingmen, will march solidly for the abolition of the inhumanizing, brutal and crushing system of capitalistic exploitation.

Granada Has Hot Time.

GRANADA, Spain, Feb. 10.—Fire has destroyed the cavalry barracks here, which were lodged in an ancient convent. The damage is estimated at more than a million pesetas. The munition stores blew up and seven soldiers were injured but not killed.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

DRAMA

BROADWAY GOSSIP.

Lenore Correll has decided on Feb. 20 as the best date of "What Anne Brought Home" by Larry F. Johnson. The comedy is scheduled for showing at Wallacks Theatre.

The cast of "A Lady in Love," which A. E. and R. R. Rickin will open at Mansfield next Thursday, prior to its New York showing, will include Peggy Wood, Sidney Greenstreet, Llana Carrera (daughter of Anna Held), Etienne Girardot, Alfred Helton, Gavin Gordon, Walter Jones, Allyn Josyn and Dennis Moore.

Robert Sherwood's latest play, "Love Nest," a dramatization of Ring Lardner's story, may be seen on Broadway soon.

William B. Friedlander is planning a summer revue entitled "Paris by Night." Eddie Conrad and Helen Chappy, a French singer, are to be featured.

"Revelry," a dramatization of Samuel Hopkins Adams' novel, will be produced this Spring by Sam H. Harris Boni and Liveright, the publishers of the book, report a decided interest is the novel.

"Lili Belle," celebrated a year's run, at the Belasco Theatre Wednesday night.

"Possibilities" a play by two English doctors, J. S. and Ernest W. Martin, will be the next play of the Threshold Matinee at the Princess Theatre with Clara Tree Major the sponsor. The new play is said to be one of fantasy, dealing with philosophy.

The Cellar Players of the Hudson Guild will give a bill of three one-act plays as their second program of the season. The plays are "Sovereign of Love," by T. C. Murray; "Mrs. Adis", by Sheila Kaye-Smith, and "The Circus Guy", by Arthur C. White and Reynolds Unger. Performances will be given on Feb. 16, 18, 20, 23, 25, 27 at 436 West Twenty-seventh Street.

Frederick Lonsdale's next play, hitherto known as "The League of Nations", will be titled "Most of Us Are". It will be produced here by Arthur Hopkins and Arch Selwyn.

"The Crime Wave", by Samuel Shipman and John B. Hymer, was produced in Philadelphia Monday night by A. H. Woods. It will come to New York in two weeks.

"A Woman In the House," the comedy by Samuel Shipman and Nall Twomey, in which Jones and Green will star Louis Mann and Clara Lipman, will have in its cast Franklyn Farnum, Marion Stokes, Mary Loane, Robert Williams, Marie Reichert and Joan La Montte. The play opens out of town in two weeks.

GEORGES RENAVENT

Is presenting a group of Grand Guignol one-act plays at the Greve Street Theatre.

CONBOY PRAISES ORGANIZATION OF PASSAIC RELIEF

Herself Gives Shoes to Prisoners' Children

PASSAIC, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Sara A. Conboy, International Financial Secretary of the United Textile Workers paid a visit to the strike zone and presented new shoes and rubbers to twenty-five children of the eleven strike victims incarcerated since last September in connection with the police bomb plot which, local strike leaders declare, was intended to prevent the American Federation of Labor from coming into Passaic. Five of these men have recently been sentenced to prison for three years each, and another one is to be sentenced next Thursday. They are all family men, most of them with several small children. Their families are in an impoverished condition as a result of the long strike and the prospect of facing the future with their bread winners now behind bars are none too bright.

This was Mrs. Conboy's first visit to the strike zone and she spent the easy looking over the food stores, children's kitchens, clothing store and picket line lunch counters operated by the General Relief Committee of Local 1603, U. T. W., with the contributions received from organized labor throughout the country. She was also taken to the picket line stations and had a view of the lines at the two plants of the Forstmann & Huffmann company, and at the plants of the United Piece Dye Works, Botany Worsted and the New Jersey Spinning, where the strike continues. Mrs. Conboy expressed herself as greatly impressed with the relief machinery and promised continued cooperation in raising funds to give relief to the workers of the settled mills who have not yet been returned to work as well as to the strikers of the five mills which still refuse to deal with the union.

Senate Committee Not Able to Decide Course With Insull's Senator

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The Senate elections committee is handling the case of Senator-designate Frank L. Smith with great circumspection. The report that the committee had decided by a small majority to recommend that he be seated, and then immediately expelled, seems to have been premature.

The committee fears to attempt such drastic action and is now decided not to make any preliminary report, but to postpone all action until next Wednesday, at which time it will begin a long research into the findings of the Reed Committee, which reveal that enormous sums were donated to the Smith primary election campaign in Illinois by Samuel Insull, super power and street rail way king of the middle west.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Sentence of a Year And a Half Given to New Jersey Mayor

Mayor Henry Wissel, of Edgewater, N. J., and Chief of Police Dinan are sentenced to a year and a half in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. They were convicted in Federal Court last week on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws in connection with the unloading of the rum ship Eker at Edgewater last spring.

Two Edgewater detectives convicted with their chiefs were given suspended sentences of nine months each. Earlier in the afternoon Cecil Kinder and De Witt Turner, reputed owners of the Eker, were sentenced to 18 months each at Atlanta. Clifford Kinder, a brother of Cecil, who also was claimed to have had an interest in the Eker, was sentenced to 6 months in the Westchester County jail.

American Imperialism Will Be Denounced in Brooklyn Mass Meeting

American imperialism is to be protested by the Brooklyn Section of the Workers (Communist) Party at a mass meeting to be arranged for Feb. 18, at the Royal Palace, 16 Manhattan Ave., near Broadway.

Workers of Brooklyn will be mobilized to fight the dangers of a new war, evil to demand of the government that she take "Hands off China," withdraw the troops from Nicaragua, and take "Hands off Mexico."

Scott Nearing, Juliette Stuart Poyntz and William W. Weinstone are to be the speakers; the committee has also arranged for a musical program.

Stand on Russian Party Opposition Given Sanction

The Harlem section, at a meeting that was the best-attended in recent months, discussed the situation in the Russian Party. The report of Comrade Weinstone was followed by a long discussion which lasted well past one o'clock. Three voted against and eleven abstained, but the mass of the membership supported the C. E. C. of the American Party in its stand against the Russian opposition.

Bath Beach Meet Tonight.

A meeting of the Bath Beach Street Nucleus is going to be held on Friday, February 11, at 7 p. m. A discussion will take place on the question of the International Labor Defence.

Thieves Tempted by Bronx Jail Gates

Thieves visited the Bronx county jail in the Bronx supreme court building at Third avenue and 161st street, yesterday morning and attempted to walk off with one of the bronze gates of an entrance to the basement. This was discovered when A. Wyman, custodian of the building, came to work in the morning and noticed that the padlock had been broken open.

It was his belief that a general jail delivery had not been planned, but that the burglars had tried to pry the bronze gate from its hinges and sell it for junk. Bronze is worth 8¢ cents a pound and this door weighs about 400 pounds.

Elizabeth Workers to Hold Lenin Meeting

The Workers Party of Elizabeth, N. J., will hold a Lenin memorial meeting on Sunday, Feb. 13th, at 7.30 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 313 Court Street.

In addition to good speakers there will also be an excellent musical program.

Letters From Our Readers

Uncle Sam—Stingy Boss.

Editor, DAILY WORKER:—Have you ever noticed the pinched, half starved look and delapidated appearance of the drivers of our U. S. Parcel Post (one horse wagons), who are going about the city collecting and delivering the U. S. mail?

My attention was called this morning to them fellows, and so I spoke to a few of them in different parts of the city.

They do not have to know anything, and need not furnish any reference. In return for these contrasties to them, their working hours extend from 12 to 14 a day, for a wage of $2.56; or in other words the U. S. postoffice pays for an average 80 hour week of responsible work the munificent salary of $18.

Can the government find an excuse for entrusting responsible work to the care of practical paupers? They have their nerve to holler "Bandit" whenever a pourh is stolen.

—JOS. WALLACE.

* * *

Poor Organizers, Attention.

Editor, DAILY WORKER:—I wish to call to the attention of the general public of New York, and in particular to the officials and organizers of the local labor movement the fact that the construction work on the subway is mostly done under unfair and non-union conditions.

The blasters are working with non union drillers, non-union reckmen, non-union laborers, non-union powder carriers and watchmen. The hoisting engineers on these subway constructions are working with non-union pipefitters, non-union laborers, non-union signal men, non-union flagmen and non-union gasoline-compressor operators.

Why didn't the delegates of the different so-called A. F. of L. unions organize the men instead of giving them the ha-ha? A CONSTANT READER.

International Labor Defense Branch for Italians Organized

At a general membership meeting of the New York District of the Anti-Fascist Alliance action was taken on motion agreed to at the National Convention of the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America to form a branch, AnExecutive board of 7 was been elected.

The question of the I. L. D. Bazaar which is being held on March 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th in New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue, was then discussed. It was decided to have a spaghetti booth at the bazaar. A special bazaar committee of 3 was elected.

Police Charged With Graft.

MINEOLA, L. I., Feb. 10.—A jury was chosen and trial started in supreme court here today of four members of the Nassau County vice squad who were yesterday acquitted here of a charge of extortion. The men are being tried on an indictment charging grand larceny on complaint of Mrs. Theresa Barborowsky of Hempstead. She said that the men took $400 from under a trunk and from her purse several months ago.

AMUSEMENTS

Neighborhood Playhouse
466 Grand St. Dryd'k 7310
Evgs. 8:30 (except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
by Francis Edwards Faragoh
"THE DYBBUK"—Feb. 17

KLAW THEA. W. 45th St. Evs. 8:30
Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30
"SINNER"
With Allen Dinehart & Claiborne Foster

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St.
Mats. Wednesday & Saturday
Last Evenings and Thu. and Sat. Mats.
WINTHROP AMES'
Gilbert & Sullivan PIRATES OF PENZANCE
Opera Co. Evenings Only. Matinees
Thursday Evening Only. Matinees

Theatre Guild Acting Company in
PYGMALION
Week Feb. 14—SAMARKOV
GUILD Thea., W. 52d St. Evs. 8:30
Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

Ned McCobb's Daughter
Week Feb. 14—SILVER CORD
John Golden Thea., 58th St., E. of 6th Ave.
Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

Civic Repertory 14th St. & 6th Av.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
TONIGHT "CRADLE SONG"
TOMORROW MAT. "CRADLE SONG"
TOMORROW EVE. "MASTER BUILDER"

An AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre 48th St. 6TH MONTH
Mts. Wed. and Sat.

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALLACK'S, 58th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30

RITZ Thea., 48th St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8:30. Mats. WED. and SAT. 2:30

Bye Bye Brunette
Musical Bon Bon with Dorothy Burgess, Rudolph Cameron, Louis Simon, Willie Howard

Sam H. HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30 & 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY

Philadelphia Pioneers To Hold Their Dance on February Twenty-fifth

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 10.

The third anniversary celebration of the Philadelphia Young Pioneer League will be held Friday, February 25, 8 p. m., at the Thyrion Hall, Broad and Oxford Sts.

For the first time in Philadelphia, Pioneers will officially graduate into the Young Workers League.

If you have heard the Pioneers sing, you will want to hear them again. If you did not hear them it yet, you ought to, and this is the best occasion for it. The Pioneer Chorus is preparing a number of inspiring songs that will become the rage of the Philadelphia workers.

So you know that the Philadelphia Pioneers have a wonderful harmonica orchestra? Come and hear them play; you will certainly enjoy it.

Admission only 40 cents.

Youth Conference In Illinois.

(By Young Worker Correspondent)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A Working Youth Conference was held here with delegates from 11 local unions of the United Mine Workers and delegates representing young workers in other industries in and around Springfield. Before the conference ajoined an executive committee of 16 members was elected which is representative of the largest and most important unions of Springfield and vicinity.

Besides passing strong resolutions to organize the unorganized, for the building of labor sports groups and for the various unions to undertake labor education, the conference empowered the executive to do the utmost to call similar working youth conferences in the future, and to try and spread this movement into other parts of the state.

There were two representatives of the Bellville strikers present at the conference who reported that about 226 young workers are out on strike against the Bellville Enamel and the Keogh Enamel Works.

Stelton Will Hold Students' Exhibit At Workers' Center

STELTON, N. J., Feb. 10.—The modern school of Stelton, founded 19 years ago by a group of working men for the recreation of their children, will exhibit the latest products of the young pupils' artistry, craftmanship and scholarship. This exhibition will be held on Feb. 18, 19 and 20 at the Workers Center, 219 Second Ave.

The pupils range between the ages of seven to fourteen years. Individual exhibitions consist of drawings, paintings, crafts, woodwork, weaving, clay modeling, basketry and their own magazine, "The Voice of the Children."

Saturday, Feb. 19, at 8:30 P. M., a common dinner will be held for the friends and supporters of the school. Course tickets for the entire program cost two dollars each, and may be obtained at the Workers Center, or at Room 411, 70 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Bronx Section Young Workers' League Meets Tonight at Boston Rd.

Bronx Young Workers (Communist) League, Attention! The next meeting of the Bronx Section of Y. W. (C.) L. will be held on Friday, Feb. 11, 8 p. m., at 1347 Boston Road. We have very important matters to take up.

All members of Bronx Section, and those who have been transferred, are urged to be present, and on time.

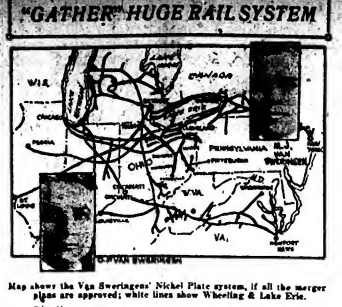
Bill Strips Commission.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Wrestling matches conducted in theatres as part of the regular theatrical program would be taken out of the jurisdiction of the state athletic commission under the terms of a bill introduced in the legislature today by Senator Carroll, New York democrat.

MASS MEETINGS IN PORTO RICO DENOUNCE NAVY

"Visit of Oppressors' Fleet No Honor"

PONCE, Porto Rico, Feb. 10.—In a vigorous protest against American aggression in Nicaragua, the Ponce Local of the Nationalist Party of Porto Rico has unanimously voted for a resolution that denounces the Coolidge-Kellogg foreign policy, and protests against the visit of American warships to Porto Rico.



The fleet, whose movements were kept secret in North America by the state department, is expected to arrive here any day. The Nationalists have issued a special edition of their paper, "The Nationalist," in which the flagrant high-handed methods of Yankee paternalism are exposed.

Fleet Visit No Honor.

The resolution, copies of which have been sent to the insular and municipal authorities, the senate, the house of representatives, the mayor of Ponce and the municipal assembly, says: "The Porto Rican people consider the visit of the American marines and war fleet, announced by the press, undesirable, and hereby inform the legislative bodies that they do not consider it an honor to be visited by the armies that aid in the exploitation of the small republics of Central America, and do not want invitations extended to them."

"The strong resentment of the Porto Rican workers against American imperialism is being further aroused by the visit of the American fleet, and it is expected that many mass meetings will be held in protest. Municipal police expect much trouble. If the marines are given shore-leave, because of the prejudice against them.

"GATHER" HUGE RAIL SYSTEM

Map shows the Van Sweringens' Nickel Plate system, if all the merger plans are approved; white lines show Wheeling & Lake Erie.

The Van Sweringen brothers—M. J. and O. P.—of Cleveland, O., operating through their Nickel Plate railroad system, have further increased their huge railroad holdings by purchasing a sixth control in the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad. Other roads which joined in the obtaining of a working control through a spectacular market coup and a private deal with John D. Rockefeller are the New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio systems. Reports in New York have it that plans have been considered for a probable combination of the Van Sweringen roads, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio into the greatest railroad system of all—35,000 miles, capital $5,630,662,237. In the meantime, minority stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio oppose the Van Sweringen group's petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission for that road to purchase a majority stock interest in the Pere Marquette and Erie railroads.

SUIT FOR FALSE ARREST AGAINST ALIQUIPPA COPS

Postmaster Admits He Stops Daily Worker

By ABRAM JAKIRA.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The attorneys for Peter Muselin of Woodlawn, Pa., who is suing the Aliquippa Chief of Police for ten thousand dollars damages for false arrest, rested their case today after a bitter legal battle which lasted several hours. Four witnesses testified for the chief of police when the court adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Chief Was Sure.

Several witnesses testified that "Ham" Brown, the Chief of Aliquippa Police raided, on the night of July 27th, 1926 a peaceful meeting of a picnic committee of the Croatian Beneficial Lodge to settle the accounts for a picnics which was held on July 26th. When he was asked for a warrant he stated: "I don't need no goddamned warrant for you." Several men were arrested and then released without even being questioned after having spent in jail for some time.

Question About Party.

Attorney W. D. Craig, who, together with attorney Richard S. Holt, represent Brown, questioned the witnesses at length as to their affiliation with the Workers (Communist) Party, and their personal beliefs on the question of the overthrow of the American government and the establishment of a Soviet form of government in the United States. Numerous objections raised by attorneys George J. Shaffer and Henry H. Wilson, who represent Peter Muselin, the plaintiff, were constantly overruled by Judge Wm. A. McConnell.

Legion Communist Committee.

The arbitrary rule in Woodlawn of the Boone and Laughlin interests came to light today when Mr Simson, the postmaster of Woodlawn, was called upon to testify for Mr Brown. He was compelled to admit that he was a member of the American Legion and is the head of the special committee appointed by the legion to investigate and to combat Communism in Woodlawn. He was formerly an employee of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Censored the Mail.

He said his office of postmaster to further the interests of the American Legion. He had to admit that he was watching the mails coming from the Workers Party headquarters and addressed to the radical workers. He took it upon himself to stop the delivery of the issue of The DAILY WORKER the was reading The DAILY WORKER, he testified, every day before delivering it to the subscribers which contained the article about Queen Marie, entitled Cotzumanista. He testified that Muselin has a "bad character" and when pressed further by attorney Craig was compelled to admit that this was his own opinion, as Muselin favored the Soviet form of government in the U. S. Witness after witness testified that they lost their jobs at one time or another while working in the Jones and Laughlin steel mills just because it was discovered that they were radicals.

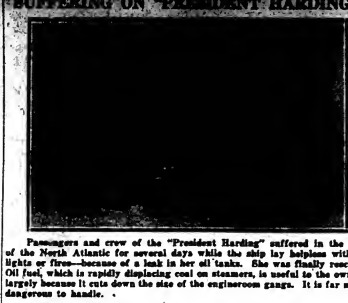
Master Mechanics Get Gold Buttons; Wages Unchanged

Sixteen master mechanics were rewarded for their services in the construction of the Central Mercantile Building at Fifth Ave., and Forty Fourth St. on Monday.

The N. Y. Building Congress believes that labor has not previously been sufficiently recognized for its part in building construction, or for its superior craftsmanship, and so proceeded to remedy matters with gold buttons and diplomas. Mr. William G. Ludlow, who made the presentation said nothing about an increase in wages, or the hazards that make a building work particularly dangerous.

The men who were awarded these trinkets are: V. Hartnagel, bronze worker; H. N. Hotchkiss, sheet metal worker; John Hayes, plasterer; Albert Wurth, electrician; James Hunt, marble setter; James Breen, roofer; James Hall, plumber; William Mosher, glazier; Edward Kennell, stone carver; Ernest Falkenberg, elevator constructor; John Hawkesworth, tile setter; Louis Stephansen, carpenter; James Kerr, stone setter; James Downey, metal lather; Otto Ruzieka, painter; Peter Coleman, bricklayer.

The building was recently sold at a profit.



John D. Gets Reckless!

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10.—John D. Rockefeller started a run on his dime bank today. While golfing with Father Leonard he came across the son of an old friend, Mr. Tolle, 66 years old, and gave him a fist full of bright ten-cent pieces.

"I guess that breaks my bank," the oil magnate mischievously remarked. "I didn't count them but I hope there's enough to care for yourself, children and grand-children, along with your brothers."

When replying to these advertisements mention The DAILY WORKER.

SUFFERING ON "PRESIDENT HARDING"

Passengers and crew of the "President Harding" suffered in the cold of the North Atlantic for several days while the ship lay helpless without lights or fires—because of a leak in her oil tanks. She was finally rescued. Oil fuel, which is rapidly displacing coal on steamers, is useful to the owners largely because it cuts down the size of the engineroom gangs. It is far more dangerous to handle.

FORT WHITEMAN'S TOUR ATTRACTING LARGE AUDIENCES

Negro Workers Glad to Discuss Problems

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—An enthusiastic crowd gathered in the assembly room of the Mt. Zion Congregational Church in Cleveland to hear an analysis of the race question, showing that organization is the only solution.

Lovett Fort Whiteman, organizer of the congress, outlined the international situation and showed the struggle of the colonial and semi-colonial peoples and oppressed races for freedom. He explained why China is fighting imperialism for her life and also India, Mexico and Nicaragua. Speaking to the purpose of the congress Whiteman said: "It stands to organize the colored workers into the trade unions and to fight against all discrimination in the trade unions; but wherever it is not possible to get the colored workers into the regular unions, then the Negroes must be organized separately and the A. F. of L. be forced to recognize them and accept them as locals. There is work for all militant trade unionists of both races."

Business for Prejudice.

Caddie Van Veen, organizer of the Cleveland committee which called the meeting, acted as chairman and said: "The prejudice and traditions of America against the colored people have no justifiable reason for existence and their continuation is due solely to the fact that it benefits big business and the ruling class. Only organization, regardless of color, race or sex, can win in the daily battle against the bosses. The American Negro Labor Congress was organized for that purpose."

A discussion followed the presentation of the question and the local of the A. F. of L. of Cleveland was enlarged by about a dozen new members.

Whiteman at E. Liverpool.

E. LIVERPOOL, Ohio.—Under the auspices of the American Negro Labor Congress, Lovett Fort Whiteman, its national organizer, delivered an address here in the Colored Elks Home.

This was the fourth and most successful talk delivered by Fort-Whiteman in this city. People of many classes and types were drawn to the meeting and judging by the undivided attention given the speaker, they were informed of things of an interesting and vital character that before they had given too little attention.

The police, the politicians, the workers who had assembled to hear the lecture, were held to close attention by Whiteman's masterful analysis of present world conditions. He also gave a clear conception of the Negro and his position in the imperialist society of America. The evils of segregation and Jim Crowism were bared to the people. The relation of the Negro to the 13th and 14th amendments to the constitution of the United States was shown.

"Only rats act cowardly and run to their holes when one of their number is trapped and burned. We wonder when Negroes will stop imitating rats and demand the rights of men," said Whiteman.

Mass Meeting at Passaic.

PASSAIC, N. J.—A mass meeting is arranged here for Monday night, Feb. 14, at 7:30 P. M., at which Lovett Fort-Whiteman will speak under the auspices of the American Negro Labor Congress. The lecture will be at Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave., near Monroe St., Passaic, N. J. Problems of the Negro workers will be the subject. Admission is free.

Students' Newspaper Retracts Red Charge

The Exponent, student newspaper of the Purdue University, Lafayette, has retracted in an editorial on Jan. 21 the charge made in an editorial of Nov. 16, that the Civil Liberties Union is "the official organ of the Third International, of Russia primarily, but world-wide in scope."

UNIONS DENOUNCE MASS. CRIMINAL SYNDICALISM BILL

Big Employers Appear For It at Hearing

Boston, Feb. 10.—A hearing before a senatorial committee on Senate bill No. 162, the criminal syndicalism Bill, brought unanimous protests against its passage from all labor unions in the state, the Civil Liberties Bureau, the Association to Abolish War, the Community Church, and others.

The head of the state federation of labor, J. J. Van Wearnyck, denounced it as only camouflage to say it was for the purpose of preventing a revolution by force and violence. He told of experiences in other states where such laws were always invoked in times of strike, to throw strike leaders into prison, and sometimes to railroad them to long sentences for what, after all, was a matter of opinion.

Who Uses Force?

Van Wearnyck was scornful of the argument about force and violence saying: He lifted the veil from the deeds of those who talked so glibly of the horror of force and violence, and showed these same people using every form of violence on the workers, in the coal regions of West Virginia and Pennsylvania and in the Lawrence strike of 1919.

Would Jail Washington.

The representative of the Civil Liberties Union called the bill un-American, and said that under this law, if it were passed, George Washington could have been arrested and imprisoned for plotting insurrection. He would be jailed today, if he came to life again, and by his own sons and daughters. This last was a shot at the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, which organizations are behind the present criminal syndicalism bill.

Unions Object.

Speakers from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the International Ladies' Garment Workers, the Upholsterers union, and other unions took the floor and criticized the motives of the proponents of the bill.

Speakers for the bill were Mr. Sherwood of the Master Builders' Association, and Mr. Sinsaly, a big building contractor. Their arguments consisted largely of abuse of the Workers Party, and reading of excerpts of cases from criminal syndicalism trials.

Like California Law.

Senate Bill No. 162 is almost an exact copy of the familiar measures used in California and other states. It is said to have been directly suggested by the Michigan bill. It starts with a definition of criminal syndicalism as any doctrine which advocates force, violence or crime, or sabotage to accomplish industrial or political reform.

Plain Murder All Right.

According to the wording of the bill, advocating crime, force and violence for private purposes, or any other reason than a desire for reform, would be all right—at least in the absence of other laws. The bill then goes on to prescribe penalties of years' imprisonment, and $5,000 fine, or both, for any one who commits criminal syndicalism, by written or spoken word, or who joins any organization that does so.

ILLINOIS BOSSES THREATEN EXILE OF FOREIGN-BORN

Admit Cheating Clothing Strikers on Last Pay

By CARL HAESSLER.
(Federated Press).

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Feb. 10.—How the foreign born worker on strike will be hounded, third-degreed and possibly deported by the government if the anti-alien bills go through congress is illustrated on a small and illegal scale in the garment strike at Waukegan.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers have been trying for over a year to unionize the runaway shop of Rothschild & Granert, formerly under union agreement in Chicago. The shop was signed up after a strike last summer but it broke the agreement at the first opportunity. The strike has been renewed with a strong but law-abiding picket line that has earned the respect of the police.

Threaten Deportation.

Failing to get the usual police cooperation in breaking a strike, the clothing firm is now enjoying the benefit of assistance from the federal authorities. They are attempting to intimidate the strikers by inquiring of them whether they are citizens or aliens and there is talk in the newspapers in this connection of deporting those not born in the United States.

Counsel for the strikers immediately showed that the law gives no authority the right to question anyone about his citizenship unless he has been indicted for a felony. The attorney advised the strikers to give no information, either to the sheriff, who was acting for the federal agents, or to the federal people themselves.

Give No Information.

"We shall stand pat on our rights and refuse to give federal officers any information about ourselves," is the statement from strike headquarters. "If they pick us up we shall get out immediately on habeas corpus and shall sue for false arrest. They are attempting to establish a dangerous precedent by questioning strikers as to citizenship."

Secy. of Labor James Davis, a Pittsburgh banker, is urging congress to pass the bills for registration of aliens. He also favors finger printing and photographing the foreign born. The Waukegan incident shows how such information would be used —to break strikes by intimidating the strikers of foreign birth and even to prevent union organization work in the basic industries where the foreign born constitute a large part of the working force.

Bosses Stand Together.

Solidarity of the Waukegan employers against union progress is demonstrated by Amalgamated Steel & Wire Co.'s discharge of 3 employes who expressed sympathy with the garment strikers. The company also warned their employes that wives are garment strikers that unless the women deserted the garment picket line these men would be discharged from the steel mill.

Th Rothschild & Granert firm has admitted guilt in shortchanging employes on the final payroll when the strike began. They owed 6 claims totaling $25.15 in just.ee court. Suits for $25.96 in addition will be started by the strikers. These claims were settled in spite of a widely heralded professional audit of the firm's books by order of the chamber of commerce in which the auditors reported that all wages had been paid in full.

The strike is in its 10th week without the desertion of a single striker.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Textile Interests Express Optimism

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 10 — Representatives of the various textile corporations of this city, on a meeting with the newly appointed Industrial Commission, expressed their belief that conditions of their industry will improve in the near future. This follows an active campaign on the pait of these corporations for the past number of years to negate the forty-eight-hour law for women and children. They are also asking the state to favor them by lowering their taxes, so as to "save them from ruin." The two theories of "impending ruin" and "good year ahead" were not correlated by the commission.

MEXICAN FOUL PLAY IS DENIED BY AUTHORITIES

Abandoned Graveyard Uncovered, Claim

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—Declaration by Deputy Sheriff Walter Keating of Los Angeles that Mexicali, Lower California, is a town where many Americans have met with foul play and were buried in shallow unmarked graves, have been met with quick denials from both American and Mexican authorities.

Keating returned here yesterday from a fruitless search for three missing men from Los Angeles, and reported that he had found the sandy, at the Colorado Madura River below the Mexican town strewn with bodies. Many of the dead he believed to be Americans.

Persons killed in Mexicali, were frequently buried without any attempt at identification by the authorities, Keating charges.

Francisco Deraiga, inspector of police for the northern district of Lower California, explained that that Keating had discovered was an abandoned grave-yard in the old river bed and that bodies had been exposed by flood waters. He said his office had complete records of every alien who had died and had been buried there. In the last three years only two Americans met death in his district, he added, and but one American has disappeared.

Louis Manss, customs inspector at the boarder, supported Deraiga's statement. He could recall only one case where an American had disappeared in Mexicali. Deraiga said his records contained no descriptions of missing persons such as Keating is seeking.

"Peaches" Show To Be Reopened.

Possibility of a new and startling development in the Browning separation case loomed today when it was reported that one of the witnesses at the recent trial at White Plains had signed a confession that he was "forced" to enter a conspiracy to blacken the character of "Peaches" Browning.

CHICAGOLETS

By M. A. S.

Odds and ends of news from the Middle Western Metropolis

Anna Louise Strong created quite a stir in the patriotic circles of Chicago by her lectures on the Soviet Union. There was almost a riot at a Chicago Women's Club when the hundred members and non-members attempted to stop her from speaking.

At the Workers' House one had a great reception. The Department of Education had enough intelligence not to attempt to stop her speech at the Workers' House. They knew there were no signs at 1902 W. Division St.

At the hearing of the committee on schools Alderman Nelson paid his compliments to Alderman Tuman by telling him:

"Half the time when you come up here, Alderman Tuman, you aren't sober."

The Hon Tuman replied: "Yes, and you, Alderman Nelson, are a liar!"

There you are. We are impartial and therefore will take the word of both of them.

Mayor Dyver and a few other politicians are putting themselves on the back, calling attention in their campaign speeches to the wonderful achievements of the Chicago school system.

They do not mention, of course, that there is an actual shortage of about 65,000 seats in the schools and that schools are being platooned.

A couple of strikes of the school children and the raids by the angry parents on the board of education and the city hall are also forgotten in the campaign speeches. But the parents do not forget. A mass protest meeting called by the North West Side Parent's League filled the basement of a church.

The bluff may go with the press but not with the parents. They have learned by experience.

Big Haul On Vessel.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10. Fifty one thousand dollars in currency disappeared from the strong box of the S. S. Colombia while the vessel was enroute from New York to Los Angeles harbor.

PASSAIC STRIKE STILL ON!

WE'VE WON IN FOUR MILLS!

HELP US BEAT THE REST!

GIVE MONEY PLEASE! For Coal for the Strikers' Homes! For Bread for their families! They have made a hard fight! Now they are winning! Now you must help more than ever! Give all you can! MAKE VICTORY COMPLETE!

Make all contributions by check or money order to

GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE

799 BROADWAY Room 225 NEW YORK CITY

Get 10c Coupons and sell them TO HELP US FEED the Strikers' Children.

TONIGHT At 8:30 is the

GRAND CONCERT—BALL

Given by the

PAPER BOX MAKERS' UNION

at STAR CASINO, 107th Street and Park Avenue.

VALENTINE RIGHTHAND will play piano solos from Chopin.
HYMAN LICHT, violinist, will play solos from Wieniawsky.
ANNE PALBEY and MISS RIGHTHAND will play a four-hand duet from Beethoven's 5th Symphony.
TILDA SCHOCKET will dance "The Toiler," accompanied by SUZAN HODKIN.
GEORGE RIGHTHAND will play on the saw.
FELDMAN'S "BIG SIX" BAND will play at the Ball.

ADMISSION 50c. HAT CHECK 25c.

Steinway piano used by courtesy of Steinway Piano Co.

DETROIT STREET CAR BOSS BRIBES REBEL WITH JAZZ

Moves Piano Into Office As Substitute for Pay

DETROIT, Mich.—The Detroit Street Railways, (municipally owned) has installed radios and pianos in the various car barns, so as to take the minds of the extra conductors and motormen off the rotten conditions under which they are forced to work.

Many of the extra conductors and motormen are forced to hang around the car office from as early as 4:30 A. M. till 8:00 P. M. without getting any work. For this time spent around the car offices for a chance to get a few hours of work, the men are not paid.

At the 14th division car office before the installation of a piano, the men were getting very rebellious and were always talking about the rotten conditions that they have. A young motorman, a former soldier and a college graduate, was the center. Around him the men grouped and carried on their discussions.

Under his leadership the extra men were being worked up to a point where they became a problem to the superintendent of the division. In a car house that is detached from the car office was an old piano upon which the young motorman often played. This gave the superintendent an idea; he moved the piano to the car office, and thereby solved his problems.

It is a common sight now to see the men grouped around the piano singing jazz songs with the former rebellious young motorman at the piano.

Talk on Rumania Will Be Feature At Negro Meeting

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—The regular meeting of the American Negro Labor Congress Open Forum will have quite an attractive feature for the Sunday, Feb. 13th, at 3518 South State Street. Miss Jaeger, who has been in Rumania and studied its life closely, will speak on: "Life in Rumania." There will also be a good musical program. Miss Ines Draw will give a vocal solo. The American Negro Labor Congress cordially extends this invitation to all.

Murphy of Engineers Rewards Friend Smith.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Governor Smith had conferred upon him today a life membership in the International Steam and Operating Engineers Union, by its president, E. J. Murphy. This permits him to "operate any equipment coming under the jurisdiction of the I. S. O. E."

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER

New Boxing Scandal Commission Probing Two-Contract Graft

New York's latest boxing scandal reached the boiling stage today.

Jess McMahon, who has been the Matchmaker at Madison Square Garden for the past fifteen month, was subpoenaed to appear before the State Athletic Commission at Friday's meeting.

He will be questioned regarding his knowledge of a double contract in the recent contest between Charles (Phil) Rosenberg and Bushy Graham.

The commission is probing the complaint of Billy Parr, manager of Graham, that the defeated Utica bantamweight was paid off with 5 per cent of the gate instead of the official challenger's allowance.

Instead of $7,500, Graham's manager alleges he is to get less than half of that sum.

The commission evidently intends to use the comical championship contest in question as an opportunity to discourage double contracts in this state. It is a recognized fact that the custom has been quite general in championship matches.

Passaic Textile Film Will Be Shown Soon At New Kensington

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb.10.—The story of the year old struggle of the 16,000 textile strikers of Passaic will be told on the screen here, February 12, at the Ukranian Hall, 11th street and 4th avenue, with the showing of the seven reel film of the historic Passaic strike.

The showing is endorsed by local labor and the workers in this mining and manufacturing center are looking forward to the showing with the keenest anticipation, being in common with the mass of American workers, deeply interested in the historic struggle and its outcome.

Young Pioneers of Philadelphia Will Hold Graduation

PHILA., Feb. 10.—Workers cannot afford to miss the third anniversary of the Young Pioneers in Philadelphia, to be held Friday evening, February 25, in Thyrian Hall, Broad and Oxford streets. For the first time in Philadelphias history, Pioneers will officially graduate into the Young Workers League.

The program will consist of new rebel songs to be sung by the Pioneer Chorus and by members of the Pioneer Harmonica Orchestra, speeches by Honours and members of the Young Workers League and by J. O. Bentall. Tickets are forty cents for adults. No charge for children.

DRESS SHOPS NOW RECOGNIZE JOINT BOARD AUTHORITY

Arrest Four Gangsters For Cohen Shooting

One shop resigned from the Dress Contractors' Association and signed an agreement to recognize the Joint Board as the representative of the workers, and two other shops, members of the Dress Contractors' Association agreed to permit Joint Board business agents to enter their shops and to adjust complaints of workers with the Joint Board, according to C. S. Zimmerman, manager of the dress division, in a statement issued late yesterday afternoon. Strikes were called off in all three shops.

Result of Vigorous Campaign.

Settlement in these three important shops by which the employers recognise the Joint Board instead of the International which has attempted to seize control, came as the result of a vigorous campaign waged by the Joint Board business agents, in which 200 shops have been visited. Up to last night, the business agents had been refused admittance in only 10 shops, all of which were called on strike. It is expected that settlement will follow the three made yesterday within a short time.

Nullifies International Agreement.

The visits of the business agents to the shops fulfill a double purpose. The agreement made with the Dress Contractors' Association by Sigman after he had expelled the Joint Board and the Dressmakers' Union, provides that no business agent may enter a shop unless accompanied by a clerk of the Association. Therefore when a business agent of the Joint Board goes to a shop and talks to the workers inside, the employer is not only recognizing the right of the Joint Board to represent the workers in complaints, but is also nullifying the agreement made by the International.

"The Joint Board will continue to protect the workers in the shops according to the provisions of the old agreement," Mr. Zimmerman said in discussing the settlement. "The workers will not recognize the agreements made by Sigman which was no more than a sell out to the employers in an attempt to gain control."

Four Gangsters Caught.

Four gangsters, who shot and wounded Samuel Cohen, of Local 35, as he was coming away from a picket line on Monday, are arrested late last night and were held at the 54th Street Police Station, without bail, charged with felonious assault and with carrying guns.

Cohen was wounded when three men jumped out of a sedan on 57th street and Broadway and fired three shots, narrowly missing several girls who had been picketing with him, and striking him in the right foot. Police pursued the machine, but were unable to catch the gangsters.

Witnesses gave the police an excellent description of the men, however, since they have been seen elsewhere in the garment district attempting to break up picket lines and terrorizing workers who picketed shops called on strike by the Joint Board. They will be arraigned tomorrow.

Rosalsky Again Postpones Sentences.

Judge Otto Rosalsky again postponed sentencing Oscar Newman and Max Bernstein yesterday, although they have been held in the Tombs since last Friday awaiting sentence. He gave no reason for extending their stay in the Tombs until Friday of this week, merely ordering them back to jail until he finds it convenient to call them again. Relatives who have been waiting anxiously to know the fate of these men, who took part in picketing during the cloakmakers' strike, were turned away and told that the men would be sentenced on Friday, "probably."

Bulgarian Vecherinka In Chicago, Feb. 12th, At the Musician Hall

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 10.—A Vecherinka will be given by the Bulgarian section of the Workers Party, Saturday, February 12, at the American Musician Hall, 777 W. Adams St., near Halsted St., at 8 P. M.

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A DRAMA IN PLAY FORM
written on the American style
by
Leon Hausman
Author and Playwright
Per Copy at $1.10
sent to Leon Hausman "Bolshevik" Post Office Box 187, Elizabeth, N. J., secures a copy of "Bolshevik" in English for the present.
Translations may be had at a later date.
On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, in his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The author is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" across in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND HOW!!

The Manager's Corner

"INDESCRIBABLE CHAOS."

"Indescribable chaos" would result if the newspaper present stopped for any appreciable length of time, according to Fred A. Walker, managing editor of The New York Telegram, at a dinner recently. Of course he meant the capitalist presses.

"Upon the publicity afforded by the newspapers depends in large measure the prosperity of athousand different forms of activity and the return on millions of dollars invested," said Mr. Walker. Firmly as sports are established in this, the greatest centre of sport in the world, there is not a single sport which would not be practically killed if the newspapers unanimously refrained from printing anything about it. Baseball would die, boxing would be discontinueda and racing would end if the newspapers printed nothing about them."

Here we have it plainly stated. Upon the publicity afforded by the capitalist press demands chiefly the prosperity of millions of dollars in investments and the continuation of sports. If we assume that the workers would, without the stimulus of the capitalist press, establish their own sports upon a sounder and healthier basis than it is at present, then what is left to worry about is the "prosperity of millions of dollars in investments," if the presses stopped.

Upon the maintenance of The DAILY WORKER, however, depends something much more vital. Upon the maintenance of The DAILY WORKER, upon its continued life and growth, depends the life and growth of the labor movement, the welfare of many thousands of workers in the shops and factories of the country, the advance of thousands of workers in Passaic and other unorganized fields.

—BERT MILLER.

THOUSANDS MEET IN OPENING OF WAR ON O. ROSALSKY

Union Labor Rallies to Denounce Sentences

Thousands of workers filled Webster Hall, Manhattan Lyceum and Cooper Union to capacity last night to join in the demand for freedom of the striking cloakmakers sentenced by Judge Rosalsky on January 29.

Called By Council.

The call to action which was issued by the Shop Chairmen's Council of the cloakmakers, brought together a group of trade unionists who were determined that their fellow-workers who had been penalized for their strike activities should be released from prison without delay.

"The fact that the sentences of Nathan Lans and Sam Cohan have today been reduced to one year instead of two to five years, only makes it clearer that their sentences were an outrageous injustice," said C. S. Zimmerman, manager of the dress department, who was a speaker at all three halls.

Change Sentence.

"After they have made restitution to the bosses who preferred charges against them, the attitude of the bosses changes. We workers must see that it changes further and that these cloakmakers, who have been convicted because they defended themselves on the picket line are set free as they should be."

Plays Cruel Game.

Louis Hyman, general manager of the Joint Board, who was another speaker, pointed out that Judge Rosalsky was continuing his persecution of the workers by playing a cat and mouse game with Oscar Newman and Max Borenstein, two of the cloak strikers who were to have been sentenced last Friday. They were committed to the Tombs then to await sentence, and their case has been postponed from day to day all week.

Torments Relatives.

"Each day the wives and relatives of these men come to court and sit and wait for Judge Rosalsky to pronounce sentence on Newman and Borenstein as he did on the 16 other strikers. Each day Judge Rosalsky lets the day go by and is too busy to attend to their cases; so they are sent back to the Tombs.

"There is no excuse for such cruelty. We workers must protest loudly enough to be heard down in Judge Rosalsky's court, and loud enough to be heard by those who have already begun serving terms in the penitentiary."

Ben Gitlow Cheered.

Ben Gitlow roused the meetings to a pitch of enthusiasm by stating:

"If we had a Labor Party in America, instead of just a republican and democrat party, Rosalsky would have to put on his hat and coat and take a trip to Palestine.

When replying to these advertisements mention The DAILY WORKER.

U. S. Imperialism To Be Denounced At Workers Meeting

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—The menace of war is rousing the workers of the entire country and particularly of Cleveland. Nothing is discussed more on the big shops of this city than the possibility of war. What is going on in China, why are American marines dictating to Nicaragua, what is the cause of the conflict between the United States and Mexico? These are the topics that occupy the minds of the people of this city.

For this reason the call for the speedy opening of hostilities that may lead to another world war will be discussed at a meeting arranged by the Cleveland committee against American imperialism, Letta Land, organizing secretary, in conjunction with the People's Reconstruction League. The meeting will be held at the Moose Auditorium, 1000 Walnut St., on Sunday, Feb. 13, at 8 P. M. The speakers will be Albert F. Coyle, chairman, Isaac Witt, Max Hayes, Rabbi B. Brickner, Benjamin Marsh (of the Peoples' Reconstruction League), Rev. Joel Haydon, J. Jeong, member of the Kuo Min Tang, the Chinese nationalist revolutionary party, I. Amter and Tom Clifford. Admission will be free.

Valentine Dance to Be Held in Cleveland on February 20 by Y.W.L.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 10.—On Sunday, February 20, Cleveland young workers will join in a gala Valentine dance, to be held by the Young Workers (Communist) League. This will take place at I. O. O. F. Hall, Superior Ave. and East 123rd St.

The Hall has an excellent floor, and one of the finest union jazz orchestras in the city will ensure all who come one of the best times in their lives. Therefore, all come. Admission 50c. Refreshments will be served.

Class in Elementary Communism Will Start Sunday, in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—A class in Communism will be held at the Freiheit Hall, 3514 E. 116th St., beginning Sunday, Feb. 13 at 10:30 A. M. sharp. The instructor will be Comrade J. Brahtin, and the class is open to all Party and Y. W. L. members and sympathizers. Classes are free. Another class will be started in the near future in another section of the city.

Central Branch Y. W. L. of Philadelphia
greets
The DAILY WORKER
on its removal to New York and Wishes You Success.

Daily Worker Costume Ball
Saturday Evening, February 12, 1927,
at
THE NEW WORKERS' HOME, 1343 East Ferry
DETROIT, MICH.
Music and Refreshments. Admission Fifty Cents.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR
at the Ashland Auditorium
ASHLAND AVE. AND VAN BUREN
FEB. 25th
" 26th
" 27th

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT.
30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.
Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!
Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.
GET IN LINE! HELP!

HALT!

WHO GOES THERE?

FRIEND or FOE?

From the outskirts of the war zone to the tent of the Council of War, there rings, in every struggle, the challenge: "Who goes there? Friend or Foe?" The friend is hailed with open arms—the foe with arrest and the call, "What ho the Guard!"

The DAILY WORKER is in the midst of a fight to establish itself as the organ of the struggle of the American workers against their exploiters. IT HAS CALLED FOR MORE AMMUNITION FROM THE FIGHTERS BEHIND THE FRONT; the kind it fights with is

25,000 Subscriptions

The Mass Movement Scheme of the Russian Bolsheviks, in which 100 comrades thruout the country will be challenged to tell what they are doing to BUILD The DAILY WORKER, is the system of field tactics adopted by our "Council of War." When each of the challenged comrades has sent in his subscriptions, he has the right to challenge five other comrades, a right which is accorded to each of them and their successive challengees.

Suppose YOU are challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

Will YOU answer friend or foe? If it's friend, you've got to show us a safe-conduct pass; in this case, a flock of annual subs. When the call comes—YOU wouldn't want to be a SLACKER, would YOU?

This being a fight to the finish, we've got all the necessary trappings. Medals? Sure, lots of 'em, in the form of

PRIZES TO ALL DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 3 annual subs (or $10.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $8.00 worth of literature altogether. Free choice of titles. Or a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 10 Annual Subscriptions (or $40.00 worth) $5.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 Annual subscriptions (or $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 40 annual subscriptions (or $240.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

A bronze medal of Lenin for the best record of subscriptions secured in each city obtaining 25 new subscribers or more.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

Even the New Subscribers will come in for a share of the prizes!

PRIZES FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Every new subscriber securing a one year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, M. A. Buvanic, Hoy Daiss, F. Jerger, H. Glintenkamp, H. Zimmerman, and others. This wonderful collection of cartoons is worth more than it is offered only to those who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly (combination), Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for The DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language press should push The DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit just as well as other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1st Celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions. Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

The campaign closes April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). With this new ammunition, 25,000 new subscriptions. The DAILY WORKER will be firmly established in the front line trenches of the American labor movement.

The fight is on!!! Are YOU with us? We won't give you the super-prosits munition manufacturers got during the World War, but there are the prizes—you'll value them more than the warmakers valued theirs, because they'll be a reward for honest effort, not dishonest exploitation.

If YOU Are Challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

Are YOU prepared to answer proudly?

"FRIEND!"

DAILY WORKER
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
Phone, Orchard 1680
26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
$6.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.50 three months	$4.00 per year $2.50 six months $1.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
ALBERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The Soviet Union and the League of Nations.

The league of nations considers the Soviet Union an international nuisance and the feeling is reciprocated. There is no love going to waste between the social systems represented by the Soviet Union, the fatherland of the oppressed of all countries, and the league, which stands for the interests of robber imperialism.

The league does not consider the Soviet Union fit for entrance into the sanctum sanctorum of the league. But the Soviet Union is not losing any sleep over this display of cold shoulder.

When the powers pull off a fake disarmament conference thru the league they invite the Soviet Union to participate, but insist on holding their parleys on Swiss soil knowing that the Soviet Union is not willing to trust its representatives to the mercies of the assassin government of Switzerland which gave a clean bill of health to the fascist murderer of Vaslav Vorovsky, Soviet envoy at Lausanne in 1923. The courts of this same government punished a Hungarian liberal a few weeks ago for slapping a Hungarian tyrant in the face in the corridor of the league of nations.

The latest invitation extended to the Soviet Union by the league was too much even for the placid Tchitcherin, Soviet foreign minister. The invitation was for a conference to organize an international relief union to aid victims of great disasters, not including war of course. The conference was to be held on Swiss soil.

Tchitcherin not only sent a caustic refusal to attend, but returned the letter of invitation inside its original cover, and declared that the Soviet government refused categorically "to consider itself as invited to any conference called to meet on Swiss soil."

We are informed by a Geneva capitalist correspondent that league officials do not know whether to laugh or to cry over the refusal.

We are willing to wager that Soviet foreign officials are not shedding any tears.

Chang Tso-Lin Is a Candidate.

The bandit dictator of Manchuria, Chang Tso-Lin, who now dominates the futile Peking government, has made his bid for United States cash in a lengthy interview to American correspondents. Chang knows his carrots, and since he stopped slitting the throats of unwary travelers in the wastes of his theatre of highway robbery, he has never failed to come forward with a plausible excuse for murder and pillage after the fashion of his more respectable contemporaries.

Chang is now playing the role of saviour of the Orient from the "Bolshevist menace." Chang has the men and the guns but by jingo he hasn't got the money, unlike the Downing Street missionaries who have all three. Chang has a long hand and it is now stretched, palm up, in the general direction of Wall Street. Chang is willing to do anything for the dough provided he can get away with it. He would sell every square inch of China under the control of his bayonets if he had a reasonable hope that he would live to enjoy the price.

Chang agrees with the purpose of Kellogg's proposal to neutralize Shanghai but he fears that the Chinese masses would not take kindly to the proposition, therefore Chang urges Kellogg to take a broader view of things, give Chang a lot of money, keep United States troops out of sight and depend on Chang to clean up the Cantonese.

Says the public spirited bandit: "My responsibility is great and I am ready to sacrifice myself to save not only China but the peace of Asia and the whole world from the Russian menace. I hope for American sympathy since the American government is fighting to combat the same evil in Mexico and Nicaragua."

Wise bandit. Thus in one short paragraph, the brigand of Manchuria places himself on the same level with Calvin Coolidge, the New England Puritan. What is the difference? Nothing except money, battleships and fifty years of industrial development.

Hail Chang Tso-Lin, the heathen bandit, the unofficial ally of our christian government!

The Communists on the Sea.

The intelligence department of the French government announces with amazement and to the horror of the government that the Communists who hitherto did not exhibit any enthusiasm for service in either the army or navy are now applying for service in the naval branch of French imperialism's war machine.

This sudden spasm of "patriotism" instead of bringing a thrill of joy to the hearts of the government officials sent them scurrying to revolutionary history and particularly to naval rebellions from the famous British "Mutiny of the Nore" to the Black Sea mutiny when Andre Marty, a French sailor led the crew of a French warship in refusing to fire on Soviet forces during the early days of the Russian revolution.

Communists are accustomed to seeing their comrades expelled from the reactionary trade unions. In fact, here in New York we have a socialist committee organized to "preserve" the trade unions from the radicals. This committee may soon add to its aims that of preserving the army and navy from Communist infiltration. Perhaps, after all, the "bloodthirsty Communists" will be reduced to a condition of enforced pacifism. If the Communists are not allowed to bore from within the armies and navies the capitalists may drive them into "dual" militarism. Think fast capitalists! Think fast!

American Oilmen in Mexico

FOREIGN publicity during the last few months quotes American capital investment in Mexico as follows: Mining, approximately $300,000,000 American dollars; Oil industry and oil lands, approximately $478,000,000 American dollars while the entire amount of American investments in Mexico is quoted at some one and one half billion American dollars or three billion Mexican pesos.

These figures are circulated abroad, not in Mexico. They are given unofficially and no attempt is made to prove them. They are meant to strengthen the fallacy prevailing in foreign countries that all commercial activities in Mexico find their basis in American capital and that outside having dealt with oil and mining industries all is said and done with that country's commercial activities. These figures are not only denied but are absolutely denied by the official figures of the National Statistical offices of the Mexican government.

Amount Of Capital.

The figures of the National Statistical Bureau show the full amount of capital (including Mexican owned capital) invested in all the industries of the country at $1,447,643,010.00 pesos. Of this amount 46.4% is American, a high figure indeed when it is considered that only one nation is involved but not, however, the preponderant percentage which the layman is led to believe because of the influence these American investors in Mexico have due to their small number and their concentration in one particular field, that of oil.

American capital in Mexico divides as 46.4% of the whole amount approximately in this wise: Oil 92%, mining 6% and various small industries 2%; $614,067,263.00 pesos of the entire amount of the $671,399,-[illegible]00 pesos which are North American capital's interest in all industries in Mexico is devoted to oil exploitation.

According to the records of the Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor of the Mexican government, only twenty American oil companies are interested in Mexico. The complete figures for all companies and private individuals exploiting oil fields in Mexico (foreign and Mexican) amounts to 120. The half dozen of the twenty American companies are subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company thereby reducing the number ultimately interested to about fourteen. It is the high concentration of this compact nucleus and their ability therefore to act practically as a single unit which makes for their power with the State Department of Washington and gives them the possibility of standing out against the law passed by the Mexican government for the full control of Mexico's oil industry for all concerned. The American State Department in pressing its policy of protection for American interests abroad is acting in the present difference with Mexico in fighting the interests of the whole American people against their neighbor for the benefit of twenty companies at the most.

England has followed the same policy of investment. England's capital invested in all Mexican industry is approximately $77,814,190.00 pesos or 26% of the whole, with $56,-776,190.00 pesos or 85% of this going into the exploitation of oil, the remaining $20,888,000.00 or 5% being left for mining and small industries.

Capital Invested In Oil.

Capital invested in oil in Mexico amounts to $1,065,548,110 pesos or approximately 73% of the total capital invested in industry in the Republic. Of these oil investments, American capital controls about 60% and British capital about 34%. North American capital's interest in all mining activities averages about 37%, England about 10%; these countries' interest in all other varied industrial activities are approximately 8% for North American capital and 4% for British capital.

Over against oil and the mere handful of companies interested, there is all Mexican commerce with hundreds of importers and exporters of all nations involved. The present difficulties between the United States and Mexico arising out of different interpretations of the oil and land law regulations and the resulting uncertainty which the strained situation draws in its wake depresses all economic activities throughout the Mexican Republic—not only oil but all commerce—and even with a solution entirely in favor of the oil companies but a few would benefit.

While, as a matter of fact, under the most strict legal enforcement of the law, the Mexican legislation on oil and land does not in any way menace or endanger the existence of the big oil companies, on the other hand, smaller commercial activities in Mexico stand to be ruined by the present crisis provoked by and for the oil interests. The home governments of these entrepreneurs which feel so strongly the responsibility of protecting the few powerful companies and talk loudly about acting in the interests of their nationals abroad permit the ways and means of the oil companies to precipitate the ruin of hundreds of manufacturing importers and small holders caught in the maelstrom but who are in no way interested in the outcome of the legal discussion about the supposed menace to the oil interests.

Government Trust Controlled.

American manufacturers who are just beginning to work up an appreciable import trade into Mexico cannot permit that the State Department at Washington consider the matter as one concerning exclusively the oilmen and the Mexican government. By this attitude, they play directly into the hands of a few Americans interested in oil.

Mexico is only in the beginning of the development of its small industries. Even a cursory glance into the history of the country will explain the situation. Up to the time and during the first part of Porfirio Diaz' regime, foreign capital in any appreciable amount was not encouraged and was not interested to come to Mexico. With the discovery of oil in 1901, the rush began. And, unfortunately, practically since the country has been opened to the vessels of all nations, or, to be more political, since the Madero revolution has held Mexico in its throes, harrassed one government after the other. Only under the last two administrations, those of General Obregon and President Calles has there been opportunity to think at all of economic development to undo the wrongs the country has suffered for four hundred years.

Helped Very Little.

And American and English capital have really helped very little toward the real commercial and economic development of Mexico, the United States giving today—over and above her enormous investments in oil—only a scant 8%, of which 6% goes into mining, and England only 6% to mining and varied small industries which affect the daily life and standard of living of the Mexican people.

The distribution of all capital invested in industry in Mexico today is: 73% oil exploitation with Mexican capital proper having only 1% in this 73%; 7% foodstuffs; 6% textile industry; 6% mining; and 8% other industries. However, of all capital invested in foodstuffs, 60% is Mexican, in the textile industry 13% is Mexican, in mining 45% is Mexican and in the various small industries 65% is Mexican—meaning that Mexican capital is really invested in all general industries from which the public at large must live.

In imports into Mexico, the United States leads, having imported during the first half of 1925 about 71% of all goods brought in—foodstuffs, livestock, building material, machinery and so forth—all figures for oil being excluded. Manufactured iron goods, implements of all kinds, machinery for which Mexico's need is very great at present came from the United States in the amount of 80% during that same period with notable increase since. Motor-cars made in the United States, and tires outrule, all competition, the use of autos, autobusses and tractors having increased enormously. While during the first six months of 1924, 3,157 motor cars were imported into Mexico from the United States, the figure covering the same period for 1925 had risen to 11,544—some 300%. Here again later increase has been at the same rate. And while only a few proofs of the trend of the United States import trade into Mexico are mentioned, the premise is the case for most every article coming in. American business can ill afford to allow to continue a crisis which will loose for them this trade or be unable to avert turning the tide toward European channels which each day pushing more and more into Latin American markets.

There is the present no military problem in the republic aside from the Yaqui uprising in the northern state of Sonora and this situation is now entirely controlled by the federal army.

Some persons interested in oil are making propaganda among fanatics in order to stir up revolution with, it is said and apparently with sufficient truth, the backing of the State Department at Washington and especially of U. S. Secretary of State, Mr. Kellogg.

A NEW NOVEL
Upton Sinclair

The same old Dad! They gave each other hugs and squeezes; there were tears in everybody's eyes, even the secretary, and the maire and his clerks, who had never heard of such fees for a wedding—marvelous people, ces Americans! And Bunny said for Dad to write all the news, and Dad said for Bunny to write all the news; and Bunny said he would return to France in the summer if Dad were not able to come to America, and Dad said he was sure Verne would have it all fixed up before that. And then Bunny kissed his stepmother again, and then ha hugged Dad again, and then shook hands with the secretary—a regular debauch of the sweet sorrows of parting, with the officials and a crowd of street urchins standing by on the sidewalk, staring at the grand rich car and the grand rich Americans. Bunny was glad to look back on it in after years—at least that once the old man had been happy! All the chatter, and the messages, and the flowers, the baggage to be seen to and the robes to be tucked in, and then at last they were rolling down the street, amid waving of hands and cheers—headed for a Spiritualist seance in Frankfort-on-Main!

Bunny took a train back to Paris, and wrote out two messages announcing that he was sailing for home; one to Ruth Watkins and one to Rachel Menzies—playing no favorites!! Then he bought a paper, and read a brief despatch—"Great California Oil Fire." A bolt of lightning had struck one of the storage tanks of the Ross Consolidated Oil Company, at Paradise, California, and as a high wind was blowing, it was not thought possible to save any portion of the tank-farm, and possibly the whole field might be destroyed.

When Bunny got back to the hotel, there was a cablegram from Angel City. It was impossible to make any guess what the damage would be, but they were fully insured and nothing to worry about. "A. H. Dory"—still Verne's signature when he wanted to be playful. Bunny forwarded the message to his father, and asked if he should wait; but Dad's answer was, no, whatever he had to say could be said by letter or cable, and he would be glad to have Bunny on the scene to report. "Love and best wishes," were the concluding words —the last that Dad was ever to say to his son, except through the channel of the spirits!

A steamer took Bunny out to sea —one of those floating hotels, like the one he had left in Paris, fitted in the style of a palace, mahogany finish and silken draperies and cushions, and the most elegant society, flashing jewels and costly gowns. Five thousand dollars per female person would have been a modest estimate for evenings in the dining saloon. And very soon the tongues of gossip began to buzz—"His father's the California oil man, they say he owns whole fields out there, but one of them is burning up, according to the papers. The Ross that was in the scandal, you remember, he's hiding abroad, been there nearly a year, but the son can come back, of course. They say he was one of the lovers of Viola Tracy, but she chucked him and married the Roumanian prince. Catch him on the rebound, my dear!"

So everybody was lovely to Bunny; so many charming young things to dance with, until any hour of the morning; or to stroll on deck and be lost in the darkness with, if one preferred. All day they flitted about him, casting coy and seductive glances; they were interested in everything he was interested in, even the book he was reading—provided he would talk about it instead of reading. There were some who would say that they were interested in Socialism, they didn't know much about it, but were eager to learn. Until the second morning, when the young socialist received a wireless which entirely removed him from fashionable society.

"Your father very ill with double pneumonia have obtained best medical attention will keep you informed deepest sympathy and affection Alyse."

So then Bunny walked the deck alone, and suffered exactly those torments of remorse which Vernon Roscoe had predicted for him. Oh, surely he could have been kinder, more patient with that good old man! Surely he could have tried harder to understand and to help! Now fate was taking him away, five or six hundred miles every day—and at any moment might snatch him to a distance beyond calculation. His father himself had felt it—Bunny went over what he had said, and realized that Dad had faced the thought of death, and had been giving his son such last advice as he could.

At first nothing but remorse. But then little by little the debate—the old, old, dispute that had torn Bunny's mind in half. Was it possible for man to go on doing what Dad had been doing, the conduct of his business? Could any civilization endure on the basis of such practices of gouging and—No, Bunny told himself; but then—he should have tried harder, more lovingly, and persuaded his father to drop it! But at what stage? Dad had been purchasing government ever since Bunny could remember, as a little boy. All the oil men purchased government, all big business men did it, either before or after election. And at what stage of life shall a boy say to his father, your way of life is wrong, and you must let me take charge of it?

There was no new thought that Bunny could think about all this; any more than in the case of Eva Tracy. Just the grief, and the ache of loneliness! Old things going; they kept going and where did they go? It was a mystery that made you dizzy, at moments like this; you stood on the brink of a precipice and looked down into a gulf! The most incredible idea, that his father, who was so real, and had been for so long a part of his being—should suddenly disappear and cease to be! For the first time Bunny began to wonder, could Alyse be right about the spirits?

Another message in the evening. "Condition unchanged, still keep you advised sympathy and affection." These last words never failed in the messages; then next day, when Dad's condition was the same and the crisis expected tomorrow; and then tomorrow, when Dad was sinking; and then, the morning after, when Alyse wired, "Your father's spirit has passed from this world to the next but he will never cease to be with you he spoke of you at the last and promises that if you will communicate with a good medium in Angel City he will guide your life with love and affection as ever Alyse." And then a message from Bertie: "I was with Dad at the end and he forgave me will you forgive me also." When Bunny read that, he was ready to hurry to his stateroom, and lie there and cry like a little child. Yes, he would forgive her, so he wired in reply, and might whoever had made them forgive them all!

THE PROBLEM OF LONDON

By CHARLES ASHLEIGH

To the revolutionist, and especially to the National Minority Movement of Great Britain, London presents problems which do not exist in any other part of the country.

These problems arise out of the great size of the city, with its seven millions of population, and the resultant distribution of its workers.

In the earlier days, London was not often mentioned as an industrial centre. It was primarily a working-class politics, as the political centre of the country; but, when it came to a consideration of industry, one heard more of South Wales, of the mining area, of Glasgow and the whole Clyde, for its engineering and shipbuilding, of Manchester, and near-by towns, as a textile centre.

Yet, London is one of the greatest industrial areas in Britain. The only reason why we do not think of it as such, is because it is mixed, in its industrial nature—not confined to any one specific industry—and also because its industrial character is often overshadowed by its importance as a financial, commercial and political centre.

Yet, a visit to the great East End of London, with its miles of dingy streets, will convince any observer of the immensity of its proletarian population. The docks of London—the greatest port of Britain—alone provide employment for thousands of dockers; and it is a particularly suitable place for propagandist approach to seamen—a class which has been more misled, perhaps, by reformist trade union leaders, than any others, who, in their thousands, are to be found in the dock-yards district of the city.

In London, again, there reside and work more railroad employees than in any other city in the country. The great passenger and freight stations, like King's Cross, Euston, St. Pancras, and others, employ thousands of railway workers of all types and grades. Among these members are the National Union of Railwaymen, there is an urgent need of a properly organized campaign, in order to enlighten them on the character and actions of their leaders, Thomas, Cramp and others. Here, also, is the opportunity for a considerable and valuable task, for the London organization of the National Minority Movement.

General manufacturing is also widely spread in London. A visit to the East End will reveal the surprising number of factories—of chemical products, furniture, clothing, and other goods—whose gigantic buildings overshadow the neighboring streets of small and unhygienic houses.

Engineering is an industry which has greatly grown in London, during the last ten years. There are suburbs, notably Chiswick and other western sections, where engineering works, including large automobile factories, have appeared in large numbers.

The task of providing adequate organizational expression for the great trade-unionist population of London has been poorly performed, so far. One of the obstacles is the fact that the workers live so far from the scene of their daily labors. For instance, it is not uncommon for workers in London to have to travel six or seven kilometres, by train or tramway, to their work. When a worker has finished for the day, therefore, he usually desires to leave at once for his home; and it is difficult to get him to remain in the neighborhood for a trade unions or other meeting. The result of this is that many workers are organized in trade unions according to residential area, rather than according to the place where they work. The drawback of this system may instantly be observed. A worker belongs, perhaps, to a branch of his union where there is no other member working in the same firm.

London Divisions.

This same evil applies partly in the case of the trades and labor councils. London is divided into a number of boroughs, for the purposes of civic administration. The labor councils, local bodies to which are affiliated the local trade union branches, follow the same divisions. Thus, each borough in London has its own labor council. Often, the militant worker, who is elected by his trade union branch as delegate to a labor council, has to be away for an hour or two hours, to and from the meetings of that body.

Besides the various labor councils in the boroughs, there is also the London Trades Council. This body is supposed to function for all London, but, for a long time, it has been only imperfectly representative of the London trade union movement, because of poor affiliation. Of late, however, the London Trades Council has increased its affiliations, and its activities. Whereas only local branches of trade unions affiliate with the borough trades (or labor) councils, bodies representing the entire London membership of unions—such as district committees—affiliate to the London Trades Council.

Building Up Councils.

The London trade-unionist militants, organized in the National Minority Movement, seek to make the London Trades Council a really powerful body, properly representative of the whole London trade-union movement. This can be done by seeing that every London trade union body is affiliated, as well as the borough trades and labor councils. Also, it is necessary to increase the activities and stimulate the militancy of the London Trades Council, so that the organized workers of the metropolis will look to it as the fighting representative body for the entire trade-union movement of the city.

To Modify Organization.

In order to cope with these tasks, the Minority Movement in London has been recently compelled to modify its organizational structure. The London District Committee has formed a number of borough sub-committees, formed of local comrades, which will undertake the general propagandist activities of the Minority Movement in each borough, and also direct the activities of the Minority Movement members who are delegates to the various labor councils. Yet, care had to be exercised not to interfere with the industrial sections of the minority movement, which carry on agitational and educational work within specific unions throughout the whole London district. The co-ordination of the two aspects of the work—industrial and local—is now going on successfully.

Must Be Adaptable.

The intricate and difficult problem of London—and the special provisions made by the Minority Movement to deal with it—show that the revolutionary working-class movement must always possess a certain capacity for adaptation, a very necessary flexibility which, while in no way modifying the steadfastness of its principles, enables it to cope with the special problems which arise in huge, congested areas, where a variety of industries are situated, rather than one predominant one.

The creation of a well-organized London district committee, and of the local sub-committees, is the answer of the Minority Movement to the fatalistic despair of many disheartened militants, who were discouraged by the immensity of the task confronting them. Step by step, it is apparent that the new methods are practical, and that progress will be made.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

FIRST SECTION
This issue consists of two sections. Be sure to get them both.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Vol. IV. No. 26. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York City, mail $8.00 per year; Canada, $9.00 per year. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1927 Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of ... Published daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER ... New York, N. Y. Price 5 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

EX-GOVERNOR Nathan Miller of New York is slated to be the next chairman of the United States Steel Corporation at a salary of something like $200,000 a year. Judge Gary is going to retire, tho no doubt the judge will spend eight hours a day denying the rumor until he steps out. To admit it now might send down steel stock, provided the ringmasters on the inside do not feel the time ripe to make a killing or shear a few thousand sheep.

* * *

We are informed that Mr. Miller may not be able to make the necessary financial sacrifice which acceptance of the position calls for. It seems that $200,000 a year is nothing in Mr. Miller's young life. Still Mr. Miller may accept since he has a keen conception of his duties as a citizen and the satisfaction of rendering service to the nation may compensate him for the pittance he will receive as head of the great slave-driving union-hating steel trust. Here we have an example of the New Democracy in industry; a parasite receiving $200,000 a year while the individual steel worker is lucky if he makes one thousand in the same length of time.

* * *

"YOUR fortune is made fellah, if you are pinched," observed a sagacious policeman as he tapped one of the managers responsible for producing allegedly salacious plays on the shoulder. The play was about to vanish to the nearest morgue when the newspapers developed a bad attack of moral hydrophobia and demanded pictures. They got them. The salacious plays got the publicity and the producers got the dough. So you see we commercialize everything under capitalism, particularly the business of saving souls and purifying morals.

* * *

THE New York Evening Telegram is now added to the string of newspapers owned by the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, and we are grateful to Mr. Dewart, former owner of the Telegram, for helping out a hafried columnist by saying something that is worth recording here. It is the day's most noteworthy bit of bokum: "A very substantial sum in excess of the very handsome consideration received from the Scripps-Howard interests might have been had for this property, but I felt that the future of the paper, the welfare of the present organization and the interests of the community would be best served and most surely safeguarded by a sale to the new owners."

* * *

THE good old mission doing business at the old stand. Now, the only flaw in our ointment is the agony that Mr. Oswald Villard will suffer at the thought of another newspaper with an individuality going over to the newspaper trust. But Mr. Villard will assuage his sorrow with the consoling thought that the Scripps-Howard journalistic factory is the most progressive cannery in the business.

* * *

THE Holborn Labor Party, London, has decided to put forward as their candidate in the next elections a Chinese by the name of Fung Saw, a name supposed to mean good luck and long life. A Hindoo is already a member of parliament from Battersea, the constituency that first sent John Brown to parliament. Saklatvala, the Hindoo, is the most popular man in Battersea among the working class and the right wingers in the British Labor Party have not been able to deprive him. The exploited slaves of the empire have their defenders right at the empire's heart.

* * *

The good old days of free speech, free press and free assemblage are gone in Great Britain. As long as England could afford to allow free speech she did so and won a glorious reputation for democracy all over the world. Even while she was murdering the Hindoos, the Egyptians and the Irish! Now the empire is in danger and free speech is a thing of the past. British jails are being filled with protestants against the capitalist system and all the official organs of the British (Communist) Party have been put out of business by means of libel suits. But we notice that the British (Communist) Party has a new weekly called Workers Life. Those of our readers who have been in the habit of buying The Workers Weekly will be glad to know that the British Communists lost no time in providing the working class with a substitute which is just as good, outside of the name.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Bandits held up two National Biscuit Company employes here today, robbing them of $9,970 and escaped.

300 Marines at Shanghai Ready for Invasion

More on the Way from the Philippines

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11. — Three hundred American marines were ready to land in Shanghai today, as 1,200 more were speeding on their way East from bases on the Pacific coast, Honolulu and the Philippines.

* * *

No Fear of Chang's Advance.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—The much advertised southern advance of Chang Tso-Lin's hordes so far has failed to cause consternation among the Cantonese armies that are battling with the forces of Sun Chuan-Fang around Hankchow where the fate of Shanghai is being determined.

The refusal of Wu-Pei-Fu to cooperate with Chang and the danger of an attack by the disciplined and well-armed thousands of General Feng has taken the starch out of the Manchurian bandits general.

Wu and Chang at Outs.

General Feng is leading his troops into the fray on the side of the Cantonese. Wu Pei-Fu has warned Chang Tso-Lin not to permit any of his troops to enter Wu's territory. Chang peacefully threatened to go ahead Wu or no Wu, though even a man as brave as Chang may think twice before getting entangled between Wu and Feng.

Should Chang be held up by Wu and knocked down by Feng, the Cantonese are not expected to have much trouble in blotting Sun's troops off the political landscape. Then the march to Shanghai.

MORALISTS WANT MORE RAIDING OF BROADWAY PLAYS

Although injunctions were obtained to permit the production of the plays, "The Captive," "Sex" and the "Virgin Man," forty-four actors, authors and producers will be hailed into court Monday on the charge of "being public nuisances" and "tending to corrupt the morals of youths and others."

Thriving on this free publicity, the three plays have been doing a rushing business. "The Virgin Man," which scheduled to perish, unwept and unsung, last Saturday, is playing to packed houses, and "Sex" and "The Captive" report large advance sales.

The three productions are safe from molestation until early next week under injunctions granted them by Supreme Court Justices Levy and Valente.

INSULL, CROWE IN CONTEMPT OF GRAFT PROBES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Reed campaign fund committee today cited Samuel Insull, Chicago multi millionaire utility magnate, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook County, Daniel F. Schuyler, Chicago attorney, and Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, to the senate for contempt in having refused to answer questions at the slush fund inquiry held in Chicago last summer.

The committee voted the contempt citations at a session this morning and the report, prepared by Senator Reed (D) of Missouri, chairman, sets forth the statements of the witnesses, refusing to answer questions, and placed the nature of their punishment up to the senate.

Miners Killed in New Jersey.

FRANKLIN, N. J., Feb. 11.—Henry Reynolds, 45, a drill runner in the mines of the New Jersey Zinc Company here, was fatally injured today when a slab of rock in one of the shafts fell on him, crushing his head. Reynolds died later in the Franklin Hospital. A blood transfusion was performed but failed to save his life. He leaves a widow and three small children.

Shoot at Wall St. Agent

Jnat what Fred M. Dearing, United States Minister to Portugal, had to do with the events leading up to the recent mutiny and its violent repression there, dispatches do not say. It is significant, however, that machine gun bullets ripped through the U. S. ministry-buildings, and that Dearing took to hiding.

LABOR REACTION IN DEAL TO SAVE COMPANY UNION

A. F. L. and Right Wing Furriers Conspire

Following upon the revelations of attempted bribery in connection with the American Federation of Labor's report of investigation of the fur strike of 1926, comes further evidence yesterday of the continued efforts of the bureaucracies of the A. F. of L. and the International Fur Workers' union to sabotage every step in the New York Joint Board's work of building a powerful, progressive union; and to smash the union if necessary in its fight against the left wing leaders.

Talk With Company Union.

International Fur Workers' union and local A. F. of L. officials met yesterday, in spite of protests from the New York Joint Board, with representatives of the Greek Brotherhood of fur workers to discuss plans for having this "company union" taken into the union as a separate local of the International, outside the jurisdiction of the New York Joint Board.

Brotherhood About Ended.

This is a deliberate defiance of the constitution of the union; it is a deliberate attempt to frustrate the Joint Board's plans which had been nearly completed for the dissolution of this "Brotherhood," and the induction of its members into the existing locals of New York. Consideration would then have been given to the question of a Greek local for all workers in the locals affiliated with the Joint Board.

This Greek Brotherhood is a company union formed by the Greek manufacturers at the close of the fur strike. It is composed largely of workers who scabbed during the strike and who feared to return to the union because of the heavy fines they would receive. It was organized by the contractors because they had refused to sign the agreement with the union and wanted to evade maintaining union conditions in their shops.

Small Concern.

The Brotherhood numbers only 300 members, while there are 1300 Greek fur workers in locals of Joint Board, and now working in other than Greek shops because these shops are still on strike. The Greek manufacturers have refused to settle with the union because they want to be granted a separate impartial Chairman for their association, and this the union will not agree to.

New York Bridge Plans Approved.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Plans for a temporary bridge to be constructed by the City of New York over Newton Creek between the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens were approved by the war department today. The bridge will be built 155 feet south of Greenpoint avenue

Another One Shoots Himself.

Sidney M. Schwartz, 50 years old, a real astate operator of Manhattan, shot and killed himself today.

ChampagneOrgy Before Merton Paid Cash

Daugherty Graft Case Shows King Hungry for Office

Tales of political ambition mingled with the description of a gorgeous booze party in the Daugherty-Miller graft trial yesterday. Richard Merton, German metal magnate, resumed the stand and described a champagne dinner which preceded his payment of $391,000, the alleged bribe on which the prosecution is based.

Merton stated that the dinner occurred at a New York hotel on September 30, 1921, and that on the next day he gave the $391,000 to the late John T. King, Connecticut politician. The money was paid in return for the approval of a $7,000,000 German claim for war-seized property and was alleged by the government to have been split between Daugherty, Miller, King and Jess Smith, a friend of Daugherty's.

At the time of Which Merton spoke, Harry Daugherty was attorney general of the United States, and a very vicious crusader against the "Reds" under which term he included all Communists, of course, and various other political groups.

Miller Had Strangle Hold.

Thos. W. Miller was alien property custodian, and had in his control for one thing, the $7,000,000 properties of the American Metals Co., of which Merton was an official and prominent stockholder. Jess Smith was known as a powerful figure around the attorney general's office, with some mysterious power to order and command subordinates in the department of justice, and proprietor with Daugherty of "the little green house" a meeting place in Washington for politicians, rich petitioners, and government officials. King was a Connecticut political boss.

Miller Actually There.

The prosecution then Introduced into evidence an expense voucher signed by Miller showing that he made a trip from Washington to New York on the day the now famous dinner took place.

Several employes of the hotel where the champagne dinner was held then testified to records of the affair. Edith Walker, floor clerk of another hotel, testified that Miller used the telephone in the General Coleman Du Pont, as a guest, on the night of the dinner.

Another hotel employe said Jess Smith stayed in New York on the same night. Merton, according to further testimony, stayed at a Washington hotel from September 19 to 24, 1921.

Durkin Hostile Witness.

John T. Durkin, King's private secretary next testified that he took care of his employer's bank books and private papers.

The late John T. King expected to get the job of alien property custodian in the Harding administration which went to Thomas W. Miller, Durkin revealed on the witness stand.

King Rich.

Durkin, among other things, also testified that Merton and King had been interested in a steel product which later turned out to be worthless.

Durkin outlined the career of King, describing him as "a man of considerable means, active in the affairs of the republican party."

The witness said King was sometimes called "the political boss of Connecticut" and was a republican national committeeman. King made an effort to retire from politics in 1924, Durkin said.

Durkin was described by the government as a "hostile witness." He evaded all attempts to get from him the contents of letters the carbon copies of which had been destroyed, and said King did not often phone Daugherty.

King Paid Jess Smith.

Durkin was questioned at length by Prosecutor Buckner as to various entries in King's bank book. By stipulation between opposing counsel, the government introduced evidence to show that on October 15, 1921, King deposited $4,143.75 in coupons representing six months interest on $195,000 in bonds, part of the Merton-King "fee," in his New York bank. It was also shown that King made out two checks, one to Jess Smith on the same date for $3,643.75, the other for $500 made out to cash.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Her Price Too High

Mrs. G. S. Smith.

Surely a good wife, able to cook, sew, care for the home and rear babies is worth $2,000, says Mrs. G. S. Smith, of Sioux City, Ia. Because her mother is ill and needs money, she offers to sell herself in marriage to the first eligible man who will pay that much.

There are no offers yet, as under the present system of society, much younger and more favored women do this work for nothing, and put in as eight, ten, or twelve-hour day in a cotton mill besides, in order to help support their families.

COMPANY ACTION BRINGS MEXICAN STRIKE NEARER

Withdraws Recognition Of Railway Unions

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11.—The management of the Mexican national railways today officially withdrew recognition of those labor unions which have threatened to strike on February 17. The railway management sent a communication to every labor union, asking if the threat, as endorsed by several unions, had the approval of the other unions.

A general strike on all Mexican national railroad lines will become effective Feb. 17, unless directors of the lines agree to an arbitration plan, according to a manifesto issued in Mexico by the general confederation of railroad workers.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Government Will Use "Aldehol"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. — The government will begin the use of "aldehol," as a denaturant for industrial alcohol about April 1, the treasury announced today.

Tuberculosis Kills 4,585 in N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Tuberculosis caused 4,585 deaths in New York state, exclusive of New York city in 1926, the state department of health announced today.

The death rate from this disease was 85 per 100,000 population, a decrease of 3.6 per cent below the 1925 rate.

Soldier Held as Burglar.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 11.—George Whitcombe, a soldier attached to the West Point Military Academy, was turned over to state troopers from Troy, N. Y., today. He is said to be wanted on a charge of burglary in Corinth, N. Y. Whitcombe was arrested by troopers of Troop "K," stationed here last night.

School Aid Recommended.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11. — The Dick bill, increasing the apportionment of state aid for schools by $18,500,000, was favorably reported in the senate today by the finance committee. The measure was recommended by a special commission appointed two years ago by Governor Smith to study school finances.

Agree on Modified 48-Hour Week.

ALBANY, Feb. 11.—Women welfare workers, employers, and the New York State Federation of Labor have agreed on a modified forty-eight-hour week bill for women and children in industry.

"Farm Relief" Bill Passes in Senate

Party Lines Break Down and Dawes Opposes Probable Coolidge Policy; Hit at Cooperatives

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate passed the McNary-Haugen "Farm Relief" bill late this afternoon, by a definite majority. The vote was 47 to 39. Voting with the "farm" senators were banking, coal, low tax and other groups, the "farm bloc" having grown to unwieldy and complex proportions during the negotiations leading up to the final vote. Party lines were broken through; voting for the bill were 1 farmer-laborite, 24 republicans and 22 democrats; voting against the bill were 25 republicans and 14 democrats.

Passage of the bill was foreshadowed earlier in the day, when the first clear test of strength came, and by a vote of 53 to 33, the farm bloc passed the amendment to the bill authorizing the Farm Board to grant insurance policies to producers of the basic crops mentioned in the bill.

An amendment also passed is that requiring the board to hold conventions in states where the majority of the farmers do not belong to cooperatives to determine whether they favor the application of the bill. Another amendment gives state agricultural departments an equal voice with co-operatives in selecting the membership of the advisory council. The general effect of the amendments is to weaken the power of the co-operatives.

Dawes vs. Coolidge.

Vice President Charles Dawes threw himself into direct conflict with President Coolidge's last year's policy (and Coolidge has not announced any change) by helping to hold the McNary-Haugen bloc together. So many discordant elements have been taken in lately to get votes for it that internal friction was certain to result.

Confer in Dawes' Office.

The vice president served as peacemaker when southern senators threatened to desert the bloc unless a provision were placed in the bill deferring collection of the equalization fee on cotton for the next two years. Dawes succeeded in getting a compromise agreement, by which the farm bloc leaders support the deferment provision and the southerners stand by the bill. The peace conferences were held in Dawes' private office.

Another amendment, proposing to include tobacco withiu the provisions of the bill was insisted upon by the Virgina, Carolina and Kentucky senators. It was definitely accepted by the farm bloc leaders, partly as a result of Dawes' mediation.

Hope for Veto.

The feeling that the bill would probably be vetoed by the president as soon as passed actually aided it in congress, it is said. Senators who were torn between their feeling of awe for the aumber of farmer votes at home, and their very lively appreciation of the benefits to be gained by standing in with the industrial interests thare too, were disposed to solva their dilemma by votiag for the bill, and excusing thus act with their richer constituents by pointing out that Coolidge would veto it.

Argus With Cal.

Farm bloc supporters are already campaigning for effect on Coolidge. They tell him that he will ruin the party's chances in the middle west if he turns down the bill. That as good republicans are assuring him, how-

(Continued on Page Two)

PICKETS BEGIN TO CUT JERSEY BUS OPERATIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 11.—Picketing has at last been started by the four hundred Hudson Boulevard bus drivers who went on strike last Saturday.

Committees of strikers are picketing the terminals and the service has been cut one half, according to Edward Levy, business agent of the union.

The boulevard commissioners who have been trying to "settle" the strike came out yesterday openly as allies of the bosses.

Service was far below normal yesterday, the fatigued bus owners who have been manning their busses being unable to keep up the twalva and eighteen hours shifts.

The drivers are asking for $45 a week under a three-year contract. They now receive $42.50.

JERSEY COSSACKS CONFESS CONDUCT WAS UNBECOMING

They Raided Farmhouse And Killed Woman

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 11.—Lieut. Daniel Rogers and Corporal Matthew Daly of the state police, today pleaded guilty through counsel, before Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendeat of the state police, to charges of conduct unbecoming members of the state police force.

Lieut. Rogers, Corporal Daly, and Trooper Alfred K. Larsen were suspended from the state police force following their indictment, with nine other troopers, on a charge of murders in connection with the death of Miss Beatrice Meaney as the result of a siege on the Meaney homestead in Jutland, N. J., on December 21-22 last. Her brother James was wounded, and her brother Timothy amid he was beaten by the troopers. The shooting resulted from an attempt to investigate a complaint that cattle owned by the Meaneys was improperly fed.

Sliding Out.

There have been persistent charges that the cases of these over zealous "Cossacks" would be "arranged." However, up to the present time, the superintendent of police had not even taken measures to remove from the service the men charged with wanton murder. It is expected by friends of the Meaney family that after the usual delays, the troopers who did the shooting will be left off with dismissal from the service.

The Meaney family say that the troopers' attack on the farmhouse was sudden, unwarranted, and violent, and that the inhabitants thought they were besieged by a gang of gunmen.

Twas Unbecoming.

The charge of conduct unbecoming a member of the state police force was a general one and was separate from the seven specific charges against Rogers and three against Daly in connection with their part in the siege on the Meaney home at Jutland. To enter a plea of any kind to these specific charges at this time would be prejudicial to the defense of the troopers when they are tried in Hunterdon country on the indictment returned against them there, L. S. Marshall, their attorney, said.

Larsen, accused also of conduct unbecoming a member of the state police force and against whom there are four specific charges resulting from his part in the siege, was given a hearing later in the day and pleaded

* * *

Six New Jersey State Troopers are Fired; Charges Kept Secret

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 11. — Six state troopers, assigned to the Hamilton barracks, resigned today at the request of Captain William J. Carter, in command of the station, according to Major Mark O. Kimberling, assistant superintendent of the state police. No formal charges were made against them.

Much speculation developed as to the cause of the request for the resignations. Nothing appears on the department records to show that there was any connection between the resignations and the recent investigation by Captain Carter into reports of law violations in roadhouses.

Daily Worker Costume Ball at THE NEW WORKERS' HOME, 1343 East Ferry DETROIT, MICH. Music and Refreshments. Admission Fifty Cents. Sat. Eve., Feb. 12

MILLINERY JOINT BOARD CONDEMNS PERCY GINSBURG

Chicago Organizer in Flagrant Treachery

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Percy Ginsburg, who has been a member of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union for the past 18 years, member of the general executive board, vice-chairman of the C. C. H. & M. W. I. U. General Organizer of the Western states, business agent for Local No. 5, Cap Makers of Chicago, has officially accepted the position as organizer for the Cap Manufacturers of Chicago.

Condemn Treason.

The joint board of the Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago, have taken into consideration the treacherous action of Mr. Ginsburg at this time, when the members of the Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago are devoting their time and energy to organizing the unorganized in this city. Mr. Ginsburg has not only deserted our union; he has gone even further than that. He has gone over to the manufacturers, to use his knowledge of the union against his own sisters and brothers.

Take Action in Board.

At the regular meeting of the joint board of Chicago Cap and Millinery Workers, representing Locals 5, 47, 52, 53 and 54, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"We, the members of the Joint Board Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago, assembled on the 29th of January at 166 West Washington St., hereby condemn the action of Ex-brother Percy Ginsburg (having accepted the position of organizer for the Cap Manufacturers' Association of Chicago), and hold him henceforth a renegade and traitor to the working class," and be it further resolved,

That a copy of this resolution be sent to the G. E. B. of the C. H. and M. W. I. U. and copies, with a request for publication to the official organ of the International Union, the Headgear Worker, the Federated Press and all labor newspapers.

Special statement should be sent by the press committee of the Joint Board with this resolution."

Relies on Members.

The Joint Board of the Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago calls upon all the members at this time to help solidify our union. Let every member participate in the campaign of the J. B. to organize the unorganized workers in our industry. Let us show our enemies that we are ready to sacrifice our time and energy to build a strong union of cap and millinery workers in Chicago.

No matter how many Ginsburgs, Livingtons and other corrupt officials he may be, the class conscious workers will continue to fight our enemies until the final victory of the workers is won.

Jake Listisky, chairman J. B. Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago.

Anna E. David, secretary J. B. Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago.

Max Majesco, chairman press committee, J. B. Cap and Millinery Workers of Chicago.

Millinery Workers at New Office in Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—The Millinery Workers' Union has a new address in Chicago. Its headquarters has moved to room 310, Crilly Bldg., 30 South Dearborn St. The phone number is Dearborn 4189.

All Saved As Ship Sinks.

DOVER, England, Feb. 11. — The Danish steamer Signe capsized in the Italian steamer Fiume, which was in a heavy fog in the English Channel today. The Italian steamer sank but her entire crew was rescued by the Signe.

A Book for the Irish Worker

"Jim Connolly, and the Irish Rising of 1916"

Introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty.

By G. Schuller.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

Jim Connolly was the militant leader of the Easter Week rising in Ireland which broke out when the British empire was passing through one of the most critical days it faced it during the world war. Connolly, the international Socialist, joined his small army of workers with the nationalists, who were known as the Irish Republican Brotherhood and raised the standard of an Irish republic. Connolly was one of the first revolutionists in the international socialist movement to recognize the value of the nationalist question in the workers' struggle against imperialism. He was a Bolshevik in the full sense of the term. This little pamphlet by G. Schuler is the first serious attempt to give Connolly his rightful place in the revolutionary history of this period. It was first published as an article in the official organ of the Communist International. It should be distributed in Ireland, Scotland and the Irish large cities in the United States. Connolly is a magic name with every Irish worker who has a spark of the divine fire. Let the Irish workers read with interest it can also teach every worker who wants to soak up on the strategy and tactics of revolution. Comrade Schuler declares that Connolly was a Leninist. He was. He felt before a British squad in 1916, one year before the Russian revolution, and peasants united the Czar and Czarism and began to build a Soviet Republic on the ruins.

LINCOLN ANNIVERSARY TODAY

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 11—Springfield, the home of Abraham Lincoln, began its observance of the 118th birthday anniversary of the martyred president tonight. Tomorrow appropriate exercises will be held by various organizations and the annual celebration under the auspices of the Lincoln Centennial Association will occur tomorrow night.

History was revived tonight when the famous "Duff" Armstrong trial which figures so prominently in the life of Lincoln was reproduced by thirty-three residents of Cass County. The public presentation was given in the interest of the Lincoln memorial highway between Springfield and Old Salem.

Attorney A. T. Lucas of Chandlerville wrote the play. It gave the large audience an opportunity to observe conditions of living as Lincoln lived and worked in Illinois in that day and time.

The scene of the famous trial was laid in the old court house at Beardstown and the date was as of May 17, 1858. One thing that was brought out in the production of the trial was that an almanac which Lincoln used as evidence was a genuine almanac and not in any sense a fictitious booklet, as has been intimated in many articles written on the famous trial ever, that if he dared to sign the thing, his chances to represent the business men of this country in Washington were ended.

SENATE PASSES FARM RELIEF BILL

(Continued from Page One)

Representative Tincher of Kansas asserted there never was any doubt regarding President Coolidge's attitude toward price-fixing legislation, and that friends of the bill responsible for the report that he would sign it though political expediency, knew better.

If He "Does it Right."

"If the president vetoes the bill, and does it right, as I believe he will, that will make him the republican nominee for president whether he wants a third term or not," Mr. Tincher said.

"The fight now being waged is not between the president and the supporters and the farmers of the country. It is a battle for the protection of the treasury against the marauders who propose to loot it in the name of farm relief legislation.

"The idea that a veto of the Haugen-McNary bill would cost the president the support of real farmers is nonsense.

"Farmers Not Fooled."

"It would not injure but strengthen him in Kansas. I believe the same thing is true of other states of the agricultural west.

"Swindled leaders of the farm organizations in Washington are not fooling the farmers. The latter know the Haugen-McNary bill ought to be beaten, and would join in praising the president for vanquishing the vote seeking leaders."

The house vote on the bill will be close, but I believe there is still a chance of defeating it."

Praises Its Faults.

The McNary Haugen "farm relief" bill is not a very revolutionary measure, even using the word in its most figurative sense. Its author, Haugen, defends the lack of any provision for cheap loans to the farmers, and calls that lack a virtue. In a speech in the house he said:

"We do not want a bill granting a subsidy," or to cram down the throats of the producer further loans to put the farmer deeper in debt. We want this bill, endorsed by practically all of the producers who favor practical, sound, sane, safe and effective legislation."

Defends Equalization.

The equalization fee plan of the bill to which his name is attached was defended Haugen declaring it would give the importer an advantage over the American producers.

In the last analysis, Haugen declared, the farm relief bill is an experiment, and he called upon all officials of the government to unite sincerely in working "its workable" provisions.

4 Members of "Vice Squad" Rob Woman; Facing Trial Today

MINEOLA, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Two of four members of the Nassau county vice squad accused of extortion went on trial before Supreme Court Justice Humphrey here today. They are County Detective Bernard Greve, and Deputy Sheriff Chester Evans. County Detective Lannis Ray and Deputy Sheriff Raymond Teel are the other two men on trial.

Mrs. Macy Barkowsky alleged that on November 20 last the four men entered her store in Hempstead in search of liquor, and that they took $100 which they found in a trunk.

The Fitzgerald Bill For D. C. Workmen's Compensation Sidetracked in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (FP).—Opponents of the Fitzgerald bill establishing workmen's compensation in the District of Columbia on the plan approved by the American Federation of Labor, are sidetracking that measure as the 69th Congress draws to its close.

The latest obstacle to enactment is the development of a fight in the camp of the local citizens' associations council which had endorsed the bill. The council has now agreed to call back its endorsement and conduct hearings where the insurance agents and other critics may air their views.

Sell in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Edison Doesn't Know About Immortality; Is Friendly to Diety

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 11.—Thomas Alva Edison is growing old. It shows in more than the fact that he celebrated just now his eightieth birthday.

The spark of genius still appears in his conversation, but the old man's inconsistency is there too. With a swarm of reporters around him, with Henry Ford standing by his side, Edison talked by and large about life and inventions.

He regards the phonograph as his greatest invention. He does not feel sure of the immortality of the soul. He believes that some supreme power guides for good the destinies of mankind. He approves of the military training camps. He is ready to vote on until "two or three days before the Edison funeral."

Air Stops Death Rays.

BERLIN, Feb. 11. — Death rays which pour down on the earth from the universal space are strong enough to destroy all life on this planet, if they were not caught by the protective armor of the atmosphere, was definitely ascertained by Dr. G. von Salis, the Swiss scientist, it was reported today.

Dr. von Salis is said to have made his observations from the peak of Monk Mountain, at an altitude of more than 12,000 feet.

Asylums for Drug Addicts.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Private institutions where narcotic drug addicts are treated would have to be licensed by the state under the terms of a bill introduced in the legislature today by Assemblyman Dickey, Republican of Erie.

TIFF BETWEEN GOVERNOR AND BOSS LOBBYIST

Result Is Rather Good For Michigan Labor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 11.—Michigan for the past three weeks has been witnessing the unusual spectacle of a manufacturer governor, Fred W. Green, president of the Ypsilanti Reed Furniture Company of Ionia, Michigan, openly fighting to oust John L. Lovett, manager and official lobbyist of the Michigan Manufacturer's Association, from the state capitol.

Governor Green announced several weeks ago, following his inaugural address in which he declared he would rid Lansing, the state capital, of all lobbyists, that Lovett must go. Lovett fought back and has since secured the solid backing of the Manufacturers' Association. It is their claim that they have a perfect right to be represented in the legislative halls by Lovett, their lobbyist.

Personal Grudge?

The real issue of the situation, it is reported, is that Governor Green several years ago had a battle with Lovett. At this time Green was actively engaged in the manufacture of reed furniture. Since then he has it in for Lovett and is now out gunning for him. The last step in the fight was enacted just before both of the men visited this city to attend the regional conference of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence Tidewater Association. It was thought that they might meet here and have it out, but the Governor's visit was cut to but two hours.

Lovett and Poole Confer.

Lovett and W. H. Burnham, of Adrian, state president of the manufacturers, however, were in the city all day conferring with Walter Poole, secretary of the local employers' association and the one chiefly responsible for arousing general indignation proceedings among capitalists against G. Sherwood Eddy, the Y. M. C. A. secretary who visited Soviet Russia last summer and returning advocated recognition of Russia.

Shook Up Labor Department.

Another of the interesting political developments since the inauguration of Governor Green was his appointment of Eugene J. Brook, of Detroit, former union organizer for the International Machinists, as chairman of the department of labor and industry. Brook replaced Perry Ward, another union leader, who is reported to have let the big manufacturing interests off too easy with his inspection and other work.

German Plans "Fish Boat" Liners to Go Sixty Miles an Hour

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—A "fish boat," which ultimately successful would revolutionize shipbuilding and produce ocean liners with a speed of more than 60 miles an hour was invented by Boerner, a Dresden engineer, it was learned today.

A 27-foot trial boat, built on new principles produced remarkable results on the Elbe River, it is said. The invention is based on the method of propulsion used by a fish, according to Boerner, who declared that fish propel themselves by the water which they swallow thru their mouth and expel thru their gills. Their fins are used merely to keep their balance, he says. Their tail is their steering gear, he concludes.

In the same manner his "fish" boat takes water in the front, expels it by turbines on the sides which are so grooved that the boat acts in the water the same way as a fish.

Literary Guild May Publish Own Books if Opposition Continues

Fearing that it will sell books cheaply to readers and cut down on the profits of large book stores, publishers and book dealers are waging a boycott war against the newly formed literary guild.

The enormous waste in the distribution of books, which is characteristic of capitalistic production and distribution, would be substantially reduced by the literary guild, which proposes to sell twelve books a year to its members for $18.

The average cost of producing a $2 or $2.50 novel in lots of 25,000 is less than thirty cents, according to the guild.

If publishers and book dealers persist in their opposition, the guild threatens to publish its own books. Zona Gale, Glenn Frank, Mark Van Doren, and Haywood Broun are some of the leading members of the guild.

Rich Find New Mexico.

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—Maria Spring, which pours out sulphur water at a temperature of 97 degrees fahrenheit at Baden, near Vienna, may become the mecca for all sufferers of diabetes, it was said today.

Physicians have found this hot sulphur water produces most favorable results in the treatment of diabetes although no direct cures have yet been registered.

The Lincolns of 1927 Must March in Today's Army of Emancipation

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

SINCE this is the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth, the question is raised, "What attitude would Abraham Lincoln take toward Nicaragua, Mexico and China if he were in the White House today?"

This question has already been raised in congress with both the war crowd and the anti-war element claiming Lincoln as their own.

Representative Benjamin L. Fairchild, of New York, republican, who introduced the first resolution in congress to endorse President Coolidge's Nicaraguan and Mexican policy, claims Lincoln for his side.

So does Representative George Huddleston, of Alabama, democrat, most outspoken against the Coolidge imperialist policies.

In speeches that will be made today, in all sections of the land, the worst capitalist reaction will laud Lincoln as its own. Every kept sheet will publish editorials burdened with fulsome eulogy and Lincoln's "Gettysburg Speech" will again find space in fancy type. For this there must be some reason.

That reason is very clear. Lincoln in 1860 was elected as the president of an aspiring young capitalist class in this country. It had not yet come to power. The southern slave holding aristocracy still held the reins of power.

Lincoln opposed the predatory war against Mexico that antedated the Civil War. He spoke against this war as a member of congress. That it was chiefly consistent with his position as a spokesman of northern capitalism. The South wanted to annex new territory for the spread of chattel slavery, which meant the increase of its grip on governmental power in Washington, that was rapidly slipping. Chattel slavery was in a death struggle with the developing wage slavery. Northern capitalism sought to hasten the funeral.

When the Civil War started, "for the preservation of the union," Lincoln did not have in mind the abolition of slavery. The emancipation proclamation did not come until the war had been on for some time, and then only as a "war measure" forced on the North in its efforts to win a military victory, and not as a matter of principle.

The rising capitalist class in all countries has always sought allies among the workers. Lincoln put more into writing that is being used to show sympathy for the working class. He was even in communication with Karl Marx, founder of the International Workingmen's Association, who laid the scientific basis of Socialist theory and practice. It was Marx who exerted every energy to keep the mill hands of England's industrial centers sympathetic to the North, in spite of the fact that the British textile mills were idle and many were starving due to the war blockade of the cotton-growing South.

Lincoln warned of the abuse of power that was falling into the hands of profit-hungry capitalists. In this he was a prophet of the evils that would develop under the new social order.

Those evils have developed far beyond anything that Lincoln predicted. The oppression of the victorious capitalist North has not only spread to all the domains under the stars and stripes but, with its imperialist expansion, seeks to enslave the whole world to the rule of the dollar. It is this power that rules in Washington today in place of the chattel slave owners of the last century. Both the republican Fairchild, from New York, and the democrat Huddleston, from Alabama, are supporters of this capitalist social system based on the private ownership of property. They may have their differences to be sure. There were also various wings of the democratic party that opposed chattel slavery before the Civil War and sought, thru years of bloody conflict, to perpetuate it. There are also numerous factions of the republican party. But they are alike in that they support the dominant social order. They are all a part of the class that is in power.

Just as in 1860, so in 1927, there is a new class rising to power. That class is the working class, that wars against the capitalist class in today's class struggle.

If Lincoln lived today, occupying a position similar to that of 1860, he would be with the class that is rising in power, which is today the growing mass of workers and farmers.

"The Emancipator" of today must stand for and fight for the liberation of the last oppressed class thru the victory of labor. He must be a part of that great army of liberators that Karl Marx referred to when he said, "the working class must emancipate itself." The Lincolns of today, loyal to the new rising class, will march forward with the workers. They have no other place to go.

COOLIDGE MOVE FOR CONFERENCE MERELY TACTICS

Expect no Disarmament Powers Too Jealous

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Political observers here, including officials and diplomats, practically admit that the Coolidge call for a new disarmament conference is merely a gesture to force the debtor nations of Europe to either put aside their weapons and permit the United States with its superior building capacity and material resources to dominate, or to lay on the U. S. the stigma of "militarism" if they do not disarm.

Dont Expect Disarmament.

Washington opinion is very frankly divided on whether the conference will ever produce any naval disarmament.

Anglo British Unity?

The new parley may find the United States and Great Britain joining hands against Japan, France and Italy. Great Britain, with so many colonial possessions to protect, has laid down a huge building program of fast, modern cruisers, but she is not to her eyes in debt. With a five-five-three ratio, she and the United States would have a combined fleet at least equal to the balance of the world.

Will Keep Subs.

France, unwilling to yield her army control, will refuse to relinquish her overwhelming superiority in submarines. Japan may refuse to abandon her cruiser-building race with England. Mussolini's ambition for a new Roman Empire is seen as another possible obstacle.

Scarlet Fever Closes School.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 11.—Discovery of sixteen cases of scarlet fever among pupils of Public School No. 20 here today led to closing of the school until February 23. The decision was reached following a conference between health officials and the school authorities. Six hundred children attend the grammar school.

A. F. of L. Official to Mediate Hollywood Movie Labor Rows

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(FP).—From secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor to labor secretary and special representative of the studio mechanical employes in the moving picture industry is the transfer of one accepted by A. J. Berres, who has had wide experience as a wage negotiator. He leaves A. F. of L. headquarters with the good wishes of President Green.

Labor executives who will cooperate with Berres in preventing strikes on the movie-making "lot" and in producing theatres are Presidents Noonan of the electrical workers, Hutcheson of the carpenters, Weber of the musicians, Herrick of the painters and Canavan of the theatrical stage employes. Berres is a member of the pattern makers' organization.

State Dept. Warns Baby Killers They May Lose Their Citizenship

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (FP).—Secretary of State Kellogg has been so far stung by criticism of the bombing of Nicaraguan towns by American airmen employed by his dummy president, Diaz, that he has ordered that those bombers be advised that the department does not approve their service under a foreign flag.

He says he is investigating their presence in the Nicaraguan civil war, and that he will report on it later.

Woman's Torso Found.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 11. — Authorities were attempting tonight to learn the identity of a woman, whose armless and headless body was found near St. Mary's College along the St. Joseph River near here today.

Her body had been cut in two pieces, and the legs were wired another to the thighs. It was believed that she had been killed, her body placed in a trunk and then thrown in the river. When the box was broken up by the floating ice, the torso was thrown up on the bank. It was said.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

VAN SWERINGEN BROTHERS ASK TO FORM TRUST

Want to Unite Erie and Chesapeake Ohio

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Van Sweringen billion dollar railroad merger, tarned down by the interstate commerce commission some months ago, made its appearance in a new form late this afternoon when the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to control the Erie and Pere Marquette lines through stock ownership.

In the Merger.

Both roads were to have been included in the billion dollar merger.

At the same time, the C. & O. petitioned the interstate commerce commission for authority to issue additional common stock of C. & O. stock to the value of $49,502,000 par.

Basis For System.

The practical effect of the new Van Sweringen plan is to make the Chesapeake & Ohio, instead of the Nickel plate, the basis for the great system which the two brothers have projected.

"Such unification will encourage industrial development, as it will provide a wider distributing territory and improved service," it said. "The lines of the railroad in the applicant and of the Erie and the Pere Marquette are complementary to and supplementary of each other, and, logically lend themselves to unification and operation as a single system.

Majority of Common Stock.

In addition to the shares now owned outright, the Chesapeake & Ohio will purchase, subject to the commission's approval, shares of the Erie and Pere Marquette covered in options obtained from O. P. Van Sweringen. It will acquire from the Nickle plate 174,000 shares of Pere Marquette common now under contract, such additional shares of Pere Marquette will be purchased in order to give the Chesapeake & Ohio numerical majority of the common stock in both roads.

Evening Telegram Sale Indicates Newspapers Regarded as Weapons

The New York Evening Telegram has been sold by Frank A. Munsey's heirs to the Scripps-Howard interests, publishers of a string of newspapers across the continent.

The sale price was not announced. Wm. T. Dewart, president of the Evening Telegraph Company, said, however, that he did not sell to the highest bidder, but to one whose policy he liked.

HARLEM OPEN FORUM

Sunday, Feb. 13th

8 P. M.

Whither Russia

Dr. A. Markoff

at

81 EAST 110th STREET.

COME AND BRING YOUR FELLOW WORKERS.

THE PEOPLE'S INSTITUTE

At Cooper Union (8 St. & Astor Pl.)

at 8 o'clock Admission Free

Sunday, Feb. 13th—Joshua Kunitz on "Power," Bertram Cumiard, master of the ceremonies.

Friday, Feb. 18th—Prof. Harold E. Fisher on "Is Evolution Proved?"

Friday, Feb. 25th—Samuel Dean Martin on "What's the Matter With Modern Music? What Is Happening in Europe?"

AT MANHATTAN TRADE SCHOOL for Girls, 64 & 224 W. 61st St. (Subway Circle Station)

Monday, Feb. 14th—Dr. Scott Nearing on "Philosophy—Its Function and Significance."

Monday, Feb. 21st—Dr. Harry E. Barnes on "Historical Background and Character of Present Day Thought."

Monday, Feb. 28th—Dr. Robert Lamberton on "Modern Science and Its Influence on Present Day Thought."

Monday, Mar. 7th—Dr. Horace M. Kallen on "The Conception of Living Matter."

Thursday, Mar. 10th—Dr. Scott Nearing on "Expansion."

Thursday, Mar. 17th—Dr. Robert C. Brooks on "Expansion."

Thursday, Mar. 24th—Dr. Harry E. Barnes on "Historical Background and Character of Present Day Thought."

Thursday, Mar. 31st—Dr. Horace M. Kallen on "The Conception of Living Matter."

Thursday, Apr. 7th—Dr. Scott Nearing on "Expansion."

Thursday, Apr. 14th—Dr. Robert C. Brooks on "Expansion."

Thursday, Apr. 21st—Dr. Harry E. Barnes on "Historical Background and Character of Present Day Thought."

Thursday, Apr. 28th—Dr. Horace M. Kallen on "The Conception of Living Matter."

Thursday, May 5th—Dr. Scott Nearing on "Expansion."

Thursday, May 12th—Dr. Robert C. Brooks on "Expansion."

Thursday, May 19th—Dr. Harry E. Barnes on "Historical Background and Character of Present Day Thought."

Thursday, May 26th—Dr. Horace M. Kallen on "The Conception of Living Matter."

Thursday, June 2nd—Dr. Scott Nearing on "Expansion."

Thursday, June 9th—Dr. Robert C. Brooks on "Expansion."

LABOR TEMPLE

14th Street and Second Avenue

THIS SUNDAY

3 P. M.—Contemporary Authors.

PROF. H. W. L. DANA

"Nero"

ADMISSION 25 CENTS

7:15 P. M.—

EDMUND B. CHAFFEE

"Where World Lincoln Stand Today"

ADMISSION FREE

8:30 P. M.—

HUBERT C. HERRING

"The United States and Mexico"

ADMISSION FREE

NEW SIGMAN TRICKERY REVEALED IN LABOR BANK WAR ON JOINT BOARD

"International" Heads Try to Strike Blow at Left Wing Thru Manipulation of Finances

An attempt of the "red-baiting" Sigman regime in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union to strike a new blow at the left wing Joint Board in New York City by a tricky manipulation of finances has just come to light in the filing of suits by the International Union Bank for recovery on three promissory notes, in spite of the fact that Morris Hillquit, socialist, attorney for the bank, controls the property which was offered as security, and which is of much greater value than the amount of the note.

The Sigman regime has control of the bank, in which members of the union are urged to keep accounts. In addition to revealing another underhand method of attack against the left wing, these revelations also strip bare another sordid side of "labor banking."

Express Financial Trickery.

A statement issued yesterday by Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board, tells an amazing story of financial trickery by which the bank of the International hopes to get a judgment for $104,000.00 against the Joint Board, in addition to the building of the Joint Board and shares of stock in the bank amounting to more than one half of the entire capital stock, which it holds through Mr. Hillquit's clerk, Frederick F. Umhey.

Hillquit gave a promise, when the prosperity was entrusted to him, that it would not be used for any other purpose than as security for the loans. The three suits were filed in the supreme court of New York.

Hyman's Statement.

Mr. Hyman's full statement, detailing the situation is as follows:

"The International Union Bank, has just brought three actions against the Joint Board and the Cloak and Suit Makers Building Corporation, which is the holding corporation of the Joint Board, and as such, owns the Joint Board building at Lexington avenue and 25th street. The three actions are on promissory notes aggregating $104,000.00. The Joint Board is sued on two notes, one for $44,000.00 and ona for $15,000.00 and the Building Corporation is sued on one note for $45,000.00. The history of these cases is interesting in many respects than ona.

"During the last strike, the International, the Joint Board and the Local Unions represented in the Joint Board, entered into a joint agreement with the International Union Bank, whereby the bank agreed to loan to them $389,000.00 on the security of the shares of stock of the International Union Bank which the unions owned, and which amounted in the aggregate to more than one half of the entire capital stock of the bank. In addition, the Joint Board and the local unions, agreed not to transfer their real estate, which they owned through holding corporations, until the bank loan was paid off. Upon at Rudyard, Mich., today.

Children Burn to Death.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Feb. 10 — Five children were burned to death when fire destroyed their home the advice of Mr. Morris Hillquit, who was then the attorney for the unions, the shares of the bank stock, as well as the shares of the real estata holding corporations which the unions owned, were deposited with Mr. Hillquit's clerk, Mr. Frederick F. Umhey, as trustee.

Hillquit To The Rescue.

Mr. Hillquit explained to the unions that that was necessary in order that they might not dispose of their real estate or of their bank stock before they paid up the loan to the bank. But when the fight between the right and left wings developed, it was discovered that Mr. Umhey, the "trustee" had so manipulated the shares of the real estate holding corporation, which were deposited with him in trust, that he suddenly became the owner of the Joint Board building, as wall as of the building of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

It also became known that he had surreptitiously transferred to himself the shares of the stock of the International Bank which had been deposited with him in trust, so that he became officially the owner of the same. The shares of bank stock and the buildings are of course worth much more than the amount of the loan which the bank gave to the unions upon this security and if the Joint Board and the unions still had the stock and the buildings at their disposal, they could easily pay off their loan to the bank.

"An interesting development in this connection is that in the two actions against the Joint Board, the International Union Bank with Mr. Hillquit as its attorney, swears that Julius Portnoy is still the secretary-treasurer of the Joint Board, although all along Mr. Sigman and Mr. Hillquit claimed that Mr. Julius Portnoy's is no Joint Board at all and that the proper Joint Board is at No. 3 West 16th street."

The Manager's Corner

DEBUNKING.

Some years ago Lord Northcliffe decided that it would be worth while to have the English people wear a bouquet of green pea blossoms on a given day. He then proceeded to advertise the proposition so extensively thru the many papers which he controlled, that he actually succeeded in getting thousands of people to respond by wearing the called-for decoration. This may strike the reader as funny, but when the gentle art of bunking the public is utilized even more cleverly and more effectively to prejudice the case of the workers in a strike, or to draw the workers into an imperialist war, then it becomes not a joke, but a menace. And when this art is developed to the perfection which is found in the capitalist press, then it becomes even more menacing.

The DAILY WORKER has pledged itself seriously to the task of debunking the ideas which are being promulgated by the capitalist press. This is no easy task, nor is it a painless one. At times some of our readers may resent the sharpness of our criticism, and the severity of our attack upon the tenets of the present order. The ideas many of us have nursed for years are not easy to part with. The debunking process is difficult at times. But none the less the operation is as necessary as the extraction of a decayed tooth. In this process of debunking, we are trying to develop the same and even greater skill than the capitalist press. Not only must we expose the hollowness of capitalist ideology, but we must teach our readers to readily detect this hollowness. It is only when the mind of the worker has been thoroughly, sterilized of the disease germs of capitalist ideas, when he has been thoroughly debunked, only then will he be able to see and think clearly, and arrive at a sound solution of the problems of his class.—BERT MILLER.

WORKER THRONGS IN COOPER UNION CHEER FOR CHINA

Anti-Imperialist Meet Rebukes Coolidge

New York workers filled Cooper Union to capacity last night to join with the Workers (Communist) Party in protesting against the present policy of American capitalism in sending American marines to China and Nicaragua, and the browbeating attitude that is being adopted towards Mexico.

Under the chairmanship of William W. Weinstone, general secretary of the New York organization of the Workers (Communist) Party, the assembled workers listened attentively to the speechs of E. K. Moy, associate editor of the Chinese National Daily, local organ of the Kuomintang, the national revolutionary party of China; Bertram D. Wolfe, director, New York Workers' School; Ben Gitlow and Jay Lovestone.

Moy Denounces Corruption.

When Moy was introduced he was roundly cheered. He attacked the Peking government of China as being corrupt, "a shadow, being supported by imperialism to keep the Chinese masses in bondage."

Referring to the Cantonese, he pointed out that the Kuomintang is struggling for the liberation of China from the yoke of imperialism and in this fight the only friend of the Chinese masses is the Soviet Union. Wolfe in speaking, that "we are gathered here tonight to protest against American imperialism in Latin-America."

Murder By Marines.

He referred to the 10,000 Haitians who have been murdered by American marines during the past ten years, also to "dollar diplomacy as practiced in Cuba, Columbia, Nicaragua, Mexico and elsewhere.

"Imperialism in Latin America is not new," he continued, "what is new is the reaction of the workers of those countries.

"The American worker has no quarrel with the workers of Mexico, Nicaragua or China. We say, hands off Mexico! Hands off Nicaragua! Hands off China."

In his opening remarks Weinstone said that "the struggle of the Cantonese revolutionary government effects the welfare of one billion people in China, India, Soviet Russia and Indo-China. The defeat of the Chinese involves, first, the possibility of capitalism gaining a new foothold in China and checking the progress of the decay of the British empire.

"Second, it seems the destruction of an ally of the Soviet Union and the emboldening of the imperialism in their present attempt to encircle the Soviet Union and destroy the work of the revolution."

Gitlow Attacks Imperialism.

Ben Gitlow spoke against the continuation of the policy of capitalist imperialism, and told of the effects it has on the workers at home and abroad.

Jay Lovestone, who has specially studied the subject of imperialism as the final phase of capitalism, analysed the factors involved, and called on workers to stop the imperialistic march, embodied in Coolidge's policy towards Latin America and the western capitalist powers attitude towards China.

The resolution adopted demanded the withdrawal of American troops from China and Nicaragua, and the recognition of the Canton government.

The meeting adopted strong resolutions against imperialism, and against the fascist regime in Lithuania.

Fight Minnesota Police Bill.

ST. PAUL, (FP).—Strong protests are reaching Minnesota legislators in session at St. Paul against passage of the state constabulary bill. Much of the opposition comes from trade unionists, who brand it as expensive and likely to be diverted from its proposed use to that of unfairly assisting employers in labor disputes.

To Hold First Annual Dance of Workers on Headgear in Chicago

CHICAGO.—The First Anaual Cap and Millinery Workers' Dance has been arranged by the Joint Board of Chicago, for Saturday, March 5, 1927, at the Logen Sq. Masonic Temple, 2451 N. Kedzie Ave., which is centrally located and well-known to the dance public.

George Koechar and his orchestra have been engaged to furnish the music.

The Joint Board plans to make this an annual institution in the Cap and Millinery Trade of Chicago. Tickets sell for 50 cents. The proceeds of this affair are to go towards the organization campaign in Chicago.

Every worker in the Cap and Millinery industry is urged to attend this dance; a good time is assured to all.

LIBERTIES UNION TO HAVE HEARING ON FREE SPEECH

School Board Refused Use of Auditorium

A decisive victory was gained yesterday by the Civil Liberties Union when Supreme Court Justice Gavegan signed an order instructing the board of education to grant a hearing to the union upon its application to lecture in the schools of the city. The school board had previously denied the Liberties Union the use of the school auditoriums, claiming that the schools were no place to stage a free speech fight.

No promise was given to the union by the judge that he would actively assist in getting the school board to rescind their former ruling, but assured them that under the law a hearing can be demanded.

This fight started in May, 1926, when an application to speak at the Morris High School was not granted. The union sought to hold a meeting a week later but met wire the same refusal. On June 1, attempts were made to engage the Stuyvesant High School auditorium. Again it was refused.

The board of education held that it was justified in its action, inasmuch as it believed the Liberties Union to be a radical organization, and was furthering a doctrine foreign to American ideals. Samuel Untermyer, representative of the union, contended that its speakers have a right to use the school building of the city, to hold orderly meetings and to discuss before the public any subject, no matter how radical or conservative.

Rambino Wants $100,000 Contract.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 11. — Babe Ruth said today that if the New York Yankees did not come across with a $100,000 contract for 1927 he would retire from baseball, associating himself with Arthur A. McGovern, New York trainer, in a chain of gymnasiums throughout the country.

Emil St. Goddard Wins Race.

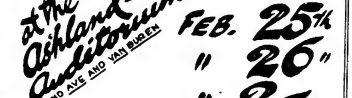
ASHLAND, N. H., Feb. 11.—Emil St. Goddard, of Le Pas, Manitoba with his team of huskies was the first to cross the finish mark of the initial lap in the second annual point-to-point race of the New England sled dog club today.

Buy Your
DAILY WORKER
at the Newsstand

UNIONISTS WILL NOT WORK WITH SCAB LABORERS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—Since last summer when the painters and glaziers refused to work with non-union men, there has been sporadic sparring between the men and the contractors.

Yesterday, 44 carpenters left their job on the Union Depot building and there appears to be danger of all the men in the building trades working on the job, making a general walkout of it. It is a question of the right of the carpenters to do certain work—the removal of column forms—this being contested by the National Fireproofing Company of Chicago, who are sub-contractors, and who are employing laborers for the work.



Negotiations have been in progress for a week, but it appears that no solution has been found, and therefore the men have struck.

The building trades unions are in war also against the board of education of this city, who ruled that men over 45 years of age cannot take the civil service examinations for the board of education. This would mean the elimination of many good craftsmen, who look for jobs controlled by the board of education.

Regardless of the board's ruling, there certainly is a movement in progress to eliminate older man from the job, in order that younger men who can produce more may take their places. This is in keeping with the rule in the industries, to get rid of the older men.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium
ASHLAND AVE AND VAN BUREN

FEB. 25th
" 26"
" 27"

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT. 50% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $80.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A DRAMA IN FLAY FORM written on the Amarican style
by
Leon Hausman
Author and Playwright
Per Copy at $1.10
sent to Leon Hausman, "Bolshevik", Post Office Box 187, Bloomfield, N. J., secures a copy of "Bolshevik" in English for the present.
Translations may be had at a later date.
On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, advising his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The author is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" review in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will be great just the same ARE YOU?!!

THE MODERN SCHOOL, Ferrer Colony, Stelton, N. J.

Exhibit - Bazaar - Entertainment

FRIDAY, SATURDAY and SUNDAY

18th, 19th and 20th of February, 1927

at the WORKERS' CENTER, 219 Second Ave., near 14th St., N.Y.C.

FRIDAY EVENING, AT 8:30
EDUCATION—SYMPOSIUM
(1) Prof. P. R. RADOSAVLJEVICH of the N. Y. U.
(2) Dr. H. R. LINVILLE of the Manumit School.
(3) Dr. B. GLASSON of the Walden School, N. Y.
(4) Dr. M. GHOSSMAN, former principal of the Modern School
(5) A. L. GOLDMAN, principal of the Modern School, chairman.
SATURDAY AND SUNDAY AFTERNOONS, 2:30 TO 5:30
Exhibit and Bazaar of the Children's Drawings, Paintings, Cuts, Woodwork, Weaving, Clay Modelling, Basketry and Magazine, "The Voice of the Children"
SATURDAY EVENING, AT 8:30
COMMUNAL DINNER
and reunion of all members and sympathizers of the Modern School.
SUNDAY EVENING, AT 8:30
PLAY AND DANCE
Selected scenes from "The Merchant of Venice," given by the children of the Modern School and followed by a Dance.
SPECIAL ATTENTION!
The Play and Dance on Sunday evening will be given at the INTERNATIONAL CENTER, 249 East 23rd Street, near Lexington Ave.

HALT!

WHO GOES THERE?

FRIEND OF FOE?

From the outskirts of the war zone to the tent of the Council of War, there rings, in every struggle, the challenge: "Who goes there? Friend or Foe?" The friend is hailed with open arms—the foe with arrest and the cell. "What be the Guard?"

The DAILY WORKER is in the midst of a fight to establish itself as the organ of the struggle of the American workers against their exploiters. IT HAS CALLED FOR MORE AMMUNITION FROM THE FIGHTERS BEHIND THE FRONT; the kind it fights with is

25,000 Subscriptions

The Mass Movement Scheme of the Russian Bolsheviks, in which 100 comrades thruout the country will be challenged to tell what they are doing to BUILD The DAILY WORKER, is the system of field tactics adopted by our "Council of War." When each of the challenged comrades has sent in his subscriptions, he has the right to challenge five other comrades, a right which is accorded to each of them and their successive challenges.

Suppose YOU are challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

Will YOU answer friend or foe? If it's friend, you've got to show us a safe-conduct pass; in this case, a flock of annual subs. When the call comes—YOU wouldn't want to be a SLACKER, would YOU?

This being a fight to the finish, we've got all the necessary trappings. Medals? Sure, lots of 'em, in the form of

PRIZES TO ALL DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For 1 Annual subscription ($6.00 worth): a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature and either Free choice of titles for a bronze statue of Karl Marx, worth $5.00.

For 2 Annual Subscriptions or Many worth $12.00 worth of literature: Free choice of titles

For 3 Annual Subscriptions or $18.00 worth: $10.00 worth of literature: Free choice of titles

For 5 Annual Subscriptions or $30.00 worth: $25.00 worth of literature: Free choice of titles

A bronze medal of Lenin for [illegible] per cent in each [illegible]

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

Even the New Subscribers will come in for a share of the prizes!

PRIZES FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927" with [illegible] Reproductions of the work of the following noted artists:

Fred Ellis, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Hugo Gellert, Louis Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, [illegible], Michael Gold, Hales F. Ferguson, Wm. Siegel, H. R. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not for sale [illegible] Comrades to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—[illegible] will be given for all subscriptions to the Soviet Worker's Workers Monthly, Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be sent, mailed or by [illegible].

There should be full cooperation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for the DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive credit whether comrades are appointed for subscriptions to the foreign language papers, comrades soliciting for the foreign language press secure from the DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, [illegible] as which comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 Celebration International [illegible].

A special effort should be made to secure Annual Subscriptions. Short time subscriptions are only to be used as [illegible] the DAILY WORKER as a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

The campaign closes April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). With this new ammunition, 25,000 new subscriptions, The DAILY WORKER will be firmly established in the front line trenches of the American labor movement.

The fight is on!!! Are YOU with us? We won't give you the super-profits munition manufacturers got during the World War; but there are the prizes—you'll value them more than the war-makers valued theirs, because they'll be a reward for honest effort, not dishonest exploitation.

If YOU Are Challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

Are YOU prepared to answer proudly?

"FRIEND!"

DAILY WORKER
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
$8.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.50 three months	$8.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The McNary-Haugen Bill

The McNary-Haugen bill supported by such reactionaries as Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and aspirant for the presidential nomination on the G. O. P. ticket, and by Charles G. Dawes, vice-president of the United States, passed through the Senate yesterday.

Farmers who may expect that this bill, provided it gets safely through the house, will help to ameliorate their conditions should remember the old adage of the "Greeks bearing gifts." What interest has the millionaire model farmer Lowden in the farmers' needs outside of a desire to capture votes? Who is naive enough to believe that Charles G. Dawes, millionaire banker and oil magnate, weeps over the misfortunes of the tillers of the soil?

As the United Farmer points out in a recent editorial this bill is designed to protect the investments of the capitalists who have sunk their money in agriculture. The McNary-Haugen bill would assist the banks in the agricultural sections. Instead of relieving the farmers it is evident that the farmers would be taxed still more to relieve their exploiters.

The United Farmer puts the McNary-Haugen bill in a nutshell for us as follows:

> "The McNary-Haugen bill provides for a Federal Farm Board of twelve members, appointed by the president of the United States. There does not seem to be much chance for any radical, or fighting farm organization to render assistance to the bankrupt farmer through this plan, for it provides:
>
> "(c) The Secretary of Agriculture (who is ex-officio a member of the board) shall, within thirty days after the approval of this Act and biennially thereafter, with the advice of such farm organizations and co-operative associations AS HE CONSIDERS TO BE REPRESENTATIVE OF AGRICULTURE IN ANY DISTRICT, (1) fix the date on which a convention in such district shall be held, (2) DESIGNATE THE FARM ORGANIZATIONS AND CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS IN THE DISTRICT ELIGIBLE to participate in such convention, and (3) DESIGNATE THE NUMBER OF REPRESENTATIVES AND THE NUMBER OF VOTES to which each such organization or association in the district shall be entitled. (Emphasis ours.)"

We cordially agree with the United Farmer that the farmers should organize and unite to fight for their own interests. They must join hands with the workers in the industries and under the banner of a Labor Party struggle to overthrow the capitalist system which exploits all producers. Under a Workers' and Farmers' government labor in the mills, mines, factories and railroads and in the fields will solve their own problems and will no longer be used as political footballs by millionaire "farmers" and the political tools of the money lenders.

When Plays Go Cold.

One of those periodical drives to cleanse the stage of semi-nudity is now on in full blast. Several plays in which the female portion of the cast wear a little less raiment than they wear going to church in summer time have been raided by policemen acting under the instructions of the acting-mayor and the district attorney, who are also acting under the pressure of newspaper circulation managers who must crusade for something to win back the circulation they are losing to the pornographic tabloid sheets.

The managers and casts of three plays were taken to night court to the accompaniment of booming flashlights. The owners of those plays are reported to be in a merry mood. Some of the plays are said to be "flops." One newspaper tells us that one of them was on the verge of closing for lack of patronage. The manager was afraid the raiders were not coming. His leading lady was ill but she must appear at the peril of her life. Here was a chance to jazz up a dying play. It could not be missed.

The police arrived, got their pictures taken with the leading ladies recently clad in costly furs provided by the New York citizenry that has nothing behind the eyes but considerable in the jeans. The pictures got on the front pages of the newspapers that refused to parade honking gunders thru the streets to draw public attention to the foibles of Mr. Edward Browning.

When the respectable newspapers come to the conclusion that they have extracted the last ounce of circulation value out of the morals crusade, they will develop hydrophobia over some other public evil. In the meantime the salacious plays will be given a new lease of life and the gaping audiences will continue to strain their eyes while the winds of fatuity whistle thru their mental vacuums.

Hypocrisy is the essence of bourgeois morality.

Dr. Norman Thomas of the socialist party informs us that he was invited to a liberal dinner, which was organized for the purpose of giving left wing leaders in the garment industry an opportunity to present their case to the public. Dr. Thomas is extremely sympathetic to the principle of free speech, but since the Communists do not believe in democracy, and since Dr. Thomas must choose sides, he prefers to stay with the reactionaries who do not believe in democracy. Dr. Thomas is where he belongs.

Police commissioner McLaughlin reports a considerable decrease in all classes of crime over 1925. Unless our memory is at fault a considerable number of crimes have been committed by the police against strikers during 1926. We do not recollect the name of a single capitalist who was clubbed, arrested and jailed during this period.

Aimee McPherson is gathering in the shekels in Chicago. She blames the devil for her recent troubles. Without the devil what an army of evangelists would be forced to work or starve?

Speech by Kollontay on Her Arrival in Mexico

ON Sunday, January 9, there took place, in the City of Mexico, an impressive reception, to Comrade Alexander Kollontay, the Plenipotentiary Representative from the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. This reception was held at the Russian Club of Mexico City.

In spite of the fact that the reception was advertised to begin at 5 o'clock in the evening, people began coming as early as six. And long before the meeting was formally opened, every bit of available space, including the hallway, was filled to its capacity, the crowd even overflowing the sidewalk.

Comrade Kollontay arrived at eight, and the people waiting for her broke into prolonged applause.

The speech of greeting, on behalf of the meeting, was made by Comrade Fremco.

Greeting by Kollontay.

Comrade Kollontay spoke as follows:

"Comrades and citizens:

"I thank you sincerely for this hearty and friendly reception with which I am met here. This reception is the more dear to me that it proves a spiritual connection between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the Russian Colony here.

"Many of those present here have probably left the fatherland long ago, and others have probably left even earlier. As I am but recently from Soviet Russia, you may rightly request from me an exposition in detail of the conditions now prevailing there. If one were to go there now with the assumption that he would find there a complete realization of Communism, he will undoubtedly feel disappointed. For he will find there only the process of Socialistic construction, an intensive process, taking place at an enforced pace.

"But it is clear that this construction cannot be terminated as yet. I consider it necessary to speak in great detail on this subject as this is one of the chief reproaches directed against us by our enemies. One often hears the reproach that no visible prosperity has been realized in the Soviet Union. Well, imagine yourself, the owner of an enterprise, of an industrial or a commercial establishment, which found itself in a condition of extreme decay. Let us suppose that this enterprise was put in the hands of another person. Imagine also, that at the expiration of a certain period, say, not nine months, there have taken place in this establishment notable improvements. Still, in spite of these improvements, those around him are heaping abuse on the owner, saying in effect, the following:

"What kind of establishment is this? Its productivity, it is true, has increased noticeably, its deficit has been wiped out, there is no doubt of its having made many important improvements in there; any way in having such an establishment, which does not give all at once a profit of 100%."

"Are not the charges thrown against the Soviet Government of a similar character?

Beginnings Were Difficult.

"The Soviet Government began its existence in unbelievably difficult conditions. At the time when the Soviet power was just emerging, the country was in a state of a dreadful dilapidation, the inheritance of the war. More than that, the Soviet Government had to suffer a whole lot of natural and other disasters, such as the blockade, intervention, the famine in the Volga districts, etc. Under such circumstances, the reconstruction was very difficult. And only to the superhuman efforts of the Russian proletariat, headed by the Communist party, is due the resistance to the pressure of the whole capitalist world, only through such efforts did the Russian people outlive all the sufferings endured by them. I repeat, not to the Soviet Government, but to the crimes of other nations, in intervening in Russia, should be charged all that the Russian people have endured.

"The Soviet Government remained true to its cause. Out of the immense difficulties it continually lead the country to complete economic restoration. And at the present time, it can be truthfully stated, that even in an economic sense there is no more stable government than that of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The advantages of the Soviet Government over other powers consists in that there is no such chaos as can be observed in the capitalist countries. Production, and, in fact, all national economy, is being conducted according to a previously conceived plan. Foreign trade is a state monopoly in the Soviet Union. Thus the state has the means and the power to control industry, and direct it, by, when necessary, reducing production in one branch while at the same time increasing it in another.

"One of the chief indications of the state of the national economy is the national budget. Considering the conditions of the national budget of the union in the years 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926, we find a continual growth in the Soviet economy. In 1924 the government's budget had a deficit of 36%. For the year of 1925 the deficit expressed itself in the figure of 4%. And for the year of 1926 the budget had no deficit. Is this not sufficient testimony to the improvement of the economic state of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics?

"The Soviet Union is a country with an overwhelming majority of the agricultural population of the peasants. From the 144,000,000 comprising the entire population, 120,000,000 live in the small villages, thus leaving only 24,000,000 as the population of the cities. Thus the economic importance of the peasants is of greater significance. Let us look at some statistics concerning the cultivated area, during the years 1913, 1920 and 1924. In the year 1913, the cultivated land of Russia amounted to 88,000,000 desyatinas (acres). In 1920 it amounted to 79,000,000, and in 1924 it surpassed the pre-war figure, having reached 104,000,000. This is indisputable evidence of a growth and improvement in peasant economy.

Explains Unemployment.

"As to unemployment in the Soviet Republic, it assumes a specific character, that differs most essentially from unemployment in other countries. The unemployment in the Soviet Union results not from disintegration of industry, not on account of the workers losing their work, but on account of the influx of workers from the villages. This gravitation of the peasants to the towns indicates not so much a still existing difficult situation in certain parts of the peasantry, but more still a desire of the peasant youth to live near centers of culture. The youth wishes to study, wishes to construct its life on a new basis.

"As to the state of commerce at the present moment, there is no comparison with the conditions existing previous to the revolution. As the most striking example, let us take foreign trade. During the czarist days, the principal objects of production were purchased abroad, while at the present time the main commodities imported from abroad are machines for the increasing of production.

"One of the most often heard reproaches against the Soviet Government, is that it is giving big concessions to the capitalists of foreign countries. But this charge is completely groundless. Previously, all the riches of the land where found in the hands of foreign capital. But at the present time, in spite of what my adversaries may say, the concessions granted by the Soviet Government are very few. So, for instance, Germany, which received from us the greatest number of concessions, counts throughout the Republic only twelve concession societies. England has eight such societies, Norway, three.

"The Soviet Government gives much attention to the economic improvement of the Jewish people. Those Jews who wish to remain on the land as agricultural workers receive all kinds of assistance necessary from the government. Many Jews have colonized in the Caucasus, in the Crimea, in White Russia, and in the district of Homel. The majority of these colonies find themselves in a state of prosperity.

"One repeatedly hears charges against the Soviet Government for its severity towards its enemies. It is strange to hear blame for this from a country like the United States. This country led a not less violent struggle for its independence, when it was not yet the United States, but a colony belonging to England, and George Washington, who headed and led the struggle for this independence, is to this day the national hero. The difference between the struggle for independence of the United States and the Russian Revolution is simply this, that the Russian Revolution forced out not only the foreign exploiters, but its own nobility and land-owners, who were not in the least better, but perhaps worse than foreign exploiters.

"The lives of the workers in the Soviet Union are being continually improved. The average worker receives 612 rubles a year. Unemployment is continually diminishing, and for the skilled worker unemployment has ceased to exist long ago. In fact, a lack of 100,000 skilled workers is being felt at the present time.

Medical Treatment Free.

"All the workers have the right to free medical treatment, as well as to sanitarium.

"The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is a beacon light for the workers of other countries. These are the conquests of the workers of Soviet Russia, and they conceive the hope that the time will come when for them will also be established a new day of greater justice and prosperity.

"Comrades, I will conclude my speech with greetings to you in the name of the Soviet Government, with the exclamation: "Long Live the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and its final triumph! and this Russian Club in Mexico." J. T.

CHAPTER XX

The Dedication

I

Bunny was alone in the roaring city of New York—six or seven millions of people, and not many known to him. There were reporters, of course—it made a "human interest" story, fate snatching one of the oil magnates away from the Senate inquisitors. The country was near the end of a bitter presidential campaign, and the smallest item about the oil scandal was of importance. Also Bunny had cablegrams and telegrams of sympathy from Verne and Annabelle, from Paul and Ruth, from Rachel and her father and brothers; yes, and one from the Princess Marmora, signing herself, with old-time neatness, "Vee-Vee."

He purchased his ticket home, by way of Washington, and on the train he read the back newspapers, with the day by day account of what happened to his boyhood dream of a great oil field; enormous pears of flame rolling over the earth, turning night into day with the glare, turning day into night with thunder clouds of smoke; rivers of blazing oil rushing down the valleys, and a gale of wind sweeping the fire from one hill to the next. A dozen great storage tanks had gone, and the whole refinery, with all its tanks, and some three hundred derricks, licked up and devoured in that roaring furnace. It was the worst oil fire in California history, eight or ten million dollars loss.

In Washington was some one for Bunny to tell his troubles to—Dan Irving! They took a long walk, and the older man put his arm about Bunny and told him that he had done everything possible in a difficult situation. Dan could assure him that he didn't have to think of his father as a bad man; Dan had made it his business to know, and could confirm Bunny's judgment, American big business men all purchase government, they all justified the purchase of government. It was something that had shocked Dan in the beginning, but he had come to realize now that it was a system; without the purchase of government, American big business could not exist. That is written plain in the instinctive reaction of the whole business world to the oil scandals, the determination to damp them down, to make nothing of them, to indict and prosecute, not the criminals, but the exposers of the crime

So they got to talking politics, which was the best thing for Bunny, to divert his mind and get him back to his job. Dan had been doing what he could in this presidential campaign, but he was sick with the sense of impotence. The whole capitalist publicity machine had been at work on a new job, to glorify "Cautious Cal" to the American people—this pitiful little man, a fifth-rate country politician, a would-be store-keeper, he was the great strong silent statesman and the plain people's hero! One thing, and one only, the business men expected of him, to cut down their income taxes; in everything else he would be a cipher. The newspaper men were disgusted by their job, but all were helpless, their papers at home would take only one kind of news. And here was poor Dan with his labor press service, a score or two of obscure papers, perhaps a hundred thousand circulation in all, and most of the time not enough money for the office rent.

"That's what I want to talk to you about," said Bunny. "Before I left France, Dad gave me a million dollars in Ross Consolidated stock. I don't know what it'll be worth since the fire, but Verne says there's full insurance. I'm not going to touch the principal till I have time to think things over, but I'll get a thousand dollars a month of the income into your work, if that will help."

"Help!" My God, Bunny, that's more money than we've ever thought of! I've been trying to raise an extra hundred a month, so as to mail free copies where they would count."

Said Bunny, "I'll turn the money over to you with only one provision —that you're to have two hundred a month salary. There's no reason why you should run yourself into debt financing the radical movement."

Dan laughed. "No reason, except that there wouldn't be any radical movement if some didn't do that." And then he first really felt angel that has appeared in my sky."

"Well, wait," said Bunny, "till I find out just how fat I'm going to be. I've an idea my friend Vernon Roscoe will do what he can to keep me lean. He knows that whatever I get will go to making trouble for him."

"My gosh!" said Dan. "Have you seen the things we've been sending out about Roscoe's foreign concessions, and what the state department is doing to make him rich? That story would beat the Sunnyside lease, if we could get the Senate to investigate it!"

(To Be Continued.)

FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By EUGENE LYONS

Note on Modern Art.—He's only a humble barber on Barrow Street. But already his talents have been recognized in the best circles. Scarcely a night when he is not called to some fashionable night club to paint portraits of consequence. His specialization on eyes. Indeed, even more specialized than that—restoring black eyes to their natural color. Painstakingly he covers the blacks and the blues with flesh tints to match the skin of the sitter. At $3 an eye. The lady who brings us this information says she got her black eye—and the resultant acquaintance with this artist—falling down a staircase, but that's another story.

We are privileged to be the first to announce that the American government is about to change its official slogan. Due to the increasing number of embarrassing questions about its policies, especially in places like China and Nicaragua, it has decided to abandon the time-worn "E pluribus unum" and to adopt in its place: "Tell it to the marines."

Socialism Fashionable in London.—Socialism is all the rage in old London town. The well-mannered Rind, you know. The New York Times spreads the glad tidings that "Cupid is to bring to British Socialist ranks a new recruit. . . . Miss Ursula Spicer, daughter of Sir Albert Spicer, marries Sydney Potter, the assistant editor of the socialist organ The Miner. . . . They will marry in June but meanwhile Miss Spicer will help her fiancé conduct a campaign against the British policy in China. . . . It is stated that among the wedding guests in June will be Oswald Mosley, the socialist M. P., who married Lady Cynthia Curzon. . . ." In a word, it's being taken up by the very best people, my dear, and is sure to have a wonderful effect on the socialist movement. Tone, you know. Already the laboring classes and their likes are being gently forced out. The new rich, and social climbers generally, are the chief problem; they are beginning to look upon socialism as the best way to meet the smartest set in society. But there is no fear, my dear. Our London society has tact and poise, what the French call—I forget for the moment. Anyhow society will see to it that only the oldest families remain in the socialist ranks before long.

Straton for President.—The boom proceeds apace. Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton has announced that his first official act, if elected president of the United States, will be to jail Nicholas Murray Butler. This alone should make every one of our readers rally to his support.

Birth of the Dulaks.—The Russian expert of the New York Sun tells the world on the 9th inst. that "DULAKS AND KULAKS FIGHT PEASANT VOTERS." It is to be expected that classes which rhyme so well should be on the same side against the masuliks. The Dulaks, for your information, were invented by the linotyper. They slipped into a dispatch through a typographical error—a mere matter of D for K—but you can leave it to the headline writers to feature the error.

---

* * * Re the Peaches-Browning Show: White Plains, the court record shows, is not nearly as white as it's painted.

A NICE LITTLE VAUDEVILLE ACT, ESPECIALLY GOOD FOR THE NEW JERSEY CIRCUIT:

Six Passaic cops, graceful dancers. Words by the National Security League, music by the American Legion, and ballet by Fred Marvin.

We are the strong right arm of the law,
Heavy of fist and square of jaw.
We carry a club for an ornament,
But we DO club a guy when he isn't a gent.
When he isn't a gent,
When he isn't a gent,
WE represent the government.

(They do arm calisthenics and swing clubs.)

We play little games, we officers do,
One's called "Bang" and the other is "Shoo."
Bang is played with a downward whack,
And shoo is played with a poke in the back.
A poke in the back.
A poke in the back.
You know what all work and no play did to Jack.

(They join hands, play ring-around-the-rosie and London-bridge-is-falling-down.)

Our pay is small, so you can't blame us,
If we don't protest or make a fuss
When somebody slips us a little dough—
A man has to live somehow, you know;
Be his station high.
Be his station low,
A man has to keep his Ford on the go.

(They do an Egyptian dance with much backward and forward extending of palms.)

We never use profanity,
Politeness is our vanity,
If we slug a fellow over the head,
It's only because he's a god-damned Red,
A god-damned Red,
A god-damned Red,
You can't imagine how well we're bred.

(They bow, tip their helmets, help each other across the street, smile, and pose courteously, but break off for a fierce:)

But we DO club a guy when he isn't a gent.
When he isn't a gent.
When he isn't a gent,
WE represent your government.

—ALKALI AL.

That's a Clubby Little Act, Al.

The Statue of Liberty will be fifty years old on February 22. With characteristic enterprise this department has arranged for the old gal to be interviewed on the occasion. Unfortunately she has been facing the ocean all these years and may have a distorted view of affairs. From time to time during these fifty years we have run across statements made in Miss Liberty's name which would indicate that she doesn't quite realize what's going on behind her back. On the other hand, her fixed position has saved her temper and these statements are pervaded by a sweet and wholesome optimism. In any event her views should prove interesting.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

DRAMA

A HAND-PAINTED PAPER CUTTER

"Pinwheel," a play of New York in four parts, by Francis Edwards Faragoh, at the Neighborhood Playhouse.

FRANCIS Edwards Faragoh handed the Neighborhood Playhouse the manuscript of a hard-boiled little play about a stenographer who wanted romance and found only pork chops and a husband. The many scenes span as on a pinwheel. The play was as American as the New York Graphic and as real as a brass spittoon. It was laid in a subway, at Coney Island, an office, a stockroom, a poolroom, a movie, a cabaret, a cheap flat, a cheaper furnished room. Its people stenographers, bootleggers, pool-room bums, sugar daddies, taxi drivers, bookkeepers, were real enough for any child to recognize. The manuscript may have had its weak spots. But it also had its great moments.

As staged by the Misses Lewisohn at the Neighborhood Playhouse this play is a failure. I do not share the feeling of the critics that its form is at fault. The episodic play is an ancient English dramatic form, perhaps the true English dramatic form. People who insist that audiences lose interest in a story strung together out of short scenes, forget that Hamlet is still pretty good. Broadway, of course, demands three rigid acts with not more than two different sotas. But Broadway only follows rules. Somebody else has to lay them down or break them up. Mr. Faragoh is one of the pioneers.

Unfortunately, his Pinwheel fell into the wrong hands. The producer of the play "Broadway" might have made it shine like brass. The ladies of the Neighborhood Playhouse tried to aestheticize it. They clipped and trimmed it. Too often they cut to the quick. They stylized the acting in the first part—God knows why; then finding that it simply wouldn't do, they dropped into straight stuff. They sheathed the metallic lines in impalpable sighs and attenuated yearning. They smothered the sharp, nasty characters in bizarre settings, constructivism sterilized by soft lights and velvet drapes. A good play got lost in shadows. It emerged here and there for a transient moment, but in general it remained a queer hybrid, not wholly real, not wholly fantastic, its harshness stilled, its realism sentimentalized, its beauty prettified. You can't make a pagan fresh as the Graphic into a Dybbuk. To the Neighborhood Playhouse goes the honor of converting a good sharp sword into a dainty, hand-painted paper cutter.—HARRIOT ALLEN.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

"The Little Spitfire," Myron C. Fagan's amusing comedy, will come to the Bronx Opera House Monday night. The company includes: Arthur Aylesworth, Dulcie Cooper, Edward H. Robins, Ellen Wilson, Lester Vail, Peggy Allenby, Dudley Hawley, and Miss Marie Andrews.

"1925," the revue scheduled for the Intimate Playhouse, in the Bronx, is announced to open Saturday night, Feb. 19.

LAURA HOPE CREWS

One of the principals in "The Silver Cord," the Sidney Howard play at the Golden Theatre.

MUSIC

NEW YORK SYMPHONY

Four concerts are scheduled by the New York Symphony Orchestra next week. This Sunday afternoon in Mecca Auditorium, Elizabeth Rethberg will be the soloist, with Otto Klemperer conducting. The program follows: Mozart's Jupiter Symphony, No. 4 in A-minor—Handel, Aria "Der Freyschuts"—Weber, Kanzertmusik fur Blas Orchestra—Hindemith, Songs—Strauss, Prelude and Isolde's Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" Wagner.

The concerts in Carnegie Hall next Thursday afternoon and Friday evening, will have Pablo Casals as the assisting artist. The program includes: Overture, "Oberon", Weber, Concerto in B-flat Boccherini, Symphony No. 7 Bruckner.

Sunday afternoon, February 20, in Mecca Auditorium, Alexander Brailowsky will be the soloist.

PHILHARMONIC

Wilhelm Furtwaengler will include the Seventh Symphony of Nicholas Miaskovsky next Thursday evening and Friday afternoon at Carnegie Hall. The program will open with the Second Symphony of Brahms and close with the "Tannhauser" Overture.

This Sunday afternoon at Carnegie Hall Mr. Furtwaengler has scheduled the Beethoven "Leonore" Overture No. 2, the Seventh Symphony of Beethoven, Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet," and Berlios' Rakoczy March.

Next Sunday afternoon Paul Kochanski will be the soloist with the Philharmonic orchestra.

The New Plays

TUESDAY

"SPELLBOUND," described as a prohibition drama, dealing with anti-Negro bigots, by Walter Elwood, will begin a series of special matinees Tuesday afternoon at the Klaw Theatre, Mary Forrest is the producer. In the cast are Esther Stockton, Bud West, Arthur Morrid, James J. Morton, Richard Bowles, Arthur Gray, Charlotte Altemus and Adelaide Fitzallen.

"POSSIBILITIES," by J. S. and Ernest W. Martin, will be presented by Clare Tree Major, at a series of special matinees, beginning Tuesday afternoon at the Princess Theatre. The play, it is stated, deals with philosophy.

"SINNER"

Weaver a spell ..... Times
"A hit ..... Telegraph
"Unusual combination of drama and comedy" ..... Journal with

ALLAN DINEHART and CLAIBORNE FOSTER

KLAW THEATRE West 45th Street. Evs. 8.30. FIRST MAT. TOMORROW

B.P.

A play you won't forget

THE LADDER

By J. FRANK DAVIS

WALDORF Thrs. 50th Perf. East of Broadway. Evs. 8.30 Mats. Wed. & Sat.

SPECIAL MATINEE Washington's Birthday (Tuesday, Feb 22).

WINTHROP AMES presents GILBERT & SULLIVAN OPERA CO. All performances etc. Thurs. Eves.

PIRATES of PENZANCE

THURSDAY EVENINGS ONLY

IOLANTHE

PLYMOUTH West 45th Street. Evenings 8.30 Mats Thurs & Sat. 2.30

EXTRA MATINEE Washington's Birthday (Tuesday, Feb 22)

CIVIC REPERTORY THEATRE CORNER 6 AVE AND 14 ST. TELEPHONE WATKINS 7262. MATINEES WED AND SAT. PRICES 50c. $1.10, $1.65.

EVA LeGALLIENNE

WEEK OF FEB. 14th

Mon Eve., Feb 14 ..."Master Builder"
Tues Eve., Feb. 15 ..."Cradle Song"
Wed. Mat., Feb. 16 ..."Master Builder"
Wed. Eve., Feb. 16 "Three Sisters"
Thur. Eve., Feb. 17. ..."Cradle Song"
Fri. Eve., Feb. 18 ..."John Gabriel Borkman"
Sat. Mat. Feb. 19 ..."Twelfth Night"
Sat. Eve., Feb. 19. ..."Cradle Song"

WEEK OF FEB. 21

Mon. Eve. Feb. 21 ..."Master Builder"
Tues Mat. Feb. 22 ..."Master Builder"
Tues Eve. Feb. 22 ..."Cradle Song"
Wed Mat. Feb. 23 ..."Cradle Song"
Wed Eve. Feb. 23 ..."La Locandiera"
Thur Eve. Feb. 24 ..."Three Sisters"
Fri Eve. Feb. 25 ..."Cradle Song"
Sat Mat. Feb. 26 ..."Cradle Song"
Sat Eve., Feb. 26. ..."John Gabriel Borkman"

Neighborhood Playhouse 466 Grand st. Dryduck 7316

Every Eva. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.

"PINWHEEL"

By Francis Edwards Faragoh

WITH DYBBUK—Feb. 17

Theatre Guild Acting Company in BROTHERS KARAMAZOV

Week Feb. 14—PYGMALION

GUILD Tues.Wed.Sat 8:15 Evs. 8:15 Mats. Thu. & Sat 2:15.

THE SILVER CORD

Week Feb. 14—Ned McCobb's Daughter

John Golden Th. 50. 52 of 39 Clerks Mats.Thurs &Sat) 56th

An AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre West of 6th 6TH MONTH Mats Wed and Sat.

RITZ Thea. 48th St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8.20 Mats. WED and SAT. 2.20.

Bye Bye Bonnie

Musical Bon Bon with Dorothy Burgess, Randolph Cameron, Louis Simons, William Frawley.

Sam HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. W. of B'way. Evs. 8.30

WHAT PRICE GLORY

Mats (etc Sat) 50c-$1 Evs. 60c-$2

MUSIC AND CONCERTS.

N. Y. SYMPHONY

KLEMPERER, Guest Conductor.

MECCA AUDITORIUM, Sun. Aft. Feb. 15

SOLOIST ELISABETH RETHBERG

HANDEL, Concerto Grosso No. 4 V in A minor, for String Orchestra and Cembalo (Mr. Klemperer at the Cembalo) WEBER, Aria "Der Freyschutz"—HINDEMITH, Konzertmusik for Blas Orchester; STRAUSS, Songs; WAGNER, Preludo and Isolda's Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde."

TICKETS at Steinway Hall, 113 West 57th Street, Room 501.

George Engles, Mgr. Steinway Piano.

MUSIC NOTES.

Ernesto Berumen gives his piano recital at Aeolian Hall Sunday Evening, February 20, featuring music of modern Spain by de Falla, Turina, Albenis and Granados.

Beatrice Pinkham, at her second piano recital in Town Hall next Thursday evening, will play numbers from Bach, Handel, Chopin, Liszt, Grieg and some moderns.

Nobu Susuki, the Japanese contralto, at her debut in Town Hall, next Saturday afternoon, will include a program of German lieder, groups of Schubert, by Wolf, Werkmeister, Mahlar and Roger.

PHILHARMONIC FURTWAENGLER, Conductor

at CARNEGIE HALL

THIS SUNDAY AFTERNOON at 3:00 Beethoven—Tschaikovsky—Berlioz

Thurs. Eve., Feb. 17, at 8:30—Fri. Aft., Feb. 18, at 2:30

Brahms—Miaskovsky—Wagner

Sunday Afternoon, Feb. 20, at 2:00

Soloist: PAUL KOCHANSKI

Arthur Judson, Mgr. (Steinway Piano)

Aeolian Hall, Sun. Eve., Feb. 20, at 8:30

BERUMEN

SPANISH PROGRAM

Works by De Falla, Turina, Albeniz and Granados

Harmel & Jones, Mgrs. Steinway Piano

TOWN HALL, Sat. Afternoon, Feb. 19, at 2:30

SONG RECITAL

Nobu Suzuki

Concert Mgt. Daniel Mayer, Inc. Steinway Piano

TOWN HALL, Thurs. Eve., Feb. 17, at 8:30

PIANO RECITAL BEATRICE P

PINKHAM

Concert Mgt. Daniel Mayer, Inc. Steinway Piano

THE NEW MAGAZINE

Section of THE DAILY WORKER

Second Section: This Magazine Section Appears Every Saturday in The DAILY WORKER.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1927 ALEX BITTELMAN, Editor

The Aftermath of "The Jungle"

By FLOYD DELL

This is a chapter from a book on the life of Upton Sinclair, by Floyd Dell, which will be published on May 29th of this year.—ED.

IN 1905 there began to appear, in a socialist weekly, the Appeal to Reason, published in Girard, Kansas, a novel of the Chicago stockyards, by an almost altogether unknown writer: The Jungle, by Upton Sinclair. I can remember, as a boy of eighteen, reading in my Appeal that first chapter describing the wedding party of Jurgis and Ona, and my delight in the rich, full-blooded humanity of that scene. It was the happy prelude to what was to be, as week after week the story unrolled itself, a tragic panorama of working-class life, true, terrible, and magnificent.

The story was simple enough; it related the fortunes of a group of immigrants who lived and worked in the stockyards district—their struggle to get ahead, to own a home, to bring up their children decently, while all the time they are brutally exploited, preyed upon, robbed, outraged, by the unscrupulous forces which find in their poverty and ignorance and helplessness more opportunities for enrichment. The group is crushed, one by one, in the struggle; old men are thrown on the scrap-heap to starve, the women are drawn into prostitution to keep body and soul together, the children die; Jurgis himself goes to prison for smashing the face of a brutal boss, and when he comes out his little world had been destroyed as if by an earthquake—and he is left to wander, getting vagabond as he wanders, and coming at last to believe in a socialist reconstruction of this hideous world. At every point the story is enriched by the most vivid and relentless realistic detail; one is immersed in the filth and stench and cruelty of the stockyards, and one feels the sublime human aspirations which even there burn unquenchably in humble hearts.

For a while the knowledge that a great new novelist had appeared in America was almost confined to the readers of that socialist weekly—no small audience, however, for the "Appeal army" of enthusiastic subscription-getters had drummed up half a million readers for that publication. The first public, therefore, of this astonishing novel, was of farmers resting in stooping feet beside the stove of winter evenings, and of discontented workingmen in a thousand cities and towns—an audience which, whether rural or urban, understood the truths of human suffering which it so vividly portrayed. That was its first success—its recognition and acclaim by a proletarian audience. Then came recognition by fellow-writers, who heard of this strange and powerful work being published in a socialist weekly, and sent for back numbers. David Graham Phillips wrote to the author: "I never expected to read a serial. I am reading "The Jungle" and I should be afraid to look myself in the face if how it affects me. It is a great work. I have a feeling that you yourself will be dazed some day by the excitement about it. It is impossible that such a power should not be felt. It is so simple, so true, so tragic, and so human. It is so eloquent, and yet so exact." And, of course, Jack London, his comrade in the socialist movement, did not fail to acclaim this achievement. "The Uncle Tom's Cabin of wage slavery," he called it; and with that legend on the jacket and on the advertisements it was brought before the general American public in book form in 1906. It was an immediate and enormous success. It became a "best-seller" in America, England and the British colonies. It was translated into seventeen languages, and the world became aware that Industrial America in its toil, its misery and its hope had found voice.

2.

But the literary sensation in America had already become secondary to the shock of its readers in learning of the conditions under which their meats were prepared in Packington, not as affecting the workers but as affecting their own health—for the story dealt incidentally with the use of condemned meat. The author later remarked that he had aimed at the public's heart and by accident had hit it in the stomach. His deepest concern had been with the fate of the workers, and he realized with bitterness that he had become a celebrity not because the public cared anything about the workers but because it did not want to eat diseased meat.

The public was more or less prepared for such an attack against the packers, on account of the "embalmed beef" scandal during the Spanish-American war. President Roosevelt, responding to a widespread popular demand, sent a commission to Chicago to make an investigation of conditions in Packingtown. This commission was assisted, at Mr. Sinclair's expense, by Ellis Reeves Bloor, who had been familiar with conditions there and had helped him in his seven weeks' investigation preliminary to the writing of the novel; and the researches of this commission appear to have confirmed the chief charges made in the book.

The young novelist accepted, as a socialist, the opportunity which this situation provided for agitation. But the packers, and large business interests in general, were aroused, and all their power and influence was used to keep this agitation from reaching the public, and to represent the young agitator as an irresponsible sensation-monger. He set up a publicity bureau, worked twenty hours a day, wrote articles, sent telegrams, and gave interviews to roomfuls of reporters; but so thoroughly had the newspapers been mobilized by the business interests as a medium of defense that the publicity he actually achieved for the workers' cause

DUTCH INDIES RISES.

Dutch Indian Capitalist: "Police! Soldiers! Help! Help!" —De Notenkraker, Amsterdam.

was slight; and on the other hand, his own reputation, in genteel literary and critical circles, and among the public at large, was seriously damaged. In the course of these efforts, President Roosevelt said to him: "Mr. Sinclair, I have been in public life longer than you, and I will give you this bit of advice; if you pay any attention to what the newspapers say about you, you will have an unhappy time." He might have taken this as a warning that his temperament was not suited to public life, for he could not get used to being lied about in the newspapers; but he persisted in his efforts, and he did have a very "unhappy time."

Nothing in particular was done about the workers' conditions. Even the president's meat-inspection law, as finally passed, had, in the opinion of those behind it, had all its teeth drawn first. Sinclair continued his attempt to agitate the question, but the public had been reassured, and the effort was futile. In The Brass Check, where the complete story of this period is told vividly, he says: "I look back upon this campaign, to which I gave three years of brain and soul sweat, and ask what I really accomplished." He had taken, he says, a few million dollars away from the Chicago packers, "giving them to the Junkers of East Prussia, and to the Paris bankers who were backing enterprises to pack meat in the Argentine." He had added a hundred thousand readers to the circulation of a popular magazine, which speedily repudiated its early muck-raking habits and became a defender of big business. And he has made a fortune for his publishers, who immediately became conservative and devoted their profits from "The Jungle" to promote a kind of writing hostile to everything in which he believed.

3.

"The Jungle" was in fact the climax of a literary movement in America which had aroused the fear and anger of large business interests. The great middle-class reform movement, marked in the political field by the careers of Bryan, Roosevelt and the earlier Wilson, had produced an audience sympathetic to the telling of unpleasant truths about American political and business conditions. In the magazine field this was called "muck-raking"; there were sensational revelations of the inside workings of Wall street by Tom Lawson, of municipal corruption by Lincoln Steffens, of Standard Oil history by Ida M. Tarbell, of Beef Trust finance by Ray Stannard Baker. In the fictional field there was a corresponding literature, written by such men as Robert Herrick, Frank Norris and David Graham Phillips. This literature had its social revolutionary fringe; Jack London was an avowed revolutionist, and such socialist critics of society as W. J. Ghent, John Spargo, Robert Hunter, Charles Edward Russell and William English Walling, had a wide hearing. A professor named Thorstein Veblen had written a devastating book called "The Theory of the Leisure Class," and phrases from it had passed into general intellectual currency. These conditions were sufficiently alarming, in a country where every year, in one great industry or another, there was a bitter struggle between employers and men, in which bullets were the decisive factor. And now a young man, by writing a book, had put a great industry on the defensive before the whole public. It was necessary to tighten the grip of business upon the intellectual world. The newspapers were already well in hand; but there was a group of free magazines which were making money out of "muck-raking"—the very center of the intellectual rebellion. Big business struck at this group of free magazines, effectively, through the medium of advertising. The magazine policies were changed. Writers were called off from investigations of industrial conditions. An immense campaign of optimism was begun, and a cheerful outlook upon American Industrial conditions was preached and made synonymous with patriotism. The writers for the most part changed with the times, and adapted their views to the new editorial demand; the others were silenced or discouraged. A few prominent radical journalists, unable to tell the truth any longer in the magazines, bought one of their own; but they, too, presently succumbed to the spirit of the times. Sinclair quotes, in "The Brass Check," the titles of some representative articles from a recent issue of that once-daring magazine: "How We Decide When To Raise a Man's Salary," "The Comic Side of Trouble," "Interesting People: A Wonderful Young Private Secretary," "From Prize-Fighter To Parson."

The public, deprived of the intellectual stimulant of unpleasant truth before it had quite got used to it, was easily trained in more cheerful tastes. Those writers who sought to revive the art of muck-raking found themselves with an indifferent audience. "People aren't interested in that sort of thing any more." While as for fiction, the old genteel tradition reasserted itself, the standard of non-controversiality became identical with the standard of decency, and any author who dared to violate this standard ran the risk of finding himself removed in critical esteem beyond the pale of literary respectability.

The measure of the wrath of the masters of America and the docility of its intellectual class during this period may be taken from the Gorky incident, which happened in the spring of 1906, coincident with the Jungle agitation. The great Russian novellist, Maxim Gorky, had come to America to raise funds for the cause of Russian freedom—a cause long since made popular among even the respectable American intelligentsia by the writings of the American journalist, George Kennan. A great welcome was prepared for him. But it happened that two radical union leaders, Moyer and Haywood, were on trial for their lives in a western state in the course of an industrial war between the miners and the coal barons. Their cause had been espoused by the socialists, who now asked Gorky to sign a telegram of sympathy to Moyer and Haywood. He did so. A White House reception to Gorky was immediately canceled. And then

(Continued on page 7)

At A Traitor's Grave

By FRED HARRIS

IT was, while traveling by train from Munich to Wards Heidelberg, that I met him. He was a big, stout man of about 40 years, humorous and jovial, smoking one cigar after another; as typical a German as ever I would find. His official position was that of a town clerk in a small Westphalian hamlet. He was now on his vacation, enjoying every moment and place.

"So you are also going to Heidelberg," he said, bothering toward me; "well, you'll have to come with me to the cemetery, to visit the grave of Ebert."

I replied, that I hoped to find more interesting places than a graveyard, but I soon realized that my companion was in earnest, and that his piety was genuine.

"I don't know," he reflected, "what you people in America thought of Ebert, but here in Germany you will hardly find a single one who has not a good word for his memory."

This, I already had found to be the truth, whenever I spoke to big business men, who, though violent in their denunciation against the socialists, had yet a word of praise for the dead president.

The reason for this is obvious, and shows the true position of the social democratic party of Germany. Ebert, together with his political henchmen, broke the revolution of 1918, and in doing so, restored order, and perpetuated capitalism, private property and wage slavery. That this yesterday's Only man' ignoful agency to the Germany economic system, was responsible for the terrible inflation period, (which is even today remembered with horror by the Germans than the 4 year's war) and, as a consequence of this virtual bankruptcy, imposed upon the country the Dawes Plan, which actually restored Germany to an inter-allied colony, all these facts are of little concern. The truth is that Ebert proved himself a loyal servant of capitalism, and strangled the workers' revolution.

Heidelberg was the birthplace of Ebert, and Heidelberg the political capital of Germany; and Heidelberg it was, that claimed his dead body, to place it in its graveyard; possibly the most beautifully laid out cemetery which I had yet seen.

It may, however, be doubted, whether Heidelberg's claim for the dead man's body was motivated solely by piety, and if there were not more ulterior motives for this. For it can not be denied, not even by a native of that fair city, that the dead president's grave is stimulating the tourist trade, and if not always, the train, which is carrying the visitor to the famous city on the Neckar, is over-crowded, so that many have to stand up while en route, then it becomes a matter of speculation, whether the visitation of Ebert's earthly remnant was not a good piece of strategy for Heidelberg's virtuous citizens. To be sure, Heidelberg's cemetery is renowned as being feudal and fashionable, and from the point of a real estate man such advantages would be paid for in hard cash; yet on the whole Ebert's body was good, and many a piece of money is made by showing the visitor the place where "the first German president is resting."

On the next morning after my arrival in Heidelberg, my hobbit friend from Westphalia tracked me by my shoes, told me that he was now going "up there," and beckoned me to follow. After passing through some of the most antiquated streets and viewing some very picturesque scenes, we arrived at our destination.

He it said here that, if the promise of "pie in the sky" is somewhat elusive and cannot be definitely proven, the gratitude of the capitalist, in rewarding his deceased friends, is nevertheless tangible. As proof of this, I wish to state, that, if the choice for his grave had been left to the living Ebert, he could not have selected a more beautiful spot than the one which was so generously given to him by his capitalistic friends.

Laying at the top of a hillside, and overlooking the magnificent Neckar valley, amid beautiful flowers and shady trees, in a peaceful quietness, having for his company feudal lords and dukes, Ebert's grave will overawe any follower of hero-worship. The immense size of the solid block of marble (about 200 cubic feet) will indicate to any one, without being told, that some renowned hero, king, prince or president, has been laid to rest here. A very appropriate inscription, with gold letters, reads: "Das Wohl meines Volkes war mein Ziel." (The welfare of my people was my aim). This in spite of the fact that Ebert was as vacillating as a Calvin Coolidge.

THE CALL

By ADOLF WOLFF

Hey! you poets,
Come down here, I say!
Mt. Parnassus's no place
For poets of today.
It's time you clawled out
Of your ivory towers.
Time you stopped gathering
Moonbeams and flowers.

Oh come down to earth!
And mix with the mob.
There's waiting for you
A he-poet's job.
There's gold in the ore
Of every day life.
The gold of true song
In labor's keen strife.

And please leave behind
Your old golden lyre.
A much newer instrument
You will require.
A bugle, a trumpet,
Whose clear blast will call
The workers to rally
Till all Bastilles fall.

He is no true poet
Whose soul is not thrilled
By the war of the classes;
Whose heart is not filled
With visions of triumph,
Of right over wrong,
Who doesn't make this subject
The stuff of his song.

I gazed at the artificial presumptuousness of the whole arrangement, and, in retrospect, reviewed the political career of Ebert and its effect on the country. His very rise to a world figure is definitely connected with the revolution of 1918, and its betrayal; the massacre and persecution of thousands of Spartacists and Communists, the assassination of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg; the reign of terror of Noske, Ebert's chief of police; the Weimar constitution and its compromise with capitalism. The result of this betrayal of labor is the present misery of Germany. It is an outstanding specter to anyone who visits that country.

While the former kaiser lives in luxury and splendor, from two to three millions of German workers are unemployed. One and a half million of them receive a dole of MK. 1.72 a day, (42c) while the other million of workers can not qualify to meet the necessary conditions upon which relief is paid, thus they are getting no support at all. Those that are working, like the textile workers in Chemnitz, earn a pittance of 50 pfennig an hour, (about 12c). Due to such starvation wages, and the inability to get work, the increasing number of suicides is alarming.

The weakness of the political regime of Ebert and the social democrats gave rause to innumerable political and military intrigues, especially in the south German states, where the republic has been reduced to impotency. So, for instance, was I told by a Bavarian, in Munich, that the official status of his country is that of a "royal republic." He was also proud of the fact, that the king had not deserted yet, and "always comes to the city when some festival or royal demonstration requires the presence of a king." Likewise, Munich boasts yet of royal institutions, the various university departments, art galleries, castles and clubs still bear the prefix of "Royal." In Berlin, political intrigues were responsible for the distribution of property expropriation measure, which was aimed at the former rulers, the majority of the social democrats voting for a onerous compromise.

Such political oscillation could not result in anything but discredit for Ebert and his party, and ended in the election of a monarchial field marshal to the presidency.

While such thoughts were passing in my mind, I viewed the comedy which was being staged at the grave of the man most responsible for such conditions. Even fate had its little joke, for it so happens that in the rear of the grave, some "christian dignitary" found his resting place. In reverence to his "highness" an enormous statute of the "mother of god" some 15 feet in height, with outspread arms and wings was stationed there, no doubt, to protect the dead man's soul. Her profile is facing towards Ebert's grave. Thus he, who, though a yellow socialist, was at least an atheist, is now in the immediate neighborhood of the most orthodox symbol of the christian church.

The farce continued. A group of some lad people, a "Gesangsverein" from some other town, has now arrived, and is forming a circle around the grave. Absolute silence. The conductor gives his directions, and then the singing starts. Hymns in honor of the dead hero. Everybody stands motionless, hat in hand, in pious reverence.

The show is nearing its end. The singing has stopped. As a final act, the [illegible] patriots march around the grave, no doubt saying the prayer of capitalism, which is R. I. P. (Rest in peace, for the dead ones rent, interest, profit, to the living

Aimee the Agent

By CYRIL FITZREYNOLDS

AS an agent of the meek and lowly Nazerene Aimee McPherson is a doubtful success. But as the impresario of a religious circus she has King Ben of the House of David tearing his chin foliage.

Aimee uses Jesus as a bear-hunter uses a baited trap. While the sinners or the suckers are getting tickled by the evangelist's gentle trap Aimee applies pressure to their funny bones as her nimble fingers go through their pockets.

Jesus died on a cross between two thieves, a poor man. Yet more thieves have grown fat under his auspices than there are hairs on a mountain goat's hide.

Some of these thieves are organized into trusts, like the catholics, the methodists and the anglicans. Others are independents, like "Billy" Sunday, King Ben and Aimee. They fight the trusts to bring in the spiritually ill, just as the health quacks attack the "medical trust" to attract the physically crippled whose mental garrets are devoid of intellectual furniture.

The catholic church peddles indulgences, enough opinions from the "sacred cross" to stock a lumberyard, saintly shinbones and occasionally vials of the "blood of the lamb." But they do this with pomp and show. The customer gets something for his money.

"Billy" Sunday hired his own troupe, his elsewires and most of his penitents. Only the audience was unhired. They paid the bills. "Billy" threw a good fit, swatted the devil, drank jug-fulls of water and generally gave a fair return for the admission fee. "Billy" was male and made his main appeal to the female. Aimee is female and her drive is on, and for the male, body, soul and wallet.

To encourage masculine hopes Aimee had herself kidnaped, suspected of having an affair with a radio-operator and became a national figure. She employed an army of "skinners" to collect from those who did not care who fought the devil or how he was fought. She won and so did the devil. He is immortal and should worry. He has a steady job and if he does not get enough publicity to feed his ego he must be an opera star.

Aimee was indicted by a grand jury in Los Angeles for doing something or other to the majesty of the state. She attributed the grand jury's action to the devil and got so much money out of the population on the strength of the charge that the real estate operators used their influence to have the charges quashed lest all the dough available for the purchase of earthquakes might be diverted into Aimee's pockets.

Having skimmed the cream of Los Angeles Aimee wended her way east wrapped in a fur coat that would make the empress of Japan look like a recruiting agent for the Volunteers of America. She harangued thousands of people in wicked Chicago and three hundred of these became converts to the "Four Square Gospel" very likely for a consideration of one square meal. The rest of the audience saw Aimee and perhaps thought she was good. We revolted that Chicago gave a handsome reception to Coue whose formula for all disease was: "Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better." Coue must have forgotten his own formula. He was better until he got worse and died.

Those who patronize Aimee's show to get an eye-full could spend their money for a less worthy purpose. But those who contribute with the expectation that Jesus will get a percentage of it might as well invest it in Florida real estate.

Construction Gang

Short squat men standing in ditches
Peeping out at silk-stockinged stenographers
Hurrying from work.
Work, Ha!
Here's work!
Eight long hours in a filthy stinking hole
Eight long hours of bend, dig, pitch,
Bend, dig, pitch
Till your body aches
And your tired brain burns in your head
Like a shot of home made booze
And you laugh
Laugh a long rebellious laugh
At silk stockinged stenographers
Hurrying from work

MAX [illegible]

Cantonese Correspondence

By Y. F. NAI

The Nationalist government, despite the fact that none of its ministries yet has its entire personnel here from Canton, is now fairly established in Wuhan, as the entire area of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang is to be renamed. The work of all ministries is going forward as smoothly as it was at the southern capital.

For a variety of reasons, principally those of proximity to business, banks and the foreign representatives, the foreign affairs, and finance, and communications ministries have established their quarters in Hankow. Mr. Hsu Chien, minister of justice, has taken quarters in Wuchang, but also has offices here. The Political Council is holding regular sessions, three times weekly, sometimes in Wuchang, sometimes in Hankow. Some of the party organs will have quarters in Wuchang, others here.

For these reasons a re-organization of the municipal governments of the three cities is to be made, under one central control and with one mayor, the greater city to be known as Wuhan. This will be the Nationalist capital. Details have not yet been worked out.

Financial Stabilization.

The first notable action by the Nationalist government, after setting up in Hankow, from the domestic point of view, was the launching of a far-reaching plan for the financial stabilization of Hupeh Province. The plan, which includes proposals for two bond issues, one to redeem the reckless and unsecured bond issues of former so-called "governments," and another to take up even more reckless currency issues of former regimes, has already been approved by the Political Council.

Mr. T. V. Soong, the Minister of Finance, is preparing to float both issues within the course of a few weeks. He has already won the assurance of the financial circles here that they will be favorably received. In foreign circles here, Mr. Soong's plans have won high commendation, on two counts: One, because they are looked upon as designed to go far toward restoring confidence in the province; and, two, because they are looked upon as an indication of the general financial policy of the Nationalist government vis-a-vis financial obligations inherited by that government in new territory taken under control.

Important Regulations.

On the side of the government's relations with the powers, while there has been no definite action of any far-reaching kind, yet the pourparlers between Mr. Eugene Chen, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the representatives of Great Britain, the United States and Japan are considered to be fraught with great potentialities and we can look toward a profound change in the relations of the powers with China.

These conversations were started immediately upon the arrival of Mr. Chen in Hankow. Within an hour of his arrival, he received the first call from Mr. Mike Lampson, the new minister to China from Great Britain. Much significance seems to be attached to Mr. Lampson's coming to Hankow before even going to Peking, to which, theoretically, he is accredited. Mr. Chen and Mr. Lampson conferred almost daily for over a week, after which Mr. Lampson went to Peking for the holidays. The conversations are expected to be resumed early in the new year.

For the United States, Mr. Ferdinand Lathrop Mayer, counsellor of the legation at Peking, came to Hankow to meet the Nationalist government's foreign minister. Mr. Sadao Saburi, chief of the treaties bureau of the Japanese foreign office, was here for the Japan government. His conversations with the Nationalist foreign office also stretched over many days.

Workers Win Wage Increases.

Despite sensational reports to the contrary, the labor situation in the Wuhan area is not acute. There have been strikes and threats of strikes, and a few strikes are going on at the present writing. Nothing on a big scale, however, is contemplated, so far as can be judged by the temper displayed by both sides. There has been every indication on the part of employers of a realization that a sharp rise in wages is justified. This has already been done in several trades, notably in the printing trades and in the case of the carrying coolies. Workers in some of the Chinese shops have struck for more pay and got it.

The new British declaration of policy submitted to the diplomats at Peking last week and made public on Christmas Day, which proposes, in effect, the immediate enforcement of the Washington customs surtaxes, their collection through the Customs Administration, and their allocation to the Chinese authorities in power at the places of collection, is not likely to receive the endorsement of the Nationalist government, it is believed here.

No Nationalist official will give out any indication of the government's attitude toward the proposal. It is not in any event officially before the government. It has not been submitted to the government for either ratification or rejection.

It is true, of course, that the Nationalist leaders are inclined to be pleased with the declaration's observation that Peking authority has reached the vanishing point and that, on the other hand, a strong government has arisen out of the Nationalist movement from Canton. That, observers here believe, is a recognition by the British authorities in thing that the Nationalist government, now making its capital at Wuhan, represents more of real Chinese authority than the so-called government in the old northern capital; that, in fact, the Nationalists have a greater right to be considered the "Government of China" than does the old mandarinate in Peking.

While the Nationalist government would get considerable revenue under the proposed British plan, its enemies would get still more additional revenue. The Nationalists have long taken the stand that it is unjust that customs revenues should be collected in Nationalist territory and given to their enemies. This objection, it is assumed by observers here, would not be overcome by the mere fact of this additional income accruing to the Nationalists by the collection of these surtaxes at customs points under their control. While the Nationalists would get some of the revenue, so would their enemies, and the latter would get the larger share.

The fact remains, of course, that the Nationalist government is at the present moment (in Canton) obtaining the equivalent of the proposed surtaxes by means of its production and consumption taxes. These are to be enforced at Hankow within a few weeks. They have been in effect at Canton and Swatow for several weeks. Theoretically, it has been pointed out by the Nationalists, these taxes should not, of necessity, be levied at points of entry for goods. They should be levied at the point of consumption. But the value of goods is usually lower at the actual point of entry than at interior points, where it is finally used, so traders really benefit by its collection at entry points.

We Accept Your Challenge

By ADOLF WOLFF

Brother Green we've heard your yelp,
Choused by your jackal choir.
We're not going to cry for help
Your barking does no fear inspire.

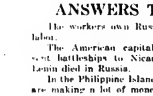
Do your damnedest brother Green
Rage like yours affords us joy,
We've heard it said and we have seen
The Gods make mad whom they'd destroy

Communists are here to stay!
Those whose yellow goat we get,
May yelp and howl and bark and bray,
Their doom as union lords is set.

You're the eunuchs who would train
The workers to be docile slaves,
Emasculate them and thus gain
Rewards that masters give to knaves.

We're the vanguard that must lead
The workers to the battlefield,
To fight the powers of vested greed,
Till beaten to the dust, they yield.

Your's is the cause of the master class
To whom the workers you betray.
Our's the cause of the toiling mass
For them, with them we'll win the day.



Young Comrade Section

HELLO EVERYBODY

The Pioneer Editorial Committee in New York City greets all the readers of the "Tiny Worker" and the "Young Comrade Section." We want to get acquainted with all of you as we are going to take charge of the "Young Comrade Section," which is going to take the place of the "Tiny Worker" and the previous "Young Comrade Section." So come on you Grand Rapids Pioneers and other Pioneers and workers' children, send in your articles, poems and stories to be printed in our section.

PIONEER EDITORIAL COMMITTEE.

What Does This Picture Mean?

ANSWERS TO PUZZLES

The workers own Russia. Russia has NO child labor.

The American capitalist government has just sent battleships to Nicaragua. Three years ago Lenin died in Russia.

In the Philippine Islands the American capitalists are making a lot of money out of rubber.

The answer to the Picture Puzzle is: Albert Weisbord [illegible] strikes in Passaic.

M. Nodell, Chicago, Ill.
J. Wendal, Oakland, Cal.
Nick Vartan[illegible], [illegible] Pa.

LINCOLN AND THE WORKERS

February 12th is Lincoln's birthday. In the Northern states that day is celebrated, but in the Southern states it is not, and there is a reason for it. The bosses and plantation owners of the South hate Abraham Lincoln because it was Lincoln who took away their slaves from them, and set them free.

Although Abraham Lincoln freed the Negroes, who are a part of the working class, he is not our hero. But, he is the hero of the merchants and bosses of the Northern states. The Civil War was not really a workers' war for freedom, but a war between the bosses of the North who had no slaves and the plantation owners of the South who needed slaves. In the election for president, Abraham Lincoln, who stood for the Northern bosses, won. The Southern bosses then decided to withdraw from the union and to form their own government. Lincoln said "no" and so had the Civil War, in which thousands of workers of the North and the South were killed and wounded.

During the war President Lincoln freed the slaves not because he pitied them but in order to weaken the South. That is why Abraham Lincoln is not really our hero like Comrades Lenin, Karl Marx, Liebknecht, Luxemburg, Frank Little, Debs, and many others who fought and died for the working class. But although he is not our hero, he was a fighter for freedom in his day and helped the Negroes, a part of the working class, to get their freedom.

For this we remember him and follow his example in fighting for freedom, not for a part of the working class, but for the whole working class.

FUNNY

What fun I'd get from lives we lead
If I were to become president some day?
A great deal, of course.

THIS WEEK'S PUZZLE

No. 1.

There is a new kind of puzzle. It spells the name of a famous leader of the working class in five letters. Read the poem and see if you can guess his name.

My first letter is in LITTLE, but not in BIG
My second is in EACH, but not in PIG.
My third is in NEAR, but not in FAR.
My fourth is in PIONEERS, but not in STAR.
My fifth is in CHILDREN, but not in MESS.
My whole is a name for you to guess.

• • •

Send all letters to Pioneer Editorial Committee, c/o Young Comrade Section, 23 First Street, N. Y. C., stating your name, age, address and number of puzzle.

BIG NOTE.

The Pioneer Editorial Committee is making arrangements to run a big concert in New York City, for the readers of the Children's page who can come. Watch for the date and place next week.

YOUNG COMRADE CORNER

GOING TO SUBSCRIBE.

Dear Comrades: My father is not working at present and we do not know when he will be working. I asked him if I could subscribe to the Young Comrade. He told me if he would get a job I could [illegible] get a job.

Martin Batiuk.

Disintegration in Belgian S. P.

By BERTRAM D. WOLFE

THE powerful Belgian Socialist Party, which for its size can boast as large a collection of cabinet ministers as any Socialist Party in the world, is beginning to crack as its continued support of capitalist governments makes it more and more unpopular with the Belgian working class. Its leader, Emile Vandervelde, the revisionist, who long before the war had "discovered" that Marxism was "out of date" and who during the war and post-war period was his majesty's minister in various cabinets and even prime minister for a time, is at present part of a coalition government in which the capitalist parties have a majority of the ministers.

The Belgian masses, who for a long time followed Vandervelde blindly as a result of his promise that the working class of Belgium would get some definite advantages out of his participation in various cabinets, find their lot slowly worsening instead of getting better. Consequently, they are beginning to desert the Socialist Party and, at the same time, an opposition, or left wing movement, is growing up within that organization. The man who has succeeded in putting himself at the head of the opposition for the moment is De Brouckere, (an old time "orthodox Marxist" of the Kautsky-Hilferding school), who has gone so far as to threaten to prevent the opposition movement from going too far to the left and his real attitude is revealed by the fact that he has been and still continues to be a delegate from Belgium to the League of Nations, and thus participates in the super-government of imperialism. Nevertheless, he sounded the warning at the special congress of the Belgian Labor Party in April recently to put a limit to that further participation in the coalition government would result in the disintegration of the party. He declared that the party and the parliament, in which its deputies make up the largest single bloc, had capitulated before the bankers who are the real masters of Belgium. He felt that all the Socialist Parties of Europe were standing at the parting of the ways; that they could not keep on in cooperation with capitalist governments and coalition cabinets, they would be completely swallowed up in the capitalist system and will have ceased to understand the interests of labor and its aims of any emancipation. "I have confidence in the triumph of Socialism," he ended, "and if you make a mistake the torch will fall from your hands and others will raise it again."

But Vandervelde, the seasoned capitalist cabinet minister and real leader of the party, is not easily to be frightened by such warnings. Capitalism still requires his support to carry through the stabilization of the Belgian franc and the rationalization of Belgian industry at the expense of the Belgian working class. He boasted of the achievements of himself and his party in helping capitalism to survive the storm which it had raised among the masses through its policy of plunging the world into war. He boasted of the stabilization of the Belgian franc. He boasted that the participation of himself and his party had aided in the stabilization of capitalism, which in simpler English means that he had made capitalism more secure. He declared that he was not only afraid of a government more to the right of the present one, but afraid of a government more to the left! Either of these would endanger stabilization." He was supported by the Mussolini—"The attempted assassination is due at 12:50 prompt. What shall I wear for it?"

—Simplicissimus, Munich

yellow trade union leaders and the reformers locally and in the executive to draft a legislative program on the basis of further participation in the capitalist government by socialist ministers this program to go to a referendum.

In the meanwhile, the opposition within the Belgian Labor Party grows and the support of the Communist Party by the working masses grows also. The Belgian Communist Party, which since its inception has been very small, and, thanks to the continued belief of the masses in the leadership of Vandervelde and the Belgian Labor Party, was till recently comparatively without great mass influence, has been growing very rapidly. The repeated failure of the socialists in the Vandervelde coalition government to fight for the most elementary interests of the masses, the complete capitulation of the Distilled Vandervelde coalition cabinet before the attacks of high finance, the formation of a banker's government with the support and participation of the social-democratic leaders, the abandonment of a proposed capital levy on the rich and the substitute of a 50 per cent increase in the taxes hitting the masses, the recognition of the American debt, the handing over of the government-owned railroads to a private company such is the kind of socialism that the Vandervelde coalition policy has given to the Belgian workers.

In October 1926, the Communists participated for the first time in municipal elections (municipal elections are held in Belgium every six years). The party, which is numerically and financially weak, was able to put forth candidates in only 63 municipalities, which municipalities embrace only 28 per cent of the total electorate. The party has only about a thousand members, but it got 50,000 votes and succeeded in electing 26 candidates. In the big industrial cities, the Communists vote raised between 2% and 30 per cent of the social-democratic vote, running in one case as high as 41 per cent. This represents a tremendous advance for the Communists. The Socialist Party during the period in which it has acted as the savior of capitalism has generated so far that it is even incapable of making the about-face that de Brouckere proposes in order to save some shreds of its reputation. The Belgian Labor Party, one of the oldest and best organized reformist parties in Europe is decaying. The future belongs to the Communist Party of Belgium.

The Aftermath of "The Jungle"

(Continued from page 1)

the American papers, at the instance of the Czarist embassy, began to denounce Gorky, on the pretext that he had "insulted" the American people by living with him as his wife a woman to whom he was not married. It was known to those who made the charge that Russian revolutionists married without the churchly processes which alone made "legal" in Russia, and that Madame Andreyeva had left him according to the revolutionary code; but it was known that all along, and had not made any of the fuss. Nor did they succeed upon him the insult of a hypocritical moralistic journalism. He was hounded out of New York hotels, denounced in the public and newspaper in the country; his misfortunes multiplied. And the American men of letters who had been proud to be invited to dine with this Russian giant, were afraid to brave that storm; and all, the respectable writers turned tail and fled, not daring to call their souls their own—a black day in the calendar of American letters. Great reputations fell that day, Mark Twain's among them, in the minds of boys and girls, now grown up, who saw that backbiting and cowardly action with the clear eyes of youth and were ashamed for their country. If American literature is now less timid than it was, that young indignation may have something to do with it. But those boys and girls did not know why America and American men of letters had suddenly become so prudish: they did not know that Maxim Gorky's influence had been destroyed by that sudden journalistic whirlwind, not because of the lack of churchly blessings upon his union with Madame Andreyeva, but because he had publicly intended to use an American economic struggle for the undesirable side. He, and the writers of America, must be taught a lesson, and made to realize who was running this country and what happened to anybody who tried to interfere with them. [The stage of Upton Sinclair's literary career, immediately ensuing upon his immense celebrity as author of The Jungle, falls within this period when the "muck-rake" was being outlawed and editors and writers taught a lesson by those in control of American business. He was one of the few who dared to face this Thermidorian reaction, and he was chief among those to suffer from it. It is his temerity which explains the fact that his reputation in America as a novelist fell during that period to zero, or lower. He missed, by remaining a "muck-raker," his chance of regaining literary respectability. His next novel, The Metropolis, published in 1907, was an attack on New York society; and The Moneychangers, published in 1908, was an exposé of Wall Street. Nor is this explanation to be discounted by the fact that The Metropolis and The Moneychangers were not very good novels.

The point is worth laboring. Novels far inferior to these two would, in that period, have maintained Upton Sinclair in American critical esteem, if they had been of a different tendency; not to realize that is to be ignorant of American criticism and its fashions. It was the fashion to sneer at Upton Sinclair, and to accept the yellow-journal pictures of him, in which he was represented as a mere sensation-monger and a fool to boot.

George Brandes, generally accounted the world's greatest modern critic, was astonished at this American neglect of one of its greatest writers; on visiting this country in 1914, he took pains to say to the reporters who met him at the steamer that there were three American novelists whom he found worth reading, one of these being Upton Sinclair. The statement, as it generally appeared in the press, referred only to Frank Norris and Jack London, omitting Upton Sinclair's name altogether. Doubtless it was naively regarded as incredible that anyone should really take this disreputable "muck-raker" seriously. . . . But it was not until a new rebellious literature and criticism emerged after the war, under the leadership of Sinclair Lewis and H. L. Mencken, that Upton Sinclair was again mentioned among American writers by any reputable native critic, who was not a Socialist.

HELP WANTED

THE New Magazine is as hungry for short stories of approximately twelve hundred words, as an evangelist is for a wealthy sinner. The proletarian woods are full of writers who can draw a word picture of things that happen around them. Poetry is welcome though, to paraphrase a heavenly invitation, many may come but not all will be chosen. Cartoonists are the salt of the earth, without them our press would look like a file of the Weekly People. In addition to the decorative value of a cartoon there is more propaganda condensed in a good drawing than in several hundred phrases.

Since The New Magazine is not in a position to pay, for anything except the printing of it, and since we are so under-staffed that our week is one long day, we urge our contributors who may not receive even a letter of thanks for their pains that the victim who is charged with the responsibility of getting out The New Magazine has so much other work to do on The DAILY WORKER that picking letters out of a typewriter, after writing heads, editorials and trying to find out what is happening in half a dozen world capitals is cruel and unusual punishment. Letters written in such a physical condition might drive the recipient to reading the New York (Porno) Graphic.

But like the three wise men of the east who saw the star in the west who lead them to the stable in Bethlehem, we also see a star in the west, though we have been waiting for it to come our way so long that we now see two stars instead of one. When this star eventually arrives the staff will be augmented by one individual and the clouds of gloom that have been hanging over three over-worked slaves will be dispelled somewhat.

Poets whose compositions have gone into the waste basket by mistake, writers whose names have been omitted for the same reason and cartoonists whose drawings have been vivisected to suit a make-up man's fancy, are appealed to in humbleness of spirit to stop grinding their teeth in righteous wrath and to begin turning out masterpieces for The New Magazine.

Cotton Slaves in the South

By NORMAN SILBER

THE Department of Agriculture publishes a list of food values. From that list you will find that the cheapest food on which life may be sustained is corn meal and bacon. That is exactly what the cotton slave in the south eats, home grown corn, ground in a small, filthy neighborhood mill and the cheapest imaginable bacon, fat back, hog's meat or belly. This constitutes his food day in and day out, summer and winter, week days, Sundays and Christmas.

The U. S. Census Bureau discloses the fact that over fifty per cent of the farmers haven't a cow. They sometimes raise chickens on a farm, but that delicacy is for sale and not to be eaten. Likewise eggs are never eaten on the majority of farms. The only variety the farmers have from the universal diet of fat bacon and corn bread is the occasional addition of collard leaves, field beans or sweet potatoes.

The art of cooking did not progress to any extent on the southern farms. The only cooking utensil known is the frying pan. Corn bread is merely a dough made of corn meal, water and lard warmed in a fry pan. The center of the corn bread is raw. The fat bacon is not cut into strips but is merely warmed in a fry pan. When field peas or collard leaves are procurable and when there is fat to be warmed in a fry pan together with the bacon. Sweet-potatoes are baked on the hearth of an open fireplace.

What neither the Department of Agriculture nor the Census Bureau publish, however, is the low wage scale which prevails in the cotton belt. Labor is hired by the year and a whole family is hired at the time. The usual rate for a family is $200 a year. Since this sum is paid in the form of credit extended in a commissary or general store, and since these lien stores are well noted for their long profits, the cash equivalent would be nearer $200. This sum must be sufficient for food, clothes, furniture, medicine and everything except living quarters, which is furnished by the owner.

The house is a dilapidated shack containing two rooms. In some localities tenant houses are built with mud chimneys. These chimneys are forever falling in and setting the houses on fire, but it is very easy to extinguish a fire when it starts and it only takes a day to repair a fallen mud chimney.

Windows and doors are hand-made. The floor is made of rough boards with large cracks between them. The walls are also made of rough boards and also contain cracks through which the wind enters.

There is no ceiling and the roof is made of shingles through which the stars shine. When it rains, the shingles swell rapidly and the rain enters only through the larger cracks. No pretense of paint or whitewash is in evidence and there is nothing by way of decoration or ornament except that the walls are covered with old calendars, circus posters and other picture advertisements. The family portraits hang on the walls, of course.

No attempt is made to keep the house or yard tidy. Everything wallows in filth. Very often the outhouse is adjacent to the well and since the well is deeper it takes only a few seconds for the filthy seepage to reach the drinking water. Malaria fever is the pet complaint and a farmer spends one-third of his life in bed. Doctors are scarce and money with which to pay them still more so. Faith is joined to one of the numerous brands of patent medicines with which the country abounds.

The social life of these farmers is zero. They never go to church. They do not take any active part in politics and show no interest in any events. Their main topics of conversation are hunting, fishing, circulated rumors concerning shootings scrapes and hard times. Their deplorable plight they lay at the door of progress which brings the automobile, the good roads, and a disbelief in god.

I am afraid that the peasantry in the south will be harder to organize than were the peasants of Russia. Certainly they are just as illiterate and their physical courage is not very substantial. Even the Ku Klux Klan found it hard to reach them with their propaganda, because they are tired and disinterested—in everything.

WAR!

We must have war. Down with the sex-smashers!
Let hatred wake, and murder walk the land.
The Moscow dogs must go! Say what you please,
Our standard Oil will safeguard with the brand.

Up with the flags and let the boy-scouts drill;
Call out the citizens and beat the drum;
Put Old Abe's picture on the screen, and thrill
The patriotic hearts of all the dumb.

On to Berlin! Excuse me, Mexico!
Wipe out the yeller heathen—cursed race!
Conscript the husky morons—let us go.
You bet we'll keep "Ma Kellogg" in his place.

Slay, tar and feather lynch and jail the reds,
Burn, beat, and murder all the pacifists,
Behind bars with the workers, break their heads,
We'll make a dozen fortunes out of this!

Cooperate the willing heroes to the fray.
(We ought to lose a million dubs or more),
Down with the Tools of Moscow! Candy? Say,
I'm to the front! we must—we must have war!

HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

Horrors of Prison Life in Poland

Report of the I. C. W. P. A. Delegation to Poland to investigate Into the Conditions of the Political Prisoners.

ON the initiative of the International Class War Prisoners Aid (British section of the International Red Aid) a delegation of British Members of Parliament visited Poland in the end of November, 1926, in order to investigate into the conditions of the political prisoners. The delegation consisted of J. Beckett, M. P., and Ly Shepherd, M. P.; Mrs. Horrabin was secretary to the delegation. It reported to a meeting of pressmen on Friday, December 17th, 1926.

Mr. J. Beckett, Mr. P.: Ladies and gentlemen, whilst in Poland, we have been trying to find out the truth of the various allegations of political persecution there. We arrived back last Wednesday morning and felt that it would be desirous to get some of the things we wanted to say, into press as soon as possible. We have not yet had time to prepare any detailed statement that could be circulated, but will just give, on behalf of the three of us, a short statement on the more important things we have to say about Poland, and then there can be questions which we shall be glad to answer in order to bring out anything that we might have missed.

Large Numbers Protested.

In 1922, conditions were so bad that a very large number of French writers, professors, doctors, and professional people generally, issued their protest to the Polish government about the conditions of the prisons and treatment of political prisoners. This protest caused a very great scandal, and as a result the Polish Parliament set up an Investigation Committee of representatives of various parties, and a radical deputy, named M. Thugutt, was the chairman. This committee was granted complete facilities for its work and carried on, for two years after which it presented its report. On the report being issued, it was found that all representated parties were very strongly unanimous against the conditions in the prisons.

The report is too lengthy to quote just now, but the report has been practically confirmed by various authorities, although sometimes the allegations against the Polish government are made in moderate language. This Committee of Investigation made 10 recommendations as to the methods that should be used to ensure the necessary safeguards being given to citizens against arrest and to the press against suppression, and to all against unfair treatment generally. When approached on the matter, the answer of the government was: "Yes, we know things were bad when that Committee reported, but they are quite all right now."

One of the first things we felt it would be useful to do, was to interview Mr. Thugutt and get his opinions. Mr. Thugutt is not influenced by any party. We saw him in the Polish Parliament Ghouse as the "Seym") on 10th December. He told us that conditions were little, if any, different from when the report was issued. Not one of the 10 recommendations has been carried out, and although it was hoped that the new government would have given a political amnesty and improved conditions, in his opinion there had been no improvement or reform of any kind.

International Figure.

These things were further born out by an open letter which was issued in September, 1926, by Madam Sempolovska, and addressed to Marshal Pilsudski. Madam Sempolovska is a well-known international figure in prison reform circles. She belongs to no party and is a sort of semi-official person, entrusted by the government with the task of carrying out the transfer of prisoners between Poland and Russia, and therefore she has certain limited facilities. She has worked among political prisoners for 31 years, and in her open letter she points out that she therefore considers that she has not only the right, but the duty to say publicly what she thinks on this question of the conditions of the prisoners which she considers are in a serious and sad state. She reminds Pilsudski of the service she rendered him when he was in Russian prisons years ago under the Czarist regime for being a rebel against Czardom. She gives some startling facts. We interviewed her both at the beginning and at the end of our visit. The facts we are going to give you are from our own personal observation, mostly confirmed by her, and largely also, by Mr. Thugutt.

Letters To Pilsudski.

Mrs. Horrabin: When the Czarist regime existed in Russia, Madam Sempolovska rendered aid to limited facilities. She has worked among political prisoners for 31 years, and in her open letter she points out that she therefore considers that she has not only the right, but the duty to say publicly what she thinks on this question of the conditions of the political prisoners. In this letter she stresses the need for a political amnesty.

THE CHURCH

Whether in Jerusalem two thousand years ago or in Mexico today, the Church has always been the enemy of progress, the foe of freedom, the strangler of truth. Now, as of old, its God drives Man out of Eden, lest, having eaten of the Fruit of the Tree of Knowledge, and also eat of the Fruit of the Tree of Life, "the light" of the Church is darkness and, wherever it has had the power, "How great has been the darkness thereof."—Covami.

— — —

The Church gets up at midnight when the Race in sleep is thralled,
And, ere the slumb'rers waken, it the way to life has walled;
Illuming facts are taken from accusing history's page,
And love's torch-bearers murdered by the priesthoods in their rage.

The Church fights never fairly, never on the open plain,
But tigerlike and stealthily, with gibbet, dirk and chain;
Up thru the gloom of ignorance, unseen, unheard, felt-shod,
It creeps upon its victim, and strikes "in the name of God."

The Church will swear allegiance unto any cause that lives,
Teach anything, preach anything, serve any cause that gives;
Will, for a price, robe right in sackcloth, wrong in silk array,
Will crown a Constantine and cheer a Calvin on his way.

The Church spreads like a spas over heart and soul and mind,
Grows powerful and fattens as the Race grows lean and blind;
Forever and forever it is siding with the kings,
Is at the throat of Labor and is breaking Freedom's wings.

The Church still strives to rule us now as in the yesteryear,
To keep the Race on knee before the wizened God of Fear;
The Priest still serves the Slafe Lord, and the Slave Lord serves the Priest,
And Truth is ever warring with the ever-hungry Beast.

Results of the Imperial Conference

By C. P. DUTT

THE British Empire is the huge territory seized and held by the tentacles of British capitalism stretched out over the whole surface of the globe. Over a quarter of the world, both in area and population, is within its grasp. A white population of a few million, a minute fraction of the whole, is attempting to monopolize for its exclusive benefit those vast stretches of country against the rest of the population of the world. The problems involved in the maintenance of this system have enormously augmented since the war. It was the object of the Imperial Conference to consider and settle these problems. For over a month, starting from October 20th, the white rulers of the empire were engaged in this task. What has been the outcome and what is its significance?

The general opinion, as expressed both in the imperialist and in the labor press of this country, has been that the main result of the conference consists in a further move towards independent status on the part of the white dominions. This view is radically wrong and indicates that even left wing labor representatives have fallen a victim to the clever camouflage by which British capitalism disguises its actions. The question of status of the dominions was not the central question of the conference, nor was the result of the conference in any way a recognition of their increasing independence.

A Secret Conference.

The first and foremost difficulty in eliminating the results of the conference lies in the secrecy and silence with which it surrounded itself. To judge by the manner in which the capitalist press and the Labor Party neglect to learn to have been discussed, and what was actually reported of its proceedings, and what was not reported. Most of the real work was done behind closed doors, and no report is given. The empire rulers are becoming increasingly more afraid either to confess their failures or to reveal what they are engaged upon. As an indication of this it is sufficient to notice that these years are the first, conference made public half of the Lord Curzon report on foreign relations, this year nothing of Baldwin's report has been published.

Inter-Imperial Relations.

It is true that the Conference, as far as is known, was exclusively concerned itself with, firstly, the constitutional questions of inter-imperial relations, and secondly, with greater significance but less publicity, with the problems of foreign relations.

The constitutional issues arising from the difficulties of interest talent between the white rulers of the states and of the dominions form the most important clause to empire unity. The economic questions of the dominions, the changes in the relative strengths of the chief imperialist powers resulting from the world war, and especially the relative decline in the strength of British imperialism, have led the white dominions to demand an increasing measure of freedom from central control. Both Mackenzie King, the Canadian Premier and General Hertzog, the South African Premier, the National Party Leader, had been returned to power by parties representing nationalist or separatist tendencies which had decisively defeated the conservative or loyalist parties in their countries.

The "Free" Dominions.

The report on international relations published in full, appears to show that Great Britain has made great concessions. It declares "every self-governing member of the empire is now the master of its destiny. In fact, if not always in form, it is subject to no compulsion whatever."

A great deal is made by the decision that henceforth the governor-general represents the crown and is "not the representative or agent of His Majesty's Government."

The press, no doubt, obediently responsive to hints from above, proclaimed with all its force that the king was now the "Empire's only link." All were united in this view from the capitalist "Economist," which hailed the realisation of "our long cherished ideal that the empire should depend on a state of mind and not on any set of formal institutions," to Lansbury's weekly, which declared that the dominions were now republics in all but name, and the governor-generals relegated to the position of errand boys.

The Power of the Purse.

The whole thing is a trick and represents a clever diplomatic victory for Great Britain. The Labor socialistic press of the United States has not failed to point out that Britain loses none of its power by creating the new empire status, while the Hearst press, the "Los Angeles Journal" crudely declares that the British Empire will still cling together while London holds the purse. In fact the domination of British capitalist power over the dominions has been strengthened and not weakened by the change. The crown is only the intangible and unattackable symbol of British capitalism. The governor-generals, as representatives of the crown, will receive all information, and have access to all secret documents. The part they will play will be the larger for being behind the scenes.

The use of the crown as a binding link over the dominions will no doubt be fully demonstrated in the next war. How far the representatives of British imperialism succeeded in actually tying the hands of the dominion leaders and committing them to support of Great Britain in the next war, it is not feasible to say, for the vital discussions on foreign relations took place under an impenetrable cloak of secrecy, but it is possible that the chief endeavors were devoted to entangling the dominions rather than to demanding promises and declarations in black and white. The "Crown" link provides an incomparable weapon for this purpose. When the war comes, full use will be made of the "Entente" trick, and every effort will be made to stampede the dominions by insisting that they have been bound in honor, and that the only alternative is to secede from the empire.

The dominions object to being compelled to support the struggle of British capitalism for power in Europe. Their representatives came prepared to raise all sorts of awkward questions about the Locarno Pact. Nevertheless, astute British diplomacy here also seems to have been victorious. Though the dominions are still may not sign the pact, they appear to have been argued out of their scruples against it. It may be that their attitude was determined by the knowledge that they were dependent on Britain for imperial defence, and naturally enough, therefore, with regard to foreign policy it was "frankly recognized that the major share of responsibility rests now and must for some time continue to rest" on the British government.

The Dominions and Defence.

Great Britain may have scored a victory as far as the question of supporting the Locarno policy goes. But on the much greater issue on which the endeavors of British imperialism have been bent, viz., the task of persuading the dominions to shoulder part of the burden of imperial defence, there has been no progress. Payment towards the cost of armaments is the material expression of imperial solidarity, and for this the dominion representatives refused to lift a finger, at least in public. They were ready enough to welcome the Singapore base, the growth of imperial air forces, etc., but they politely regretted that they were not in a position to undertake financial responsibility. The clearest illustration of the dominions' outlook on this matter is seen in the figures of their payments per head of population for the upkeep of the navy. While the home figure is 60s. per head, Great Britain £1 6s. 10d., Australia pays 13s. 2d. per head, New Zealand 8s., South Africa 1s. 9d., and Canada 13 cents. This gives a fairly true estimation of their relative values of the benefit of keeping within the British Empire.

Wall Street: Looks as if Nicaraguans want Diaz as president.

It is Australia and New Zealand that especially feel the need of protection. They are in the fighting ground of the next war. Their six million inhabitants are doing their best to exclude the teeming millions of Asia from invading the vast areas that they so sparsely occupy. The recent visit of the American fleet to Australia met with an enthusiastic reception, much to the disgust of the British Navy League. The U. S. A. as much as hinted that Australia might reckon on her as a protector. It will be remembered, also, that, when the Labor government declared against going ahead with the Singapore base, Australian politicians hitherto very broadly that in that case they would have to look elsewhere for protection. The need of the empire being so much greater than that of the other dominions, and their financial tie being so strong (the Australian public debt, practically all held in England, is over £1,000 millions for a population less than that of London), It is not surprising that at the Imperial Conference it was always Bruce, the Australian Premier, that was put forward to defend British policy.

Great Britain and Empire Trade.

Yet even Bruce could not help raising the question of the economic stability of Great Britain, and his doubts were immediately echoed by all the others. Here the real fundamental economic problem of the empire was touched upon, but it could not be solved. All the attention, all the display was given to the superficial political questions, while the economic questions were practically ignored with a tacit admission that nothing could be done about them.

Of course, for propaganda purposes it was proclaimed that economically also the British Empire is becoming closer knit together. It is reported with jubilation that the proportion of British trade with the empire has increased, but it is not pointed out that the absolute total has gone down, now that the dominion trade with Great Britain shows a diminished proportion both as regards exports and imports.

The dominion premiers emphasize too that they have in fact given increased preference to Great Britain. They do not mention that this preference is insignificant in comparison with the heavy all-round increases in the height of the tariff walls. As a matter of fact, the Balfour Committee in its survey of overseas markets notes that the tariff rates imposed on British exports have increased within the empire by 66 2-3 per cent in the same period that the general tariff rate of foreign countries on British exports has decreased by 20 per cent.

These figures disclose at a glance the whole impossibility of welding the empire together by means of imperial preference. The subject was therefore quietly put on the shelf at the Conference in spite of the fact that it forms an indisputable part of the scheme of empire unity as contemplated by British imperialists. Such a scheme of imperial preference can only be based on the idea that Britain remains the workshop of the empire, while the other parts supply the raw material, and nothing will induce the dominions to consent to this.

Mond's Dream Shattered.

On this rock also foundered all the schemes of "nationalization" of imperial production, such as those prominently put forward by Sir Alfred Mond. In this connection it is striking to note the outburst of indignation in the whole Australian press that occurred during the visit of the Empire Parliamentary Delegation last September, when Mr. Arthur Henderson, M.P., naively asked why Australia should experiment with and establish secondary industries when such already existed in Great Britain. The time for Australia to be self-contained, he said, would come when its population was 106 millions and not six millions.

The Australian press points out, firstly, that restriction to primary production means unemployment and poverty, and secondly, that already more workers are employed in factories and secondary industries than in agriculture or mining. The farmers themselves depend more on the home market than on export. Thus the "Daily Standard" (22-9-26) says:—"Excluding wool we find that out of 520,-670,000 units of production only 156,900,000 were sent abroad."

The conclusion is drawn that any possibility of immigration, of colonization, depends on the establishment of great secondary industries.

The Failure of the Emigration Policy.

The colossal failure of the Empire Migration schemes destroys the second main plank in empire coordination. The whole policy of holding the dominions as a monopoly for white men depends on being able to colonize them from Great Britain. Yet in Australia, for example, the increase of population since the war has been practically limited to the natural increase. Meanwhile the unemployment rate increases in all the dominions, all mass migration schemes came to nothing, and Great Britain is unable to supply the types that are able to be absorbed in the colonies.

The new empire policy of concentration on the crown colonies and mandated areas can only accentuate the dangers threatening the empire. It means further economic decline in Great Britain. It means intensified competition with the rival imperialists of the U. S. A., etc. Finally, it will inevitably give a part impetus to the movement for national liberation on the part of the exploited masses in the colonies. The subject populations grow in consciousness in proportion to the growth of capitalist exploitation.

The threats to the British Empire are growing and increasing. It is not enough, however, merely to speak of the inevitable decline of British imperialism. It is necessary to analyse the changes that are taking place in each of the dominions and their significance in the development of imperial relations in relation to the decline of British capitalism as a whole. It is necessary to show their importance for the struggle against the deception and illusions of social reform [illegible] Commonwealth of Nations, [illegible] pave the impose [illegible] Great Britain

In the Wake of the News

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

CHINA still occupies the centre of the world stage. All the imperialist powers stress their friendship for the nationalist movement but continue to send warships and troops to Shanghai and indicate a decided preference for a victory for the militarist brigands who have been peddling Chinese territory to the foreigners for decades and persecuting and plundering the Chinese masses. The newspapers have not yet arisen to the heights of fancy lying they believed us with during the world war. But they are on their way, and if the powers start hostilities on Chinese soil we might as well be prepared for a deluge of falsehoods picturing the Cantonese as hordes of bloodthirsty savages hungry for white victims.

* * *

So far the pages of the capitalist press are open to a few faint squeaks from those who favor the Cantonese. All those who know the real facts of the situation in China, privately admit that the Cantonese are bound to win. Even missionaries whose business it is to keep the masses supplied with fables, agree that the day of the militarists is gone by and that China, like Turkey, will cut the gordian knot of unequal treaties with the sword. The alleged victories won by the Sun Chuan Fangs and other reactionary generals are disposed of in two editions. The capitalist papers are ready to write a lurid headline flashing a Cantonese defeat on the slightest provocation, but whenever they fail to give you the approximate number of dead, wounded and captured you are justified in being a bit skeptical.

* * *

As the situation stands at the time of writing, the Cantonese are advancing on Shanghai. Between them and their objective are the forces of Sun Chuan Fang, an ally of Chang-Tso-Lin. In all probability the imperialists are supplying Sun with arms and money. But the militarists lack the mass support which the Cantonese have won as a result of their progressive appeal to the workers and thru knowledge of the fact that wherever they have succeeded in driving out the militarists they have immediately legalized the trade unions and peasants organizations. In the territories under the control of Chang-Tso-Lin and his allies the unions are outlawed.

* * *

The Cantonese have approximately two-thirds of China under their control. The main struggle is now taking place in the rich Yangtse valley, the industrial heart and the commercial centre of the country. Chang-Tso-Lin threatens to come down from the north with his mercenaries to aid his harrassed ally Sun Chuan Fang, but General Feng is waiting on the side lines with a disciplined force of 50,000 men ready to make chop suey out of Chang's army if they get too far from home. Wu Pei-Fu who was quite a big gun in Chinese affairs a few years ago, and the favorite tool of Great Britain, has spurned the attentions of Chang who would let bygones be bygones provided Wu got busy and started in to work. Wu vows that he would just as soon be robbed by anybody else as by Chang who he trusts only a little more than he trusts the Cantonese.

* * *

Chang is nothing if not vitriolic. When he learned that Wu could not be wooed by sweet words he seized the weapon of sarcasm and proceeded to jab it into Wu's emotional ribs. He charged Wu with loafing on the job for several months while his friends were being roasted on the Cantonese spit. Wu was an ineffective, incompetent, played-out general, he said. Naturally this did not make Wu any more inclined to betake himself to a shady nook and pen sonnets to Chang's eyebrows. Indeed, he gave Chang to understand that any Manchurian soldiers that trampled over Wu's territory would be liable to make it their last resting place. This is very good. Let us hope those two brigands will get real crazy and fight it out with bare fists until both win.

* * *

The Peking government has nothing left but a few ministers and a letterhead. The ministers are still allowed to be at large in the various capitals. Indeed, there is reason to believe that most of them are secretly in favor of the Nationalist Government. A Peking dispatch stated that the political element in that government favored the Cantonese but what can a government without soldiers do? Chang-Tso-Lin has the soldiers and tho he has no more legal right to determine the policy of the government than I have, swords are mightier than proclamations yet, and Chang has the swords. Still the Peking government has a few kicks left in it and with one of the last of these is ejected the British customs agent for refusing to perform his duty or accept instructions from the Peking government. The newspapers informed us that foreign ministers representing other imperialist powers including the United States protested against the Briton's dismissal [illegible] are informed in an official communication from Washington that Minister MacMurray did not protest. It is almost impossible even for expert debunkers of the news that appears in the capitalist press to separate the false from the true.

* * *

Britain has not yet succeeded in securing what they call a concert of the powers against China, tho she has made a most harmonious noise trying to make the world believe that she had. It is true that the United States has dispatched warships and troops and has given Admiral Williams carte blanche to do as he pleases in the crisis, nevertheless Washington is not blind to the possibility that her finance barons, concessionaires and traders may be able to get something out of the Chinese pot at Great Britain's expense.

* * *

The British government's policy shows that there is a conflict in the cabinet between the extreme conservatives represented by Churchill, Birkenhead and Joynson Hicks and the moderate tories led by Chamberlain and Baldwin. The main difference between the two factions is, that the former would use Mussolini tactics while the latter prefer more subtle methods. Churchill seemed to think the Chinese could be frightened by a display of force. Chamberlain knew that force had the opposite effect. Churchill is aiming at the premiership and he is hunting around for an issue to rally the tabloid on. Cablegrams from Moscow indicated a strong belief in that quarter that the British government would use the Chinese situation to break off relations with the Soviet Union. This would be more possible than a year ago in the opinion of the critics because of the flopping over to the right of the so-called left leaders of the British Trade Union Congress.

* * *

In the preliminary debate on the Chinese situation, J. H. Thomas defended the government openly and brazenly. Ramsay MacDonald's speech was objectively a defense. He agreed with Chamberlain that the marines were going to China for police duty but feared that somebody would pull a trigger and start trouble. Stanley Baldwin in reply regretted that he could not send the London Metropolitan police instead. Even the liberal faker Lloyd George was more vigorous in his criticism of the government than MacDonald. Judging from the news dispatches at hand as these words are being written, the left wing of the Parliamentary Labor Party, such as it is, took the leadership of the opposition on this question out of the hands of MacDonald, and demanded that the Cantonese demands be granted by the government. This was of course refused. British warships are still ploughing the seas to China and a bloody war, that may develop into a world conflagration, is in the offing.

President Green of A. F. of L. leading war on Communism. Puzzle: Find Green in this picture.

* * *

The British government rewarded the right wing leaders for their treachery to the miners in calling off the General Strike, by introducing a bill outlawing the general strike or any kind of a strike that the government may feel like branding political. While the right wing leaders may pretend to oppose this, they have no intention of doing so, as the existence of such a law will enable them to stop all demands for a general strike in the future with the reply that it is unconstitutional. However, a little thing like a law is a weak defence against the demand for something when it is backed up by the collective might of millions of organized workers.

* * *

BENITO MUSSOLINI has blossomed forth as the champion press agent of the world. If he has time to do anything else besides grant interviews to American newspapermen and debutantes, where the time comes from is a miracle. Benito wanted to get into the Chinese scrimmage, for a price, of course. One of his organs declared that force is the only argument a Chinaman understands, unless money is available. The fascist sheet wants to know why the Cantonese have not been already cut to pieces if all the corruption money is used up. Perhaps the editor knows whereof he speaks. Italy sold herself to England in the early days of the world war and she has been peddling herself ever since to the highest bidder. Italy, under fascism, has become the most outstanding political prostitute among bankrupt nations. The Italian workers will need a huge pile of gas masks when cleaning up time arrives.

* * *

THE dispute between the United States government and Mexico is marking time. Talk of compromise is in the air. The Mexican government reports that the clerical revolts have been completely crushed. It is evident that the Calles administration feels strong enough to use the steam roller on the catholic church but it is doubtful if he is as willing to organize the workers and peasants for resistance to the oil, mining and land magnates. Most of the foreign concerns having oil, land and mining concessions in Mexico registered under the new decrees and evaded trouble. The big American oil companies held out. So far Calles has succeeded in staving off a decisive showdown with the United States thru the courts, which granted injunctions to the oil companies staying the government's threat of enforcing the confiscatory decrees. What will be the immediate outcome, time only can tell.

* * *

IN Nicaragua Admiral Latimer, Wall Street envoy, continues to follow in the wake of the liberal armies, declaring neutral territory every piece of land they chase the Diaz forces out of. Kellogg has notified Sacasa, the constitutional president, that he will never be recognised. In view of this attitude it is rather amusing to read that the state department is opposed to intimating that it would look with favor on Diaz's resignation lest such action might be construed as interference in the internal affairs of Nicaragua. Now, who said that "Nervous Nell" Kellogg is not clever?

* * *

WHETHER you feel relieved or not because the United States is as good as out of the world court, it is so. The senate reservations were not accepted in full by England and Borah, Reed, Johnson, Moses and other anti-courters are in great glee. Coolidge is mum as usual. The defeat of several pro-court senators in the last congressional elections cured him of his enthusiasm for the court. Having failed as usual to carry anything he proposes to victory, "Cal" made another bid for fame by launching another fake disarmament conference. A good time to pull it off, we admit, while the United States and England and all the other imperialist powers to a lesser extent, are garnishing the weaker nations with naval and military force. Coolidge proposes a conference in Geneva with a view to reducing naval appropriations. His recent defeat by the big-navy crowd impelled him and his backers to try this tack.

* * *

London, correspondents report that England does not object to seeing submarine construction pared down to a minimum because that is where France is strong, but England does not like the idea of reducing the number of light cruisers on her list since she claims her trade routes are the longest in the world and need protection. This is another farce and nothing will come of it except more hot air. This is the usual jockeying that continually takes place between the powers in the intervals of peace. There cannot be any hope of turning swords into pruning hooks as long as capitalism exists.

* * *

SHALL Coolidge run for another term? William Randolph Hearst, democrat, and Henry Ford, nothing in particular, think he should. Nicholas M. Butler, chief ballyhoo man of Columbia university thinks he should not. In fact "Nick" declares more or less emphatically that "Cal" will not run. Perhaps, and perhaps not. One thing is certain: The imperialists will run two candidates, on both old party tickets and both will be equally willing to serve big business here and abroad. The workers and farmers must organize their own party, a Labor Party, and stop wasting their time guessing what particular capitalist puppet succeeds in getting into the White House for four more years.

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

The Daily Worker Fights:
For the Organization of the Unorganized.
For a Labor Party.
For the 40-Hour Week.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 27. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $5.00 per year. NEW YORK, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THOMAS A. Edison is alleged to have answered 150 questions and discussed the hereafter on the eighteenth anniversary of his birth. He has been following this routine on every birthday as far as I can remember. The great inventor should try his hand at inventing a new way of spending his birthdays. Of course it is quite possible that Mr. Edison says "umph, ugch" and leaves it to the ingenuity of the reporters to fill in the rest. And since reporters are not famous for ingenuity they simply look up the files of the papers on Edison birthdays for the past twenty years and send the result to the composing room.

* * *

Whether Edison believes that there is a life after death (what a noble bull!) is not near as important to the working class as that Edison's inventive genius should be commercialized in the interests of profits rather than used to lighten labor's burden and help the producing classes secure more of the good things in the bosom of nature that await the touch of some mechanical Midas to be turned into commodities more precious than gold for the use of human society. Edison's speculations on the hereafter may be more interesting than those of Harry K. Thaw, the moron, but they are equally futile.

* * *

THE worker who votes the democratic or republican ticket because his father and grandfather suffered from the same kind of political myopia should take a lesson from his superiors, using "superiors" in the sense that those who are able to amass the most money are the cream of humanity. Henry Ford once ran on the democratic party ticket against Truman H. Newberry for the coveted office of senator from Michigan. Ford lost because he did not spend enough money. Newberry lost because he spent too much. Ford is now for Calvin Coolidge who has as much individuality as one of Henry's automatic machines. William Randolph Hearst, a democrat, favors "Cal's" election. The fetish of party regularity is dropped into the discard when it suits the purposes of the capitalists. Is it not about time the workers should consult their own interests and burn the capitalist political bridges behind them.

* * *

Coolidge's proposed partial disarmament conference will be held, in the opinion of a New York Evening World correspondent. But he generally observes that the peace-makers will meet, talk and depart without getting any nearer peace but considerably nearer the next act in the war. So many leaks have developed in the White House diplomatic boiler that Coolidge kept his lips tighter than usual about his plan for a reduction of naval armament conferences. Had the news leaked out Wall Street bears might make a killing in steel and other stocks that perk up when the drums beat and the bugles call for carnage but drop when a decoy pigeon is sent out from one of the capitalist dove-cotes.

* * *

J. T. Walton Newbold, star performer at a recent banquet given here under the auspices of the New Leader, socialist party organ, in a letter in the current issue of the Nation, rushed to the defense of the British and American oil companies, who are represented by the renegade as little Red Riding Hoods clasping hands for mutual protection while travelling thru the commercial jungles infested by the wild beasts turned loose by the Soviet oil monopoly. Mr. Newbold, with the parting "goodbye" of the foreign office fresh in his memory is availing himself of the opportunity to spew his venom against the Soviet Union before American audiences.

(Continued on Page Two)

Wu Army Locks Antlers With Chang-Tso-Lin

Peking Ministers Said to Favor Cantonese

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—The armies of the two rival Northern militarists Wu Pei Fu and Chang Tso-Lin are locked in battle according to reports seeping in through the military cordon that encircles this city. The clash between the reactionary generals sounds the death knell of whatever hopes the imperialists may have that the Northern generals would be able to present a united front against the Cantonese.

British propagandists are busy explaining that the fighting in Wu Pei Fu's hallwick is due to "misunderstanding" despite the fact that Wu warned Chang a few days ago to keep his troops out of Honan province.

The Cantonese are reported concentrating their armies for a final drive against Shanghai. With Chang blocked by Wu and with General Feng hovering on his flanks like the spirit of vengeance the prospects of the Manchurian militarists eating easter eggs in Canton is considered an idle dream.

In view of the brightened prospects of the Cantonese and the progressive demoralization of the Northerners, the imperialist powers are using every influence to strengthen the right wing elements in the Koumintang party. The capitalists realize that the day of the militarists is drawing to a close. They are willing to spend money on a government that "would listen to reason" and permit the imperialists to continue the exploitation of the Chinese masses and the vast mineral resources of the country.

Whether they win their objectives with the bayonet, with diplomacy or with gold is all the same to the robber powers.

* * *

Said to Favor Canton.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13. Sao Ke Alfred Sze, Chinese minister at Washington continues to give the impression that he favors the Cantonese government rather than the paper mache institution that goes by the name in Peking.

A Geneva dispatch stated that all the Peking ministers had gone over to the Cantonese. There is reason to believe as The DAILY WORKER pointed out several days ago that outside of Chang Tso-Lin, Wu Pei Fu, Sun Chuan-Fang and their underlings, the entire population of China is on the side of the Cantonese.

With their customary disregard for the feelings of the Chinese people, the capitalist correspondents attribute the switch of the Peking ministers to Canton, to failure on the part of their home office to put tea in their cups. There is no fun in working for an empty treasury particularly for servants of the bourgeoisie, but the idea that the Chinese are more purchasable than an American secretary of the interior, an attorney general or a federal judge is the hunk.

* * *

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The "Hands off China" committees organization by and through the influence of the Communists joined here yesterday in a parade to Trafalgar Square where in the shadow of Nelson's Pillar, speakers demanded that the government withdraw the hostile expedition on the way to China, the recognition of the Nationalist government and the surrender of the imperialist concessions.

British workers are strong in their disapproval of J. H. Thomas's action in supporting the Baldwin government on the Chinese question.

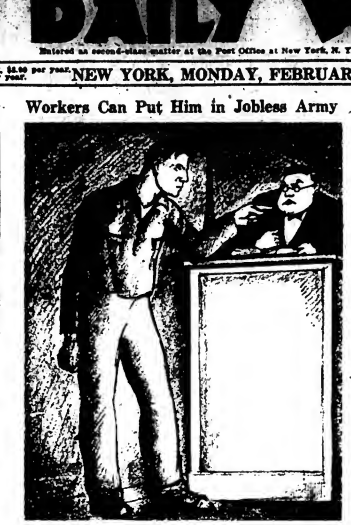
CHILDREN STARVE AS SIX HUNDRED WORKERS ARE THROWN OUT OF WORK WHEN MILLS CLOSE

MAYNARD, Mass., Feb. 13.—Pallid little girls without warm underwear and stockings.

Boys in sneakers walking through the snow to school.

Scores of families existing on a meager pay envelope containing $5 a week.

Fathers and mothers, hungry and in threadbare clothing, hoping against hope—pale and despondent.



This was the picture today of this once thriving mill town—the result of the closing down of the Assabet mills of the American Woolen Company, the town's industrial plant.

Superintendent of Schools Jerome O. Fogwell issued an appeal for food and clothing for the boys and girls who come to his school.

"Conditions here are terrible," said Folwell. "The Assabet mills, which make women's coatings and blankets have been closed down for days at a time. The six hundred or more mill workers get only a day's work now and then.

"I should say that at least two hundred children are in dire need of food and clothing. Many families, consisting of the father, mother and seven or eight children are existing on $5 a week."

Workers Can Put Him in Jobless Army

Worker to Judge Otto H. Rosalsky: Listen Judge! Better change your mind on those cloakmakers' sentences. Politicians may have put you on that bench, but the workers can damn quick take you off.

British Production of Iron is Lowest in 76 Years; Hit by Strike

LONDON, Feb. 13.—British pig iron production in 1926 reached its lowest point in seventy-six years, according to the annual financial and commercial review of the London Times. Steel production was smaller than it has been for thirty-one years.

How hard the coal strike hit the iron and steel magnates is evident from the following statement: "The total production of pig iron for the seven months, May to November, amounted to 2,10,000 tons, or little more than one-third of the output for the month of April. The steel output was maintained at a slightly higher rate, the total for the seven months amounting to 150,000 tons, or over two-thirds of the April production."

RAKOSI PROCESS AGAIN IN COURT; TO DEFEND SELF

Hungarian Comrades to Demand Freedom

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 13 (By Mail).—Today began the hearing of the appeal of the defendants in the Rakosi process, Mathias Rakosi, Karl Oeri, Katharina Haman, Ignaz Goegoes, Zoltan Weinberger and 20 other Communists, before the Court of Appeal.

Defendants Stand United.

As at the process itself in June, 1926, the 24 members of the Hungarian Socialist Labor party are standing before the court together with the members of the Communist Party. In the process itself the Communists were found guilty without exception and sentenced to heavy terms of hard labor, etc. The prosecutor was, however, unable to bring sufficient proof against the Socialist Labor party and was only able to obtain a verdict against the members of this party for "stirring up class hatred." The prosecutor obviously wishes to make a new attempt to "prove" that the leaders of the Socialist Labor party are Communists in order to permit the government to take sterner action against this party upon the basis of a legal judgment.

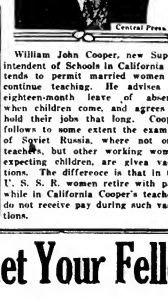
Narrow Escape From Gallows.

Comrade Rakosi and the other comrades are facing the court for the third time. The first time the Hungarian government attempted immediately after the arrest, to send Rakosi and four of his comrades, to the gallows. They were placed before an exceptional court and the hangmen prepared to carry out the death sentence. However, the indignation of international public opinion, and the energetic protests of the workers of the world together with thousands of

(Continued on Page Three)

WORKING CLASS HOUSEWIVES BOO JUDGE ROSALSKY

Agree to Organize for Cloakmakers' Victory



At a protest meeting held in Webster Hall, arranged by the United Council of Working Class Housewives in conjunction with the Cloakmakers' Housewives Council and the Cloak and Dressmakers Joint Board, hundreds of women cheered the resolution adopted protesting against the injunctions, and the arrests and abnormal amounts of high bail set by Judge Otto Rosalsky for the sixteen jailed cloakmakers.

Learn From Passaic.

Pearl Halpern, the chairman of the meeting, and a member of the joint board of the Cloakmakers' Union told about the present conditions of the cloakmakers and introduced the first speaker, C. Sara Sherman, a relief worker for the Passaic textile strike, who spoke about the important part the women play in the Passaic strike and urged the cloakmakers' wives to follow the example of the Passaic women. "Woman is no more considered only a housewife with 8,500,000 women employed in in-

(Continued on Page Three)

Lets Teachers Marry

William John Cooper, new Superintendent of Schools in California intends to permit married women to continue teaching. He advises an eighteen-month leave of absence when children come, and agrees to hold their jobs that long. Cooper follows to some extent the example of Soviet Russia, where not only teachers, but other working women expecting children, are given vacations. The difference is that in the U. S. S. R. women retire with pay, while in California Cooper's teachers do not receive pay during such vacations.

Guerillas Shoot Another Left Wing Picket

Wound Kuvrenetzky in Foot; Registerees Swindled

The latest victim of the gangsters being employed by Morris Sigman, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, in his efforts to take the union away from the workers, is Elias Kuvrenetzky, chairman of the board of directors of the Joint Board, and an Executive Board member of Local 35.

Shot In Foot.

Kuvrenetzky was on his way to the Gilt Dress House, at 25th street and Eighth avenue, to stop a scab who was working there. As he was walking along 25th street, a car full of gangsters passed and one of them hot at him, hitting him in the foot.

The car escaped before Kuvrenetzky could see any of the occupants. He was then taken to a physician for treatment.

Forced To Do Overtime.

A few other interesting examples of Mr. Sigman's methods have been brought to the attention of the Joint Board by some of the workers within the past two days.

On the same day that the Jewish Forwards, organ of the right wing leaders, was loudly advertising that the International officials had hired a hall from which committees would be sent out to prevent anyone from working overtime on Saturday, a worker in one of the industrial shops was threatened with discharge for refusing to do overtime work.

Sigman For Overtime.

In the Strausseman shop on 38th street, the chairman was asked to have the workers report for work on Saturday. When she declined to do this, the foreman stated that the International had agreed that they should work and if they refused they would be fired.

Tea Dollar Swindle.

Members of the I. L. G. W. U. who, by force, have been compelled to register with the International, have just discovered that when signing their names on the so-called union books which are issued to them, they have without knowing it—signed a pledge to pay a special tax of $10 inside of 10 weeks.

A clause to this effect has been found in the books, very lightly in lead pencil, so that it was hardly noticeable. Workers knew that they were being forced to sign a statement that they gave their moral support to Sigman and his gang, but they did not know until they had left the International office and examined the books in the light that they were pledging financial support also.

Those who have destroyed their books, or brought them to the Joint Board to be added to the collection there, say they would like to see President Sigman make an attempt to collect that $10 tax.

Centralia Jurors Ask For Release of Those They Sent to Prison

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 13.—A move has been started to release the Centralia prisoners now incarcerated at the Walla Walla penitentiary, for defending the I. W. W. Hall in Centralia in 1919. A group of jurymen who convicted the defendants in 1920, have sent a petition to Governor Hartley, stating that they have very reason to believe that the men did not have a fair trial, that much of the prosecution's evidence is disputable, and that it is their opinion now that these men should be freed.

The Centralia affair was a most atrocious attack waged against the I. W. W. by the lumber trust of the Northwest. The men were at their hall when a group of American Legionnaires, marching in an armistice parade, detached itself from the main column, and attacked the Wobblies in their hall. One of the legionnaires, Warren Grimm, was shot and died of his wounds. The hall was captured.

That night they dragged Wesley Everest, one of the men who had been arrested in the meantime, from the jail, mutilated him, and then lynched him. Eight of the men were later convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to serve from 25 to 40 years in the penitentiary.

Sacasa and Diaz

Juan Sacasa, above, is the constitutional president of Nicaragua, recognized as such by Mexico, and various Latin American countries. In the war he wages with the usurper, Adolfo Diaz (below), he finds American marines and American aeroplane officers defending Diaz. The U. S. recognizes Diaz as president because he belongs to the clique that has been selling the public and private property of the country to American investors for next to nothing.

POLISH CABINET MAY FAIL; SEJM RAPS PILSUDSKY

New Budget Rejected By Middle Parties

WARSAW, Feb. 13.—The fall of Pilsudski's cabinet in the near future is regarded as likely as the result of the Sejm's attack on the budget bill in its second reading. Every estimate submitted in the bill was considerably reduced or completely rejected by the Sejm.

The estimates submitted by the Foreign Office and by the ministers of Posts and Telegraphs, who is a personal friend of Pilsudski's, were completely rejected. The Nationalists and Middle Parties voted solidly against the Foreign Office budget.

It is believed that Pilsudski will attempt to shelve his ministers and assume complete dictatorial powers despite the fact that the deputies regard today's action as a protest against Premier Pilsudski rather than against his ministers.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Arbitration Big Issue at Mine Negotiation

Lewis Aims Weakened Union Into Dangerous Position

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 13.—Members of the committee appointed by International President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America to negotiate a two years' agreement with the mining companies of the central competitive field are assembling here.

But Lewis is not leaving the matter up entirely to the committee on which the much discredited Pat Fagan, of District 5, Pittsburg, serves. Lewis is here himself. He arrived yesterday with Philip Murray, international vice-president, and Thomas A. Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the union, and his influence will undoubtedly be paramount over the miners committee.

The meeting starts today, if the employers' representatives arrive on time. Very few of them were present this morning.

The packed international convention of the U. M. W. A. adopted a report of the wage scale committee, also appointed by President Lewis from among his supporters, and headed by President Harry Fishwick, of District 12 (Illinois). The report was opposed to wage reductions, but permitted the appointment of a committee, or bureau, which would practically establish arbitration machinery, under the guise of "interpreting" the contract.

Want Arbitration.

Preliminary publicity by the operators indicates that they will insist on just this sort of a provision in the next contract. The story going around operators' circles is to the effect that their representatives will demand that a board be created of four of the upper bureaucracy of the miners' union, four representatives of the employers, and three mediators, elected by two parties, or, if they cannot agree on "neutral" members, appointed by the United States or the Supreme Court of the United States.

For Class Collaboration.

Coal Age, a magazine controlled largely by the manufacturers of coal mining machinery, but with an eye close to the ground in operators' councils, senses this determination to get, not only lower wages, but some form of at least non-arbitration clause in the contract. In a frank plea for class collaboration, Coal Age says, editorially: "Issues far greater than that of wages will be involved if the Sejm's attack on the budget bill in its second reading. Every estimate submitted in the bill was considerably reduced or completely rejected by the Sejm.

The estimates submitted by the Foreign Office and by the ministers of Posts and Telegraphs, who is a personal friend of Pilsudski's, were completely rejected. The Nationalists and Middle Parties voted solidly against the Foreign Office budget.

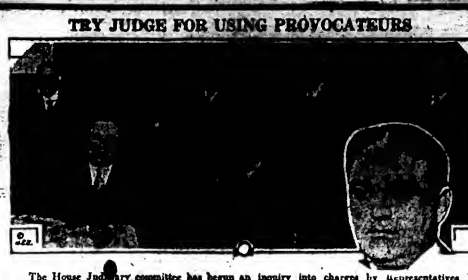
It is believed that Pilsudski will attempt to shelve his ministers and assume complete dictatorial powers despite the fact that the deputies regard today's action as a protest against Premier Pilsudski rather than against his ministers.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

HIGHWAY CONTRACTORS DISCOVER BAD MANAGEMENT COSTS MORE THAN HIGH WAGES

NEW YORK, (FP).—Driving and riding faster, cutting wages, or lengthening hours, will not achieve the highway contractor's desire for low costs, was the lesson self taught to the contractors of the highway division of the Associated General Contractors of America in convention at Asheville, N. C.

Reports of the contractors' committees brought to the Federated convention brought to light an interesting story. The assembled contractors officially agreed that wages paid to labor form a very small proportionate part of the costs of highway construction. This conclusion was reached after a discussion of the cost charts and efficiency records that had been drawn up in actual operations and which were analyzed in detail.



Labor Cost Slight

The costs of highway construction, it was emphasized, are dependent on the efficiency of the equipment and the manner in which even the best equipment is laid out and coordinated. Both of these factors are matters for which the management alone is responsible, it was pointed out. Contractors were urged to give more

(Continued on Page Two)

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

TRY JUDGE FOR USING PROVOCATEURS

The House Judiciary committee has begun an inquiry into charges by Representatives La-Guardia (Rep., N. Y.) and Celler (Dem., N. Y.) that Federal Judge Frank Cooper of northern New York had disqualified himself by participating in a scheme to trap bootleggers. In the photograph, Judge Cooper is at the right, in the foreground, with his counsel, Elisha Hanson of Washington. Committee members on the bench are, left to right, Representatives Richard Yates, Illinois; L. C. Dyer, Missouri; George C. Graham, New York, committee chairman; and William D. Boise, Idaho. Inset is of Rep. LaGuardia.

HOUSE Judiciary Committee in session, trying Judge Frank Cooper (right foreground) for convicting rum runners on the basis of stool pigeon's testimony that he enticed the defendants into crime for the purpose of betraying them. The inset is Congressman Fiorello La Guardia, pushing the case against Cooper. Bootleggers are privileged characters, and must be justly dealt with. There is no investigation of the stool pigeons placed alongside Sacco and Vanzetti in prison, to entrap them into saying something that could be used against them in their trial, nor of department of justice officials who, admitting they were convinced of the innocence of these two workers, still gave every aid to the prosecution trying to send them to the electric chair. Sacco and Vanzetti were radicals, and the D. of J. wanted to get rid of them.

BOLSHEVIKS WIN, SAYS KEYSERLING IN SAD LECTURE

East Going Communist Menacing West

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The world is facing a new dark age a struggle between culture and mentality, between Eastern civilization and Western civilization, declared Count Hermann Keyserling, famous German philosopher and scholar in a lecture at Vienna.

Prof. Keyserling is author of numerous works in scientific magazines since the war, in which he takes a pessimistic view of the ability of Europe to stabilize permanently and continue the capitalist system, which he regards as synonymous with civilization.

Dreads Awakened Asia.

In speaking said in his lecture That he has fears regarding the colored races that the white man reached his heights during the world war since which the colored tide has been rapidly rising.

He said that the East is becoming more and more Bolshevized, that a tremendous epoch is dawning similar to one in the past and that there will be great migrations.

"O Holy Profits"

"To maintain and safeguard the sacred fire of the spirit and the intellect through the long black night that confronts humanity is the real task of Europe", he said.

A community of culture plays a vaster greater role in history than racial blood relationships, he said. "Every people", he said, "will eventually go back more and more to the original traits of character peculiar to it. The East will become more Eastern and the West will become more Western."

Americans Primitive.

The so-called American type of man and women, he declared, will become even more primitive and more youthful making the contrast to Europe still greater.

Reports of the professor's lecture do not explain how he coordinates his theory of the growing differences between peoples with the well known facts of the adoption of industrialism by India, Japan and China.

German Press Exposes Uncle Shylock's 20 Percent Loan Profits

BERLIN, Feb. 13. — Americans made a profit of $250,000,000 from German loans so far if figures compiled by the nationalist Tag are accurate.

The paper figures the net profit, consisting of interest, stock exchange ralas and bank commissions on forty-four German loans totalling $552,000,000, was more than $133,000,000 or about twenty percent a year.

The total American capital invested in Germany is close to one billion dollars, which would mean a total profit of nearly double this figure. The paper says:

"Americans' big hearted aid for impoverished economic Germany has proved very good business".

Arbitration Big Issue at Miners' Parley

(Continued from Page One)

upon the question of wages. What the industry needs is to think more of production costs in the broader sense. Although wages have been the largest single item in these costs, it is unsound to trent wages and production costs as eternally separate and irreconcilable terms. Efficiency, both in labor and in management, must be given greater weight than too many producers have been willing to accord it in the past."

No Strike Preparation.

Though the wage negotiators representing the union go to the conference pledged to resist wage cuts, Lewis has made no attempt whatever to prepare for the strike, which is the union's only effective argument against a determined stand for lower wages, such as the operators' meeting here month in Toledo decided upon.

During the last three years the union membership, instead of being recruited, as been allowed to dwindle away, as figures given officially in the secretary treasurer's report to the convention show, so that the union has only about two-thirds the man power it controlled when the Jacksonville agreement was signed.

Lewis Misses Money.

The domination, progressives at the convention point out, was due principally to Lewis' betrayal of the West Virginia and Connelsville miners in their last strike, and to his policy of spending all the organization finances for maintaining his international organizers as political ward heelers in unionized territory, instead of for organization work in the non-union territories.

Unorganized Must Strike.

Since sixty-five per cent of the coal produced in the United States comes from non-union mines, the miners' chance to win a real strike depends upon these unorganized miners walking out with the union miners. If a strike does come the progressives plan to act on their own initiative to bring them out, in spite of the lack of preliminary propaganda in these fields by the official family of the U. M. W. A., and probably against the resistance of Carl Lewis.

All Workers

but particularly Irish workers will want to read "Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1926," by G. Schuller with an introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty. "Connolly," name of the military leader of the Easter Week Rebellion, is a magic name to every Irish worker who has within him a single spark of the divine fire of revolt.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

The Daily Worker
33 First Street
New York City

POLICE BREAK UP BOXMAKER STRIKE ALWAYS AID BOSS

Scabs Not Allowed to Listen to Pickets

(FP) The paper box makers' strike has been called off after a 19-weeks' struggle. Two thousand union members are back on the job without a wage agreement. Three hundred others are in shops that settled with the union earlier in the strike.

Police brutality broke the strike and Manager Fred Caiola, in a statement to the Federated Press.

"We stood win against the manufacturers and Caiola, but not against the entire police department of New York City. The police fought us on three ways.

Seek Couldn't Quit.

"First by putting a uniformed officer on every scab wagon, before there was any thought of violence. The step prevented the strikebreakers' driver from listening to the pickets. If the driver stopped to listen the cop backed him up, what are you doing that for?' Whenever the drivers had the chance to listen to the pickets they almost always spoke to God and often urged the union.

"Wholesale arrests was another method of breaking the strike. They arrested some 50 strikers in all. Basing these men out bankrupted our treasury. In nearly every case the strikers were eventually discharged but the loss to us of $5,000 paid out in bail, keeping our resources.

Rode Through Pickets.

"Brutality was the third strike-breaking method. Mounted police rode into pickets. Patrolmen mercilessly clubbed them. It was impossible to maintain a picket line. Mayor Walker got mixed up investigating the matter but beyond the removal of a couple of policemen virtually nothing was done."

In Advance Police Protection.

Caiola tells how the manufacturers arranged for police "cooperation" in advance. They gave the game away in their trade organ "The Shears." The October 4 issue of "The Shears" tells of the splendid "cooperation" the police were giving the employers. The joke consisted in that the strike did not start till the following day, October 5. The strike had originally been set for several days earlier, and the "Shears" going to press at that time assumed that the strike would be in existence before its appearance, so spoke in the past tense of the "cooperation" which had not yet started.

The paper box makers' strike had the official support of the New York Trades and Labor Assembly and of the officers of the A. F. of L. paper-makers' international officers. The union vows to hold its ranks together on the job in preparation for another day.

Proponent Says Old Age Pensions Would Save State Finance

BOSTON (FP).—Three million dollars a year would be saved to the state of Massachusetts by adopting his plan for non-contributory old-age pensions, said Wendell Phillips Thompson, pension advocate, appearing before the legislative committee on pensions. There said the state now paid out annually the sum of $9,000,000 for poor relief which would be made unnecessary by a pension system, that would cost only $6,000,000 a year, Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans also testified for the measure, which has the support of organized labor.

Empty House Greets A. Beckerman When Local Union Installs Officers

Abraham Beckerman and Harry Cohen spoke before a small crowd at the installation meeting of the Knee Pants Makers Union.

The scheme to keep up the stoppage in the smaller shops is a trick of Beckerman to take away their trade and deliver the work to the big manufacturers with whom he made a deal at the price of the workers.

The reaction to Beckerman was shown by the reception that Beckerman and Harry Cohen received at the installation meeting of the Knee Pants Makers Local 19 last Wednesday night.

After the big play-up of their machine to fool the members to the installation meeting, not more than several hundred came, and left the hall as soon as Cohen and Beckerman appeared.

STATISTICAL BOARD SHOWS INCREASE OF NUMBER EMPLOYED IN SOVIET UNION; BETTER TRADE

Government statistics from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics for December and November of 1926 show continuous industrial progress.

Employment continued to increase, in November, for the fourth consecutive month, states the Central Statistical Board. The number employed in November was 1,851,000, compared with 1,960,000 in October, and 1,844,799 in November of 1925. The chief gains were in coal mining and glass production.

In foreign trade over the European frontier, the favorable balance is maintained, and increased. During October and November the favorable balance was raised to 34.8 million rubles.

The report of the State Bank shows an increase in the deposits of foreign gold and securities, with a diminution of the amount of foreign currency deposited, showing that Soviet currency is taking its place in trade. Deposits and current accounts increased 77,600,000 rubles over those of November, and amounted to 907,600,000, compared with 695,-800,000 million a year ago.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

Agents Unite To Force Wage Cut.

CINCINNATI (FP).—A widespread conspiracy among the big railroads, utility and manufacturing corporations of the country to force wage reductions on union miners is unwittingly revealed in the Jan. 31 bulletin of the Corporations Auxiliary Co. of Cincinnati. This concern is an undercover union smasher.

It declares a mine strike inevitable this spring if the union demands anything like the Jacksonville scale. It then reports that the "Natl. Assn. of Purchasing Agents intends to lend its support to bituminous operators this spring in forcing a reduction in miners' wages." This association includes most of the big corporations that use coal. The Corporations Auxiliary quotes from a confidential bulletin of the association.

WILBUR DEMANDS LARGER NAVY TO SAVE CAPITALISM

Favors Intervention in Latin America, China

Making extensive use of the "red bogy," Secretary of Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur, made a plea for 8 larger army and navy at the forty-first annual Lincoln dinner of the Republican Club, held at the Waldorf Saturday night. American interests in Latin-America and China were offered as another justification for a strong army and navy.

Hates Nationalists.

Secretary Wilbur referred to the nationalist uprisings in China, and the attempt on the part of the Sacasa government in Nicaragua, as well as the Mexican attempt to levy a tax on American oil companies draining away the national wealth of that country, as "Bolshevism."

Dreads Communism.

He feared, he said, that the supression of the Knights of Columbus revolt in Mexico meant that "the hand of the third international was already clutching at the heart of our sister republic in the South," and fervently committed himself to the policy of "being strong" in order to maintain reactionary rule. Wilbur called them "free" governments against the possibility of a world revolution.

He quoted 'a Nicaraguan official, one of the puppets set up by the United States in 1925, as saying that the peace and order of Nicaragua depends upon the American flag.

It Will. Wilbur. It Will.

Citing this as an illustration, Secretary Wilbur said, "That's what the American flag means in Nicaragua and I believe that peace will come there just as it did in 1913. That's what the American flag means in Haiti, peace and an opportunity for the people to work. That's what it means throughout the territory of the United States."

Communism Even Here

Reverting to Communism, Secretary Wilbur warned the Republican Club not to take Communism too lightly. "We felt," he said, "that by posting in every man's hand a ballot and giving him a free chance to exercise his right of suffrage we were as far removed as possible from any imperialism at home or abroad." Communism, however, is still a menace to "the foundations of this government," he said.

Proponent Says Old Age Pensions Would Save State Finance

BOSTON (FP).—Three million dollars a year would be saved to the state of Massachusetts by adopting his plan for non-contributory old-age pensions, said Wendell Phillips Thompson, pension advocate, appearing before the legislative committee on pensions. There said the state now paid out annually the sum of $9,000,000 for poor relief which would be made unnecessary by a pension system, that would cost only $6,000,000 a year, Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans also testified for the measure, which has the support of organized labor.

Defeat Offensive This Spring of Imperialists Against Chinese Labor

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

THE Transport Chaumont, with 1,200 marines aboard, continues on its way westward across the Pacific from Honolulu to the Orient, with Shanghai, China, as its destination.

Half-page pictures of the warship, as it sailed from San Diego, California, recently with a full "passenger list" of cannon fodder, appear in the Sunday papers. They are accompanied with the latest war zone pictures from China and Nicaragua, including reproductions of French and British battleships at anchor in the Harbor of Shanghai.

These are ominous events. When the killing starts on a large scale in China the American warlords are planning to be on the job in full force. They will not delay as in the last world war.

* * *

The whole war program of the imperialist powers consists of a rapid concentration of their war machines in the Far East. In this the United States emulates, if it does not keep pace, with Great Britain. There is no doubt that a definite program has been carefully mapped and is being studiously carried out.

The Sunday Worker, of Great Britain, points out that England's plan is for the British army, supported by naval forces, to advance up the Yangtse River to Chekiang, Nanking, Wuehu, Kiukang and the new capital, Wuchang, of the Cantonese government. But this advance, according to reports from Japan, center of the imperialist-kept tyranny of Chang Tso Lin, will not take place until the spring. Owing to climatic conditions the Yangtse River is too shallow in winter to permit large warships traversing its length up to Hankow.

The next stage of the plans of British imperialism, in which American "dollar" diplomacy shares energetically, is to provoke an "incident" in Shanghai. This can be done very easily, according to the best methods of the American "frame-up." It will not be very difficult to get some one to take a shot at a missionary, man or woman, preferably the latter. If the intended victim is killed, so much the better. The headlines will be all the bigger in the press back home, making it easier to fan the war fury into flames.

American jingoes, headed by Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, reized upon the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln, to make propaganda for the impending war.

Wilbur followed carefully in the footsteps of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg, and raised the threat of Communism, as an excuse for developing a "strong army and strong navy, so that if world revolt materialised we could see to it that free government was maintained." That ought to make the workers of Nicaragua, as well as those China, laugh outright. Every semblance of political freedom has been suppressed in Nicaragua, while only the valiant struggle of the Cantonese government safeguards the freedom of the purpose of that section of China that was deliberated from the grip of the foreign invader.

* * *

Secretary Wilbur defends the sending of marines to China and Nicaragua. That is part of his job.

The press of the Soviet Union, however, speaking for labor in the First Workers' Republics, shows that it has no illusions about what is going on in the Orient. It points out that the increased British naval forces being sent to Shanghai is merely a completion of the provocation on a grand scale that is being directed against Hankow and the other Yangtse towns, with the deliberate and cold-blooded aim of obtaining an excuse for a naval attack upon the Cantonese.

* * *

Washington and London have been trying to feed the Cantonese with a multitude of diplomatic maneuvers, trying to hold the advancing Cantonese armies in check until sufficient ships of war and soldiers can be mobilized in the neighborhood of Shanghai to open up the attack.

* * *

British labor is on the alert. Masses demanding "Hands Off China!" gather in historic Trafalgar Square in London. Appeals are distributed to the soldiers sent aboard ship for the long journey to the East.

In the United States the workers still remain quiescent. Altho the mass meetings already held in protest by the Workers (Communist) Party have been well attended, no great uprisings of the working class have as yet been drawn into action. The issue must be raised in thousands of local labor unions and farmers' organizations.

The working class must be aroused against the pending war this spring by imperialism in its effort to crush the Chinese revolution. This is the important and pressing task of the militants of labor in this hour of the gathering storm.

Broken Home Finally Restored

A. R. Gravy, a carpenter out of work, had to place his children in a Los Angeles institution when his wife died sixteen years ago. He has just found his twin daughters, Leola and Leonie at Visalia, Cal., after searching all that time for them. One was married. Neither knew that they had a living father. Such a reunion is the exception, when workers' homes are broken up through pressure from the system.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

Mr. Newbold blames the Soviet government's subsidizing of trouble in the coal-fields while their trading agencies were pouring petrol into the final markets of Great Britain and the United States." Mr. Newbold does not blame the British mine owners for the great strike. That the miners were fighting to protect their standard of living means nothing to him. What he is concerned with are the interests of the mine owners Newbold boasts of the splendid offices of the British oil trust in St. Louis.

* * *

The closing paragraph of Mr. Newbold's letter proves that Newbold has plumbed the depths of treachery to the revolutionary movement: "With the entire machinery of the Communists—trade corporations, diplomatic service, trade unions and political agitation—in an elaborate if elusive chain, fanning trouble in the British and American coal-fields, in the oil-fields of Persia and from Canton and from certain innocent-looking quarters in Holland, in the Dutch East Indies, no wonder that the British and American petroleum companies have closed their ranks. The Communists have declared war and they are going to get it—War."

* * *

Mr. Newbold greets the alleged alliance of the American and British oil trusts against the oil monopoly of the Workers Republic, a monopoly owned and controlled by the workers of the Soviet Union, the profits of which go to build a new society on the ashes of capitalism. So low has this renegade fallen that he does not even dissemble his hatred for the Soviet Union. Winston Churchill and Joynson Hicks could not be more bitter in their hatred. This is the creature who is invited to speak from socialist platforms. If the New Leader lives to consume another banquet we may expect to see Edward L. Dohen advertised as the main speaker.

Gary Denies Resignation.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, today flatly denied reports that he was planning to resign his position. "My resignation has never even been discussed," he said, "either by the board or by myself."

N. Y. DEMOCRATS MAY FAVOR FARM RELIEF MEASURE

Nelson Says Veto Would Defeat Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—In an attempt to place President Coolidge in an embarrassing position by pinning him down on a highly controversial issue, Tammany Hall is exerting pressure upon the New York democratic members of the house to force the McNary-Haugen bill thru congress in its present form.

This move was inspired by a western democratic leader, who declared that the Smith presidential boom wouldn't stand a ghost of a chance in the west if Tammany Hall comes out solidly against the bill, according to one prominent member of the Tammany group. Of the twenty-two democrats in the house not one voted in the bill's favor last May.

Chances Improve.

The new position of the New York democrats and the surprising majority by which the bill received in the senate, it is said, have stirred up the wavering members of the house. Hope that the bill will be stressed there has been sustained by nominations from leaders.

The determined stand of members of the farm bloc was indicated by Representative Nelson's speech today, in which he declared that if Coolidge vetoes the McNary-Haugen bill, republicans would name Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, their standard-bearer in 1928.

Coolidge—D. B.

"We are told that it will not do south white to have the Haugen-McNary bill, as the president will feel to approve," Representative Nelson said. "As to this I do not know, but I do not hesitate to say that at this time in the history of the White House spokesman will not be C. C. but D. B. 'All the dead ducks' will not be in the house, but all I think of the shadow of Lowden lengthening in the land, a giant staff in a giant hand, I imagine I can hear the president say feebly, 'Pass the peas, please.'"

Farmers Failing.

Predicting the victory of the McNary-Haugen bill in view of the Lowden landslide, Representative Nelson pointed out the need for a farm-relief measure. "With more than 3,000 bank failures during the Harding and Coolidge administrations, 192 of these in Missouri, and with farm bankruptcies increased more than 600 per cent, even the purveyors of political propaganda must admit that it is impossible to fool all the people all the time.

"All through the agricultural sections of this United States today newspapers are carrying legal notices having to do with farm foreclosures, sheriff sales and taxes overdue. The farmers are thoroughly discouraged."

Probably Will Veto.

That President Coolidge will veto the bill if it passes the house, democratic leaders consider fairly certain. Favoring as Coolidge and his friend Butler do the textile interests, he is especially opposed to the feature of the bill which would fix cotton prices. The recent drop in cotton prices, which impoverished the cotton farmer, was a blessing to the textile interests.

To avert the danger of the McNary-Haugen bill failing in conference, members of the farm bloc will make an attempt to jam it through in the form that it passed the senate.

Just Strategy.

Those "who know" regard it as a merely political move. Important because the farmers may conceivably expect some good for it, and be in favor of it. No one thinks that it will actually assist the farmers, but textile mill and flour mill groups fear it as a precedent that may lead to more effective statutes.

Paris Police Rush to Defense of Mussolini

PARIS, Feb. 13.—Vian Kituria, a Communist deputy, and M. Balonchi, director of the Communist Daily, "Humanite," were charged in a Paris court for the crime of calling Mussolini a murderer.

The arrested men asserted that Premier Mussolini is the cause of the murder of the youth Italian, aged 15, who was lynched by the Fascisti in Bologna on a frame-up to kill Mussolini.

The charge against the Communists was made by Italian Fascists who live in Paris.

Realtors Raise Howl; New Census Taken

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A survey, upon which will be based the estimated population of cities of over 30,-000 for July 1, has been started by the census bureau, it was learned today. Figures probably will be issued some time in May.

Announcement of estimates in 1924 brought considerable complaint from a number of cities, which claimed that their populations had been underestimated, with a consequent unfavorable reaction on business and real estate values.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

PEONAGE RESULTS IN FIVE MEN BEING JAILED IN TEXAS

Local Officials Helped Rent Out Boys

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CORPUS CRISTI, Texas, Feb. 13.—Five local officials were convicted by a jury in the federal court here on the charge, of peonage resulting from the hiring of young men to cotton farmers thru arrest for vagrancy.

The case grew out of the experience of Leonard Swanson, 19, a Washington D. C. college student who was roped in by the local police authorities in collaboration with the cotton farmers and forced to work to pay "debts" that he did not owe.

"I came down from Washington last summer to visit chum Aljen Nichols, at Galveston," Swanson testified. "Later we went to Houston.

"One day we got an opportunity from a labor agent on the street to go down to the Rio Grande Valley to pick cotton and we decided to accept. There were 52 of us in the car that night. We got off the next morning at Lyford and went out to a farm owned by a man named Mr. Johnson.

Left First Farm.

"We discovered that instead of getting $4.25 per hundred and room and board, that we would have to pay board and room extra. We had no place to sleep except in a shack, so that afternoon about 5 o'clock we decided to leave. There were five of us.

"About two miles beyond Lyford a car drove up and Deputy Hargrove stopped us and said we were going for a ride."

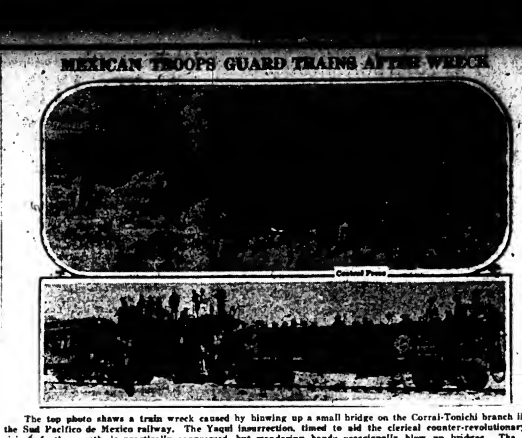
"Did he tell you why you were arrested?"

"He said we owed Mr. Johnson $7.85, and we told him we did not owe him anything because conditions were not as represented in the agent's talk to us."

Must Work For Debt.

The boy then recounted how he was placed in jail that night, without food, and that the next morning, after black coffee and cornbread, they were taken downstairs to Justice Dodd's office in the court house at Raymondville.

"Who was there?"



"County Attorney Robinson and several deputies."

"What was done?"

"The justice said if we worked that $7.50 off everything would be all right, but if we did not we would be fined $13.70 apiece for vagrancy."

Swanson and others were then sent to work for a certain Mr. Burnett.

MEXICAN TROOPS GUARD TRAINS AFTER WRECK

The top photo shows a train wreck caused by blowing up a small bridge on the Corral-Tonichi branch line of the Sud Pacifico de Mexico railway. The Yaqui insurrection, timed to aid the clerical counter-revolutionary uprisings farther south, is practically suppressed, but wandering bands occasionally blow up bridges. The lower photo shows Mexican infantry in a steel gondola attached to a train, to drive away such bands.

RAKOSI PROCESS AGAIN IN COURT; TO DEFEND SELF

Hungarian Comrades to Demand Freedom

(Continued from Page One)

honest intelligence succeed in preventing the carrying out of this plan at the last moment. Then came the main process before a normal court.

Trial Stirs Country.

This process and the heroic attitude of our comrades before the court made a tremendous impression both upon the oppressed and isolated working class of Hungary and upon the working class of the whole world. Rakosi, Oerl, Haman, Georges and Weisberger fought in the shadow of the gallows for the freedom of the Communist Party of Hungary, for the Communist International and for the Soviet Union. Their attitude was the greatest revolutionary propaganda in the history of political processes of recent years. The judges attempted in vain to crush the spirit of the accused by disciplinary punishments, but they were unable to abolish the propagandistic effect of the process. The process had a tremendous political effect in Hungary.

Terrorist to Trial Judge.

As far as can be seen the proceedings during the appeal will not be merely formalities. The proceedings will take place under the leadership of the president of the court of appeal, Gado, one of the most infamous judges of the white terror who sentenced the accused to death during the white terror and without any reason at the order of the government.

Drunk With New Power.

The Rakosi process has already cost the Bethlen government two defeats. The protest of the international working class and the propaganda before the court through which Rakosi and his comrades worked for the Communist Party of Hungary, were very bitter pills for the Bethlen government. Drunken with its election victory, the government now wishes to revenge itself for the defeat it suffered. The appeal is taking place in a situation in which the Bethlen government has been internally strengthened and externally it is justified in its reactionary hopes. It proposes to open an offensive against the whole Hungarian working class movement.

Will Stand Firm.

The Hungarian government, however, does not intend to satisfy itself with the attempt to terrorize Comrade Rakosi with the bloodhound Gado. According to newspaper reports the prosecutor is preparing an indictment of Rakosi, the people's commissar, and thus preparing for the "actual Rakosi process" in which he will be accused amongst other things of 287 murders dating from the time of the Soviet Republic. This trial will be an absolutely separate process dealing only with his activity before he left Hungary. The means that Rakosi will stand in the shadow of the gallows. This threat is intended to induce Rakosi to moderate his tone, but in this however, no one counts the accused Communists will conduct themselves at the appeals as they did at the main process.

Proletariat Must Protest.

Once again the proletarian masses of all countries and all the opponents of the white terror must unite in protest to defend Rakosi and his comrades against the murderous intentions of the Hungarian government. The real defence of this process lies in the hands of the international proletariat.

Tortured, Dies in Prison.

One of the accused, the shoemaker Peter Nemet, who was accused of participation in the congress of the Hungarian Communist Party, will not appear before the court of appeal. The reason for this is that he is dead. Comrade Nemet who was a commander of the Red Army in Soviet Russia and one of the first to receive the Order of the Red Flag at the hands of the Soviet government, was fearfully tortured after his arrest in Hungary by the minions of Bethlen. As a consequence of the tortures to which he was subjected he became seriously ill and died about a week ago without having received any medical treatment whatever. The authorities did not even inform his relatives of his death. The repeated request of Nemet that he should be released in order to receive medical treatment was always rejected by the authorities despite the fact that he had already served more than half his sentence. The leader of the franc fascists, Prince Stephen Bethlen, however, is staying at one of the best sanatoria in Budapest.

FLOWERS, CHEERS, AS PROGRESSIVES ACCEPT OFFICES

Left Wing Fur Workers Congratulate I. L. G. W.

On a platform banked with flowers, the recently elected officers of Locals 2, 3, 9 and 35, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union were formally installed on Saturday afternoon, at Manhattan Lyceum, by C. S. Zimmerman, manager of the dress department who represented the Joint Board.

The meeting was conducted by the Shop Chairmen's Council which had supervised the elections, and I. Brainer, chairman of the council presided.

Joyful Occasion.

It was an enthusiastic celebration with the hall filled to capacity, and as Joseph Boruchowitz, of Local 2, Joseph Gorensky of Local 35, Zirlin of Local 9 and Abe Krauth of Local 3 spoke, after they had been inducted into the offices of managers, they expressed the hope that the new installation proceedings would be that of left wing president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Furriers Congratulate.

Wreaths and baskets of flowers were sent by the New York Joint Board of the Fur Workers union; the I. U. E. L. of Local 2; the I. U. E. L. of Local 22; the office staff of Local 2; the office staff of the dress department of the Joint Board; the Shop Chairman's Council; Local 22; the Progressive Italians of Local 89; and the workers in the shops of Eisenstein & Hyman, Lankin & Billing, and Goldberg & Hurowitz.

Roll in the Sobs For The DAILY WORKER.

Workers Prepared for Weisbord's Columbus Speech by Big Debate

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Considerable interest is developing among the workers here about the coming of Albert Weisbord to speak here, Wednesday, Feb. 16, 8 p. m., at Old Masonic Cathedral.

Communist lecturers will find the ground partially prepared by a debate which District Organizer I. Ampter held here with Major B. F. Bukewell a few weeks ago, on the question "Is the Communist Program a Necessity for Human Progress?"

Shows Contradictions.

Ampter told of the coherent contradictions in capitalism, described the League of Nations' function in the modern world as a predatory but ineffective weapon for capitalism, and pointed out the role the embattled leaders make of such anti-social activities as war, the Ford speed-up system, and deliberate unemployment to keep themselves in power.

Anthrax Near.

The major provided the usual, and boring, argument that capitalism is fine, and only needs a little reforming, that Communism is likely to keep people from working as hard as they should, and that Russia is a horrible place, which last point he bolstered up with quotations from white guard and renegade socialist books.

Gitlow Talks on Right And Left In Unions and Imperialism in Boston

BOSTON.—Benj. Gitlow will speak here on Sunday, February 20, at 2 p. m. in Victory Hall, 841 Dwight St., on "Imperialism and Labor." On the same day he will speak at 8 p. m. for the Workmen's Educational Institute of Roxbury, on "Right and Left Wing in the Labor Movement." There will be a musical program, and a question period after the lecture.

WOMEN MILITARISTS MEET AND HURL INVECTIVE AT ALL RADICALS; WANT BIG ARMY AND NAVY; TEACH LADIES BEST WAY TO BE LABOR SPIES

WASHINGTON (FP).—Unaware that the administration was to defiate them by calling for further naval disarmament, the 100 delegates of 20 organizations of women who defend a big army and navy and denounce pacifists and liberals of all kinds, met in the D. A. R. auditorium in the capital on Feb. 9-11.

Literature distributed free at the doors included propaganda for bigger appropriations for the army, the navy and military training in schools and camps, as well as standard pamphlets and documents issued by the American legion lobbyist, John Thomas Taylor, against the poisongas abolition bill.

Even Rosalsky.

One pamphlet handed out was entitled "La Fallette Socialism, Communism," by R. M. Whitney, and contained an index of radical organizations and individuals. These latter included the American Association for Labor Legislation, American Civil Liberties Union, Farmers' National Council, Federal Council of Churches, Fellowship of Reconciliation, Foreign Policy Association, Institute of Economics, People's Legislative Service, League of Women Voters, League for Industrial Democracy, National Popular Government League, Institute for Government Research, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and Zionist Organization of America.

How to Detect.

A press statement handed out at the doors consisted of suggestions by Miss Hermine Strivend of the National Association for Constitutional Government, on "how to detect social propaganda, and those engaged in it." She is in order to make proper arrangement to detection."

Those disguised socialists, it appeared, included advocates of industrial democracy, democratic control, injunction for service, public ownership, freedom of speech, peace by way of disarmament, and prison reform.

Sending to undermine discipline, authority and punishment for crime. Also certain occult spiritist and fad movements, on the order of psychoanalysis, many of which are influenced by the radicals."

Don't Dare Laugh!

Detectors are assured by this document that red socialism is all the core of all who criticize the supreme court and the electoral college, or who "try to ridicule those who believe in the old standards, by pasting on them labels like 'reactionary,' 'imperialistic,' 'chauvinistic,' 'capitalistic' and the like, because the New Republic and the Nation set the fashion."

Asst. Secy. of War McNider made a speech, denouncing the anti-militarists for the deaths of American soldiers killed in 1917 when they were not fully prepared for the world war.

"Wind and Walk."

"The wailing pacifists," said McNider, "is walking hand in hand with those who would undermine the integrity of our government."

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur declared he can "assert in the navy could well be taken from the schools, since the navy was the greatest educational institution in the world."

Catalina Swimmer

Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, proprietor of a beauty shop, mother of an eleven-year-old boy, is the first woman to swim Catalina Channel, California. How many textile worker mothers have this much strength left after a few years in the mills?

New York's Negroes Aim to Strengthen Their Organization

Over two hundred young men and women, both whites and Negroes met yesterday in a Douglas-Lincoln memorial meeting at the International House, 500 Riverside Drive, and took part in the open forum discussion on "Youth and the Negro Problem."

The discussion was lead by A. G. Dill, managing editor of The Crisis, and was followed up by Dewitt Allen, editor of The World Tomorrow, and Alain Locke.

Representatives from other Negro organizations, the intercollegiate club of New York City made up of groups of Negro students, and the Young People's Fellowship, took the floor and stressed the necessity of a closer and stronger Negro organization.

Coast Guard Seize $250,000 in Booze

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13. — A dynamite barge laden with between 2,000 and 3,000 cases of liquor valued at approximately $250,000 was seized today by a coast guard cutter off Hunter's Point in San Francisco bay.

Coincident with the seizure, the cutter frustrated what is believed to have been an attempt to hijack the cargo.

Diesel Engineers Ask More Pay; Engines Run

By The Federated Press)

Such special training is required to operate diesel engines that the Ocean Engineers' Union is hard to pay a different rate of pay over the regular engineers' scale, for diesel men. The shipowners' board is introducing more of these motorships but pays only five and ten dollars over the old rate for the new work. The union points out that an engineer with a chief's license cannot step aboard a motorship unless he has passed the most rigid examinations. Motorships need less than half of the engine-room force required on coal burning ships.

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A DRAMA IN FIVE FORM
written on the Soviet Union
by
Leon Hausman
Author and Playwright
Per Copy at $1.10

sent to Leon Hausman, Babylon, Paul Offer Post Office, Ellsworth, N. Y., secures a copy of "Bolshevik" in English text. Send Translations may be had at a later date.

On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will cost $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, advises his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The author is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" served in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND HOW!!!

Special Meeting of International Branch

A special meeting of the International Branch, 6-A, will be held on Monday, Feb. 14, under the chairmanship of the Secretary-Organizer, Comrade Bimba, at 66 Ten Eyck St.

Civil Liberties Union Wins Right to Hearing

The American Civil Liberties Union won a round over the New York Board of Education when Supreme Court Justice Giveagan signed an order requiring the board to grant the union a hearing upon its application to use high school auditoriums for free-speech meetings.

The Liberties Union has been fighting since last May for equal right with other organizations for the use of the school auditoriums. Last May its scheduling meeting at Mt. Morris High School was stopped and in June another at Stuyvesant High School. The board said it discriminated against the union because of its "radicalism." Samuel Untermeyer is representing the Liberties organization in its present court move.

Subscribe for The DAILY WORKER.

Three Girls Testimony Hits Daugherty

Gladys Weeks and Elizabeth Miller, Department of Justice telephone operators, were government surprise witnesses at the conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General, and Colonel Thomas W. Miller, former Alien Property Custodian, in New York. They testified to frequent telephone calls between Daugherty and the late Jesse King, Daugherty's "right hand man."

Soviet Russia Gives More Land to Jewish Agricultural Colony

Additional American aid for the colonization of Jews in Soviet Russia is solicited in a cablegram received from Moscow yesterday by the "Icor," a local organization assisting in the work of settling Jews on land.

The cablegram sent by the "Ozet" (Colonization Society) of Moscow reads in part:

"The government has just allowed new tracts of land for Jewish colonists. For the cultivation of this land we must have an additional $500,000 above the budget for the current year. Cable what sum you will be able to forward."

The "Icor" is carrying on a campaign for the creation of the necessary funds.

Lawrence Mill Owners And Mayor's Committee Confer Without Result

By SAMUEL BRAMHALL.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 12.—The conference of mill-men and the Lawrence special industrial commission took place here with the unsatisfactory results that were foretold in this paper about a week ago. The public was allowed at the meeting, but given no chance to take part in the proceedings. Edwin Farnum Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills was the only one that spoke at great length, while the representatives of the American Woolen Company and other minor concerns spoke very briefly.

Issue Eest Sight Of.

The strange part of the whole proceedings was that the manufacturers entirely ignored the purpose of the meeting, for they neither complained of their tax burden, the horror of labor, nor did they even admit that there was any depression so far as they were concerned.

Mayor Expectant.

Mayor Rochefort and his commission were all primed up to listen to these giants of industry divulge some great plan for improving business and filling even the thousands of idle tenements and empty stores that exist here. Instead, they were told to try and run the city affairs more economically and to hire an efficiency expert, if deemed advisable.

After two hours of hemming and hawing, some one got out of the audience attempted to address them, but he was choked off by the mayor and the meeting adjourned with nothing more coming out of it than has been stated. The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse.

Commemorate Kropotkin's Career and Death

By ALEXANDER POTOSKY.

(Worker Correspondent)

About 200 workers assembled at International Center, 140 East 27th Street, to commemorate the death of Peter Kropotkin. The meeting was presided over by Comrade Wilbert Berg, who introduced the various speakers.

Kropotkin's life was reviewed in brief biographical sketches, his affiliations and imprisonment in the various capitalistic countries for his activity in the labor movement.

Harry Kelly, who was very intimate with Kropotkin during the latter's stay in London; Hippolyte Havel, editor of the Road to Freedom, while David Nieni and Mrs. Shapiro told of Kropotkin's cooperation with the Soviet government after the overthrow of the Czara's regime.

After the meeting everyone was asked to view a statue of Kropotkin, which had been made for the occasion by Comrade Seitlin.

When replying to these advertisements mention The DAILY WORKER.

Heretic Bishop Speaks March 6 in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES.—A change has been made in the date of Bishop Brown's lecture here for the International Labor Defense. He will speak at Trinity Auditorium Sunday evening, March 6. Other places and dates will be announced later.

Buy Your
DAILY WORKER
at the Newsstand

WORKING CLASS HOUSEWIVES BOO JUDGE ROSALSKY

Agree to Organize for Cloakmakers' Victory

(Continued from Page One)

dustry," said Sherman. "Women and men must together work untedly for the betterment of their conditions."

Tells Women to Organize.

When Fannie Warshafsky, business agent of the Furriers' Union, appeared, wild applause broke out. She told the women to hold fast and organize with their husbands for the release of the arrested cloakmakers. No injunctions, nor even inquisitions can scare the needle trade workers." They have struggled too much to give up.

Sigman was booed all along.

A resolution was passed condemning Judge Rosalsky's actions and demanding immediate unconditional release of the arrested cloakmakers.

Not a Social Club.

Kate Gitlow, the secretary of the United Council of Working Class Housewives of New York City, told of the work the councils were doing to help the cloakmakers, and to organize the women. "Your struggle gets our support," she said. "The Passaic strike, paper box strike, farmers and cloakmakers. We are not a mutual aid organization where women gather to discuss recipes, but we are working women concerned in the battle of the labor movement.

"Religious Duty."

Another speaker was the wife of Joseph Turetsky, one of the cloak strikers who is serving a severe sentence in the penitentiary as a result of Judge Rosalsky's methods of dispensing justice.

Mrs. Turetsky came with her little girl to tell the other women about a letter she had received from her husband. He said that soon after he reached his prison cell a rabbi was sent to him and to the other cloakmakers to try to persuade them it was their religious duty to give information that one of the joint board officials had sent them to the picket lines where they were arrested and had instructed them to commit illegal acts.

Turetsky Refuses.

"My husband refused to say any such thing", said Mrs. Turetsky. "He absolutely refuses to be a squealer and I stand with him."

There was loud applause of this speech, and Mrs. Turetsky will be urged to join the women's committee which has been appointed to continue the agitation for relase of the cloak strikers, and which will visit their comrades in the jail they are taken care of.

Resolution Declares Sigman.

The resolution which was presented by the Women's Council of the United Council of Working Class Housewives, and was unanimously adopted by the meeting, called for the ousting of working class Housewives, the Cloakmakers' Housewives' Council, and the Joint Board of the Cloak and Dressmakers Union, protests against the sentences of Judge Rosalsky;

And be it further resolved, that this meeting protests against the Sigman and Forward acts of betrayal which are aiming to destroy the workers' union.

And we further resolve, that we demand that Sigman keep his hands off the Cloak and Dressmakers Union and that this meeting demands immediate release of the 16 strikers and will do all in its power to fight for their freedom.

BOND HOUSE TELLS HOW EMPLOYE STOCK OWNERSHIP FOOLS WORKERS

"Profit Sharing" Not Pushed Among Clerks Because They Have Little Organization to Fear

(By ROBERT W. DUNN, Federated Press)

Stock ownership by workers as a means of fostering company loyalty and contentment is still growing in the United States. Anywhere from 250 to 400 companies have stock ownership schemes in operation. Possibly three-quarters of a million workers at one time or another have taken a share or more of stock of the company employing them. Installment plan purchases are the rule.

The Bache Review, published by J. S. Bache & Co., brokers, reviewing the benefits to capital from this growth in employe stock ownership, says: "It is impossible to regard this movement except with satisfaction." The bond house believes that the movement "harmonizes capital and labor," encourages thrift and saving, and makes the worker more efficient.

Gives Game Away.

Why corporations have introduced these schemes is clearly implied in the bankers' review. It says:

"Indirectly the philanthropic impetus must be traced to the influence of organization in labor."

In other words, labor organizations has forced the employers into the welfare offensive. Further:

"The labor unions for many years have been fighting for better conditions, and the long drawn-out contest between capital and labor has undoubtedly cost industry billions of dollars.

Weaken Unions.

"Profit-sharing, and finally stock acquisition, were adopted as ameliorating influences (meaning to weaken the trade unions. Ed.) As far as they have been conducted, they have been especially successful.

"The fact that banking institutions have only in few instances adopted the system, gives cause for some reflection. It is true that mainly the number of employes in a single banking institution is limited, but it also may be true that the absence of organization among clerks and failure to exert the labor-union pressure may have something to do with it."

Members of the Bookkeepers', Stenographers' and Accountants' union will be particularly interested in the last sentence.

Strengthens Capitalism.

A no less explicit statement of the purposes and implications of worker stock ownership schemes is presented in a recent issue of the N. Y. World: "Employers stock-ownership is wholly capitalistic in its inspiration, and it is designed to strengthen the pillars of capitalism. . . . The employers who have adopted it have been actuated by motives of enlightened self-interest."

Less Democracy.

Some telling answers to the Harvard and Princeton professors and Wall Street economists who see the coming new revolution rising out of the employe stock ownership wave, have been made by Lewis Corey, who after a thorough study concludes that corporate ownership is not being democratized, even though stockholders may be increasing in number. In 1924, 4.6% of the stockholders owned 76.9% of the stock of American corporations. The tendency is for the large investors to increase their share in corporate ownership. The working class has but slightly increased its stockholdings in recent years and this gain is absolute and not relative. There are no indications that the class concentration of corporate ownership is being broken. Professor Ripley, in his studies in corporate control, has also shown up the fallacy of "revolution" through stock ownership.

Ripley Fables are Bunk.

In fact Ripley and Corey reduce the hopes and prophesies of the other professors to so much bunk, and make their long tables of corporation employe stockholdings appear only to a thoughtless public. The latest release from the Industrial Relations Section of Princeton University reviews the worker stockholders developments of 20 selected corporations and concludes that the number of the present and prospective worker stockholders is only 20% of the number of present stockholders, on the books of the companies, while the market value of the average worker holding or subscription in these special companies is only $1,200.

Study Big Employers.

The 20 companies studied, and th number of employe owners and sub scribers in each, are:

Amer. Sugar Refining Co., 1,000; Amer. Tel and Tel, 67,000; Bethlehem Steel Co., 35,000; Henry I. Doherty & Co. 9,000; Eastman Kodak Co., 15,000; Illinois Central System, 1,256; Intl. Harvester Co., 12,000; Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., 276; Lehigh Valley R. R. Co., 2,127; Natl. Biscuit Co., 3,084; N. Y. Central Lines, 20,463; Penn. R. R., 19,500; Phila. Electric Co., 1,035; Procter & Gamble, 4,326; Pure Oil Co., 1,081; Radio Corp., 443; Standard Oil (Cal.) 11,864; Standard Oil (Ind.) 17,416; Standard Oil (N. J.) 19,135; Swift & Co. 13,000.

Some of the biggest open shop and company union concerns are in the list.

B. Bauer's

DINEWELL

VEGETARIAN and DAIRY RESTAURANT

78 2nd Avenue, Near 4th Street,

The Real Way to Eat —The Natural Way.

Czecho-Slovak Defense Branch Challenges All Others to Bazaar Test

Frank Chaloupka, the representative of the Czecho-slovakian International Labor Defense branch called a I. L. D. office and intimated that activity is greater than ever before.

He said that last year one tenth of all advertisements in the Bazaar Program were secured by the Czecho-slovakian workers. They will do even better this year and are prepared to allow results to prove they are the most active branch engaged in bazaar work.

On behalf of his branch he challenges all other groups to surpass their efforts this year.

Trade unions, cooperatives, clubs, women's councils and I. L. D. branches are all included and are urged to seriously take up this challenge.

No medals will be given the winners. The prize will be that all class war prisoners will become reinvigorated with the knowledge that the workers on the outside are leaving no stone unturned in their fight to burst prison bars and bring the militant spirits into the every day fight.

All together! We want to see the competition become keen. The Fourth Annual I. L. D Bazaar will be the best yet held of all endeavors to surpass the Czecho-slovaks.

Prohibition Probe Will Follow Cooper Impeachment Charge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A congressional investigation into the enforcement of prohibition was near today as the House Judiciary Committee prepared to ask congress for authority to formally consider impeachment charges preferred against Federal Judge Frank Cooper of Albany, N. Y., for his alleged cooperation with "under cover" agents in nabbing dry law violators.

After bickering with Rep. La Guardia (R.) of New York, Judge Cooper's chief accuser, and wrangling over legal phases of the matter for two days, the committee decided to make a complete inquiry as a matter of fair dealing to both sides.

Y. W. L. Gives Dance.

A ball and dance will be held by the Young Workers' (Communist) League, District 2, Saturday, Feb. 19, at Harlem Casino.

ARRESTED, SEX PLAY ACTORS CONTINUE PARTS

Although the casts and managements of three sex plays in New York have been arrested, their plays have been continuing for a few days by means of injunction proceedings. This photo shows the entire cast of "Sex" appearing at midnight in the West Side court. Miss Mae West, star (center), is seen with bowed head while lawyers arrange for bond.

Aliquippa Police Not To Pay for Illegally Raiding and Arresting

By A. JAKIRA.

BEAVER, Pa.—"Ham" Brown, chief of Aliquippa police, will have to pay no damages to Pete Muselin for the false arrest he made on July 27, 1926, in Aliquippa, Pa. This was the verdict of the jury after it was out for just a short time.

Civil Liberties Involved.

Mr Wilson, one of the attorneys for Pete Muselin, in a two-hour speech before the jury pointed out that the question involved is whether the American government is a dictatorship or a democracy. He quoted the constitution of the United States and of the state of Pennsylvania to show that no search should be made without a warrant, that the Communists have as much right to hold meetings and to advocate their theories and id as as any one else, even though one may disagree with these ideas.

He brought out numerous facts from American history showing that many leaders who were responsible for the liberation of America from the English oppression were likened to prosecutions just the same as the Communists are subjected to in this country at the present time.

Yet, they, these leaders, are admired by everyone now, he pointed out. He called attention to the fact that the witnesses for the chief of police contradicted themselves, and that Brown was merely a tool in the hands of some "outside" force. His speech had a big effect upon the jury and upon the numerous spectators who were present in court.

Judge Attacks Muselin.

Judge Wm. A. McConnell, instead of acting as the "impartial" judge as his duty demands in his instruction to the jury indulged in a bitter attack against the plaintiff and the witnesses who testified against Brown, after which the verdict for Brown was brought in.

Court Takes Revenge

As soon as the verdict was announced the court decided to raise the bail of Muselin, Rescetar and Zima to five thousand dollars each in place of the one thousand dollars under which they were held on a charge of violation of the infamous Flynn Anti Sedition Act of Pennsylvania on Armistice Day when three houses were raided in Woodlawn and eight men arrested. Detective Brown himself up to the police authorities in Beaver while the International Labor Defense was busy getting the additional bail.

The International Labor Defense will help Muselin to carry the fight to a higher court, declared Carolin Scollen, the secretary of the International Labor Defense.

Young Workers League Will Have Spring Dance In Bronx, on March 26

Saturday evening, March 26, the Bronx section of the Young Workers League will give a spring dance and entertainment at 1347 Boston Road, Bronx. Keep this date open. We ask all sympathetic organizations not to arrange any affirs on this date.—Bronx Section Y. W. L. Arrangements Committee.

Young Workers Will Dance on Valentine Night in Cleveland

CLEVELAND. — Cleveland young workers will coma together in a gala Valentine dance on Feb. 20, at the I. O. O. F. Hall, Superior at Ansel and East 123d Street, at 7 p. m. The hall has an excellent floor, and one of the finest union jazz orchestras in the city will assure all who come one of the best times in their lives. Admission 50 cents. Refreshments will be served. Under auspices of the Young Workers' (Communist) League.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

The Manager's Corner

PERFECT THE MACHINE.

The DAILY WORKER has come to New York and has thus taken the first long step toward establishing itself as a mass paper of the workers. The DAILY WORKER is now being distributed to thousands of newsstands in that great city. The inspiration, life and the movement of the great metropolis is being carried throughout the country. It now behooves us to perfect The DAILY WORKER machinery and make it an effective instrument for the building up of our circulation.

In every section of the city there must be established an effective machinery for the inspection of newsstands. Every comrade should inspect at least three stands or more on his way to or from work. Comrades should gain the good will of the newsdealers. See it he handles The DAILY WORKER. See if he receives too many or too few copies. See if he displays the copies properly. Urge workers to buy the paper at the nearest newsstand to his shop or home. Send in to our Local Office at 108 East 14th Street all complaints or reports on how the paper is being handled.

In every trade union, fraternal organization, or workingclass group, there should be built up a two-fold machinery, one a publicity department in charge of an able comrade to keep The DAILY WORKER constantly with the latest news and these comrade in charge of promoting the sale of the paper.

Simultaneously the sub-scription drive must be pushed with energy in all places and at reach of the newsstands. The paper in its new form has received the highest praise from all over the country. Its new features are attracting more and more attention. The workers are deeply interested in the valuable prizes we are offering. The new "Red Cartoons of 1927," which is being offered as a prize for every annual subscription is in itself worth the price of a subscription alone. On with the drive for 25,000 readers. Build up The DAILY WORKER machine.—BERT MILLER.

COOPERATIVE HOUSING BRINGS OUT ALL FAULTS OF CAPITALIST BUILDING PROFITEERS

By A. LOSSEFF.

The United Workers Co-operative Association is celebrating the completion of the first square block of the five-story brick houses for workers and their families. These houses are at Allerton Ave. Bronx Park E. Rooms and apartments are divided as follows: 1,000 rooms, 339 apartments consisting of 3, 4 and 5 rooms with kitchenette and 70 single rooms, each large enough for two persons to live in. Practically all rooms are a great deal larger than those of private houses.

Looks Well.

No work was spared to make the place look nice and interesting. Two main entrances are made in a form of a cross. But this is almost as safe as a traffic square.

Basements Used.

No janitors will live in the basements, occupying their time with drinking beer and running a hooch barrel as a side line, always looking for tips from the tenants. In the cooperative houses the janitor can afford to live upstairs, pay for his rooms and get paid for his work, for his regular hours. Furthermore, the basements will be occupied with other things more important than running a hooch businesss.

Social Halls.

All social and economic affairs will take place in the basement. There will be a big auditorium, a library, a restaurant, a day nursery for children when mothers are at work, a medical preventorium department, which is not only for curing sickness but to teach people how to keep themselves in good health. A current weekly newspaper, a separate place for school and lectures, for old and young. The superintendent's office and telephone switch-board, a radio set, hot and cold showers, athletic room, rooms for washing private laundry and drying (no drying lines in yard and furthermore they signed a contract with a union steam laundry).

The steam boilers are dug deeper in the basement. There is also a machine shop for keeping things in good order.

Fine Speakers Ready For Harlem Meeting; Problems of Negroes

Negro workers who come to the American Negro Labor Congress meeting Tuesday night will hear some good speakers. Lovett Fort-Whiteman, field organizer of the congress will speak, and so will John Ballam, chairman of the progressive textile conference. Glenn Carrington, one of the student delegation to Russia will tell of life there in various phases, and there will be a literary program, in which Mike Gold, editor of the New Masses, will read some of his latest works.

The meeting is held at 8 p. m., at A. M. F. M. Z. church community house, 151 West 130th St.

Hodges and Bondfield Agree to Reduce Dole Of British Unemployed

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A severe reduction of the unemployment "dole" will be made as the result of the recommendations of Lord Blanesburgh's Unemployment Insurance Committee, it was learned yesterday. The committee, whose report was unanimous, contains two labor members, Frank Hodges and Miss Margaret Bondfield.

The benefits for young men and women between the ages of 18 and 21 will be substantially reduced—from 18 to 10 shillings a week in the case of young men and from 15 to 8 shillings a week in the case of young women. The adult male's benefit will be reduced from 18 to 17 shilling a week.

DRAMA

"Carmen" to be Presented in Talking' Pictures'

"Carmen," with the Metropolitan Opera cast, headed by Martinelli, will be presented in talking picture form this season, according to Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers. This is the first presentation of the kind, and will run thirty minutes. The Shuberts are planning to cooperate with the Warners in producing a fifty minute version of "The Student Prince," on the Vitaphone. If it proves successful, other light operas would be treated in the same way and shown in motion picture houses. Revivals of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanth" and "The Pirates of Penzance" may follow later.

VAUDEVILLE THEATRES

MOSS' BROADWAY.

The Broadway vaudeville program this week will include: Charles Withers and company in "Withers Op'ry"; William and Elsa Newell's Frank Stafford and Company; The Dancing Cyclones; and the Vagges.

PALACE.

Vera Gordon and Co., in "Her Triumph," a one-act comedy by Edgar Allan Woolf and William Siegel; Will Oakland; Hal Skelly, with Peggy Hope and Eunice Sauvain; Jimmy Savo, with Joan Franzz; Gordon Bostock's "Haunted," with Florence Crowley and William Wilson; Pat Henning and Co.; Whitey, with Ed Ford; Joe Fanton and Co.

HIPPODROME.

Hardeen, assisted by James Collins and James Vickery; Modena's "Flashes of Art," with Julia Steger and Rosita; The Three Sailors; Kharum; Joe Young and Co.; Four Radings.

"The Showman," a new musical comedy written by Paul Gerard Smith, Dave Stamper and Joe Laurie, Jr., will be put into rehearsal next week.

JULIUS TANNEN

Chief funmaker of "Vanities," Earl Carroll's revue at the Earl Carroll Theatre.

BROADWAY GOSSIP

The Civic Repertory Players will give five plays at their theatre on 14th Street this week. Tonight and Wednesday matinee, they will present "The Master Builder"; Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, "Cradle Song"; Wednesday night, "Three Sisters"; Friday night, "John Gabriel Borkman"; Saturday matinee "Twelfth Night."

DULCIE COOPER

In "The Little Spitfire," at the Bronx Opera House this week.

The published version of "Broadway," which Jed Harris is presenting at the Broadhurst, will be published by George H. Doran and Company.

"Below the Line," by Chester DeVonde and Kilbourn Gordon, has been put into rehearsal by Mr. Gordon. The play opens out of town in two weeks.

"Spread Eagle," a new play by George Brooks and Walter Lister, Jed Harris's newest production, is being staged by George Abbott.

"In Abraham's Bosom," will move after all. Paul Green's dramatic play will be transferred from the Provincetown Playhouse to the Garrick Theatre tonight.

The British Committee, co-operating in the Actors' Fund of America $1,500,000 endowment campaign, will give an all-British benefit performance Sunday, February 27, at the Imperial Theatre

On the Screen

"Taxi, Taxi," a comedy with Everett Horton and Marion Nixon, is the photoplay at the Hippodrome this week. The cast also includes Harr McIntosh, Edward Martindel, William V. Mong, Lucien Littlefield and Freeman Wood. It is based on George Weston's story of the same name.

"Thirty Years in Motion Pictures," the compilation of various films which was exhibited last month at the Third Annual Better Films Conference, is to be exhibited at Carnegie Hall on Monday evening, February 28.

The Film Arts Guild, has leased the Times Square Theatre for Sunday showing of films in repertoire, and also premiere presentations of imported pictures beginning Sunday, February 20.

D. W. Griffith's production of "Sorrows of Satan" is being shown this week at Moss' Broadway Theatre. Adolphe Menjou appears as Satan in the picturization of Marie Corelli's novel.

Victor Herbert's well known musical comedy "The Red Mill," is the current screen feature at the Capitol Theatre, Marion Davies plays the role of the Dutch heroine

Jules Verne's "Michael Strogoff", is being held over at the Cameo Theatre for another week.

AMUSEMENTS

Neighborhood Playhouse 466 Grand St. Dryden 2105
Evgs. 8:30 (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
By Francis Edwards Faragoh
THE BARRIER—Feb 17 thru Feb. 25

AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre West 48 St. 6TH MONTH Mats. Wed and Sat.

KLAW THEA., W. 45th St. Evs. 8:30 MATINEES THURS. & SAT.
"SINNER"
With Allan Dinehart & Claiborne Foster

Sam. H. HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2:30 & 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2

Bronx Opera House 149th Street E. of 3rd Ave. Pop. Prices. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
"THE LITTLE SPITFIRE"
Byron C. Fogus's Great Comedy.

BROADWAY BROADHURST W. 44th St. Evs. 8:30
Xtra Mats. Feb. 22, 23, 24 and 28

Thea., 48 St., W. of B'way. Evgs. 8:30
Matinees Wed. and SAT. 2:30
Bonnie
Musical Bon Bon with Dorothy Burgess, Louie Simon, Wm. Frawley, George Sweet.

PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Mats. Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. Evenings and Tel. Wait. 8:30
Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co. WINTHROP AMES presents THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE
Thursday Evenings Only, "Iolanthe"

The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF, 49th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

Civic Repertory Cor. 6 Av. & 14 St. Watkins 7247
EVA LE GALLIENNE
Tonight ..... "MASTER BUILDER"
Tomorrow Evening ... "CRADLE SONG"

EARL CARROLL THEATRE 7th Ave. 50th St.
EARL CARROLL VANITIES
Fred Allen Harold Mack
Chariot's Revue Julius Tannen

Theatre Guild Acting Company in BROTHERS KARAMAZOV
Week Feb. 14—PYGMALION
GUILD Thurs. W 52 St. Evs. 8:15 Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:15

THE SILVER CORD
Week Feb. 14—Ned McCobb's Daughter
John Golden Thurs. Sat. Mats. 2:15

BOARD WINS IN THREE HUNDRED GARMENT SHOPS

Sigman's Agents Are Not Recognized

The attempt of Isidore Agree, general manager of the Association of Dress Manufacturers, Inc, to minimize strikes called in the dress shops by the Joint Board during the past week, as intended to "confuse the issue and fool his own membership", according to a statement issued last Friday by C. S. Zimmerman, manager of the dress division of the Joint Board.

Get Most of Shops.

He explained that 300 shops have been visited by business agents of the Joint Board during the past week, and that only 10 have refused to recognize them as the proper representatives of the workers. Of the 10 strikes called in these shops, four have settled with the Joint board, he said. He declared that the business agents would enforce the terms of the old agreements, which are much more favorable to the union than the new agreement, signed by Sigman, which was never authorized by the membership or submitted for ratification.

Fake Agents.

Mr. Zimmerman's statement is as follows:

"The manager of the Association of Dress manufacturers, Mr. Agree, is trying to confuse the issue and fool his membership when he states that the business agents of the Joint Board have been entering shops under the false pretences of being representatives from the International. Our officers have specifically stated that they were the representatives of the Joint Board and not of the International, and that is why they have been admitted and have been received by the workers with open arms. The business agents of the International have been driven from the shops in many cases, not because they are the ones who are entering the shops under the false pretences of representing the Joint Board.

To Enforce Terms.

"The strikes we are calling are by no means political strikes. they are purely economic strikes to enforce the terms of the old agreement, since the agreement signed by the International is illegal. The International never was authorized to sign it, and it was never submitted for ratification by the membership.

"Out of the 300 shops visited by the business agents this week, only 10 have refused to admit them and recognize the old agreement. These 10 shops were declared on strike, and four of them have settled, agreeing to recognize the Joint Board and admit the business agents of the Joint Board in the shops.

BOSSES BREAK PROMISE TO PAY CAPMAKERS MORE

Rank and File Pressure Forcing Official Action

Fifteen hundred New York capmakers may go on strike in the near future as a result of the bosses' association refusing to give the workers the ten dollar a week increase on February 1st, as agreed upon in the contract signed last July.

At that time oftar a four weeks strike the Capmakers' union signed a three-year contract for an immediate two dollar a week increase and an additional one dollar on the first of February.

When the date for the one dollar increase came, the bosses flatly refused to live up to their contract, undoubtedly under the impression that the right wingers in control of the union would not make any fight for it. In this they were correct. At first the right wing administration was quiet, but due to pressure from the rank-and-file of the union it has been forced to take a position of leading the struggle for the fulfillment of the contract signed by the cap bosses.

Measure to Boost The Price of Milk Passes Both Houses

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.— Passage of the Tabor milk bill, regulating importation of Canadian milk, was completed today when the house accepted senate amendments.

Representatives Black (D) and La Guardia (R) of New York, declared the measure would cause a shortage of milk and higher prices in New York City.

Under the bill the secretary of agriculture can require Canadian dairymen to conform to American standards.

ENGDAHL AND EPSTEIN WILL SPEAK AT BANQUET FOR DAILY WORKER IN BOSTON, FEBRUARY 19

Besides the wonderful musical program that has been arranged, J. Louis Engdahl, the editor of The DAILY WORKER and Moissaye Epstein, the editor of the Jewish Daily Freiheit will be the speakers at the All-New England DAILY WORKER banquet in Boston on February 19th. Delegates from all New England states coming to the conference on the next day will be present at the banquet. All the friends of The DAILY WORKER in Boston will be there. Beside the featured speakers, Comrade Otkbw, who is speaking at the Workers' Forum the next night, Lobrett Fort Whiteman, the organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress, and John H. Ballam may be present at the banquet.

Since a very limited number of plates at $1.25 per plate is available the sale of tickets will be discontinued on Sunday, Feb. 15th. If you want to be there be sure to get your tickets before then, or at the latest at the Worker's Forum on the 15th. Tickets may be secured from the Boston DAILY WORKER office at 36 Causeway street, Boston, also from any DAILY WORKER agent in New England.

His Arm Cut Off, Worker Sues Lehigh For $100,000 Damage

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 13.—A hundred thousand dollar suit brought against the Lehigh Valley Railroad in circuit court here, by Earl Dixon, 17, of 114 Garrabendt street, and his father Albert Dixon, was settled today for $10,000 and the settlement approved by Judge Frank I. Cleary.

Young Dixon was at work in the railway yards at the foot of Johnston avenue on February 6, 1926, when he was struck by a locomotive. Amputation of his right arm resulted from the injuries he sustained.

SIGMAN PROVIDES BAIL FOR GUNMEN WHO SHOT COHEN

The appearance of the attorneys of the International in court yesterday morning to defend four gangsters, members of the notorious "Frenchy" gang which shot and wounded Samuel Cohen as he was leaving a picket line last Monday, definitely places responsibility upon the International for the activities of these gunmen and thugs.

The four gangsters were arraigned in the 54th street court where they were represented by counsel of the International. They were fully identified as the men who jumped out of a sedan on Fifty Seventh street and Broadway and fired three shots at pickets who were returning from the Reisman, Rothman, and Heuver shop where the Joint Board has called a strike for discharge of workers who refused to register with the International.

Three of the man, who gave their names as Max Richter, Michael Friedman and Harry Goldman were released on $8,000 bail and Samuel Ober was released on $1,000 bail, the International furnishing bail in all cases.

Rum Runners Tell on Mayor; Judge Sends Them to Jail At Once

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Aroused by what he characterized as the attempted exercise of "influence" in behalf of the convicted men, Federal Judge Mieklns today suddenly discontinued the bail of Charles Kinder, brothers, and DeWitt Turner, three pumpsalls the Edgewater, N. J., rum bribery case, and ordered all three committed to prison to begin serving their sentence immediately.

As all three men testified for the government in the prosecution of Mayor Henry Wassel of Edgewater and other defendants after pleading guilty in their own cases, the new order occasioned considerable surprise. Just what effect it may have on United State Attorney Buckner's policy of permitting a certain number of defendants to take pleas and aid the government in rum ring cases, in the future was the subject of no little speculation around the federal building when news of the development got round.

PAINTERS' UNIONS SEEK ARREST OF OUSTED GRAFTERS

Instruct Secretary to File Claims

The New York Painters' District Council at its last meeting instructed its secretary, Thomas Wright, to file a claim of $20,000 against the Bond-ing Company of the councils deposed officers.

Huge Funds Stolen.

This action was taken following the publication of Organizer Doyle's report, which charges that the treasury of the council has been robbed to the amount of $36,000. Of this sum $23,000 has been traced, it is claimed, to Charles Koenig, former finance secretary of that body, who has ever since the discovery of his alleged misappropriation of funds, been in hiding.

Will Arrest Grafters.

Mr. Wright, the present secretary of the council, stated: "Koenig is not the only one involved in this robbery, but was working together with at least three others, with former Secretary Philip Zausner playing the leading role.

"We are determined that every one of these men be brought to trial. We have the information and the facts which will convict them and will certainly not rest until punishment is meted out."

Ignores Balance On Hand.

The report of Doyle does not give a correct account of the council's finances during the last 19 months, the period under dispute and completely ignores that at the time of January 1925, date his report started from, the council had a balance of cash on hand of $30,000. If this be added to the figure of Doyle's report, the total is then brought up to $60,000.

Shields Zausner.

The council by a majority vote rejected Koenig's proposition, pretended thru Organizer Doyle, that he would reimburse the council 50 cents on the dollar on the amount of $23,000, which can be traced, it is said, to have been stolen by him.

Doyle's report is prepared in such a way that Philip Zausner is not implicated.

Altho he had instructions to investigate the council's books up to the date of the 31 Doyle's report ends with August 31. Wright stated that Doyle had not dared to give information for the period between August and November because of the alleged incriminating evidence against Zausner in this period.

Treasurer Also Involved

Latest developments show it is claimed that the treasurer of the council, William Hartley, has been directly working together with the machine

Checks which he received and cashed were not credited in the accounts, it is said. Wright said that the claim for $20,000 against the bonding company will be filed with the district attorney's office, and that he will press for immediate action.

Demand Conviction

Doyle's report and recommendation had been sent to all local unions, the majority of whom rejected his proposition that the organization accept part reimbursement. A unanimous demand for the immediate arrest and conviction of Zausner, Koenig and Hartley was their answer.

Ponzi Held in Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 13.—Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson today denied a hearing on a habeas corpus petition filed for Charles Ponzi, financial wizard, under sentence as a thief in Massachusetts. Attorneys for Ponzi said their next step probably would be an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of New Orleans.

FAKERS' PRESS CAMPAIGNING TO JAIL GORETZKY

Out on High Bail, But Workers Re-elect Him

Another instance of flagrant action on the part of officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union is indicated in the re-arrest of Joseph Goretzky, manager of Local 35, who was just released on $35,000 bail yesterday morning after spending the night in the Tombs.

All last week the Jewish newspaper which is spokesman for the "right wing" had daily articles on the fact that Goretzky, who had been chairman of the picket committee during the strike, was still free while other cloakmakers were behind prison bars because of their strike activities. The fact that this paper, and the officials it represents, had helped to put these men in jail was not mentioned.

Extra High Bail.

On Thursday Goretzky was called for trial on assault charges for which he had been indicted several weeks ago and been held in jail for two weeks on exhorbitant bail. When he arrived at the court on Thursday, he was immediately re-arrested by members of the Industrial Squad on new charges growing out of alleged "information" given to the grand jury early this week.

Right Wing Provoked.

Goretzky is convinced that his arrest is the direct result of the provocative agitation carried on against him by the "right wing."

It is certainly in line with the statement of President Sigman of the I. L. G. W. U. to members of the shop chairmen's council who visited him several weeks ago, that the best way to settle the internal dissention in the union was to put a few of the "left wing" leaders in jail. Apparently he is attempting by every possible trick to bring this about.

Install Goretzky.

Joseph Goretzky, who was recently re-elected manager of Local 35 by an overwhelming majority, is to be one of the officers installed by the shop chairmen's council at the meeting in Manhattan Lyceum this afternoon.

Yesterday, for the third time, sentences were postponed in the cases of Dacter Newman and Max Borenstein who are being held in the Tombs by Judge Rosalsky. Their cases are again scheduled to come up on Monday.

Philadelphia Needle Workers Greet Hyman At Rousing Meeting

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. Feb. 12 — Two thousand five hundred needle trades unionists of this city acclaimed the leadership of Louis Hyman in the New York struggle of the rank and file against reactionary officialdom.

At the highly enthusiastic meeting held at Garden Hall, Seventh and Master streets, he was given an ovation such as befits an honest man and true labor leader.

The story of the New York situation was developed, the trickery of the Sigman clique, and the prospects for the workers to run their own union for a while, were set forth by Hyman, and attentively listened to by young and old. Many who could not get into the meeting were turned away at the door.

* * *

FOUND—A lady's pocket-book has been found with $35 in it at the mass meeting, Garden Hall. Owner apply to Arrangements Committee.

"The Cab Driver" Tells Of Firing Drivers Who Won't Go Out Chainless

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 13.— "The Cab Driver", militant little organizing sheet issued by the Cab Drivers' union now being runs up here, announces that George Mink, formerly president, has been reinstated, and is elected secretary. Candidates for admission to the union should communicate with him at P. O. Box 580, Philadelphia. Percy E. Jodry is elected president.

The bulletin tells of one of the grievances of the men as follows:

"Good of the Service."

"One of the company drivers refused to take out a skidding A type cab on icy slippery streets on Saturday during the snow storm without chains for protection against accidents. The result is, said driver has been fired "for the good of the service." He also was threatened with physical violence for protesting against such unfair treatment by one of the yellow livered yes-yes rats of the bosses at the South Garage.

"You all probably know how the company will tax you lie in jail, if you are arrested for an accident, until your relatives or friends put up your bail. Said driver refused to sign the slanders against him in safely operating his cab refused to go out without chains and was fired.

"Now, boys is the time to join the Cab Drivers' Union and put a stop to them forcing us to take out cabs without the fullest protection against accidents, bad charges and hold-ups which all help to reduce our already measly wages."

CHICAGO BAZAAR FOR DAIL WORKER, FREIHEIT AND INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE, FEB. 25

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—As the date for the workers' carnival bazaar draws near those interested in putting it over with a bang are doubling their energies for the collection of articles.

The "$10,000 bazaar" is to take place at the Ashland Auditorium, February 25, 26 and 27, for the benefit of The DAILY WORKER, The Freiheit and 30 per cent of the net proceeds will be donated to the International Labor Defense.

Labor Busy.

Groups of workers from trade unions, branches of the International Labor Defense, and those interested aspecially in helping The DAILY WORKER and the Freiheit are busily engaged in committees to make of this bazaar the biggest and most successful affair Chicago has had. A very interesting program of entertainment has been arranged with a different feature each afternoon and evening, winding up on Sunday night.

Take Booths.

A number of organizations and groups have already reserved booths for which they are collecting articles which will be sold at the bazaar by their own committees. Among those are the following: Workingmens' Sick and Death Benefit Society together with other German organizations and the Irving Park English branch of the I. L. D. will have its won booth.

Workmen's Circle 519 and the Ladies Auxiliary will have one. The Freiheit Youth Club, The Central Committee of the Local Chicago I. L. D., the Freiheit Singing Society, the Young Workers' League of Chicago, Independant Circle 96, and the progressive groups in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union and the Milliner and Cap Makers' union, also the Northwest Jewish branch of I. L. D. together with the progressive group in the Mothers' League, will have booths of their own.

Workers Party Sections 17 and 30 have each promised one big article as has the Karl Marx Club.

Need Articles.

Committees of collectors continue to do our daily gathering donation. All those who eva articles for the bazaar are strongly urged to deliver them at headquarters, 19 South Lincoln St., or at the office of the Freiheit, 3209 Roosevelt Rd., or at Cashensky's Book Store. This is very important as the volunteers who are building the booth must know how much material is collected as soon as possible. All delegates must be present at the conference Sunday, February 13th, 10:30 a. m., at the Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium
ASHLAND AVE AND VAN BUREN

FEB. 25th
" 26"
" 27"

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT. 30% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.

Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $15.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

GET IN LINE! HELP!

HALT!

WHO GOES THERE?

FRIEND or FOE?

From the outskirts of the war zone to the tent of the Council of War, there rings, in every struggle, the challenge: "Who goes there? Friend or Foe?" The friend is hailed with open arms—the foe with arrest and the call, "What ho the Guard!"

The DAILY WORKER is in the midst of a fight to establish itself as the organ of the struggle of the American workers against their exploiters. IT HAS CALLED FOR MORE AMMUNITION FROM THE FIGHTERS BEHIND THE FRONT; the kind it fights with is

25,000 Subscriptions

The Mass Movement Scheme of the Russian Bolsheviks, in which 100 comrades thruout the country will be challenged to tell what they are doing to BUILD the DAILY WORKER, is the system of field tactics adopted by our "Council of War." When each of the challenged comrades has sent in his subscriptions, he has the right to challenge five other comrades, a right which is accorded to each of them and their successive challengees.

Suppose YOU are challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

WILL YOU answer friend or foe? If it's friend, you've got to show us a safe-conduct pass; in this case, a flock of annual subs. When the call comes—YOU wouldn't want to be a SLACKER, would YOU?

This being a fight to the finish, we've got all the necessary trappings. Medals? Sure, lots of 'em, in the form of

PRIZES TO ALL DAILY WORKER BUILDERS

The following prizes are offered to those securing subscriptions from others:

For [illegible] annual subs for $50.00 worth) a copy of "Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2.00 worth of literature or $3.00 worth of literature thereof. Free choice of titles.

For 10 annual subscriptions (or $60.00 worth) $3.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 20 annual subscriptions for $120.00 worth) $10.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For 30 annual subscriptions for $180.00 worth) $25.00 worth of literature. Free choice of titles.

For the medal: Again for the next record of subscriptions [illegible] months [illegible] new subscriptions.

A $100 LENIN BOOKSHELF

of Communist literature with a handsome bookcase to the comrade with the best record for getting subscriptions in the entire country.

A DAILY WORKER BUILDERS' BUTTON

will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

Even the New Subscribers will come in for a share of the prizes!

PRIZES FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS

Every new subscriber sending in a year's subscription will receive a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons of 1927," with full page reproductions of the work of the following noted artists

Boardman Robinson, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Hugo Gellert, Lydia Gibson, Art Young, Maurice Becker, K. R. Nicholas, Hay Bahr, F. Dorgan, Fred Ellis, H. M. Zimmerman and others. This wonderful collection of pictures is not to be offered only to subscribers who send in their subscriptions during the present campaign.

PRIZES FOR CITIES AND DISTRICTS

A BANNER

A $100 RADIO

of the latest and most improved model to the best district in the country.

NOTE—Credit will be given for all subscriptions to the Sunday Worker, Workers Monthly (Communist), Communist International, Inprecorr, Young Worker, and Young Comrade.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by cash.

There should be full co-operation between comrades working for the foreign language papers and those working for the DAILY WORKER. Comrades will receive whatever allowances are approved for subscriptions to the foreign language papers. Comrades soliciting for the foreign language papers should join the DAILY WORKER, and are entitled to credit, just as will all other comrades.

The prizes mentioned above are all reasonable offers. We are offering no gold bricks. We are planning to award them at the May 1 celebrations throughout the country.

A special effort should be made to secure Annual subscriptions. Short term subscriptions are costly to us and do not help to give The DAILY WORKER a steady list of readers.

Renewals will be credited as new subscriptions.

The campaign closes April 23 (Lenin's Birthday). With this new ammunition, 25,000 new subscriptions, The DAILY WORKER will be firmly established in the front line trenches of the American labor movement.

The fight is on!!! Are YOU with us? We won't give you the super-profits munition manufacturers' gol during the World War; but there are the prizes—you'll agree them more than the warmakers valued theirs, because they'll be a reward for honest effort, not dishonest exploitation.

If YOU Are Challenged:

"WHO GOES THERE?"

Are YOU prepared to answer proudly?

"FRIEND!"

DAILY WORKER
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
$8.00 per year $4.50 six months $2.50 three months	$6.00 per year $3.50 six months $2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE .....Editors
BERT MILLER.....Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Wilbur Sees Red.

Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the United States navy, added his voice to that of the Manchurian bandit, Chang Tso-Lin, in behalf of the defense of civilization and democracy against the "Communist menace."

Lest the world, thru a social revolution, might be tossed into the lap of autocracy, Mr. Wilbur favors a large navy that will hold the thin red line of democracy against the danger that confronts it from the general direction of the Soviet Union.

Because the United States feels that the world is in danger of being saddled with a "proletarist oligarchy" it has taken certain precautionary measures, such as threatening to make war on Mexico, landing troops in Nicaragua and playing a tool of the National City Bank of New York on the presidential chair, dispatching marines to protect the Chinese from themselves and slaughtering batches of Filipinos periodically, lest our supply of sugar may run low.

No sir, we have no materialistic interest in building a large navy. We must save the world from the working-class. This great country of ours that was founded by men that never told a lie will never become imperialistic. Haven't we the ballot which we cast at $10 a crack?

United States marines are not sent to Latin America because the United Fruit company has no bananas. They are sent down there to build sewers and bury the dead cats. They don't go to Nicaragua to protect the intrests of the National City bank. They go to prevent two rival presidents from killing each other. They don't go to China to protect the investments of American capitalists and to prevent the Chinese from sending our missionaries to Jesus before they are thru with the joys of the flesh. Our state department does not threaten to make war on Mexico because the interests of the oil, land and mining magnates are in jeopardy, but because the United States is opposed in principle to the governmental confiscation of property.

And above all, our armies and navies do all those things because of the "Communist menace" which is raising the devil everywhere.

Secretary Wilbur should have his cranium lifted by an ex pert. There is too much fat on the inside of it.

Where the Wish Is Father to the Thot.

The New York Evening Post of yesterday carried a headline which represented the Cantonese as being on the verge of a split with the "reds" losing out in the alleged struggle for control of the Koumintang Party.

The story on which this misleading headline is based comes from Washington. It does not rest on any firmer basis than the opinion of our old friend the "observer," who is as close to the gentleman who sent the dispatch as the president's Spokesman is to the president.

The Post correspondent declares that official Washington is interested in the possibility of the conservatives in the Koumintang Party gaining control of the organization and making an alliance with a section of the northern forces of which Chang Tso-Lin is the dominant figure. This hoped-for development would suit the state department down to the ground. It would suit the British foreign office. It would suit all parties to the conflict except the Chinese masses and the working class of all countries who are the only true friends of the Cantonese revolutionary movement.

The imperialists are willing to spend much money with the object of corrupting the leaders of the Cantonese government. It would be a cheaper and more effective way of achieving their purpose in China than an armed invasion. But the Koumintang Party is something else than a collection of bandit generals out for loot and ready to hock anything in sight for cash. The years of educational work put in by Dr. Sun Yat Sen have borne fruit. He taught the Chinese masses that their chief enemies were the foreign imperialists and their agents, the militarists, the Chang-Tso-Lins, the Wu-Pei-Fus and the Sun Chuan-Fangs. The masses have not forgotten Dr. Sun's teaching. It is not likely that they will spurn their great leader's policy in favor of the program of the robber imperialists.

The Poor Little Rich Girl

Doris Duke, a fourteen year old girl, was recently declared the owner of a New York residence valued at $1,600,000, furnishings, art objects and other property worth more than $600,000, a private railroad car named for her and four automobiles.

James B. Duke, her father, departed from this life and from an estate worth $60,000,000. He made his money in tobacco, which is to say that he amassed this enormous amount of wealth by exploiting thousands of workers, whose labor power he purchased at the minimum.

This is the land of opportunity! Indeed! The wives and daughters of the workers out of whose unpaid labor Duke was able to amass those millions that will enable his heirs to live in luxury, will never enjoy the luxuries of a million-dollar mansion. They are lucky if they get an occasional ride in a taxi. No railroad cars are named after them. They were ordained to go through this life with the brand of wage slavery on their brow. They, the toilers, must live on the crumbs while the parasites skim the cream.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

THE STRIKE

Idle Hands Make the Parasites Stand Aghast.

AKRON POLICE CHIEF WORRIED ABOUT RUBBER COMPANIES' REACTION TO NEARING MEETING

By CARL HACKER.

AKRON, Feb 13 - Aside from having at least partially broken the ban on distribution of literature which has existed in Akron since 1913, the date of the last great strike there, this is really a funny story.

I went to Akron for the purpose of advertising the Nearing meeting via leaflets at the gates of the rubber plants.

Company Police Quiz.

The company's uniformed police called me in and finally let me go again. I went to another entrance. After being there five minutes, a city police captain, a lieutenant and a patrolman drove up in a car and placed me under arrest. Up to this time only casual interest was paid to the leaflet which I was handing out, but when the workers saw an arrest they began gathering in circles and picking up leaflets which had been thrown away in order that they might be informed what it was all about

Interview With The Chief.

After a considerable time of waiting I was finally sheered into the office of the police chief. For better effect I will explain here via questions and answers just what took place:

Q. You must be a Russian?

A. No.

Q. Well, you must at least be of Russian descent?

A. No, not even that.

After scratching his head he finally blurts out, "Well, I don't suppose that makes any difference anyway, you might ask me what I am and I would tell you I am Irish, but that really has nothing to do with this question."

After another brief hesitation he picks up one of the leaflets which I had been distributing and said "This is seditious matter and we do not intend to stand for any insurrection in Akron. We have the guns and we have the ammunition with which to put down any insurrection in this city."

Revolution Not Yet.

I told him that as far as I knew there was no immediate danger of insurrection in Akron

Foolish Ordinance.

He then asked me if we intended to have any speakers in foreign languages at this meeting, and that if we did he would not permit the meeting to be held. I asked him upon what authority he could stop a meeting at which foreign speakers are to be made. Then he showed me a copy of an ordinance which was passed in Akron during the war days prohibiting speeches in any language but English, excepting at church services.

He handed it to me and after reading it asked me what I thought of it. I told him that I thought it was a very childish piece of legislation. I further told him that in the course of our work, the International Labor Defense would necessarily have to hold meetings in foreign languages and that we did not intend to apply to the police department of that city for permission to hold such meetings, and that we will be ready to fight the consequences.

This surely is a violation of the freedom of speech of the rankest kind and cannot be tolerated in Akron, and certainly should not be tolerated anywhere.

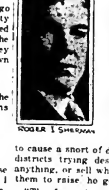
Rubber Co. Law.

He finally drifted back to the subject of leaflets and on my questioning admitted that the ordinance forbidding the distribution of literature was passed for the benefit of the rubber companies in 1913 at the time of the great rubber strike, but since the leaflet was not so had and since no great emergency existed he would permit us to continue with the distribution but that we should have to remain a little away from the gates so that the rubber companies might not be annoyed.

Heretic Bishop Will Speak at Denver Church Auditorium; for I. L. D.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 13.—Bishop William Montgomery Brown will speak at Grace Church Auditorium, Saturday, Feb. 26, and on Sunday evening, Feb. 27th., he will speak at the New Denver Lyceum, on the West Side. Both lectures will be held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense.

The local organization of the I. L. D. is making a special effort to secure a large crowd to hear the heretic bishop at both meetings.



Minority Stockholders Howl.

AKRON, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Alleging that through neglect and malfeasance on the part of directors of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, the stock of the company had depreciated in value at least $15,000,000, Nathan W. Rice and six other stockholders, filed in common pleas here a suit against all the directors of the company, asking an accounting.

The suit was filed by former Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, of Columbus, and is the seventh action pending in Ohio courts in which the control of the company by New York and Cleveland banking interests is attacked.

Sherman, Old Hand at Game, Explains Way Of Food Profiteering

WASHINGTON, D. C., Febr. 13 — Roger I. Sherman, food expert, old time canner and packer, pal of Uncle

ROGER I. SHERMAN

Joe Cannon, the Czar of the House of Representatives in his day, and interested in Porto Rican fruit plantations, admits things are bad with the American agriculturist.

After advising the poor farmer to cease only the best of everything, which is advice calculated to cause a snort of disgust from rural districts trying desperately to raise anything, or sell what nature permits them to raise he goes on to say:

"The farmer's got to have credit. He mustn't be forced to unload at the worst time.

"He ought to be able to borrow his crop's full value when he harvests it. Then his bank can't afford to have him sold out at slump prices, for the benefit of speculators, who mean to hang on for the next rise. On that basis, the farmer doesn't have to sell until he gets ready, anyway.

"If the farmer's bank won't do this for him, the government ought to.

"Brainy farming, community warehouses and credit, I tell you—that's agricultural co-operation."

"I don't forget the consumer," added the food man.

"He's entitled to carload rates.

"The big dealer gets his stuff by the carload. The little one gets small jags. Of course they cost him more.

"What does the big chap do? He buys goods, but not quite A-1. Then he puts on his own labels and sells slightly inferior stuff as first quality, saying he can cut prices because he buys in quantity. But really he pockets the rake-off from his carload freight rates.

"The little guy has to buy top grade stuff for the sake of top grade labels and his freight costs him more. Naturally, he's undersold by the big one.

"The consumer's stuck either way. He doesn't get the goods he thinks he's buying, or he does get 'em, but they cost him too much.

"The little dealers' game is to cooperate, too—get together, order in carload lots and have a truck to receive their carload at the railroad station and distribute it among 'am."

"That," concluded Sherman, "is cooperation, from producer to consumer, but you'll never get the middle men to agree on it."

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

When replying to these advertisements mention The DAILY WORKER.

OIL! A NEW NOVEL By Upton Sinclair

II

Chicago, and more messages for Bunny. He had cabled Dad's secretary to ascertain if there was any will among Dad's papers. The secretary replied that nothing had been found, and neither the widow nor the daughter knew of such document. They were proceeding to Paris after the funeral, and the secretary would cable if anything was found there.

So then to Angel City, and more cablegrams; the secretary advised that no will was among Mr. Ross's papers in Paris, and Bertie cabled, "I believe that infamous woman has destroyed the will. Have you anything in Dad's writing or hers?" From which Bunny made note that death-bed repentances do not last very long—at least not when it's another person's death bed! Bunny had nothing from Dad, except the order for the Ross stock, and that wouldn't bring much satisfaction to Bertie. He cabled to Alyse, at her Paris hotel, reminding her that his father had stated the terms of their marriage to be that she was to receive one million dollars from the estate, and no more, and asking her to confirm that agreement. The reply which he received was from a firm of American lawyers in Paris advising him on behalf of their client, Mrs. Alyse Huntington Forsythe Olivier Ross, that she knew of no such agreement as he had mentioned in his cablegram, and that she would claim her full rights in the estate. Bunny smiled grimly as he read. A clash between Spiritualism and Socialism!

Also a clash between Capitalism and Socialism! Bunny went to call on his father's partner, at the office, where both could speak frankly, and they did. Verne's first statement was a knockout—Bunny's father had been mistaken in thinking that he had any Ross Consolidated Class B stock, and therefore his order upon Verne was worthless. All those street certificates had been sold some time ago at Dad's order. Dad's memory had evidently been failing since his illness—or perhaps he had not been watching his affairs since taking up with Spiritualism. His business was in a bad way. In the first place, the Ross Consolidated Operating Company, which had been Dad's choicest holding, was practically bankrupt. Verne had that day been notified by the fire insurance companies involved that they would not pay the claims, because they had evidence that the fires had been of incendiary origin; they didn't quite say it in plain English, but they implied that Verne or his agents had started the fires, because the company had an oversupply of oil and was caught with a falling market.

"Good God!" said Bunny. "What's that, a bluff?"

"No," said Verne, "that's a scheme of Mark Eisenberg, who runs the banking business in this city for the Big Five, to knock one of the independents out. They'll tie us up in the courts for Christ knows how many years. Ross Operating won't have the cash to develop that burned over field, and if it has to assess its stockholders for the money, your father's estate won't be able to finance its share without help. The Lobos River wells are played out, and the Prospect Hill field is filling with water. Of course your father's got shares in my foreign undertaking's, but none of them will realize anything for a long time; so it looks as if you'll have to sell them out."

"Who is to handle all this?"

"Here's a copy of Jim's will—you can take it home and study it at your leisure. The executors are you and me and Fred Organ, and you and Bertie are to divide the estate. Of course that's been knocked out by his marriage; unless he's made another will, the widow gets one half, and you and Bertie a quarter. I promised your father I'd do the executor's work, so I suppose it's up to me. Let me say this right away,—that Paradise field bears your name, and if you want to take it over and run it, I won't stand in your way. You can sell some of your holdings, and buy me out at the market price, and run the business for yourself. Do you want to be an oil man?"

"No," said Bunny, promptly. "I do not."

"Well, then, I'll have to buy out your father's stock; because the company is bankrupt and I won't carry it unless I have control. You and me could work together, Jim Junior; your ideals are too high." Verne laughed but without his usual jollity. "If I hadn't promised your old man to do the best I'd like to dump Ross Operating onto you and let it go bankrupt on your hands, and see what you'd do. You didn't agree with your father about business men controlling the courts. Well, by Jews, you just tie on to right rabbit-spirited young citizen, and let the courts spit on you, or swear for Ross Operating, without any bribery and undue influence of any sort, not pulling any political wires and making any threats or improper promises—and see how much you'd have left of the eight or ten millions, or whatever wills he collected from the insurance companies a few years from now."

(To Be Continued.)

Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation Forbids Men to Read

BEAVER, Pa. While the court in this town was considering the case of Pete Mussolin against Hamilton Brown, the head of police of Aliquippa, where the control of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation upon the government institutions of this region was discussed at length, new rules were established in the mills of this steel corporation, apparently directly as a result of the trial.

Rule number one prohibits any one to read any paper even the yellow capitalist sheets while on the property of the steel company. Workers must bring their lunches in buckets, and must not wrap them in papers, which a worker might be tempted to look at while eating his lunch.

Rule number two prohibits two or more workers to come together during work hours to converse with each other unless permission is secured from the foreman.

One wonders if the New York Leader will put the blame for these rules upon the Communists as it did when Powers Hapgood was slugged by the Lewis gangsters at Indianapolis.

MOTHER ADOPTS MORE ORPHANS

Central Press

Mrs. Harry J. Ewing, of Pacheco, Cal., has adopted and raised to maturity five orphan children, and is now adopting five more. But the supply of orphans seems unlimited. This piece-meal manner of dealing with the victims of industrial accidents and wars and occupational diseases does not get very far.

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY NATIONAL ENGLISH LABOR DAILY

The Daily Worker Fights:
For the Organization of the Unorganized.
For a Labor Party.
For the 40-Hour Week.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 28. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year; Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1927 PUBLISHED DAILY BY THE DAILY WORKER CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

WALTER S. WARD, scion of the bread trust, can sniffle the balmy breezes of Havana, even as Mayor Jimmy Walker, while anit against him for $75,000 for killing Clarence Peters, a sailor, over four years ago is dragging its way through a New York court room. Ward was tried once and managed to escaped. The case caused a national sensation, but Ward had the money and has since been enjoying himself in gay cabarets and on the race tracks. Contrast the freedom enjoyed by a wealthy murderer with the punishment mated out to Sacco and Vanzetti, two labor organizers who sit in the shadow of the gallows—in Massachusetts convicted of a crime they never committed. Capitalist justice is not blind. It is one-eyed and that eye only sees the interests of capitalism.

• • •

THE Legion of Honor, highly priced French decoration is said to be now worn by everbody except those whose clothing is so unsubstantial as to be unable to bear the strain of a buttonhole. This coveted honor is now peddled out for cash even as titles are in England and evil fields in the United States. Strange it never occurred to the canny French to send a ship-load of the decorations to the United States accompanied by a snappy salesman. The proceeds would pay the French war debt and leave a balance that would enable the government to build one thousand submarines.

• • •

THE recent revolt in Portugal seems to be an echo of the rivalry between France and England. Portugal is usually a puppet of Great Britain, but since puppets are always for sale there is no certainty that they will stay put. A Portuguese commission succeeded in negotiating with the British government for a large reduction in the Portuguese debt to that country. As an exhibition of gratitude a British banking syndicate was offered the tobacco monopoly as security for a loan. This monopoly had formerly been in the hands of a Paris financial group as security for a $50000,000 loan. The Paris banker did not like the change, so London and Paris supplied the bullets and they found Portuguese generals, officers and soldiers willing to fire them for a price.

• • •

WE are informed that "atheistic gibes cause murders in Russian homes." If that is the case we would like to know what evil spirit urges our American evangelists to commit murder, rape, and other crimes as advocated by the gospels according to any of the saints. Recently we read of a holy man who murdered his wife and then sliced her into ribbons. Surely an atheist could not have done worse.

• • •

THE resources of all the labor banks in the country are now almost $137,000,000, according to a compilation of December 31 statements completed by a research bureau. This is about 1 1-2 per cent of the total resources of the entire banking system in the United States. Those who claim that the banking system can be gradually taken over by the labor unions must admit that there is still a long way to go. And what kind of labor unions would we have by the time they moved into Wall Street with a republican or democrat president still in Washington? Simply this: Jiggs would have stopped eating corned beef and cabbage and taken to ostrich gillets. The average workers would be still struggling to make ends meet while the Hillmans, Wagners, Ryans and Bradys would have driven the Vanderbilts from Fifth Avenue.

COOLIDGE'S proposal for a conference having for its aim a reduction in naval building is said to meet with considerable favor in Switzerland, Luxembourg, Siam and the Sahara Desert. Those powers are perfectly willing to reduce their beer

(Continued on Page Two)

Health Commissioner Charges New Milk Bill Menace to Public Weal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Coolidge was asked today to veto the Lenroot-Taber milk bill, restricting the entry of Canadian milk into New York state, now before him for signature.

Dr. Louis I. Harris, health commissioner of New York, told the president he should veto the bill as a menace to the health of New York City, which would be deprived by the bill of its milk reserve in Canada.

The bill, Harris asserted, would lead to "bootlegging milk which will be far more serious to public health than the bootlegging of liquor."

Trace Part of Bribe Bonds To Miller

Telegrams Show Custodian Eager to Deliver Goods

Evidence was yesterday presented at the Daugherty-Miller trial tracing directly to the New York brokerage account of Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, one of the $10,000 bonds received by John T. King, Connecticut politician, as part of the $391,000 bribe obtained by King from Richard Merton, German financier, for putting through a $7,000,000 claim.

Several witnesses from Shartout and Appenzellar, New York brokers, testified to receiving the $10,000 bond in Miller's account. Previous testimony last week had traced $40,000 in the King-Merton deal indirectly to Miller's brokerage accounts in Wilmington, Del., and New York.

Admits Telegram.

The government, following a protracted verbal battle, scored a long-sought point in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial when it gained admission into evidence of several telegrams between Miller and his secretary, Frederick Wilson. The telegrams dealt, with the approval of the $7,000,000 German claim for war-seized property, for which the defendants are alleged to have shared in a $391,000 bribe.

Wilson, on the stand at the last session, testified that he did not know whether Miller ever received the telegrams, and they were not allowed to be entered in evidence.

Buckner therefore continued today his efforts to gain their admittance, through additional testimony.

Kept Miller Informed.

Miller was in Pennsylvania at the time of the telegraphic exchange. The first telegram introduced was sent by Wilson, in Washington, to Miller in Pittsburgh, and dated September 23, 1921. It read:

"Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian,

"Care of J. Francis Burke, Pittsburgh.

"Wyant not yet back. No word from department of justice in matter of claims. Unofficially advised will be favorable. Wilson."

The next telegram was sent on the same day by Miller to Wilson. It read:

"Address all Saturday care of U. S. Senate, Sewickley, Pennsylvania. Miller."

Got My Swiss.

The third telegram, sent by Wilson to Miller at Sewickley, announced that the $7,000,000 claim had been approved. It read:

"Two Swiss claims approved by Guy Goff, who approved the claim, was assistant to Attorney General Daugherty, whose office had to pass on all recommendations for claims by the alien property custodian's office.

(Continued on Page Two)

Charge Epileptic in State Hospital Was Brutally Beaten Up

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Feb. 14.—Trial of William F. Kenney, formerly an attendant at the State Epileptic Village at Skillman, on a charge of manslaughter was started before Judge John A. French and a jury in the Court of Quarter Sessions here today. He is accused of having severely beaten Joseph Saransky, a patient at the Village, on October 5, last. Saransky died next day and numerous severe bruises on his body were said to have resulted in his death.

Kenney was in charge of a group of cottages at the Village, in one of which Saransky lived. Charles Mahon, another attendant at the Village, was principal witness for the state, and said that he saw Kenney kick and beat Saransky because Saransky failed to wash the dishes from which he had eaten. Kenney denied having beaten Saransky.

Teamsters' Union to Come to Aid of Bus Strikers in Jersey

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 14. — At a meeting held last night at the Hudson County labor headquarters, located in the Orpheum Theatre building, the joint council of the Teamsters' union discussed ways and means of aiding the 400 Hudson Boulevard bus drivers who went on strike ten days ago.

Meeting yesterday morning at strike headquarters the bus workers decided to continue their struggle. It was reported at the meeting that the attempt to continue service that the bosses made up to the present time, is now slowly breaking down, while on the other hand the prospects of a workers' victory grows brighter.

SENATE PASSING BANK ACT THAT HAS TEETH IN IT

Farm Block Log Rolling Assists Plutocracy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Somewhat paralleling the famous battle of Andrew Jackson against the United States bank, senate insurgents today waged war against further extension of the Federal Banking System by opposing enactment of the McFadden-Pepper branch banking act.

Jackson drove the U. S. bank out of existence, but the insurgent bloc faced almost certain defeat. A closure petition, signed by 58 senators, lay on the desk of Vice-president Dawes to be submitted to the senate at 1 o'clock tomorrow for a vote on the question of shutting off further debate. As supporters of the bill commend more than enough votes to adopt cloture, a final vote enacting the bill will be taken by the senate some time Wednesday. It then will go to the president.

Machine Process.

Insurgents call the process by hard names: "steamroller," and "gagging." But the machine is in operation, and the farm bloc's senators, who bargained to support this bill if the big financiers back of it would support theirs, are beginning to wonder whether they have not traded, something like a birthright, for something considerably less than a mess of pottage.

More Centralization.

The new branch banking act is so drawn as to rivet tighter than ever before the grip of the centralized Federal Reserve System on the banking community. Branch banks, with all the power and prestige of the Federal Reserve bank of them, will if this bill is adopted be still better able to compete with and crush independent banks, or state banks.

That the increase in the power of the big eastern banking fraternity will give such control over the national life as to completely undo what "liberal" features the "farm bloc" was able to get through the McNary-Haugen farm bill, is what the "farm bloc" now fears. But it has made its bed and must lie in it.

Perpetual Charter.

The bill to which it has pledged itself provides:

1—Granting an indeterminate charter to the Federal Reserve System and all its banks, thus substituting an "for all time" charter for the existing one, which expires in 1934.

2—Permitting national banks to engage in the investment business, by which they can use savings deposits—under certain conditions—to purchase real estate.

3—Allowing national banks to establish branch banks within the limits of the city in which the parent bank is located, if the state laws permit branch banking by state banks.

4—Allowing a state bank, which has branch banks "up-state" or outside the city in which the parent bank is located, to bring all these branches into the Federal Reserve if the state bank becomes a national bank.

SEVEN COAL MINERS ENTOMBED BY CAVEIN AT SHANDOAH; STILL LIVE

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 14.—Seven miners were entombed by a fall of coal in the Hazlebrook colliery of the Hazlebrook Coal Company near Shandoah this afternoon, according to reports reaching here.

Tappings indicate the men are still alive, officials said. Rescue crews expect to reach the men by 6 o'clock tonight.

Tax Case Shows Ford Assessed Very Low

Henry's Dislike for Paying Taxes Now Injures Cousens

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The Board of Tax Appeals was showered with more expert testimony today, showing the valuation of Ford Motor Stock in 1913 to be rather low, according to Ford's local tax returns.

Solicitor of Internal Revenue, A. W. Gregg, appearing for the treasury, declared that Ford motor stock in 1913 was worth from $2,500 to $6,500 a share, in contrast to the $9,500 valuation claimed by Senator James Cousens (R) of Michigan, the Dodge estate and other stockholders.

Senator James Cousens, minority stockholder in Ford Motors, and financial manager who planned Ford's business deals, reported to the government when he sold his stock, that it was worth the higher figure in 1913. This reduced the profits at least on paper, and it was on the profits that the government collects tax.

Ford Not Spotless.

Gregg's testimony shows that Henry Ford must have been a partner to the deception, in so far as he did not expose it, while at the same time valuing his own stock for local taxation at a low figure, and recording stock values, four years later, at a considerably higher figure, though not nearly so high as that claimed by Cousens for 1913.

"In 1913 the automobile industry was in its infancy," Gregg said. "Up to that time it had been characterized by financial reverses and failures; automobile securities at that time were regarded by investors as speculative and involving a large element of risk.

"It is our contention that the Ford Motor Company, by concentrating on its own products, and by the general policy of the automobile industry, accentuated this risk factor."

Gregg asserted that the government would prove that the value of Ford stock has further decreased because it was controlled by one man. That fact would have greatly influenced any prospective buyer, he said.

Below $6,500.

By-laws of the Ford company and stock certificates contained such restrictions upon the sale as to make it impossible to use the stock as collateral for loans or to list it upon the stock exchange, Gregg declared. He shall prove that these restrictions depressed the stock value practically to the price which Henry Ford would agree to pay for it," Gregg continued.

"In the opinion of those persons best qualified to place a value on the stock, the maximum value as of March 1, 1913, was $6,500 a share and that the fair value ranges downward from that figure to $2,500."

Henry Ford valued the stock at but $6,100 a share in 1917, in his capital stock tax return and contended that the risk of the automobile industry justified a high capitalization rate, Gregg declared.

"We shall prove that Mr. Ford, Senator Cousens, and other officers of the company valued the stock for purposes of local taxation at a figure much lower than that for which the government is contending at the present time," Gregg said.

Roper Estimate Illegal.

Other principal contentions, upon which the government bases its case, were:

(1). Valuation of $9,500 a share placed on Ford stock as of 1913 by former Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel Roper, was made after cursory consideration only was illegal and not binding on the government.

(2). Returns made by stockholders on basis of Roper valuation were never audited, except for obvious errors on the face of the returns, and none of the cases were ever closed.

(3). In March, 1913, all general factors affecting security values were adverse and depressed value of stock, business conditions were unsettled, money rates high, security values on market falling and trading on market was dull.

(4). Some of minority stockholders had unsuccessfully tried to sell out from 1916 to 1919.

Carroll Sentence Postponed.

Earl Carroll, convicted of perjury before a federal grand jury in connection with the notorious vanity fair party declared to have been staged at the producer's theatre, will not have to start his sentence at Atlanta prison until after Feb. 21.

Sun Chuan-fang

Sun Chang-fang, "The Eastern Warlord," built up an army that at one time controlled five of the richest provinces of China, and still holds Shanghai, the eighth seaport of the world, the point of entry for most of the foreign commerce. For a long time he pretended to a sort of benevolent neutrality towards the Kuomintang, with its capital in Canton. When the Cantonese began a truly nationalist movement, however, Sun Chuan-fang showed his colors, and united firmly with the northern militarists and the foreign imperialists. Sun Chuan-fang will not take any chances with the Nationalist labor program, among the cotton mill slaves of Shanghai. However, the Cantonese have driven his army out of all but one province.

GRAFT PROBERS CHARGE ANOTHER WITH CONTEMPT

Insull and Crowe Head List; Must Testify

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The fourth witness cited for contempt by the Reed campaign fund committee for their refusal to answer questions during the recent investigation of Illinois and Pennsylvania primaries, will be subpoenaed to appear before the committee next Monday.

The four are State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, Samuel Insull, millionaire utilities magnate, and Daniel F. Schuyler of Chicago, and Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia.

They will again be given opportunity to answer the questions, the committee decided today. If they again refuse, contempt action will be demanded by the committee, and they will either be summoned before the bar of the senate or brought before the federal courts here.

Move Towards Senate Probing of Commerce In Government Jobs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The Norris resolution authorizing a senatorial investigation into charges that federal offices in the south have been "bartared and sold" was reported favorably today by the senate committee on audit and control. The committee adopted an amendment to limit the expenditures of the investigating committee to 25,000.

Consideration of the resolution was delayed because of the absence of Senator Ernst (R) of Kentucky, its chief opponent.

COAL BARONS TRY TO USE BLUFFS AND THREATS AT MIAMI, FLORIDA

MIAMI, Florida.—A flurry in the wage scale negotiations here between a committee of the United Mine Workers of America, working under the eye of the International President John Lewis, with the operators' committee, was brought about by the blunt statement in Chicago of the largest western coal mine owner, Stuyvesant Peabody, who stated flatly that he believed the conference would fail, and that there would be an unsuccessful strike, starting April 1.

Danger of a sudden breaking off of negotiations also developed when the Ohio group of operators, following their policy agreed upon at their conference in Toledo, issued an ultimatum to the conference that if wages were not reduced, they would leave Miami on Wednesday or Thursday. The importance of this threat is increased by the fact that before making it, the Ohio gang caucused with some of the Pennsylvania group.

Argument about Competition.

No definite action looking toward a withdrawal was taken by the Ohio and Pennsylvania owners but their

(Continued on Page Three)

March British Army Thru Shanghai

Chinese Indignant Over Provocation; Act Will Intensify Hatred of England

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Negotiations between Eugene Chen, foreign minister in the Cantonese government, and British Charge d'Affairs O'Malley which have been in progress for some time at Hankow, have broken down, according to a central news dispatch from Shanghai this evening. British military movements are believed to be the cause, the dispatch added.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 14.—Chinese indignation is today at fever heat as a result of the provocative action of the British in landing two regiments from the Gloucester and marching them thru the city with fixed bayonets, drums beating and colors flying.

The Chinese press unanimously declares that the parade was a "totally unnecessary insult to the Chinese."

The nationalists believe that the British are trying to provoke hostilities in order to force the United States government to carry out the secret agreement for intervention.

In the opinion of the Chinese, the effect of the British demonstration will be to unify, still more the Chinese masses against imperialism and to intensify the deep hatred of the people for the British.

• • •

Cantonese Moving.

HANKOW, Feb. 14.—Several thousand Nationalist troops have arrived in Hankow, reinforcing the armies already in operation. The reinforcements have come from Ichang.

There is a steady movement of Cantonese troops down the Yangtze from Hankow, while northern forces are reported moving up from Wu Hu.

There is every indication of general fighting throughout the Yangtze valley during the early spring.

• • •

Another Invasion.

SONG MONG, Feb. 14.—Scottish troops were dispatched today to patrol the little village of Shatankei, on the Chinese mainland following the posting of anti-British posters on the village, situated on the border of the British zona, is half-Chinese and half-British territory.

• • •

Chang Clashes With Wu.

PEKING, Feb. 14.—With hundreds of thousands of troops on the move in general spring offensive in the region of the Yangtze River is in prospect.

Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, war lord governor of Manchuria, today began the movement of 50,000 of his Fengtien troops across the Yallow Rivar into Chenchow in Honan Province, the stronghold of Wu Pei-Fu, and constitutes the invasion of Honan by Chang's troops which Wu last week warned Chang would be contested by his troops. Chenchow is on the direct railway line between Hankow and Peking.

Wu Pei-Fu shifted his headquarters from Chenchow to Loyang.

• • •

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—"The situation in China is not nearly so optimistic as Sir Austen Chamberlain paints in London."

Thus cables the special correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt from Peking. He continues:

"The nationalists continue to demand the withdrawal of all British troops mobolized at points west of Singapore. Also there is a new anti-British boycott threatening at Hong Kong.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Twenty persons were killed and many were missing today as a result of a terrific cyclone which swept Queensland, Australia, according to a central news dispatch from Brisbane. The towns of Ingram, Cairns and Fairford were reported to have been almost entirely wiped out.

Cairns, county seat of the county of the same name, had a population of 5,260.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Brooks Adams, last of the famous family of the name, is dead at his home here today. He was a great-grandson of John Adams, second president of the United States, the grandson of president John Quincy Adams, and the last of the sons of Charles Francis Adams, United States minister to England during the Civil War.

He was 73 years old and was an author, lecturer, lawyer, recognized authority on international law and supporter of the initiative and referendum.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Feb. 14. —Five classes of the Mount Vernon high school, numbering 233 pupils, were dismissed for a period of two days today, following the report to the medical authorities that Miss Josephine A. Lane, a teacher in the school, had been stricken with scarlet fever.

FRANCE, ITALY PREPARING FOR ANOTHER WAR

To Claim They Have to Protect Colonies

PARIS, Feb. 14.—That the reactionary French and Italian governments are priming themselves for another war is indicated by their reaction to President Coolidge's "disarmament" memorandum.

Foreign Minister Briand's reply to the memorandum will be a flat negative, according to close observers of the situation. Briand's reply will be presented to the cabinet tomorrow and will base its rejection of the Coolidge proposal on France's "need for protecting her colonies."

A semi-official Italian communique declares that Italy can "never consent to measures endangering even indirectly her vital interests." This and Italy's accelerated production of munitions indicate that Mussolini is preparing for another war.

NEWS IN BRIEF

LONDON, Feb. 14. — Ninety-one lives have been lost in a blizzard in Niigata prefecture, according to a central news dispatch from Tokio.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Eight persons were killed and at least fifteen were injured today when two passenger trains collided head-on at Hull during the dense fog which has blanketed all England for four days.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 14.—Prying apart the bars of his cell window with a thick wooden curtain rod, Howard Monzel, 22, of Livingston, N. J., escaped from jail in the municipal building here today.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Twenty persons were killed and many were missing today as a result of a terrific cyclone which swept Queensland, Australia, according to a central news dispatch from Brisbane. The towns of Ingram, Cairns and Fairford were reported to have been almost entirely wiped out.

Subscribe To The DAILY WORKER! Get Your Fellow Worker To Subscribe! Win a Prize!

HOUSE RECEIVES BILL TO CREATE LIQUOR MONOPOLY

Mellon, Big Distiller, to Pick Distilleries

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A revised medicinal liquor bill, providing for the manufacture of medicinal liquor in from two to six distilleries, under strict government supervision, was favorably reported today by the house ways and means committee.

The bill bore little resemblance to the original plan advanced by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, whereby an 80,000,000 semi-government corporation was to have been set up for the manufacture of medicinal liquor.

No Government Ownership.

The provision for government manufacture was not liked by any of the committee, and was speedily shelved, the substitute adopted permitting a favored few distilleries, selected by Andrew Mellon, himself a large owner of distillery stock, to exercise a veritable monopoly of the production of legal, medicinal whiskey.

Mellon—Booze Boss.

Under the bill's provisions, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would be authorized to issue permits to not less than two nor more than six distilleries to turn out medicinal liquor. Government inspectors would maintain a close watch on the operators to see that the liquor was up to medicinal standards, and that none of it "leaked" into unauthorized channels.

Besides selecting the distilleries, Mellon, under the provisions of the bill reported in, will be given the privilege of fixing "a fair price" for the product sold.

Indonesian Workers Arrested, Accused of Plotting Java Revolt

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21 (By Mail). —Two Indonesian workers have been arrested in Djoharo (Straits Settlements). The two, Alimin and Moeso are accused of being connected with the insurrection in Java. The Indonesian government is conducting negotiations with a view to securing the extradition of the two and also the extradition of the worker Dachlan who was arrested previously.

Hindenburg Gets in Touch With Royalty

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—For the first time since the war, President Von Hindenburg dined with royalty today when he attended a dinner given in honor of the King of Sweden by the Swedish minister here.

The king was passing through en route to Rome to visit the queen who is recuperating there.

WHO LOOKS HARDEST AND MEANEST?

Central Press Photo

From left to right, front row, R. L. Bennett, O. Seymour, Chas. Mitra, and W. T. Harred. Behind, James Howard and Wm. Moore. All these are scatenced to death, and are in Jefferson Co. jail, Louisville, Ky., waiting their turn in the electric chair. The tough looking customer is the inset, in Jailer Thos. A. Dover. Criminals are made largely by environment and circumstance—with differing opportunities one man becomes a highwayman, and another a jailer.

Enthusiastically Ask Money for Subways; It Isn't in the Treasury

Possible curtailment of the 182,000,000 subway building program this year was indicated yesterday by figures on the city's financial condition made public by the Board of Estimate.

The amount available for subway building is considerably short of the appropriation asked. There will be a debt margin of $230,000,000 on March 1, but about $30,000,000 must be set aside for emergency requirements. Appropriations for schools, hospitals and street improvements will use up from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000.

City officials expressed doubt whether even the $300,000,000 exemption on the debt limit, now before the Legislature in the form of an amendment, will be sufficient to finance the entire program. It will be an important factor, however, and Mayor Walker plans to appeal to the Legislature to approve the amendment when he returns from Cuba next week.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Gov Smith intimated today that he favored the proposed constitutional amendment which would extend New York City's debt limit by $300,000,000, the money to be used for subway construction.

132 Cups, Please!

Proof that the worker seldom gets enough coffee to hurt him: consider the case of Earl Smith, a Sioux City truck driver, who drank 132 cups of coffee in six hours during a contest recently, and then, having won the title, went home and had his wife prepare him another cup before going to bed. Four physicians examined him and found his condition not much out of normal as the result. Other truck drivers drink less, for one thing because coffee is darned expensive lately.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

steins, wine mugs, blind pigs and camels provided the United States is willing to stake them for a loan. Coolidge is willing to do most anything for four more years in the White House. Now, if England, France, Italy and Japan, agree with the above powers the conference may turn our battleships into coastal cabarets or run numbers.

SIR OLIVER LODGE is about as nutty as they get when under the influence of spiritualism. Those boys manage to dodge the lunatic asylums, because the form the malady takes is not considered a public danger though inquestionably a public nuisance. Lodge is in constant communication with the dead, those who amounted to anything in life in the business or intellectual world. He can extract a message from a ghost with as much celerity as tears can be drawn from a wet sponge. Lodge's latest dodge is to send out feelers over the radio for telepathic reactions. He will place a group of freaks in a room, have an officer present them with an object at stated intervals and Lodge, stationed at the broadcasting station will ask the public to tell by telepathy what the freaks are thinking about. My answer would be an emphatic "nothing." And I would be right.

MISSOURIANS are supposed to be endowed with the virtue of skepticism, but this may be the exception that proves the rule. It is a paragraph from the Sikeston Standard, Sikeston, Missouri:

"It seems to us that the height of optimism has been reached. If the following story, which came to us this week, be true. According to reports, at the Sunday night service of a certain religious sect, an official from out of town was present to take the wing measurements of the congregation, the idea being that at Judgment Day when the Angel Gabriel sounds his horn, the wings will be waiting and ready for the devout to slip on and flit up to the celestial regions, without the necessity of their taking part in the last minute rush at the wing counter. And of cycle, having in mind the number of airplanes that refuse to go up in the air adds, "And they want to be sure that those measurements were made to provide wings that fly up."

BIG CAB BOSS TRIES TO SUPPRESS WORKERS' PAPER; GETS HOT ANSWER TO "STATEMENT"

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—The Cab Driver, official organ of the Cab Drivers' Union, has aroused the ire of the employers to such an extent that Earl Hunker, "the big boss," has had to issue a statement reprimanding readers who read it. He announcer, "I have been besieged by a great number of our drivers who have demanded that I issue a statement, and further that I make every effort to stop the distribution of these circulars."

Who Surrounds Hunky.

To this The Cab Driver makes retort:

"We know who are besieging Hunky. It has a bunch of feeble-minded dollar-a-day men 'shesieging' him. A crew of profiteering bosses may also be huddling about him, fearful that the bank-book may be emptied on. But with the actual cab drivers Early Hunky is about as popular as a skunk in a perfume factory."

The Cab Driver states the case of the chauffeurs as follows:

Those Long Hours!!

"Can we make a few cents by driving cabs? Is it possible to make a living at this job? In a way, yes.

"But what does it require. It requires that we keep at it from 12 to 14 and even 18 hours a day. If we spin around and around till we are dizzy, and if we keep that up all day and half of the night we can get a wage of $20 to $30 a week. But it means that we have to put in at least 80 to 90 hours a week.

"How much does that make per hour? If we work 80 hours and get $20 it means that we get 25 cents an hour. Is that decent pay?

"The bodcarriers get $1.00 an hour and those that attend the plasterers get $1.50 an hour.

"Can we hope for anything like that? Not if we remain unorganized. Never! But with an organization we can gradually win shorter hours and large wages. All trades have had that experience. We cannot expect to get all we deserve at once, but in the long run we will get our rights and be able to live like men."

Moron Yells "Fire".

MONTREAL, Feb. 14. — Police were investigating today in an effort to learn the identity of the person who started a near panic in the Theatre Francais here last night by shouting "fire."

More than 1,800 persons were in the building, and only the prompt action of attendants in opening all exits and assuring the crowd that there was no danger averted a disaster.

Body Found on Tracks.

The body of Michael Dugan, 26, of 4707 Foster avenue, Long Island City, Queens, was found on the westbound tracks of the Corona line elevated near the Bliss street station, Long Island City. The motorman of an I. R. T. subway train drawing in to the station saw the body and, with the help of a conductor and a guard, brought it to the station platform.

All Workers

but particularly Irish workers will want to read "Jim Connolly and the Irish Rising of 1926," by G. Schuller with an introduction by T. J. O'Flaherty. "Connolly," name of the military leader of the Easter Week Rebellion, is a magic name to every Irish worker who has within him a single spark of the divine fire of revolt.

PRICE 10 CENTS.

The Daily Worker
33 First Street
New York City

PART OF BRIBE BONDS TRACED TO T. W. MILLER

Show Custodian Eager To Deliver Goods

(Continued from Page One)

before they could be paid. Wyant, mentioned in the first telegram, was Miller's orderly in France, and acted as his chauffeur after the war.

At Bribe Scene.

A fourth telegram was introduced for the purpose of showing that Miller was in New York on September 30, 1921, the day the $7,000,000 was handed over to Richard Merton, representing the German interests, at a champagne dinner.

Virginia Ware, pretty employe of the alien property custodian's office in Washington, identified papers in the files including a claim for twenty shares of American Metals Company stock owned by the Merton interests, which claim had been disallowed by the United States government.

John Foster Dulles, first retained as lawyer by Richard Merton to take up the $7,000,000 claim, was the next witness.

Negotiations Start.

Dulles told of a conference in 1921 with George Williams, managing director of the alien property custodian's office in which Williams questioned the validity of the claim and suggested Dulles get a ruling from the department of justice.

Lucien Boggs, lawyer and judge of Jacksonville, Fla., formerly connected with the custodian's office and the department of justice, was called next.

Boggs testified he talked with a lawyer in 1921 in connection with a hypothetical case involving a large amount of money.

Palmer Hard-Boiled.

Paul Smith testified regarding papers of the American Metals Company submitted to the government in 1917 and 1918. At that time two stockholders in the company, Julian Beatty and Henry Bruere, attempted to arrange the sale of German owned stock in the concern to American interests, so that the concern could be released by the alien property custodian. The release was refused by A. Mitchell Palmer, then attorney general, however, and the government contends that the defendants should not have released the $7,000,000 knowing that it had been refused.

There also was testimony regarding an investigation of the case started by a New York newspaper in 1922, but at which time, Smith said, Miller asked for the papers in the case, to look them over. Later, at the first Daugherty-Miller trial, certain of these papers could not be located.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

War Veteran Leaps Under I. R. T. Train

In full view of a crowd of passengers that packed the Interborough subway at 149th Street and Mott Avenue today, John Barclay, 33, a decorated war veteran, jumped under an express train that was just pulling in.

He was instantly killed, the first passing over his body. Woman screamed and tremendous excitement prevailed. Traffic was tied up twenty minutes.

Convicted Youth Glad To Avoid the Gallows

Herbert Koerner, "cake-eater bandit," was taken to Sing Sing today under sentence of from twenty years to life for the murder of Angelo Mahairis, a restaurant owner.

The youth was convicted of second degree murder at a second trial, after having been convicted of first degree murder the first time, and being sentenced to die.

"This is like going to a picnic compared to the last time," he said as he started for the prison.

Another Suicide; Nerve Can't Stand the Strain

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 14.—Martin Arthur Gearhart, 32, of Batavia, Ia., committed suicide because of a nervous breakdown it was stated today. Gearhart, a student at Princeton Graduate College, was found stretched out across the gas range in his apartment here yesterday by a neighbor. He leaves a wife, who is in a hospital suffering from a nervous disorder, and a small child.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

Second and Last Time IN NEW YORK

"Breaking Chains"

A Film of Russia Reborn

Sunday, February 20

WALDORF THEATRE

Mussolini Doesn't Like Coolidge's New Move on the Military Chessboard

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

BENITO MUSSOLINI has no intentions of sheathing the sword in the Mediterranean. The fascist tyrant has not retreated from his effort to make this body of water an Italian pond, no more than Wall Street will surrender the intention of turning the Pacific Ocean into "Dollar Diplomacy's" favorite lake.

Italian fascism sets forth its position in its reply to President Coolidge's disarmament proposals. It declares it cannot afford to cease developing her bigger naty program.

No new excuse is offered. The reason given is the old one, as old as the development of militarism in Germany, or the growth of navalism in Great Britain, during the long period of "preparedness," of armament competition before the world war and directly leading up to it.

* * *

Mussolini claims that the smaller powers about the Mediterranean have refused to accept his suggestions for reductions in naval building. That is the old gag. Coolidge, at Washington, the political puppet of Wall Street plunder, that sits astride the world with cannon ready to roar, proposes disarmament to other nations less in the sun. It is the altruism of the prize fighter with his victim prostrate on the mat. The United States, with its feet firmly planted upon the neck of the rest of the world, is in a rather strategic position at present to bid other nations park their guns and turn navy yards, munition plants and poison gas laboratories over to fly specks and cobwebs. It is making the most of that opportunity.

* * *

Mussolini claims that Italy isn't down by any means. It has its eyes on Yugo-Slavia. Spain is also within Italy's vision as well as the northern coast of Africa and beyond. Italy is also interested in the Balkans, ready to get into any fight that will be of advantage to itself. Thus, while Mussolini declares that Italy can't agree to measures andangering, even indirectly, her vital interests," the fascist tyrant at Rome is perfectly willing to favor disarmament proposals that will hit his neighbors while barely grazing his own national ambitions.

* * *

France is also turning a deaf ear to the proposals from Washington. France was on the side that is supposed to have won the last war. But France has been on the verge of bankruptcy ever since, struggling to revamp her finances, virtually in the position of a defeated nation. In spite of this unhappy position for French imperialism, every possible franc has been spent on armaments, to maintain the French military position on the continent, and to tighten her grip on restless colonies.

France doesn't forget that Mussolini has his eyes on Paris, pretty much as the kaiser turned his gaze in this direction when the "all highest" ruled in Berlin.

Thus the French and Italian refusal to grab at Coolidge's disarmament bait, for very vital and fundamental reasons, bound up with the struggles of the imperialisms of these two countries, makes the Washington proposals sterile in their very inception.

* * *

Germany alone loudly applauds the Coolidge proposals. What the Versailles treaty started, the Dawes plan finished, so that the present rulers in Berlin are very anxious to have the rest of the world disarm to its own lowly level. But the German endorsement of the Coolidge offering fools no one.

* * *

The only real disarmament plan ever offered, since the ending of the last war, has come out of Moscow, the capital city of the Union of Soviet Republics. But it is because the Soviet proposal is disarm is not a maneuver, but a bona fide effort to strip the nations of the weapons of war, that the capitalist nations will have nothing to do with it.

The Coolidge proposal is just another move on the chessboard of militarism. The reactions of the other imperialist nations clearly show this. Only the triumphant workers and farmers, in all countries, will be able to abolish the flame of wholesale murder, called war, through their own seizure of power and the inauguration of the victorious Soviet rule that will unite the world into one harmonious economic unit.

WRITER BLAMES AMERICAN FARMER'S TROUBLES ON HIS HIGHER STANDARD OF LIVING

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

The New York Times of January 30 contains an article, "Portrait of a Typical Farmer," by William Allen White. Contrasting the American with the European peasant, White tries to lay the blame of the farmer's plight on his higher standard of living; that is, he says the U. S. farmer has a radio and goes to movies regularly in a flivver, while the peasant gets his recreations in a much less expensive fashion. This simple comparison of standards seems to Mr. White to be a logical explanation of the problem.

Russian Competition.

The Russian peasant is as big a producer of wheat as the American farmer. Despite the handicaps of antiquated machinery and his primitive methods of production, he also takes his place with the American farmer as a competitor for the European market. The American farmer for all his scientific, ingenious machinery and bumper crops has been unsuccessful in competing with the Russian in the wheat market. In fact, bumper crops often mean starvation for the American farmer.

This can hardly be attributed to so slight a factor as different standards of living, as White would have it. A truer comparison would be gained through a study of the different methods of production and distribution that prevail in these two countries. The Russian peasant does not buy his land, which fact obviates the need of sustaining mortgages. The government furnishes the necessary seed. The farmers are organised into local councils with representatives in state and national organizations. These organizations are closely linked up with the workers' organization throughout the country.

No Juggling.

The farmer's organization buys his wheat, stores it when necessary, and sells it in the European market. There is no pyramiding of profits as in America through the activities of the Chicago Pit and numerous middlemen. There is one profit charged and that is against the European buyer. The Russian organization has successfully eliminated the excessive profits that the middleman exacts in this country. As an example, bread sells in Moscow for less than two cents a pound.

The American farmer can solve his problem if he will organize his own system of distribution along similar lines. Not until he can definitely control the sale of his product will he be able to shake himself free of the parasitical practices of American marketing.

Mussolini Doesn't Like Coolidge's New Move on the Military Chessboard

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

BENITO MUSSOLINI has no intentions of sheathing the sword in the Mediterranean. The fascist tyrant has not retreated from his effort to make this body of water an Italian pond, no more than Wall Street will surrender the intention of turning the Pacific Ocean into "Dollar Diplomacy's" favorite lake.

Italian fascism sets forth its position in its reply to President Coolidge's disarmament proposals. It declares it cannot afford to cease developing her bigger naty program.

No new excuse is offered. The reason given is the old one, as old as the development of militarism in Germany, or the growth of navalism in Great Britain, during the long period of "preparedness," of armament competition before the world war and directly leading up to it.

* * *

Mussolini claims that the smaller powers about the Mediterranean have refused to accept his suggestions for reductions in naval building. That is the old gag. Coolidge, at Washington, the political puppet of Wall Street plunder, that sits astride the world with cannon ready to roar, proposes disarmament to other nations less in the sun. It is the altruism of the prize fighter with his victim prostrate on the mat. The United States, with its feet firmly planted upon the neck of the rest of the world, is in a rather strategic position at present to bid other nations park their guns and turn navy yards, munition plants and poison gas laboratories over to fly specks and cobwebs. It is making the most of that opportunity.

* * *

Mussolini claims that Italy isn't down by any means. It has its eyes on Yugo-Slavia. Spain is also within Italy's vision as well as the northern coast of Africa and beyond. Italy is also interested in the Balkans, ready to get into any fight that will be of advantage to itself. Thus, while Mussolini declares that Italy can't agree to measures andangering, even indirectly, her vital interests," the fascist tyrant at Rome is perfectly willing to favor disarmament proposals that will

COOLIDGE MEN READY TO SWAT PREXY BUTLER

Will Run Chas. Hughes Just to Spite Him

President Coolidge's New York state machine leaders framed this program at a week-end conference in the national republican club.

To graft Charles E. Hughes, if necessary, for head of the 1928 ticket, in case President Coolidge declines to run again and Butler persists in his campaign to put himself or another wet in the White House.

Butler Will Go.

Butler's adherents in his home, nineteenth congressional district, reply that they already have assurances of sufficient votes to send him as a delegate to the national convention. He has participated in all of them beginning with 1890. They also urge that they will do their utmost to make him a delegate at large.

Should the Columbia university president fail in his home district or for delegate at large, republicans assert they will run him in as a delegate or substitute from one of the forty-two other congressional districts.

To Spank Prexy.

Bertrand H. Snell, Coolidge whip of the house of representatives and one of the two original Coolidge delegates in 1924 is the chief promoter of the movement to chastise Dr. Butler for his onslaught upon the president.

He conferred with vice-chairman Charles D. Hilles, of the national committee and sixteen members of the New York republican delegation at Washington last Friday. A majority of the delegation agreed that even should the president finally announce that he will not seek another term, Butler should not be permitted to speak for New York at the national convention, or annex any New York delegate's vote for the presidential nomination.

Bureau Issues Cotton Consumption Figures

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. The Census Bureau today issued the following report, showing the number of bales of cotton consumed, on hand, and other details during January, 1927 and 1926, respectively:

Cotton consumed, 60,1584 bales and 382,215 bales.

In cotton growing states, 437,788 and 411,652.

Cotton on hand, Jan. 31:

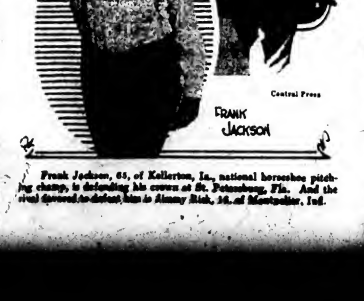
In consuming establishments, bales, 1,552,987 and 1,815,282.

In public storage and at compresses, bales, 6,070,020 and 3,180,000.

Exports for Jan.: Bales, 1,113,792 and 749,967.

Number of spindles active during Jan., 32,635,850 and 32,810,308.

Bandits Burn Office.



TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 14. After threatening to throw a watchman to his death at the bottom of a one hundred foot stone quarry, four bandit-vandals late last night set fire to the office and machinery plant of the Universal Marble Products Corporation, at Thornwood, near here. The plant was entirely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

Robbed in Montmarte.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—William Day of Syracuse, N. Y., was forced to cable home for funds today, having been struck over the head and robbed of 4,000 francs in Montmarte last night.

Day has been here with Horace Dodge of Detroit, but was alone when attacked as Dodge has gone to Cannes.

PLAYING AN OLD PROLETARIAN GAME

Frank Jackson, 65, of Kelleton, Ia., national horseshoe pitching champ, is defending his crown at St. Petersburg, Fla. And the rival favored to defeat him is Jimmy Risk, 16, of Montpelier, Ind.

FARMERS 'RELIEF' MEASURE TO GET HOUSE MAJORITY

Extra Session Opposed By Farm Bloc Leaders

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—General debate on the luke-warm McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was scheduled to be brought to a close late in the afternoon today. Claiming enough pledged votes to assure its passage, the so-called farm bloc leaders are redoubling their efforts to secure an impressive majority in the hope of convincing the president in the nation's demand for the measure.

The bill admittedly can not hurdle an executive veto before the end of the 66th congress. Despite the majority which the farm bloc secured in the senate vote and claims in the house, the leaders are not eager to demand an extra session.

Modify Demands to Please President.

The chief hope of these leaders rests upon their claim that they have met all of the objections that Coolidge has raised in the past to this class of legislation. They assert that price-fixing phases have been removed, that a government subsidy is specifically avoided and that it will promote co-operative marketing, which the president is pledged to aid.

The house rules committee has expected to recommend the substitution of the senate bill for the companion measure now being debated in the house. Presentation of this rule, probably tomorrow, would force what is expected to be a decisive test vote.

* * *

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Riding triumphantly in the saddle of parliamentary control, farm bloc leaders of the house today forced from the powerful rules committee a special rule which will permit the substitution of the McNary-Haugen bill, already passed by the senate, for the farm relief measure now pending in the house.

This will permit a direct vote on the senate measure, and save considerable time. The first test vote with the bill's antagonists will come tomorrow when the special rule is presented.

* * *

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A novel reason for supporting the McNary-Haugen farm aid bill was given in the house today by representative Berger (S) of Wisconsin.

Declaring that the bill makes possible the sale of American farm products abroad at less than American prices, Berger said this would aid "starving millions of Europe."

"We will help Europeans to restore their buying power in this manner, and also will be doing a humane and socialistic thing." He said.

Grief-crazed Plasterer Kills.

"The doctor kill my sick son with poison needle. He jab him in back. I stick him with knife. That's all."

Such was the explanation given today by Frank Caruso, Brooklyn plasterer for the killing of Dr. Casper S. Pendola yesterday.

The grief-stricken father was held without bail today on a murder charge. He stubbornly contended that Dr. Pendola killed his son with a "jab in back," and would not believe that the hypodermic needle was used in an effort to save the boy's life. Mrs. Caruso was held as a material witness.

Punch In Jaw Causes Death.

Thomas Carroll, 25, of 3642 Thirty-seventh Street, Astoria, Queens, was placed on trial before County Judge Gilbert Baker in Long Island today charged with second degree manslaughter in connection with the death of Patrick McTavey on Sept. 26, last.

Carroll was accused of having punched the jaw of McTavey, the umpire of a semi-professional baseball game, with the result that McTavey died from a brain hemorrhage an hour later.

Earthquake Kills Many.

VIENNA, Feb. 14. — Northern Yugo-Slavia suffered severe earthquakes early today. The center of the earthquake was Stolac in Netaegowine, where many were reported to have been killed when roofs and walls fell in. The earthquake was felt in Belgrade.

Prominent in International Intrigue

MAJOR FRANCO

EARL of DUNMORE

PIETRO BADOGLIO

FRED M DEARING

Major Franco, hero of the trans-Atlantic flight to Buenos Aires, was arrested in Madrid. He was reported to have scolded the Argentine Ambassador for failing to get airplane contracts for Spanish concerns. The Earl of Dunmore, English war hero, visited United States. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, of Italy, was reported opposed to plans to make Mussolini emperor. Fred M. Dearing, United States Consul at Lisbon, quit the legation to escape fire in the Portuguese revolt.

BERKELEY STUDENTS DEBATE OVER INVASION OF MEXICO; PROFESSOR FOR IMPERIALISM; MASS MEETING VOTES AGAINST WAR LORDS

By HOWARD HARLAN.

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 14.—Military training is by no means a popular feature in the University of California. Many times during the past few years individual students and even groups have rebelled against taking a course in militarism for the benefit of modern imperialism. This opposition, while naturally frowned upon by the faculty, was not suppressed by the high handed methods utilized in other cases. The "bosses" of the university fully understand the attitude of the student body in this respect, and are consequently reluctant to cause a flame of discontent by harsh discipline.

Gloved Hand.

They prefer to go easy, and try to instil in the students' minds the necessity of protecting our vaunted liberty and freedom. The military training became the "hated" course in the university and was continually commented upon in the class rooms, on the campus and in the columns of the daily paper published by the student body.

While many isolated cases of discontent came to the surface for years, it was not till recent weeks that any definite move was made to launch an organized attempt against military training.

Anti-Imperialist Meeting.

The incentive to action came with the recent troubles with Mexico and Nicaragua. A mass meeting was arranged on the campus to discuss the attitude of the U. S. government towards our southern neighbors. Professor David P. Barrows, ex president of the university, and at present a professor of political science, was chosen to present the case for Uncle Sam, or Wall street, while the case for the opposition was voiced by one of the "progressive" republican leaders of California, Chester Rowell.

Majority Against Invasion.

This meeting clearly disclosed the fact that the overwhelming majority of the students were opposed to governmental interference in Mexican and Nicaraguan affairs. Out of an audience of two thousand less than one hundred votes for continued strong arm tactics in respect to our sister republics. When the meeting was thrown open for discussion, student after student attacked the position of our administration and insisted that the people south of us should be given every opportunity to govern themselves in the way they like best. Only one out of more than a dozen speakers essayed to assist the U. S. government and he received little applause for his efforts.

More Meetings.

The success of this mass meeting encouraged the students to solidify their efforts against military training, and judging by the signs displayed at present, it will not be long till another mass meeting provides a manifestation of disapproval against the obvious iniquity of military training.

SHANGHAI PAPERS PONDER OVER NATIONALIST ASPIRATIONS; HOPE FOR CHANCE TO TRY THEM

The American Committee for Justice to China reports Shanghai comment on the Nationalist movement in China as follows: "The struggles in the north in recent years were but the outcome of personal hatred and jealousy of the military chiefs toward each other. . . . The present expedition against the northern generals is but a military venture just for the purpose of expanding the power and influence of the Nationalist government, but a real struggle between modern China and mediaeval China, between patriotism and treachery, and lastly between China as an independent sovereign country and a mere vassal state. When the issue is clear as in the present civil war, the Chinese people have no difficulty whatever in aligning themselves with the side that champions their cause. . . . Recognition of the Cantonese government) is long overdue in view of the fact that the Nationalist government is a political and potential reality while the phantom one in Peking remains to be styled as a government only on paper.

Borodin Did Good Work.

"In the South, Borodin and his assistants have shaped the government of the southern provinces and rendered incalculable service to their administration in almost every phase of government. They organized a comparatively modern army, introduced modern methods, and assisted in the reorganization of the government. That such assistance should have come from Russia is said by many to be solely because help in the consolidation of the southern government was not forthcoming from any other source.

"The general attitude toward the ascendency of the Kuomintang (the Cantonese party) is to let them have a full chance to try out their theories which are most in line with the democratic aspirations of the people."

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

MODERN HIGHWAY BEFORE SOOCHOW

This fine wide highway runs from Shanghai to Nanking past Soochow, whose battlemented walls are seen in the background. The eastern militarist leader, Sun Chuan-fang maintains his headquarters at Nanking, and makes use of the road to bring up mercenary troops, and send back wounded men. The Cantonese are attacking him along a line running from Nanking to near Hangchow.

COAL BARONS TRY TO BLUFF AT MIAMI, FLA.

Peabody Is Heard From At Chicago

(Continued from Page One)

spokesmen declared it would be useless to continue negotiations if there is no prospect of a wage slash. Unless there is a cut, they asserted they could not hold out against the competition of the lower scale non-union fields in West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky, which sections also enjoy a preferential freight rate on lake coal shipments.

This argument by operators has often been used and has always been answered by progressives in the union with facts. The progressives point to the many coal mining companies which own both northern, union mines, and southern, non-union mines.

Reject Progressives' Remedy.

It was this which was back of the progressive resolutions introduced into the last U. M. W. A. convention, for no contract with part of the mines of a company unless all of its mines were included. This resolution was downed by the Lewis machine, amid jeers and riotous scenes. Lewis, declaimed dramatically, "Why that resolution would mean that we would have to fight the United States Steel Company."

Storm Brewing.

Today's joint session was purely perfunctory. It consisted of election of officers and appointment of committees.

These officers were named: Chairman, Rice Miller of Illinois, operator; secretary, Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers; assistant secretary, George K. Smith of Ohio, operator; and sergeant at arms, James Needham of Illinois, operator.

Two operators and two miners' representatives were appointed from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania on the rules committee.

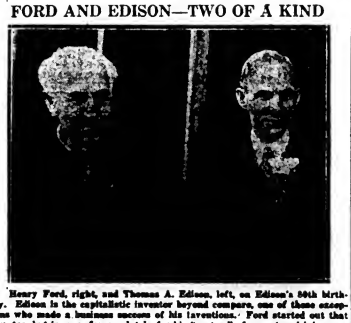
Talk Compromise.

The conference was summoned to draft a new wage scale for the Jacksonville agreement which expires March 31. Unless an agreement, permanent or temporary, is reached, approximately 350,000 union bituminous miners will walk out of the pits at the expiration of the present contract.

None of the committee from the union or operator officials would admit that there will be a strike this year. They say that a settlement, though it can be effected only after the sharpest kind of fighting, will be reached. The negotiations are expected to be fairly long drawn out.

The miners' committee comes instructed by the international convention to agree to a two year contract and to make a two-year contract for the bituminous fields, but neither the convention, nor the international president, who dominated it through packed delegations, made any plans for the strike that must follow a refusal on the operators to sign at the old scale.

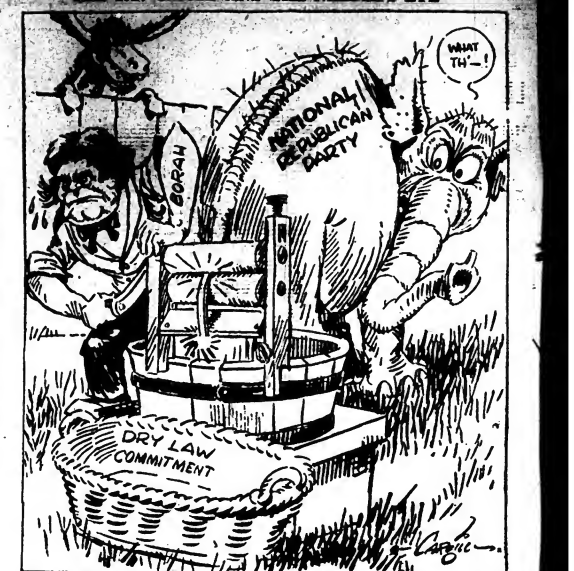
The operators are willing to sign only upon a substantial wage reduction but upon a flexible wage scale which may be revised as conditions warrant by an arbitration board set up by the union and the owners. The board would consist of 11 members, four miners, four operators and three men to be agreed upon by the workers and owners. The board would establish a competitive wage, that is, a weighted average of the scale paid in the non-union fields. To this wage, the operators would add 10 per cent for union men.



The operators today agreed upon Herman C. Perry of Hillsboro, Ill., as the official spokesman. This job carries with it the chairmanship of the joint wage conference.

Perry withdrew his name and Rice Miller of Millsboro, chairman of the Illinois Operators' Association, was elected chairman of the joint wage committee.

Flapper Bandit Robs Store.



A flapper girl bandit, apparently about seventeen years old, held up the manager of a chain store grocery at 1245 Nostrand Avenue today, rifled the cash register of more than $160, and escaped.

FORD AND EDISON—TWO OF A KIND

Henry Ford, right, and Thomas A. Edison, left, on Edison's 80th birthday. Edison is the capitalistic inventor beyond compare, one of those exceptions who made a business success of his inventions. Ford started out that way, too, but is more famous lately for his "system" of expert and inhumane exploitation of his employees.

THE 1927 CAMEL AND THE NEEDLE'S EYE

While Borah and the dry's are trying to wring out the republican party, Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, is issuing public statements to the effect that only a Wet can win. While the two factions struggle, and the democrats prepare to take advantage of division among their opponents, the interests of the workers and farmers are conveniently forgotten. Every four years a sham battle on some such side issue is staged by the politicians of the two capitalist parties. Workers must have their own party, devoted to their interests.

MUSSOLINI NOT ANXIOUS TO SEE ANY DISARMING

Seems to Think "Cal's" Meeting Fake Anyway

ROME, Feb. 14.—Italy will reject President Coolidge's disarmament proposals on the ground that she can not afford to cease her naval program until the smaller Mediterranean powers do likewise.

This is the general interpretation which has been placed on the official government statement on disarmament, which was issued yesterday.

The statement alluded to the failure of the Rome naval conference when all the minor powers refused to accept any proposals for reduction in building, based on the Washington conference agreement. The Italian government declares that this attitude makes it difficult for the great powers to undertake any reduction in building programs for small craft.

"Vital Interests."

"Italy can't agree to measures endangering, even indirectly, her vital interests," said the Italian government's statement. This statement is accepted here as intended to be coupled with the further statement of the government relative to "hurried naval building of the great minor powers on the Mediterranean."

Italy wants Spain, Russia and Yugo-Slavia included in any disarmament plan, and probably won't accept any disarmament proposals that do not include these nations.

This decision comes during a great burst of activity at government arms plants and talk of Italian invasion of the Balkans.

When replying to these advertisements mention The DAILY WORKER.

Non-Stop Musher

Wilfred Blais, 25, of Lewiston, Me., in order to see the world's championship snowshoe race at Manchester, N. H., mushed there on snow shoes, 140 miles, without stopping in 48½ hours.

Schooner Driven on Rocks.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Feb. 14.—Twenty fishermen were forced to take to their dories today when, during a blinding snow storm, the two-masted fishing schooner Elsie G. Silva of Gloucester was driven on the rocks near Pamet River.

MUSSOLINI MAY START NEW WAR UPON BALKANS

Machine Guns, Tanks Being Manufactured

LONDON, Feb. 14.—"Is Mussolini planning a new Italian war or an invasion of Asia Minor or what?" queries the Lugano correspondent for the London Daily Herald who has discovered that arsenals and munition factories are working at high pressure throughout Italy.

The re-opening of the government arsenal in Rome, the rate at which the great Breda firm at Milan is turning out machine guns and tanks indicate that Mussolini may have a little war up his sleeve.

Textile factories at Prato are reported to be making enough uniform cloth for over 250,000 soldiers and an optical company in Milan has received two carloads of telescopic field gun sights from abroad to finish, according to the Daily Herald's correspondent.

Perhaps Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill who recently returned from a little visit to Rome may know the why and wherefore of these military preparations, the Daily Herald suggests.

Kills Self With Dynamite.

PEABODY, Mass., Feb. 14.—Blowing himself up with a charge of dynamite, that shook the earth for miles around and shattered scores of windows, William H. Vanderbilt, 60, an explosive expert committed suicide here today.

THE PYRAMIDS FOR A RADIO STATION

Central Press Photo

The pyramids of Egypt, one of the wonders of the ancient and modern world, are tombs to the grandeur of kings who died thousands of years ago. But nothing is sacred to capitalism or its governments. The British dominated administration in Egypt gives its consent to turning the largest pyramid into a radio station, with the machinery housed in the tomb chamber itself. No one protests in Pharaoh's name. But this radio will be used to direct troop movements against a nationalist uprising in Egypt soon, and there will then be a lot of protest from the Egyptians.

COOLIDGE'S FEDERAL RESERVE BANK BILL MAY PASS CONGRESS SOON AND TIGHTEN GRIP OF BANKERS ON LIVES OF AMERICAN WORKERS

By LAURENCE TODD (Federated Press).

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Re-chartering for an indefinite period of the Federal Reserve banks is about to be "put over" on the people of the United States without public discussion of the broad powers thus confirmed to the big banking interests of Wall Street. Congress is prepared to rush to President Coolidge for signature a bill which forestalls a battle as significant as the one in Andrew Jackson's time fought over the charter of the National Bank. And Coolidge, eagerly awaiting the chance to sign this measure, is not whispering a word concerning its importance, for fear something in the arrangements may slip, and the public take alarm.

Ford at $5,000,000,000 Dinner With Coolidge

Henry Ford, billionaire Detroit auto manufacturer, coming to Washington to attend a dinner given in honor of President and Mrs. Coolidge by the Secretary of the Interior, Hubert Work, is snapped as he calls at the White House.

Workers Party Ready For Women's Day With Corps of Speakers

Throughout the world, March the eighth has been set aside as a day for intensive propaganda among woman workers—the most exploited section of the exploited classes. In every country great meetings are held to put forward the demands of women as workers and as workers' wives—minimum wage law, shorter hours; equal pay for equal work, leave of absence at child-birth, better housing at lower rents, abolition of child labor, more and better schools, etc.,—and to rally women workers to the class struggle.

Extensive preparations are being made for a mass meeting in celebration of International Woman's Day, to be held under the auspices of the Workers Party, District No. 2, at the Central Opera House, March 8. The speakers will be Mr. J. Olgin, M. Weinstone, L. J. Engdahl, Rose Wortis of the Dressmakers' Union, Fanny Warshefsky of the Furriers' Union, Kate Gitlow of the United Council of Housewives, a Y. W. L. and Pioneer speaker, and the secretary of the women's department of the Workers Party, District No. 2. There will also be a musical program.

Tickets are on sale at 108 E. 14th St. and at the office of The DAILY WORKER.

Welcomed Silently.

In the McFadden bill, which legalizes the creation of branch banks within any city, by a national bank located there, provided state banks in that state are authorized to establish branches, this re-charter scheme is found. It was put into the bill in the senate by Carter Glass of Virginia, former democratic secretary of the treasury and one of the authors of the Federal Reserve Act. The Mellon-Coolidge administration welcomed it silently, hoping that no progressive would raise the issue between this relief bill for the Wall Street bankers and the relief bill for western farmers.

In conference of the two houses the Glass amendment was retained, and the house adopted the conference report. Recently the administration lined up more than two-thirds of the senators to sign cloture petitions for both the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill and this bank re-chartering scheme. The cloture will not be needed for the farm bill, as a date for final vote on that measure has been agreed upon. But the bank bill awaits further action.

No Filibuster.

As the progressives view the crisis, nothing can be hope d for in the way of filibuster. As soon as they shall nothing can be hoped for in the way ure for a day of two, the banking bloc will file the petition for cloture, and the debate will be cut off when each senator shall have had a chance to speak one hour. Since the active opposition may number less than ten senators, a final roll-call can soon be forced, and the bill will go to the White House for signing. The country will have been placed for an indefinite period of years under the financial charge of the Federal Reserve Board and the banks which it is supposed to dominate. The power which has ruled the policy of the board is the big banking combine in New York. This group will be able in future, as it was in 1920, to suddenly deflate any section of business, industry or commerce.

Must Be Passed Now.

A prediction has been made that Coolidge would not dare to veto the farm relief bill, because that action would make the senate turn against him on his bank re-chartering bill. He will not get a chance to slip the bank bill through the new congress; and the membership will be disposed to examine very deliberately the limitations which should be put on the banking system, to prevent dangerous inflation of credit and the making of panics. He must get the re-charter bill through congress now. He may have to pay the price, which would be his signature on the farm relief bill, which he has often declared to be unsound and impossible. Meanwhile the farm bill moves toward his desk, and the farm senators are unwilling to act on the bank privilege measure until they know he has signed the relief bill. None of them has discovered that the banks, rechartered, can again take away by deflation all of the possible good effects of the relief scheme.

Says We Have Improved.

DAILY WORKER,

Dear Sir:

Your paper has much improved of late in two respects: it is not so much a mere dry catalogue of events in various labor organizations, and it is extending its circle of interest to an extent that is making it a cultural agent of the working class. We must have art to live. JANE MORRIS

Represents U. S. in Belgium

Belgium is one of the countries most "favored" by the United States in the debt settlement, and has borrowed most heavily from Morgan controlled banks following the writing off of considerable parts of the U. S. government war loans. She is one of the most promising of Wall Street's new financial fiefs. No wonder then that Uncle Shylock chooses his ministers to Belgium with care. Above Hugh S. Gibson, just transferred to Belgium from Switzerland, and conferring in Washington now as to his new duties.

Bethlehem Tax Gang Preys on Foreign Born With "Collection Cost"

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 14.—Quite recently foreign-born workers, living in colonies of their nationality here, unused to the ways of the country, have been preyed upon by tax collectors, who charge them for "the cost of collection," whether they have to pay their tax or not, were visited by house-to-house collectors who asserted that they were rounding up tax dodgers.

These marauders visited a house that had been occupied for only a month and demanded that they pay the city and school taxes for the year 1925. In order to avoid going to jail, these people were forced to borrow from friends a sum totaling $377 (including the "cost of collection" on, in plain language, graft).

This is only one instance of legal robbery of workers in this city. Many other cases of the sort have been reported. Meanwhile, Bethlehem workers of all nationalities have begun to agitate for the formation of an organization to protect the foreign-born workers from marauders such as these.

I. L. D. Bazaar Program Will Be Good Souvenir

"We expect to make the year's bazaar program a work covering the field of defense of class-war prisoners." This is the ambition of the International Labor Defense.

Stories and letters from political prisoners; special articles dealing with branches of the work, such as deportation cases, raising bail, negotiations with lawyers, relief to needy dependents of prisoners, conditions in various jails, stories of prison life, etc., are to be dealt with. A statement dealing with the general problem of defense, the purpose of the I. L. D., and the job it hopes to do, will be published in the souvenir program.

Buy Your
DAILY WORKER
at the Newsstand

The Manager's Corner

DAILY WORKER IMPROVEMENTS.

We are going into the business of blowing our own horn for a change, first because we feel a bit proud, second because it's good business and third because we want to, give our readers a chance to do some hornblowing on their own account, in behalf of their own paper.

We wish to take the opportunity at this time to call the attention of our readers to the recent improvements made in The DAILY WORKER.

Have you noticed Eugene Lyon's new column, "Footnotes to the News," with its keen thrusts at the present order, a wonderful combination of side-splitters and eye-openers? A prize of five inches of space in this column is offered to the comrade who can show us a livelier column anywhere.

Harbor Allen, our new dramatic critic, whose reviews have already caused considerable comment in artistic circles, is one of a group of writers who have rallied around The DAILY WORKER, as the only newspaper, which offers a channel for the expression of the great dissatisfaction, which at present prevails among the honest and socially-minded elements in the newspaper field. This group includes a number of writers, associated with capitalist journals, who are going to give their ardent support and assistance to The DAILY WORKER. More will be heard from this group later on.

Plans are under way for the establishment of a radio column, a practical arts section, a women's page, and musical department.

The "News in Brief" column has been favorably received by many comrades as giving them a broad view of the news from many different sources, a sort of kaleidoscope of the day's events.

In general, the comments we get point to the fact that we are now publishing more and better news, both general and labor, and that the paper is becoming in every sense of the word, one of the nation's livest newspapers, a paper that delivers the Communist message with a punch and yet puts that message across in its most attractive form.

BERT MILLER.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR OLD AGE SECURITY CAMPAIGNS FOR PENSIONS, NOT POOR HOUSES

National pensions for the aged are the object of the American Association for Old Age Security, a national organization formed at the initiative of certain trade union leaders and public spirited citizens at a New York meeting. James H. Maurer, president, Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, a staunch supporter of pension legislation, is one of the chief sponsors of the association and Abraham Epstein, director of the Pennsylvania Old Age Pension Commission, is temporary executive secretary.

Trade unionists believe government pension legislation will knock an important welfare weapon out of the hands of anti-union employers. Corporation pensions today are a club over the heads of the workers. Epstein in his study of the subject for the state of Pennsylvania refers to corporation pensions as part of the "benevolent feudalism of management."

Poor Houses Cost More.

No need to worry about the costs of government pensions, the American Association indicates, announcing its plans for a legislative drive in the various states and at Washington. Pensions cost less than poor houses.

"It is conservatively estimated," the announcement states, "that at least 1,800,000 aged persons in the United States are dependent upon relatives or upon public or private charitable relief for their support. . . Over three years' experience with the Montana old age pension system shows that the total per capita expenditure on pensions represents but twenty-seven cents per year. The support of an alms house inmate in that state costs from three to five times that of a pensioner."

"Recent studies show that the populous countries still without any form of constructive care for the aged are the United States, China and India."

Sponsors Sign.

In addition to Maurer and Epstein the sponsors of the American Association include the following: Elmer Spahr, president, Pennsylvania State Conference of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union, York, Pa.; Frank J. Fitch, Order of Railway Conductors, Philadelphia; Harry Magnuson, of the International Labor Office; Evelyn Preston, New York; Florence Kelley, secretary, National Consumers' League; Father John F. O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, Washington, D. C.; Rev. John A. Ryan, Washington, D. C.; Rabbi Solomon Ehrlebert Sewall, U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington; Bishop Egbelbert Talbot, of the Episcopal Diocese, Bethlehem; Jane Addams, Chicago; Herbert S. Bilgelow, Cincinnati; Glenn Frank, president, University of Wisconsin; Senator Charles Hall, Oregon; William T. Magnuson, Indianapolis; William Hard, Washington; John Haynes Holmes, New York; William Kent, California; Congressman Fiorello La-Guardia, New York; Bishop Francis J. McConnell, Pittsburgh; John G. McCormick, Grand Rapids, Michigan; Royal Robbins, Massachusetts; Dr. I. M. Rubinow, Philadelphia; Congressman George J. Schneider, Wisconsin; Professor Henry R. Seager, Columbia University; Judge Bernard L. Shientag, New York; Mrs. Mary K. Simkovitch, New York; Oswald Garrison Villard, New York; Carl Vrooman, Illinois; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York, and Mary E. Woolley, South Hadley, Massachusetts.

Albert Weisbord to Speak in Pittsburgh Labor Lyceum, Soon

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 14.—Albert Weisbord, well known leader of the Passaic strike, is coming to this city Sunday, Feb. 20th, where he will address several mass meetings.

At 8 o'clock in the evening, Feb. 20th, he will speak at the Labor Lyceum, 33 Miller St., Pittsburgh, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon he will speak at the Hungarian Hall on Braddock, East Pittsburgh. Admission is free.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

English Class in Paterson.

All the workers of Paterson, regardless of political faith or affiliation, are cordially invited to attend the class in English which will be conducted once a week by the Paterson branch of the Workers School of New York.

The class will begin at 8 o'clock sharp, at 3 Governor St., Wednesday, Feb. 16. No books are required. A nominal tuition fee will be charged.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

YOUNG WORKERS ATTENTION.

All articles and notices for the Youth column should be addressed as follows: "J. Perillo, Editor Youth Column, 108 East 14th street, Room 32, New York City.

The quality of the column will in a large degree depend on the matter of contributions received.

Young Worker correspondents, get on the job!

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates, write to
JOHN WEINROTH
6136 LARCHWOOD AVENUE,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Read the
'BOLSHEVIK'
A DRAMA IN PLAY FORM
written on the American style
By LEON HAUSMAN
Author and Playwright
Per Copy at $1.10
sent to Leon Hausman "Bolshevik" Post Office Box 197, Elizabeth, N. J., secures a copy of "Bolshevik" in English for the present.
Translations may be had at a later date.
On and after March 15th, 1927, "BOLSHEVIK" will be $2.00 a copy. As Mr. Leon Hausman intends to play the title role, advises his wide acquaintance to first read the book. The college is finding it difficult to get "BOLSHEVIK" across in newspapers, but "BOLSHEVIK" will go over just the same AND HOW!!!

B. Saxe's
DINEWELL
VEGETARIAN and DAIRY
RESTAURANT
78 2nd Avenue, Near 4th Street.
The Real Way to Eat
—The Natural Way.

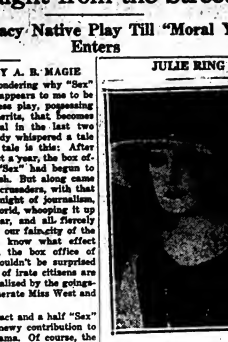
DRAMA

Straight from the Street

"Sex" Is Racy Native Play Till "Moral Youth" Enters

REVIEWED BY A. B. MAGIE

I HAVE been wondering why "Sex" was raided. It appears to me to be an utterly harmless play, possessing certain salient merits, that becomes depressingly moral in the last two acts. But somebody whispered a tale to me. And the tale is this: After running for almost a year, the box office receipts of "Sex" had begun to drop and languish. But along came the 20th century crusaders, with that virtuous Black Knight of journalism, the New York World, whooping it up lustily in the rear, and all fiercely determined to rid our fair city of the infidels. I don't know what effect this has had on the box office of "Sex." But I shouldn't be surprised if packed houses of irate citizens are being daily scandalized by the goings-on of the unregenerate Miss West and her troupe.



For about one act and a half "Sex" is a vivid and sinewy contribution to the American drama. Of course, the critics of the bourgeois press took one look at the title, the portly leading actress and the low-brow audience and fled to stage public indignation meetings in their columns the next day. Yet to me the dialogue of that first act and a half is as real and fresh and grimly cynical as anything I have seen on the stage. The language of so many desperately "native" Broadway plays sounds as if it had been synthetically concocted by an ex-professor of philology. But the slang of "Sex" is a jargon sprung wild as weeds ont of the American streets, blatant and tender and humorous and pathetic. The slang of "Sex" is a hard cool flat, and I sat in the bleachers cheering each blow.

Mae West plays the part of a tough and billowy lady who has lived graddily and managed to keep her virtne agreeably flexible. There is loudness in her playing and mannerism and coarseness, but it has a speed and exuberance that is alien to the tenuous intellectualizations of the precieuse actor.

The play contains the silhouettes of certain rich, flamboyant American types, the shyster detective, the suave and artful crook and the elegant, wilted, pitifully starved lady from the hinterlands who comes to the big city to have her last gaudy fling before retiring to her knitting and her grandchildren. But most of this remains sc hetched and rough.

For in the second act "Sex" succumbs to the flesh-pots of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero and grows increasingly sappy. There is the model young girl from the play is halted to allow a stage orchestra, nobbily outfitted in white sailor pants and middy blouses, to crash out some glittering Reichert and Jean La Montte head the cast. [illegible] music. Of course, it's the thing she's been yearning for all her life, a home, a man she truly loves, little curly heads, etc. And with the first swallow he brings her home to meet the folks, and—but I didn't wait to learn the horrible truth. Morality had conquered.

"A Woman in the House," a comedy by Samuel Shipman and Neil Twomey, will open out of town in two weeks. Franklyn Farnum, Marion Stokes, Mary Loane, Robert Williams, Marie The next production of the Actors' Theatre will be "Mariners," by Clemence Dane, author of "A Bill of Divorcement" and "Will Shakespeare."

JULIE RING

Plays an important role in "The Strawberry Blonds," Martin Brown's amusing comedy at the Bijou Theatre.

"Puppets of Passion" to Open New Masque Theatre Feb. 24

The Chanins have set Thursday night, February 24, as the opening date of their new Masque theatre in West Forty-fifth Street. The opening attraction is "Puppets of Passion," from the Italian of Rosso di San Secondo, with the English adaptation by Ernest Boyd and Eduardo Clannelli. The play, which is now in rehearsal under the direction of David Burton, will give three performances in Stamford on Monday, and Tuesday, February 21, 22.

The Masque will be the fifth theatre which the Chanins have built in the Times Square district. The others include the Chanin, the Royale; while the Majestic will reach completion in March.

BROADWAY BRIEFS

Two openings are scheduled for this afternoon: "Spellbound," by Walter Elwood, which will begin a series of special matinees at the Klaw Theatre, and "Possibilities," by J. S. and Ernest W. Martin, at the Princess—also playing at special matinees.

The Charlot Revue, now being featured in the Earl Carroll "Vanities," will end their engagement at the Earl Carroll Saturday evening, when they will leave for an extended engagement in Canada. Johnny Dooley and Dorothy Knapp will join the cast of Vanities beginning Monday evening, February 21.

Due to the success of "Cradle Song," the Civic Repertory Players will give a special matinee performance Friday afternoon.

"The Devil in the Cheese," by Tom Cushing, at the Charles Hopkings Theatre, will give three matinees this week; Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Lina Basquette will be seen in "La Maire's Affairs," scheduled to open Chanin's new Majestic Theatre early in March.

"Menace," a play by Arthur M. Brilliant, was placed in rehearsal on Monday with Jack Roseleigh in the leading role. James E. Kenny is the producer.

AMUSEMENTS

Neighborhood Playhouse
466 Grand St. Dry dock 7210
Every Eve. (Except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
"PINWHEEL"
By Francis Edwards Faragoh
"THE DYBBUK"—Feb. 17 thro' Feb. 23

An AMERICAN TRAGEDY Longacre 6TH MONTH West 48 St. Mats. Wed. and Sat.

KLAW THEA., W. 45th St. Evs. 8:30 MATINEES THURS. & SAT.
"SINNER"
With Allan Dinehart & Clarborne Foster

Sam H. HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2:30 & 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$2. Eves. 50c-$2

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave.
Pop. Prices. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
"THE LITTLE SPITFIRE"
Myron C. Fagan's Great Comedy.

BROADWAY
Direction of A. H. Woods, by Arthur Hurley
Extra Mats. Feb. 22, 23, 24 and 25
Thea., 48 St., W. of B'way. Evgs. 8:30
Matinees WED. and SAT., 2:30
Bonnie
Musical Jon Bon with Dorothy Burgess, Louis Simon, Wm. Frawley, George Sweet.
PLYMOUTH Thea., West 45th St. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Tues., Wed. & Sat.
Sat. Evenings and Thu. and Sat. Mats. WINTHROP AMES
Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE
Thursday Evenings Only. "Iolanthe"
The LADDER
Everybody's Play
WALDORF, 58th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.
Civic Repertory Cor. 6 Av. & 14 St. Tel. Watkins 7161.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
Tonight ..... "CRADLE SONG"
Tomorrow ..... "MARTIN BUILDER"
Tomorrow Night, "THREE SISTERS"
EARL CARROLL THEATRE 7th Ave. 50th St.
EARL CARROLL VANITIES
Featuring Charlot's Revue Hermann Heck Lillian Fontaine
Theatre Guild Acting Company in BROTHERS KARAMAZOV
Week Feb. 14—PYGMALION
GUILD Thu. 2:15 Mats. Thu. & Sat. 2:15
THE SILVER CORD
Week Feb. 14—Red McCobb's Daughter
Jane Golden Th. 48, E. of B'way Circle Mats Thurs. & Sat.: 5418.

PASSAIC STRIKE STILL ON!
WE'VE WON IN FOUR MILLS!
HELP US BEAT THE REST!

GIVE MONEY PLEASE! For Coal for the Strikers' Homes! For Bread for their families! They have made a hard fight! Now they are winning! Now you must help more than ever! Give all you can! MAKE VICTORY COMPLETE!

Make all contributions by check or money order to

GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE
799 BROADWAY Room 223 NEW YORK CITY

Get 10c Coupons and sell them TO HELP US FEED the Strikers' Children.

BUTLER HASTENS TO DISAVOW OWN CANDIDACY PLAN

Billionaires' Dinner Rebuke to Him

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, is not a candidate for the republican nomination for president in 1928, a statement issued by him today declares.

In making the statement, Dr. Butler pointed out that his recent remarks at a political gathering were interpreted by a portion of the press and public to the effect that he was seeking the nomination.

Buried Out Coolidge.

Butler had stated that Coolidge was too sensible to think he could win if he ran for the presidency again, and furthermore, if the republican party won next time, it would have to have a vet as its leader.

Immediately after this speech of Butler's, politicians and big business men worth $5,000,000,000 gathered in the biggest banquet hall in Washington, with Coolidge as the guest of honor. By many this was taken as a direct rebuke to Butler, and Butler as though accepting it in that sense, now hastens to assure all and sundry that he didn't mean to substitute himself for Coolidge.

"Merely Private"

He asserts he set forth his opinions merely as a private citizen and that when he discussed Coolidge's third term candidacy and prohibition, he had no inclination towards the nomination and does not propose to have any such intention.

"For more than a generation we have fallen into the habit of leaving public discussion of political principles and policies almost exclusively to office-holders and candidates for office. The result is that when a private citizen discusses public questions he is almost certain to excite suspicion that does so because of desire for political preferment.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

Sits in Movie While Cops Look for Him

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 14. — Harry Katz and Samuel Teitz, who were slain by Harry Gordon, the "mad butcher," on Friday night, were buried today.

Gordon's insane death splurge has been the talk of Rochester since the radio sent out a warning Friday night that a "mad butcher" was at large after killing two men and wounding two others.

While this warning was being broadcast, Gordon was sitting in a picture show watching a hanging scene on the screen.

Holland Helps Germany Finance Deliveries of Goods to the U. S. S. R.

Dutch capital is participating in the German credit of 300,000,000 marks for financing deliveries of goods to Russia, according to the Rotterdamsche Bankvereeniging, in its monthly review. The Dutch share in this credit amounts to 30,000,000 florins.

Holland's participation in the scheme is notable because Holland did not recognize the Soviet government de jure up till now.

DISARMAMENT IS AN ARGUMENT FOR LARGER NAVY MEN

"Must Build Ships to Be Able to Trade"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Fear of a possible impasse in President Coolidge's proposal for the further limitation of naval armaments stimulated the American cruiser building program in congressional circles today.

It was indicated that the fight to begin construction on at least three light cruisers will be renewed with vigor during the week. It was explained, however, that congress will enact any legislation in such a way as to leave to the discretion of the president the actual start of construction operations.

Pani Sails from Mexico To Argue American Oil Imperialists Into Quiet

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 14.—An attempt to placate American oil magnates will be made by Alberto J. Pani, former finance minister, who is leaving for New York, officially authorized to confer with them. The conferences have been arranged through the intercession of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Pani's mission represents a move on the part of the conservative faction of Mexico's labor government to reach a settlement with the American oil companies. Pani's report may bring about a crisis within the Mexican cabinet since the Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor stands for the enforcement of the petroleum laws of 1925.

The meeting between Pani and the oil interests has been arranged by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Blair & Co. The latter has invested heavily in the Pan-American Eastern Petroleum and Transport Company.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

CAPTAIN SENDS CREW TO CHASE VESSEL IN FOG

Lightly Clad Sailors Row Around in Channel

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The dense fog which has blanketed the English Channel for forty-eight hours has unshrouded several sea dramas which the official rescue service is now trying to elucidate.

From the viewpoint of tonnage the most important accident was the collision early this morning between the royal mail steamer Sarnaka of 8,263 tons and the admiralty steamer Oleander of 7,046 tons.

Woman Life Saver.

They crashed off Dungess in a heavy fog. Both were severely damaged. A wireless call for help brought out a life boat party who were aided by a woman in launching the rescue craft.

The life boat was at sea three hours without finding a trace of either vessel. In the meantime wireless messages said the Nebraska was sailing to London at a reduced speed while the Oleander was also progressing slowly with its hull leaking badly.

About the same time the Ellermann liner City of Tokio ran on a sand bar near Margate. She called a tug and was towed off safely.

Ordered To Chase Ship.

The most exciting experience befel the crew of sixteen, manning the Norwegian steamer Rea, of 444 tons. She collided with the Spanish steamer Gordejusela, of 1,120 tons, off Folkestone and the crew immediately took to life boats and boarded the Gordejuela, reporting the Rea sinking.

The Spanish ship was feeling her way slowly through the dense fog when the captain of another vessel were heard running a few yards from the Gordejuela's portside. Realizing the Rea had not sunk but was running around wild in the sea, the captain ordered his crew back into the life boats in an effort to locate the vessel.

Make Shore.

They failed to find it, however, and they steered by the aid of a compass to land and arrived safely on the shore near Folkestone, most of them wearing only a shirt and trousers.

The derelict is apparently steaming, without a crew, in the channel.

Religious Fanatics Nearly Starve Woman To Drive Out Devils

BRIDGEWATER, S. D., Feb. 14.—Exorcism, practiced on a dying woman near here by a strang religious cult, may bring a legal action, it was announced today by Sheriff J. C. Hindreks.

Mrs. John J. Wollam was possessed of devils, her husband charges the cult leaders, and he wanted them driven out.

The leaders of the faith proceeded then to tie Mrs. Wollam to bed. There bound hand and foot and unable to move, she was denied any kind of nourishment for three days.

Unable to protect herself, and hardly able to protest, she was forced to lie there while the cult members knelt by her side and prayed, and then went into strange gyrations which were supposed to drive the fiendish devils from her body.

About the only thing that happened, it was said, was to make her hungry. Food would feed the devils it was said and prevent them from leaving the body.

Mob Threatened.

Threats of mob law were heard when friends and neighbors found her tied in bed. This feeling has to a certain extent died down now, but Sheriff Hindricks, who has just completed his investigation of the matter said that in all probability some form of legal action will follow.

She will probably be in proper physical condition by Monday or Tuesday to decide whether or not she wishes to take the matter to court.

Open Shop Paid Well But There Was More To It Than He Thot

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 (FP).—He got $7 above the union scale as a pressman in a Los Angeles print shop, but he's back in Chicago where men are men and not erased victims of open-shop speedups.

That sums up the experience of a member of Local 3, International Printing Pressmen's union. Tiring of steady unresentful employment under union conditions in Chicago, he flivvered to southern California. He found most of the pressrooms in Los Angeles openshop, though no particular objection was made to his carrying a card. He was surprised to have work offered him at $7 a week above the scale.

But when he took it he was still more surprised. He had to keep dashing from one press to another most of the day. At the end of the week he figured that his $7 extra had saved the boss about $120 extra in wages. At the end of another week he was nearly a wreck, doing 3 men's work.

Then he sold the Ford for $50 and came back to Chicago. Work in a pressroom under union conditions looks sweet to him now.

Nominate Chinese to Stand for Parliament For British Workers

LONDON, Feb. 14. — English Communists have recently nominated a Chinese by the name of Ping Sho as their candidate for parliament from the District Hollerdon, in London.

Ping Sho was born in Hong Kong, an English seaport, and is therefore considered as an English citizen. He was a revolutionary activist in his youth among the Chinese seaport workers in Hong

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

Prohibitionists Try For Cloture in Senate To Get Stricter Laws

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Fearful that the power of the dry majority in the senate will be permanently nullified, prohibitionists have started a drive to force adoption of a cloture rule and jam through their long-delayed legislation.

By this means they hope to compel enactment of the reorganization bill, removing dry enforcement from internal revenue bureau control and placing all prohibition agents under civil service. This measure has been hanging fire more than three years.

Fear of a wet filibuster, which would tie up all legislation and subject prohibition to new attacks, has thus far led dry leaders to avoid pressing the bill to a vote at this session.

Doubt was expressed by senatorial leaders that the drys can put over the cloture rule. Its proposal probably would provoke such a filibuster as it is designed to prevent, it was pointed out, and the rule could not be adopted without a two-thirds vote.

"Battle of Illinois" Now Being Fought With All Modern War Weapons

MARION, Ill., Feb. 14—Shady rest drowsed in the afternoon sun. Charley Birger, and half a dozen of his retainers were peacefully occupied cleaning and oiling machine guns and six-shooters in preparations for battle with the Shelton Brothers' army.

Before Birger and his men could comprehend the situation, the pilot of a plane, now less than 200 feet above the house, leaned out of his cockpit and dropped an ellongated bomb.

The missile landed less than 100 yards from the house.

Two other bombs were dropped. They turned out to be duds. Birger and his companions unlimbered their machine guns and fired upon the plane, but it soared away undamaged.

The aerial attack was, directed by forces commanded by Birger's chief enemies, Carl, Earl and Barnard Shelton, with whom he had quarreled nine months ago.

Aimee Says Jesus Also Was Persecuted; She Is Making Expenses Tho

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 14.—A driving snow storm failed to keep the enthusiastic crowds away from Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson's closing address here tonight. It was the final exercise of a three-day meeting.

Only once did the evangelist allude to her troubles in Los Angeles. She said simply, then, that Christ, like herself, had been plotted against by enemies.

No admission is charged at the meetings but a collection is taken up. Mrs. McPherson said that she had met expenses.

Rumanian Police Will Permit Union Meet If It Will Support Pinks

BUCHAREST, Jan. 21 (By Mail). —In connection with the pliened congress of the Unitarian trade unions, the general director of the Roumanian Siguranza (secret police) Volinsku, informed Ghempet, the secretary of the unions in Bucharest officially that official permission would be given for the congress should it agree to affiliate the unions to the Amsterdam International. All over the country membership meetings of the Unitarian unions have declared against any affiliation to the Amsterdam International.

Brilliant Police Work; Warrant for the Victim

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Police have sent out an order for the arrest of Mrs. Alice Van Dusen and Ernest Rogers. This order followed the belief that a body found under the bed of Mrs. Van Dusen, who disappeared with Rogers on Dec. 20, leaving her three children in the care of their grandmother, Mrs. William Emmons.

Maybe Star Weds.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.—Hollywood is buzzing merrily with the gossip that Greta Garbo the Swedish actress and John Gilbert, hero of "The Big Parade," "Flesh and the Devil" and innumerable other screen dramas, slipped quietly out of Los Angeles last Friday and were married, in a nearby village.

LETTER BRIDGES DUAL UNIONISM OF SCHACHTMAN

Frayne Shelves "Greek Brotherhood"

Evidently the letter from the New York Joint Board of the Furriers' union, charging the American Federation of Labor officials with fostering dual unionism, sends them pause in their job of openly violating the constitution of the International Fur Workers' union by chartering a local of fur workers outside the jurisdiction of the Joint Board.

It is learned that this letter arrived on Friday just a few moments before the opening of the conference between representatives of the International, the A. F. of L. and the Greek Brotherhood when they were to settle the matter of handing a charter to the company union, which the Joint Board had brought to the point of voluntary dissolution before the interference of the International.

Tales Don't Jibe.

Following the conference, the International officials and Mr. Hugh Frayne, who had represented the A. F. of L., told two different stories as to what had happened; and the Greek Brotherhood, which heretofore has been very talkative about all its plans and actions, refused to say anything at all. P. Stylianides, spokesman for the Brotherhood, said, "He did not want to get things mixed up"; and the report is that other members of the conference forced a promise of silence from him.

Judging by what everyone did not say, and by well authenticated rumors, it is certain that the question of taking the Greek Brotherhood into the International Fur Workers' union has been shelved for the present—perhaps indefinitely—and a showdown now on the matter of the Brotherhood's contract with the Greek manufacturers, and on the question of dual unionism which was raised by the Joint Board.

According To Schachtman.

According to Otier Schachtman, president of the International Fur Workers' union, the Brotherhood was granted affiliation with the International a month ago at the executive board meeting in Montreal. "All that remains now is the procedure by which the Greek workers shall be taken into membership. To arrange these details a committee of the federation has been appointed to work with a committee of the International." The question of the Greek contract, he says, is a minor detail which can be worked out."

Frayne Grows Cautious.

Organizer Hugh Frayne was loath to give any information about the conference at all, and simply stated that no definite decision was yet ready to be announced. It is believed he wants to wait until the question of the graft charges in connection with the furriers' strike has been settled, and such embarrassing matters as Mr. Eitingon's statement about the attempted bribery have blown over, before he takes another step which is bound to involve him in endless difficulties.

Greeks Resent Action.

Infuriated by the action of the International officials and the American Federation of Labor in connection with this whole Brotherhood matter, the Greek branch of the Joint Board is calling a general membership meeting this week to discuss the question.

The committee of the Greek branch, John Pappas and George Arvanetes, who signed the letter sent to the American Federation of Labor, will take up with the members the proposition of tackling this problem of the Greek Brotherhood and will show how the union officials broke off the possible chance of dissolving the Greek company union.

Matty Scolds Motty.

It is announced that Matthew Woll, acting president of the National Civic Federation who headed the American Federation of Labor's committee of investigation of the fur strike, has sent a letter to Mr. Motty Eitingon, fur merchant, asking him to name the man who has left him for money to stop mention of his name in the committee's report.

Mr. Woll ignores the fact that Mr. Eitingon's statement said he had pledged himself not to reveal the identity of the man who approached him. However, just what the fur merchant's reply will be is not yet known since, when questioned, he stated that Mr. Woll's letter had not yet reached him.

Lots of Graft Found In New Jersey State Troop Organization

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 14.—Wholesale graft among New Jerseys' state troopers, and their violation of discipline of troopers reactions in the organization of many others as a protest against the dismissals. However, the facts that officers have been found guilty of graft and extortion compels the higher officers to continue their investigation and to dismiss many more.

Agnaldo Denounced By Student for the Anti-Freedom Stand

MANILA, Feb. 14. — General Emilio Aguinaldo, who has opposed National Congress in his championship of Filipino independence, was bitterly denounced at a student demonstration last night.

The demonstration followed an attack by Aguinaldo on Quezon's policies. Aguinaldo has supported Governor-General Wood's policies and is helping to make the Philippines safe for American rubber investors.

Hungarian Royalist Uniforms His Court; Ready for Crowning

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—The first steps toward providing a king for the "royal republic" of Hungary are reported in a Budapest paper which claims that Archduke Friedrich has placed an order with one of the best known tailors in Budapest for several hundred uniforms for court officials.

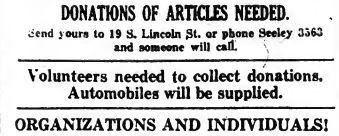
He is said to have placed this order for his own Albrecht, who is a rival for the throne of Otto, son of former Empress Zita.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

Hungarian Associations Finds General Falling Morally Under Horthy

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—The Hungarian Statistical Association has appointed a special committee to recommend some action to prevent the growing number of suicides and divorces.

The minister of the interior at the same time has issued a decree warning against "indecent" influences, prohibiting carsing in public, accosting women on the streets and the exhibition of indecent pictures and literature.



SOME COMPLICATIONS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—The tangled matrimonial affairs of Robert Ames, stage star, and his bride of five days, Muriel Oakes, New York society girl, are due for further complications tomorrow.

Complication No. 1.—Helen Lambert, pretty night club hostess, who claims Ames was to have married her on the very day he eloped with Miss Oakes, will bring into the Superior Court here a number of love notes and ardently signed photographs to establish a foundation for her $200,000 breach of promise suit against him.

Complication No. 2.—Ames' former wife, Miss Vivienne Segal of the "Castle in the Air" company, will petition the Superior Court to reopen their divorce case and order the actor to pay her alimony.

CHICAGO! ATTENTION!

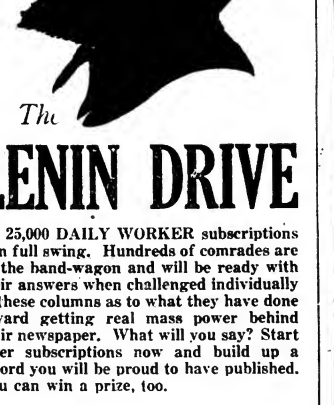
WORKER'S CARNIVAL BAZAAR

at the Ashland Auditorium
ASHLAND AVE. AND VAN BUREN
FEB. 25th
" 26"
" 27"

Benefit of DAILY WORKER and DAILY FREIHEIT. 50% to be contributed to International Labor Defense.

DONATIONS OF ARTICLES NEEDED.

Send yours to 19 S. Lincoln St. or phone Seeley 3563 and someone will call.



Volunteers needed to collect donations. Automobiles will be supplied.

ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS!

Send your greetings for the great Chicago Bazaar program. Full page $30.00—half page $16.00—one-fourth page $8.00—one-eighth page $4.00. Individuals, per name, 50c.

Bazaar Headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St.

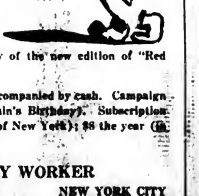
GET IN LINE! HELP!

The

LENIN DRIVE

for 25,000 DAILY WORKER subscriptions is in full swing. Hundreds of comrades are on the band-wagon and will be ready with their answers when challenged individually in these columns as to what they have done toward getting real mass power behind their newspaper. What will you say? Start after subscriptions now and build up a record you will be proud to have published. You can win a prize, too.

PRIZES



$100 Lenin bookshelf of Communist literature will be awarded to the comrade who secures the most annual subscriptions.

$100 Radio set will be placed in the party district headquarters of the district from which the most annual subscriptions are received.

$25 worth of literature (choice of titles from our lists) will be awarded to all comrades securing 50 annual subscriptions.

$10 worth of literature for 20 annual subscriptions; $5 worth of literature for 10 annual subscriptions.

"Red Cartoons for 1927" and $2 worth of literature, or a bronze statue of Karl Marx for 5 annual subscriptions.

A Daily Worker Builders' Button will be awarded to every comrade who secures an additional subscription to his own.

Every new annual subscriber during this campaign will receive—in addition to the paper—a copy of the new edition of "Red Cartoons for 1927."

All subscriptions must be accompanied by cash. Campaign ends April 23, 1927 (Lenin's Birthday). Subscription rates: $6 the year (outside of New York); $8 the year (in New York).

THE DAILY WORKER
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK CITY

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):		By mail (outside of New York):
$8.00 per year	$4.50 six months	$6.00 per year	$3.50 six months
$2.50 three months		$2.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, Editors
WILLIAM F. DUNNE, Editors
BERT MILLER, Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The Miners Negotiate.

The wage scale committee picked by John L. Lewis at the recent convention in Indianapolis is now in joint session in Miami, Florida, with the coal operators of the central competitive fields. Why it was necessary to travel as far south as Miami is not clear. Perhaps to recuperate from the struggle to save the union from Communism waged in Indianapolis!

The Jacksonville agreement expires on March 31 of this year. The Lewis machine is said to be willing to accept a renewal of the old agreement, tho this agreement has been punched full of holes by the coal magnates, many of those who signed it having repudiated their agreements without the slightest effort on the part of the reactionary machine to make them live up to the terms of the contract.

Lewis has succeeded in digging the guts out of the union. He has expelled many of the best and most militant leaders in the organization. To protect his own position and to curry favor with the capitalists he has intensified his drive against the radicals and had the constitution amended to permit the expulsion from the union of members known to belong to the Workers (Communist) Party.

Thus we see Mr. Lewis deliberately setting about to destroy the union, weakening it still more while pretending to be fighting for the best terms he can secure from the operators. Lewis's power at the negotiating table is not in his eloquence but in the collective might of the union. An honest leader would strengthen the union by organizing the unorganized miners, achieving unity inside its ranks by giving the union a fighting policy, something that would catch the imagination of the membership, encouraging the militant spirit and in general using the organization for what it was intended for: a weapon to fight for the class interests of the miners.

There is a real danger that Lewis, acting as the servant of the republican party coal barons may succeed in completely destroying the once-mighty United Mine Workers of America, before the left wing will have succeeded in ousting his reactionary machine. If this organization is once destroyed it will be a difficult task to reconstitute it in face of the growing trustification of the coal industry.

The situation calls for intensified activity on the part of the progressive elements in the U. M. W. of A. Under the slogans raised during the recent election campaign the miners' union can be given new life. But Lewis and what he stands for must go before the union can be rehabilitated.

George Washington and the Cherry Tree.

George Washington's juvenile virtue was the bane of many a young lad's life. George did not smoke, chew tobacco, take snuff, pick his teeth in public, tell lies or snore in his sleep. He was never late for school; neither did he throw stones at the teacher.

But in those debunking days it was patent that George Washington's reputation could not escape the historical vacuum cleaner. Rupert Hughes, a noted author put the tin hat on "Pollyanna" Washington, and exhumed the real George, a George that could crook his elbow with the best of the sports, hit a cuspidor at nine paces with a well-directed squirt of tobacco juice, get the laughs with a well-seasoned yarn and turn the atmosphere livid with his envied assortment of curses, oaths and general obscenity.

Since the bourgeoisie must have their saints for the masses to worship, so that they may not see the hands of the modern bourgeois in their pockets, Rupert Hughes found himself the target for the shafts of a legion of super-patriots, who wanted their Washington sober and truthful. A Washington who owned distilleries! This was enough to drive the anti-saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan to drink. If the citizenry got to believe that Washington was a booze manufacturer, well, he might make as good a prohibition enforcement officer as Andrew Mellon, but as the father of our country he would be a joke.

Hughes destroyed the cherry tree story with one jab of the pen. And yet, the writer knows several young hoodlums who admitted their misdemeanors to stern-eyed parents long before they heard of George, and the young rascals told the truth, instinctively feeling that if there was any drop of the milk of human kindness left in the parental heart it would flow when struck with the magic wand of juvenile veracity. Sometimes the trick worked but usually the irate father was so angry over the broken pipe or the perforated window pane that mercy had abdicated before the whipping began.

Hughes was the Daniel that came to pass judgment on George. But he is not getting away with it. We must have our Washington as pure as Mary Pickford in the movies. Let those who refuse to believe in the authenticity of the cherry tree fable go back to where they came from, even if it be to Oshkosh. No doubt the attempt to get the dirt on Washington is another Communist plot.'

William Green and Frank Morrison had luncheon with President Coolidge a few days ago, shortly after Henry Ford's visit to the White House. Ford made the front page but the A. P. sent out only four and a half lines on two officials of a labor organization that is reputed to have over three million adherents. After a few more years playing the role of doormats to capitalism, the A. P. may let those flunkeys go with a dash.

Get Another Subscriber for Your DAILY WORKER.

A NEW NOVEL
Upton Sinclair

III

From these ugly problems Bunny had a refuge—his little paper. He had arrived on a Sunday, and Rachel had met him at the train, with a dozen of the Ypsels, their faces shining. There was a cheer at sight of him—just as if he had been a moving picture star! There were handshakes all round—he and Rachel had several extra shakes, they were so glad to be together. The young people knew that Bunny would be sad over his father's death, and possibly also the burning of his all field; so they crowded round, and told him all the news at once, and Rachel produced the proofs of a new issue of "The Young Student," also last week's issue, and several others that he might not have received.

The little office was home—the only home Bunny had, because the mansion his father had rented had been subleased, and their personal belongings put in storage before Aunt Emma came to Europe. The office was only one room, but quite impressive with files and records accumulating; they had a subscription list of over six thousand now, and were printing eight thousand this week. But Rachel still had only one assistant—the Ypsels did the wrapping and addressing, evenings and Saturdays and Sundays. They hadn't got mobbed or arrested any more; the Socialists were supporting LaFollette for president, and that gave them the right to be let alone for a while.

And then Ruth. Bunny went to call on her, in the same little cottage. Paul had not got home yet; he had stopped in Chicago for a party conference, and now was coming by way of the northwest, speaking every night. He was having good meetings, because of the prominence his arrests had given him. The story of his expulsion from France had been in the papers all over the country, and Ruth showed Bunny letters telling about this and other adventures with police and spies. Ruth had made Paul promise to write her a postcard every single day; and when she didn't get one, then right away she began to imagine him in some police dungeon, getting the third degree.

Bunny watched her face as she talked. Her words were cheerful—she was a grass widow now, and able to earn good money, and save some if Paul should be in need. But she was pale, and her face was strained. There were Communist papers and magazines on the table, and Bunny could see at a glance what was happening. The papers came day by day, and Ruth, sitting here alone many and many an evening, had read them, looking for news about her brother; so she had absorbed all the horrors about the torturing and maiming and shooting of political prisoners, and it had been exactly as if Paul had been in battle.

Ruth hadn't what you would call a theoretical mind; you never heard her talk about party tactics and political developments and things like that. She was instinctive, yet with class consciousness all the more intense and passionate for that. She had been through two strikes, and the things she had seen with her own eyes had been all the lessons in economics she would ever need. She knew that the workers in big industry are wage slaves, fighting for their very lives. And this war was made like capitalist wars—this one had to be, because the masters made it. But even thus believing in Paul's work, Ruth could not help being in a tension of anxiety.

Also—a strange and perplexing thing—Ruth was angry with Rachel and "The Young Student"! It appeared that the Socialists had been getting up meetings all over the country for a so-called Social-revolutionary from Russia, a lecturer who made the imprisonment of his partisans in Russia the pretext for attack on the Soviet Government. The Social-revolutionaries were the people who had tried to assassinate Lenin, and who had taken the money of capitalist governments to stir up civil war inside Russia. How could Bunny's paper give support to them?

Bunny went back to Rachel and the Ypsels, who declared that this man was a Socialist, opposing the partisans of violence; the Communists had come to the meeting and tried to howl him down, and there had been almost a fight. So here was poor Bunny, facing with dismay the same internal warfare in the movement, which had so distressed him in Paris and Berlin and Vienna! He had been so profoundly impressed by Paul and his account of Russia, but he found that Rachel had not moved an inch from her position. She would defend the right of the Russians to work out their own destiny, she would defend their right to be heard in America—even though they would not defend her right. But she would have nothing to do with the Third International, and no talk about dictatorship—unless it was her own dictatorship, that was going to see to it the "The Young Student" didn't give the post office authorities or the district attorney's office any pretext for a raid! No, they were going to stand for a democratic solution of the social problem; and Bunny, as usual, was going to be bossed by a woman!

It was a curious thing—the nature of women! They seemed so gentle and impressionable; but it was the pliability of rubber, or of water—that comes right back the way it was before! From the very first—look at Eunice Hoyt, so set upon having her own way! And even little Rosie Tainton—if he had married her, he would have discovered that she had a fixed religious conviction as to the proper style of window curtains, and now often they had to be laundered! And Vea Tracy, who had given up her happiness—she would not be happy with a Roumanian prince, Bunny knew. And Ruth and Grandma, in the matter of the war! And Bertie, so hell-bent upon getting into fashionable society, in spite of having been born a mule-driver's daughter! And now here was Rachel Menzies, and Bunny knew exactly the situation—it would break her heart to give up the little paper, she had adopted it with the passion of a mother for a child; but she would walk out of the office in a moment, if Bunny should fail victim to the Communist process of "boring from within."

(To Be Continued).

Fertile Ground for Polygamy in Europe; Result of War Times

BERLIN, Feb. 14. — Post-war Europe, with its large surplus of women, is proving itself fertile ground for Mormon missionaries and their doctrine of polygamy.

The Mormons are gaining more adherents than any of the many other sects in whose doctrines the disappointed and disillusioned seek escape. In Vienna, the Mormons have already gathered a considerable congregation and are holding weekly services.

MUSSOLINI DEPORTS 80 YEAR-OLD REBEL

THE Executive Committee International Red Aid recently received information about the deportation from Brindisi to an uninhabited island of a blind comrade, Juseppe Pampolini 84 years old.

Of the numerous crimes perpetrated every day by the fascists this one deserves the special attention of the international proletariat.

A devoted and honest Communist, Comrade Prampolini in view of his old age and his physical infirmity took no active part in the political life of Italy during the last few years. In his youth, when the ideas of the 1st socialist international had not yet penetrated into Italy, Prampolini was an earnest republican, often persecuted by the police.

When, in 1866, Juseppe Garibaldi called on the Italian youth to join the war for the emancipation of Italy from the Austrian yoke, comrade Prampolini put on the red shirt of the Garibaldians.

When Garibaldi, after the fall of Paris Commual, and after the celebrated polemic between Marx and Bakunin, had proclaimed his famous slogan: "The international is the sun of the future", Prampolini together with the revolutionary part of Garibaldians joined the 1st international and since then has always remained true to the Italian labor movement and socialism.

After the strikes of 1890, when the Italian proletariat conquered the right to strike and freedom of assembly, comrade Prampolini left his profession of engineer and became secretary of an employment bureau in Venice run by labor.

As an old man Prampolini came to his native place, Brindisi. He did not leave, however, the revolutionary movement, being all the time one of the best propagandists in the South of Italy. Every Italian revolutionary can remember, how much the working masses liked old Prampolini, electing him always as their representative at municipal elections and giving him the leadship in all the biggest strikes in the history of the Italian labor movement. In 1914 he was elected by the congress of the Italian socialist party as a member of the C. C. of the party and, in spite of his old age, took an active part in the work of the C. C.

In 1921, in Livorno, during the split in the socialist party, when many revolutionists preferred to remain in the socialist party,—Prampolini followed the Communist group and laid the foundation of the Italian section of the Comintern.

Nothing but a profound hate of the revolutionary movement of the Italian proletariat, a thirst of vengeance and a fear of all those believing in liberty led the fascists to commit this new crime.

The international proletariat while making this act of Mussolini, is certain, that the hour of retaliation is imminent.—Avriano Sereni.

Refuses Censor Dictatorship.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—If the American stage hires a "dictator," it will be some one else—not Alexander P. Moore, former ambassador to Spain.

Moore announced here today that he had been "informally approached" on the proposal, but declared he would not accept it because "I don't believe in censorship."

WORKERS' EDUCATION

(A Tip to the Labor Movement)

By S. A. GARLIN

With its share stock with the Amalgamated Bank, owned by Labor Unions now in the making and helping the labor movement in its struggles against the employers,—according to the officers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

From any point in the square can be seen the nice, large, electric sign emblazoning the words: The Amalgamated Bank—First New York Labor Bank. Sometimes one of the other of the electric letters refuses to blink and then the sign is not so impressive as the directors of the bank would like.

• • •

This institution has all the things that other "institutions" have. It's swell inside; marble walls and elegant lighting fixtures. They have a guard in a gorgeous uniform, too. There's a high class reception room where the officials of the bank (who are also officials of the union), have conferences. There are writing tables. And under the heavy glass on the writing tables are some attractive pictures. Some of them have enticing captions. One of them reads:

"Planning a trip? See our Travel Dept., Window 24. All lines—all steamers—all accommodations."

There is another one that reads thus:

"If you had the money—there are many things you could do—travel, buy or build a home, or go into business. You could provide the education for your children that is such a necessity in the competitive struggle of today. Many a promising boy or girl has been deprived of the benefit of a college training because there were no plans in advance for saving money."

There are some nice, chocolatey pictures, too. It showed how attractive going to college would be for the sons and daughters of the New York clothing workers. Guess what pictures they had?

—The Workers' School? Certainly not. That wouldn't help out "in the competitive struggle of today." Not even the Brookwood School, supported by the A. F. of L. class collaborationists or the New School for Social Research, where vital social themes are material for "objective studies" and "open-mindedness."

The pictures the Amalgamated Bank officials were displaying showed Harvard University, educational stronghold of the American plutocracy. There were three photographs: one showed the campus, with great lawns, and students walking with tennis racquets under their arms; another, of the library with nobody around because all the students were probably hard at work inside; the last picture showed the administration building where appeals are sent forth to graduates who have "made good" in various fields of exploitation, to endow the endowments for the Alma Mater.

Clothing workers of New York! Send your sons to Harvard and your daughters to Vassar. Save them from the shop and the class struggle!

• • •

Class collaboration with vengeance. Possibly that is one of the reasons why the Russian-American Industrial Corporation, organized to help in the reconstruction of Soviet Russia's garment industry, was neglected and allowed to lie undeveloped. There are more congenial things to do.

BOOKS

NOTE—The conductors of this department are going to review books. Some of the books will be fiction, some poetry, and others will concern themselves with social and economic questions. The literature we will discuss will not necessarily be proletarian.

We propose, however, to talk about books from the point of view of those who have accepted the Marxist interpretation of society as a point of departure for their thinking.

One thing more. This space will not be devoted to polite literary gossip, painfully genial essays, or free publicity for the first novels of our personal friends.

POEMS FOR WORKERS. Edited by Manuel Gomez. Number 5 of The Little Red Library. The Daily Worker Publishing Co., $.10.

A little like "Poems for Workers" implies, first, that poetry in general can be appreciated by workers, and second, that there are specific poems or a specific type of poetry that make a special appeal to workers. The first of these ideas is certainly unconventional. Colleges professors and graduates of the five-foot shelf will say: try to talk poetry to workers! But they forget that poetry, like all the art forms, had its origins in the class activities of early peoples, and it was the coming of the capitalist system and particularly its most vicious flowering, the industrial revolution, that was to a large extent responsible for the abortive divorce of art from the life of the masses.

Manuel Gomez believes that you can talk poetry to workers, that workers can talk poetry to themselves. He points out in his introduction that his anthology is the first of its kind in the English language. All other collections, like Upton Sinclair's "The Cry for Justice," have gathered together primarily poems about workers. It is time that not all the writers assembled here are themselves workers. Some are undoubtedly bosses, for example, have really no direct relation with the working class. But practically all of these poems are written in a language and from a point of view that are close to the understanding and the life of the workers of America. Some of the poems are good and some are bad. Gomez makes it plain that the collection is personal and arbitrary. It might have been expanded into a portly volume dressed in an elegant binding and a professionize jacket. It might have sold for $5 instead of 10 cents and been reviewed in all the best magazines. It might even have become a topic for esthetic table-tappings in atmospheric wine-cellars where poetry is once more made a virgin, but it wouldn't have reached the people for whom it was intended, the men who dig our coal and build our bridges and do most of the hard-boiled, dreary, unpoetical work of the world.

Since the anthology is frankly arbitrary, it is perhaps useless to criticize the selection Gomez has made. Carl Sandburg is hardly represented at his best, nor are Michael Gold and Jim Waters, who has written better stuff than this for The DAILY WORKER. But any reader can be thankful for the inclusion of two poems not usually met with in anthologies: Alfred O'Connor's impudent and gaily pathetic hobo song, "Nobody Knows," and Arturo Giovannitti's "When the Cock Crows." The latter would be a tale of a midnight lynching is, in my opinion, one of the great poems of the English language. It is a leaping prophecy and a scourge. There is nothing like it in English unless it be the sonic poet's "The Walker," which falls short of its fierce, gigantic eloquence. Milton's "Avenge, O Lord, Thy Slaughtered Saints' is rhetorical in composition and William Ellery Leonard's "The Lynching Bee" seems stilted and literary. We must go back to the Old Testament prophets to find its equal. The poem is desperately real and its denunciation and scorn and lyrical madness burn nakedly into the mind. And it is a poem which comes close to the deepest emotions of most workers. A. B. MAGIL.

TAR, by Sherwood Anderson, Boni & Liveright, $2.50.

WHEN Sherwood Anderson's book first began to be published some of the critics said they liked the "groping quality of his writings. Ever since he has been strenuously endeavoring to "grope" as much as he could.

Anderson is wistful over the disappearance of the old swimmin' hole. It hurts him to see the fine, rolling hills of his native Ohio covered with ugly, sooty mills, factories, and railroads. He finds mechanical civilization so disquisting, so irritating, so relentless. Sherwood Anderson loves to dote over his own childhood and that of capitalist America. What wouldn't he give for the return of the days of the old swimmin' hole when men rode in buggies, painted their own houses, and wore corduroy pants. He would sacrifice anything in order to return to the time when he was a small boy and had sessiuns with his father in the outhouse in the backyard,—and hoped that he were already a man.

"Tar," is a story of Anderson's boyhood in a small Ohio town. Much of the book is convincing, and in it are folk-stories that cling closely to the core of experience. This writer knows how to tell a tale, especially if it is about a race-horse, a small town politician, or a prostitute. Although his "simplicity" is sometimes a mere poverty of language, critics have regarded it as a literary virtue.

Anderson is sentimental about the America before the age of imperialism and the U. S. Steel Corporation. One can sympathize with him on that score. Although it is necessary, of course, to be suspicious of the fellows who reach middle-age, and then yearn for their childhood days,—which were in all probability very unhappy. That's silly.

There is no doubt that the average literary craftsman (or word-fellow, as Anderson calls him) cannot be expected to know something of the industrial revolution; of the organization of capitalist industry; of the growth of the American Empire. Especially Anderson, who is a shrewd actor, a frustrated race-horse gambler. Naturally he would find economics dull reading. But it is a pity that he hasn't more time to see the labor movement and the social and artistic possibilities of a genuine working-class culture.

That's just the reason why Anderson is getting a little tiresome. Just as Mencken has already become a bore. It's a lot of fun and quite instructive from a point of view of the cultural hollowness of bourgeois America. In fact it's quite justified, and incidentally goes far toward explaining the atmosphere necessary for a freer kind of writing.

Anderson is lonely. He cannot identify himself with the noisy, intense civilization which has arrived out by frightful machines. He does not see that the "frightful" machines can be made beautiful, can be made to provide the leisure for which Anderson hankers so much.

Does he hate his little portable typewriter upon which he reveals his yearnings for brightly-colored socks and necktites, and for the fine Creole coffee to be had in the French Quarter in New Orleans?

Clearly it depends upon the uses to which machinery is put.

Sender Garlin.

Roll in the Subs For The DAILY WORKER.

WISCONSIN PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES SHOW UP ABUSES BY EMPLOYMENT SHARKS

(By Leland Olds, Federated Press)

The great advantage to the worker and the community of public as opposed to privately owned employment agencies is again emphasized in the report of the Wisconsin industrial commission covering employment offices in that state in 1926. This advantage is measured not only in dollars and cents but also in the trustworthy information furnished to applicants for jobs.

The report explains that "the burden of showing that the employment offices already in operation are not sufficient to meet the needs of employers and employes is upon the applicant for a new license. If the applicant fails to establish proof of the reasonable need of the proposed agency, the application must be denied in accordance with statutory provisions."

This gives the free public offices a virtual monopoly. In 1926 public offices for a new license. In 1926 placed 106,500 applicants compared with 8,008 placed by private agencies. Only 2,520 of the placements by private agencies went into industry. The remainder were nurses, teachers, clerical workers and domestic servants.'

Private agencies would have charged the 106,500 workers placed by the public offices in 1926 at least $373,000. So the saving due to public conduct of this business amounted to at least $300,000, a saving which goes right into the purses of wage-earner families.

In the 8-year period the public agencies have made 545,543 placements at a total cost of $301,936. If dependant upon private agencies this would have cost the workers more than $1,900,000. Public operation in the 8 years has saved the workers of Wisconsin at least $1,500,000.

Some of the abuses prevalent among private agencies against which the free public agencies protect the workers are discrimination, unreasonable fees, misrepresentation concerning the job, its duration and the wages to be paid.

Read The Daily Worker Everyday

Get Your Union to Telegraph Congress Today! WITHDRAW ALL U. S. WARSHIPS FROM NICARAGUA! NO INTERVENTION IN MEXICO! HANDS OFF CHINA! Don't Delay!

THE ONLY LABOR DAILY IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

The Daily Worker Fights:
For the Organization of the Unorganized.
For a Labor Party.
For the 40-Hour Week.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 29. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 16, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents.

CURRENT EVENTS

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

COOLIDGE'S press agents had Great Britain and Japan throw fits of delirious joy over the proposal to hold a conference for the reduction of naval armament. Both powers would accept. France only, was the emery dust in the machinery. But now, after a few days we don't find a single power willing to scrap a single hulk. Japan makes it clear that the British base in Singapore and the Japanese exclusion law in the United States render it incumbent on the Mikado's government to maintain the navy at its present strength.

• • •

Great Britain is "pondering" over a reply, but one need not wait for the publication of the British communication to form an opinion as to what that reply will be. Britain will not reduce her navy voluntarily. She needs her warships to prevent other powers from grabbing her loot. She needs them to carry on hostile expeditions against people like the Chinese, the Egyptians and the Hindoos. She needs them to preserve the empire.

• • •

Why does Coolidge want to call a halt on the naval building? Is it because he loves peace for the sake of peace? Is it because he is opposed to the settlement of international questions by the use of force? The answer to this question can be found in his attitude towards Mexico, Nicaragua and China. Coolidge is making tax reduction the keystone of the arch on which he hopes to support his candidacy for re-election. Warships are costly. The capitalists don't like to pay taxes even for battleships. To them weapons of defense are a necessary evil. The "big navy" politicians are singing the song of the lobbyists for the munition manufacturers, the shipbuilders and the steel magnates.

• • •

The sea power of one nation can only be measured in relation to the sea power of another nation or a possible combination of potentially hostile powers. If the United States had only ten battleships while England, France and Japan had eight, Wall street would be as potent on the sea as if the United States had 40 against 32 for England, France and Japan. What Coolidge is gunning for is a reduction of naval costs while still maintaining American naval strength as the point considered effective for the defense of the imperialist interests of our ruling classes. This is not a peace move. It is a move to reduce the tax burden that irks the capitalists. Every penny saved for those lads is a penny that can be spent on the Paris boulevards. "Cal" knows what he is about but we doubt if he will ever be able to dig up enough impudence to campaign for re-election under the slogan: "I kept you out of war."

• • •

PRINCESS Punyna of Poland, a member of the chamber of deputies, wants the chamber to protest against the "persecution of catholics in Mexico." Most of the deputies refused to have anything to do with the princess's protest, being quite taken up with their own struggle to save their necks from the Pilsudski hangmen who are in danger of getting muscle-bound if they are not kept in training. The Polish chamber of deputies rejected a report made by one of Pilsudski's ministers but "Pil" paid no attention to them. One of those days, a cavalry brigade will ride into the chamber and ride the deputies out. Under such conditions it is not surprising that the deputies should be rather cold to "the persecution of catholics in Mexico."

(Continued on Page Four)

"Mad Butcher" Boasts Of Crime; Business Rivalry Is Blamed

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 15.—"I'm glad I did it! I'd do it again!"

Such was the declaration of Harry Gordon, "mad butcher" slayer of two business rivals, in boasting of his crime in his cell at Monroe County jail today.

"Now I'm ready for the electric chair, anything—the worst can happen to me," Gordon continued. "My wife and kids should be proud of me for what I have done—killed such men as Harry Katz and Sam Toltz. I gave Katz a chance to shoot it out with me—offered him one of my own guns—but he wouldn't."

Police attribute the double slaying to the business failure of Gordon, who is a butcher. Katz and Toltz were shot to death last Friday night and two others wounded.

Powers Decline Invitation to Limit Arms

France, Italy, Japan, Shy From Anglo-American Trap

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—As was generally expected in diplomatic circles, the powers which have something to lose by the American-British program for naval reductions are refusing to play the game at all, and Coolidge now has his excuse to advocate a bigger navy.

Great Britain assumes a non-committal attitude to the state department's invitation to a conference on disarmament. She was the only country actually consulted by Kellog before the invitation went forth. As long as Britain is willing to play second fiddle to American financial imperialism, a role to which her statesmen have apparently resigned themselves, at least for the time, England has little to lose by any disarmament that does not upset the 5-5-3 ratio—provided France, Japan and Italy follow suit.

Baldwin Discreet.

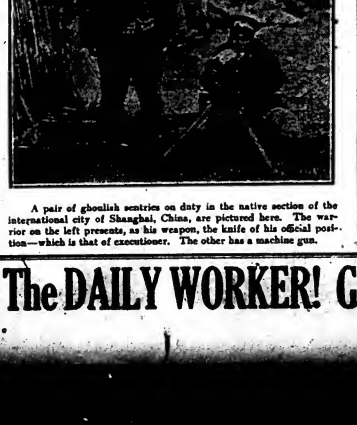
Baldwin, therefore, on being interpelated in Commons, merely states that the cabinet is interested, and will work for peace, and wait for the replies of other nations. On one thing only is he positive: England will not give up the use of poison gas. The great chemical warfare service built on Britain's new dye industry shall not be wasted. No formal answer has been made to the United States.

Benito Bullies.

The Italian reply came first, in the shape of articles in the semi-official newspapers, and amounts to a rejection of any proposals that do not leave Mussolini with a fleet strong enough to attack the Balkans or Asia Minor at any time he chooses. Italy will sit in a conference which shall also bind the Balkans, Turkey, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—and not otherwise.

Keeps Her Empire.

Italy's formal reply to the disarmament proposals of President Coolidge will not be prepared for several days, it was announced today. The reply may be handed to Ambassador Fletcher on Thursday or Friday.



Il Tevere, an organ of the government, today again rebuffed Italy's need for warships to guarantee her colonial possessions as well as to search for new outlets for an excessive population.

France Refuses.

France will publish a formal reply soon. The note is written and has been discussed in the chamber of deputies. It amounts to a definite refusal to agree on any plan which shall limit the French right to build enough submarines to blow the British fleet out of the water, or which shall take the power to decide the relative strength of nations out of the League of Nations, whose disarmament conference France can obstruct through the votes of her Balkan and Central European allies.

(Continued on Page Three)

TWO OF SUN CHUAN FANG'S GANG

A pair of ghoulish sentries on duty in the native section of the international city of Shanghai, China, are pictured here. The warrior on the left presents, as his weapon, the butt of his official position—which is that of executioner. The other has a machine gun.

Five Killed and Many Wounded When Police Fire on Hindu Crowds

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 15.—Five persons were killed and 19 were wounded today at Indore. Shots were fired into a crowd which demonstrated before an Indian nobleman's mansion. Further disturbances are feared.

• • •

CALCUTTA, Feb. 15.—Serious rioting occurred today at Khargpur, where a thousand native railway employes stormed and destroyed the railway station platform. They were dispersed by the police, who fired two volleys. Sixteen natives were injured.

FARM BLOC TO RUSH VOTE ON "RELIEF" BILL

Mellon Criticisms Get Congress Excited

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. — The farm bloc triumphed today in the first big test vote on farm relief in the house when a rule substituting the senate McNary-Haugen bill for the house measure was adopted.

The vote was 281 to 62 and followed a two hour fight, in which opponents of farm relief mustered their strength to defeat the rule, hoping thereby to cause delay and probable death to farm relief legislation at this session.

A revival of the feud between a goodly portion of President Coolidge's cabinet and farm relief advocates was threatened today as farm bloc leaders flared back at secretary of the treasury Mellon's slap at the pending McNary-Haugen farm bill.

Mellon's statement broke the wall of silence that has enveloped the White House since the present farm relief fight got under way. Cabinet members, it is reported, have been under orders from Mr. Coolidge to keep "hands off," in direct contrast to the last session when at least three cabinet officers openly fought the McNary-Haugen plan.

Quiet Opposition.

They have not actually carried out their orders, if such were given, for Secretary of Agriculture Jardine has toured the country and addressed the farmers at county fairs, grange meets, etc., quietly ripping the farm relief bill up the back. But in comparison with the open opposition of three members of the cabinet last year, this bill has, up to now, met with slight opposition from Coolidge appointees. Mellon's statement is the first indication that matters are getting serious.

Mellon Memorializes.

Secretary Mellon outlined his views on the farm bill in a memorandum prepared in the office of the Commissioner of internal revenue and addressed to Representative Chindblom of Illinois, a republican member of the committee on ways and means.

The memorandum set forth these points:

That the estimated annual cost of the administrative organization cre-

(Continued on Page Three)

Deadlock Still Lasts at Coal Wage Meeting

Miners' Pay Too Low Now to Stand Any Cutting

MIAMI, Feb. 15. — The operators continued their propaganda for a wage reduction and for arbitration machinery in the agreement now under negotiation between the committee from the United Mine Workers of America, and the representatives of the employers.

Although the argument is over the present $7.50 (theoretically) a day wage scale which the miners want to keep and the operators are trying to slash, the real underlying fight is over the principle of wage arbitration advanced by the operators. The owners want to give "flexibility" to wages, and at the same time, by setting up a joint permanent arbitral board, to be able to abrogate the agreement in fact, while maintaining it in form, as they do now under the five year's contract with which the anthracite miners are saddled.

Apparent Deadlock.

A breakdown in the negotiations appeared inevitable today.

Both sides declared the conference would be heading homeward shortly without the semblance of a new wage scale unless the present seemingly irreconcilable differences are swept away by some unexpected concessions or deals. The actual break, however, may not come before the end of this week or the first of next.

Talk Strike.

The atmosphere here is tense. Among the delegates there is considerable talk in favor of a strike or suspension. But among leading officials of both groups this is largely discredited. They claim that even should the Miami negotiations break down, there is quite a distinct probability that the meeting would be reconvened later in some north city, and an agreement possibly signed before the miners lay down their tools.

Miners Low Paid.

